'New capitol urgent'

Conditions underscore need... for more space, fire safety

By DON HOENSHELL
News Editor

Gov. Milliken today said the dangerous condition of the present 88-year-old state capitol adds "a sense of urgency to the construction of a new building."

He said the present building should be renovated for ceremonial and historical purposes but that Michigan's government needs more.

Milliken expressed shock when informed by The News that the only enclosed route from the fourth floor in the event of fire was blocked. He said:

"That's bad. We can't allow that to happen at all. It is imperative that we have that corrected immediately."

MILLIKEN, who has known the capitol as a senator and lieutenant governor and governor since 1961 as did his father, James, 25 years before as a senator, said he has known, too, of the safety warnings by fire marshals.

"I am aware that the fire marshal has raised serious questions over the years about the safety of the capitol," he said. "With this awareness, it was clear that we should make plans for a new capitol."

"Even if we were to renovate and enlarge the present building, we would still have a capitol that would be inadequate to meet the needs of Michigan, entirely apart from the safety angle."

Milliken disputed the claims of state and city fire marshals, stating that a number of safety precautions have been taken at their recommendation.

It is true that fire extinguishers have been liberally installed and employees have been briefed in their use, the enclosed stairway was built and, when not blocked, is a route to safety, however precarious.

"But the situation gives the whole proposition of a new capitol a sense of urgency," Milliken said. "There are fire hazards, particularly on the fourth floor."

It is the fourth floor that the Legislative Service Bureau, with 50 or more employees, drafts all bills for the legislature, and where now former office space for house members is being converted into committee meeting rooms.

WITH THE QUESTION of fire danger and other perils such as the crumbling base and cracking walls of the capitol established, the question remains of concept and design for the new structure.

Milliken said he feels the present capitol can be salvaged, but only for ceremonial and historical purposes.

Speed crackdown or trap?

Guerriero asks city for report on radar to curb violators

By SALLY TROUT
News Staff Writer

Does Mason have a speed trap?

Councilman Frank Guerriero asked why the city patrol cars have been parked so frequently on Cedar street and how many tickets had been issued under the radar system at the Monday night meeting of the city council.

Guerriero indicated that a number of persons had asked him the same questions informally.

Mason initiated a new radar system on Oct. 28 and, according to William Bopf, city administrator, rumor has it that 23 tickets were issued on N. Cedar street alone in the past week.

Police Chief Tim Stolz was requested to prepare a report on the speeding ticket situation for the council's review at the next meeting.

STOLZ REPORTED Tuesday that he had completed a tentative report for the council and had submitted it to the administrator.

In this tentative report, Stolz points out that actually there were only nine speeding tickets issued on N. Cedar street in the past week rather than 23.

In compiling data on the various speeding tickets issued Stolz found that during the period of radar use, tickets had been written for a total of 1,178 miles per hour over the speed limit with each ticket averaging 15 miles plus per hour over the posted limit.

Stolz told the News that the council purchased the radar unit with the idea it would be put in use and not left in the police building. They indicated that full radar coverage of the city was desired, he said.

"We have attempted to do just that with particular emphasis on highly traveled streets such as Cedar, Jefferson, Barnes, Okemos, Ash and Columbia, he said.

The police report shows that in the three-week plus time the radar has been in use there have been a total of 78 speeding tickets issued as compared with four speeding tickets written during the month of June before radar use.

"Since the radar unit was put in use there has been only one complaint from a citizen about vehicles speeding on a city street--the radar unit has proven that Mason has a speeding problem and that something can be done about it," the Chief said.

Michigan Bell buys apartment dwelling

The Michigan Bell Telephone company has purchased a four-apartment dwelling and a lot at 211 Maple street, Mason, to provide for the future growth and expansion of the Mason telephone office.

George L. Voorhis, area manager for Michigan Bell, said the property, measuring 65 by 80 feet, is located adjacent to the company's dial office in Mason. The property was purchased from the Dart National bank. The amount was not disclosed.

Voorhis said that the tenants will be able to continue to reside in the building. He said Michigan Bell would notify them well in advance of its need for the site.

Of the tickets issued, data shows that the minimum amount written for speeding was 10 miles over the speed limit and the maximum being 30 miles over the posted limit.

The radar unit does not give officers a chance to just go out and park in the patrol car, Stolz said. While using the radar officers are usually in clear vision of intersections and are looking for other violations as well as speeders.

Over the years there has been a great increase in the number of cars using the main arteries into the city. The most recent traffic count on Cedar street shows that 15,000 cars use Cedar street in a 24-hour period.

"With an increase in vehicles and drivers there is bound to be violation increases," Stolz said. "I have compared our tolerance figures for speeders with other departments and find that they are similar."

Tex Evans, 60, to quit road job

By SCOTT KINGAN
News Staff Writer

After 23 years as engineer-superintendent of the Ingham County Road Commission, Frank K. (Tex) Evans is planning to retire effective January 1, 1970.

He was 60 in July.

Evans said he had planned to retire at age 60 for some years in order to have more time for himself and his family.

When he started with the road commission in 1946 his average work week averaged around 80 hours. Lately, he said, he is spending about 50 to 60 hours on the job.

Besides his desire to stop working full-time at 60, Evans said that for him to remain on the job and take time off would be an injustice to the county.

However, many of his friends say they doubt "Tex" will enjoy time on his hands after being accustomed to long workdays and high involvement.

Of that question even the six-foot-plus, stetson-wearing engineer himself isn't sure. But he said he'll know in about six months.

EVANS SAID he doesn't intend to lose all contact with engineering or roadwork.

"After 41 years I can't say I have no interest," Evans said he wants to do a little traveling and visit some relatives before making any decisions.

Perhaps government will catch his fancy. He said he has an interest in local government and that he might consider running for some local office.

Regardless of what Evans does, many agree that his record of achievements to date is enviable.

After his birth in the Philippine Islands, July 4, 1908, Evans and his family moved to Las Cruces, New Mexico in 1916. Prior to the move, Evans' father had been a governor of the Islands.

Flash fire sweeps service station

A flash fire swept through the Darrow's Standard service station at 173 W. Maple street, Mason, Friday afternoon causing from $20 to $30,000 damage, according to station owner Tom Darrow.

Electricians were on the job Wednesday hoping to get power connected to the gas pumps so gasoline sales could begin, but contractors have said it will be approximately 90 days before the garage building is restored for repair work.

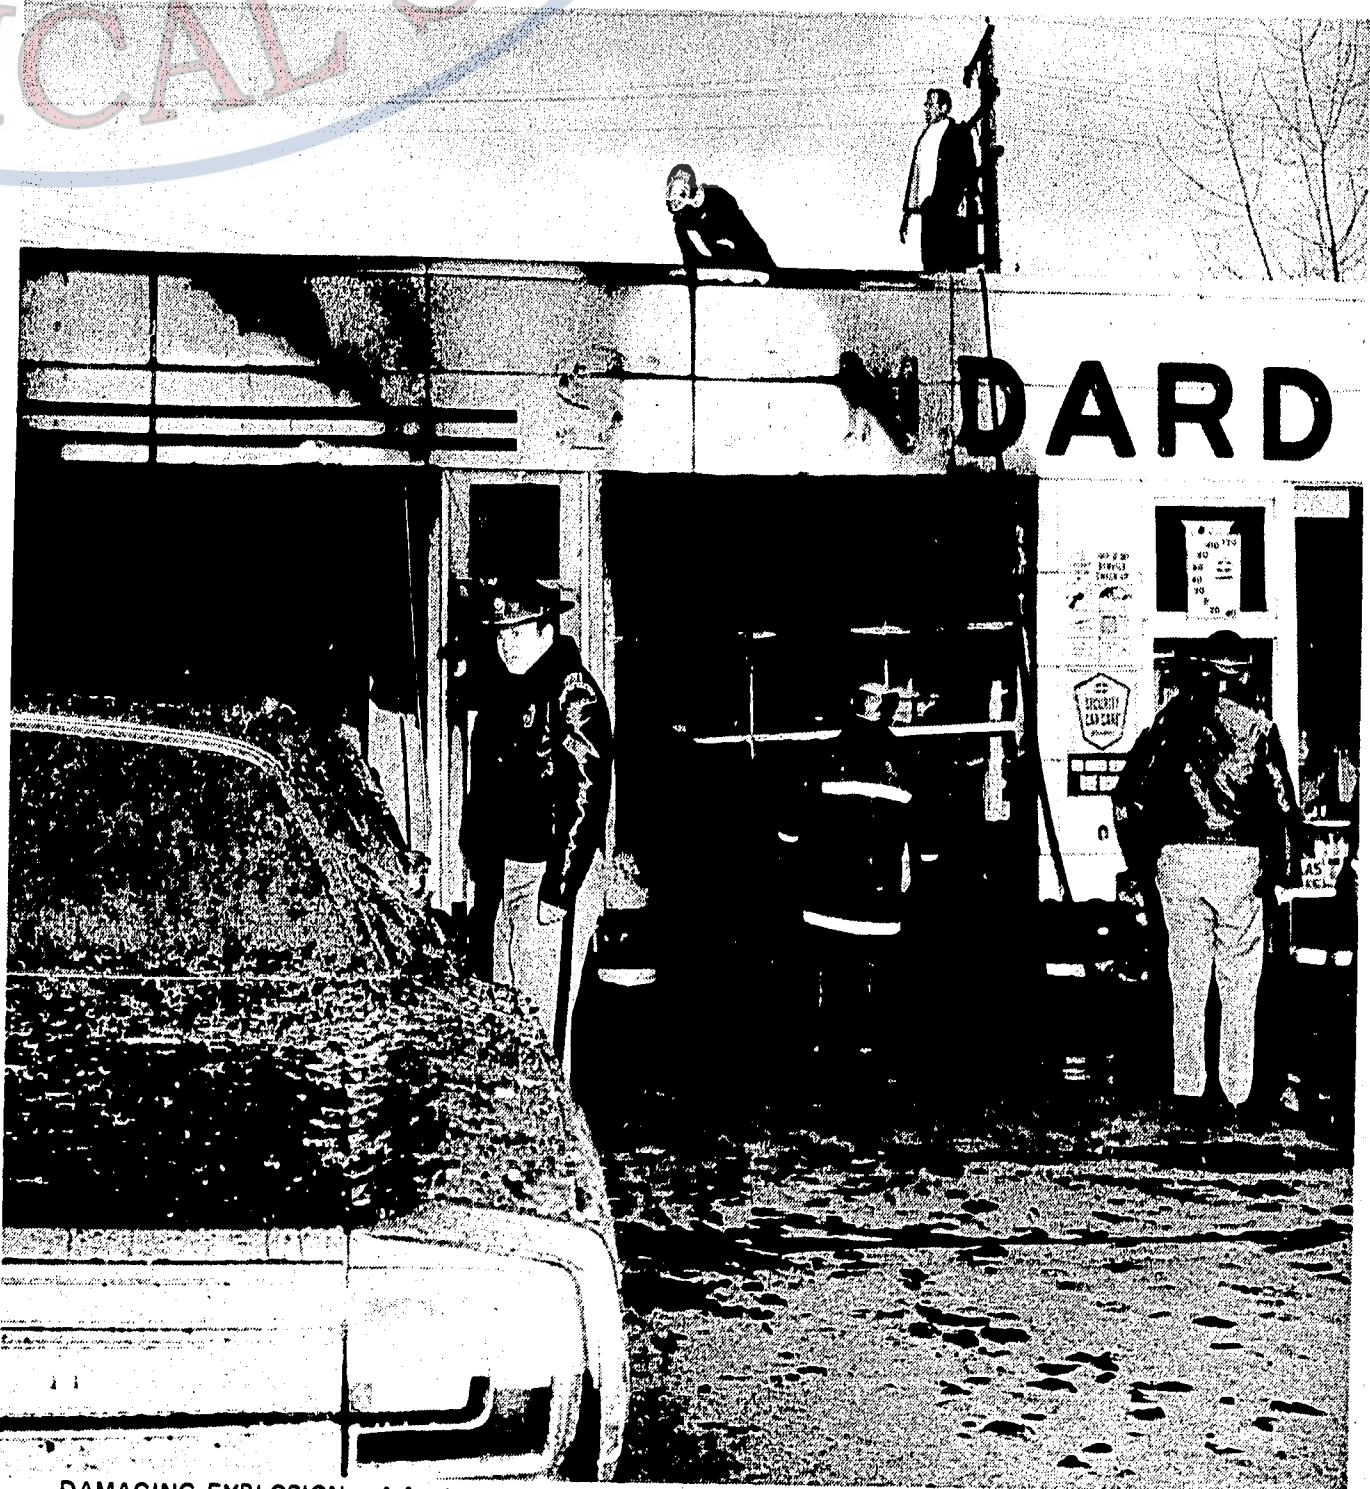

A mechanic was working on the fuel line of a car belonging to Ralph Fiebig of Mason at the time of the flash fire. Ervin Sherwood told Mason police that a trouble light connected to the bumper of the car dropped into a puddle of leaked gasoline on the floor and exploded causing the blaze.

There were three employees in the station at the time, in addition to one customer. Luckily no one was injured. Mason volunteer firemen were credited with doing a great job of getting the blaze under control by Darrow. He said that within 15 minutes the fire was out.

In addition to Fiebig's vehicle there was a new model pickup truck owned by the Penn Central Railroad which was destroyed in the blaze.

Darrow is hoping that a major remodeling job will be completed on the station at the same time the fire repairs are made, but no definite decision has been made on this as yet.

DAMAGING EXPLOSION -- A freak accident at the Darrow's Service station of Mason caused an explosion and fire at the business late Friday afternoon. There was a passenger car and truck on the service racks at the time of the explosion.

An 'Educated' Remodeling Job ...

Red brick exterior was extended to include new open porch and rough sawn cedar double garage was added to house the family "wheels".

Mr. & Mrs. Allan Teachout remodeled the country schoolhouse on the corner of Ives and Barnes in Mason and now have a real showplace for a home! Applegate Electric installed the electric heating system to perfectly complement their modernizing plans.

Ceiling was dropped to 12 ft. and two bedrooms were added upstairs reached via circular staircase and wrought iron railed balcony.

Remodeling an old public school into a lovely home isn't an easy job. But for Mr. and Mrs. Allan Teachout it became fun, "making plans and putting the house together." The job involved creating an upstairs in the cavernous reaches above the main floor, replacing the Barnes Rd. entrance with a large Thermopane picture window and building the new entrance on Ives Rd.

The one acre lot is shaded by a huge maple and children's swing equipment is maintained in case the Teachouts' 20 grandchildren should descend on the place some weekend.

The electric heat, engineered and installed by Applegate Electric last fall has proven itself through the winter. With proper insulation, radiant heat in the lowered ceilings and baseboard heating the rest of the house Mrs. Teachout gives us an A Plus. "There are no drafts and we find it warm and economical to heat," says Mrs. Teachout.

Now that we have graduated from heating schoolhouses, why not let us help you with your heating-remodeling plans!

Community Chest goes over top

It is up, up and over the top for the Mason Area Community Chest drive which came to a conclusion this week.

Donald VanderVeen, campaign chairman, announced that some $700 over the anticipated goal was pledged in the current campaign for a total of $17,108.

The campaign running under the slogan of "One Drive for All" collected funds in the city of Mason and townships of Alaiedon, Aurelius and Vevay. Funds collected go toward the support of 60 social agencies, according to VanderVeen.

VanderVeen states that the Mason Area Chest retains approximately 25 percent of the funds collected in the area to be used in local projects. Some of these projects include the Mason Area Recreation program, the senior citizen's program and a day care center now in the planning stages, in addition to Boy and Girl Scout activities.

As chairman of the 1969-1970 campaign VanderVeen expressed his appreciation for a "job well-done" to the division, section and volunteer leaders. "I am proud to be a member of a community that has once again expressed their social consciousness by being ready and willing to respond to those in need," the chairman said.

A thank you coffee hour will be staged for all campaign workers on December 3 beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the First Presbyterian church of Mason.

Divisional chairmen for the drive were business, Peter Robinson; townships, Mrs. Pete Stid; institutions, Mrs. Mia Bell Humphrey; industry, Don VanderVeen; professional, Dr. Vincent Guarnaccia and residential, Mrs. John P. O'Brien.

MINOR INJURIES—James R. Newland of Lansing, driver of this vehicle, was taken to Mason general hospital by city ambulance following a roll-over single car accident on North Okemos street 2/10 of a mile south of Howell road Thursday evening. He was treated and released.

During past week

Crashes hurt pedestrian motorists

A Lansing motorist, James R. Newland, 28, lost control of his vehicle while driving on N. Okemos street striking a curve sign, and city fire hydrant Thursday night, according to Mason Police Chief Tim Stolz.

Newland was transported to Mason General hospital by city ambulance where he was treated and released. Mason police charged Newland with driving under the influence of alcohol. Newland was arraigned on Friday in District court where he stood mute to the charges.

A witness to the accident told police that the Newland car passed him going at a speed of about 80 miles per hour.

In other accidents investigating Ingham county sheriff's officers said a pedestrian Robin E. Keith, 4955 W. Columbia road, Mason, suffered cuts and bruises when struck by a vehicle driven by Stanley P. Leonard, 1046 Grovenburg road, Holt, November 12, on W. Columbia road at approximately 4:01 p.m.

Leonard told deputies the 12-year-old girl stepped onto the roadway in front of his vehicle. The Keith girl received severe facial lacerations in the accident and was taken to Ingham Medical hospital by the Delhi Fire department ambulance.

Robert R. Cairns, 17, of 402 South Washington street, Mason, was taken to Mason general hospital with facial lacerations following a one-car accident at the intersection of Tomlinson and Tuttle roads on November 12 at 4:15 p.m.

The Cairns car was traveling east on Tomlinson road. Cairns said he did not see the stop sign until he crested the hill and was unable to stop. Sheriff's deputies say the vehicle went across Tuttle road into the ditch and rolled over two or three times.

City accepts equipment bids, nix yule lights

Mason city councilmen approved bids for three pieces of maintenance equipment at their Monday night meeting. Bids were taken on a number of pieces of equipment estimated to cost in the neighborhood of $60,000.

Actual bid prices were substantially lower than those anticipated allowing the city to move ahead with some of the more necessary purchases.

A new dump truck costing $1,800 will be paid for out of the equipment fund while the water and sewer funds will pay for the purchase of a tractor mounted back hoe and front loader and panel van truck.

BIDS FOR A street sweeper and sewer cleaner are still under consideration by the council.

A motion made by Councilman Jon Jenkins failed to get the support of other councilmen. Jenkins moved to spend up to $2,000 on the installation of electrical hookups for the city's Christmas decorations.

According to Jenkins there is money provided for this type of work in the city's budget this year, but councilmen do not wish to spend it on the holiday lighting decorations.

NORMALLY CHRISTMAS decorations are erected about Thanksgiving time, but due to the need for electrical improvements they may not be put up at all. Councilmen have suggested that the decorations be put up, but not connected to the power sources.

According to William Bopf, city administrator, it requires the time and equipment of city employees for about six days to put up and take down Christmas decorations.

The Mason Merchants association was asked to contribute funds to pay for the necessary electrical work, but the organization told the council that funds were not available in the present budget.

It looks like Mason will be without Christmas lights this holiday season.

A REPRESENTATIVE from the Double Day Company appeared before the council to demonstrate voting machines. Each machine costs $2,005 and in order to service the entire city Mason would have to purchase or rent five machines.

A new law will force the city to either re-district its voting precincts doubling the number or provide voting machines. Either way could be very expensive for the city. This decision must be made and communicated to the county clerk on or before April 7, 1970 with changes to be made in time for the August primary.

Plans were announced for a City of Mason Christmas party on December 14 at the Red Coach. All city employees, their wives, chairmen and their wives of various city boards and commissions and all volunteer firemen and auxiliary police are invited.

Hugh Silsby of Mason appeared before the council to ask that property he owns on State street be rezoned for light industry. His request was referred to the planning commission which is to meet on November 25 at 7:45 p.m. at the city hall.

Car forced over curb

A car driven by John Coryell, 309 W. Barnes avenue, Lansing was forced over the curb and over several mailboxes on Cedar st., near Aurelius Rd., Sunday Nov. 9.

Coryell told Delhi Township police that a black Dodge cut him off once, causing him to brake. The car then cut three others short, stopped in the left lane, for a car turning left, and when Coryell approached him on the right side, the Dodge cut into the right lane.

Coryell was forced over the curb and over several mailboxes. There were damages to the right front side of his car.

Alaiedon signs Ambulance Contract

Alaiedon township board recently negotiated a contract with Archy Ambulance service, according to Lewis Wilson, township supervisor.

In the agreement, Archy Ambulance service agrees to furnish ambulance service to township residents, to anywhere in Ingham county or to Eaton Rapids hospital, for a cost to the resident not to exceed $35.

For ambulance calls to other places in Michigan, there will be an additional charge of 50 cents per mile one way beyond the Ingham county line.

The contract with Archy Ambulance service is not an exclusive contract. Anyone desiring to call other ambulance service may do so. The advantage of this contract is that it guarantees ambulance service to Alaiedon township residents at a nominal fee.

Archy Ambulance service agrees to provide, 24-hour, seven-day a week service, and has made arrangements with two other ambulance services for back-up coverage in emergency calls.

Thieves huff to get puffs

Jim Ross, 5834 Kinneville road, in Onondaga township, reported to sheriff's officers Tuesday that sometime during the night someone entered his store and took a quantity of cigarettes valued at about $35.

Entry was gained to the building by knocking out a piece of a window in the front of the store and then unlocking the lower section of the window, officers said.

Down by the Sycamore..

By Nelson D. Brown/Edited by Margaret Doolittle

February 12, 1959

At Golden Gloves or professional fights the crowds are attracted by the possibility of knockouts. Few customers are satisfied with clever boxing. They cry for gore.

There's something entertaining about seeing a man go down for the count. Scores of people have laughed over an incident on the Ingham County News press room roof last Thursday.

ON THURSDAY morning water was dripping through the ceilings, holding up production. Eavestroughs were frozen solid with ice, and the ice was backing up water on the roof.

I went aloft to the roof on the main building with my elder son holding the ladder which was standing on the ice-covered pressroom roof. He worked on one roof and I on the other, shoveling off tons of ice and snow. When I had finished my task there was no ice left on the upper roof but there was a chunk about as big as a softball which had lodged between the eavestrough and the top rungs of the ladder.

As I swung off the roof onto the ladder the chunk was dislodged. It struck Dick right on top of his noggin, and down he went like a ton of brick.

As he began to come to, he staggered around the roof in danger of falling over the low parapet. I finally had to threaten to heave another chunk of ice to get him to lie back down on the roof until the count of 8, at least.

EVERYONE who witnessed or heard about the incident has laughed heartily. And I suppose the people who saw Brother Paul Arnold fall on the ice and break a bone in his back had difficulty repressing their smiles. No, they didn't want to see him hurt, much, but there's something amusing about seeing a big man in a prone position on the ice or on the canvas of a ring.

February 19, 1959
Which was the best course for pedestrians to pursue on Friday's and Saturday's ice? I heard one woman say that it was more dangerous to feel safe than it was safe to feel in danger. I don't have her philosophy figured out yet, and I don't know as she does. She slipped on the ice just as she finished her remark.

Michigan officials' wives have tea with Mrs. Jim Brown

Ladies from the House and Senate Club of Michigan visited Okemos Wednesday as guests of Mrs. James Brown. The women held a tea at the Brown home, 2070 Riverwood drive, Okemos.

Mrs. William G. Milliken was the special guest at the meeting but about 20 members attended. The club is made up of the wives of state government officials and university presidents. They come from throughout the state for regular meetings when the house and senate are in session.

Meetings are usually held at the YWCA but the special session required a special meeting, the women thought. The meeting was entirely social, with business being saved for a later date.

Mrs. Brown is the wife of State Rep. James Brown.

Memo from McGoff:

Spiro Agnew tells story of TV and its lickity-split analyses

The following is an editorial written by John P. McGoff, president of Panax Corporation, for its 25 daily and weekly newspapers in Michigan.

Thank goodness for Spiro T. Agnew, the little Greek who became Vice President of the United States. He has been derided by the press and the electronic media since he acquired his new role. Depicted as a buffoon, Agnew is beginning to come across as an intelligent and articulate spokesman for the many who oppose the circus in our streets.

His attack upon TV Network newsmen for their distorted and lickity-split views of current events was justified and long overdue. The only regret here is that members of the fourth estate have not taken their own to task.

WITH THE WORLD'S most powerful and impressive media, it is deplorable that those who have the authority and responsibility for such power have permitted their media to be taken over by the one sided know it alls. They have done more to create our circuses than anyone else.

This week-end's coverage of the second moratorium was another example of their bias.

Apparently the networks were unable to collaborate on the number of people attending our national shame. The estimates by our TV disciples vacillated from 200,000 to 700,000. The encouragement given by TV to these do nothings is beyond reason. Had these multitudes (whatever their number) exerted their expenditure of money, time, talent and energy to positive methods of resolving this nation's problems, our solutions would be nearer at hand.

***

IT IS ENCOURAGING to note that a recent Gallup Poll reported 77% of the American public supporting the President's approach to resolving the Viet Nam situation.

As for Mr. Agnew, it is hoped from his corner that he shall continue to raise blunt questions concerning the conduct and attitudes of our populace. The Detroit News put it aptly when it said -- "What troubles Agnew's effete intellectuals and the TV commentators is that he has the temerity to answer their attacks with a forcefulness of language and a sarcasm nearly equal to their own."

Musical city managers -- a game we can't lose

Mason is being forced into that old game of musical city managers with the impending departure of Administrator William Bopf on Dec. 16. In this game we hope Mason will be a winner.

Bopf, whose record here is impressive, will take over a similar job in Holland, Mich. He has been here 2½ years.

"I am confident that Mason can locate a qualified person for the job because of the opportunities it offers a young person seeking advancement in his profession," Bopf said.

THE PROFESSION of which Bopf speaks is uncommonly mobile. A city manager on his way up to wherever city managers go is like an office holder with a two-year term. It's what's next for him.

Very often a city manager will get caught in the crunch of warring factions on a city council. It is a tribute to Bopf and our present council that this is not a factor now.

Thus the question becomes a higher salary and greater opportunity for Bopf, as it does for most men of talent and responsibility. But continuity suffers when he leaves and the city administration thrashes about while a new man learns the city.

Bopf said he is leaving a highly-qualified set of department heads whose offices can continue without direct supervision, though policy matters which a city administrator handles routinely fall back on the council.

If the council cannot find a qualified replacement for $12,000 to $14,000 a year for a time, there will exist a gap in the structure of government the city has chosen for itself.

THE CRITICAL QUESTION is how to recruit a good man and how to keep him for more than 2½ years.

The cost of government is soaring and examples abound. Perhaps now is the time to take another look at the city administrator's salary -- making the job as financially rewarding to him as the proper and uninterrupted conduct of the city's administration is to us.

It is too important a position for us to take a chance that we might lose.

Two views of Spiro...

'I'd rather be impudent'

By JIM FITZGERALD
Lapeer County Press

At first, when Spiro Agnew said I belonged to "an effete corps of impudent snobs," I didn't know whether to be mad or glad.

I have always wanted to belong to a corps. The word has a glorious ring to it as opposed to corp, which jingle jangles, or corpse, which just kind of lays there and does nothing for me, or crops, which depend too much on the weather.

And it was nice to have the Vice President of the United States put me in a corps.

The impudent snob business sounded ok, too.

***

TO BE IMPUDENT means to be bold. There's a TV show called "The Bold Ones" and the ones are all fearless heroes who unselfishly catch crooks.

As for a snob, I've always wanted to be one. A snob is a guy on top who looks down on the jerks below. My trouble has always been that there was no one down there. To see anyone at all, I had to look up, which is tougher on the neck and the pride.

Which brings us to effete. Words are my business, so it is embarrassing to admit, but I didn't know what the heck that meant. So I reached for the dictionary which said effete means: "That has brought forth offspring, exhausted; no longer capable of producing; worn out, exhausted, spent and sterile."

Is the vice president saying our corps of impudent snobs is too pooped to procreate? Too beat to begot?

***

IF HE IS RIGHT, I'm suddenly not feeling so impudent.

But he is wrong and I hereby request to be drummed out of the corps.

In fact, that was a pretty censorable thing for our No. 2 leader to be saying in public.

I hate to be impudent, but it's better than impotent.

'Good health, Mr. Nixon'

By RICHARD L. MILLIMAN
Livingston County Press

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has come a long way in a short time.

His name today is a household word in this country -- just three short years after he was an official of Baltimore county in Maryland.

A man of colorful speech, he currently is on the pan for a rip-roaring attack against Vietnam dissenters, having referred to the leaders of the recent anti-Vietnam moratorium as "an effete corps of impudent snobs."

Those are pretty strong words, and they get stronger still when the thousands who, to one degree or another, took part in the moratorium properly feel at least the rhetorical fallout of the Agnew bile.

***

BUT IS MR. AGNEW really on the public pan for this kind of talk?

President Nixon, of course, has not disowned his colleague.

Sen. Goldwater, another big gun in the Republican party, draws big ovals in party talks with the comment: "The vice president's crime, it seems, was to describe an effete corps of impudent snobs as 'an effete corps of impudent snobs.'"

Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell of California, president of the National Federation of Republican Women, adds: "I couldn't agree more with Vice President Agnew. I think he speaks out. I think he is right. He is his own man."

This latest Spiroism is not my personal favorite. I also couldn't get excited about his references to Japs and Polacks, which caused some flack during the campaign last year.

The high point -- or low point, depending on your orientation -- of the Agnew approach, in my view, came with his campaign decision to skip a trip to an inner city area. When you've seen one ghetto, the veep-to-be explained, you've seen them all.

Rep. Barry Goldwater, the senator's son, in Michigan a bit ago, explained some of Agnew's charm by indicating "Agnew is a strong man. A lot of people don't know him for the person he is. He tells you what he thinks. He is not wishy-washy. A lot of people like this in a politician."

Political history, however, indicates that Agnew first backed Gov. Rockefeller for the nomination in 1968, then became a neutral, then became a favorite son, then at a strategic moment as the convention opened came out for Nixon, and ended up giving Nixon's nominating speech.

Perhaps I'm the one who's off base. A recent article by Dr. George Gallup the professional pulse-taker, was headlined: "Agnew's Popularity Rising."

Gallup cites a poll showing that the percent of Americans with "highly favorable" opinion of Agnew has risen from 14 percent a year ago to 19 percent now, and in the south from 13 percent a year ago to 25 percent now. For the same periods, Wallace's "highly favorable" rating dropped from 17 to 12 percent nationally, and from 32 to 28 percent in the south.

Never one to take anything for granted, I went to the dictionary to see if I really understood the key words in Agnew's indictment of the anti-Vietnam demonstrators. I didn't.

"Effete" means "exhausted of fertility... exhausted of energy."

"Impudent" means "lacking modesty... shameless."

"Snob" means "one who blatantly imitates, fawningly admires, or vulgarly seeks association with those whom he regards as his superiors."

Heck, Agnew's remarks weren't so bad after all. He could have been describing a bunch of newspaper reporters or columnists... or any number of politicians I've known.

But I'm still with those who fervently wish Mr. Nixon the very best of continued good health.

The waiting game in Vietnam

By Vern Brown

It's so dark that you can't see your hand in front of your face.

You lean into your position trying to see, anyway. You know that there is a clear space for about 50 meters in front of you, then barbed wire.

Beyond that is a gully where Charley has always come up before.

You know he is out there somewhere because of intelligence reports and you also know that all those strands of barbed wire have never stopped Charley yet when he wanted to pay a visit.

***

YOU WANT A CIGARET, but it would blind what night vision you have. Besides, it is raining too hard to keep one lit.

So you just wait for daylight. It is the monsoon season and the dark of the moon. Every minute seems like an hour. Every hour seems like a day.

Every once in awhile the mortars fire some illumination rounds in. You get a 30-second look at your front to try and find out if you have company.

Nothing.

The radio calls everyone on the net and alerts them to possible action. Radar has picked something up in the barbed wire on the other side of the perimeter. Illumination goes up.

Nothing.

You wait.

One more hour and your shift is over. Then we can relax for a bit. You wait, cold and wet. A thought hits you that Charley could step on your hand before you knew he was even there.

You also remember what happened the last time Charley hit. This position was blown away along with the four GIs who were in it.

***

YOU REMEMBER because you were only about 50 yards away that night. It's best not to think about it.

Finally, your shift is over and the next man takes over. You tell him nothing is there as far as you know and that there was movement earlier. You make sure he is fully awake now and then stumble to a dry bunker.

Another night is over and you have 78 left before you are finally finished with it. You are playing a waiting game over here.

You wait for Charley, you wait for the end of the war, you wait to go home. You know two things for sure: Charley will come and so will the boys, home.

Deep inside you know that someone will be over to replace you when you leave. You know that the war is far from over. It could go on for years.

Then it will be his turn to play the waiting game.

At 7, sex is for the birds -- and bees

By Don Hoenshell

Sex education has stirred up a fuss in the schools and, as in the case of baseball and the war in Vietnam, everybody is an expert.

Before the empire falls, however, and all reason departs, let us go to the 7-year-old, the beneficiary of this mass wisdom.

This one expresses a sort of creative apathy about the entire subject, willing to shift for himself when confronted but not eager to get involved in controversy.

At great expense (one Pepsi) and a Kleenex to clean up a bruised toe from a bicycle mishap, herewith is an interview with a 7-year-old lad:

A - Where did you come from and how did you get here, sir?

A - I came from my mother.

She borned me. Yep, she did.

Q - How about your father? Did he have anything to do with it?

A - Nope, fathers don't have babies.

Q - Sir, there has been some mention in literature and among some, highly-placed educational people of the word "egg." When I say that word, what does it mean to you?

A - It means a bird lays an egg. The mother bird hatches it and the little bird comes out of the shell. The mother bird gets food for it. Then the other birds teach it how to fly and pretty soon the bird flies away.

A - There's another word used in all this debate, "sperm." Do you have any notion what that means?

A - No. Can I have another Pepsi?

Q - You are 7 years old. Do you have a girlfriend and, if not, would you like to have a girlfriend?

A - No, I don't have a girlfriend and I wouldn't like to have one. (editor's note: He is less sure of this several days after the interview, but he let it stand anyway.)

A - What do you know about girls?

A - I know they swear a lot.

Q - Do you think girls are nice or not nice?

A - Sometimes they're nice, like when they play football.

Q - Why do you suppose a man and a woman get married?

A - Because they like each other, something like that.

Q - Let's get back to the subject. How do mothers get babies so they can be borned?

A - Gee, I don't know. I think I'll have a drink of water. My sisters got all the Pepsi.

Q - Now here's the big question, sir. When I say the word "sex," what does that mean to you?

A - I don't know.

Q - Have you heard about the birds and the bees?

A - You mean like the birds and the bees and the flowers on the trees?

Q - Why are you laughing?

A - I always laugh at funny people.

That ended the interview, except for the promise of the interviewer to get more Pepsi. The 7-year-old, however, left it all up in the air with an unfathomable grimace on his face.

Could it have been a wink?

'Musical heritage ...'

University Baptists learn history of church music

The University Baptist church in Meridian township has completed the fifth Sunday's presentation of the history of religious music.

According to Mrs. Gerard Phillips, wife of the church's pastor, the presentations may continue for about a year.

She said the chronological historical tracing of church music has been undertaken to give the congregation a better understanding of why things are done as they are in a modern Christian service.

In addition, she said the presentations are designed to enhance the worship experience by building greater understanding.

WHENEVER POSSIBLE the church choir has been making use of musical instruments similar to those used in early worship rites.

Most recently the choir was accompanied by a guitar, which was used to approximate the early lyre. Earlier presentations have made use of trumpets, tamborines, cymbals and chanting.

The first presentation, incorporated into the regular service, dealt with pre-Christian Jewish music. In future services the choir will sing early congregational music which began several centuries after worship services themselves did.

Mrs. Phillips said the choir spends time each week doing background studies of the development of church music as it is now sung.

"THERE'S A TREMENDOUS heritage in Christian music which many people aren't aware of," she said.

She said her hope is that the weekly presentations of ancient music will expose the roots of contemporary hymns allowing the listener to hear how church music has developed.

Following the Christmas season during which the choir will sing contemporary Christian music, the historical presentations will be resumed with the first few centuries of early Christian music.

According to Mrs. Phillips, that which many churchgoers stand up and sing is the result of many changes and innovations. And it is an understanding and appreciation of these refinements which is her choir's target.

You can help The jail needs good books

This week the Ingham County News is starting a new service. We will be listing opportunities for concerned citizens who are seeking places to volunteer their time and energy for the betterment of the community. Each week we will attempt to list a different place for service.

We hope that our readers will respond both by offering their help to the listed agencies and by suggesting additional volunteer opportunities to us. If you wish to suggest a worthwhile project, call 677-9011.

The Ingham County jail needs books, both fiction for the prisoners' leisure hours and textbooks for the rehabilitation program.

Undersheriff Wells Moses says, "We always need books. The ones we have get a terrific amount of wear." Fictional books, without sex motivation are needed. The jail cannot accept magazines, with the exception of Reader's Digest.

Automotive manuals and books are needed for an automotive program. This will be started as part of the rehabilitation program, after the first of the year, Moses said.

"Grammar is our biggest problem," the undersheriff said, "The prisoners are lax on arithmetic too." Textbooks on both of these subjects are needed, both for classroom use and for the prisoners to take back to their cells for studying.

The prisoner who can neither read nor write and who is poor in arithmetic is at a disadvantage when he tries to find a job, Moses pointed out. The books, when used with the rehabilitation program can help overcome this.

Anyone with books to donate, should call the Ingham County Sheriff's department at 676-2431. The department will send someone out to pick up the books.

Farm Bureau members hear of early Alaiedon history

Pioneer history was discussed at the recent meeting of the Wonder What Farm Bureau Community group at the Gail Thorburn home.

Lewis Wilson and Ralph Stillman discussed the early history of Alaiedon township. Wilson read survey recordings made by the surveyor in the area in 1826, pertaining to what is now Alaiedon township. The township was not organized as its present unit until 1838. Ralph Stillman located by means of plat-books the families settling in the various sections between 1836 and 1841.

Pioneer history will be continued as a special topic at another meeting, because of the interest expressed by the group.

Albert Cook, discussion leader, spoke about the farm labor unionization threat and the National Labor Relations act.

The group will meet on Dec. 12 at the Albert Cook home.

Dimondale revises sewer contract

DIMONDALE - The village sewer collection and treatment system is rapidly becoming more and more frustrating.

The village has been struggling with the problem for four years. During one year of that time the problem was under a court order directing the village to abate its pollution of the Grand river. The order was obtained by the State Water Resources commission.

Last Monday night the matter again occupied the Dimondale village council and Leslie Grable Village President related to the council the most recent setbacks.

The first was that at the October meeting of the Eaton county board of supervisors. The Dimondale Council proposed a contract between the Eaton County Department of Public Works and the village of Dimondale, requesting that the Eaton county facility undertake the construction of the village's planned sewer system through placing the full credit of the county in backing the sale of Dimondale's court order bonds.

THE COUNTY, by an 11 to 9 vote, rejected the proposed contract, Grable said. The main objections by the supervisors, including Representatives Eddy and Swan, who also voted against the contract, was provisions for repayment of the bonds over a 10 year period.

The Eaton board, however, informed Grable and R. Thrun, Dimondale's legal counsel, that if the bond plan was revised to a longer 18 year term of repayment, it would be given further consideration at the Nov. 19 meeting of the Eaton county board of supervisors.

The other Village rebuff, Grable said, was that A.N. (Gus) Langius, Director of the state building division, stated that any outside sewer service provided by Delta township would be a violation of the recent agreement between the state and Delta to provide sewer service for the state secondary service complex, in Windsor township. Langius referred, of course to the carrier creek main extension to be constructed with state funds, he added.

The village council, by a unanimous vote, rescinded the 10 year proposed contract and adopted a new contract with the 18 year terms for repayment of the village sewer bonds.

Presumably, Grable and Thrun will present the newly revised contract at the Nov. 19 meeting of the Eaton county supervisors.

Other business considered by the council, included the purchase of a new 1970 G.M.C. pick up truck from a $2020, bid submitted by Rhynard's sales. It was determined that the truck would be used only for village business.

COUNCILMAN Donald Bates reported that Consumers Power wanted to change some lights in the village. The council decided more consideration was needed and requested that Bates have a consumers representative at the next meeting.

A 265 foot extension of Quincy st. will be made by the village as soon as Kenneth Ramont and Arthur Kretzman, owners of the land, turn over the deeds.

Clinton Hines, Windsor township fire chief, asked permission to replace the present bulletin board with a new 4 by 8 ft. board. Permission was granted.

Windsor-Dimondale

Sewer plan proposed

DIMONDALE - A possible sewer study of the Dimondale and northern area of Windsor township was proposed to the board of trustees at the meeting of the Windsor Township board last Tuesday.

Donald Hines, legal advisor for Rens Plastics Inc., urged the Windsor board to consider an exploratory study with Dimondale officials and the proposed village sewerage collection and treatment system, as a basic starting point.

Since the state building division has terminated any possible utilization of the state - Delta township extension of the Carrier creek interceptor sewer main to the state secondary service complex, it would appear that expansion of the Dimondale sewer system to serve that part of Windsor township would certainly be in the public interest, Hines observed.

HE SAID a heavy increase in residential, commercial and industrial growth is anticipated in this area of Windsor Township, based on Tri-County Planning commission projections.

"A closer relationship between the township and dimondale is necessary if we are to attain well planned and orderly development, Hines said.

"A thorough study seems in order with appropriate governmental units concentrating mainly on a solution to our sewer and water problems.

"IT SEEMS REASONABLE to assume that funds could be obtained from the state and federal level to launch the study I purpose. It would have to include the capacity, the cost and area need, to name a few related factors, he speculated. With close Windsor and Dimondale cooperation in obtaining such an in depth study plan, these units can certainly serve the public interest more effectively, Hines concluded."

Supervisor Garry Marsh, with the concurrence of Trustees, Eugene Nemeth, and Edward Jackson, promised to approach the Village and to cooperate in working out any feasible plan.

Marsh also requested that Hines disclose more of Ren Plastic's construction plans and requirements for township future planning.

Special use permit issued Methodist home co-op

DIMONDALE - The Windsor Township Board issued a special use permit to the Jarvis Acres Methodist Home Co-op, at the monthly board meeting, Nov. 11.

The board will hold in escrow, the sum of $16,000 until the several portions of the large construction project near completion. Jarvis Acres will be located on a parcel of property, previously purchased near Bailey Rd. and M-99, in eastern Windsor township.

The plans for construction under the special use permit call for black top streets, lighting, pressure water and a lagoon type sewer collection and disposal systems and sidewalks.

The co-op nursing and retirement complex will include modular apartment living units and convalescent type nursing facilities. The estimated construction costs are approximately $160,000.

Jarvis Acres representatives at the board meeting included Rev. Gerald Salisbury and Rev. Wilson Tennant, administrators and supervisors; Alvin Neller, legal advisor; A. Hunt, modular apartment salesman, and Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds, members of the board of trustees.

Construction and excavation operations already are started and employment of a number of area people will be provided when the Home becomes operable, officials, said.

Flag football notes

Weekend action in the Felt Plains Football League saw the Panthers roll to their eleventh straight victory on Saturday. The Panthers won their contest by virtue of a forfeit with the Leslie Jaycees.

Sunday action saw the previously winless Inco Spots come up with their first victory of the season, when they defeated the Blue Angels in a 25-19 game.

THE INCO SPOTS eliminated any chances of the Blue Angels winning their Eastern division race.

It was a total team effort for the Inco Spots, as they rolled to a commanding 19-6 first half lead, behind the offensive prowess of quarterback Larry Zigler and halfbacks Gary Blood and John Douglas. The Inco spots cemented their victory in the second half, jumping to a 25-6 lead, before the Angels were able to mount any offensive attack.

Exceptional defensive action for the Inco Spots was turned in by Ralph Horton, Mike Willis, Leon Davis, and Joe Ciockajlo, who continuously thwarted the Blue Angel's efforts to score and held down a late fourth quarter rally.

In the second game on Sunday, the Marauders turned back a gallant try by the Smith Construction Raiders, 54-26, to win their battle for the Eastern division championship.

THE RAIDERS came to within one point in the first half before the Marauders opened up their offensive attack, behind the passing of Arnold Wireman and the receiving of Charlie Wireman and Gary Cook.

From that point on, it was the Marauder's game, as a tight Marauder defense, led by Glen Wireman, Gordon Ries, and Clayton Ries, stopped the Raiders' offensive punch.

For the Raiders, new quarterback, Randy Powers, was a standout offensively along with Bill Rich.

THE MARAUDERS are now Eastern Division Champs and will face the Western Champs, the Panthers, on November 30th for F.P.F.L. supremacy.

STANDINGS

ON THE RUN—Speed is of the essence in the game of flag football.

That time of the season

By TIM GOODWIN

There has never been too much doubt in the Big Ten football race this year. Ohio State was pegged as the team to take the conference, and it's boiled down to where it's not whether Ohio State will win or not, but how much will they win by!

With perhaps one of the greatest college squads ever assembled, coach Woody Hayes' Buckeyes have left little doubt in the minds of men that they are the greatest, especially after last week's contest with the Boilermakers of Purdue.

PURDUE, led by one of their greatest quarterbacks in Mike Phipps, was given the nod to come the closest in stopping the powerful Buckeye offense.

The nightmare that followed sent Purdue fans home with empty hearts.

By a 42-14 score, the OSU squad walked all over the Boilermakers to notch another feather in their cap and lengthen their victory string to 22. The Ohio State offensive unit played their usual flawless game of football and their defense came up with five interceptions to pave the way.

The nod now goes to the University of Michigan.

Wolverine coach, Bo Schembechler, has whipped his U-M team into a team that is perhaps second only to the Buckeyes. Michigan's only two losses, to Missouri and Michigan State, were unfortunate and had his Wolverines been playing the brand of ball they have in their last four games, those two losses could have been a different story.

Michigan proved their point this last weekend, rolling over the not-so-bad Iowa team by a score of 51-6, and also setting a Big Ten mark in total offense at 673 yards.

One interesting note is that the Michigan defense has allowed only two touchdowns in their last four games, and as the Wolverines go against the Buckeyes in their last Big Ten game of the season, it rounds out to be one of their biggest games of the year.

The steadily improving Wolverines have almost assured themselves of a trip to the Rose Bowl, based on the fact that Ohio State went last year and the fact that they have already defeated Purdue, the only other contender.

SCHEMBECHLER, who studied under OSU's Woody Hayes, would undoubtedly love to win this one. Not only would it cement their trip to Pasadena, it would also atone for their loss last year to Ohio State when the Wolverines lost 50-14. And as everyone remembers, Michigan was called upon as the team to do it last year also.

Should Michigan accomplish their task, it would definitely be labeled one of the biggest upsets of the year, but even a close loss would establish the Wolverines as a top team. A loss to a team of Ohio State's caliber is no sorry thing and puts Michigan in a unique position.

While OSU has everything to lose, Michigan has nothing to lose.

It's a great way to go into a game and given a few breaks, if any team can beat the Buckeyes, it'll be the Wolverines.

Flag football is in!

A modified version of the century old sport creates a new enthusiasm

By TIM GOODWIN
News Sports Writer

The name of the game is Flag Football. For the 18 to 35 set, one of the newest and fastest growing modifications to the century old game of football, and the object is Fun, with a capital F.

While most men are contented to sit home on weekends with a transistor radio in one ear and an eye on the television screen just for the sake of their involvement in football, another brand of men meet regularly every week to become both mentally and physically involved in the game of football.

Flag football allows them that opportunity, drawing players from every walk of life, from white collar jobs to assembly line workers. It matters not whether the participant is the sleek, sturdy individual that fills the ranks of the All-American athletes, for physical stamina and ability rate second, with the emphasis going on the desire to play.

What is Flag Football?

Flag Football involves the use of flags, just as the name indicates, to constitute a tackle. Instead of the usual slam-em-down tackling tactics used in regulation football, flags are attached to special belts on each player and to make a tackle, a single flag must be pulled off. Not only does this eliminate the multitude of injuries associated with regular football, it also makes the bulky padding and equipment unnecessary, cutting the cost expense down considerably.

The changes only begin there. Further modifications have each team with six men, instead of the usual 11, playing on a shortened 70-yard field.

Four quarters are divided into twenty minutes each, with no time-outs, and fifteen minutes between the halves. Free substitution is allowed though, making speed and exactness two of the more necessary qualities of flag football.

With these basic rules as guidelines, flag football pretty much follows the regulations and standards set by the National Football League.

Local rules may vary from league to league, but it all boils down to a new and different way to play the old game of football, allowing men of any size, age, and ability to become involved.

Such is the case with the Felt Plains Football League, one of the area's most promising new sports organizations.

When it began

The F.P.F.L., as it is referred to, started on a shoestring, a short three years ago in a backyard.

Lew Tink, league president, recalls those early days as "just a bunch of guys getting together on a Sunday afternoon that wanted to play football." Two unofficial teams played that first year and enjoyed it so much they decided it would be a good thing to develop.

The sidelot at Tink's residence on 3202 Meridian Rd., Leslie, was soon transformed from an empty field into a 70-yard football field, marked off with lime and goal posts at each end, thus paving the way for an organized football league.

The 1968 season saw four teams competing in the F.P.F.L., and a basic set of rules were laid down. Standards were set and a sportsmanship code of ethics was strictly adhered to.

"Financially, we went in the hole the second year," Tink said, "Donations were accepted, but they failed to cover the growing costs of a growing football league."

This fall, the league jumped to six teams, and a dollar per player, plus 25 cents a game, was set for a fee to help defray the costs. Besides providing for maintenance expenses, the money will also be spent for trophies and a banquet at the end of the season.

The six teams are: The Blue Angels, The Panthers, The Marauders, The Inco Spots, the Leslie Jaycees, and the Smith Construction Raiders with the league divided into two divisions, Eastern and Western, giving each team a little better chance to compete, and allowing for a championship playoff at the end of the season.

Besides a trophy for the overall champion, trophies will also be awarded to individuals who excelled in a particular position, displayed the best sportsmanship, or contributed the most to the 1969 season.

Tink explains, "that this gives every team a chance to receive a share of the recognition, not only the first place team."

Only two weeks remain in the current flag football season and already plans are being made for next year.

Future looks bright

Future prospects look bright for the Felt Plains Football League.

Expansion is first on the list. The enthusiasm shown throughout the season has increased and eight teams look like a certainty for next year.

Plans are already being made to accommodate any new teams to the league, with a second field being built in the area.

The game is also becoming more formalized and a more concrete set of rules and standards will prevail in the 1970 season. Each year the league has learned from their previous season where the faults lie and have steadily forged ahead to lay a sound basis for future seasons.

"Sponsorship will also be likely in the 1970 season," Tink explained, "The Smith Construction Raiders set the precedent this year, being the first team to have a sponsor's backing."

In addition to these improvements, an all-star game will hopefully come into being next year. With a team made up from the league's best players, the F.P.F.L. hopes to find another league in the area that would be willing to compete.

COLLISION—Two opposing players collide in an attempt to catch that key pass or maybe get that all important interception.

Even with these improvements and the increasing caliber of players on the teams, some from the college ranks, the Felt Plains league still bases its existence on the individual's desire to play, more than his ability.

It may never replace professional football, but one thing is certain, weekends will never be the same as the new and different game of flag football gains an ever-increasing following.

TELLS THE STORY—A sign at the entrance beckons passer-bys and tells the story of what's in store for the day.

Evans to retire

After graduation from high school in 1925, Evans went to work for the New York Central Railroad in Chicago in 1926 and 1927. He then came to Michigan and worked on road and bridge construction from 1927 to 1930.

He returned to New Mexico in 1930 and was graduated with honors with a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering in 1933 from the New Mexico College of Agricultural and Mechanical Arts—now New Mexico State university.

Evans went back to Michigan again working for the state highway department as a maintenance superintendent from 1933 to 1935.

HE WAS APPOINTED Branch County Highway engineer in 1936 at which post he stayed until 1942. In 1940 he won the Better Roads Magazine award for highway management in counties under 50,000 population.

In 1942 he left Branch County and joined the Army Corps of Engineers as a first lieutenant. When he left the service in 1946, Evans was a lieutenant colonel and had seen combat duty overseas with the 1115 Engineers Combat Group.

Again returning to Michigan, Evans was appointed to the post he will vacate in January.

During the time he has been the engineer-superintendent for Ingham county, traffic density has risen at least 500 percent, Evans said, with the percentage holding true for all types of roads.

The new more than $650,000 road commission facility, which was begun in November of 1967 and completely finished earlier this month, also became a reality.

He said a main thing to remember in operating the road commission is to get the jobs done in advance.

Fiscally, Evans said the commission has been able to pay cash for most of its work. Some of that ability, Evans said, was because the commission never let any money lie fallow. Funds received by the commission were loaned on varying terms allowing the county to earn interest on money not needed at the moment.

"I've enjoyed every minute of my work," Evans said. He said there is a little piece of him everywhere he has worked. This, he said, gives engineering a unique satisfaction in that there is something tangible that exists when the engineer is done.

There is also a unique form of dissatisfaction, Evans said, in that his mistakes are always there to haunt him.

Evans hit many engineering schools of today for not teaching enough of the basic pick and shovel engineering.

However, he said that with all the technical advances that have been made in recent years, an engineering student has a hard time getting through in four years. He charged that there is an overall educational trend to be theoretical rather than practical.

ACTIVE IN THE FIELD of area planning, Evans was one of three original people to form the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission and functioned as secretary of the original commission.

Traxler asks escape from the 4th floor

Rep. J. Robert Traxler (D-Bay City) today asked for a study leading to installation of an outside fire escape from the state capitol's fourth floor to the ground.

He sent the request to Rep. Raymond C. Kehres (D-Monroe), an assistant to House Speaker William A. Ryan.

Earlier attempts to build an outside fire escape have withered under attacks that it would destroy the appearance of the capitol. Traxler wrote:

"Why not install an outside fire escape from the fourth floor to the ground. The design of the building in the rear would permit the concealment from the general public of this outside fire escape.

"I am sure in view of the enclosed articles (the News series on fire hazards) you are aware of the need for such a safety device."

Traxler is a member of Gov. Milliken's Committee of 21 planning a new capitol.

Kehres wrote back that the House ran into "violent disagreement" with the Senate over the installation of a fire escape from the fourth floor.

"So we pulled the fire escape from the contract," he said. "If we can reach an agreement with the Senate, the fire escape could still be installed."

on the trunk of his car parked in his driveway at 1322 E. South Street. He went out to the car and checked the items and found them to be some type of musical instruments.

Then he went to the school and found that the thief or thieves had made entry into the building through a window on the northwest side of the school. He checked the band room and found several other items missing.

BRIGGS could not place a value on the items taken, but sheriff's officers said they included the following:

One tape recorder, one converter, one snare drum frame, one tuner, two hi fi speakers and one record player.

Library nook

The legend of Lost Atlantis, a beautiful and powerful island kingdom that disappeared under the sea before the dawn of history, somehow refuses to disappear from men's thoughts. Although there has never been a stone, a piece of pottery, or an inscription of any kind to positively prove that Atlantis ever existed, the search for this lost kingdom continues.

The ancient Greeks believed Atlantis once flourished in the sea to the west, a vast and unknown area to them. Some explorers today believe Atlantis may actually have been situated in the very center of an earlier Greek world.

Henry Chapin, in The Search for Atlantis, provides a detailed account of the legend, related historical facts, and on-going research. In this fascinating true-life mystery, the sleuths are scientists—anthropologists, archaeologists, geologists, meteorologists, and oceanographers—investigating clues from the earth, the atmosphere, and the sea, as well as from oral reports and written history.

WHILE HIS WORK is directed at the young reader, Mr. Chapin presents here an engrossing survey of the detective work that may one day solve the mystery of lost Atlantis.

For some, however, the search has ended and the mystery is solved. Professor Galanopoulos and his followers are advocates of the theory that the volcanic Aegean island of Thera was the site of Atlantis—a theory which they and many others believe verified by archaeological and geological evidence uncovered on two expeditions.

The expeditions were led by James W. Mavor, whose first hand account is written up in his book, Voyage to Atlantis. Every step of the first dramatic, historic voyage—involving a worldwide array of experts, modern scientific equipment, and the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute research vessel "Chain"—is brilliantly recaptured in Mavor's book.

Atlantis: The Truth Behind the Legend is written by Professor Galanopoulos himself. In an extraordinary and unique book combining inspired scholarship and readability, Professor Galanopoulos, in collaboration with Edward Bacon, sets forth this theory and carefully documents it. He divides his work into four main sections: 1) What Plato meant and said, 2) Where was Atlantis? Old theories demolished, 3) Geophysical theories and facts, and 4) Case proven. The text is beautifully illustrated with over one hundred photographs, prints, drawings, and maps.

EDGAR CAYCE, "America's most amazing prophet" has also written down ideas of the mysterious world of Atlantis. His youngest son, Edgar Lynn Cayce, has edited his writings in a book entitled Edgar Cayce on Atlantis. From the incredible Cayce reading we learn that Atlantis is, indeed, a fact. The country existed thousand of years ago and achieved a technology equivalent to ours today. Along with radio, television, airplanes, and books, Atlanteans developed atomic energy and ultimately the continent was destroyed.

According to Cayce, a great many reincarnated Atlanteans are living today, and recreating our so-called "modern" scientific developments.

Edgar Cayce also predicted: Poseidia will be among the first portions of Atlantis to rise again—expect it in '68 and '69." Could that prediction refer to Professor Galanopoulos's discoveries? An interesting speculation, in any case.

All the above-mentioned books are available through the Ingham County Library system.

'Now it's urgent'

He is not sold on any of the major architectural designs and has an open mind on them all.

"Precisely how it will be designed, that is the problem they—we have to deal with," he said.

The governor is proud of the Committee of 21, ten legislators, 10 outstanding citizens in the field of design whom he appointed to work on the problem. He is the 21st member, and Chairman.

"They're really a talented, high caliber group," he said. "They're going to perform well."

To the objections of businessmen that the new capitol site two blocks west will take the state employe buying power away from downtown stores, Milliken said:

"Actually, there will be relatively few people in the new capitol. The real buying power is in the state office buildings which are already in the complex (a block west and two blocks south)."

Tradition dies hard, even in Lansing where sometimes cynicism is worn like a badge.

Forces inside and outside of government would like to see the present capitol—Michigan's third-kept and renovated, as a museum, as a place for inaugural ceremonies; as Michigan's nod to its heritage.

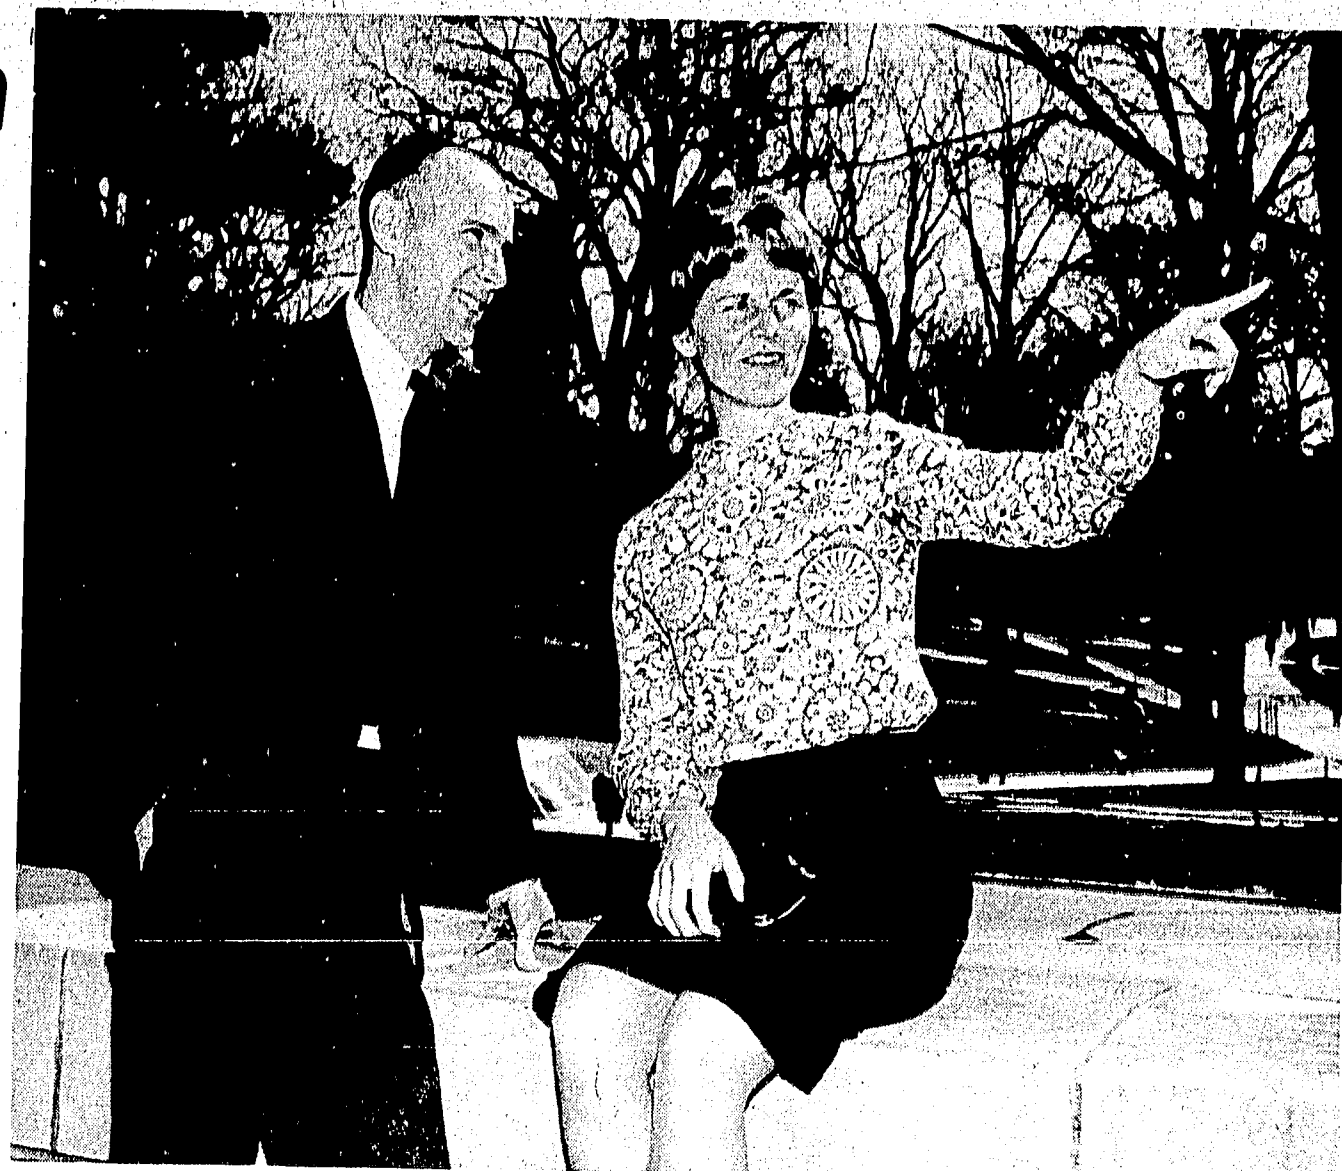

The first was in Detroit's Capitol Park, in the heart of the city, its place in history preserved in a statue. The site is now a DSR bus station where muggers have been known to tarry.

MICHIGAN'S SECOND CAPITOL, a block southwest of the present site, is now the site of a dime store with a plaque on the north wall commemorating the first capitol in Lansing.

The present capitol was better planned as a monument to government. It looks east on Michigan avenue as though screening its problems but accepting them all as they come.

On its front walk stands the statue of Gov. Austin Blair, the Civil War governor whose papers still recall from the archives how he promoted and disciplined officers in the Michigan militia fighting the war.

Milliken, to whom history means much, said: "I hope and expect that the present capitol will be renovated to the extent that it will be preserved for ceremonial functions."

MOON MAN -- U.S. Astronaut Alan L. Bean, a member of the three-man Apollo 12 crew which landed on the moon today, visited the Michigan State University campus in 1965 to address the Faculty Club. He also met with his cousin, Sarah J. Thorkilson from Jackson, who was then a junior at MSU. Bean's father is an MSU graduate.

Mobile home parks comfortable, clean under Delhi edict

By SCOTT KINGAN
News Staff Writer

Mobile homes. Why buy one? How good are they? Who owns most of them? What's it like to live in one?

The answers to these and other questions form an interesting story about one of the newest forms of housing spreading like small blankets across the nation.

According to figures at the Delhi Charter township hall, there are close to 1,200 persons living in the five trailer parks here.

These include approximately 900 adults, 171 under school age children, 44 elementary school children, 39 junior and senior high school students and 20 who are out of school.

FOR MANY MOBILE home dwellers, the thought of living in one of the metal domiciles was unheard of prior to the time this new form of housing came to use.

FRANK H. THEROUX, president and general manager of the Windmill Mobile Home Park was one park owner who said there is no average trailer resident.

Among Theroux's park population is a millionaire. Mobile homes range from about $4,600 to $17,000 and more, Theroux said. The average is about $8,000.

In considering the cost of a mobile home, Theroux said a person would have to pay about twice what mobile home owners pay to get equivalent square footage in a house.

The News asked Mrs. Helen Bunn what she thought about her mobile home.

"We just love it," she said. Formerly a teacher at the Boys Training school, Mrs. Bunn said she and her husband pay about one third what they paid to maintain their house in Lansing.

She said cleanup at her house used to take a weekend. In her mobile home, the job takes about two hours.

The Bunn's, like many mobile home residents, would have laughed two years ago at anyone suggesting that they live in a mobile home. They have lived in their 12 by 60 foot model for just less than one year.

"We would have to pay $25,000 to $30,000 to get a home that is equal to what we have now," she said.

MRS. RICHARD Remsing and her husband are also Windmill Park residents. Married for about four years, their "double-wide" mobile home is hard to detect from a conventional house. It is formed of two 12 foot sides butted together and has four bedrooms, a large living room, dining room and kitchen with a laundry area.

The 24 foot by 61 foot Remsing mobile home is the largest in the Windmill park. It is their second mobile home.

Mrs. Remsing said her husband, a Lansing variety store manager, lived in his own mobile home when he was single. She said he bought the trailer because his job caused him to move frequently and the mobile home allowed him to take his dwelling with him.

So satisfied are the Remsings with mobile home living, that they may always live in one, Mrs. Remsing said.

INTERESTINGLY, ALL of those questioned liked mobile homes, but not because they are mobile. In fact, most park owners said a good many mobile homes stay right where they were first installed, much like a conventional house.

While most owners had praise for mobile homes generally, they did point out some faults. Furniture quality was one.

There is great variance in Delhi township parks in every respect but rental price. That generally averages around $50.

Williams Mobile Homes Park at 1560 Eifert road has 18 acres, 45 units with spaces for 51. There are 38 families, and seven single persons living in the park. Total park population is 81. The rent, $50.

Stonegate Mobile Home Community at 2700 Eaton Rapids Road, has 48 acres with more planned. There are 173 units with 28 single persons and 145 families. Total population is 371 persons. The park has a central television antenna and an air conditioned community lodge. Unlike the Williams park, children and pets are permitted. Rent is $55 a month.

Windmill Mobile Home Park at 1433 Eifert Road has about 25 acres and 97 units with a total of 100 acres and 630 units planned. Population is 266 persons. Also planned is a shopping center with a grocery store, a laundromat, a dry cleaner, a drug store and other businesses. Park owner-developer Frank Theroux said, when finished it will approximate the Plaza in size. Also available will be a swimming pool, community center and a shuffleboard court.

DELHI TOWNSHIP has one of the best ordinances covering trailer parks of any area in this part of Michigan. A person or company planning to develop a trailer park within the township must meet many requirements and agree to various rules and regulations.

This has resulted in trailer parks in the township being models of propriety, pleasant to look at and providing comfortable living for the occupants.

All trailer parks in Delhi come under multiple zoning.

HERE ARE SOME of the provisions of the trailer ordinance:

A developer must have a special use permit obtained from the township planning commission, issued following a public hearing on the proposed development.

All trailer parks must obtain a license from the state health department.

The developer must have the approval of the township board and must file with the application for a permit a fee of $50.

The request for the permit is referred to the planning board along with a site or development plan of the proposed park drawn to scale and showing streets and all proposed or existing structures above ground.

The developer also must submit plans for all construction and development.

Within 60 days after the hearing the planning board shall submit its recommendations to the township board which considers it at its next regular meeting. The township clerk then issues the permits if it is approved by the township board.

The permit is good for only one year. If no action is taken toward developing the area within that period the permit is revoked.

THE ORDINANCE states that the minimum size of any trailer park shall be five acres, with a minimum frontage of 250 feet.

All buildings and trailers shall be no closer than 50 feet from a public street and no closer than 50 feet from any boundary of the trailer park. Entrances and exits must have a minimum width of 24 feet and must be paved.

The minimum lot size each trailer shall occupy is established in the ordinance at 3,000 square feet with the width being 35 feet. The minimum ground space at the entrance side of the trailers must be 15 feet, at the non entrance side, eight feet and at each end, 10 feet.

The trailer itself must rest on a reinforced concrete slab at least four inches thick, 10 feet wide and 45 feet long.

Trailers must be supported by uniform jacks or blocks. All buildings in the park must conform to structural standards.

Every trailer must have sanitary sewer and water facilities.

If trailers have fuel oil or gas tanks they must be underground.

It is not permissible to store any article under trailers or anywhere on the trailer lot unless they are enclosed.

Each trailer development must have a recreation and play area.

All freshmen, they are Jane Clark, Eaton Rapids; Ann Clery, Mason; Pat Lawhorn, Bad Axe; and Marilyn Smith and Sharon TenBrink both of Portage.

THE COEDS are majoring in CMU's Department of Home Economics, Family Life and Consumer Education and are on the secondary education curriculum.

Miss Clark received her award from the Dow Chemical Company. Miss Clery received the Joan Stanton Memorial Fund Scholarship. Miss Lawhorn received a Future Homemakers of America Award and Miss Smith and Miss TenBrink's scholarships were given by the Michigan Home Economics Association.

ACCORDING to Dr. Evelyn I. Rouner, chairman of the home economics department at CMU:

"All five of the girls won their scholarships on the basis of their outstanding efforts in Future Homemakers of America clubs while in high school, their desire to further their education on home economics and their scholastic achievements."

Thelma Graper, state advisor for the FHA, says 11 such scholarships were granted in Michigan this year.

Podunk lives on! Sprightly Mrs. Warner lived there, attended school and taught classes

By MARY BOENING
News Special Writer

WEBBERVILLE — Podunk Center lives on in the memory of an 83-year-old widow who likes to paint her own house and go fishing.

She is Mrs. John C. Warner, of Williamston, who as a child lived there.

Podunk Center's fame goes in cycles, from obscurity to headlines. Its name, of Indian derivation, catches the fancy of newspapermen and every few years the stories are repeated.

INGHAM COUNTY'S claim on the name is now a crossroads near Webberville. The latest rash of publicity stemmed from efforts of a Podunk, Ia., man to sell his town, which he privately owns.

Mrs. Warner, her sprightliness pushing back the years, tells of her early life in Ingham County's Podunk Center. She was reminded of it again by a story in the Ingham County News written by Hayden Palmer, a staff writer.

"When I saw Mr. Palmer's story about Podunk I thought you'd like to know my first three years of schooling were at the Podunk school," she said.

Then my parents moved two miles straight south of the school. Then I attended the Meech. But after I received my teachers' certificate in 1904 I taught the White Dog for two terms and then taught at Podunk until I married.

"When I taught there I well remember walking down my father's lane, through the woods, and then across the Rix farm to get to school."

"It was three miles to go around the road. Then I'd have to build the fire and get the water. Before I left each night I'd sweep the floor. I was paid $28.50 per month."

Businessmen's association is proposed for Holt area

Who speaks for businesses in Holt? How does one speak to business in Holt?

At present, the answers to those questions must be a shoulder shrug and an "I don't know."

Township supervisor Joe Kiersey thinks the community might benefit from a Holt businessmen's association.

"It would be my opinion that a businessmen's association would be valuable to the businessman and to the consumer."

"FROM THE CONSUMER'S standpoint, the association would be a place to go with a legitimate beef. From a business standpoint, customers could see that the proprietor is a member of the association and they would know they're dealing with a reliable business."

Kiersey said an association could be an effective self-policing organization. With no such organization the Holt consumer has no place to turn except the prosecuting attorney.

He said he gets some complaints himself but added that he has no legal powers to settle disputes.

According to Kiersey the organization could draw up the imposition of guidelines and employ fines or removal from the association as enforcement policy.

In addition to regulating functions, Kiersey said an association sets up a better working relationship between businesses.

Businessmen would know what and how their associates operate and they could direct customers to other Holt businesses if they did not have a desired product in stock. This would keep business in Holt, Kiersey said, and indirectly benefit all businesses.

A quick survey of six Holt area businessmen revealed general agreement for such an organization, but some skepticism about its effectiveness and degree of overall participation.

Tom Griffith, owner of Griffith Drugs, said he thought it "would be a good idea. Period."

GRIFFITH said he could see no reason why such an organization should not be formed. He said it would give businessmen a chance to get together and participate in community projects.

Dick Bacon, president of the Holt Kiwanis club and owner of Bacon Insurance, said Holt needs a businessmen's association. It could promote business generally.

He said somebody to start it is all that's needed. Bacon said he had earlier contacted members of Holt's five service clubs to form a businessmen's association.

An association could get more money together to do things for the community, Bacon said.

Earnest Hunt, owner of Holt Products company, said he has his doubts about such an organization.

"I don't want to get involved in another eating club."

However, Hunt said that if a majority of Holt businessmen want to form an association, he would be willing to join.

Kenneth Hope, owner of Lansing Lumber company on Holt road in Holt, said he would want to join such a group were it formed, but that he would have to limit his participation due to membership in other organizations.

Robert Howe, manager of the Schmidt's market in the Holt Plaza, would probably join, he said, provided that Schmidt president, Albert Schmidt, approved.

***
HOWE SAID a businessmen's organization's effectiveness would depend on its leadership.

"These things have to be pushed."

What the effect will be of these interviews is as yet impossible to predict. However it is known that businessmen's associations, better business bureaus or merchant's associations have been effective in acquainting businessmen with other businessmen, mediating consumer disputes, providing information on business' stand on various issues and performing various public service projects.

There already is a Holt Plaza business association, however according to one member it functions primarily as a group advertising organization.

Determination whether such an organization should be begun now rests with the Holt business community. It may be that all that's needed now, as Bacon said, is someone to come forward to lead it.

GM parts division takes over Olds unit

FLINT—General Motors Parts Division took another step in the assumption of its new responsibilities by incorporating the Oldsmobile Parts Plant into its operations.

The Oldsmobile parts processing and distribution operation employs more than 575 people, bringing the total personnel on the GMPD payroll to 14,500.

LOCATED AT 4400 West Mount Hope Road, the plant is appropriately named GMPD Lansing Parts Plant. Erected in 1949 and occupied that same year by Oldsmobile, the structure has since been expanded in three stages which have practically doubled its original capacity.

Today, the plant consists of 1,417,000 square feet of floor space and stocks approximately 49,600 Oldsmobile parts.

GMPD Lansing has a unitizing operation where the component parts of kits are assembled and packaged in preparation for shipment. In this same operation, other parts are packaged for protection, identification, and ease of handling.

OLDSMOBILE SHEET METAL parts are coated with a prime paint by means of a flow coat process. They are then specially packaged in order to avoid damage in shipment assuring delivery of excellent quality parts to GM customers.

The plant receives and processes order for shipment of materials to 37 General Motors Parts Distribution Centers in the United States and to Canada and overseas operations.

Orders for slow moving parts are filled and shipped directly to dealers for the Lansing Parts Plant.

Trucks, boxcars, and air planes are utilized by GMPD Lansing as a means of expediting parts delivery to dealers and GM vehicle owners.

Dems count dots to raise cash

The Michigan Democratic Party today launched a fund raising contest which the Party hopes will raise $50,000 for state, county, and district party treasuries.

The party is offering people the opportunity to win one of 103 prizes, including first prize of a 1970 Dodge Challenger, by purchasing a $1 ticket and correctly estimating the number of dots which appear on a map of Michigan pictured on the ticket.

CLOSEST ESTIMATE to the correct number of dots will win the first prize of the Dodge Challenger. Second closest estimate will receive a new snowmobile, and the third prize will be an RCA Color TV. 100 other prizes will also be awarded.

In case of ties, a second contest will be held among those tied to determine the winners.

The Detroit firm of Grant & Silverman, CPA's has the only tally of the exact number of dots on the map.

Tickets will be available from Democratic Party workers in every part of the state.

"WE ARE HOPEFUL that this contest will make up the bulk of our current budget deficit," said State Party Chairman James McNeely. "We are confident that Democrats through the state will do all they can to make sure that every county and district meets its ticket sale quota."

Proceeds from the sales of tickets will be split between state and local organizations, with the local organization getting 25 cents for each ticket sold up to one-half of its quota and 50 cents for each ticket sold over one-half of its quota.

Religion update

Church politics: See how they run

By the Rev. Lester Kinsolving

Ecclesiastical politics, for so long conducted underground (and therefore often underhanded), appear at last to be coming out into the open.

At the recent national convention of the United Church of Christ in Boston, for instance, hotel walls were plastered with candidates' campaign posters, and halls were jammed with caucuses and vote solicitors.

In Israel, shortly after he blew the Shofar (Ram's horn) as Israeli troops moved into the Wailing Wall area, Chief Army Chaplain Shlomo Goren began public campaigning for the post of Chief Rabbi of Tel Aviv.

SUCH OPEN POLITICKING is bound to upset many religious traditionalists who feel that the election of bishops and other religious leaders should be influenced solely by God and the Holy Spirit. These devout and pristine people are usually snowed under by ecclesiastical political machines which for precision make the Longos of Louisiana look like amateurs.

To attribute the results of many of these elections to the Holy Spirit approaches blasphemy. Yet this attribution is as much a part of the election rhetoric as the pious statements of clergy who have been elected bishop (as the result of arduous months of clandestine campaigning) announce in a stained glass voice: "Before accepting this election, I must give the matter prayerful consideration." "Will your father accept his election as bishop?" the young son of one such clergyman was asked. "I don't know," he replied. "Father's down at the church praying about it. Mother's home packing the bags.")

A case in point is the recent election of a bishop for the Episcopal Diocese of Honolulu. Among the ten candidates was Francis Sayre, famed Dean of Washington's National Cathedral, Los Angeles' Suffragan Bishop Robert Rusk and prominent rectors in Akron and Virginia. Winner by a heavy majority was Honolulu's Suffragan (assistant) Bishop E. Lani Hanchett, whose education consists of two years of college and three months of theological seminary.

WHILE ACTING for the past two years as "Bishop in charge" (a temporary appointment) Hanchett had affirmed that clergymen cannot afford the luxury of being involved in controversial social issues.

Such a stance apparently motivated two student newspaper editors at the Diocese's Iolani School to a series of written questions asking where the bishop candidates stood on various social issues.

(Just why this has not been done before in all bishop elections may well be due to the traditional and ridiculous idea that concealment of a clergyman's convictions on important subjects is somehow conducive to the work of the Holy Spirit.)

Hanchett and all other candidates provided replies to these questions. But when a meeting of candidates was arranged at the school, Hanchett balked at facing oral questions which might illuminate the written answers he had provided.

Instead, he took advantage of his position as temporary bishop in charge to use the Diocesan newspaper for extensive campaigning, a privilege not available to the other candidates.

HE HAD BEEN MADE temporary bishop in charge (giving him something of an incumbent's advantage) after his election as Suffragan bishop, by the Episcopal House of Bishops in their 1967 meeting in Seattle. He had been nominated to the Bishops by a secret committee which had been appointed by the now retired Bishop Harry Kennedy. One of the three men on this secret committee was Chancellor (Diocesan attorney) Hugh Shearer.

Hanchett's amazing election victory can be attributed almost entirely to Shearer's political acumen. Hanchett's part-Hawaiian blood, plus his expressed devotion to "Law and order" were impressively promoted, along with letters of endorsement which were sent to all voters. (Backers of other candidates were unable to obtain voters' lists from Diocesan headquarters until after the Hanchett mailing.)

Chancellor Shearer virtually ran the Diocesan convention which elected Hanchett. While Episcopal Presiding Bishop John E. Hines was asked to come from New York to preside, he was unable on numerous occasions to rule on convention disputes, simply because of his unfamiliarity with local Diocesan canon law.

So Shearer repeatedly provided rulings, which in three cases excluded either lay or clergy delegates from voting. This he did despite the fact that prior to the convention he had publicly endorsed the candidacy of Hanchett—an impropriety somewhat similar to having one candidate's campaign manager (however honest) as judge in a case of election fraud. # NOBODY LOVES ME

Mark sat in the middle of the hospital ward, looking scared and lonely. All around, other babies were being hugged and cooed at by their visitors.

He couldn't know we'd stopped to get his clothes and that today he'd be going home. His understanding of the situation was limited. But then he saw us, and he laughed and held out his arms, loneliness and fear forgotten.

Sometimes life makes us feel lost and lonely. Perhaps a business fails, a son is unreliable, a new job overwhelms or a loved one's gone. When we can't see our way, where can we turn?

God is our Comforter. Whatever our problem, there is guidance and help in His word.

Your church is the best place to learn understanding of God and yourself. This understanding is the key to the abundant life that is His promise.

The roof fell in....

These pictures were taken on the fourth floor of the state capitol by a state employee shortly after light fixtures broke loose from the weakened ceiling and crashed in a room housing expensive electronic typewriters. The secretaries and their equipment have since been moved elsewhere in the building. The capitol has been declared a fire hazard for years by state and local fire marshals. Plans are now underway to build a new capitol for $45 million. The general concept has the approval of Gov. Milliken and many legislators from both the Republican and Democratic ranks.

4-H automotive project improves driving habits

The 4-H automotive project helps youth learn safe, responsible driving habits says Richard W. Brown, extension 4-H youth agent.

He encourages girls and boys to enroll now at the beginning of the 4-H year. The auto project has three units— the car and the highway, maintenance and operation, and operating the car efficiently.

Safety is stressed, and project members learn much more than how to drive a car. They study car costs and record keeping, how to safety check a car, career opportunities in the auto field, and what to look for in buying a used car.

The 4-H auto project helps youth learn the "why" as well as the "how."

Adults are needed to serve as leaders for this project. Available bulletins provide all needed information for leading a 4-H auto project club.

Youth and adults interested in this project should contact the county extension office at 127 E. Maple, Mason, telephone 677-9411.

Holiday on Ice Production to feature Pooch Parade

A beautiful girl and her escorts are in the "Pooch Parade," one of the huge production numbers in the 24th edition of Holiday on Ice. The big skating extravaganza comes to the Lansing Civic Center from Wednesday, November 18 through Saturday, November 22.

The cast of Holiday's glamour-icers appear as prize winning canines of just about every recognizable breed. The parade of blue ribbon wearers is led by Miss Puppy Pacesetter in the person of Grete Borgen and it's a sure bet that the male judges in the audience will vote this personable young lady their choice for "best in show".

In addition the "dog-star" of the Pooch Parade is the famous "Houn' Dawg", the ice skating canine whose antics have provided both kids and grownups with "howls" of laughter whenever he appears.

In this season's show, "Houn' Dawg" will be seen in a setting inspired by a championship dog show at Madison Square Garden.

Actually the "he" of "Houn' Dawg" is two "hims"; Michel Bagneris and Dick Haskell.

Mason 'slave auction' nets $100 in bidding

By BECKY BABCOCK
Mason High School

"How much do I hear for this very muscular boy? He can run, jump, anything, faster than anyone. Do I hear $1 how about $1.50."

THIS IS ONE of the descriptions of a new M-club member who was sold as a slave to an active M-club member the M-club made over $100 selling slaves. The highest amount paid for a slave was $10, Scott Warren was the slave and Joe Heikkila was the buyer.

The new members were required to wear "M" made of wood around their neck and many had signs attached to the M. The masters often made the slaves do push-ups in the middle of the halls while the classes changed. Some slaves even had to quack like ducks and waddle down the hall.

THE WORST came during lunch. Here the masters had races against each other with their slaves. Any slave that lost the race had a bad consequence administered by his master.

Some of the stunts the masters made their slaves do were propose to a girl, go up and kiss a girl (which didn't always have the most pleasing result), dance with other slaves, recite kindergarten poems, tell everyone that his master was the greatest and whatever else his master ordered.

After the initiation, the new members wondered if it was worth it, decided it was, then thought of the evil things they would do to the new members next year.

THE PEP CLUB sponsored a Fun Night last Friday night which was enjoyed by everyone who attended. Students were able to swim, play cards, volleyball, badminton, ping pong, dance and eat.

Becky

Students weren't the only ones who enjoyed themselves, many of the teachers who chaperoned go in on the activities. They proved to be very helpful to the losing team in volleyball and water polo.

The refreshments were very much enjoyed by everyone they consisted of the all-school favorite snappy pizza, potato chips and punch. The ice cream machines were also turned on for the students who didn't fill up on pizza.

The Home-Economics III class gave an early Thanksgiving dinner for the office staff last Friday during 4th hour. Jennifer Carrier recited a Thanksgiving poem and then they began to eat. The dinner consisted of a hot pineapple drink, turkey, potatoes and gravy, stuffing, cottage cheese pineapple salad, squash, cranberry sauce, waldorf salad, rolls, relish dish, apple and pumpkin pie, coffee and milk.

International club to sponsor ball games

By MARDI RHODES
Okemos High School

The International Club of Okemos high school is sponsoring a double header basketball game November 21, Friday in the Okemos high school gym.

The first game at 6:30 p.m. stars the Elementary teachers and the administration versus the powerful Okemos Athletic Klub. The second game has the Kinawa middle school faculty pitted against the experienced high school faculty team.

The double header game is second in the series of money raising events sponsored by this group of 12 students planning a 44-day study program for the summer of 1970. The tour includes eight different cities of Europe. The group will study in Oslo, Stockholm, Helsinki, Leningrad, Amsterdam, Copenhagen, Paris and London.

Cost is about $1,000 per person but the group is holding many events to raise money. Sue Byrd, a member of the club explained, "The money will be divided among the students according to the number of hours the individual worked at the event."

The students and their sponsors held a dance last November 14 from 8:30-11:30 featuring the Gobi Desert Expedition and "Flicker Fingers" John Giese.

Their sponsors are Mr. Robert Baker, assistant principal of the high school and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Thomas. Upcoming projects to raise money include bake sales, car washes and a faculty talent show.

Senior activities underway at HHS

By SHIRLEY KOVAC
Haslett High School

The Senior year in high school is usually quite busy and involves a lot of activities in preparation for graduation and the future.

Members of the class of 1970 at Haslett high have begun some of these activities.

The first, and one of the most important and exciting things Seniors do, is exchange pictures with their fellow-graduates. The H.A. Powell Studios of Detroit, were at Haslett high school during the evenings of November 3rd and 4th from 4 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. to photograph the Seniors for their yearbook and graduation exchange pictures.

Seniors received their proofs by mail the following week to decide on which pose(s) they wanted. Then on November 14, representatives from Powell Studios were at the high school again to take the final orders and collect the money for the final go-ahead on the pictures. Seniors will receive their pictures later on this year.

Another activity which involves only Seniors, is trips to various colleges in Michigan to help Seniors decide on the college of their choice.

This week at Leslie

'L'il Abner' musical play set

By JANIS HAYHOE
Leslie High School

All Capp's famous creation, "L'il Abner" is being presented by the Leslie high choir this week, Wednesday through Saturday. Under the direction of Mrs. Donald Crane, the choir members have been having rehearsals for the past month, striving for perfection to make this musical, the eighth consecutive production, the best yet.

The cast is divided into two different groups. Cast II, performing Wednesday and Friday night star Bill Gingas as "L'il Abner", and Nancy McMurtrie as Daisy Mae. Playing the lead Thursday and Saturday nights are Tim Atwood, L'il Abner, and Kathy Campbell, Daisy Mae.

Portraying the other characters important to the musical are Cast I: Mammy Yokum - Mary Hemstreet, Cast II: Bonny Hart; Pappy Yokum - Larry Shaul, Dan Howe; Appassionata Von Climax - Linda Thomas, Jana Wellman; Mayor Dawgmeat - Mike McDonald, Don Robinson; Moonbeam McSwine - Rosemary Mentink, Pat McDonald; and Marryin' Sam will be Harold Borgort.

Many other students make up the entire cast, all contributing to the overall effect and success of the musical. Assisting Mrs. Crane throughout the production is student director Rosemary Mentink.

Janis

Many other students make up the entire cast, all contributing to the overall effect and success of the musical. Assisting Mrs. Crane throughout the production is student director Rosemary Mentink.

Mrs. Golob's art classes have also been busy working on the scenery and have done a very good job. Props included the controversial statue, a small cabin, and the back-drop, which really required a lot of work.

BASKETBALL TRY-OUTS were held and Leslie's varsity and junior varsity teams have been busy practicing and getting ready for their first game, December 2, against Northwest. Coach of the Varsity is Mr. Dick Frohriep, who has been coaching the team for several years.

For his second year, Mr. Stu Thorburn will coach the J.V. team. Both teams are very promising and determined to match the ability of the other Blackhawk teams in the past.

Last Wednesday, the National School Studios came to the Leslie schools to take the individual pictures of the students.

Seniors received their pictures last week and spent the whole day comparing with each other and exclaiming over the oils. There weren't many complaints and most of the Seniors were really pleased.

The Journalism class toured the plant of the "The Jackson Citizen Patriot" last Thursday. They were shown a movie on the importance and responsibility of a newspaper and then they were shown around the plant.

Of the most interest were the printing press and watching it go through the whole process of printing the paper, cutting it into sections, and then combining the sections together and folding them. The students commented that they were fascinated by the whole process and still can't figure out how the machine could do everything at once and so correctly!!

Magazine sales, carried on by the Junior class, have been completed successfully. Their goal, set at $2,000 has been reached and surpassed. The students really went out and sold, with the highest seller, Ted Foster, bringing in over $170. The profits of this project will all go into the planning of the prom. Juniors had a class meeting last week to vote on where they wanted the prom and what activity they would like to offer after the prom.

Rabbit 'Harvey' will cavort on Holt high stage

By GAYLE STEVENSON
Holt High School

The senior class at Holt High promises fun-filled evenings of entertainment November 20, 21 and 22, when the senior class proudly presents the worthwhile play, "Harvey", by Mary Chase.

Beginning at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening, Elwood P. Dowd (Jim Warren) and his friend Harvey (who is really Harvey), will stage their fascinating escapades in Holt's senior high auditorium. The tickets will be $1 on Thursday night and $1.50 on Friday and Saturday night.

All the fun begins when Veta Louise Simmons, really Tam Beardslee in disguise, discovers, much to her displeasure, that her brother Elwood has mysteriously acquired an invisible 6'1 1/2" rabbit. Harvey is not actually a rabbit, but a poodle with magical traits. But I'm giving away secrets.

Elwood unknowingly embarrasses his sister and niece, Myrtle Mae Simmons (Pam Dingwell), by introducing Harvey to all of her "high society" friends. Veta decides to put down her foot and make sure that "Elwood will never disgrace her again" by telling Judge Gaffney (Rod Guber) to commit Elwood to Chumley's Rest Home.

Troubles arise for Veta Simmons, however, when she confides in Dr. Sanderson (Rick Rudolph) the fact that she, too, has seen Harvey. Dr. Sanderson decides Veta should be committed, and with the help of Ruth Kelly (Pam Houghton), his nurse, registers her at Chumley's Rest Home.

Dr. Chumley (Tim Munsell) smooths over the situation, but in the process Elwood and Harvey are free again. Dr. Chumley and his sanitarium guard, Duane Wilson (Richard Kern) go off in search of Elwood, and somewhere along the line, Dr. Chumley talks to Harvey and discovers his magical powers. Because Dr. Chumley is constantly hen-pecked by his wife, Betty (Gayle Stevenson), he sees an advantage in Harvey, and wants him for his own.

Does Dr. Chumley succeed? I won't tell. You'll either have to come to the play or find Harvey and ask him. Believe me, it would be easier to come to the play.

An evening of enjoyment can be yours, when you come to see "Harvey" Thursday, Friday and Saturday night. See you there!

Cheerleaders sponsor special week to earn funds for uniforms

By AMY WEDDON
Stockbridge High Schools

This week the SHS cheerleaders are sponsoring a cheerleading week.

The week will consist of slave auctions of all squads, and the new gym will be in use only to the cheerleading games and activities during noon hour.

Games include happy ball, basketball shooting contests, etc. Admission will be charged for participation of the games. Also during the week the cheerleaders will be selling hotdogs, potato chips, pop, and candy bars at the concession stand, so plan on eating your lunch at the school.

There will be a movie, Bon Voyage with Fred McMurray presented to the community November 18 at 4 p.m. and also at 7:30 p.m. Rates for the movie are 75 cents for Smith Elementary and $1 for adults. SHS students join the fun and help the cheerleaders earn money for new uniforms.

Deer season has opened and many SHS boys would like to quit school for two weeks to go hunting. This year the school will give the boys 3 days off of school hours to go hunting with a parent or relative. But - the students must have an early excuse written and signed by parents, this will be an "avoidable" excused absence.

There was a 4-H Happy Hustlers Horse Meeting 1:30 p.m. November 15 held at the Presbyterian church. The members planned out the year ahead of them. There are 27 members participating in the club this year, many more than last year. 4-H pamphlets were passed out.

There will be an all-league dance at Fowlerville the 21st of November. There will also be a Junior High dance in the new gym November 21 at 7:30 until 10:30 p.m.

AMY

BEHIND SCENES-Members of the Leslie Art class are taking on the task of preparing all scenery back drops for the 'L'il Abner' musical to be presented this week. Working on drops for the scene in Bull Moose's mansion are Paula Robey (on ladder) and Kristi Gignac.

Gov. Milliken and State Attorney General Frank J. Kelley are to be featured speakers at a conference on crime Friday, Nov. 21 at Wayne State University's McGregor Memorial Conference Center.

The theme of the conference is citizen action for the control of delinquency and crime.

Inspired by a newly published booklet which contains 50 action projects for citizens and their organizations, the one-day conference will receive members of the general public and membership representatives from 20 co-sponsoring organizations.

In deciding whether to grant parole, the Board must consider the inmate's record while in prison; including any infractions of prison rules, results of physical and mental examinations, and the extent to which he appears to have responded to the efforts made to improve his social attitudes.

A PAROLE IS MERELY a conditional release from the prison enclosure. The parolee is still in the legal custody of the department of corrections. If he breaks any of the conditions of parole, he may be returned to the prison to serve out the remainder of his sentence. Every paroled prisoner remains free subject to the conditions that: (1) he may not purchase, sell, or possess a weapon without the consent of his parole officer; (2) he may not purchase or drive a vehicle without the consent of his parole officer; (3) he may not associate with anyone having a police record without permission of his parole officer; (4) he may not conduct himself so as to be a hazard to the person or property of others.

Parole is granted to give a man the opportunity to show that he can refrain from committing crime. The strict supervision of a paroled prisoner is designed to help him resume the responsibilities of a normal and useful life, and emerge a rehabilitated man.

Looking back...

By Alida Chapman

Cooperstown, New York, on Lake Otsego, is known for its Major League Baseball Hall of Fame, but it also is famous for other reasons which seem to be forgotten or the younger generation never heard of them.

James Fenimore Cooper, one of America's famous writers, once lived there. One of his many works was "The Last of the Mohicans". Many of his books dealt with the American Indian in the early days.

The town became famous also because of a photographers' shop that two men operated over a span of 104 years. They were Washington G. Smith and a younger man he hired named Arthur J. Telfer who was known as "Putt".

"Putt" carried on the business so well that the two men left more than 60,000 negatives, almost all on glass and the Historical Association through New York State efforts has preserved them.

THE VILLAGE of Cooperstown has always remained a simple place. About one third of it burned down in 1862, but the people who owned cottages on the lake always made themselves a part of the quiet little community.

During this span of photographic work from 1850 to 1954 many styles of dress, hats and beards were taken and the negatives show this.

The beards, which have become popular again today, were classed in many ways. There was a variety of Van Dykes, Imperials, mutton chops, goatees, sideburns, full beards, chin whiskers, and mustaches such as the waxed handlebars, the curled ends, the tea strainers, the parted and neatly trimmed pleasing mustaches. Some were black, some brown, some gray, some salt and pepper and some flowing white.

An old saying is: "Trust no man, not even your brother, if his hair is one color and his beard another."

IN THOSE days the trouser legs were very tight and plain and were held up only by suspenders as belts were unheard of. The coats with lace ruffles around the neck and sleeves were passing on but the long full tail with semi-fitted waist was the style. The coat was lined with satin and the lapels were very wide. Later, only Tuxedos had the satin covered lapels.

Later came the big leg trousers, the bell bottom, the very full hips with pleats in front. Loops were added and belts became the vogue.

Later came the knicker pants with fancy buckles below the knee worn with Argyle socks. These remained in style for sportsmen engaged in playing golf or hockey for many years.

Then came the cuff at the bottom of the pants and the coats took on a plainer and straighter style.

In the middle of the 1800's, most men wore the high hat, known as the stovepipe. Then came the derby and no young man would go anywhere without one.

Later styles became more casual and more comfortable. Either a good cap or a soft felt hat became the style, with varying width of the brims and the depth of the crease in the top.

THE SAME then took place with women's styles. They couldn't be outdone by the men. About this same period women wore fascinators, then very small bonnets, then the poke bonnet, then the feather and bird trimming on hats. Some hats would have several feathers as plumes, whole bird wings or oregot feathers. Finally a law was passed prohibiting the use of birds as trimming. The white egret was made almost extinct in the south and the bird catchers on the Isle of Capri practiced such torture to catch the birds during migration that all bird trimming was outlawed except for the plume which is shed or plucked from the ostrich.

Next came the soft meline, ribbon, flowers and braid with medium size, large size, front tipped up, back tipped up, side tipped up and worn far to the front of the head, tilted to one side or other, hanging on the back, little crowns, high crowns, low crowns, big crowns pulled down over the ears, so tiny it took a couple of long hat pins to hold it on a person's head.

Of course, dresses changed, as did men's clothing. The gathered skirt with a blouse and peplum predominated and many wore the one good dress for years.

Men's black suits also were often worn so long they took on a green hue.

There was the Polonaise, the hooped skirt, the wrapper, the pinafore, the hobble skirt, the mutton leg sleeves, the mask, the middie, the Mother Hubbard, the short waist and the skirt and the fedora.

The fedora was the wasp waistline which was drawn in by a very tightly laced corset at the waist.

Children's styles changed, as recorded by pictures, as well as men's and women's.

Everyone, men, women and children, wore high top shoes. The earlier shoes were all buttoned on the outside of each foot and one had to have a button hook to get his shoes buttoned. When the shoes became old many times the buttons came off. It was difficult to sew another button on so it would stay. Later new shoe buttons were fastened on with metal.

Then came laced shoes which were much nicer and fitted better around the ankles but when the strings broke there was trouble. It was several miles to town and hard to get enough money to buy new laces.

Copper toes were put on little boys' shoes so they would not wear through so quickly.

The best dressed little boys wore the Little Lord Fauntleroy suits with long curls. A mother never cut her boy's hair until he entered school and even long after if it was curly.

No one ever thought of cutting a girl's or a woman's hair. They always repeated the verse from the Bible that a woman's hair is her crowning glory.

When the boy's hair was cut it was usually a Buster Brown cut. People were not as carefree then as they are today.

2 students of month tie

A tie vote resulted in the selection of two students of the month at Dimondale Elementary school this week. The two are fifth grader Jim Kundrat and sixth grader Chris Amend.

According to the principal, Mrs. Ruth Jachalke, each room selects one student. Another student or the teacher presents a write-up about them to the Student Council. The Student Council then selects the Student of the Month.

Letter to the editor

Holt custodian speaks: 'let's do the job right'

I feel it is long past time that I spoke my piece. After being employed in our school system for over eight years and being close to the situation, I feel I am justified in doing so.

First off - seeing that all contracts are finalized for this year, the hiring of an attorney to negotiate for the school board was an awful waste of taxpayers money.

I feel that money wasted could have been put to a much better use for our schools. If I were a betting man I'd bet it would have been nearly enough to pay for a swimming teacher for the pool at junior high.

Maybe before I have finished this letter we could have saved enough to have operated our pool all year.

Let's see now, there is the new gym floor at our senior high school. From what I gather it is to cost in the neighborhood of $21,000 for experts to put it back in shape. Seems a little high to me. I'd bet we have people among our own staff that could do the same job or better for half the price - even paying them time and a half their wage.

***

THAT ISN'T ALL, wait till you read this! Rumor has it that we taxpayers had to pay $11,000 to get seventeen (17) doors installed this past summer. OUCH! It seems to me that our school system needs a floating business agent with an engineer's degree that doesn't have a desk to be tied to.

You know, it would be a wonderful thing if the state could come up with a set of blue prints and specifications and say this is how our schools will be built all over the state.

This, I believe, would save plenty. I may be old fashioned, but, I believe we should educate our young people to the best of our ability instead of building beautiful buildings. I would a whole lot rather have people say Holt and Dimondale have well educated kids than to hear them say - boy, you ought to see the Holt Dimondale Schools, they have got everything.

You know I even mentioned the fact to some people that I believed there was a plan through the Federal government that some buildings could be built underground and used in case of attack or storm shelters and the government would pick up the biggest share of the cost of building these buildings. Do you know the answer I got? "How would I be able to take my visiting friends around town to show them our beautiful schools?"

While we are on the subject of education: do you know what our teachers will get in their new package not including fringe benefits? The lowest one on the totem will receive $37.83 plus and the highest one on the same pole will receive $65.94 plus per day. Oh, I know teachers will say, "Ours is a profession," and I agree whole heartedly, but let me say this, I believe if a person loves his work and wants to do their best at it no matter what it is, it becomes their profession. I also believe that I, as a taxpayer, should not be called upon to pay for sending each and every teacher back to college to get more degrees so they can make more salary.

This thing could become a vicious circle eventually. I do believe that a day's work is worth a day's pay whether it be 185 days for teachers or 260 days for custodians. I believe even more that if the job isn't done and done well, someone responsible should hit the street looking for a new profession.

Some say they never took a course in supervision of kids and I believe it. If you could see some of the places of these persons responsibilities you would agree. I feel it is everyone's responsibility in any given building and in any job to see that things run as smooth and efficiently as possible.

***

I ALSO BELIEVE that if students are in a building for three, six or eight hours, it is everyone's job to see that there is supervision and orderliness taking place. I do not believe that teachers only teach while they are in the classroom. Teachers teach wherever they are. In fact I don't believe a teacher can and should be called a teacher until students are learning not only math, English, science and all the others, but reading, spelling, citizenship. By the way, whatever happened to these last three subjects? Don't our schools teach them anymore?

Getting back to supervision: it really fries me when people are paid according to title rather than work produced. Did you know that we have in our school system people with anywhere from six to twelve years of faithful service and trying to do their best for us get their hopes dashed. Yes, they are our kitchen and food service personnel.

This again is what I call the name of the game. If you are a cook or cooks helper or what have you, you make this much money. If you are a supervisor of students you make more.

Now really, which is the more important job, seeing that kids get a good and well-balanced meal or being supervised. Oh, I can hear it now, someone is saying, "What's this guy trying to do organize the cooks?" I say not, but I will say this is the very thing that causes organization against the establishment.

It's laughable now, but this is what caused the custodians to organize. One year when we were foolish and ignorant of everything we were told there was no money in the budget for an increase in salary but if we wanted to work nine hours instead of eight they would pay us the extra hour.

Let that be as it may that was a few years back. But, let me say the day of keep them divided and rule with an iron hand is over. When contracts are opened again sit down and hash things out, discuss and cuss if you wish, but give and take is the answer to any negotiations. It can't be all one-sided.

Well, I've said my piece and I feel better and I think we all could if we would do a much better job.

From what I gather through my grapevine we are loosing some more millage in the very near future which means our next millage vote will have to be increased even more.

I'd sure like to see my grapevine proven wrong but, if it can't be let's do the next best thing. Let's look into some of these things I've discussed, tighten our belts, stop buying frills and vote said millage in. If not our next year's budget could be an "awe" austerity budget.

What do you say we educate our kids and not worry what other school systems are doing. Let's help our kids know who they are, where they are going and what they are going to do when they get there.

From tragedy of death some good may emerge

Editor:

My wife's mother sent newspaper clippings about the death of Dr. Leroy Augenstein, and commented, "Makes you wonder why does this happen to people who seemingly can do so much good in the world?"

I don't know.

But now the question is: What should we do to try to bring some good out of this sadness?

***

DR. AUGENSTEIN was telling us that present and future scientific advances have given us some hard choices to make. He said that doing nothing was also a way of deciding—often a disastrous way. He told us the situation, and asked us what kinds of decision-making procedures should be set up.

He showed us the problems, and asked what basic values we used in solving them. So his challenge is to the centers of our lives.

I felt comfortable knowing Dr. Augenstein was around to keep some of the important issues alive. But now we don't have him to challenge, charm, and persuade us to face the hard questions. We'll have to face them on our own initiative.

***

WE CAN'T LEAVE all the tough decisions to a few men, not even men like Dr. Augenstein. He knew it, and invited our help, in hundreds of talks and in a book, Come, Let Us Play God. Maybe we honor his memory best by developing a humble boldness in picking up the questions he left us.

This way we can bring some good out of evil. But we'll still miss him.

Sincerely,
DAN ELLSWORTH

'If it Fitz ...'

...and he doesn't dig cats, either

By Jim Fitzgerald

Let's start this sad story with a question: Am I the only hard-hearted Scrooge who hates to have a cat jump on his face, especially when he's sleeping which is often because I'm mighty tired of the way things have been going around my house?

Several years ago I wrote that cats were stupid animals, with about as much real usefulness as the Prince of Wales.

This was after some dumb broad asked Ann Landers if it would be ok if her cat were her bridesmaid (Ann said yes, if the wedding were held in a kennel which it probably was. The world knows no foolishness to match that which fills the pet cemeteries with weeping and flowers every Memorial Day).

***

ANYWAY, I also wrote with glee about my childhood when I used to drop cats off roofs. This was not cruelty, it was scientific research.

I dropped them 10 times each to test the 9-lives theory. Actually, I never hurt a cat, a fact due less to my humanity than to the neighborhood architecture.

Ours was a ranch-style block and a full grown cat could jump over the highest roof.

Please note, dear cat-lovers, that I wrote these terrible things many years ago when I was young and brave and single. And I was immediately attacked by hordes of Little Old Ladies. They collected cat hairs from their furniture and braided them into a cross which they burned in my front yard.

Ever since, I have been very respectful of cats and their owners. I even observe National Cat Week, drinking my booze from a saucer. I pray that nothing written here today will be misunderstood. I want no more trouble with old ladies, especially relatives. Cats are fine.

Except the stupid things keep jumping in my face.

***

STEADY READERS (Mother and Aunt Madeline) are probably wondering how a cat ever came to live in our house. Well, in the first place, it is not a cat. It is 2 cats.

Honest. In a weak moment, I promised the 2 youngest kids a pet to make up for the loss of our expected child. I decided a cat would be less trouble than a dog.

And my brilliant wife decided the 2 kids might fight over ownership of 1 cat, so let's get one for each of them. (This worked great. Now Eddie wallops Chrissie "because your cat scratched my cat").

So now the house smells like a barnyard. So now the new furniture might as well be old furniture because it's covered with blankets so the cats can't tear it up. So now I have to look carefully before I sit or step.

And now, worst of all, I must argue with my wife over whether it is cute for 2 cats to leap into the face of a hard-working breadwinner who likes to snooze while watching TV.

North Pole memo:

Wind-chill index tells real story

Many snowmobilers often are confused about judging how warmly they should dress for the weather.

According to the latest in cold weather science, what you wear should be determined not only by the actual temperature but by the effective temperature, which takes into consideration the wind-chill caused by wind and snowmobile speeds.

For example, if the reported temperature is zero and there is a 10-mph wind, the result is equivalent to minus 21 degrees. Here's a more extreme example: When the actual temperature is minus 10 degrees and there is a 25-mph wind, the wind-chill temperature is a frosty minus 59 degrees!

Such temperatures make it imperative that snowmobilers dress in the latest winter outdoor apparel, says Marvin Walker, president of Ski-Doo Sports, Ltd., world's pioneer and leading manufacturer of such clothing.

Ski-Doo Sports has developed a wind-chill chart that is available at its dealers. The chart is printed right for your convenience:

How to use a snowmobile books available in area

New editions of popular snowmobile safety and racing books now are available free at snowmobile dealers in Ingham County.

The safety book, "Play Safe With Snowmobiles For More Winter Fun," has been revised by Bombardier, Ltd., in cooperation with the National Safety Council and the Canadian Safety Council. The revised edition incorporates new knowledge gained through a thorough study of snowmobile accident data and statistics.

"SNOWMOBILE fatalities and injuries are among the lowest recorded for any motorized recreational pursuit," points out the Ski-Doo snowmobile dealer.

"We believe the forward looking safety programs of the National Safety Council and the Canadian Safety Council have helped bring about this good safety record. Bombardier has worked closely on snowmobile safety with these two fine organizations."

THE RACING BOOK, "The Snowmobile Racing Primer: From Ski-Doo, A Guide For The Instant Expert," is a colorful, humorous, and informative guide to snowmobile racing. The book explains the "ins and outs" of snowmobile racing and suggests what to wear, where to be, what to say, and who to look for on the circuit. It's the book for anyone who wants to run with the "in" crowd during the snowmobile racing season.

Agriculture in Action

by M.L. Woell
Michigan Farm Bureau

Rubbish. The State Department of Health and Governor Milliken are doing something about it in a series of conferences on solid waste management.

Both will work to plug the government-public information gap on what is being done about the refuse which threatens to ruin the natural beauty of Michigan.

Take garbage for instance, which is enough of a pollutant nuisance by itself. City dumps blot the countryside. But for those who care, the future looks bright. Yes, garbage dumps could be on the brink of a revolutionary explosion!

"THERE'S OIL in them thar dumps," reports The Wall Street Journal. That's right, oil can be processed from garbage and be disposed of effectively and efficiently. The oil's commercial value has not been reported.

Beginning with authentic garbage and waste paper direct from a shredder, government scientists at the Bureau of Mines' coal research center in Pittsburgh placed the wet chopped mixture "in an air tight chamber and treated it with carbon monoxide and steam at about 700 degrees for 20 minutes."

The result was a black, petroleum-like fluid, which was oil! If the idea proves feasible garbage could be destroyed by the ton. It was figured one ton of this rat food, from the rubbish centers of the world, could be reduced to a little over one barrel of oil.

EVEN BETTER, the process converts about 90 per cent of the waste material to liquid form and thus holds out the promise of greatly reducing pollution and disposal costs at city dump sites, the researchers claim.

The unknown factor is whether or not the new process will be available for municipal and rural use. But of course this answer is still in the guessing stage. However a salute should be given to all researchers and citizens who work with a purpose, and a positive approach, to cure the ills that have plagued mankind since Eve, innocently enough, threw away that first apple core.

Who knows...if the stuff proves to be valuable oil, other problems may be solved, like maybe the people who litter our lands will keep their garbage ta-home.

Wanted: Twin queens

Farm insurance group searching for a pair to ride on float

"Farmers Insurance Group is seeking four sets of twins, age 18 through 21, to ride our float in the 1970 Tournament of Roses parade," announces Robert E. Early, president.

Twins may be brothers, sisters, or a sister and brother.

WINNERS OF THE CONTEST will receive an all-expense-paid trip to Pasadena, Calif., to ride in the four boats on the company's "A Holiday in the Park" Tournament of Roses float, attend the Rose Bowl football game, plus sightseeing tours of southern California. Winners will share these activities with the float queen and her attendant, also selected in a national contest.

The float, which depicts people enjoying a holiday outing in a park, is done in the "Art Nouveau" style popular at the turn of the century. It contains an island in a park lagoon centered by a band playing on a bandstand whose canopy is reminiscent of the shape and stained glass effect of a Tiffany lampshade. Couples, dressed in the costumes of the period, listen to the band as they go boating in the lagoon. The bed of the float will be covered with roses, while the boats are surrounded by water made of swirls of white mums.

TWINS WISHING to enter the contest should write for entry blanks and contest rules to Twin Contest Coordinator, Farmers Insurance Group, 4680 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90054. Completed entry forms must be postmarked no later than November 30, 1969.

DDT can be replaced

DDT as a pesticide has been largely replaced by organophosphate compounds, said Dr. Alvin Lewis, a Michigan State University pathologist.

Organophosphates are used in "no-pest strips" that kill insects on contact. These compounds lose their toxicity relatively rapidly as compared to DDT.

"Although DDT is an effective insecticide," Dr. Lewis said, "it does not decompose readily but accumulates in water, fish, and various species of wildlife. Organophosphates, on the other hand, decompose quickly leaving only harmless residues."

"But organophosphates can be harmful when misused. Commercial preparations are available for domestic gardening and despite clear warning on the labels, these provide hazards to children and city gardeners as well as to farm workers."

"Organophosphates may be absorbed into the body by ingestion, inhalation, or absorption through the skin. Headache, cough, dizziness, cramps and nausea are among symptoms indicative of inhalation. Toxic or even fatal amounts may be absorbed in less than 15 minutes from a few ounces spilled on one arm."

The Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service has begun a program for instruction for the safe use of organophosphates in agriculture. Voluntary blood tests for farm workers are a part of the new health program.

New system saves time, money in teaching soils

They're learning more now and it's costing us less. New teaching techniques are the secret of success in an economical educational system recently developed by Dr. Henry D. Foth, Michigan State University soil scientist.

Dr. Foth explained his new method of education to about 3,000 professors and scientists here at a meeting of the American Society of Agronomy.

Implemented and perfected over a four-year period in a soil science course at MSU, Dr. Foth feels his current blend of lecture periods and an audiovisual tutorial learning center provides a better learning experience for students at the same, or often less, cost than the traditional system of lectures and laboratory periods.

DR. FOTH'S TEACHING system consists of a study center where students come at their own convenience to listen to tape recordings covering material required by the course and a reduced number of lectures. The tapes are coordinated with slide projectors, thus allowing the students to see pictures of field conditions, soil samples, models of chemical structures, and other things which would be difficult to convey without visual aids.

Each student has a private booth with earphones. This setup allows for review of difficult sections in the tape without disturbing other students.

The study center also has a central area where equipment and materials are provided so that the students can conduct, on their own, basic experiments and investigations in conjunction with the subject matter of the tapes.

THE SAVINGS in the system comes from fewer hours spent in instruction on the part of the primary instructor, and from the fact that the students can cover more material, in greater depth, and in the same period of time that the old system of lectures and lab periods required.

Also, the new method provides certain advantages not found in the original program.

"According to student opinion," Dr. Foth said, "the new program results in greater efficiency in the use of their time and greater opportunity for student-faculty interaction."

In explaining the success of his innovations, Dr. Foth said, "The emphasis has moved from teaching—something that professors do—to learning—something that students do."

Farm milk price hits record

Southern Michigan dairy farmer members of the Michigan Milk Producers Association received the highest average price in the 53-year history of the association for milk produced and sold to dairies in October.

According to figures released this week by MMPA and the office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's market administrator for Southern Michigan, the average price of 3.5 per cent butterfat milk delivered to Detroit area dairies was $6.04 per hundredweight.

THE $6.04 PRICE is based on the negotiated price of $6.62 per cwt. on all Class I (bottling) milk, and lesser prices paid for milk used for other purposes (cottage cheese and various manufactured products), in accordance with federal milk marketing orders for the Southern Michigan area.

Also, an extra eight cents is added to the price of all milk delivered directly to Detroit area dairies.

Farmers in various parts of the state receive slightly different prices, depending on where their milk is marketed.

THE RECORD price was a combination of several factors—primarily a higher percentage of milk used for bottling purposes and the MMPA-negotiated price increased which went into effect last Aug. 1.

MMPA is a marketing cooperative with more than 6,800 members throughout the state.

Over 170 delegates and their adult advisors from 36 individual organizations, representing over 7,000 young Hereford breeders throughout the nation, attended the fifth annual American Junior Hereford Association Convention and Business Meeting held in Kansas City, in Kansas City representing the Michigan Junior Hereford Association, from left, were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mulliken, adult advisors; Mona Shaft, Holt, secretary; Gary Bacon, Mulliken, president; and Jerry Genei, Howell, adult advisor. # Snowmobiles booming new sport

Ten years ago one model, today 15 models in five series in one year.

That's what has happened to snowmobiles from the winter of 1959-60, when Bombardier, Ltd., launched the one-and two-passenger snowmobile industry with a single Ski-Doo model, to this winter when snow-lovers have a wider selection of 1970 Ski-Doo snowmobiles than they have for some makes of automobiles.

The 15 models in five Ski-Doo snowmobile series, comprising Bombardier's "personality line" of snowmobiles for 1970, feature the latest in design innovations. They are on display at Robinson's Mower and Engine Service, 2160 Hamilton road, Okemos.

"THIS 1970 SNOWMOBILE line of 15 models is not just one chassis style with a bunch of engine options," commented the dealer.

"The line includes distinctive designs, with varying air-scoop cowl stylings and different use of yellow and black two-toning, plus different track widths, wide choice of Rotax engine horsepower, and special features in the five series. There's something for everyone."

Included for 1970 are the Ski-Doo 12/3, Olympique, Nordic, TNT, and Invader snowmobiles, with the 12/3 at 300cc horsepower the lowest priced full-sized machine in the industry. This economical, high-spirited snowmobile is perfect for the snowmobiling newcomer, as a second or third family machine, or for the smart buyer who simply wants fun while saving money.

The Invader is a "go anywhere, do anything" series with three powerful twin-track models, including a powerful new unit that is ideal for mountain and power snow or other locales for hunting, fishing, or just plain family fun trips. This sporty new Invader model includes tachometer, electric start, reverse, cigarette lighter—everything but air conditioning.

The Olympique series for 1970 continues to feature the 15-inch track width that makes it great for the fun crowd. The most popular snowmobile series in the world, the Olympique grew up with the sport and, with new cowl design, new drum brakes, thicker foam seat, and other new features for '70, still outsells them all.

BUT LAST YEAR the Olympiques got some strong competition from a new Ski-Doo snowmobile series, the Nordic, an 18-inch-track machine which caught the fancy of enthusiasts looking for that "something extra" in a more luxurious snowmobile. The 1970 Nordics boast distinctive air-scoop cowls, new two-tone combination, more powerful Rotax engines. And in the Nordic series Bombardier has introduced an industry "first," a cowl that is the largest single polycarbonate part ever produced by injection molding in North America.

The 1970 Ski-Doo TNT series for racing enthusiasts includes four high performance stock machines which can be modified for even higher performance. Either bogey wheel or exclusive new double-action slide suspension (patent pending) is available as standard equipment.

Bombardier's production for 1970 boasts new safety and convenience features, including exclusive drum brakes, greater frame strength and ski rigidity, windshields which bend on impact but not at high speeds, reflectorized side nameplates, snap-on cowls for easy engine access (Nordics again have quick-tilt-up cowls), and thicker seats.

The fun machine

Snowmobiles only 10 years old, already have sold a million

The snowmobile, that little fun machine seen scooting across the snow like a jack rabbit throughout the North American snowbelt, has created a winter recreational revolution.

The winter snowmobile sales are expected to surpass the 350,000 mark and that, in turn, would mean more than 1 million snowmobiles now in use.

Yet it's only 10 years since Bombardier, Ltd., started the snowmobile industry with its Ski-Doo snowmobiles in 1959-60!

Snowmobiles are generally considered family fun machines. Some people like to race them. Others like to use them for hunting and fishing.

But for the most part, snowmobiles are sold to families who like to go on safaris, campouts (yes, campouts even in winter), or just for a fun ride.

SOME OF THE FIRST USES of one-and two-passenger snowmobiles actually weren't for any of these purposes, though, according to the folks at Bombardier where it all began. Ministers, trappers, postmen, law enforcement officers, and others used Ski-Doo snowmobiles to perform their jobs in the heavy snow areas of Canada and the U.S. in the early days of the snowmobile.

And today, many snowmobiles still are being used by individuals, companies, and government agencies for work. Utility companies use them to check their lines and to reach lines in need of repair following winter storms.

Paper companies check their forest lands during high snows. Before the snowmobile, these lands were often impossible to reach in winter and damaged trees had to wait until the snow disappeared to get first aid, when it often was too late.

John Law finds snowmobiles good emergency transportation in busy expressway areas during heavy snows. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police today use snowmobiles instead of dog sleds in winter snow. And the first motorized overland expedition to reach the North Pole, in April, 1968, accomplished the feat on Ski-Doo snowmobiles.

BECAUSE OF THIS HEAVY dependence on snowmobiles for work, Bombardier today makes a model, the Ski-Doo Alpine, especially for commercial use. It has two 15-inch tracks and can go anywhere on snow, including mountain areas and in powder snow conditions. But other models, including Ski-Doo Olympique snowmobiles with single 15-inch track or Nordic snowmobiles with 18-inch track, also are used in some applications.

Bright, warm styles must for this sport

Snowmobiling, North America's fastest growing winter sport, has spawned not only a new recreational craze but new outdoor and indoor sportswear that brings stylishly-bright fashions into dull winter.

The pioneer and leading manufacturer of this revolution against drab winter clothing is Ski-Doo Sports, Ltd., an affiliate of Bombardier, Ltd., the company which invented the snowmobile and the snowmobile industry.

THE FACT IS THAT, while the apparel was developed for snowmobiling, you don't have to be a snowmobiler to find uses for the new styles. The 1970 Ski-Doo Sports line has apparel that's also great for general winter tasks such as snow-shoveling or car emergencies and there are items appealing to skiers, sledgers, and those who want to just sit by the fire and relax out of the snow.

Red, hot, ready to go-That's Rupp

Rupp! The red hot snowmobile for '70! Rupp builds experimental machines. Like the Super Sno-Sport. Rupp races too. Why? Because Rupp believes racing is research. A way to prove engineering and design—under the roughest possible conditions.

Take the Rupp Super Sno-Sport, for instance. A mean snow melting machine designed for "C" note speeds. This 525 HP thundering dragster tortures many prototype and standard production line parts. Like the Rupp pioneered aircraft aluminum chassis. The skis. The springs. The drive track. The now proven trailing bogey wheel suspension system.

According to Mick Rupp—the "Boss" at Rupp Manufacturing—"The automotive industry found years ago that racing can improve your product. This is exactly what we are doing. We take the smarts from racing and critical high performance tests—then apply this knowledge to the improvement of regular production Rupp Snowmobiles."

Not all Ruppys are raced, of course. But the Rupp you ride is raceworthy. From its red wedge nose to the fast back racing seat. And including all the serious action inside.

Hey! Let's say it like it is. If you're the kind of a guy that wants the excitement of riding a snowmobile—you don't want a machine designed like a sedan or station wagon. You want a Red! Hot! Rupp!

Rupp action is red-hot and ready for competition. Rupp styling is red-hot and competition clean.

You can see a Rupp for 1970 at the Holt Marina, 2022 N. Cedar street, Holt.

Snow races joins U.S. sports thrills

Whether it's boats, airplanes or high speed cars, the thrill of a race holds a special fascination for Americans. For some, it's the ultimate test of man and machine; for others, it symbolizes the American spirit of competition, the desire to be first and to be the best!

It seems only natural that this competitive spirit has become a part of the snowmobile world. More than 40 rallies and races have been held in just one year. Races were also incorporated into winter carnivals in Minnesota, New York, Colorado and Wyoming.

THESE EVENTS did more than decide who was the best driver or who had the fastest machine. Through local and national publicity, they helped to tell thousands of people about a completely new winter sport.

The most grueling rally event is the marathon. Some courses were over 30 miles long and covered terrain that spelled havoc for driver and vehicle. A shortened form of the marathon is the closed course event. Driving lanes are laid out through rolling hills and wooded areas with as many twists and turns as possible. The length usually varies from one to two miles.

The slalom race, patterned after snow skiing, tests both speed and driving skill. Contestants enter the course through a "gate" and must successfully navigate a series of flags in a race against the clock. If the driver misses a flag or knocks one down, he's penalized by adding five or ten seconds to his final time.

The sprint race is conducted on a standard quarter or one half mile straight-away track. An oval track can also be used for speed races.

What makes a snowmobile rally a success? You'll hear many answers to this question, but there's one that stands out above all others. The successful rally is one that fosters honest competition among drivers. It's a rally that makes sure every entrant has an equal chance to step into the winner's circle.

One of the first steps toward fostering fair competition is classifying vehicles according to horsepower. Power plants range from 6 to 20 horsepower, and it's obvious larger units would be an unfair advantage. Five classes are usually set up—8 hp and under; 8.5 to 10 hp; 12 and over; and the open class. This final category is designed for modified snowmobiles with "souped up" or supercharged engines.

A challenging course is a great equalizer. This is particularly true in marathon and closed course events where twists, turns and steep hills demand more skill than speed.

A SUCCESSFUL rally is also one that is safe for competitors and spectators. Trails that cut through wooded areas should be wide enough for several vehicles to pass safely. Snow fences can be erected to keep spectators off the track, and guards can also be stationed along the route. Finally, courses should never double back or criss-cross over the original trail.

Almost any group or organization can sponsor a rally. Snowmobile dealers have staged them to create interest in this new winter sport. Service clubs soon found that besides building up the treasury, it's a great way to treat spectators and participants to an afternoon of fun. Several Chambers of Commerce have also backed rallies to increase the winter tourist business in their communities. Snowmobile clubs are also frequent sponsors.

Whatever the reason for staging a rally, experience has taught that planning and manpower are two important elements of success. In communities where rallies have become annual events, planning is a 12-month job. Each year new attractions are added and old ones improved.

The Great South Window

Bit of old Methodist church in new one

By NOEL HARSHMAN
News Staff Writer

Multi-colored rays of light criss-cross the sanctuary of the new Holt Methodist Church from its great south window and the bejeweled panes on the east and west walls.

The great south window is of Belgium glass, originally installed in the old building in 1891. Twelve windows in the new building were made from 13 old windows plus some additional glass.

The triangle at the top of the window was redesigned from the Gothic arch which was the south window in the old building. In this is the laurel's wreath, symbolic of the Victor's crown. At the peak of the triangle is the Medalion, the open Bible. Other medallions are the cross and crown, and the symbol of one of the church's first youth groups, the Epworth League.

Edging the whole window is purple trim glass purchased from a 90 year old retired art glass craftsman in Toledo, Ohio.

***

ACCORDING TO Vernon King of Charlotte, who is redesigning and installing the window, all stained glass was imported to the United States before 1930. In that year, the first stained glass window factory opened in Kokomo, Ind., and manufactured marbles. They later made windows for churches.

King and his father have their own art glass business and according to the Rev. Philip R. Grottel Jr., pastor the Holt church, have done church windows for him the past 15 years.

The donors of the project are giving it as a memorial to their grandparents and parents. The grandparents were among the first 41 members of the first frame church in 1868. The parents were members in 1891 when there were 170 members, 34 of whom were charter members.

BEJEWELED WINDOWS made of faceted chunks of glass bonded in a poxy resin cement adorn the east and west walls. Twelve are symbolic of the Apostles.

The other 12 include the new Methodist symbol of the cross and flame of the Holy Spirit, a fish symbolizing "fishers of men", the world, the dove of the Holy Spirit, the ten commandments, the Boy Scout emblem with a Silver Beaver at the top. The latter window is a memorial to Floyd Lott, a former Holt Boy Scout Leader.

Many other gifts have been donated to complete the building and furnishing of the church. These include: brick and masonry for the interior, a red oak cross for the organ screen, steel vault door for records room, flood lights for the spire, a floral refrigerator, furnishings for the crib room, money towards a new pipe organ and 47 cushioned pews, electric water cooler, coat racks, display case for the vestibule, an illumination bulletin board, a light post and mercury lamp for the driveway, a lavatory cabinet for the nursery, formica cabinet and worktable, motorized rheostat for sanctuary lights, an amplifier. These gifts total approximately $34,000 according to Rev. Grottel. He said that the church congregational plans to be in its new sanctuary for Christmas.

Mason scientists will give thanks

A Thanksgiving day service, including a period for expressions of gratitude by members of the congregation, will be held at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, on Thursday, Nov. 27.

The public is welcome to attend the hour-long service which starts at 10:00 a.m. in the church at Oak and Barnes streets in Mason.

The soloist, Jeanne Palmer, will sing "Bring Ye All of the Tithes" by McDermitt, accompanied on the organ by Thomas Bishop.

The First Reader, Vi Schairer, conducts the services, and reads passages from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy. Bible selections are read by the Second Reader, Marie Adams.

Four sections of short passages in the Lesson-Sermon develop the theme of the Golden Text from First Thessalonians: "Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

Health council backs cigaret tax increase, pooh-poohs smuggling

"Tobacco," said Napoleon, "tobacco, of all commodities, the one most capable of taxation."

But, despite Napoleon, the United States, particularly the State of Michigan and some of our tobacco growing states, has gone in a different direction. No other advanced country taxes tobacco as lightly as the United States, and Michigan taxes cigarettes much more lightly than most other advanced states that do not have a tobacco crop.

Most states obtain a much higher proportion of tax revenue through a cigarette tax than does the State of Michigan. This would indicate that the cigarette industry has been very successful in Washington and in Michigan in keeping cigarette and tobacco taxes down.

***

JOHN A. DOHERTY, East Lansing, executive director of the Michigan Health Council and secretary of the Michigan Council on Smoking and Health, who recommended in August that cigarette taxes be doubled from 7 cents to 14 cents, urges Michigan senators and representatives to support Governor William Milliken's recommendation that cigarette taxes be raised 5 cents to 12 cents per package.

Doherty states, "Michigan hasn't raised its cigarette taxes since 1957 and should have taken such steps in January 1964 when the Surgeon General's report came out on smoking and its relationship to health and disease. The tobacco vendors scared some state officials and members of the Legislature with the threat that smugglers would bootleg cigarettes into Michigan. They packed the galleries at legislative hearings and were successful in their efforts. Michigan could have raised well over $100,000,000 had tobacco taxes been raised in 1964. This money could have helped tremendously in educating Michigan youngsters, and could have helped educate more doctors, nurses and allied health personnel that are desperately needed in every section of Michigan."

Although Senator Harry DeMaso (R-Battle Creek), reported that he found the representatives of the tobacco industry and the police officers of New York City gloomy about the bootlegging of cigarettes in New York City, the Michigan Health Council, in talking to New York State health and educational leaders, has found them very happy about the progress made in raising more money for education, health and other services by increasing cigarette taxes. The income from cigarette taxes was only $84,717,000 in 1957 when cigarette taxes were increased from 3 to 5 cents.

It increased to $157,922,000 in 1965 and to $233,157,000 for the year ending June 30, 1968 and, for the 1968 calendar year, was $251,472,000. This compares to $80,721,000 for Michigan during the calendar of 1968. In June, New York State collected $22,118,580; in July, $23,579,758; and in August, $21,697,241. It is expected that New York State will raise approximately $275,000,000 for the calendar year of 1969.

THE MICHIGAN Health Council has learned that, in addition, New York City has a 4-cent cigarette tax. This has resulted in men and women living outside New York City but working inside New York City buying cigarettes in their home towns and buying an extra package or carton for co-workers who live in New York City.

There also has been an increase in underworld bootlegging of cigarettes from outside New York State, particularly into New York City; however, the Michigan Health Council sources stated that there also has been an increase in bootlegging of marijuana and other additives.

None of the Michigan cities has adopted a city cigarette tax, so there is not the problem that Detroit might have if they had a 4-cent city tax and workers from Dearborn, Grosse Pointe, Birmingham and other nearby towns were buying their cigarettes at home and bringing extra cigarettes to their friends and co-workers in Detroit.

Doherty also complimented Colonel Fredrick Davids, Director of the Michigan State Police, who expressed confidence that with a slight increase in his enforcement staff the Michigan State Police could control the bootlegging of cigarettes into Michigan.

There are 34 states that have a higher cigarette tax rate than Michigan, ranging up to Florida's 15 cents and Connecticut's 16 cents. New Jersey tax is 14 cents, Pennsylvania, 13, and New York State 12 cents plus 4 cents city tax in New York City. All of these states have a lower consumption per person than Michigan which would indicate that some people do tend to quit or cut down on smoking when they have to pay more cigarette taxes.

Thumbs down!

State urges hand safety, special guards on the job

If your hands could think for themselves they would turn "thumbs down" on many of the assignments you give them each day on the job.

The bureau of safety and regulation, Michigan Department of Labor, points out that over 20 persons suffer compensable hand injuries on the job each day in the state and that a quick show of hands of working people would reveal hundreds of additional minor cuts and abrasions.

***

IT IS ESTIMATED that as high as 80 per cent of the hand injuries are caused by "pinch points," where fingers or hands are pinched in or between objects. However, most of these types of accidents can be avoided if safety precautions are taken, the Bureau says.

Specialists in the Safety Education and Training Division advise that approved work gloves should be worn when handling materials and in other operations where the hands are directly involved with the job. In addition, sharp edges, splinters and protruding nails should be removed from objects before handling them.

GUARDS AND SPECIAL hand tools designed for use by machine operators are provided by most employers and should be used, the Bureau states.

Other occasions for pinch point accidents are formed when attempts are made to move large objects through narrow doorways and while setting down heavy loads which are carried by hand.

MSU wind ensemble will perform Nov. 22

Michigan State University's Wind Ensemble, directed by Dr. Harry Began, will present its first concert of the season at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 22, in the Okemos Fine Arts Center auditorium.

MSU's 50-piece Wind Ensemble was formed in May of 1968.

A feature of the page will be "Symphony No. 3" by Vittorio Giannini. Giannini, a 20th century composer, is noted for his typically Italian flow of melody, although, says Dr. Began, "his music includes some contemporary devices-harmonic and rhythmic."

Other highlights will be "Berceuse and Finale" from Stravinsky's "Firebird Suite," and the overture to the Rossini opera, "Semiramide."

"The Rossini Overture," said Dr. Began, "is well suited to a wind group and displays the technical ability of the musicians."

***

OTHER WORKS include a symphonic adaptation of "Yankee Doodle" by Morton Gould, one of the top contemporary band composers, and "Stars and Bars," a concert march by Robert Jager, a graduate student in composition at the University of Michigan.

The Fine Arts center, part of Okemos high school, is located on Okemos road, between Mt. Hope and the I-96 freeway.

The concert is open to the public without charge.

A symphonic and concert band concert originally planned for Sunday afternoon has been cancelled due to a schedule change.
