

[Seven-year-old DeWitt Boy], 1864-1871,
Lansing Republican, March 16 1871, p. 3

ACCIDENT.—A boy about seven years of age, in the village of DeWitt, was found drowned a few days ago. The accident is supposed to have occurred by the boy stepping, in the dark, into a hole in a bridge over a ditch,—the hole having been caused by high water carrying off some of the plank. As the boy left home to stay all night with his grandparents, he was not missed till the following day.

Bacon, J.H., 1871 Lansing Republican,
March 16 1871, p. 3

DEATH OF DR. BACON.—Dr. J. H. Bacon for several years past a resident of this city and a physician and surgeon of recognized ability, died quite suddenly on Monday having been ill only three or four days from an affection of the brain. For many years he was a leading physician at De Witt, and during the war was Assistant Surgeon of the 14th Michigan Cavalry and afterwards Surgeon of the 16th Michigan Infantry. He was also in charge for a time of a Government hospital at Manilla, Georgia. He was very generally esteemed, and his death is regretted by all.

Self-Destruction.

Mr. E. L. W. Baker, formerly a compositor in the office of the REPUBLICAN, ended his life at Ovid, Sept. 24th, by taking laudanum in his room at the Northern Hotel. Differences with his wife are assigned as the cause of the deed. Mr. Baker had however been subject to fits, which disordered his mind and made him unhappy generally.

He left Lansing in 1869; went to Mt. Pleasant, Isabella County, as one of the publishers of the Enterprise; and after some time removed to Laingsburg, Shiawassee County, and started the Recorder which he sold a few weeks ago. The charge that he was intemperate we believe to be unfounded, at least while he resided in Lansing.

Mr. Baker left some property, giving his wife $180 the day of his death. He also wrote a letter to his mother in this city, describing his domestic griefs.

He was about 28 years of age, of kindly disposition, and possessed talents that under favorable surroundings might have won him success. Peace to his memory.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—Last Wednesday Henry Barr of Alabedon was killed while loading saw-logs near his home. His wife looking out observed an unusual stillness, and going out to see if there was any trouble, found her husband dead with a saw-log some two feet in diameter lying upon his breast, which had rolled back and crushed him while he was attempting to place it on the sled. He was a young man of about 30, and leaves a wife and two children. He was buried at Bunker Hill last Saturday by the Okemos Masonic Lodge, No. 252, of which he was a member.

Drowned.

Mrs. Helen Benton, a young lady fifteen or sixteen years of age, was drowned last Thursday, near Watertown, by the falling of a bridge across Looking Glass river. The bridge had long been regarded as unsafe, but was daily crossed by heavily loaded teams. Mr. William Patterson, a brother-in-law of the young lady and a resident of Watertown, had loaded a threshing machine upon a wagon and started with his family, consisting of his wife, three children, and the deceased, for the purpose of aiding his neighbor and at the same time making a friendly visit. While crossing this bridge the main bolt that held it in place broke, letting bridge and team into the water, the wagon-box turning bottom side up. One of the boys saved himself by jumping out before the bridge fell. Mr. Patterson, being an active energetic man, by great exertion succeeded in righting the box and loading into it his wife, two of the children, and Miss Benton. The party getting too much upon one side of the box, it again turned over, precipitating all of them into the water. Mr. Patterson again righted the box, got his wife and two children into it, and sent it ashore, immediately swimming back to the spot where the young lady went down and diving in about eight feet of water. He did not find her the first time, she having floated several feet down the stream. In the second trial he succeeded in finding the body and brought it to the shore. Although every effort was made to resuscitate her, all was unavailing. During the whole of this occurrence an athletic Irishman near the bridge did nothing but halloo, not making a move to save the party, either being paralyzed by fear or afraid to risk his own life in the attempt to save others. The sad event has created much feeling in Watertown, and the authorities who so long permitted the bridge to remain in this condition will undoubtedly receive the blame they deserve.

Everett, Roswell, 1790-1871,

Lansing Republican, August 17 1871, p. 3

AN AGED PIONEER GONE.—Mr. Roswell Everett, aged 81 years, died at the residence of his son in Delhi last Sunday morning. He was one of the oldest settlers in the county and was universally esteemed. A large assembly of citizens attended his funeral and the services were conducted by the Rev. J. Straub of this city.

SUPPOSED SUICIDE.—An inquest was held by Daniel Hurd, of Dewitt, on Tuesday, upon the body of Martin Farrell, who died on Monday morning at the house of Mr. Reynolds, where he had been staying for ten days, looking for employment. The jury rendered a verdict that he died from the effects of poison taken by himself, and that no other person was responsible for his death. He was a young man of about 24, with more than ordinary intelligence and education, and came to that town from Chicago, as some recommendations found upon his person prove. He was probably a victim of despondency, and thought to find rest in another world, if this would not give him work.

Burned to Death.

Another terrible accident occurred on the 5th inst., in the township of Delta, Eaton County, from carelessness in the use of kerosene oil, which resulted in the death of one woman and frightfully burned several other persons. A farmer named H. L. Hines visited Grand Ledge and purchased a can of kerosene oil, and also a can of oil said to be non-explosive. He reached home after dark with the two cans and stated that he had "a can of oil that would'nt explode even if it was thrown into the fire," and to illustrate the thing he picked up one of the cans to make the test. His brother's wife, who was present, told him that he had made a mistake,—that he had the kerosene can. He thought he knew best and proceeded to light the oil.

The lady then sprang forward to keep him from lighting it, but before she reached him a terrible explosion took place. The oil flew upon the clothing of his wife, who was sitting near, and she was immediately enveloped in flames. Terror-stricken she rushed out of doors and ran to the house of a neighbor, some twenty rods distant. She was so terribly burned that she lived but four hours. Their little child about three years old, lying in the crib at the time of the explosion, was also frightfully burned and has since died. Mr. Hines was badly burned on the face and arms. The lady who warned him of his mistake was also severely burned. The burning fluid set the house on fire, and together with furniture it was reduced to ashes.

SAD ACCIDENT.—A sad accident occurred on the 26th ult. near Higgs' saw mill, about four miles south of this city resulting in the death of a lad named Joseph Hollister, about sixteen years of age. He was employed to cut bands for a threshing machine, and stepping upon the platform to throw some loose straw into the machine, he accidentally stepped into the cylinder and in an instant one of his legs was torn from his body. The machine was driven by a ten horse power, and was stopped immediately by the shock. He lived about eight hours.

THE STATE REPUBLICAN.

S. D. BINGHAM, Editor.

THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1871.

DEATH OF HON. JACOB M. HOWARD.

Last Sabbath morning, Hon. Jacob M. Howard died at his residence in Detroit from a stroke of apoplexy received on the Friday previous, from which he never rallied so as to recognize his friends. A leading member of the Republican party and one of the ablest champions of its principles, as a United States Senator from this State since 1862, he had won a high position and in legal ability had no superior in that body, while as a statesman of broad and comprehensive views he was recognized as one of the ablest men of the nation. Born in Shaftsbury, Vt., July 10, 1805, he by the exertion of his own hands obtained a classical education and graduated at Williams College in 1830, at the age of 25. He studied law for two years while acting as principal of an academy in Ware, Mass., and removed to Detroit in 1832, where he was admitted to the bar the next year. He was then an ardent Whig, and continued to act with that party until the organization of the Republican party in 1854.

In 1838 he was elected to the State Legislature, and in 1840 was elected to Congress, being the the sole Representative from Michigan. He participated in the organization of the Republican party in 1854, and drew the first platform of the party. He was the candidate of that party for Attorney General, and was triumphantly elected, filling the position with great ability for six years. In January, 1862, he was elected United States Senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Bingham, and at the expiration of the term was again re-elected in 1865. His services in that position were of the greatest importance in the most trying hour of our national history. A member of the Judiciary Committee, and also of Military Affairs, he was one of the trusted friends of Abraham Lincoln. He strongly advocated the emancipation of the slave, and himself reported the famous amendment to the Constitution which declared the colored man a citizen, drafting the first and leading clause of that amendment with his own hand. He has since taken a prominent part in all the great measures of reconstruction, and as Chairman of the Committee on the Pacific Railroad took the leading part in the inception and completion of that great national work, which will remain as an abiding monument to his abilities as a statesman.

The Republican party of Michigan and of the country will deeply deplore his death.

by a large and powerful, though not tall, body, commanding respect and attention. His deportment was somewhat grave, and his gestures usually slow and dignified. He had a deep and powerful voice, but, when he was roused, he was a master of crushing invective and ponderous sarcasm, all the more effective because he never forgot to be logical.

As a debater, Mr. Howard was undoubtedly one of the giants of the Senate. But he was never a lover of debate for its own sake. Nor could he properly be called "brilliant," in the sense usually understood by that term; that is, he was not given to making glittering points, or to polished rhetoric, or to impassioned eloquence, or to showy displays of skill and readiness over non-essential issues. On the contrary, he was one of those ugly customers to encounter who always mean business, and who never debate at all except in downright earnest, and for a purpose worthy of their exertion. Hence he rarely or never played with an adversary, or indulged in any cunning of intellectual fencing for the pleasure of the galleries; but, discarding the rapier and small-sword of debate, he went to close quarters instantly with the short-sword and bowie-knife of fact and logic, in such deadly earnest that no trick or sophistry of fence could ward off or evade his strong and determined onset. There was not a particle of clap-trap or rhetorical buncombe in his composition. He never spoke at all unless he had something worth saying to say; and when he said anything, he meant it.

In certain large and noble particulars, Mr. Howard was worthy to be, as he was, the pride of the State; his intellectual strength, his high legal and literary acquirements, his force of character, and his power as a debater, were qualities which made him the peer of any statesman, from any State in the Union. In these regards, we may not look upon his like again in years. Not one of all the leading public men of the State, however ambitious, will dispute, either openly or in secret thought, the plain statement which truth compels us to assert over his grave, that in intellectual power he was the noblest and the stoutest champion ever buried in the soil of Michigan, or ever mourned by her people. A statesman worthy to rank with the highest, a patriot of stainless honor, a politician of unquestioned integrity, and an orator formed for dealing effectively with large issues, his loss is one worthy to be lamented, as it will be, not only by his State, but by the entire Republic.

SPECIAL MESSAGE.

On Wednesday morning Gov. Baldwin sent to the House the following message, announcing the death of ex-Senator Howard:

To the House of Representatives:

A distinguished and honored citizen of Michigan and of the Republic has fallen.

Scarcely had the mantle of his high office as one of the Senators of the United States been laid aside, when Jacob M. Howard was called from his earthly career to that world from whence no traveler returns.

In the midst of apparent health and strength, Mr. Howard was cut down with scarcely the warning of a day. During the trying period of the late civil war, he, as a Senator, was ever found most valiant and fearless in the cause of his country tion and completion of that great national work, which will remain as an abiding monument to his abilities as a statesman.

The Republican party of Michigan and of the country will deeply deplore his death. Among the many able men in that party in this State, none other had the legal ability or the scholarly acquirements of Senator Howard. It was essentially his ability that gave him the first position that could be given him by his adopted State. Understanding little of the tricks of the politician, his intellectual strength and his integrity overcame opposition, and tried, he was not found wanting. His great assiduity as a student imposed upon him much severe labor in research, where other Senators of choice left the field to him. This labor left him little time or leisure to look after the wants of place-hunting politicians. In this particular only did he fail to secure universal regard.

He was a great man on great occasions, and in the Senate was always listened to with respect, and often crossed swords with the ablest of his peers, and always sustained his reputation. Perhaps in no other speech was he more signally successful than that in opposition to the proposed treaty with Great Britain, by which Puget Sound, the future terminus of the Northern Pacific railroad, would have been lost to this country. His speech in secret session, when nearly all the Senators were in favor of that treaty, changed the vote, and few voted in favor of it. This speech he was accustomed to regard as the most successful effort, if not the greatest, of his life.

He was an incorruptible man. Entering the Senate with a mere competence, he retired not a dollar richer than when he first accepted the position. The partisan and unfounded charges so often made against him of bribery and drunkenness never had the slightest foundation, and were keenly felt by him and commented upon with severity when conversing with personal friends. With the opportunity of acquiring wealth often presented to him if he would use his influence in certain directions, he resented such offers as personal insults, and laid down the honors he had so worthily won, without a single stain upon his character as a man. Let his political enemies, forgetting the politician, do justice to the man. Michigan will in the future point proudly to his career, and in the history of her citizens none will occupy a higher place than the patriot and statesman, Jacob M. Howard.

From the comments of the Detroit Tribune we take the following:

Mr. Howard has left the indelible impress of his vigorous mind upon the legislation and history of his country. He was the peer of the ablest members of the Senate, and his habits of patient investigation and thorough mastery of his subject, his strong mental grasp, and his powerful advocacy of whatever cause he espoused gave him a conceded foremost position in a Senate which contained such men as Sumner, Fremont, Cass, and others traveler returns.

In the midst of apparent health and strength, Mr. Howard was cut down with scarcely the warning of a day. During the trying period of the late civil war, he, as a Senator, was ever found most valiant and fearless in the cause of his country and its unity. The whole nation is largely indebted to his commanding intellect and great force of character as Chairman of the Pacific Railroad Committee in the Senate of the United States, for the successful inauguration and completion of that great work which unites the Atlantic and Pacific States in bands of iron.

The people of Michigan and the United States have lost a citizen who for intellectual power had few superiors. It is meet and right that we take heed that no position or strength, however exalted, is beyond the reach of the great destroyer.

The funeral ceremonies will take place at Detroit, at 2½ o'clock P. M., on Friday, the 7th inst. HENRY P. BALDWIN.

SAN DOMINGO.

The Commissioners to San Domingo were expected to report this week. They are unanimously in favor of annexation. Old Ben Wade is especially enthusiastic, and speaks warmly of the political and commercial benefits that will accrue to this country. He is also strongly impressed with the conviction that if we do not annex San Domingo, the German Empire will within the next twelve months. He also says, that while at Kingston they found the people of Jamaica watching the movement with close attention, and were assured that seven-tenths of the people of that island would also vote for annexation to this country.

The report of such men as Ben Wade, Dr. Howe, and President White will clear President Grant of any other motive in his annexation policy except the prosperity of his own country as he views it. But in spite of the report, the great majority of the people will still oppose annexation, and are no more favorable to it than they were to the purchase of Alaska, which, like the watch-boxes bought at auction by the wife of Toodles, is to be a source of expense without any prospect of a return. That, however, may be turned into a colony for criminals, who can be left to their own resources, with the comfortable reflection that with ice and Indians they will not long trouble the earth with their living presence. But the annexation of San Domingo is to commence a policy that will never be satisfied until Cuba and all the West Indies become a part of the country, with such other islands in the Atlantic and Pacific as can be had by conquest or purchase. And the same policy will have an eye to the Dominion of Canada and the absorption of Mexico.

No nation can bear the dangerous experiment of such a policy. It makes a free people the victim of military power, and compels them to pay enormous taxes for the support of a standing army. It endangers free government by placing it in the hands of those who have no knowledge of how to maintain it, and therefore

Howard, Jacob M, 1803-1871,
Lansing Republican,
April 6 1871, p. 3

From the comments of the Detroit Tribune we take the following:

Mr. Howard has left the indelible impress of his vigorous mind upon the legislation and history of his country. He was the peer of the ablest members of the Senate, and his habits of patient investigation and thorough mastery of his subject, his strong mental grasp, and his powerful advocacy of whatever cause he espoused gave him a conceded foremost position in a Senate which contained such men as Sumner, Trumbull, Fessenden, and others equally eminent, and of national and even world-wide fame. And so long as the story of the protracted struggles and the overcoming of well-nigh insurmountable obstacles connected with the inception of the great Northern Pacific railroad shall be recounted among men, so long will the name of Jacob M. Howard hold a conspicuous and honored place. We use the term "honored" advisedly, for while it has been freely intimated from time to time that he has greatly profited by his connection with the Senate Committee which has had this vast enterprise in charge, it has been but one of those countless suspicions that are whispered concerning most men in public positions that offer such special opportunities for acquiring wealth. Certain it is, Mr. Howard indignantly denied the insinuation, when once made by the New York Tribune, in terms that could not be more comprehensive, and his most intimate friends know of no facts to justify, even in the remotest degree, these suspicions.

As a lawyer, Mr. Howard was thoroughly acquainted with the great principles which underlie that science, and was of exceeding power before a jury. There his manner, combining unusual power and great candor, seldom failed to produce a deep impression, and he gained many a verdict which never could have been secured by ordinary members of the bar. The same traits were characteristic of his efforts in debate, some of which were among the most powerful heard in modern times upon the floors of Congress.

His ability to group and mass facts and to use them to the best effect, was little less than wonderful.

Mr. Howard leaves five children, Mrs. Dr. Hildreth, whose husband died not very long since at Chicago; Miss Jennie Howard, a young lady; three sons, Jacob M. Howard Jr., Hamilton G. Howard, and Charles H. Howard. He leaves a small property, perhaps $40,000 all told, sufficient for the wants of those members of the family who are dependent.

He had but recently returned from Washington, and we are told was at first somewhat despondent, as his political life had broken up his business and caused him to fear that his means of subsistence might be limited, but he had been notified but a few days previous to his death that his services would be called into requisition in connection with the legal management of the Northern Pacific railroad, whose position he so thoroughly understood; and it is probable that a lucrative and highly honorable position would have been speedily attained by him.

The following is from the Detroit Post:

Notwithstanding his eminent services to his country, the State, and the world, Senator Howard died a comparatively poor man. His stern integrity, against which no whisper of suspicion was ever breathed, kept him from making money when he might legitimately have done so by simply making personal use of the opportunities which his knowledge of great affairs gave him, sometimes fairly thrusting upon him golden chances for making a fortune by the legitimate investment of a small capital. That he never yielded to any temptation of this kind is a noble proof of a sense of honor so keen as to be rare among men of any class.

In personal appearance, Mr. Howard was a gentleman whose presence would be marked in any company as one of the strong men of the country. There was a massive and solid look about his large head and boldly outlined face, supported

DEATH OF HON. SANFORD HOWARD.

The death of Hon. Sanford Howard, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, and for several years the agricultural editor on Thursday, the 9th of March, is not only a sad event to his many friends in the city and State, but is a great loss to the editor of the REPUBLICAN, which occurred cause of Agriculture, and will be so regarded throughout the Union. Stricken by paralysis about eight days previous to his death, the shock totally disabling his right side and depriving him of speech, he still retained his mind and recognized his friends, until the last day of his life. For several days hopes were entertained of his partial if not entire recovery, but only to end in disappointment.

Mr. Howard was born in Easton, Bristol county, Mass., on the 7th of August, 1805. The only advantages of early education which he enjoyed were those of the common school. This knowledge of rudiments was the basis which, with observation and the study of text-books, made him second to none in the sphere he finally chose for a life profession. He remained on his father's farm in Easton until 1830, when he married and removed to Hallowell, Maine, to manage a farm for himself. There he became a leading contributor to the Maine Farmer, then and now one of the best agricultural papers in New England. At this time his attention was directed to the improvement in breeds of domestic animals, and to this subject he gave much of his time and ability through life, and was one of the best judges of stock in the country.

In 1837 Mr. Howard removed to Zanesville, Ohio. He remained there until 1843, engaged in the promotion of the interests of agriculture by the labors of pen and hand. While there, he was employed by prominent agriculturists to go to New York and other Eastern States, to select stock of various kinds for the benefit of that section of country.

Leaving Ohio in 1843, he associated himself with Luther Tucker, of Albany, in the editorial management of the Cultivator. He retained this position until January, 1852, when he removed to Boston, and became the agricultural editor of the Boston Cultivator, of which Otis Brewer was then, and is still, the publisher and proprietor. In 1857 he was employed by the Massachusetts Society for the Promotion of Agriculture, and several wealthy gentlemen of that State, to go to England, Scotland, Ireland, and France, for the purpose of selecting and importing the best specimens of cattle and horses of several breeds. On this trip he had the opportunity of examining the best stock in the old world, and, from this time to the close of his life, became a standard authority on blooded stock. In the winter following his return from Europe, he edited the first volume of the "American Devon Herd Book."

In the summer of 1858 he was employed by H. H. Peters, of Southboro, Mass., to visit Scotland and import the best herd of Ayrshire cattle, to the number of twenty or more, which could be selected in that country. He also purchased in Ireland, for Arthur W. Austin of West Roxbury, Mass., a small herd of Kerry cattle, and in Scotland a number of Shetland ponies, for the same gentleman. He also purchased and imported, for Dr. John Woods, near Richmond, Va., the Cleveland bay stallion, "Symmetry," now owned by L. D. Watkins of Manchester, Mich. He also purchased for himself, of the Earl of Derby and Lord Berwick, a number of specimens of the best breeds of game fowls. In 1857 he was employed to purchase and forward to the gentleman last named, two Black Hawk mares, for the improvement of English stock.

In May, 1864, he accepted the position of Secretary of the State Board of Agri-payment of a fine an absolute certainty in the justice court when guilt is proven. In this section of the State we know of no appeal that has been taken to the circuit, and it has rarely if ever happened in the State. So far as Detroit, Jackson, East Saginaw, Grand Rapids, and other of our larger cities are concerned, the law is a dead letter upon the statute books. In our own city it is enforced when complaint is made, but we know of no complaints except of the lower order of saloon, whose proprietors are periodically, perhaps three or four times a year, hauled up and made to pay a fine of $10 and costs, amounting in the aggregate to a yearly sum of $50 or $60.—the profits of a week's business.

There are small villages and farming towns where the law is enforced. They stand by the law and are entitled to its benefits. But in three-fourths of the towns in Michigan it is a dead letter. Neither the people nor the Legislature are in favor of its repeal, but, not satisfied with its present form, it is asked that other and more stringent provisions shall be added. Of what worth are additional sections so long as those now in force are practically powerless? The failure of the law is from want of pluck on the part of its friends, and they have no right to blame the law or throw the responsibility elsewhere than on themselves. For this reason alone we are not sorry that the Senate bill increasing penalties has gone by the board. The statute books of the State are already too much encumbered with laws which are not enforced. Let the law stand as it is until it is enforced, and the inhabitants of all our larger towns and cities will still endure without complaint the evils of a totally unrestricted sale of liquors, if the people of other sections will bravely and unflinchingly enforce it.

The average of public sentiment must be equal to the enforcement of laws, or their enactment is a mere matter of form, and they are worthless as so much blank paper. And when the Legislature is relied upon solely for the restraint and reformation of men, it fails to confer expected benefits. If such laws are made the cats-paw to create political parties, whose object is less their enforcement than the enjoyment of power, the moral sentiment that enacted the statute is forgotten, and under its operation that education belonging not to parties but to men as men, is lost sight of. That is the result of the present law. There is not one man pledged to total abstinence now where there were ten twenty years ago. The proportion of drunkards may not be greater, but the men who have the moral stamina to enforce such laws are decreasing in number. For ourselves, if there was not a grog shop in the State, we should be as pleased as those who talk much and do little or nothing. Perhaps in the next twenty years these men will teach us how to banish the sale of intoxicating liquors. It will come with the banishment of houses of ill-fame, and the millennium. It will come when man no longer panders to licentiousness and no more craves strong drink. In spite of all law, there will be slavery to passion and the commission of crime. In spite of all law, it is now as six thousand years ago—every man is, in his habits and tastes, a law unto himself. If pure, he needs no law of restraint; if governed by his appetite, it will lead him to its violation. The sale of liquor is the sequel of its manufacture. And in that direction, if anywhere, should the law be more severe. But if the penalties against the sale of liquor are made too severe, it is a question not easily settled whether such laws are weakened or strengthened thereby. It might be law to give a man twenty years in the State prison for stealing a horse, but it would be an unjust punishment, and every man would say so. Public sympathy once aroused and made hostile to law on account of its severity, and the jury who try the accused would take every means to help him evade its penalties rather than to aid in its punishment. And this public opinion is restive and will not be forced too far even in a direction that many think right and proper. When selected in that country. He also purchased in Ireland, for Arthur W. Austin of West Roxbury, Mass., a small herd of Kerry cattle, and in Scotland a number of Shetland ponies, for the same gentleman. He also purchased and imported, for Dr. John Woods, near Richmond, Va., the Cleveland bay stallion, "Symmetry," now owned by L. D. Watkins of Manchester, Mich. He also purchased for himself of the Earl of Derby and Lord Berwick, a number of specimens of the best breeds of game fowls. In 1857 he was employed to purchase and forward to the gentleman last named, two Black Hawk mares, for the improvement of English stock.

In May, 1864, he accepted the position of Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture of Michigan, and, dissolving his connection with the Boston Cultivator, removed to this city, where he remained until his death. During this time, in his official position, he prepared the annual volumes of the State Agricultural Reports. Many of his papers have been widely quoted and highly commended, especially those relating to herds of cattle, and the Grand Traverse region, and those in relation to Michigan as the great fruit State of the Union. During this time he has also been a contributor to leading agricultural papers of this and other States, both East and West. He also for several years, and up to the time of his death, edited the Agricultural Department of the REPUBLICAN with signal ability. He delivered several lectures before agricultural societies, and once lectured to the students of Yale College, upon horses. One of the latest important labors of his life was acting as chairman of the committee appointed by the New York State Agricultural Society, in 1870, at Utica, to decide upon the relative value of agricultural implements other than mowers and reapers. He was also a member of the committee of the U. S. Agricultural Society at the trial of mowers and reapers at Utica, in 1857, and served upon a similar committee of the N. Y. State Agricultural Society, at Auburn, in 1866.

The announcement of his death was followed by the voluntary offer of the use of the Hall of Representatives, by the House, for the funeral services, which occurred last Saturday. President Abbot of the State Agricultural College delivered the discourse to a large audience, and Speaker Woodman, Senator Begole, Representatives Hart and Cameron, and Professors Miles and Fairchild of the Agricultural College, acted as pall-bearers.

The discourse was a fitting eulogium of the moral and mental qualities of the deceased. He was alluded to as a man of great purity of soul and purpose, and one who possessed a high-toned religious faith and trust. He confided in others, and when betrayed, or his confidence was misplaced, the result was painful to him. His aim had been to raise the standard of agriculture to the highest attainable point, and he only sought to disseminate truth in the great science of agriculture.

Thus passes away another true and able man. With a long life of mental labor and contact with humanity, he kept the principles of truth and purity ever dear, and his moral nature was never contaminated or debased by aught that was wrong. He rests, and his place will not easily be filled. His teachings remain to elevate and ennoble the cause of agriculture, to which he gave his manhood. Like other brain-workers, he has gone in the prime of mental vigor, and all is well.

Resolutions of Respect.

The following resolution in relation to the death of Hon. Sanford Howard, offered by Senator Begole, was unanimously adopted in the Senate last Saturday :

Resolved, That, having learned with deep regret the death of Hon. Sanford Howard, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, so suddenly stricken down while in the midst of life and apparent health, we extend to his mourning and bereaved family our sympathy in this hour of deep affliction, and that as a tribute of respect to the memory of one who has so long and ably served one of the great public interests of our State, both at home and abroad, who has stood first and foremost as one of the most eloquent and successful advocates of the great agricultural interests of the country, who for years has done so much to develop and bring it to its present advanced and prosperous condition, and whose loss cannot be considered less than a public calamity, this body will adjourn this afternoon and attend the funeral at two o'clock, P. M.

On the same day the House adopted the following resolutions, offered by Mr. Walton :

Whereas, This House has learned, with profound sorrow, of the decease of Hon. Sanford Howard, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture of this State, and long and intimately connected with said Board and the State Agricultural College, and thus closely identified with the agricultural interests of the State; therefore Resolved, That the members of this House, as a body, tender to the family of the deceased their heartfelt sympathies in this their great affliction.

Resolved, That in the death of Mr. Howard the agricultural interests of this State have lost a faithful, efficient, and peculiarly intellectual friend and co-laborer in the great cause of progressive agriculture, and the State Board of Agriculture and the State Agricultural College an able and invaluable officer.

Resolved, That this preamble and resolutions be entered in full on the journal of this House, and the Clerk be directed to transmit a copy thereof to the family of the deceased.

Resolved, That in respect for the memory of the deceased, this House do now adjourn.

Fatal Explosion.

For the Republican.

A fearful accident occurred in Benton township, Eaton county, on Friday last, 9th inst. The boiler of a steam engine belonging to a portable saw-mill exploded, scattering fragments of iron and timber in every direction, instantly killing Mr. Jesse Jones, the owner of the mill, and slightly injuring three other persons.

We visited the scene of the disaster, and saw some of the effects of the explosion. A large part of the boiler, after carrying away the shed over the engine and saw, cut off two elm trees, tore out a maple about one foot in diameter, carried top, root, and body about thirty feet, struck a large cherry stump, and was turned a little to one side, where it lay with the maple bent around the front end. Another piece carried away a buggy seat, knocked off a tree-top, passed within two feet of a house, demolished a bee-hive, and stopped a little beyond. Other fragments were found lying from a few rods to a half mile distant.

Mr. Jones' limbs have not been found, and it is supposed that they were torn to atoms. Parts of his feet were found about twenty rods from the mill.

The cause of the disaster was a defective pump, and through this the water in the boiler became exhausted.

Mr. Jones was an honest, hard-working man, and all he possessed was invested in the mill which is now in ruins. He leaves a wife and five children.

A very large number of friends and citizens of the vicinity attended the funeral services, which were held on last Sabbath in a grove near the home of the deceased. Rev. Mr. Nickerson of Potterville preached an able, appropriate sermon.

After the funeral a committee was appointed to secure help for the bereaved family.

DEATH OF REV. W. W. OLDS.—Rev. W. W. Olds of Williamston died last Friday morning of consumption, with which he had been afflicted for several years past. His funeral took place last Sunday, the sermon being preached by Rev. J. Straub of Lansing. Mr. Olds was a former resident of this city, and a member of the Methodist church at North Lansing, but subsequently he joined the Universalists, fitted himself for the ministry, and became the established pastor of the Universalist society at Williamston, also preaching from time to time at many other points in this section of the State. His influence at Williamston has been largely felt, and no man has done more in that place for the promotion of temperance, morality, Sunday-school work, and other good causes.

GONE HOME. — We are deeply pained to hear of the death of Mr. Charles O'Neil, at Rochester, N. Y., on Tuesday last. He was for several years foreman in our press-room, and by industry, skill, and faithfulness, earned our confidence and the respect of all who knew him. He learned the trade in Rochester, subsequently followed it at Detroit, Grand Rapids, and other places, and came to Lansing about four years ago, where he at once took and held a leading position. He left us in January last, for home, to recruit his health if possible from a violent cold; but little did he or his many friends think that he was going to his "long home," and that they should never see him again upon earth! We received three letters from him, announcing his probable speedy return,—the last letter in March. Mr. O'Neil was unmarried, but leaves a widowed mother at Rochester and several brothers. His age was about 30 years.

Death of J. N. Parkill.

The sudden death of Mr. Jesse N. Parkill, one of the leading druggists of this city, which occurred on Wednesday about 1 P. M., has cast a gloom over the entire community, and will be especially regretted by our younger business men, among whom he stood in the front rank in business capacity, energy, genial courtesy, and promise. He was taken with convulsions last Saturday night on returning home from his store, and from that time until his death was not conscious or able to converse with his friends. His case resisted the best medical treatment, and was undoubtedly the result of overwork, both physical and mental, and too close attention to business.

Mr. Parkill came to this city about three years since, as a clerk in the drug store of A. R. Thayer. Early in 1870, in company with Mr. Thayer, he purchased the drug store of Messrs. Earl & Ranney, on the corner of Washington avenue and Allegan street. About six months since he purchased the interest of Mr. Thayer, continuing the business in his own name.

Married but a few months ago to the sister of A. R. Thayer, his sudden death leaves her desolate indeed. With prudent foresight he had effected an insurance on his life of $2,500 in the Continental Life Insurance Company.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, at the house, and at half past 1 at the Baptist church. The funeral ceremony will be under charge of the Lansing Commandery, No. 25, Knights Templar, of which Mr. Parkill was a worthy member.

FATAL ACCIDENT IN STOCKBRIDGE.—

A little boy eleven years of age, son of Samuel Procter of Stockbridge, was killed the 12th of July by a team running away. His older brother, who was driving the team loaded with wheat in the bundle, stopped at the house to get a drink. His little brother Cassius began to climb upon the load, and the older brother stepping forward to help him up, some of the bundles gave way, falling on to the horses. They immediately sprang, jerking the driver clear from the load, leaving the little boy hanging to the rigging. The horses ran at full speed for thirty rods, upsetting the wagon, throwing the load and rack off, leaving the little boy with his feet fast behind the evener and in front of the hounds, his head down, dragging on the ground for three rods. He lived six hours after he was taken up.

OBITUARY.—We regret to learn of the death of F. R. Read, one of the regular clerks of the Auditor General's office, a position he had held for several years. He had been out of health for some time, and for several days past had been at home, but no serious danger was apprehended until the news was received of his death, the disease culminating on the brain. Mr. Read was for several years Deputy Provost Marshal of the Seventh Congressional District during the war, and had held other positions of honor and trust. He was a pure-minded, unobtrusive gentleman, and his death will be greatly regretted by all who knew him. His age was 57 years. He leaves a wife and several children to mourn his loss.

READ.—In this city, October 29th, KITTIE A.
READ, aged 15 years and 9 months.

The funeral services were held at the Free Baptist Church on Monday, at one o'clock P. M., in the presence of a large company of sympathizing friends. The Day School, with the teachers, also the Sunday School children, were present to add their sympathy and pay their last token of respect to Kittie, who had proved herself to be among her associates a very amiable, companionable girl. May the affliction be sanctified to the still living mother, brother, and sister.—Com.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.—Norma, only son of L. P. Reynolds, Esq., Secretary and Treasurer of Hillsdale College, a lad eight years of age, was run over by a heavy sleigh-load of his companions while coasting, and received such internal injuries that he died a few days after. The accident occurred on the 28th of December. Mr. Reynolds, in losing his son, is robbed of a child of unusual promise, and the affliction is heightened by the attendant circumstances. He has the sympathy of all who know him in his bereavement, yet the parents and friends are comforted, in that they "mourn not as those who have no hope."

SUICIDE.—John Rivers, a young man of 18, committed suicide at Laingsburgh last Saturday. He was coming down the track in advance of the express train on the J. L. & S. R. R., bound south, and as the train approached him, the engineer whistled down brakes. On hearing the signal he stepped off the track, but as the train came near, he got down on his hands and knees, laid his head upon the rail, and it was taken off by the cow-catcher, the head rolling some fifteen or twenty feet. The body was brought to Laingsburgh, where an inquest was to be held Monday. The deceased was a native of the State of Maine, where he has a brother and sister living. He is said to have spoken seven languages and to have been a scholar in other respects. On a piece of sole leather was found, written in pencil, the name of his former home, with the names of his brother and sister. At the time of his death he was working upon a farm at $8 per month.

ANOTHER KEROSENE HORROR.--Mrs. Stimson of North Eagle, last week, while lighting a fire with kerosene oil, placed the can upon the stove and neglected to remove it. The fire getting pretty hot, she turned around to take the can off, when it burst, throwing the oil all over her person and burning her so severely that she died on Sunday.

Tynan, John, 1871, Lansing Republican,
August 17 1871, p. 3

DEATH CAUSED BY WHISKY.—Last Sunday night, between 11 and 12 o'clock, a young man named John Tynan was found on the track of the Jackson, Lansing & Saginaw railroad, near the Michigan Avenue crossing, just south of the depot, with his head and one arm completely severed from his body, and the other arm nearly cut off at the elbow. It seems that while intoxicated he attempted to cross the track, and fell with his neck across the rail, his arms raised above his head. The engineer saw something lying on the track, but could not bring his train to a stop until the cars, numbering some sixteen or seventeen, had all passed over him, when on going back to the spot he was found in the condition above described. The testimony before the coroner's jury is conclusive that Tynan was badly in liquor. During the afternoon he, in company with others, procured a hand-car and rode to Delhi, where they went to the hotel and took a drink of whisky all around, and also procured a bottle of whisky which they emptied on their way home. They reached Lansing about half past 6 o'clock, and during the evening drank liberally at several places in this city where whisky is sold in defiance of the law. Between 10 and 11 o'clock he left the party who were in his company near Allen & Wise's planing mill and started on his way home. This was the last seen of him until found by those on the train.

DIED.

UNDERWOOD. — In Poland, Ohio, September 17, 1871. Dr. Wm. UNDERWOOD, aged 32 years.

When the late civil war broke out he entered the service of his country as Assistant Surgeon. After the close of the war he came to Ann Arbor, where he attended a course of lectures in the Medical Department of the University of Michigan. About a year after, he came to Le Roy and commenced the practice of medicine with Dr. Wm. A. Davis. He soon after came to Williamston. About three years ago he engaged in the drug business. One year ago the 20th of last April he was married to Miss Mary Dockstader, a most worthy and amiable young lady of Le Roy. Dr. Underwood was one of our most highly respected and esteemed citizens. His upright life, integrity, and promptness in business won for him the respect and friendship of his fellow citizens. His close application to business, and confinement within doors, overtaxed his naturally slender and nervous constitution, bringing on a slight paralysis of the right side, which soon rendered him unable to attend to the business of his store. He therefore sold out his interest in the drug business, and retired from all business care, in hopes that by the use of proper remedies his nervous energy would be restored and he would be able to again return to active business life. But in spite of the best medical advice he continued to fail, the paralysis extending to the left side, which rendered him nearly helpless before his death. Being anxious to once more see his parents, brothers, and sisters, a few weeks before his death, accompanied by his wife and child, he went to the home of his parents, in Poland, Mahoning County, Ohio, where he closed his earthly course.

Dr. Underwood, like too many while young and in health, neglected the most important of concerns, a preparation for death. His mind was deeply impressed for a long time in regard to his spiritual interests, but he did not enjoy the evidence of an interest in his Saviour until a short time before his death, when he felt the full assurance that his sins were all washed away by the blood of Christ. Thus his last days were spent in rejoicing in the love and grace of God to our sinful race, and he passed away with a glorious hope of a blessed immortality.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber,
Peaceful in the grave so low;
Thou no more shalt join our number,
Thou no more our song shalt know.
