HIRE ANOTHER PSYCHIATRIST

From time to time this newspaper has had occasion to chide the state parole system as it is conducted. Such objections as have been raised by this and other newspapers have had little effect it would seem. In fact from now on until the end of the year and of the present regime it may be expected that offensive paroles and pardons from Michigan penal institutions may increase. Notwithstanding the discouraging results thus far obtained, this newspaper intends pointing out the weaknesses of current parole policies.

The week's news brings two flagrant examples of the type of paroles which seem to prevail. One is the case of a parole granted to one Barbara (not feminine) Vinunzo, convicted in 1919 for the murder of a close friend, and sentenced to life imprisonment. The commutation granted to Vinunzo is based upon the thin claim that the trial judge found no motive for the act, and this in face of the fact that two eye witnesses testified at the trial they saw Vinunzo do the shooting. The commutation makes possible and probable a parole in 1938—19 years of life sentence for a brutal and unjustifiable murder.

In the second case one Charles Marcih, 23, a citizen of Yugoslavia, convicted of robbery armed, was granted outright pardon. The reason given for the last mentioned example of misplaced mercy is that had the young man not been pardoned he would have been subject to deportation by the federal government.

Does the pardon and parole commissioner argue that nineteen years in Michigan's luxurious penitentiary is sufficient punishment for first degree murder? Will he argue that a 23-year-old bandit is so necessary to this country that his deportation to his native land is objectionable? Sometimes we are led to suspect Michigan meets another psychiatrist—this time for the parole commissioner.

GNATS AND CAMELS

Another thing which arouses the editorial ire is the fine point raised by the liquor control commission in the matter of shaking dice. This writer admits he never won any high stakes at dice nor has he ever lost much money. He looks upon it however in the same light he regards raffles, bank nights, bingo parties, poker, punch-boards, lotteries and similar games of chance which are played on the square and where chance is left to play a part. It is suggested that so far as shaking dice for the beers is concerned, it is as legitimate as matching pennies and far more respectable than playing the slot machines, which are crooked and run by crooked politicians who buy police protection out of their ill-gotten gains.

But it seems that shaking dice is bad. A licensee was closed up over at Flint because he permitted customers to shake dice for the beers at his restaurant. The august liquor control commission held a hearing on the case at Saginaw and after listening to testimony put the offending licensee out of business—and this in the face of the fact that hundreds of beer places all over Michigan share in the profits of the illegal slot machines. This by a state that has licensed and shares in the profits from race track gambling and boasts about keeping the schools open from profits from the liquor business.

Really that old adage about straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel is not sufficiently strong to express one's opinion concerning such inconsistency.

MODERN HOUSING

Reports from the 1936 automobile shows indicate a continued and growing interest in motor car trailers—homes on wheels as some call them. One of the largest motor concerns in the field, a concern that heretofore has confined itself to the fine car field is out with a line of de luxe house cars, complete in every detail, thus appealing to a class of buyers entirely outside the circle of "tin can tourists" as they are sometimes termed.

The same concern is reported to be considering the manufacture of portable homes, not on wheels, but easily transported by means of heavy truck equipment, from one location to another. The last mentioned field is one not invaded until now but one which, from investigations said to have been made, now offers large returns.

The modern family is different from those of former generations. No longer does the average wife and mother look forward to the day when she can preside over a mansion and a coterie of servants. In the first place, the modern woman is occupied with more interesting matters—bridge, golf, her club, politics if she is of the leisure class—business if her husband earns but a modest wage or salary. In the second place the servant problem is a serious one.

A snug little pullman outfit, easily managed with all modern conveniences, room for a couple of friends for a snack of cats or a foursome of bridge, easily cleaned, cheaply heated, appeals to her more than the double upright and wing which our grandmothers coveted.

So it looks as if the coming generation of wives might be expected to be satisfied with a portable home, made of steel, insulated against heat and cold, equipped with electrically operated gadgets for easy housekeeping, with built in furnishings for multiple use and folding out of the way in case of callers, in fact an apartment-ette in a single unit capable of being easily transported from town to country, from city to city as employment conditions change and from section to section as one's neighbors cease to please.

This is a new venture in home building which may revolutionize the whole construction field. Built under mass production they will of course be offered at a fraction of the cost included in the present day dwelling.

DETROIT IN THE SADDLE

Under the above caption an up-state editor discusses the results of the recent state election. In his discussion the editor points out the dangers to rural Michigan which may result from the election of a governor and lieutenant governor and a speaker of the house of representatives, all from Detroit. He complains that committees handling certain types of legislation may, under such conditions, be "stacked" against the people of the rural sections and they may be made to suffer accordingly.

So long as the state government pursues its present policy of collecting revenue in huge sums and then parceling it back to municipalities under established formulae, there is a danger such as is pointed out—danger to the metropolitan section whenever over-representation is granted the rural sections and danger to the rural sections when urban representation and domination becomes top-heavy.

However, the mere formation of committees does not necessarily govern legislation. It does not so govern at any time there is a revolt of rural representation against city domination. It may well develop during the coming session of the legislature that party lines may break and sectional lines be substituted.

If Governor Murphy is as wise politically as he is given credit for being, he will avoid such a contingency. Perhaps that is a better safeguard against sectional abuse than the mere manipulation of committee chairmanships.

REFORM GOOD, ALIBI BAD

Occasionally there comes to the surface some peculiar twists of philosophy. One such came to light this week in the columns of an esteemed contemporary in reporting the financial condition of the local county fair board and a statement of its future policies.

It appears that in one of the more prosperous agricultural counties of the state, the fair board reports a profit on the 1936 fair of $1509. In connection with this showing, the board hands out a statement that hereafter, no "skin games" will be allowed to operate on the grounds. "In previous years," the report goes on to explain, "the fair has needed funds so desperately that it could not dictate to concessionaires what kind of games and shows it could bring to the grounds." Next year, with $1509 on hand the board promises to "ban all money games and questionable shows."

This is a new theory of responsibility. Can the management of any public affair so excuse its former attitude. Is a fair so necessary that unsuspecting visitors can be fleeced out of their savings for the paltry sums which the concessionaires leave with the fair board? Is the fact that a fair board has become involved in annual losses a proper excuse for debauching the morals of the community with nasty shows and immoral entertainment?

The NEWS is happy that one fair has resolved to clean up its midway. We applaud the management for its intent to conduct a clean fair. But the alibi set up against past shortcomings does not ring true.

CCC RESULTS

Some are inclined to condemn all manner and varieties of unemployment relief instituted since the dark days of 1929. Others are inclined to call everything good which is undertaken in new attempts at social relief and security. Not all are bad and certainly not all are good.

In the early days of the CCC, considerable criticism fell to that organization because of the lack of discipline at the camps and an evident lack of proper supervision over the work undertaken. During the past two years at least, these conditions have been largely overcome and the work done by the Civilian Conservation Corps has grown in favor and in value to the country.

But there is one result of the establishment of CCC camps which has not been sufficiently publicized. By this is meant the value of keeping these young men off the streets and highways, out of the jails and reformatories and out of the company of bums and thugs.

Two years ago there were more than 5000 inmates in Jackson state prison. Two years before that there were nearly 6000. The other penal institutions of Michigan were similarly overcrowded. Today there are slightly more than 4200 confined at Jackson with similar reductions in population at each of the other two major prisons.

It is not intended to argue here that the establishment of CCC camps alone has accomplished this much to be desired result. It is contended however, that finding some useful work and some comfortable shelter and clothing and nourishing food for lads just out of school and with no work for wages in sight, has helped a lot. In fact the records will show that it is among this class of youth, a few years ago the most prolific source of prison population, that the greatest reductions in convictions for crime and commitments to prison have resulted.

The link between poverty and crime and disease is too close to ignore. It may cost the public purse a considerable sum to keep youth occupied and out of mischief. The amount of work actually performed may be entirely out of proportion to its cost. But if it saves young men from careers of crime, if it stimulates the desire for honor and decency and respectable living, it is worth the cost. No matter what it costs it is cheaper than keeping men in prisons.

DRESS

North Michigan folks get a big kick out of the antics of hunters from the cities who invade that section about this time of the year. Up at Rockland, a remote inland town in Ontonagon county, the village puts on a big dance on the eve of the opening of the deer hunting season. They put on their best bib and tucker and make the affair quite a social event. It is related that this year a group of big shots from Detroit went to the dance clad in their boots and breeches. "Gosh," the Detroiters muttered, "here our friends back home warned us against dressing up in front of these natives. Now look at us here among these folks all dolled up in dress suits and formal gowns." Were their faces red!

The world has grown small. Ease of modern transportation has made us all neighbors. If the truth were known it is likely both Ontonagon and Detroit folks would have been more comfortable in ordinary togs. It is evident each group went to extremes out of regard for the other.

Notwithstanding the larger number of deer licenses issued this season, only a very few more cars have crossed the straits headed for the deer runs than last. The reason is the opening of more territory south of the straits. The department of conservation has been between two fires in this matter of opening up new territory. Resort owners like to have the deer thick so their patrons may go out and see them during the summer. Farmers are not so keen about having them in the vicinity of their cultivated fields and every time a sportsman sees a pair of antlers his fingers itch for the trigger—some of them even want to go back to the days of shooting does. And so when the conservation board decides to open up new hunting territory there is loud opposition and whenever they decide not to, the opposition is just as clamorous.

Probably the best way out is to permit the conservation authorities, who after all are in best position to judge impartially, to have the say in the matter.

What Other Editors Have to Say

Reckless Driving

The desire for reckless speed is still in the minds of many drivers. Speed to get somewhere at a wild pace, although when you get there you have nothing better to do than turn around and return. Needless, heedless hurry. Cutting all corners, taking all the chances that might be taken, beating every light and signal, driving like a demon through crowded streets. Trying to pass everybody, talking, laughing, eating, drinking and in the next minute a crash.

Death!

What is the sense of it? Who is to blame? Such an occurrence or description of speed is a common report in newspapers daily. The American public shrugs its shoulders and reads on.

Not until we arouse a safety consciousness in the minds of the entire public will such recklessness stop.—Ogemaw County Herald, West Branch.

Governance and Welfare

One commentator on the recent election remarks, that it represents the feeling on the part of the American people that the federal government should do more toward promoting human welfare. Those who were defeated in the recent election may question that statement. Still it is probably true that the people expect the United States government to devote more attention than formerly to human welfare.

When the government was founded, little attention was paid to the economic welfare of the people. If a family did not acquire such welfare, it was commonly supposed to be their own fault. The main business of the government was to provide national defense. The infant republic was menaced by powerful enemies, and the feeble little colonies had to stand together to keep from being crushed. Very few regulations were made to control the daily life of the people.

Now life has become extremely complicated, vast systems of industry have arisen, and it is not so easy for the citizen to provide for his own welfare. Many people feel that this calls for more regulation of daily life by the federal government.

There are limits beyond which the people will not stand such control. It was thought, for instance, when national prohibition was enacted in 1920 that such control of liquor by the federal government would provide more welfare. But after a few years, the people would not stand for such centralized control. They demanded that each state have the right to regulate liquor for itself.

Will it work that way as respects the regulation of industry? The times seem to indicate more control by the federal government, but it has to be exercised with discretion, or there might be a reaction like the overthrow of prohibition.—Lowell Ledger.

Gambling—With and Without the State's Consent

One of the big Detroit newspapers has been throwing a fit lately—it throws them periodically—about gambling in Macomb county. It appears that the Wayne county government has largely discouraged gambling. While there are "spots" in Wayne where gambling goes on, it is done furtively. The result is open gambling in Macomb county (East Detroit).

The publishers of the protesting newspaper, however, do publish racing odds and attractive write-ups about how "Gilt-Up-and-Gilt" the fast filly, won yesterday's second event and paid bettors 13 to 1. Questioned about this inconsistency, they reply that racing has been legalized in Michigan—that the state is accepting a "rake off" from the betting system. Well, that's the truth of the matter.

When it comes to slot machines, this Detroit newspaper and no other newspaper, seems to be able to get any low-down information on the owners. Who owns the slot machines? Who gets the money out of them? Why are they allowed to run? Who, if anyone, gets paid for letting them run?

Governor-elect Murphy says that wherever there is open gambling there is crooked government—that gambling cannot exist if law enforcement officials are honest. That's a severe indictment. There are many counties in the state where the mechanical pickpockets operate. Should the state of Michigan license slot machines as they have betting on the races? Should the state license roulette and chuck-luck games, too? Should the state treat gambling as they do liquor and license it—and grab a part of the swag of which the suckers are robbed?

We heard a seasoned legislator ask these questions one evening recently. We will be interested to watch the next state administration's action, if any, on these questions. Gov. Murphy is no mean cracker when he gets started; also, he is politically ambitious and this gambling evil might furnish him just the sort of ammunition he desires.—Clinton County Republican-News.

ILLNESS IS FATAL TO DANSVILLE MERCHANT

WALTER W. ALMOND, 62, SUNDAY DEATH VICTIM.

Lifelong Resident of Ingham County, Long Prominent in Civic, Fraternal and Business Circles, Succumbs.

Walter W. Almond, 62, lifelong resident of Ingham county, for many years prominent in the business and community life of Dansville, active in Masonic circles and widely known throughout this section of Michigan, died suddenly at his home in Dansville Monday evening. Mr. Almond had been in ill health for some time, had recently submitted to an operation, but had been able until a few hours before his death to be about his ordinary affairs.

Mr. Almond was born in Vevay township in Ingham county on November 17, 1874, the son of David and Margaret Almond. After attending the rural school he came to Mason for his high school training. April 1, 1901 he was united in marriage to Ona Colburn (Taylor), immediately thereafter entering the general mercantile business in Dansville. After several years in this business he disposed of his stocks and entered into the Ford sales and service with Geo. Mitchell as his partner. The firm of Almond and Mitchell was successful and continued until the business was sold, after which Mr. Almond devoted his attention for several years to the operation of his farm near Dansville. For the past five years he has been engaged in the retail hardware business in the same location where the Ford business was conducted.

Intensely interested in everything pertaining to the improvement or advancement of his community, Mr. Almond has spent an active life. He has been a leader in his town and in the county. Especially active in Masonic circles he has served as secretary for Dansville Lodge No. 100, an office he held at death. He was also affiliated with the R. A. M. at Mason, the Council at Williamston and with Lansing commandery, Knights Templar. He was also active in Dansville O. B. E. For many years he has continued as a member of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Surviving is the wife and two sisters, Mrs. Anna Steadman of Williamston and Mrs. Katherine Olin of Lansing. Funeral services will be conducted from the home at Dansville on Friday at two o'clock.

Frank Thompson, Commander
John Hooty, Adjutant
Wanda's Auxiliary
President, Mrs. Robert H. Wallace
Secretary, Mrs. Earl Salisbury

Vice Commander Clifford Hurry did a good job in conducting the meeting Thursday night in the absence of Commander Thompson, who was north hunting deer.

Comrade Hugh Bartley reported that flags had been delivered to all rural schools in Ingham county except Danville. The school at Danville was closed on the day the committees were distributing, on account of scarlet fever.

In case the WPA labor project is approved on the proposed new community building on the second ward school site, the executive committee of the post was given the power to make all necessary arrangements as to plans, money, etc.

It was unanimously agreed that the post take out a $5.00 membership in the Red Cross for 1936.

Service Officer Ray Potter suggested that veterans holding bonus bonds exchange them for baby bonds, to avoid a lot of red tape and expense in the case of the death of a veteran.

For the first time in several years Past Commander Lynn Wright failed to respond for roll call. He was taken ill a few hours before meeting time.

Up to Thursday night 70 comrades had paid their dues for 1937. The quota is 95. The post stands a good chance of winning one of the district prizes for prompt payment of 1937 dues. Attendance continues at a high peak, 36 being present.

The post voted to send Commander Thompson, Service Officer Potter and Adjutant Hooty to the post officers' conference to be held in Bay City, December 5 and 6.

Cider and doughnuts were served after the business meeting by Comrades Weaver and Ivan Potter.

PUBLIC FORUM

Editor News,
Mason, Mich.,
November 17, 1936.

Dear Sir:
I want to thank you for the copy of the News you sent me a few weeks ago. I read every word in it, advertisements and all. When I sent for it, I thought I would like to take it. My brother subscribed over fifty years ago. In the summer I would sit out in the shade on Sundays and read it or read it to mother in the house while she was working. But so many strange names, so few old names that I knew! I lived at what was called Wilson Corners, 3 1/2 miles east of Mason. Memories, some pleasant, some sad. It made me feel lonely. I am the only one left out of a family of seven—all buried in Danville cemetery but one, my youngest sister, who is buried in Buchanan, Michigan. Many relatives are sleeping in the Danville cemetery.

Even the picture on your paper of the old court house made me feel lonely. I spent several nights there watching the returns come in from presidential elections. And so many times in 24 years I tied the oxen first, then horses, to the court house fence when I came to town. I am all alone now. All dear ones have gone on and left me on earth alone. Thank you again for sending me the sample copy.
Very truly,
Ellsworth Worden, 110 S. W. Clay Street, Portland, Oregon.

The Office-Holder Is Your Employee

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

No business enterprise of any importance can depend for success on the knowledge and ability of its top executives alone.

It must rely also on the quality and training of the men in the ranks—whether they labor in office or shop or field.

Within recent weeks there has become evident a growing conviction that this is also true of government.

Both at Washington and elsewhere plans are being discussed for better training of the non-coms and privates who hold or look forward to jobs in the public service.

Because he, in the last analysis, is the real employer. He—with millions of his fellow citizens—constitutes the government, whether federal, state or local. He doesn't merely share in its benefits; he meets all its bills—including the payroll. The higher the quality of the public service for which he pays, the more he gets for his money.

And the service is likely to be higher in quality if his employees are chosen and retained on the basis of what they know rather than that of whom they know. Not only that, but the field is likely to be less overcrowded—therefore, less costly to the taxpayer who foots the bill.

If the American citizen would get his money's worth he must insist on ability not only in the top offices of government, but in the lesser jobs as well. This, too, becomes part of his responsibility as a shareholder in the most important business on earth.

The office-holder is his employee.

Famous Favrite Glass Production Held Lost

Favrite glass, originated by the late Louis Comfort Tiffany, has not been made for over six years, says the American Collector.

Starting in 1893, Tiffany established a glass blowing enterprise at Corona, N. Y., at which he endeavored to match the color of the old Greek and Roman glass that had become iridescent from being buried for centuries. He gathered a group of expert glass workers, largely from Starbridge, England. At first his undertaking was called the Starbridge Glass company; later the designation was changed to Tiffany Favrite Glass but from the first each piece was signed.

Finally Tiffany bought back the stock held by the others and closed the works. All of the formulae that had been developed for that particular iridescent glass that had come to be known as Tiffany glass, were destroyed under Mr. Tiffany's personal supervision. That was several years ago. Three years later, at the age of eighty-four, he died. Since then some of the men who worked in the Tiffany glass house have tried to produce glass of the same type independently.

Courage and Resourcefulness—
Today's Needs

At this period of the year, we are thankful for the privilege of having been able to serve this community for over fifty years. It took courage for the founders of this bank to organize during the depression of 1886 and 1887. It has taken resourcefulness to be able to continue to do business during times of financial stress. Yet each decision made by the officers or directors of this bank has taken each of these factors into consideration. Courage and resourcefulness are two very good reasons why we can be thankful for having given over a half century of service.

"REEL" RIFLE

Pretty Maurine Kerns, of Miami, Fla., shown with her home-made harpoon rifle, designed by W. M. Edwards. The gun operates by means of stout rubber bands which discharge a steel arrow tied to a fishing reel line under the barrel. The fish is speared (if the angler is a good marksman) and reeled in.

There is one advantage in being a defeated candidate. You don't have to try to make good on your pre-election promises. But, come to think of it, some of the successful ones don't either.

Thanksgiving— An American Day

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Thanksgiving is recognized as one of the most characteristic and appropriate of all our American National Holidays.

Why? Probably because the American people, through the period of their nation's existence, have had more to be thankful for than the people of any other land.

Not in the material sense alone! The pioneers who celebrated our first Thanksgiving Day expressed gratitude not only for bountiful harvests, but also for the freedom with which Divine Providence had rewarded their courage and labors.

That spirit endures. Every Presidential proclamation of a Day of National Thanksgiving has sounded the same note of reverence.

Thus, through the years, Thanksgiving Day has become not only a national expression of gratitude, but a re-dedication to the spirit which lived in its strong and valiant founders.

The seeds of freedom sown by them have borne a harvest more bountiful than their own crops. Our reasons for national gratitude have grown—not diminished.

They gave thanks for fruitful harvests, we for a bountiful supply not only of the necessities of life, but of comforts far beyond their modest aspirations.

They gave thanks for liberty to worship as they chose. We give thanks not only for freedom of religion, but for freedom of speech and of action and of opportunity as well.

Many nations cannot do this today! The iron hand of Dictatorship or the red blight of Communism, the terrors of war, from without or within—all have robbed them of the security and the liberties which our fathers established as an American birthright.

Our duty is not limited to appreciation, however grateful, of these blessings. It involves their preservation as well.

WILDERNESS RETURNING TO POOR ALLEGAN LAND

DEER NOW ROAM OVER AREA OF 44,000 ACRES.

Sub-Marginal Land Within 50 Miles Of Mason Is Being Given Back To Nature.

Michigan is witnessing in Allegan county the exemplification of one of the newest ideas in land utilization. As it is transplanted from the oak and jackpine plains of north central Michigan, an expanse of idle, semi-wild forest land is "going back" to a wild condition with the deliberate help of conservation-land specialists after years of unsuccessful use for agriculture.

Conservation department workers here, who have been collaborating in the game management aspects, are watching the project with increasing interest.

Approximately 44,000 acres of sub-marginal agricultural land—land not generally suited to successful farming—have been acquired by the federal resettlement administration. The farmers from whom the land was purchased have been moved elsewhere and the tract is being developed for use as a public recreational area—the use for which it is believed best suited.

The production and maintenance of wildlife, not only to be utilized as game but for visitors to see, is receiving close attention. Under the direction of F. J. Dodge, wildlife technician, about 200 men are employed in various types of wildlife development work. Through Dr. Glenn W. Bradt, farm-game specialist and others the department of conservation is co-operating in various aspects of the development work.

A system of dikes has been constructed to control water levels on some 2500 acres of marsh land, once a breeding and resting place for ducks and geese, but later ruined for this purpose by artificial drainage. Although the dikes have been completed but a short time, large flocks of ducks and geese have already made use of the newly flooded ponds.

Extensive plantings of aquatic vegetation suitable for duck foods have been made and another year should find a good population of ducks breeding in the flooded area.

Upland game also is receiving attention, Dr. Bradt says. During the spring and early summer of the current year, approximately 130 food patches totalling 105 acres were planted. The largest food patch comprised about five acres and the smallest

Youth-Adult Problems Is Conference Topic

EATON RAPIDS HIGH SCHOOL OFFERS FORUM.

A youth-adult conference will be held Sunday, November 22, at the Eaton Rapids high school at three o'clock. Rev. Horning will open the meeting with a worship service and a general outline of the afternoon program. Group discussion will convene at three-thirty when the following topics will be given individual study: Crime and Its Sources, Mr. Scarvada leading the discussion; Liquor, leader to be selected; Education, Mr. Harrell; War and Peace, Miss Ione Catton; Leisure Time, Rev. Horning; Vocational Guidance, Supt. of P. O.; Home Life, Mrs. Horning; and Organized Religion, Mr. Angell.

Reports from the various discussion groups will be given. The ladies of the Baptist church will serve supper at the church at 5:45. The evening service will begin at the Baptist church at seven o'clock with a summary of the afternoon discussion by Dr. Cornell, head of the department of political science at Kalamazoo college. The Rev. Kelford will lead the singing at 7:30 and at 7:45 Miss Catton of Lansing, will give an address. The youth-adult conference is a non-denominational affair.

During the current fall, 115 acres have been planted to rye and vetch. None of these food patches has been less than three acres, nor more than 10 acres in extent.

Census work is being carried on over many parts of the area to find out present game populations and in order to determine the effects of the development work on these populations. A herd of deer, estimated to number between 350 and 600, roams the Allegan project area. Since this portion of the state is not open to deer hunting the expected increase in this herd may prove a vexing problem to authorities interested in and in charge of the project in the near future, Bradt says. The herd is the largest in the southern half of the lower peninsula and both the deer and the area itself, located in a region under intensive farm and fruit growing, have become natural curiosities.

Progress is being made on the construction of a large fish-rearing pond and on stream improvement work. Contrary to customary procedure during the development of wildlife projects, neither hunting nor fishing is prohibited during the legal open seasons on the Allegan project, except in certain designated refuge areas. Viewed objectively the resettlement program in Allegan county is a laboratory for various experimental conservation land projects. It is attracting wide attention.

Grettenberger Herd Leads Testing Group

NEWCOMERS TO RANKS WIN TESTING HONORS.

The month of October found 26 herds composed of 312 cows under test in the Lansing-Ingham Dairy Herd Improvement association. Twenty-five of the herds produced above 50 pounds of fat for the month. The average per cow production of the association was 739 pounds of milk and 28.1 pounds of fat per month.

One new member was added to the association in October. W. F. & J. C. Grettenberger have placed 11 grade Holsteins under test. This herd was high for the association with an average of 48.8 pounds of fat per cow. The herd of 18 mixed grades owned by Harry Brown was second with an average of 39.9 pounds of fat.

A. C. Dayton owns the high two-year-old, a grade Holstein, which produced 53.8 pounds of fat. W. F. & J. C. Grettenberger own the high three-year-old, a grade Holstein, which produced 77.1 pounds of fat. J. H. Chamberlain & Sons own the high four-year-old, a purchased Holstein, which produced 58.7 pounds of fat. W. F. & J. C. Grettenberger own the high mature cow, a grade Holstein, which produced 84.4 pounds of fat. Wallace Bodell is the tester for the association.

Farmers Given Advice On Care Of Woodlots

SECOND GROWTH WOODLOTS MAY BE PROFITABLE.

Owners of second growth woodlots in Ingham county may find it advantageous to avail themselves of management and thinning suggestions offered by the Michigan State college forestry extension service says County Agricultural Agent H. H. Barnum. A special bulletin has been written on the subject and field demonstrations are being conducted by W. I. Bull, extension forester.

In a second growth woods, according to Forester Bull, where trees range between two and eight inches in diameter there will be perhaps 500 to 600 trees to an acre. In the first thinning this may easily be reduced to 300 selected trees. This permits the remaining trees, left because of better formation, to receive more sunlight and grow much faster.

Another improvement cutting can be planned in 10 or 15 years reducing the number to 150 trees. While the final stand may contain only 60 or 75 mature trees of high quality for sawing. In the meantime, sprouts from stumps will take the place of the mature trees and may be selected for succeeding timber cuttings.

When the thinning is being done, advises Bull, the trees to be taken include the crooked, decayed and bushy topped individuals. Crooked or short trunked trees make good firewood but when used for saw timber they produce more sawdust and slabs than lumber, while bushy topped trees usually contain but one log of inferior quality. Owners of wood lots who would be interested in a thinning demonstration are advised to get in touch with Mr. Barnum.

New Corn Developed To Withstand Borer

BIGGER YIELD POSSIBLE WITH HYBRID VARIETY.

Scientists attending the annual meeting of the American Society of Agronomy in Washington this week learned the history of development at Michigan State college of a variety of corn which enables farmers to "live with" the European corn borer and even increase grain yield.

In a paper submitted November 18 to the agronomists at Washington by A. R. Marston, corn breeding expert in the farm crops department at the college, results of a 10-year program of progress were described. Specifically, the farm crops department has developed Michigan Hybrid No. 561, first distributed for commercial production in 1936.

Parents originally used by Marston were a commercial Michigan adapted yellow dent corn and an unadapted but borer resistant variety obtained from South America and known as maize amargo. The latter was tough stalked, but the grain was merely "tough" to look at, said Marston.

Although Michigan's infestation of corn borers is becoming more uniform within the principal corn producing counties, in some of the last 10 years losses have not been sufficiently numerous to make real tests. So science put the corn to the test by placing borer moths on the stalks under cloth cages. The borer-resistant corn had but one-fourth as many borers on a stalk and showed far less damage from rotted and fallen stalks.

Investigations by S. T. Dexter, also in the farm crops department at Michigan State college, indicates stalks from resistant strains are less porous, contain less air space and have greater density." Marston told the agronomists. "This characteristic is to be investigated at East Lansing."

E. E. Down, plant breeder in the college farm crops department, also presented a paper before the agronomy society. His technical subject was "Influence of Varietal Competition on Yields of Nursery Plots of Wheat and Barley."

BIG TURKEY CROP

Michigan's turkey crop is considered a record one in number, says C. G. Card, head of the poultry husbandry department at Michigan State college. Although feed prices are high, he is advising growers to finish their birds for a quality market to obtain a fair price on the basis of quality and finish rather than on a competitive basis with the record crop in other parts of the United States where feed is scarce and finish and quality are not high. For 1937, says Card, turkey growers should plan their production on the basis of quality and remember that even when feed prices are high a turkey must be fed sufficient grain and mash to put on tasty flesh. Wise marketing, he says, can permit growers to demand a fair return regardless of the volume of lower quality birds.

Inland Lakes Planted To Millions Of Fish

CONSERVATION DEPARTMENT CARRIES ON PROPAGATION.

Fingerling plantings from state hatcheries completed so far this year total more than 94,500,000 baby fish, according to figures compiled by the fisheries division of the department of conservation.

Large numbers of bluegills, brook trout, rainbow trout, perch and bass have yet to be planted.

Total of plantings to date consists of the following: Brook trout, 28,500,000; brown trout, 2,825,000; rainbow trout, 650,000; large-mouth black bass, 527,000; small-mouth black bass, 167,000; perch, 244,000; bluegills, 2,863,000; wall-eyed pike, 84,134,000; lake trout, 285,000.

State Parks Draw Many Tourists During Year

NEARLY NINE MILLION PERSONS REGISTER REPORTED.

State park attendance figures are "coming back."

With a total of nearly nine million visitors recorded for the past tourist season, state park attendances indicated an upward trend toward the pre-depression peak when the high record attendances were established.

Attendance figures from the 50 odd state parks open to tourist use during the past season have just been compiled by the parks division of the department of conservation and reach a total of 8,911,319. This exceeds by nearly a million persons the 1935 total, but is still well under the 1931 peak of 9,634,701.

Total attendances for the past six years follow:
1936—8,911,319 1935—7,973,675
1934—8,561,016 1933—9,342,549
1932—9,616,521 1931—9,634,701
The total for 1936 represents an increase of 11.76 per cent over 1935.

Farm Electrification Plan Wins $50 Prize

TEKONSHA GIRL MAKES SURVEY FATHERS FARM.

Eunice K. Ball, 17-year-old Tekonsha girl, recently completed a survey in the first 4-H rural electrification contest ever conducted. Club members in other Michigan counties participated in the enterprise designed to gather information of value in the expanding use of electricity on farms. The girl lives with her parents on a 100 acre farm, where she conducted her study. As the farm is not wired she shows in detail with a set of drawings of the buildings what steps to take in making the proper installations. For the house she suggests a washing machine, ironer, hair dryer, heater, dishwasher, range, food mixer, clock, fan, coffee urn, chafing dish, toaster, waffle iron, lamps, radio, motor, battery charger, vacuum cleaner, sewing machine and curling iron. Outbuildings would need a water plant, two all-purpose motors, burglar alarm, tool grinder, saw and lathe, ensilage cutter, corn husker and shredder, dairy equipment sterilizer, and water heaters for the tank and poultry houses. Brooder stoves would be valuable in the brooder houses. Her 4-H record includes five years of home-making projects, valued at $135.00, in addition to $10.00 in prizes won on exhibits.

Miss Ball was selected state champion by State Club Leader A. G. Kettunen, and receives a $50.00 merchandise certificate from Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, sponsor of the contest, which was conducted by extension agents. She will compete with other state champions in the central states section for one of two trips to the National Club Congress in Chicago, November 27-December 5.

Clark Gable in one of the rough and ready roles most popular with his public is co-starred with lovely Jeanette MacDonald and Spencer Tracy in "San Francisco", coming Sunday and Monday. A small town girl ambitious to become a singer comes to him, and he engages her to entertain his rowdy customers. From the dance hall she rises to heights as an opera star, with Gable and Jack Holt as rivals for her favor. The story centers about all the landmarks of old San Francisco, Nob Hill, The old "Tivoli" opera house, the historic Palace Hotel, and reaches its thrilling climax in the famous earthquake and fire, in some of the most realistic scenes of destruction ever filmed. Spencer Tracy has an unusual role as a priest who is devoting his life to the unfortunate. Ted Healy, Jessie Ralph, Shirley Ross and Harold Huber are outstanding in the supporting cast.

CENTRAL SIX LEAGUE AGREES TO DISBAND

EAST LANSING VOTED TOO STRONG FOR OTHERS.

Winter Schedule To Be Played, New Circles To Form Before Another Grid Season Opens Is Belief.

The Central Six high school athletic league of which Mason is a member has been disbanded. At the meeting of the principals of the six high schools included in the league held at Grand Lodge last Thursday evening, Garland Harrell was elected president for the ensuing year. He had no more than accepted the league when a motion to disband the league was made and when put only one vote was cast in the negative, East Lansing being reluctant to give up its decided advantage in playing schools much less in size as well as schools where the money required for full time coaching staffs is not available.

When first organized the Central Six offered fair competition. Since that time East Lansing schools have continued to increase in size and in addition its high school has developed into a virtual prep school for Michigan State college. It is stated by followers of high school athletics that because of the ambitious athletic set-up at East Lansing the other five schools have slight chance of ever winning a game. East Lansing by virtue of its superior strength and its ability to maintain a complete staff of coaches and directors of physical education, is able to romp over the other contestants at will. It is also stated that East Lansing coaches have not been too charitable in this respect, leaving their first string players in and running up heart breaking scores against their weaker adversaries. This, it is said, has been bad for the morale of opposing teams.

While no step was taken toward re-organization of the league, and while it is agreed that all games now scheduled for basketball and baseball will be played, it is understood that before another football season and before another football schedule is arranged, another league will be formed. There is possibility that St. Johns will take the place of East Lansing when a new league is formed.

Coach Cuts Basketball Squad To Twenty Men

BEGINNERS MAKE OLDESTERS HUSTLE TO KEEP POSITIONS.

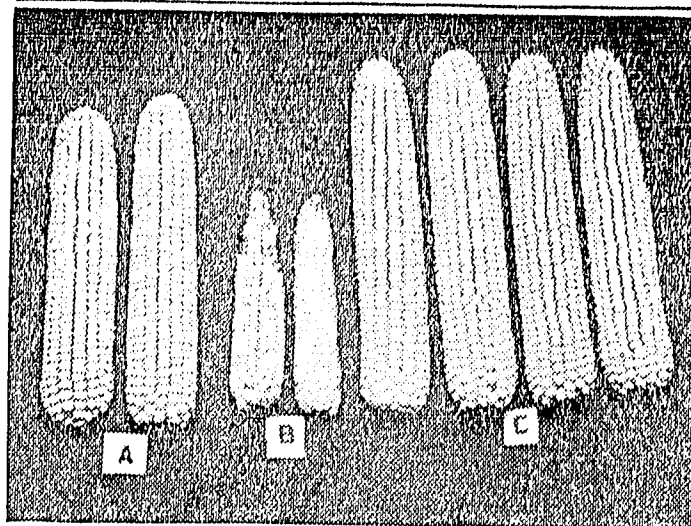

Coach Dawson has cut his basketball squad to 20 as called for under conference rules. "It was a hard job," the coach said Monday. "There is a lot of good material among the freshmen and among the others who are temporarily off the list. However, those removed from the list of regulars will have chances to play on the junior teams and there is always the chance that some of the regulars may not be able to stick it out. It is up to the regulars and up to the second string. I have the best looking material I have ever had at Mason and I predict Mason will have a winning team this year."

Those making up the regulars are Junior Burt, Bill Bergin, Donald Barlow, Lynn Bullen, Richard Brown, Donald Lee, James Young, Lawrence Irish, Robert Ingham, Darrell Demore, Malcolm Petty, Bernard Fancher, Leroy Saelens, Bill Richards, Paul DeRose, Nelson Rouse, Bob Dietrich, Russell Huntington, Leslie Palmer and Paul Youngs. Among those out for basketball for the first time this year are Junior Burt, Donald Barlow, Donald Lee, Bill Bergin, Robert Ingham and Richard Brown.

With the opening game with St. Johns on December 4, only nine days away, a lot of polishing the rough spots must be done. St. Johns offers an experienced and speedy squad and Mason is priming itself for its best efforts on the home court. No definite playing positions have as yet been assigned although it is safe to say that Saelens will be back in his old position at center and Bullen at forward. Paul Youngs and Huntington were a pair of good guards last year but they may have a stiff fight to hang on against some of the colts struggling for those positions.

When the season opens, the organization just abandoned include Mason, Howell, Grand Lodge, Charlotte and Eaton Rapids. As a preliminary to the action taken Thursday evening, East Lansing was awarded the league championship for 1936.

THESE PARENTS HAVE RIGHT TO PRIDE

Parents at the left and center have helped give birth to Michigan State college to the new Michigan Hybrid No. 561 which yields more grain and will enable farmers in the state to grow more corn in spite of borer infestation.

TRI-COUNTY LEAGUE

Fourteen basketball teams will compete this winter in the tri-county league which opened its first play at Howell on October 11. Teams which have entered teams include Mason, East Lansing, Haslett, Webberville, Williamston, Fowlerville, Stockbridge, Howell, Dansville, Miller Road, Dimondale and Eaton Rapids. Several teams are entered in and around Lansing. Joy O. Davis is the manager of the Mason outfit which includes among its players some of the recent stars on high school teams. Donald Murray is among the list of notables who will referee for the league.

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, De-nounced," will be the subject of the lesson sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, November 29.

Among the Bible citations is the following (Eph. 6:13): "Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand."

Correlative passages to be read from Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 571): "At all times and under all circumstances, overcome evil with good. Know thyself, and God will supply the wisdom and the occasion for a victory over evil. Clad in the panoply of Love, human hatred cannot reach you."

The Frilled Lizard of Australia wears an immense cape about its neck. When angry it expands like an umbrella, with terrifying effect. About three feet long, it walks and runs on its hind legs.

The bluejacket gazed proudly at the engagement ring he had given her only three days before. "Did your girl friends admire it?" he inquired.

"They did more than that. Two of them recognized it."

The U. S. S. Mercy, hospital ship, now decommissioned, was a non-combatant ship, yet carried more guns than any other ship in the U. S. navy. The guns were all obsolete, and were carried as ballast.

GROW ME, - I WILL GIVE YOU A STEADY INCOME!

The Sugar Beet's Own Story

"Let's have a friendly chat, Mr. Grower! You are situated right in the heart of one of the best sugar beet sections of America."

"Just as certain sections of Louisiana are best for raising sugar cane, your section of Michigan is peculiarly adaptable for raising Sugar Beets. Thousands of farmers—many of them your neighbors—find this true."

"Naturally, every year cannot be good for a bumper crop. No one is blessed with perpetual prosperity."

"So get this fact firmly fixed in your mind: Farm incomes, like all other incomes, must vary from year to year. That is controlled by weather, by supply and demand, by management and economic conditions."

"But, as all authorities agree, and experience shows, your soil is excellent for Sugar Beets, isn't it good business to stick with that which is best for your pocketbook?"

"Sugar Beets are not a surplus crop. From the standpoint of consumption, you cannot raise too many Sugar Beets. The processors will take all you produce."

"Sugar Beets do not impoverish your soil as do other crops. On the contrary, the growing and proper cultivation of beets gives to your soil those properties it needs to keep it healthy and highly productive of other crops in proper rotation."

"Beets are hardy. They are not so sensitive. They can 'take it'. For beets, more than any other crop, take wet weather, dry weather, hot weather and cold weather."

"This means that when you grow beets and get up against adverse weather conditions, you are more certain of a good yield than you are with any other cultivated crop."

"So, in conclusion, let me stress this, Mr. Grower: Year after year stick to a regular planting of Sugar Beets. Sugar Beets are the ideal crop from which to make more money."

"When planting time comes around next spring see to it that Sugar Beets are included in your crop program."

The Gifts Renewed

In fields but lately scared by summer's drought,
 Where famine seemed to lay its withering hand,
 A miracle has come to still our doubt
 And spread a glad Thanksgiving through the land.

Unseen beneath the drab brown coat she wore,
 The soil grew rich to nurture other seeds.
 Then autumn rains released the hidden store
 In verdant growths, to fill our winter needs.

So, God of Wisdom, may we learn to build
 In quiet faith, through even darkest days;
 Assured our destiny will be fulfilled
 Through Thy inscrutable and wondrous ways.

Why we have Thanksgiving Turkey

THREE times a year, at Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's, the people of the United States advance upon a certain huge golden bronze fowl, cut its throat, strip it of its plumage and convert it into a savory dish which fairly makes the old table groan under the extra burden. Since we have raised this bird into a national significance which parallels to an almost equal degree that of the eagle, symbol of the government itself, it has a special interest to all Americans. Although many folks may still be "as poor as Job's turkeys," says a writer in Pathfinder Magazine, they somehow manage and contrive to have turkey for Thanksgiving, whether they can or cannot afford it.

In years gone by those families who could not afford turkey turned to chicken, duck, beef, rabbit, or even pork and were glad to get it. But now let's get back to the question of why we have or try to have or would like to have turkey for Thanksgiving dinner. The answer of course is that the turkey is strictly an American bird and serving it at feasts of Thanksgiving is an old and ancient American custom. Some authorities will tell you that we eat turkey on Thanksgiving day because after the first harvest in the fall of 1621 the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth set aside a period for feasting and offering their festive board in New England. Smithsonian institution records now bridge the years that veil the aboriginal civilizations and show that the Indians of the Southwest domesticated turkeys and fattened them for their ceremonial feasts. While the Pilgrim Fathers, grateful for good harvests and a year of prosperity in the New World decided on a day of thanksgiving to be celebrated at a banquet of roast turkey, really gave posterity the spirit of thanksgiving, the practice of such feasts had been established long before by the cliff dwellers who actually got their birds from a pen as we do today and not from a thicket as the Pilgrims did.

According to Smithsonian records the turkey of the aboriginal Indians more nearly approximated the

When the Festive Bird Goes Into the Oven.

Thanksgiving turkey of today than the scrawny wild fowl felled by the blunderbuss of the Pilgrim hunters. Most of our domesticated varieties of turkeys today are really descended from the Mexican wild turkey that ranged over Arizona, western New Mexico and southern Colorado—virtually the doorway of earliest American civilization. The Pilgrim turkey was merely the wild variety of the same bird which roamed the eastern part of the United States.

Just as the turkey was exclusively an American bird in the time of the aboriginal Indians, so it is today. No fowl from any foreign country approximates it. In fact, wherever turkeys are raised today, and they have been introduced to many foreign countries, the ancestral stock came from America. And so far as is known turkeys are never imported to this country. Contrary to popular opinion the turkey did not get its name from Turkey (the country of that name). The first turkeys taken from the New World (America) and sold in Spain were handled largely by Hebrew merchants. Since the turkey was frequently confused with the peacock it was quite natural that its Hebrew name should apply to it in their name for the peacock, or "tukki." More or less common use of this name followed, which finally became in English our present name "turkey."

The Turkey Is Regarded as an American Bird.

thanks. To provide food for this feast hunters were sent out by Governor Bradford and they returned with a large supply of game. Hospitality was extended to the Indians, 91 of whom attended the festival which lasted for three days. Conspicuous among the game on the tables were numerous wild turkeys, then common in the woods of Massachusetts. From this circumstance, they say, arose the popular association of these birds with thanksgiving days.

This of course is the true origin of the custom so far as white man has been concerned with it. But the origin of turkey feasts goes back much farther. The millions of families who plan on enjoying hearty Thanksgiving turkey dinners this year will in reality be observing a custom that prevailed ages before the Pilgrims first gathered around

Thanksgiving Day

NO DOUBT the same old question will be asked that we have so often heard—what is the reason for this? The question is foolish, almost as foolish as the attempts to answer it. Thanksgiving means gratitude, and there is probably no man alive who does not hold ingratitude to be one of the blackest sins. Of course, there can be no gratitude except as it is shown not only for something but to some one. Therefore, observes a writer in the Indianapolis News, it is that the thought of Thanksgiving necessarily implies the existence of a Divine Giver and Benefactor. So we are bidden to return thanks to Almighty God as "the Giver of every good and perfect gift." When there seems to be a scarcity of gifts one is tempted to ask the question, why be thankful? And that is a question which every one must answer for himself, and it will be answered as it always has been, in different ways. It is futile to catalogue what we know to be blessings and what we believe to be anything but blessings, and set off one list against the other, and be thankful in proportion as the good exceeds the evil.

Carlyle long ago showed us the folly of the bookkeeping method as applied to things spiritual. Probably most people get out of life about what they deserve and in proportion to what they put into it. It seems to be true that the most thankful people are those who have the least. On the other hand, those who are surfeited with good things take them as matters of course, as their due, and so calling for no gratitude. The question seems to be whether one has a thankful spirit, which surely is something to be greatly desired. Without it, man is less than man. Even beasts are grateful. Practically, the question suggested by the day touches character. There is nothing mechanical or formal about it. One can not pump up thankfulness, and the setting apart of a day does not suggest that there should be such an attempt. The day is rather a recognition, less of a duty than of an opportunity which it would be or might be fatal to neglect. "Be ye thankful" is an apostolic command. It ought to be easy to obey. Those men are nearest the truth who feel that in this life nothing is due them, and that whatever they get is in a very true sense a gift, and one which may be far beyond their deserts. So we are called to keep another Thanksgiving day, which should bring an outpouring of not only thankful but kindly hearts. Appropriate to the day is Pope's well-known verse:

Teach me to feel another's woe,
 To hide the fault I see;
 That mercy I to others show,
 That mercy show to me.

What We Live On
 I live on hope, and that I think do all who come into this world.

NEW DESTROYER RETURNS

The U. S. S. Porter, newly commissioned destroyer is the last port on its shakedown cruise. The ship arrived at Funchal, Madeira, November 17, leaving there for the Philadelphia navy yard where a thorough check will be made of the ship before it is ready for service with the fleet. The Porter visited England, Finland, Sweden, Denmark, and Holland during the two month cruise. The ship was turned over to the navy September 1, this year.

ANNAPOLIS MASCOT

The army probably came by it's mule mascot naturally, but how the navy came to have a goat for the midshipman's mascot has been a bit vague. Old timers of the navy declare the selection was by chance, and came about in this manner: A group of naval officers were on their way from the rail station at West Point to the playing field on the day of the first football game between the two Academies in 1880, when it was decided that the lack of supporters of the navy team in the stronghold of the army called for a mascot. Lt. (JG) Harlow, now a retired Commodore, and Ensign Smith, now a retired man resident at Philadelphia, happened upon a goat grazing along the roadway. A dicker with the owner was made, the goat changing hands for the sum of $1.00. With such a strong "offensive" on the sidelines, the naval academy team swept to a 24-0 victory, the goat has since been the mascot at all the army-navy games.

Thanksgiving

For the moon and the stars that shine,
For the stout heart that beats with mine,
For my home and its daily cares,
For dreams that grow along the years,
For those friends whom I hold most dear,
For my senses, e'er keen and clear,
For the seasons which come and go,
For the books that I've learned to know,
For music and its lovely way,
For the sun pouring out gold all day,
For the hills of my native land,
And the clasp of my children's hand,
For the life that binds me to these
Let me be thankful, dear God—please!

Pioneers Always Prepared for Attacks

Never was death far from the Seventeenth century pioneers and even into so pastoral a scene as this must the ugly, sinister muzzle of a gun intrude. On the walk to church, while plowing or planting, even while courting there was the evil face of death looking on and the man must have in his hand the tool to beat it off.

Stuffing for the Thanksgiving Bird

GOOD stuffing for Thanksgiving bird is of prime importance to the success of the yearly feast. It must, first of all, be well selected, a delicately flavored stuffing for the roast chicken and turkey, a more strongly flavored one for the roast goose or duck, writes Helen Robertson in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bread Cut Into Small Cubes Makes Better Dressing.

used in the dressing providing the white bread predominates. Cold biscuits, pieces of corn bread, slices of toast, slices of whole wheat and of rye may all be used. Use part crust too, as well as the crumb. The bread should be dry and if part or all is lightly toasted, so much the better. And bread cut into small cubes makes better dressing than when crumbed.

For the very large turkey, upward of eighteen or nineteen pounds, two and one-half to three pounds of bread will be needed for the dressing, while for the smaller bird of around ten pounds, one and three-fourths to two pounds of bread may be used. And for the smaller bird, one pound and under should be sufficient.

Celery, oysters, mushrooms, chestnuts, the other ingredients you will use are of course dependent upon your own personal tastes and upon the bird you are serving. Here is a basic recipe for dressing for the twelve to fifteen-pound bird.

Bread Dressing.

Prepare bread, sprinkle with seasonings. Pour over them melted butter and enough boiling water or stock from cooking giblets and neck to moisten. In adding butter and stock, toss the ingredients together lightly with a fork. Never press them together.

If you like onion in dressing, sauté one or two slices in a portion of the butter before adding it to the dressing.

For oyster dressing omit giblets, add one pint of oysters cut in half and the oyster liquor, well strained.

To make mushroom dressing sauté one-half pound mushrooms, sliced, in a portion of the butter and mix with bread crumbs. In using the mushrooms celery may be omitted or a smaller amount used.

Chestnut dressing is usually liked. To make it, prepare one-half pound chestnuts, chopping them rather fine. Mix with bread.

Sausage dressing is another favorite. One-half pound is sufficient for this amount. Cook it over a low fire fifteen minutes before adding to the dressing.

For the roast duck or goose you will find this rice and prune stuffing tasty: Brown three tablespoons of finely minced onion in two tablespoons butter. Add one cup well washed, drained rice. Let simmer until rice is slightly browned. Then add four cups soup stock or water in which bouillon cubes have been dissolved, eight or nine cooked prunes, pitted, and one teaspoon salt. Cook over a very low fire or over hot water until rice is tender. Season well.

URGED THANKSGIVING

TRADITION has it that a woman was responsible for establishing the modern Thanksgiving day on the last Thursday of November. According to that story, President Lincoln issued his proclamation in answer to urgent pleas from Sarah J. Hale, editor of Godey's Lady's Book.

"That Yankee Holiday"

President Andrew Jackson refused to give Thanksgiving day the customary presidential sanction because he would have nothing to do with "that Yankee holiday."

DART FAMILY GATHERING
Thanksgiving day at the Dart farm is to be strictly a family affair with only a few intimate friends of the immediate family included among the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Rollin C. Dart will play host and hostess to their children and grandchildren as follows: Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Dart and children; Mr. and Mrs. William F. Dart and son; Mr. and Mrs. James A. Dart and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Dart; Miss Dorothy Dart and Miss Gertrude Dart will assist the other members of the family in entertaining the guests. John Dart of the music department of Muskegon high school will be home for the occasion. Dr. Gertrude O'Sullivan, sister of Mr. Dart, of Mason, and Mrs. A. R. Dart, her daughter Deborah and son Alfred of Battle Creek, will be among the members of the family present. A. R. Dart is in the far north engaged with his duties as supervisor of CCC work. Mrs. Jeanette Hitchcock, sister of Mrs. Dart, and her daughter, Miss Viola Hitchcock, of Lansing, will be accompanied by a friend of the latter, Miss Gwendolyn Malpas. Miss Josephine Gervin of East Lansing, will complete the list of guests.

Ancient Mayas Kept Thanksgiving Day

WHEN football fans turn out for the Thanksgiving games they will perhaps realize that they are conforming with an old American custom, but do they know how old that custom is? asks a writer in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Thanksgiving football games were instituted in America about 2000 B. C. The custom began among the ancient Mayas, who, although they did not eat mince pie or sit in concrete stadiums, did dine on turkey and did set aside a day on which they offered up the first fruits of the harvest season, feasted and played, or watched a ball game in a stone-walled enclosure.

The department of middle American research at Tulane university has discovered that the Mayan games were like ours in many respects. Just as fans today travel for miles to see the Thanksgiving games, so did our predecessors on this continent journey across the land, on foot or horseback, to Chichen-Itza, holy city of the Mayas, to view the holiday spectacle.

In his description of the Mayan game, Maurice Reis, on the staff of the department of middle American research at Tulane, says:

"As it began when Rome ruled the waves and Frenchmen wore bear skins as their Sunday best, football wasn't just football. That is, the ball wasn't kicked with the foot and the scores were produced by persuading the ball to pass through a perpendicular ring high on a stone wall."

When the thousands of pilgrims who came every year arrived at Chichen-Itza, they offered sacrificial fices to the earth gods in an impressive thanksgiving ceremony led by the ruler.

"The earth gods," says Alfredo Barrera Vasquez, of the staffs of the Mexican National Museum and the National University of Mexico, who is of Maya descent, "are called the Four Bacabs and are represented as supporting the four corners of the earth. Each god has an appropriate color: red for the east where the sun rises, black for the west where it sinks into darkness, yellow for the warm south and white for the cold north. Yum K'ax, Lord of the Forest, resides at the center of the universe and is characterized by the colors blue and green."

The Thanksgiving ceremonies still take place in some parts of Mexico today, although most of the old customs are dominated by the Catholic influence.

The name of the principal god of the harvest is lost. However, we have many representations of him on ancient monuments. He is always depicted as being young and handsome, symbolic of life and growth. From his head grows maize instead of hair.

KINDERGARTEN NEWS
The children are planning to take gifts to their mothers as a Thanksgiving surprise. The gifts will be cranberry jelly, which the children made last week. The kindergarten pupils are also getting a Thanksgiving basket ready and are planning to buy meat instead of candy to help fill it. Each child is also bringing vegetables, fruit, etc. to contribute.

It was said in the old days that the sins of the present are visited on the children. But now they pile their debts on the youngsters as well as their other trespasses.

NUTS AND DOLTS

"Gosh! This Rush Is Killing Me!"

Listen, Brother, you keep on loing that and you'll keep your appointments for the next few weeks in the hospital.

There's a place for you to cross the street in safety. It's down at the corner. Just a few steps away. No business is quite so important that you should risk your life to save a couple of seconds.

Thirty-three thousand pedestrians were injured last year doing just what you are about to do—stepping out from between parked cars. More than 1,100 were killed that way. These figures are taken from Travelers Insurance Company records.

Maybe in the rush of business you're forgetting to give enough attention to the business of living.

WEATHER OBSERVATIONS

The weather man is confined to his den in the hospital but the weather keeps on just the same as before. Thanksgiving week opened with a fall of light snow, most of which had melted away before another light fall began Wednesday.

Sunday was bright and warm, one of the pleasantest days of the late autumn season.

Sheep feeders, and Mason has a few who deal in thousands of feeding lambs, report the season thus far as ideal for field feeding. Those who turn their lambs into lots report that rain and mud is bad for lambs who are forced to move about cultivated feeding grounds. During the past month there has been little rain and practically no mud. Lambs are making satisfactory gains and few losses by death are reported.

Those who had occasion to travel north during the past few days report that Lansing is about the tops so far as the snow line is concerned. Very little snow has fallen beyond St. Johns. Reports from the southern tiers of counties are to the effect that considerable fall of snow has been experienced there. The thumb counties are practically free of snow.

Drivers are not yet accustomed to driving on slippery streets. A number of accidents have been reported and many have experienced narrow escapes because their wheels did not respond to the brakes. Such snow as fell appeared to pack, making travel on pavements and smooth surfaced roads somewhat perilous. Drivers, after experiencing a swirl, usually slow down thereafter.

White fields, crisp air, and clear skies are promised for Thanksgiving day trips.

HAPPY!

And what little girl wouldn't be happy surrounded by Christmas dolls? Imagine the thrill of being turned loose in a toy shop like this!

With few exceptions, the harder the work the smaller the pay.

We cheer our friends these days by reciting our troubles to them.

The nice thing about the depression is that it included everybody.

Wonder if the fellow who gets 4-11-44 in the social security program will come to regard him as a lucky number?

Rev. Carlless closed a successful week of meetings last Saturday night. A group of young people from Albion assisted in the meeting Saturday night and conducted the service here and at Bell Oak.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Woorworth will spend Thanksgiving in Detroit with their son and family. Russell Wade spent the week end in the north part of the state hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Holland were in Howell Sunday to visit her aunt and uncle. Harry Silsby was in Ann Arbor with his son Ernest, who is seriously sick, the first of last week.

ATTORNEY DIES

Roy N. Chrouch, Lansing attorney, succumbed to a heart attack at his home Tuesday afternoon. He had been at his office in the Bauch building and when stricken was removed to his home where he died within a few minutes after his arrival. Mr. Chrouch had practiced law in Lansing for nearly 20 years. He is survived by the wife, a married daughter and a son recently graduated from Michigan State college and now employed in the engineering department of the Consumers Power company.

Extension Groups

The Hawley extension group met at the court house Friday, November 20. The meeting was called to order by the vice chairman, Rural Royston. The leaders, Miss Ward and Mrs. Launstein presented a valuable lesson on Modern Laundry Methods. A demonstration of water temperatures and stain removers was given. At the business meeting roll call was answered by each member telling of new methods of cleaning adopted since the last meeting. A Christmas party will be held at the home of Mrs. Edith Barr on December 10 with potluck dinner. Each guest will bring a 10c

May We Serve You

"TIME AND TIDE — — —"

Sure the days are limited and their quota of hours set. For you there are not twenty-five days in which to accomplish your holiday errands. Deduct the fixed time required for work and the handful left is Christmas shopping time. Perhaps twenty-five hours for planned giving. Giving which is safe for you financially and sane from the viewpoint of your loved ones.

"IF IT'S WORTH DOING — — —"

We, like other merchants who value your patronage, wish to serve you well—not hurriedly. Suitable stock and proper pricing we can govern. You govern the time investment knowing that a reasonable investment of time avoids an unreasonable investment of money.

"HASTE MAKES —"

Come in soon. Gladly we'll do our level best to be of practical assistance. Maybe the desires you have in mind we've helped others accomplish and can make that experience available to you. Perhaps it may result in only a mutual exchange of ideas like people talking (the junior editor for instance) about their operations. However twenty years of Christmas selling makes us confident that at the least we can help you avoid its appearing as though you'd bought the unclaimed packages sold at auction by an express company and while blinded by the sun, parceled them out amongst your friends.
