Council Agrees to City Hall Architect

July 16, 1964

Mason City Council
City Hall
Mason, Michigan

Gentlemen:

The Mason Public Schools wish to register an objection to the use of the recently proposed city facility as a fire station.

The proposed city facility at the northeast corner of Jefferson and Oak Streets is located diagonally across the Jefferson-Oak intersection from our most heavily populated school building. There will be nine hundred students in this building during the 1964-65 school year. Further adding to the congestion in this area is the fact that this large school is on a limited site. It would be inconsistent with good planning not to strongly consider the safety handicaps and inconvenience that location of the fire station at the proposed site would impose not only on the school but on the city fire department as well.

Our entire school bus transportation system as it presently operates converges at the intersection of the proposed fire station. The junior high, being centrally located is our logical transfer point. Between 3:20 and 3:45 p.m. each school day, approximately twenty buses line Oak street and Jefferson. Three buses come from Steele Street School and five buses come from the high school. All enter the area by coming west on Oak Street. Those taking students to the south part of the district proceed across Jefferson and completely fill Oak Street for buses, the dismissal of nine hundred youngsters many of whom walk home and create a heavy pedestrian traffic in this area at this time, and on inclement days, many mothers in cars to pick up students and the magnitude of the problem becomes clearer.

This type of congestion also occurs in the morning with the arrival of students but is not as critical since the arrival is spread over a longer time period.

It would seem that the tactical problems created by the sudden influx of firemen, the dispersion of fire equipment, and the congestion of our school situation would impose a serious threat to the safety and well being of our school children.

The Mason Public Schools and the Board of Education request that serious consideration be given its objection to the proposed

A letter of protest (see text in adjoining column) received by the Mason city council by the Mason school board Monday night did not cause the slightest waver in the council's intent to move the city hall to the Chevy garage building.

The letter, protesting the locating of the city hall and fire station across the street from the junior high school, was received and placed on file by the council.

The council also authorized the mayor to enter into a contract with the architectural firm of Frank & Stein to develop preliminary plans for the city hall.

The mayor is not authorized to sign the contract, however, until the Chevy property now owned by Al Rice is actually deeded to the city. As of Wednesday, Rice had not acted on the city's offer to purchase of several weeks ago.

Mayor Gilson Pearsall said the city should be able to actually purchase the property soon and that work on the development of the city hall and fire station would begin as soon as Rice vacates the building, probably this fall.

The decisions to file the school board's letter and to hire the architect were unanimous.

Mayor Pearsall said that the intent of the school board letter was mainly to be on record as opposing the location of the city hall and that he did not believe the points of concern expressed by the school board were sufficient to cause the city council to reconsider its prior decision to purchase the Chevy property.

Comptroller Approves Dart Bank for Delhi

Dart National bank has been authorized by the Comptroller of the Currency, James J. Saxon, Washington, D.C., to put new banking facilities into Delhi township. Permission for the new quarters for Delhi township was received by Dart National bank Thursday.

Rollin Dart, bank president, said the new bank will be built on property adjacent to the Griffith Drug property on Aurelius road.

Immediate plans call for the establishment of mobile banking quarters on the site late this summer. In the meantime, he said, the board of directors is working on plans for the permanent banking structure.

Dart said that Dart National has great confidence in the growth of Delhi township and that it hopes to further help serve the banking needs of the area.

Dart National is the oldest national bank in Ingham county. It was established in 1925. Dart said the bank already has a growing number of accounts in the Delhi area and that the new banking quarters will enable Dart National to offer more convenient service to them.

The Delhi bank is the second area bank to be built by Dart National. The banking firm built a drive-in service bank in Mason 4 years ago. It was the first auto facility in the Mason area.

The incident was investigated by the Michigan state police.

A resolution submitted to the city council Monday night by Councilman Muri Eastman would give the police and justice of the peace departments some teeth with which to handle disorderly persons. It was tabled 2 weeks for a vote.

Under the proposed resolution, a disorderly person includes anyone who does or aids others to excite any disturbance in any public or business place in the city or at any election or public meeting, be drunk in any public place or engage in any indecent or obscene conduct, do any window-peeping, utter vile, blasphemous, vulgar or obscene language in a public place or in any way to subject anyone to such language, accost, molest or annoy by word of mouth, whistle or motion any person in a public place, loiter or stand in crowds or arrange or encourage the collection of persons in crowds for illegal or mischievous purposes conduct oneself in any public place so as to obstruct the uninterrupted passage of the public,

Freak Mishap Claims Girl

Debbie O'Berry, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell O'Berry, 3141 Harper road, was dead upon arrival at Mason General hospital late last Thursday night after a capsule of medicine lodged in her throat.

Coroner Darwin Hoffmeyer pronounced death as accidental and the cause suffocation.

Sheriff's officers received a call at 11:18 p.m. Thursday from Mrs. Mary E. Johnson of 3151 Harper road, a neighbor of the O'Berry family.

Mrs. Johnson told officers that Mrs. O'Berry had come rushing to her home screaming that her baby was choking. Mrs. Johnson then went to the O'Berry home to help Darrow O'Berry who was trying to loosen the object stuck in the child's throat.

Mrs. O'Berry said she had been trying to give the child a capsule of medicine in a teaspoon of cocoa. The capsule became stuck in the baby's throat and she began choking. O'Berry tried patting the child's back to dislodge the capsule but to no avail.

Deputies rushed the child and her parents to Mason General hospital where doctors tried mouth to mouth respiration, then suction and then closed massage but their efforts were futile.

Debbie was born May 16, 1962, making her age at the time of death 2 years and 2 months exactly.

Debbie is survived by her parents; 2 sisters, Terri and Sonia; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Gale Farr of Phoenix, Arizona, and 2 great-grandmothers, Gladys Walte of Holt and Mrs. Ada Farr of Holt.

City Seeks Third Well

City councilmen authorized City Engineer Walter Zimmer Monday night to select a site for a new water well. The well would be the 5th in the city. Zimmer has said that more water pumping ability would assure against a water shortage as the city experienced a year ago.

Mason now gets its water from a well on South Jefferson at the MCRH tracks, at the alley south of Ash and west of Park, from a well in the area of the new county jail and from a well on Mason street.

Mayor Gilson Pearsall said there is no danger of a water shortage this summer. He explained that a combination of circumstances including the cleaning of the city elevated tank during the crucial hot weather period, forced the city to enforce water usage control last summer.

The proposed new well would be built next year and be included in next year's budget.

Blacey Stump Removal of Ypsilanti has the city contract for removal of tree stumps in the city. Its bid of $4.65 per stump for the first 65 stumps and a reduction to $4.25 per stump thereafter was accepted by the city council Monday night. The bidding was motivated primarily by the growing number of elm tree stumps, but councilmen said stumps in general will be the target of the Blacey organization.

Destroy Diseased Elms
Every elm tree cut because it has Dutch Elm disease must, according to state law, be either sprayed, burned or buried. Wayne Curtis said Wednesday that he is finding that some people do not understand the regulation and are cutting diseased elm wood for fireplace logs. He said it is illegal and defeats the purpose of ridding diseased elm trees in order to save the remaining healthy ones.

City Ordinance Would Curb Teen Nightlife

Mason city councilmen, acting upon the recommendations of Police Chief Tim Stolz and Justice Roy Adams, acted on a resolution Monday night that can make it hot for juveniles who roam city streets at night and their parents or guardians who let them. A full text of the resolutions appears in Section B of the News. The proposal was tabled for 2 weeks for a vote.

Resolution 69 makes it illegal for minors under 12 years of age to loiter, idle or congregate on public property or in motor vehicles between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. unless accompanied by parents or guardians or by adults 21 years or over authorized by parents or guardians. The same rules apply for minors under the age of 18 except that the curfew starts at midnight.

Any person 17 years of age or over who assists, permits or encourages any minor under the age of 18 to violate the provisions of the ordinance is also guilty of a violation of the ordinance and punishable by a fine of up to $100 and imprisonment up to 90 days, or both.

Commission OK's School Bonds

The proceeds will be used to erect, furnish and equip a new elementary schoolhouse, erect, furnish and equip an addition to the Alameda elementary school, develop and improve sites, and to construct and equip playgrounds. The bonds were authorized by the electors of the school district May 11. They are unlimited tax bonds and will run until 1974. The school district is authorized to levy whatever taxes are necessary to pay principal and interest.

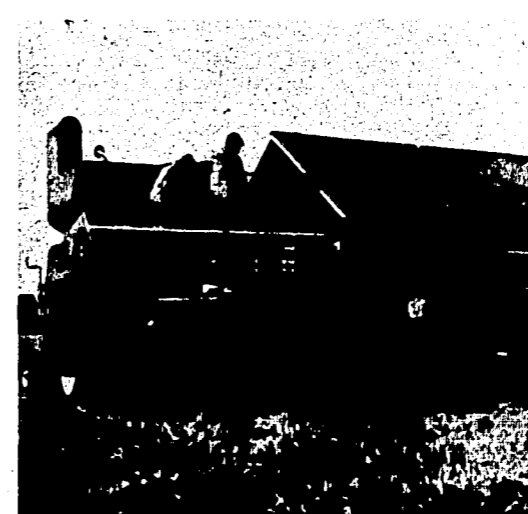

Tractors Hum into the Night

The Golden Season Is Here

When the summer season swings into July, no one in a farm community needs a calendar to know what the month it is. The hum of tractors from daylight until after dark means that the farmer is trying to add another hour to a long day. He has to get the hay all in before the wheat is ready to combine and the corn cultivated again before the hay is dry and finish the grain combining before some big rains delay the operation. No one has to get out an almanac to look up the longest day in the year - the farmer and his family have first-hand information on that.

Prosecutor Fires Aide, College Club Elects Officers

Thomas H. Skehan, ousted from his post as chief assistant prosecutor attorney last week, says "that the only thing I want out of this is a chance to run for county prosecutor."

Skehan was discharged by Leo A. Farhat, Ingham county prosecuting attorney, last week, because, Farhat said, he didn't want a chief assistant who would be campaigning when he should be attending to the duties required in his job.

Skehan told the Ingham County News Tuesday that he still considers himself on the prosecutor's payroll under the Veterans Preference Act. He explained that under the act, a veteran on the public payroll cannot be fired without due cause and that he doesn't believe an announcement to run for public office constitutes due cause.

Skehan filed his nominating petitions Tuesday.

Farhat has said he will not run for re-election. It is rumored he has his eye on the office of attorney general of Michigan.

Skehan is seeking Farhat's county job as a candidate on the Republican ticket.

Skehan was fired a week ago today soon after he had announced his candidacy for the office of county prosecutor.

At noon last Wednesday Skehan said he was locked out of his office and his effects were placed in boxes outside the office door.

"I made it perfectly clear to him (Skehan) when I appointed him that I didn't want him engaging in any political activities," Farhat said. "I don't think he can campaign and still take care of the office."

Skehan says he doesn't recall ever hearing Farhat make any such statement.

"I'm not going to withdraw from the prosecutor's race," Skehan said. "I'm in this thing to stay."

Skehan, 37, has been chief assistant for about a year. He joined the prosecutor's staff at the start of 1961 and rose through the ranks to the second top job.

By announcing his candidacy, Skehan assured a runoff in the primary for Republican nomination. Donald L. Reitsig, Lansing city attorney and former chief assistant to Farhat, also is a candidate on the Republican ticket.

Seeking the nomination on the Democratic ticket is Max Murphy, a Lansing attorney.

Bird, Plane or Superman?

Sky Object Is Head-Scratcher

A whirlybird can cause a lot of excitement.

Residents on the west side of Holt got into quite a tizzy Monday afternoon when a helicopter suddenly landed in a vacant lot at the northeast corner of Delhi avenue (Holt road) and Aurelius road.

A man emerged from the craft and made his way to Young's gasoline station across the street. Employees there said he told them he was looking for a gas line along Aurelius road. He had some papers which he said were drawings of the line. Then he went back to his helicopter, climbed in and whirled away.

Someone called the Ingham county sheriff's department and said a helicopter had crashed. That brought sheriff patrol cars to the scene, but by that time the mysterious pilot and his craft had flown away.

A check was made with Consumers Power company to learn if the mysterious flyer was one of their men. They said they had no one flying around the area in a helicopter.

The Ingham County Road commission which was doing a widening job in the very area where the mysterious flyer said he was looking for a gas line, said they didn't have any whirlybird employees either.

The Capital City airport did report that a dark blue helicopter took off from the airport shortly after 4 p.m. Monday.

This clue was smashed to bits, however, by Gary DeRosa, an employee of Young's station who saw the helicopter. He said it was light blue.

The mystery grows deeper and deeper and still is unsolved.

And then along come Charlotte Camp, Ingham County News correspondent in Stockbridge, and says she saw an unidentified flying object on the air down near Jackson the other night.

"It was last Friday night," she said. "My son, David, and I were on our way to Jackson about 10 o'clock when we saw this 'thing' as it crossed over the road in front of our car about 10 feet above the treetops."

Mrs. Camp said there was no noise. The ship, or whatever it was, seemed to drift along. Then suddenly it disappeared. She said it was traveling from east to west and gave off a bluish green light which was brilliant but not blinding--something like a mercury street light. It was circular in shape with prongs protruding from it at various intervals, around it, she said.

Mrs. Camp, somewhat shaken by her experience, stopped at a state police post just outside Jackson and asked if they had received any reports of an unidentified object in the sky.

In fact, police phones rang for a long time as excited persons reported seeing the "thing" and wanted to know what it was.

"It was nothing to laugh about," said Mrs. Camp, "and I don't want to go through it again."

Now all that is needed is for someone to report seeing little green men on a roof top. This really was the week that was.

There's an interesting job awaiting some local historians. The Civil War Centennial committee with headquarters in Ann Arbor wants an Ingham county chairman to record every grave of Civil war soldiers in the county. Joy O. Davis, Mason insurance agent, has the details.

JOHN HUFFINE of Fitchburg displays his new accident prevention invention on a power lawnmower.

Fitchburg Man Invents Safety Unit

FITCHBURG - John Huffine of Fitchburg has invented a safety attachment to power lawnmowers in an effort to prevent injury and loss of lives.

His interest was created by reading of the accidents that occur in the U.S. from power lawnmowers.

In one case a clothes line h. was picked up by a mower blade and thrown with terrific force penetrating the heart of a nearby person. In another incident, a short piece of wire killed a child by penetrating his temple. Thousands of toes have been injured or cut off when people have slipped feet under lawn mowers while in operation.

Huffine's invention is an 11-inch bar on which tire cross chains are welded every inch. These chains drop down over the outlet of lawn mowers. Grass clipping can blow through but the chains stop larger articles and stones that might be picked up by the mower blade. This device can be manufactured in mass production for around $5, Huffine estimates.

Huffine has operated the saw mill at Fitchburg for 42 years

Munith Girl Plans Visit To Nigeria

MUNITH - Miss Cherle Dixon will leave for Nigeria August 4 and will return September 11.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Dixon, 10750 New road, Munith and will be among the 37 students going from Michigan State university along with Dr. Charles Kraft, a professor from M.S.U. and Mrs. Kraft.

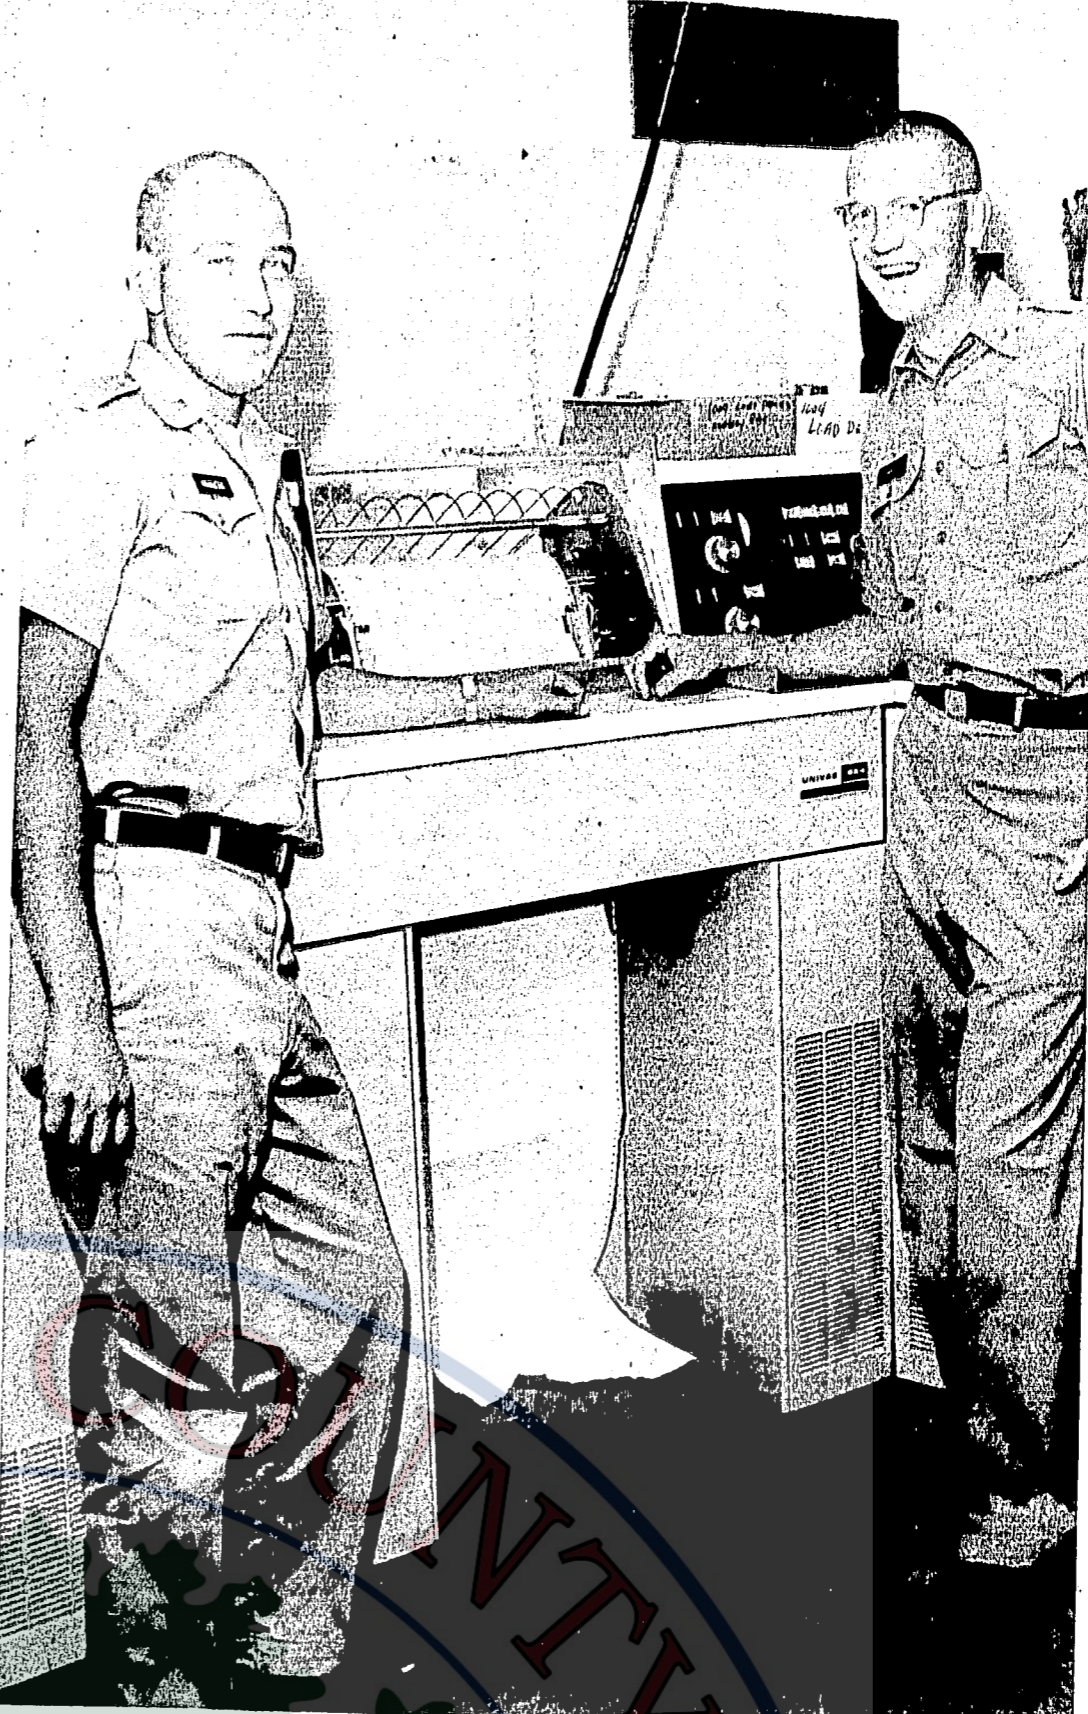

This will be the first exchange program between an American university and an African university. They will stay on campus at the University of Nigeria at Nsukka.

Three courses will be taught by Nigerian professors, geography, political science and sociology. The subject matter of all courses will have to do with Nigeria.

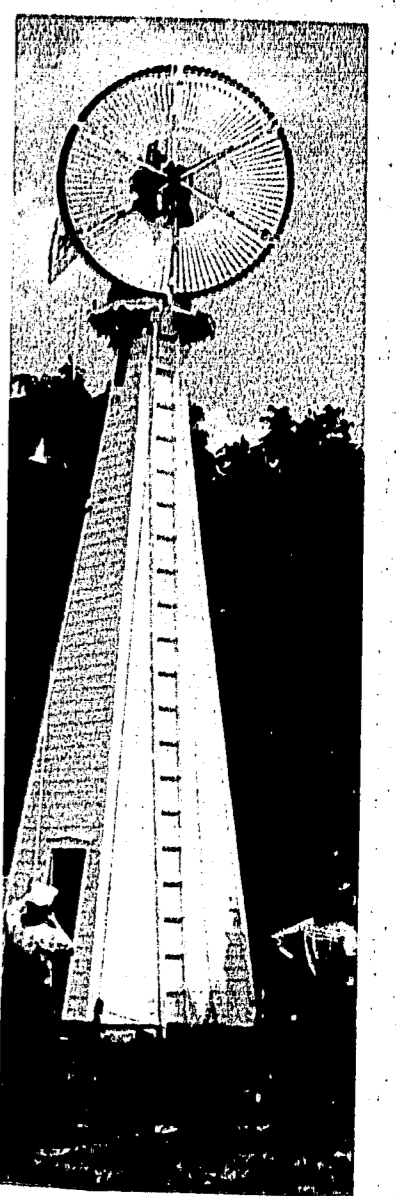

The group will fly Pan American on an 18 hour continuous trip from New York.

Miss Dixon will be a senior at M.S.U. in the fall, and has never had a serious accident from its operation.

"Think before you work around dangerous machinery," is his motto.

Shown is the windmill on the Jacob Reedy farm near Waterloo, which is being restored as a farm museum by the Waterloo Area Historical society. The windmill has been refurbished and last week saw the re-installation of the wheel which had been taken down and completely rebuilt by Lou McCleer of Gregory.

Holt Teen Wife Sent To Prison

HOLT - Mrs. Diana Hawkins, 19, of Holt was sentenced last week by Circuit Judge Sam Street Hughes in Lansing to serve a sentence of 6 months to 4 years in Detroit House of Correction for her part in the theft of $270 from the home of Allan Jordan on Kelly road, Mason.

Donald Hawkins, also 19, her husband, is serving 11 months to 4 years for his part in the theft and 14 months to 4 years for participation in a theft of money from a laundry in Mason.

Kiwanians Hear Conclave Report

HOLT - Holt Kiwanians heard reports on the Kiwanis International convention at their dinner meeting Monday night at the Delhi Charter township hall. John Brower and Clinton Horning, delegates from the Holt club, reported to the group on all the business and events at the convention which took place June 28-July 2 at Los Angeles.

The Holt club will have work night and supper at the Holt Kiwanis park July 27.

Most of Chicago streets and lots were raised 8-10 or 12 feet before the Fire of 1871, to get above swampy, wet land.

Joe Kiersey, Delhi township supervisor, (above) this week announced his candidacy for re-election, on the Democratic ticket. Kiersey said much remains to be done in the township, especially the updating of assessments and improving of zoning. Kiersey has concentrated his efforts on these problems during his year and a half in office.

Leslie Bars to Stay Closed on Sundays

LESLE - Leslie's taverns will remain closed on Sundays. This was the decision of the Leslie village council at its meeting Monday evening.

Millage Proposal Up Again

HOLT - Voters in the Holt school district will go to the polls Tuesday, August 25 to ballot on a proposal to levy 2.5 mills for the operation of schools in the district.

This announcement was made last week by the board of education following receipt of a petition bearing 300 signatures asking for the vote. Twice before, in April and again in June, the voters defeated the proposal. If approved in this third try, the millage would be in effect for 5 years.

Holt Nazarenes At Camp Meeting

HOLT - Thirty six members of the congregation of the Holt Nazarene church attended the Sunday services at the Nazarene Michigan District Camp meeting now in progress at Indian Lake near Vicksburg.

Rev. Lewis Novotny of Lansing was the guest speaker for Sunday services at the Holt church.

people that taverns remain closed on Sunday.

The vote on the matter showed 4 councilman voting against re-opening of the bars, and one voting in favor of Sunday sales.

One councilman, Jimmie Lounsbury was not present. He is out of town on a vacation trip.

Voting to retain the present law keeping the taverns closed on the Sabbath were Councilmen William Durfee, Jack Houghtaling, Guy Kiefer and Malcolm Stuart.

Voting to permit the taverns to open Sundays was Councilman Robert Shipman.

The proposal to open the taverns on Sundays came up about 2 months ago when the 2 bar owners in Leslie presented to the council a petition carrying around 200 or more signatures asking that the bars be permitted to stay open on Sunday.

Immediately, church groups in the village marshalled their forces to fight the issue. They presented a petition to the council carrying signatures of approximately 400 residents, according to city officials.

Leslie's taverns used to be open on Sunday but a few years ago, the council ordered them closed, and they have been closed ever since.

Busy With Her Hobbies Mrs. Ethelyn Brown of Leslie Plans to Retire But that Doesn't Mean She'll Stop Working

By Charlotte Camp
LESLE. . . After many years as a school teacher, minister's wife and storekeeper, Mrs. Mary Ethelyn Brown of Leslie is looking forward to retirement. She calls it retirement, but when she outlines her plans for the future, it sounds more like another beginning on a new job.

Mrs. Brown will be retiring from the operation of Hill's dry-goods store in Leslie, which has been operated in partnership with her daughter.

How did a minister's wife get into a retail business? "Well," she said, "it was like this. We were living in the thumb area of Michigan and my husband, a Free Methodist minister, was planning his retirement when he was asked to assume the pastorate of the Free Methodist church in Leslie. We came to Leslie in 1943 and he served the church here for 4 years. In 1946, we opened the store in partnership with our daughter."

Besides working in the store, Mrs. Brown went back to teaching school a year after their arrival in Leslie. She said she first started teaching before her marriage at the age of 18. She also wrote Leslie news for the Ingham County News for some time.

After she and Rev. Brown were married in 1939, keeping a home for her family was more important to her than working, so she gave up teaching until they moved to Leslie. She taught full time for 8 years, holding only a limited teachers certificate. "Of course I had to take a lot of extension work," she said.

After the death of Rev. Brown in 1956, she spent most of her time working in the store, although she did a substantial amount of substitute teaching.

Now, Mrs. Brown feels that the store is getting to be a little more than she can handle, she said that she and her daughter are selling out and hope to have the shelves cleared by the end of the week. She said the property is up for sale and they will be moving to Auburn Heights, near Pontiac.

As to her retirement activities, Mrs. Brown said she plans to make placques, candles and plastic flowers. She said she had done a little of it in the past and "now I can get into it full time." "And maybe there will be a little income to boot," she said. "How could I be idle after so many years of being busy?" she asked.

Reflecting on her past, Mrs. Brown said, "Being a minister's wife, you always meet a lot of people, and I kind of like that. Maybe that's why I liked the store, meeting people every day."

"When my husband was alive," she said, "we always talked about traveling and seeing the beautiful country, but since a minister can't get away too easily, we only did a little of it."

Mrs. Brown said she did some traveling after her husband died "but," she went on, "the sunsets we used to enjoy together from the top of some hill just don't seem to be quite as pretty when you are all alone."

"So," she said, "I just keep myself busy with my hobbies."

Go Ahead, Governor

Governor George Romney can't make up his mind at this point whether he'll run an independent campaign for re-election to the governorship or if he will snuggle up to the presidential campaign machinery of Senator Barry Goldwater.

The governor who grabbed the national spotlight at the Republican convention long enough to claim the nomination of Goldwater could well destroy the Republican party itself is doing his best to destroy it himself.

Two years ago Michigan Republicans elected Romney as governor even though Romney refused but in a few rare cases to ever link his name with the Republican party.

He prided himself in being an "independent" then and there is little doubt but what he considers himself an independent now. His worry about the preservation of the Republican party is incidental to his own future as expressed through his political independence.

In many ways George Romney has restored responsible government to the state of Michigan. Yet in the long pull, even he admits that the 2-party system is necessary. However, the governor too frequently prefers to work outside organized political circles. He has every right to do so, yet his independent attitude at the Republican national convention got him only ridicule and his putting and poor-mouthing was an embarrassment to many Republicans.

If George Romney intends to fight the Republican party's candidate for the presidency, then he is taking on the awful responsibility of helping to wreck the party he so eloquently declared he loves so much at the national convention.

It's time George Romney finds a home in either political party and stays there. He adds nothing to the 2-party system now.

City Hall Solutions

Monday night Mason city council agreed to hire an architectural firm to help plan for the renovation of the building selected for a new city hall. The city has made an offer to purchase the Chevy garage owned by Al Rice.

The decision to locate new city offices and the fire department in the Chevy garage is not unanimous in the community. There are a lot of solid reasons in favor of the city using the building, but opponents, including the Mason board of education, oppose the plan because it would add to the traffic congestion around the junior high school. Others are skeptical about the way the new city hall may look, fearing that it may still look like a garage when completed.

If the council, as it seems to be, is bent on going through with the project, then both of these fears should and can be corrected.

There can be beauty in the remodeled building if the council impresses upon the architects that the community will settle for nothing less. We definitely do not want the Mason city hall to look like a garage. We want it to appear completely new and modern inside and out. The community will have to look at this proposed city hall for many years. The residents have the right to be proud of it.

As for the congestion, it's true that the arrival of firemen in answering an alarm and the traffic of fire rigs will constitute congestion at times. Yet, there is a solution here, too. The city should buy the Chevy used car lot across from the proposed city hall. It is for sale. The additional land could be used for city employe parking and firemen parking when they are answering an alarm.

If the city council is content to only purchase the land the garage is on, there will not be a single off-street parking spot for any city employe, customer or fireman.

Building codes in Mason demand that private commercial firms provide adequate off-street parking facilities. It may be that the city is immune from such provisions, but it is not immune from the spirit of this off-street parking code.

In addition to the parking space available right across the street from the proposed city hall, the used car lot also has a good building suitable for city garage purposes.

The council should offer to purchase both Chevy properties. This is the time to do it. Not later.

Bank Expansion

Dart National bank has received authorization of the federal government to establish banking facilities in Holt. The announcement by Dart National comes on the heels of expansion plans announced last week by Mason State bank calling for a drive-in bank in Mason.

Willingness and the ability to create better banking facilities doesn't just happen. Mason's banking institutions are providing better services to a larger service area simply because each has the confidence of the growing number of people and they respond to that confidence by being willing to plow any profits back into public service.

Now this spirit of free enterprise and competition has been extended to the Holt area. Holt will undoubtedly prosper from aggressive banking as Mason has. There is every reason to expect that the Holt area will be assured top banking service with a second bank in the area. And in turn both Dart National and American Bank and Trust will prosper.

barbs, praise and consequence

Dick Brown

Is justice for the guilty or is justice for the innocent? Is justice and the law of the land to protect the general public or is it to coddle and pamper the guilty?

These are good questions for it appears that the swing of the pendulum is in favor of the malfactors, especially in the interpretations of the laws of state and nation as handed down by many of our courts.

This handcuffing of law enforcing the laws is reflected in the apathy and the general civil disobedience of the times.

What's more it can and does happen here.

Too often we in the semi-peaceful confines of Mason, Ingham county and other suburban areas think that the big cities have a corner on brutality.

A girl is attacked on a busy New York street while crowds of adults look on and there is much talk on our part about the wicked city. A wolf-pack of hoods can beat up a man on a crowded subway and we remark how nice it is to live in Mason.

Civil rights workers turn up missing in Mississippi and we condemn all Mississippians. A street war breaks out in Detroit or Chicago and we admire our own environment for lacking such violence.

But it can happen here. It is happening here with greater regularity.

A few nights ago a trio of punks, local variety, while hitting the bottle, accosted junior high boys and a junior high girl walking the road just a few feet from their own home. They proceeded to beat all 3 up. Yet, these punks, one already a probationer, after a few short hours of detention, walked out into the open sneeringly thumbing their noses at society.

A few weeks ago Lansing had a rumble in which law and order was mocked and those charged with the responsibility of law and order were attacked.

An officer attempted to break up a teenage drinking bout in Jackson and was assaulted for his efforts by a mob streaming from a nearby dancehall.

Yes, mob violence and disregard is getting closer to the hallowed grounds, our own home, every minute of every day.

Laws and the courts are not created to protect the guilty at the expense of the innocent. Yet modern interpretations upsetting hundreds of years of court decisions is giving the upper hand to those who violate the law.

The newest example is the supreme court edict which will open the gates for hundreds of convicted criminals through an interpretation which will give appeals even when there are no grounds for appeals.

It's about time the pendulum swings back the other way so that those who do obey the laws of the land can be protected.

This appeals edict which apparently will start August 1, and is retroactive to January 1, 1964, isn't coming for free either. Estimates are that it is going to saddle the law abiding Ingham taxpayers with a quarter of a million dollars annually in the form of extra court facilities, extra prosecution staff, extra clerical help and with a good possibility that the taxpayers will foot the bill of the appeal attorney for the guilty.

Somehow this doesn't smack of being justice as justice was intended.

Summer Blight

Thoughts for the Week

THE soul of the psalmist cried out to be filled with the joy of God's salvation. To show his gratitude for the freedom that would come with God's gift of salvation, he offered to give service in the work of the kingdom.

Opportunity to serve and humility in service will help us to find the greatest liberty the human soul can know—the liberty to become truly great. The Master said, "Whoever of you will be the chiefest, shall be servant of all." Also He said, "He that is least among you all, the same shall be great." Throughout His life and in all His teachings, Jesus put emphasis on humility in service as a basic principle in Christian living.

Freedom for the Christian means the right to do the will of God. Our greatest liberty is found in freedom to live and work for the glory of God and for the blessing of humanity.

Down by the Sycamore

For nearly 25 years, a favorite feature of The Ingham County News was the Down by the Sycamore column written by Nelson Brown. With his death in 1961, the column ended. Margaret Brown, daughter of the late editor and brother of the present News editors, has been pouring over the old columns and has extracted some of the best of Down by the Sycamore. The feature will continue indefinitely. The weekly column contains observations of the daily scene and an occasional cryptic look at life in general. The series is being planned with the hope that some or all of the selections will strike a familiar note to oldtimers and a fresh thought or 2 for new readers of the News.

OCTOBER 5, 1944

In the newspaper business it doesn't take long to work 22 years. It seems only week before last when I opened the gate and walked into the field of letters. I have dug, plowed, blasted, dragged, harrowed, cultivated and done about everything else in that field. I have been hip-deep in the muck. I have stubbed my toes on the stones. I have overreared on the wild grapes growing in the fence rows. I have pulled up good plants under the impression they were thistles. I have even planted some weed seeds in the belief they were some of the newest hybrids. There have been many harvests when I had only half a crop or none at all. I have worked in the field from dawn to sunset many weeks and then on others I have squatted down along the banks of the Sycamore . . . and let nature take her course.

FEBRUARY 27, 1941

Old age creeps right up on folks. My watch had become a little erratic and I stopped at the jewelry store to complain. My father presented it to me when I returned from making the world safe for democracy. After 22 years of keeping my kind of time the watch might need to have the oil changed, I figured. I always like to dicker, and so I said, "What'll you give on a trade-in?" "Of course you want a jewel watch?" asked the jeweler. "I seldom sell a pocket watch these days. Nine out of 10 men buy wrist watches, and so your watch would be so small value."

I like a watch with an open countenance, one that will tell the time at a glance. I dislike the small figures on wrist watches, and I like a watch to slip under my pillow at night so I'll keep my old one, and get a horse and buggy to go along with it.

I admire the sincerity of youngsters. In one way it would be a good thing if they retained the impressions they have when they are ten. As I was discussing things in general at the dinner table Monday noon, Caroline said, "Dad, you know more than anybody else in the world, and I think Granddad is next."

Shouting down the loud laughter of my wife and Jim, I told my daughter that I admired her judgment and her sincerity but that I couldn't accept any such compliment. I admitted that there are many people right here in Mason who know much more than I do or even Dad know, or perhaps more than both of us put together. Now, I even named a few (names given on request), but Caroline insisted that I knew the most.

Then I said, "In another 4 years when you get to be 14, you won't think I know enough to come in out of the rain, and when you get to be 17 or 18 you will think I belong in an institution."

country and town

Jim Brown

on Mickey's Intertype.

Let us know how you like the Sycamore "re-runs."

Last week Sheriff Ken Preadmore gave us the good news that he's going to seek re-election. Hayden Palmer wrote the story and turned it over to Editor Dick Brown who at the time was writing to his wife vacationing at Higgins lake. In the confusion of the moment he folded up the sheriff's picture and announcement story and mailed it to his wife. Then he promptly put his intimate letter out in the back room to be set into type.

It wasn't until later in the week that he got the sheriff's story and picture by return mail from Higgins lake with a note that the weather must be extremely hot in Mason. It was also a little hot at the sheriff's office until we unfolded our intriguing story.

You'll see the sheriff's announcement in this week's paper.

And speaking of the sheriff and law and order and all that, we had to go to the city dump and retrieve the family pooch Sunday morning. He slipped out of the house Saturday night and went on the town—for awhile. The room rate at the dump is $5 which is about as much as putting him up at a Holiday Inn considering the difference in accommodations.

Old Cars Are Wrongly Accused Of Causing Many Fatal Crashes

Contrary to some popular belief, old cars are not those chiefly involved in fatal traffic accidents in Michigan, according to the results of a state police study reported by Capt. Don Oates, commanding officer of the safety and traffic bureau.

"Old cars by repute have been something of a scapegoat in the fatal accident picture, but the study shows their bad reputation has been falsely earned," he said. "One reason, of course, is that the older cars tend to disappear from the roads and the newer models predominate in the traffic flow."

The study was made for the year 1963, with the models for each year being checked, a total of 2,123 cars being involved in the 1,637 fatal accidents. The results were somewhat surprising.

The trend of involvement of older models generally showed a gradual decline after the 1962 models with the exception of the 1960 and 1955 models when there was a high volume of production.

Passenger car sales were 21 per cent and 19 per cent higher in 1960 as compared to 1961 and 1959 respectively, and 37 per cent and 43 per cent higher in 1955 than in 1956 and 1954 respectively.

Because of the comparatively small volume of sales of 1964 models in the latter months of 1963, the study showed that only 17 of these models or .8 per cent, were involved in fatal accidents. But the 1963 models involved jumped to 31, or 14.7 per cent of the total of all cars, and the figure was again the same for 1962 models.

set in with the exception of the 1960 and 1955 models mentioned.

The involvement of 1961 models was 219, or 10.4 per cent, and 1960 cars 243, or 11.5 per cent (high production year.) For the five 1964-60 models the involvement was a total of 1,101 cars, more than half of the total or 52.1 per cent.

The 1959 model involvement was 196, or 9.3 per cent; 1958 models 140, or 6.6 per cent; 1957 models 138, or 6.5 per cent; 1956 models 144, or 6.8 per cent; 1955 models 173, or 8.2 per cent (high production year); 1954 models 88, or 4.2 per cent; 1953 models 71, or 3.4 per cent, and 1952 models or older 61, or 2.9 per cent.

The vintage of eleven cars was not stated.

Essentially, the same downward trend was disclosed in the bus and truck category, although there was a greater ratio of older trucks involved.

The number of motorcycles, farm tractors, scooters and "other" vehicles was not sufficient to establish any trend by age of the vehicles.

Oates emphasized that only fatal accidents were studied and possibly, but not probably, a different story might have been revealed if it had been possible to check the 261,794 accidents of all types that occurred during 1963.

Road Commission Plans 4-Way Stop

There will be a 4-way stop at the Columbia-Aurelius roads intersection west of Mason. The intersection improvement will be effective July 30, according to R. T. Fletcher, safety engineer for the Ingham County road commission.

The improvements are being made with an eye toward the new elementary school to be built just north of the intersection. The crossroads has also been the scene of 10 accidents since September of 1961. The last one, which claimed a life, occurred last month.

Included in the plans for the intersection will be the erection of 4-way stop signs at each corner, and stop ahead signs placed 750 feet in advance of these signs. Fletcher also recommends that 2 trees located on the north and west corners be removed for greater visibility at the crossing.

Michigan's Nut Growers Plan Meet

The 13th annual summer meeting of the Michigan Nut Growers' association will be Sunday, August 2, in Calhoun county. The meeting will be held at Tollgate Gardens, 5 miles south of Bellevue, Tollgate Gardens, a diversified farm and orchard owned and operated by Corwin Davis, is located just beyond the Baker Bird Sanctuary.

A potluck picnic is scheduled at noon. Anyone interested in nut growing is invited to attend. A tour of the orchards will be made to see a planting of seedling, first bearing Carpathian walnuts and an orchard of Chinese chestnuts, Almonds, filberts, pecans and a number of the lesser known fruits such as pawpaws can also be viewed during the tour.

Members of the Michigan association will also attend the International meeting of the Northern Nut Growers' association August 16-19 at Guelph, Ontario, P. L. S. O'Rourke, Michigan State University horticulturist, is vice-president of the national association and program chairman. More than 60 scientific papers on nuts from authors in 26 states and provinces will be presented at the meeting on the campus of Ontario Agricultural college.

Approximately 400 nut growers are members of the Michigan association and over 50 belong to the national organization.

Officers of the Michigan group are Corwin Davis, Bellevue, president; L. H. Sampson, Farmington, vice-president; Lee Somers, Perrinton, secretary and Hugh W. Glover, Midland, treasurer. Somers will host the October 4 fall meeting of the association at Greenhaven Farm in Gratiot county.

Makes Honor List

Mary J. English of Mason was among the nearly 650 Ferris State college students who were named to the dean's honor list for academic excellence during the past quarter. Dr. Ardin J. Dolio, vice-president for academic affairs, has announced. To be named to the dean's honor list a student must maintain at least a B average while carrying a full academic load. Miss English, a freshman in the school of commerce is the daughter of Mrs. Ulah English.

DOUG SANDERS OF MASON, International Farm Youth exchange delegate to Switzerland, is having 9 o'clock morning tea or "noony essen" with his host family. They are having bread without butter, molasses, swiss cheese, and tea with cream or lemon. The stools are common in Switzerland and are unfinished.

An Iffy Writes Home

Swiss Import Little Less Than Half of Their Food

This is the fourth in a series of articles from Douglas Sanders, International Farm Youth Exchange Delegate to Switzerland. Doug is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sanders, Mason. He is a senior at MSU and his address is: Doug Sanders, c/o Mr. C. E. Zahn, Division of Agriculture, Laupenstrasse 25, Bern, Switzerland.

While with my first family I saw much of the rolling land in central Switzerland. They were quite a mobile family and on rainy days we drove to many places of interest.

One day we visited a packing house for imported fruits and vegetables. Fruits and vegetables are imported for restaurants, hotels and small grocery stores. In the packing house we saw oranges from places such as North Africa, Spain and Israel. Switzerland can be nearly self sufficient food-wise. It imports a little less than half of its food.

Later in the day we visited a town which was still little changed from the Medieval period. It still had the walled fortification around the city and the streets were quite narrow. All of the houses were as they stood in the 13th and 14th centuries on the outside. However, the homes, on the inside, were completely modernized. This seems to be typical of Switzerland, clinging to its history as an exterior, but very modern and front-running on the inside, with all of the modern conveniences such as electricity, plumbing, radio, TV, telephone, and postal delivery are very common, if not the rule.

I left my first family with a two-fold feeling, eager to see the new, the different, yet remorseful about leaving new found friends. As the train pulled out, there were tears swelling in my eyes. I had many joyous times with the Minger family, my first host family in Switzerland. As the train took me to my second home in Schwand, I looked forward to going to another family, for as the saying goes: "No one is a stranger, just a friend I've not yet met."

When I arrived at my second host family, who live in Schwand, I found this to be a small village of about 300 inhabitants; high in the Alps in Central Switzerland. Here the farming is greatly different than at my first family, and from farming in Michigan. Dairying is the main enterprise, and the major breed of cattle is Brown Swiss. The hay is cut in the late evening. In the morning it is turned and spread with a fork to dry. Hay dried the previous day is raked by hand into wind-rows and then it is noon and time to eat. After dinner or "Mittag Essen," the big meal of the day, with soup, bread without butter, meat, potatoes, spaghetti or rice and vegetable or salad and the strong coffee with milk, it is time to return to the field.

Hay raked into wind-rows is loaded again, by hand, with a fork onto a two-wheeled wagon which holds about 1600 to 1800 pounds of hay. My job has been to pack the loose hay on the wagon in order to have a full load. We put up about two wagon loads of hay in the afternoon.

The hay is not completely dry when it reaches the barn. It is spread evenly in the mow and the sides of the barn are slatted like a corn crib to allow the hay to continue drying.

My father and mother, here, do not have a car and cannot speak English, so I am learning more German every day. They are both in their 60's and are very young at heart. It is really fun to live and work with them. They have 12 cows and 10 heifers and do cattle breeding. Now 8 of the cows and the heifers are higher up in the Alpine pastures where they stay until August and return when it snows.

My seven host brothers and sisters are all married and do not live in Schwand. However, my 25 year old host brother works for the Federal Extension service and is home on weekends. With him I have had a chance to explore and visit more of the area.

Murphy Will Seek Prosecutor Post

Max R. Murphy, an attorney associated with the firm of Classen, Parr, Rhead and McLean, Lansing, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Ingham county prosecuting attorney in the fall election.

Murphy, 30, was admitted to the State Bar of Michigan in January, 1960, and has practiced law continuously since that time, also instructing classes in business law at Lansing Business university.

In announcing his candidacy, Murphy said, "I hold a firm belief of a strong 2 political party system at all levels of government. Such a system creates a needed awareness on the part of the elected officials of the party in office that they must give all citizens, regardless of political party affiliation, a top-notch performance in their respective offices."

Murphy said that the Republican party has controlled county offices in Ingham county for all too long a period of time, and that it would be extremely healthy for the political climate of this county if Democrats were elected to county offices.

Murphy received his AB degree from DePauw university in 1956 where he was active in varsity debate, student senate activities and was elected to Gold Key, a senior's men's organization for students with outstanding scholastic and activities records. Murphy received his law degree from Yale law school and has since taken post-graduate work at Michigan State university.

Murphy is a member of Edgewood United church in East Lansing, and of the Ingham County bar association, serving on that association's committee for continuing legal education. He is also a member of the State Bar and the American Bar association. He lives with his wife, Judy, and 2 sons, Michael and Chad, at 5235 Wardcliff Drive, East Lansing.

Forget Oats In Seeding Alfalfa

Although many farmers are harvesting oats this month, the state's acreage has been declining during recent years.

Leyton Nelson, Michigan State university crop scientist, points out that the state's oat production dropped 325,000 acres between 1957 and 1963.

The reduced oat acreage, where about 70 per cent of Michigan's alfalfa seedings are made, means more seedlings will be made in the spring or summer without a companion crop. Only one-quarter of the state's 1 1/2 million acres of alfalfa is now seeded in late July or August.

Nelson and M. B. Tesar, MSU crop science researcher, point out that planting alfalfa in the spring without a companion crop and harvesting 2 1/2 tons of hay later the same year is now a possibility. Better yet, it provides farmers with about the same income that would normally be furnished by growing oats as a companion crop.

The crop scientists say this alternative has been attractive to a few farmers even though it is necessary to use a herbicide costing $5 to $12 per acre when planting in the spring.

However, both agree the newness of the practice has greatly limited its practical acceptance to date among farmers.

Apples, Pears To Be Feature Of Field Day
Western Michigan fruit growers can see the latest research on apples and pears during a July 30 field day at the Graham Experiment Station in Grand Rapids.

The station, operated by Michigan State university, is located at 2988 Lake Michigan Drive, N.W. (M-50.) Tours will start at 10 a.m. and will continue until 4 p.m., says A. E. Mitchell, MSU horticulturist.

Fruit growers will be able to observe and discuss research projects with MSU horticultural scientists on the nutrition of apple and pear trees, chemical thinning and its relation to size and quality together with commercial weed control on early bearing apple trees.

The use of the plant regulator "Tiba" to induce fruitfulness on apple trees and the performance of various apple varieties on dwarf root stocks will also be shown.

Discussions of the influence of pesticides and root stocks on russeting of Jonathan apples and the effect of mites on growth and development of apples will conclude the tour.

Nurse Aide Class Is Graduated

OKEMOS - The second class in advanced nurse aide training graduated Saturday, July 18, at the Ingham County hospital and Rehabilitation center at Okemos.

The 1964 class of 14 students includes residents of Lansing, Mason, and 6 other nearby communities.

Miss Bertha L. Pullen R. N., recently retired consultant to professional nursing schools for the Michigan State Board of Nursing addressed the graduating class.

The course, which included 140 hours of class room instruction, was instituted in 1962, to prepare nurse aides for the specialized field of care of the chronically ill, aged patient, and is under the direction of Mrs. Ann Olesak, R. N.

The students are chosen from the hospital staff on the basis of demonstrated interest and aptitude.

The Ingham County Hospital and Rehabilitation Center was one of the first of the county hospitals in the state of Michigan to establish a formal course in this field.

"Electric Home Heating? It makes me feel as pampered as a queen! I can hardly believe house heating could be so completely carefree. All I do is "tune in" the climate I like best for every room and forget it for the entire season.

"It's hard to explain... but the warmth of Electric Heat is so different... so gentle, even and draft-free... like bringing the sun indoors. I like it too, because it's so clean and quiet.

"Best of all, it's nice to know that whatever the weather outdoors, my family is enjoying the constant comfort of ideal temperatures indoors... with wonderful Electric Heat and Air Conditioning."

Grandpa Wouldn't Know Things Down on the Farm

Three or 4 decades ago the farmer could be described in this manner:

He was a small operator, farmed small acreages, had a small herd of cows which he milked, usually by hand, and sold his produce on the local market.

Sometimes he had a hired man whom he paid $30 a month and his board and lodging.

He kept in touch with the outside world by reading his farm journal, or the newspaper published in the town nearest his home. In most cases that told him what the stores had to offer him and his family in the way of merchandise.

He was—and still is in most cases—a deeply religious man who attended his country church on Sunday. His recreation was attending affairs at his church.

His children attended a rural school that was really rural. Many city people referred to him, unjustly, as a hick.

That was yesterday.

Today the farmer is a big business man. He farms hundreds of acres, his farm has become mechanized to a degree far beyond the imagination of his grandfathers.

Farming is changing from a way of life to a big business enterprise. Mechanization has brought about the farm specialist who may produce only one crop and only one type of farm animal which he raises for the market.

His farm is spreading out, largely through consolidation with other farms.

He keeps abreast with the outside world with a television set, a radio, up to the minute farm publications, his contacts with his state's agricultural college or university with its research and instructors to help him in his task.

He has less area, perhaps, to produce the larger amount of food to be produced for a hungry population, but he solves it with mechanization—with tractors, with other power driven machines, with new type buildings for grain and feed storage, with grain conditioning equipment, with handling equipment.

His barns are lighted by electricity. His home is equipped with all modern conveniences, the same as that of his cousin in the city.

His children attend now a consolidated school in which every subject, including agriculture, homemaking and soils study are part of a curriculum that embraces almost every type of instruction needed to prepare the youth for the years ahead with its complex scientific inventions, in a fast moving world.

All this, however, has brought problems. The farmer's production and labor costs have increased. The farm hand his grand-father hired for $30 a month now gets $200.

His receipts from the product he produces have not kept pace with the production costs and he finds himself in a profit squeeze. He cannot compete in a competitive market with the old methods. He must produce faster and in larger quantities and he is rapidly discovering that to do so he must turn to mechanized methods.

And so has been born the mechanized farmstead.

During the past few weeks a group of representatives of the Butler Manufacturing company of Kansas City which produces, among many other things the various buildings that go into a mechanized farmstead, made a survey of Ingham county.

They found that Ingham county is a key area in the projection of farm mechanization. They interviewed 60 percent of the high income farmers of the area and from that determined the amount of building the farmers planned during the next 3 years.

The men who made the study were Russel Smith of Indianapolis and Richard Kirkham of Sturgis, representatives of the Butler company.

They presented their findings to a small group in the offices of Thomas Kinney of the Production Credit Corporation, 148 E. Ash street, last week.

Their purpose in making the survey was to determine the amount of building planned by farmers in the county. This, they said, is comparable to 4 other nearby counties—Livingston, Eaton, Clinton and Shiawassee.

It is in this 5-county area that they wish to set up a distributorship for their company. Such a firm would provide manpower to sell mechanized farm products to farmers, construct them and later service them.

It would mean, they said, an organization employing in the

Agriculture In Action

More Russian Trouble

Whether we care to believe it or not, "planners" for a controlled American agriculture are not too far behind the thinking and beliefs of those who administer the Soviet Union's collective farm program!

A recent article in "Kommunist" by Sergei N. Bratus, prominent Soviet jurist who heads Russia's legislative research institute, pinpoints the similarity.

Said Bratus: "One of our troubles is the one-and-same agency acts as a partner in a contract, and at the same time has the right to supervise, to control, and to give orders."

Think about that a minute. Does it not describe programs of total "supply-management" controls that have been proposed by Dr. Willard Cochrane, and others -- for American agriculture?

Small wonder that Nikita Khrushchev is having trouble keeping the peasants down on the farm. As long as they and their farm managers are pushed around by bureaucrats who "supervise, control and give orders" -- they can never have the feeling of owning and managing their land, animals and machines.

Without the pride of ownership, Soviet farming will remain at today's low levels, regardless of fertilizers, new technology, irrigation or other "cures" which the Party has tried time and again.

We hear stories that the biggest plague to Russian agriculture and production is drought. First Party Secretary Fyodor S. Kolomoletts has admitted openly that "the drought is not so terrible, if only one has the right attitude toward the land." The peasants of Russia seem to have lost the "right attitude." They have lost the incentive to produce.

The American farmer has always had that incentive, that freedom to produce. But how long will he be able to retain it if we are controlled, supervised, from Washington?

As I See It

By Hayden Palmer

Representatives of the press, radio and television were guests at a luncheon at Oldsmobile in Lansing last week and heard a bit of good news from Jack P. White, director of public relations, when he said that at the end of this month Oldsmobile division of General Motors will have built nearly 550,000 cars, the highest production year since the record-breaking 1955 and exceeding the production of 1963 model Oldsmobiles by 15 percent.

Payrolls this year could very well set a new record, he added. Oldsmobile employs more than 13,000 workers and they don't all live in Lansing, either. They come from Mason, from Dansville, from Holt, from Leslie and virtually every other Ingham town and village, from Eaton, Clinton, Shiawassee and other nearby counties.

So when Oldsmobile production increases, as it has this year that boom is reflected in the pay checks of employees and in turn in the economy not only of Lansing but also virtually every other town and rural community in Ingham county and other nearby counties.

And Oldsmobile employees stay with the corporation. White pointed out in his report that 15 percent of the company's employees have been with Oldsmobile for 25 years or more and that 41 percent have 10 years or more of service, indicating that Oldsmobile's rating of employee loyalty is among the highest in the industry.

"We want our people to be happy here," White added.

White estimates that from Ingham county towns alone, exclusive of Lansing and East Lansing, there are well over 2,000 persons traveling to work daily at Oldsmobile.

"There are 2 carloads of workers who commute every day from Mt. Pleasant, 70 miles away," White said, "and others come from as far away as Owosso."

So Oldsmobile isn't just a big sprawling factory in Lansing. It reaches out to provide employment for persons all over Ingham county. It is an industry which all of Ingham county should be proud.

President of the United States. The convention was marked by the usual hubbalooboo, the fiery speech-making, the battle over the platform, talk, talk, talk of freedom of this and freedom of that, the blare of hands, the shouts of demonstrating delegates holding banners aloft for their favorite candidate. Television interviews with delegates and party hopefuls, press conferences, demonstrations, brass bands, placards and folks weighed down with buttons and hats and canes. It was all there and it kept most of America up too late at night as they watched the proceedings unfold on television screens or listened to voices of commentators and political prognosticators on radio.

This Republican gathering was in the Cow Palace in San Francisco but there was but one cow at the convention. She was an animal brought from Iowa.

Americans now can get their breath and await the 2nd part of the political extravaganza when the Democratic party gathers in national convention in Atlantic City next month.

There the same fan faire will be evident. There will be more speeches, more bands will play, there will be demonstrations and Americans will stay glued to television screens to watch the show.

Then when that is all over the summer and fall will be given over to campaign oratory by each candidate and his supporters. There may and probably will be some mud slinging and, finally, in November, the folks who have listened and argued and debated for their candidate will go to the polls and decide who is to be the 37th president of the United States.

The losers will lick their wounds and the harsh words spoken in the heat of the campaign will be forgotten and things will settle down again for another 4 years.

That is democracy and the kind of democracy that makes the United States the greatest nation in the world.

Kennel & Field

by Dennis Massie

One day in 1928, a young American, back from Switzerland, was led off the ship by a German shepherd. Morris Frank was blind. And Buddy, was the first "seeing eye" dog in this country. It was an experiment. The question was - could a dog trained in Europe lead a blind person successfully in a crowded American city jammed with traffic and strange noises? Dogs had been used in Germany after the First World War for this purpose. But the pace there was slower than in a place like New York. Morris Frank read about this and about the investigations into canine intelligence of Dorothy H. Eustis. He went to her research station in Switzerland to have her train a guide dog for him. Now, he and Buddy were home. And together, they would pass every test set for them. The success of this experiment gave Morris Frank ability to move with his dog independently. He could go where he wanted or needed to, even in more or less unfamiliar neighborhoods, and he needn't ask a friend or hire a human guide, which got expensive, to lend an arm. Soon after, Miss Eustis returned to America and founded The Seeing Eye Inc. in Whippany N.J. Since the 1930's, the organization has grown. Other similar ones in all parts of the country have sprung up where blind persons who meet certain reasonable qualifications may go to learn to use guide dogs of their own. Some other legitimate guide dog centers are the Master Eye Foundation in Minneapolis, Minn., Leader Dogs for the Blind in Rochester, Mich., and Pioneer Training School for Army and Guide Dogs in Burbank, Cal. Unfortunately too, there are some guide dog groups whose claims, fees and legitimacy may be open to question. So interested people might want to do a little checking with such organizations as Lions' clubs or the Bureau of Social Aid before diving into just any guide dog program. In agencies like The Seeing Eye Inc. and Leader Dogs for the Blind, the dog is first given obedience training. This is basic to any kind of specialized work for canines. Then, he and the trainer begin an intensive course for guide dogs. He learns what "Forward", "Left" and "Right" mean. Dogs only see in shades of black and white. So they can't tell when a traffic light is red or green, as is sometimes thought. But they are taught to watch the flow of traffic. And when cars stop for a light, the dog learns it is safe to cross the street. Finally, the trainer introduces the dog to its new blind master. The three now begin working together. The dog and the person without vision must learn to be a team. The dog has previously even been taught to disobey his master's command if obeying would mean danger or harm. Usually dogs of the working variety are used as guides - collies, shepherds, retrievers, boxers and setters. They come from lines bred especially to do man's bidding in one way or another. And they feel at their best when they're working. It's no doubt frightening for a person with his guide dog to be turned loose on a busy street in New York or Detroit before graduation. But it's done. And when the person takes the U shaped handle, attached to his dog's harness, in his hand and commands "Forward" with all the confidence his course has given him, dog and man take a long, first step in that direction in more ways than one.

As We Forgive

A fine specimen of young manhood... maybe my neighbor or maybe yours. He is not a bad boy, just one without training. His parents don't like the church and actually boast of never attending. What a tragedy. How unfair to the children of such homes... to put "Other Gods first." This lad needs love, direction, guidance. He needs forgiveness, for only "as we forgive can we be forgiven." Police officers, "Big Brothers" and good church people help but it also requires being acquainted with God. Have you asked the court to parole a boy to you instead of allowing him to go to jail? Maybe he needs just one more chance. The manifold mercies of Heaven are available, if a man, woman or child will turn in good purpose to Him. The church on the corner can help any boy, or girl, or man, or woman. Won't you see for yourself?
