

Santa Claus Comes to Town

And there were hundreds of youngsters on hand to give him a welcome Saturday afternoon. As he did the year before, Santa came by air, swooping low and circling the city before he landed at Jewett Airport. There he climbed into a sleek convertible. Escorted by the Mason firemen with their new red truck, Santa Claus paraded into town. Floats were entered by the Jewett Flower Shop, A. B. Ball, Dart & Cady and Perkins hardware. Members of the Mason band, riding on a Mickelson-Baker truck, furnished music for the glad occasion.

In front of the court house Santa mounted a platform and passed out 1,200 candy canes as boys and girls filed past him. Once in a while he stopped to swap Christmas secrets. In this picture he is listening to Gretchen Olds, 4, of Mason. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Olds.

Supervisors Demand Graham Continue on County Board

Colleagues of Supervisor Marshall S. Graham of Lansing insisted Monday that he remain on the county board despite his acceptance of a county job. Graham has taken a job offered him by Lloyd Service, friend of the court and circuit court probation officer.

Supervisors not only insisted that Graham remain on the board, they sung his praises, until they must have echoed in the hall where the Lansing supervisor went while the issue was being determined.

Honest, valuable, indispensable, indefatigable, loyal—these are some of the kind words Graham would have heard had he remained in the room.

Graham helped work out the plan for moving the friend of the court and probation officer to new quarters and also as chairman of the salaries committee helped work out a budget for an expanded staff. He didn't know then, he declared, that he would be offered one of the jobs on the expanded staff.

"I am going to take the job," Graham said, "and it's up to this board whether or not I continue to serve here. I am going to leave the decision up to you and I assure you there'll be no hard feelings if you don't think it proper for me to continue as supervisor. I have been out of work for a year and I must find a job of some kind. I think I can handle the job offered me."

Graham explained that while the property of holding a job as a county employee and serving on the county board might be questioned, there is no doubt about its legality.

Supervisor Walter Munyon of Lansing left off the praises as Graham left the room. Munyon said he would recommend Graham for any job. Supervisor Hubert Bullen of Aurelius said the board

Box Elder Bugs Invade House

Box elder bugs from the trees of neighbors have taken possession of the home of Mrs. Segar S. Childs of 331 Steele street.

Mrs. Childs is fighting back them. She has dislodged pockets of them. She appeared before the city council Monday night to ask aid in forcing her neighbors to join the battle. She has had her own box elder trees cut but a neighbor won't cut his trees, Mrs. Childs told the council.

Mayor C. H. Hall said he would be unable to refer the complaint to the bug committee because that's one committee the council doesn't have. He promised to make an investigation of the situation himself.

Mrs. Childs said that with cold weather the black and red box elder bugs swarmed over and into her house. She presented the aldermen with a bottle of specimens and said she swept up dead bugs by the peck after every application of spray. Yet she can't keep even, she declared. There are always more bugs under the shingles, in the attic, in kitchen, bedroom and dining room.

Entomologists at Michigan State college, questioned about box elder bugs Tuesday, said the only certain remedy is to cut every box elder tree. Spraying will control but will not wipe out the bugs, the entomologists explained.

State Reassigns Game Wardens

Walter Muchler of Coldwater is now Ingham conservation officer, relieving J. D. Hammar, who has been shifted to the south half of Jackson county.

Mrs. Hammar, Stephen, who attends Walters school, and Vicki, 2, are leaving their Klipp road home this week to join Hammar in Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Muchler and their two daughters, one nine and the other a child of 18 months, are expected to move to Mason this week.

Hammar has had two tours of duty in Ingham, the first in 1938 and 1939. After his discharge from the service December 1, 1945, he returned to Ingham to serve until his assignment to Jackson. He was wounded in the war.

Mayor Seeking City Assessor For Vacancy

John Carroll Resigns, Frank W. Dakin Refuses Appointment to Post

Mayor C. H. Hall is looking for a city assessor to fill the vacancy resulting from the resignation of John H. Carroll.

Carroll submitted his resignation Monday night, explaining his inability to devote the time necessary to do the job. Frank W. Dakin, appointed by the mayor to fill the vacancy, refused to take it.

"I was turned down for supervisor at the polls last month," Dakin explained to the Ingham County News, "and I don't think it would now be right or proper for me to take an appointive job."

Even though the mayor and friends of the former supervisor insisted that appointment as city assessor is a testimonial to his ability and integrity, Dakin flatly refused to accept it.

"If people had wanted me in office they would have re-elected me," Dakin insisted.

Harold L. Barnhill defeated Dakin by nine votes for first ward supervisor and alderman November 8. Dakin was the candidate of the Independent party, Barnhill of the Peoples party. Hall was the candidate of the Peoples party but crossed party lines to offer the position to Dakin.

"I figured Dakin as the man best qualified to fill the vacancy," explained the mayor. "As a member of the board of review, Frank is well informed on assessments, and people have confidence in him. I am disappointed over his refusal."

The mayor praised the services of Carroll as assessor.

"John has done a good job," continued the mayor. "He made a study of assessments and placed the roll on a systematic and businesslike basis."

Carroll teaches at Lansing Eastern and operates a greenhouse and nursery at Mason. He just didn't have time enough left over to serve as assessor, he told the mayor.

The assessor job pays $450 a year.

Mayor Makes No Changes

Mayor Hall made no changes in appointive officers Monday. He reappointed everyone on the list. Rumors that City Attorney O. J. Hood would be out of a job because he participated in the Independent caucus proved unfounded.

The mayor upheld by $10 a year the salary of an assistant fire chief to be named by the firemen. He also gave S. L. Demore a raise of $100 a year. Those were the only increases.

The appointees were Leland Austin, fire chief, $100 a year, with another $40 a year for serving as fire warden; Wayne Curtis, superintendent of streets and sewers, $110 an hour; Ralph Hall and Kenneth Merindorf, policemen, $2,400 a year; Emory Colby, relief policeman, $750 per night; O. J. Hood, city attorney, $50 per hour; Claude Smith, electrical inspector, $50 per hour; disposal plant operator, $2,800; Clarence Bickert, member of board of cemetery trustees, no salary; Walter B. Zimmer, city engineer, no specific salary; and Ralph Hall, building inspector, no salary.

Mayor Hall renamed the board of appeals under the zoning ordinance and put back all except one on the traffic commission. No pay goes with the jobs. Alderman Barnhill succeeds Frank Dakin on the traffic commission. Leo H. Harrison, Ralph Hall and City Clerk George Kellogg are the hold-over members. Alderman Gerald Parsons, Leo Austin, Ralph Adams, Raymond H. McLean and Al Rice make up the zoning appeal board.

The raises for the doctors and nurses in November were approved after heated debate by a 22-10 vote. Supervisor Charles Woods of Ingham was one of the dissenters. Monday he told his colleagues that he was tempted to say, "I told you so."

"I won't say it, though," declared Woods, "but I will say supervisors shouldn't tell employees in October what their salaries are going to be, and then tell them something else in November."

County department heads may adjust salaries, giving increases where compensating cuts are made, where vacancies remain unfilled.

Supervisors Deny Wage Raises to County Workers

Department Heads Can Adjust Salaries Within Budgets Set by Board

Ingham supervisors voted unanimously Monday to keep county salaries within department budgets established in October. They turned down a request by county officers to open up salary schedules again.

Last month the county board authorized higher salaries for the health department staff. The increases will be paid from salaries set up for unfilled positions, the supervisors said at the time. Action in November resulted in the request received by the board Monday.

School Superintendent Alton J. Stud, Sheriff Allan A. MacDonal, County Clerk C. Ross Hill, Treasurer Lyle B. Austin, Registrar Ethel L. Phillips, Probation Officer Lloyd Service, County Agent Donald Curry, Judge John McClellan of the probate court and Drain Commissioner Gerald L. Graham signed the request.

The county officials commended the board for raising the salaries of doctors and nurses and then suggested that raises are warranted in other departments.

The signed request set forth that the supervisors had made no provisions for county pensions, a principle that industry is now accepting, and that the county salary scales are not in line with living costs. The communication suggested that because coal and welfare food will not increase and the money thus saved on welfare could be used to cover increases of county employees.

Graham Makes Report

Supervisor Marshall S. Graham, chairman of the salaries committee, presented the recommendation that no action be taken, as salaries are adjustable by department heads so long as each department is within its budget and salaries are approved by this board.

The raises for the doctors and nurses in November were approved after heated debate by a 22-10 vote. Supervisor Charles Woods of Ingham was one of the dissenters. Monday he told his colleagues that he was tempted to say, "I told you so."

Heap Big Powwow

Mrs. Mary Martinez and her son Ramon are here pointing out to Attorney Howard McCowan the spot where Vevay township's alleged Indian massacre didn't occur. Mrs. Martinez is a Cherokee Indian and a real outdoors woman. She operates the tractor on the 228-acre Alton Jewett farm, does her full share on the end of a crosscut saw and is shepherdess of the Jewett flock of sheep. She braids her hair. Both she and her son wear earrings. Mrs. Martinez is usually attired in men's clothing as she was Monday when this picture was taken.

UN Picks William Richards For Big Job in Europe

William F. Richards will have a major part in helping Europe establish a milk industry.

Richards is leaving his business at St. Johns for four or five months to serve as plant equipment engineer and technician for the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. He will advise the governments of European nations on the technical problems of building and operating milk-drying plants, and the installation and operation of the equipment. He is also assigned to assist the administration of UN in making appraisals of proposals submitted by European governments for establishing milk industries.

Before entering business for himself in St. Johns three years ago Richards was manager of the Mason plant of Wyeth Incorporated at Mason.

The former Mason man is scheduled to leave New York January 9 on a flight to Paris. His work will take him all over Europe, even behind the Iron Curtain where UN is building milk plants so Europeans can feed their own children. Plants which Richards will oversee are being or will be erected in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Greece and Malta.

William Richards, Jr., will manage the St. Johns business while his father is in Europe.

William F. Richards, internationally known in the milk industry, spent 25 years in Mason. He came fresh out of Alma college in 1920 when Telling-Beil-Vernon Co. of Cleveland was building a plant here. He helped with the installation of equipment and the building of the plant.

Cherokee Woman Denies Attacking Four Armed Men

Mason Justice Court Jury Will Determine Monday Whether Indian Woman Intended to Cut Hay or Was Threatening Four Men Armed With Shotguns

Did Mrs. Mary Martinez of Mason intend to use a knife to cut twine on baled hay or was she on the warpath? That's the question a jury in Justice Roy W. Adams' court will have to decide in Mason Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Martinez, a Cherokee woman who helps operate Alton Jewett's 228-acre farm, stands accused of brandishing a knife Sunday noon when four hunters and four or five dogs invaded the barnyard at the farm. The hunters claim they were just reconnoitering with Ramon Martinez who had shot at and missed one of the dogs. Martinez, the son of the woman charged with assault and battery, was shooting at the dog under the verbal and written orders of Jewett to shoot any dog that entered the field where sheep were being fed. That's within the law, and no charge of any kind was placed against the son.

Donald Hawkins of Holt signed the complaint charging Mrs. Martinez with assault. Accompanying the complaining witness on the hunting expedition were his father, Frank Hawkins of Mason, his step-brother, Harold Bishop, 15, of Mason, and Aubrey Smith of Holt. There were also five hounds.

No one was hurt, not even Spot, the dog that didn't know Alton Jewett didn't want him in the field.

Woman Using Knife on Hay

The Martinez version is that Mrs. Martinez was in the barn cutting twine on bales of hay which she was throwing to the 140 sheep in the Jewett flock. The son was outside. He saw the dog coming through the field. He had received orders from Jewett to shoot any dog which entered the enclosure. Upon seeing the dog, Martinez said, he went into the house to get a rifle left there by Jim Kramer, who has trapping rights on the place.

Martinez said he shouted to the men to call off their dog. The men, if they heard, did not heed. The dog kept coming. Martinez pulled up and fired. He missed. Immediately one of the men shot at him. Martinez declared. The hunters told officers they did not shoot toward Martinez.

Mrs. Martinez said she heard one shot in the barn and ran outside and around the corner to see the hunters ranged around her son with their guns toward him.

Her knife which she usually carried in a scabbard had been missing for the twine on bales of hay. Mrs. Martinez asserted. She said she found it in the barn where she had been cutting hay. She had that knife, still in its scabbard, and the kitchen knife she had been using to cut the twine, in her hands when she went outside to see what the hunters were about, she related.

Those knives might have been in her hands, she told a representative of the Ingham County News, when she stepped between her son and the men threatening him. But she did not intend to use them, she insisted, and she threw them down when her son suggested it.

Hunters Give Version

Bishop declared that the party was hunting on the John McGinn farm when Spot picked up a scent which led him to the line fence and into the field with the sheep. He said he saw Martinez get the rifle and shoot at the dog. The bullet struck the ground a foot from Spot, the Bishop boy claimed. Bishop denied that anyone shot toward Martinez.

The hunters climbed the fence. Bishop said, and went up to Martinez to tell him not to shoot the dog. He and Donald Hawkins were within a few feet of Martinez. Bishop continued, when Mrs. Martinez came from around a corner of the barn. As she rounded the corner, Bishop declared, she whipped a knife from beneath her jacket and held the weapon clamped in her hand as though to strike.

But she didn't strike with the knife, Bishop said. He denied that he or young Hawkins pointed their guns at Martinez or his mother.

Hunters Make Retreat

The hunters backed off the farm, took their dogs, and drove into Mason. They saw Judge Adams. Young Hawkins signed the complaint. Judge Adams issued the warrant at 2:30 Sunday afternoon after conferring with Prosecutor Charles R. MacLean over the telephone.

Armed with the warrant and loaded weapons, three sheriff's deputies sped to the battleground. They had notified Herschel Jewett, the farm owner's son, of the Indian outbreak. He followed in his car, he said, to intercede for the woman.

The deputies reached the shack without a shot being fired, or a tomahawk being thrown. The cabin door was locked. Jewett wrenched the lock from the door and the officers seized the 22 rifle and a knife from inside. The Cherokee woman and her son had taken to the woods, the officers concluded. They returned to Mason empty-handed, leaving word with Walter Peters at the bus station to notify the sheriff's office if Mrs. Martinez bought a ticket for Oklahoma, Texas or Mexico.

Hunted Were at Movie

Neither Mrs. Martinez nor her son tried to buy a ticket. They hit the trail for Mason after feeding the sheep, walking into town to attend Stampede—Deadliest Range War Show—Explode on the Screen. It was at the Fox theatre.

Not knowing they were being sought by officers, Mrs. Martinez and her son went to the taxi stand after the show and rode the 2 1/2 miles south on US-127 to feed the sheep again. When they arrived they found the footprints in the snow. The Indians identified the animal set as belonging to Deputy Verle Babcock, the middle-sized prints as having been made by Deputy Scott Hamman and the biggest set as belonging to Deputy Kenneth Merindorf. The Cherokees quickly recognized the heavy prints made by Herschel Jewett. There were also sheep tracks.

Minus her cutlery, Mrs. Martinez had to use her embroidery scissors to break open another bale of hay. After feeding the sheep she and her son returned to Mason to spend the night with friends. They said they were afraid to stay at the farm.

Deputies Called Off

In the meantime, as the Westerns have it, Sheriff Allan A. MacDonal learned of the happenings out in the Indian country. He looked at the unserved warrant charging only assault and battery and told his trail-warden deputies to unsaddle their horses. The sheriff said he was certain Mrs. Martinez would report to his office when notified.

So she did. On Monday morning Herschel Jewett found Mrs. Martinez and her son back at the farm and brought them to Mason. They went to the sheriff's office. Judge Adams appeared along with Howard McCowan, an attorney.

Mrs. Martinez stood mute in both English and Cherokee as the judge read the warrant. He released the woman on her own recognizance to appear for trial Monday afternoon at 1:30.

Attorneys Prepare Cases

Prosecutor MacLean dispatched Assistant Lawrence Lindemore to the battleground Monday morning to make an investigation. He went with the trial. Lindemore conferred with Frank and Donald Hawkins, Bishop and Smith in the sheriff's office Wednesday afternoon.

McCowan has been conferring with his son, Leo, and has also been digging deep into law books. Wednesday he came up with a Michigan statute which makes it a felony for anyone to incite an Indian to violate the law.

Mrs. Martinez and her son have been on the Jewett farm two years. They live in a 12x14 shelter. Mother and son share the farming duties. They also cut wood in the winter. They get free rent, wood for fuel, and a sheep for taking care of the flock. They draw pay for other work.

Alton Jewett said he gave permission to the Hawkins family to hunt on his land during the bird season only, with the stipulation that no dogs would be permitted on his farm.

Jim Kramer has a trapping pack in the woods along a creek. He said he has never had any trouble with Mrs. Martinez or her son. Vevay Supervisor Wilfred Jewett, Alton's nephew, declared no one has ever lodged a complaint with him about the Indian family.

Mrs. Martinez was born on a Cherokee reservation in Oklahoma. She left the reservation as a child and then lived in Texas and Oklahoma before coming to Michigan as a migrant farm worker.

Services Saturday For Harry Hodges

Harry H. Hodges, a life-long resident of this community, died Thursday morning at a convalescent home in Kinneyville, in Onondaga township, at the age of 82.

Hodges was born February 11, 1887, in the Hubbard district, the son of Elizabeth Hubbard and Hiram Hodges. As a youth he attended the Hubbard school. His brothers, Frank and Fred, and sister, Minnie, preceded him in death. His wife, Corna Scofield Hodges, died July 31, 1914, at Lansing.

For several years Hodges worked as a farmer in the Hubbard district. He left the farm to work at Wyeth Incorporated 26 years ago.

Mrs. Bonnie Bodrie, a niece, is the only survivor.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday afternoon at two o'clock from the Jewett funeral home. Burial will be in Maple Grove cemetery.

Home Fashion Notes From Ann

Miss Ann Zimmerman

If you haven't already seen the line of kitchen accessories called BEAUTIFUL LIVES, you should make it a point to come in and look them over. As their name implies, they coordinate the qualities of beauty and utility.

The entire line is finished in baked enamel with gay, hand-painted designs. The pieces are distinguished by a clever scalloped edge. Another of the unusual features is the hinged lid on the canisters, which is so much easier to handle in a busy kitchen than the old-fashioned tight covers.

Included in the line are all the necessary kitchen accessories such as wastebaskets, paper towel holders, spice shakers, plant holders, complete canister sets etc.

After you see the gay colors and unusual styling, I'm sure you'll agree with me that a few of these pieces would give a lift to any kitchen. Why not put them on your gift list for yourself.

"The Campbells Are Coming" Is Presented by Seniors

Mason seniors did a good job in presenting their play, "The Campbells Are Coming," Thursday and Friday nights. The profit totaled $220. Mrs. Joyce Bristol served as director, assisted by Miss Rynda Horning.

Janis Dart portrayed the good-hearted Ma Brannigan who lived for her grandchildren, Dick (Herbert Bushnell), Betty (Beverly Quinn), Kaye (Joan Lear), Jim

Rickly artfully played the part of Cyrus Scudder, Ma's suitor. The play centered around Kaye's love life. She met Kingston Campbell (Clay Braden), while attending a fashionable school in the east. The two became engaged, much against the wishes of Mrs. Campbell and the Brannigans. Mrs. Campbell thought the Brannigans were hillbillies because they lived in the Ozarks, and the Brannigans wanted Kaye to marry Jeff Scudder (Jim Burgess), Cyrus Scudder's nephew.

Things really started happening when the Brannigans turned their respective nieces into a veritable pig sty in an effort to shock the Campbells when they came for a visit. Donna Hunt did a good job enacting Kingston's shocked Ma.

As it turned out in the end, Mrs. Campbell was a hillbilly in her youth, and related to the Brannigans' servant girl, Catalpa (Tapp Shirley Bell), and her puppy, Billy (Gene Every). Shirley and Gene really acted their parts. The Brannigans did succeed in breaking up the Kaye-Kingston romance and Kaye and Jeff Scudder were reunited.

Clay Braden and Joan Lear turned in star performances as the stuck-up Kaye and Kingston. Beverly Quinn and Herman Bushnell acted like typical younger sister and brothers do as far as older sister's love affairs are concerned.

The seniors presented gifts to Mrs. Bristol and Miss Horning in appreciation of the work they had done.

Lions Entertain Mason Gridders

Mason Lions put out the welcome mat Wednesday night to Mason high school's great 1949 ball team at the fifth annual football banquet sponsored by the club. The co-champions of the Capital Circuit, their parents, members of the faculty, Lions and guests gathered in the dining room of the Masonic Temple. One hundred and fifty were present.

Reserve Coach Don Funk and Coach Lou Loe introduced members of their squads. Funk had 26 men on the reserve squad who won 27 letter winners on the varsity. Coach Loe also introduced the cheerleaders.

Lions President Gerald Graham called on Carl Jewett for a few remarks and then turned the rest of the evening over to Warren Huey, of the Michigan State coaching staff. Huey showed movies of the Michigan State-Notre Dame game.

Lion Bud Swinehart was in charge of the banquet plans. Mason Boy Scouts waited on tables. The dinner was prepared by the mothers of the Scouts.

Aldermen Amend Air Gun Measure

Aldermen lifted Mason's proposed 23 gun ordinance from the table Monday night. They amended it by dropping the age at which customers can buy air guns and slingshots. The minimum age was 18. Under the amendment offered by Alderman Frank Evans the age was changed to 16.

The proposed ordinance will come up for decision December 19. If it is adopted it will become law. It will be a misdemeanor to use firearms, including air guns and slingshots, within 20 yards of any street or dwelling. Parents will be responsible for permitting children under 18 using air guns contrary to ordinance.

A proposed ordinance to change city assessment and tax laws to conform to the new state law was held up to permit City Attorney O. J. Hood to consult with Mason supervisors and assessors.

The aldermen adopted a resolution which, when approved by the Federal Housing Authority, will give Mason control of the five duplex homes on East Columbia.

City Fire Loss Hits High Total

Mason's 1949 fire loss reached $202,380, an all-time high, Fire Chief Leland Austin informed the council Monday night.

All except $2,000 of the total resulted from the big blaze last January in which the three stores owned by Mrs. Bertha Schlack were destroyed.

Had it not been for the big fire, the 1949 total would have been the lowest in history, the fire chief said.

Mason firemen answered 39 city and 30 rural alarms during the year, Austin reported. The rural loss totaled $72,975, with the bulk of it at the Chellis Hall farm in Vevay August 9.

Ten of the 39 city alarms resulted from grass fires. There were five automobile fires and five oil space heater runs.

Miller's Drivers Get Safety Awards

Eighteen men were honored last Wednesday night at the annual safety award dinner for drivers of the Miller Dairy Farms held at the guest lodge of the V. F. W. National Home. There were 28 present.

Besides the awards by the Wolverine Insurance company, checks ranging from $25 to $15 per person were given to Lewis Beals, Jay Bush, Francis Casler, Ernest Eckhart, Arthur Garner, Marsden Germaine, Oliver Goodrich, Glen Holgate, Frederick Jackson, Morris Jowett, Louis Philipp, Arthur Simpson, Bryce Thomson, Ted Winters, Dick Winters, Otto Zienert, Larry Casault and Harvey Kamp.

Sam Bell and Norman Harris of the Wolverine Insurance company and Harold Lillie of the Lansing Safety council also attended the safety meeting. Lillie was the principal speaker.

BUYERS IN DETROIT
Mr. and Mrs. Forest Smith were in Detroit Monday and Tuesday on a buying trip for The Paristyle Shoppe.

Violets and other dish garden plants have just arrived at Jewett's Flower Shop, Mason.

Leaders Confer at Scout Camp

The courses offered at the conference were patrol and troop organization and leadership, patrol and troop program planning, patrol and troop hiking, patrol and troop camping and explorers leaders course.

Arnold Spurrell, John Stauffer, Maurice Larner and Roy Greenman, Lansing; Roscoe Arnold, Dansville; and Floyd Lott, Holt, were staff leaders.

Kenneth Broberg, Henry Salisbury, Jr., Lawrence Heller, Richard Linn, Robert Rix, Robert Stebbins, Thomas Pinkbrier, Frank Johnson, Charles Hafer, Gale Gamble, Robert Cornell and Ray White, Lansing; Dean Crandall, Charles Brown, Don Scofield and Rueli Kruse, Mason; Vince Carlen, Phil Arnold, Charles Weeks and David Overholt, Dansville; Vernon VanRiper, Webberville; and Robert Reed, Grovenburg, participated in the course. The committee on physical arrangements included Explorer Scouts Amos Clafin, Bud Miller and Dick Fluke of Holt Explorer Post 342 and John Hedglen and Dick Remalia of Dansville Troop 70.

In Justice Court

Last Friday Justice of the Peace Roy Adams adjourned the examination of Wayne Turner until Friday of this week. Turner was being examined on a breaking and entering charge as an accomplice of John Lee. Lee pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Holmes store at the corner of 8th and Nichols roads November 8. At the time of his arrest he said he did the job alone. Later a warrant was issued charging Turner with driving the car to the store and waiting outside while Lee entered. Turner denied knowing anything about the robbery.

The adjournment was taken to afford opportunities for Turner and Lee to take lie detector tests at the East Lansing state police post. Because a justice court trial started before Judge Adams Monday continued into Tuesday, the trials of Dale Shepherd and Mrs. Margaret Wallace, Miss Kay Barlow and Miss Joy Loudenslager are now scheduled for Tuesday of next week. Shepherd is charged with using profane and obscene language in a neighborhood quarrel with the other three. The woman was charged with assault and battery on Mrs. Shepherd. William S. Seelye of Mason is their attorney. Frederick C. Newman of Lansing is defending Shepherd.

Jurors disagreed Tuesday in the drunk driving trial of Queldellon Bishop of Holt held before Judge Adams. Officers arrested Bishop October 30 after an accident in Holt. He was charged with driving while intoxicated. He was defended by O. B. Colverson of Lansing at the trial. Emory Jewett, Homer Potter, L. J. Adams, Cordie Bashford, A. G. Spenny and Alvin Linn served on jury. The count was 5 to 1 for acquittal. The defense attorney exercised his challenges in the impounding of the jury.

Clarence Edley appeared before Judge Adams Saturday morning to plead guilty to an assault and battery charge. He paid $540 costs and was placed on probation for six months.

Bim Franklin Heads Masonic Lodge
Elmer (Bim) Franklin, Jr., was elected worshipful master of Mason Lodge No. 70, F. & A. M. Wednesday night at the Masonic hall. The fourth steward will be named at the next regular meeting of the lodge.

Thursday night, December 15, the Mason lodge will hold a joint installation with Holt Masonic Lodge No. 572. The installation services will be open to the public. Life membership certificates will also be presented at this meeting.

Aurelius Churches Will Care for Needy

Mrs. Edward Q. Daft, Mrs. Willard Droscha and Mrs. Wellington Orr of the Aurelius Baptist church and Mrs. Forest Bodell, Mrs. Harold Spink and Mrs. Carl Briggs of the North Aurelius church are on the committee.

Committee members announced they need food, clothing and toys for their project. Anyone having those articles to give, may leave them at either church or call any member of the committee and have the articles picked up.

The Mason Community Clearing House is not taking care of Aurelius needy this year. The two churches decided to take over the township project as they did last year.

Highway Commissioner Asks Restudy of Mackinac Bridge

By Gene Allman
(Michigan Press Association)
Governor C. Mennen Williams is running for re-election; I am not.

Such was the reply from Charles M. Ziegler, state highway commissioner, to recent criticism voiced by Governor Williams of the highway department. In a talk before southern Michigan road commissioners, Ziegler declared: "Williams wants to regain control of the department and has used every maneuver possible to again make it political."

The commissioner, who was re-elected in 1949, said the proposal to build a bridge at the Straits of Mackinac should be restudied by experts and hence taken out of the "realm of politics."

A bridge across the Straits of Mackinac? "No," declare three geology experts of the University of Michigan. Professor Kenneth A. Landes and two associates made a study of the geology of the straits region for the state department of conservation. Soft shale rock in the straits would not be adequate for foundations to hold bridge piers, concludes Landes.

The Michigan Department of Economic Development announced that Michigan ranks second in population increase for the period April, 1940 to July, 1948. California was first. Michigan's present population: 6,200,000.

Wholesale prices have declined about 7 1/2 per cent during the past 12 months and now are around 10 per cent under the postwar peak reached in September, 1948. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports a 12.7 per cent decline in farm prices; 8.9 per cent drop in food prices during the past 12 month period.

Among the present problems which promise to result in requests for more state spending is that of the postwar rise of sex crimes in Michigan. Governor Williams has asked the state mental health commission to make a search for an immediate solution. A Detroit daily newspaper sponsored an independent study of eight sex murders in Detroit and other cities in recent years, and the survey came to the conclusion that additional state facilities were urgently needed. Prospect is new demands for state aid.

Auditor General Muel K. Allen reports that the state collected and returned to local governments three dollars for every dollar retained by the state for state services during the past fiscal year. Total of state aid payments was $300,863,726, as compared to state cost of institutions, departments and maintenance of highways and building amounting to $102,925,073.

Allen points out that expenditures for the past year were over 18 million dollars higher than previous. He makes this prediction: "Under the present financial structure, if and when sales tax revenues take a nose-dive, the inevitable result will be financial chaos in the general fund."

Governor Williams is said to still hold the firm conviction that new taxes will be needed in 1950 because of postwar inflation and constitutional diversion of sales tax revenues back to local governments.

If further inflation in 1950 results in higher prices and continued high consumer spending, it is entirely possible that the threatened treasury deficit may be delayed or at least kept to a low amount. Republican legislative leaders appear to be gambling that no deficit will develop or, if at all, the deficit will be nominal. To impose new taxes in an election year is not popular with many legislators.

Building facilities at the Michigan state fair are wholly inadequate for present needs, declares Lawrence D. Friel, general manager, in a report to Governor Williams. Since the coliseum was constructed in 1921, "no major building" has been erected at the fair grounds.

Friel concludes that Michigan lags far behind Indiana, Wisconsin, Ohio and Minnesota in the state fair facilities. While it is unlikely that anyone will dispute the judgment of Friel, it is equally unlikely that the legislature will grant new funds for needed state fair improvements, especially in view of the financial situation confronting the state and the local governments.

Former Governor Harry F. Kelly is said to be cool to urgent appeals that he announce his candidacy for governor in competition with State Treasurer D. Hale Brake and Secretary of State Fred M. Alger, Jr.

Librarians Due Friday to Study Bookmobile Plan

Bookmobile librarians from all over Michigan will meet at the Mason library in Lansing, Friday, December 8, to study the plan for a new bookmobile service. The plan, which was developed by the Michigan State Library, will provide for a new bookmobile service in the Lansing area.

Miss Barbara Stratton, director of extension work at Michigan state library is general chairman of the program. After a welcome from Miss Alta Parks, Ingham county librarian, Miss Jean Johnson of the Cadillac office of the state library will discuss the purpose of the meeting. Guest speaker for the day is Miss Dorothy Strauss, librarian from Lansing county, Maumee, Ohio. She is considered a leader in bookmobile work and will talk on "Making the Most of Your Bookmobile."

Mrs. Lela Fynn, state librarian, Mrs. Grace Burgett, consultant for the lower part of the Lower Peninsula, and Miss Stratton will act as discussion leaders on "Objectives of Bookmobile Service." Small groups will talk over processes and routines that can be modified.

Mrs. Noel Miller, Ingham county's bookmobile librarian, will be one of the panel members discussing "How We Operate Our Bookmobiles." The "Library on Wheels," a recording made for Cuyahoga county library, Ohio, will end the day.

Sparrow Hospital Shows Interest In Convalescent Unit

When the polio cases now at the county convalescent hospital are released, the E. W. Sparrow hospital board may take it over as an annex.

The county does not intend to dispose of the hospital while it is needed for treatment of polio cases, Supervisor Marshall S. Graham of Lansing reported Monday.

The convalescent hospital at 2901 East Michigan in Lansing was leased by the county from the city of Lansing three years ago. It was built and long-maintained by the city of Lansing to house contagious disease cases. When state laws were changed to ban the quarantining of many diseases, the city had no use for the building. The county did, because at that time state welfare regulations allowed forced the county to hospitalize sick and infirm persons on relief.

Welfare regulations were then changed so that convalescent and chronic sick welfare patients can now be cared for in private convalescent and nursing homes. The change will save the county an estimated $50,000 a year, Relief Director David Minnis said, and will make operation of the county convalescent hospital unnecessary.

With the outbreak of the polio epidemic last summer, convalescent patients were moved out and the hospital was made a polio treatment center.

The county has a 10-year lease on the building, with the privilege of purchase at a price fixed by appraisers.

Supervisor Graham told his colleagues Monday that the Sparrow hospital board is definitely interested in either taking over the county lease or buying the building from the city of Lansing.

St. Lawrence is not interested in leasing or buying the property, Graham reported. He explained that St. Lawrence executives said the county hospital is too far away from St. Lawrence to give necessary supervision for operation as an annex.

Had not the hospital, both Supervisor Graham and Supervisor Ward Vicary of Bunker Hill declared.

Vicary is chairman of the health committee which will assume control of the hospital when the welfare department terminates its responsibility January 1.

The county has no intention of closing the hospital, both Supervisor Graham and Supervisor Ward Vicary of Bunker Hill declared.

Vicary is chairman of the health committee which will assume control of the hospital when the welfare department terminates its responsibility January 1.

Donald Teel of Lansing appeared before the county board Monday morning to urge the supervisors to continue operation of the hospital. He said $40,000 has been spent there this year to care for polio patients, with $9,000 coming from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Charles Strong, president of the Lansing chapter of the polio organization, and Ernest Bates of Lansing, regional supervisor for the National Foundation, joined with Teel in urging the health committee to continue operating the hospital. The three specifically sought to have the hospital continued under the professional management. They are not opposed to lease or purchase of the hospital by Sparrow.

When the welfare board operated the hospital there were 40 beds for convalescents and 10 beds for contagious disease patients. Under the polio setup, 60 beds have been made available.

That's All

A Tribute to John P. Espie

By Vernon J. Brown

Anyone who has ever served in the Michigan House of Representatives since 1923 will remember many an occasion when John Espie would rise from his seat and in a few vigorous and well rounded words express his convictions regarding the measure then under consideration. John never minced words, he never dodged an issue, and he never straddled. Invariably, when he had finished, probably unconscious that he did so, he would close with the crisp pronouncement, "That's all."

The expression never seemed to convey the idea that John was through or that more could not be said. It always seemed to me he intended to say, "Those are the facts as I believe them to be and that is my opinion and that is the way I intend to vote on this measure."

Those two words from him betokened quality and seemed to add emphasis to what had been said. Over the years they frequently meant either the passage or the death of the bill.

Such was the influence of rugged John Paxton Espie, gained over the years and resulting from a knowledge of government and an understanding of its human elements possessed by but few.

He Had Wide Acquaintance

Probably no man in public life in this state enjoyed a wider acquaintance with leaders in business and the professions; with farm leaders; with educators and with every person, group or organization that had occasion to interest themselves in matters pending before the legislature. For a longer period than any other member of the legislature John P. Espie had been a member of the ways and means committee and for a longer period than any other he had served as its chairman. He was credited with a keener knowledge of the actual needs of the various state agencies than any other member of the legislature. During his 26 years in the legislature he served on a great many study commissions including that of 1932 when along with this writer he was a member of that nine-member "Commission of Inquiry Into State Governmental Expense," the result of which was a reduction of almost $10,000,000 in the annual expense of the state.

In 1948 the University of Michigan, in recognition of Representative Espie's long and notable career, conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of public administration. That honor, deserved as it was, was universally acclaimed by press and public and brought to John Espie probably his proudest moment.

Impediment No Handicap

Handicapped by a most severe impediment in his speech, John refused to permit it to hinder his progress. Instead he actually turned it on many an occasion to his own advantage. In private conversation his stammering was at times an annoyance but when he was warmed up for an address, speech or debate, he soon threw the handicap aside and on occasion rose to the heights of oratory, employing with ease the most carefully phrased and as carefully enunciated arguments.

Beginning his public life as a township supervisor, he never lost sight of his background and throughout his long career spoke for rural life and the people of the farms. Notwithstanding this he earned the high regard of those whose interests were of the city. Denied the advantages of a college education, he became during the past few years, an influential advocate of adequate support for the colleges and the university. Again he took keen interest in the welfare of the patients in our mental hospitals and frequently fought their battles on the floor of the house as well as in the committee room.

A son lost his life in World War II, a sorrow that the devoted father could never completely throw aside. He was killed in a plane crash in England as he was beginning his journey home after the fighting in Germany was over.

The first Mrs. Espie died, leaving her aged mother who had made her home with the Espies for several years. John insisted that she remain as before and after his second marriage they continued to care for his mother-in-law whose infirmities made her care a serious matter. John never complained. He brushed aside any thought of unusual kindness by the comment, "She was always good to me."

Testifying to the universal esteem in which he was held, his last rites were attended Monday by men and women prominent in every phase of Michigan's life. There were presidents of colleges and the university with their vice-presidents, their deans and their administrative officials; there were judges and lawyers; there were state officials, past and present, with the present governor and a former governor among them; there were members of the legislature, past and present, from every section of the state, one at least from the Upper Peninsula. Along with them were friends and neighbors and constituents who had long honored themselves by honoring him.

Even the so-called lobbyists who never bothered John in the least came to pay their respects to a man of unquestioned integrity.

"That's all" was John's frequent expression, even in private conversation. So the people of Michigan say to John, "That's all for this life, but your example and the pattern of life you set for yourself and so faithfully followed shall remain as a guide and inspiration for those who will follow."

"That's all, John."

Father Disowns Building Code

Alderman Gerald Parsons who fathered a building code for Mason now disowns it.

The 58-page document being readied for introduction is too long. It has so many provisions that few of them will be enforced. All Mason needs is a simple set of rules to prevent the building of unsafe and unsightly shacks. That's what Parsons told other aldermen Monday night when Mayor C. H. Hall urged the special committee to hurry up its report.

Aldermen Frank Evans and John Taylor pointed out that building regulations must be specific, and that all builders can well afford to spend the time needed to learn the provisions of an ordinance adopted to save them from danger and from financial loss.

Mayor Hall renounced the members of the special building code committee, City Engineer Walter R. Zimmer, City Attorney O. J. Hood, Ray Whipple and Coland Lamphere are on it.

Judge Recesses Gas Tax Dispute

In Mason Friday Judge James E. O'Neill of Saginaw recessed until January 9, 1950, the chancery suit of the Roosevelt Oil Co. against the secretary of state. Judge O'Neill was in Mason two weeks in October and all last week hearing testimony and arguments.

The oil firm insists that the state's method of determining gasoline tax accountability against the Mt. Pleasant company over the seven-month period between January 1 and July 31, 1948, is wrong. Auditors for the gasoline tax division of the secretary of state's office claim the method is correct. There is a difference of some 600,000 gallons of gasoline between the production figures of the oil company and those of the state.

During the recess between October 28 and November 28 state auditors and Ernst & Ernst auditors checked and compared production figures. When the trial was resumed November 28 the auditors were about as far apart as they were before the recess.

By agreement reached Friday, Alfred Larson, an auditor representing the state, will again go over a computation prepared by Ernst & Ernst and by January 1 will notify Albert M. Stern, Detroit attorney retained by Roosevelt Oil, of the figures which the state accepts.

Assistant Attorney General Ernest O. Zirkhous turned over Roosevelt gas returns for other periods in 1945, 1946 and 1947 for the scrutiny of Stern and Ernst & Ernst accountants.

Roosevelt Oil Co. has $60,000 in government bonds put up as security for tax liability in the present suit. Stern indicated Friday he might ask for a hearing to have the bonds returned. If the hearing is held it will be conducted before Judge O'Neill in Saginaw.

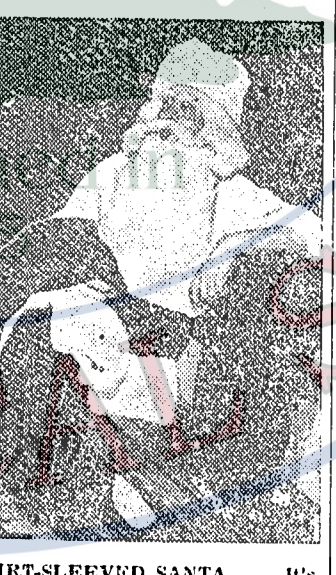

No fraud is charged in the bill of complaint. The dispute arose over a difference of opinion on gasoline production and refinery losses.

Former Pastor Dies in England

Word has been received of the death, at the home of his daughter in Birmingham, England, of Rev. John Oliver Vince, who was pastor of the Leslie Baptist church from 1903 to 1908. His death was sudden on the night of Tuesday, November 22. That evening he spent discussing his sermon of the previous Sunday but during the night he was taken suddenly ill and expired within a few minutes.

He was a native of England but served a number of Baptist pastories in this country. Upon his return to England he entered the ministry of the Church of England and was rector at Rufforth, near York, at the time of his death. He was rector of a London parish for 16 years after his return to England.

Christmas carols express better than anything else, probably, the true spirit of Christmas.

The word "carol" itself signifies joy and was originally used to accompany a dance. William Wallace Fyfe concludes that the term carol "signifies a song of joy or exultation." Another definition states: "A carol is a hymn of praise especially such as is sung at Christmas in the open air."

In England, which gave America most of its carols, they were sometimes gay and sometimes convivial until the time of the Puritans, who tried to suppress the Christmas spirit.

After the Restoration, the religious nature of the day was for a time almost forgotten in the reaction from Puritanism, and the carol was temporarily lost in the songs.

There are many quaint customs associated with the early carolers that might be used today to break the monotony of going from house to house singing Christmas hymns. It was about the 16th century that caroling became a Christmas custom, and is supposed to have been brought to England from Italy by the traveling clergy. The first real Christmas carol is attributed to St. Francis of Assisi who made a model of the Bethlehem manger to help him tell his people the Christmas story.

The idea of caroling fitted admirably into the English conception of Christmas as a combination of religious celebration and a great home day with neighborly feeling, so it grew and flourished in that country.

Little bands and groups of singers which sprung up in the towns and villages came to be known as "Waits." A natural explanation of the name seems to be that it refers to watching and waiting, for Christmas Eve is called the Vigil of Christmas.

As early as December 21, which is the day dedicated to St. Thomas, mummings and carolers would begin going from door to door, announcing the great feast at hand. It was natural for the householders to offer hospitality to these Christmas troubadours, and gradually in many places the custom of giving alms and presents of various kinds was established.

This benign custom threatened at one time in England to become a profession and to lose its original simple charm.

For a period beginning just when no one knows and ending in 1829, there were in London and Westminster companies of "Waits," whose leaders held office by public appointment and who obtained an exclusive right to solicit contributions from the public.

The carolers were often accompanied by entertainers who gave a spirit of revelry to the occasions. The mummings often interrupted the singing to give their interpretation of "St. George and the Dragon." Tumbler, dressed in bright red, would perform their arts of skill to entertain the onlookers.

A & P Asks Public to Consider True Issues of Anti-Trust Suit

Recent statements by government anti-trust lawyers on the case against The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company are being refuted by the company.

The company claims that the success of the civil action will destroy A & P, raise the cost of food and increase the likelihood of similar attacks on other chain stores.

The company states the anti-trust lawyers are "trying, by court decision, to impose a new kind of economic policy on the people of this country. If they succeed in destroying A & P, they will be destroying the method of distribution that has helped to make the American standard of living the envy of the world," the A & P states.

The A & P arguments are directed against claims made by anti-trust representatives in speeches, radio talks, letters and newspaper releases. The Washington lawyers say that the suit will not close a single A & P store, will result in lower food prices and will only affect A & P.

The A & P points out that the suit is being asked to "break up A & P's retail stores into seven groups, each of which must be sold to different owners, and operated under new management" and to "order us to call A & P factories which produce many of the fine foods you find in our stores, to still other new owners."

"None of the present owners, who have made A & P what it is today, can have anything to do with either the stores or the factories,"

"No one can predict what the policies of the new owners of the various parts of A & P will be. Nor, despite the anti-trust lawyers' statements, can anyone tell how many A & P stores will remain open or will be closed. So while there may be a food store where your A & P is now located, it won't be your A & P store. Make no mistake about it. If the anti-trust lawyers win their suit, it will mean the end of A & P as you know it."

The company cites reasons why the suit would result in higher food prices instead of lower costs as the government lawyers claim. The company said, "The very heart of the anti-trust lawyers' case is that A & P's methods, which they claim are illegal, have enabled the company to undersell competitors. How can anyone possibly say that you will get lower food prices by eliminating the company that has done so much to bring them down?" The suit would make A & P get rid of its manufacturing facilities which enable it to pass savings, along to consumers in the form of lower prices.

"Make no mistake about it," company officials said, "If the anti-trust lawyers succeed in putting A & P out of business, you will find your food bill higher."

In refutation of the government claim that only the A & P will be affected, the company points out that the suit can be used as a basis for an attack against other grocers and merchants in other lines.

"If A & P is destroyed," according to the company, "no businessman could safely pursue an aggressive sales policy designed to lower prices and give his customers a better deal if by so doing he takes business away from any competitor."

The company's statement concludes by saying, "Even if the anti-trust lawyers have no intention now of prosecuting other suits, a decision against A & P will establish a precedent that could be used by the present anti-trust lawyers, or any future anti-trust lawyers, to destroy any efficient business that buys cheaply, sells cheaply and grows big in the process."

By A Cheery Fireside Santa Ends His Night...

Fireside... home... family... without them Christmas is an empty box wrapped in tinsel. Christmas, in both its religious and festive aspects is sharing... participating with friends and family in the warmth of giving, the joy of being together.

Gifts at Christmas are, of course, traditional, an opportunity to pledge love and friendship. And although the gift is a symbol, we have always felt that it might carry still another purpose... a reminder of the Christmas spirit given at the holiday season and kept all year through.

Thus in the spirit of giving within the circle of family and friends, we feel that there is no finer, nor more appropriate gift than furnishings for the home. Furniture, large or small in size is a permanent reminder of your affection and of the spirit of sharing which Christmas engenders.

Of course, lots of people at Christmas time have "selection agonies"—they never know quite what to buy for the family, especially the ones that "have everything." That's where furniture becomes the ideal choice... nobody has quite everything he could use in his home.

There are OCCASIONAL CHAIRS for the men in the family who like a comfortable evening of relaxation at home; NURSE MIRRORS for the women on your list; ALADDIN AND REMBRANDT LAMPS for the newlyweds; and SPECIAL CHILDREN'S FURNITURE for the kids. And we even think that essentially practical things like HOOVER SWEEPERS are mighty acceptable, too, if they help make a job easier.

This Christmas when you review your shopping list once again, put Ball's at the top as your first stop. Look around leisurely and see for yourself how welcome a gift of furniture would be in your own home... how welcome it would therefore be in your family's.

Crash Is Fatal To Holt Youth

Richard Federman, 17, of 3655 Shreve court, Holt, was hit by a car as he walked in the vicinity of US-127 and Miller road about 8:15 o'clock Friday evening. Federman was tossed several feet, breaking both legs and injuring his head. He was taken by ambulance to Sparrow hospital, where attendants pronounced him dead on arrival.

Driver of the car which struck him was Alfred C. Fuller, 24, of 2538 Georgia street. Holt. State police said Fuller told them he was driving about 50 miles per hour when Federman leaped in front of the vehicle. Fuller said he attempted to stop, but it was too late to avoid striking young Federman.

Passengers in Fuller's car were Gerald McAdams and Walter Holt, both of Holt. They corroborated the story told by Fuller and he was not held. Walter Anderson of Route 2, Lansing, was also a witness to the accident. He said young Federman apparently walked into the path of Fuller's vehicle.

Harry E. Leadley acted as coroner and Dr. Charles Black of Williamson conducted the post mortem.

Funeral services for Federman were held at the Robinson funeral home in Lansing Monday afternoon. Burial was in Chapel Hill Memorial Gardens. Rev. Vernon T. Smith of the Holt Presbyterian church officiated.

Leslie Cagers Snatch Victory From Mason in Final Minute

By Dick Brown

A great deal of screaming, cheering basketball fans got their money's worth Tuesday night when the Leslie Blackhawks and Mason Bulldogs slugged it out right down to the finish line at Leslie. The Blackhawks finally edged across the winners, 42-40.

The game was a see-saw contest all the way with the lead changing hands eight times. Leslie pulled the elephants out of the fire in the last minute of play when Bob Coppertol connected from deep in center court to tie the score at 40-40 and Jim Budd put the game on ice with another long corner shot.

Mason almost got back in the game with only four seconds to go when Jack Davis was fouled, nullifying a last second basket by Jim Roggow. Davis topped the scoring race with 18 points and one of the best games ever turned in by a Mason player. The Leslie outfit has all the scrap of the usual Blackhawks five plus some quick shots in Budd and Coppertol. It was Bob Coppertol's work under the basket, however, that kept Leslie in the game. The big center controlled the backboards.

Mason started off the game with the lead but Leslie was never more than three points behind. At the end of the first quarter the score was knotted at 8-8. The second frame was a see-saw affair with neither team gaining any definite advantage. When the gun sounded ending the first, Mason held a 20-17 point lead.

Both teams found the range in the third quarter with the Blackhawks out in front 31-29 at the close of the period.

Davis Ties Score Davis put on a one-man show in the first few minutes of the final period and before Leslie could put out the fire the fast Mason forward racked up three buckets. The last one tied the count at 35-35, with only four minutes remaining. Both teams spent the next two minutes fighting for possession of the ball. Derry Stolz brought the Mason fans to their feet with a neat long lomp to put Mason in front.

The Blackhawks kept on driving, though, and Karl Seifert again put Leslie back in the game with a lay-up shot on a fast break. With the scoreboard reading 37-37 Stolz coolly dropped in a foul shot to put Mason back in the lead and Davis added a field goal that looked pretty good on the scoreboard to the Mason followers.

The Blackhawks would not remain down, though, and came back with the Frank Merriwell ending for the 42-40 victory. Both teams played head-up ball all the way. Mason played as good a game as has been turned in by a Bulldog five in many years. Coach Don Fink has developed a fast, balanced, smooth ball handling squad which should give a good account of itself before the season is over.

Davis topped both teams with 18 points. Budd was high for Leslie with 12 with Coppertol and Marilyn Howe close behind with 11.

Coach Walt Gephart's Blackhawks are out from the same puttern as the great Leslie team of the past. They never give up. The 1949-50 version may not be as smooth a working outfit as last year's Ingham County league champions but they will give the rest of the league plenty to worry about before the final whistle sounds next spring.

Mason walked off with the jersey from certain raiser with a 35-31 score. Mason's reserves are a small crew with plenty of fire. Stuart Taylor logged 12 points for Mason with Bruce Douglas adding nine. Pete Harkness and George Raymond share the scoring honors for Leslie with 12 points each.

Ingham's jail is rated as one of the best in the state, Jail Inspector Fred Nestle informed the Ingham supervisors Monday.

Nestle, former Gratiot sheriff and now inspector of jails for the state, commended the county for installing a deep freeze in the jail kitchen. He recommended that the iron steam kettle be replaced by a copper cooker. He told the supervisors he found the kitchen clean. He also found all other parts of the jail maintained in a sanitary condition, he asserted.

That merriest of all household decorations, the Christmas tree, can become a disappointment practically overnight. Whether it retains its needles, shape, and beauty or turns into a tinder-like fire trap is strictly up to you.

This word of caution comes from Mary Bodwell, consumer economist at Michigan State college. Here are Miss Bodwell's ABC's on caring for your tree, and suggestions for decorating:

A. Keep the tree out of doors or in the garage, with the stem in water, until you are ready to use it.

B. When you bring the tree in, cut off a piece of the stem, place the tree in a water or wet sand container, and keep it wet continually. The fresh cut lets water enter the trunk. Sap or pitch usually seals the original cut while the tree is in the lot.

In general, don't depend on chemicals or sprays for fireproofing or making needles stay on.

CAN DO "Spots" Before Your Eyes? Try This!

NO MATTER how hard you try, no matter what precautions you take, if you're a normal homo you are going to be the irritated victim, from time to time, of a varied assortment of marks, spots, smudges, smears and stains on your walls, woodwork, floors and furniture.

A continuing problem of every householder, then, is how to get rid of the marks without doing a complete refinishing job. Here are a few suggestions that help.

One of the most commonly recurring stubborn problems in a home where small children abound and bound is the presence of was crayon marks on such improbable surfaces as walls, woodwork and furniture. You can't use a rubber eraser on them with any success, as you often can with pencil marks. And you can't ignore them.

However, crayon marks, as well as grease stains, on wallpaper can be taken out if you use this method: Cover the marks with a thick layer of a soft paste made of fuller's earth or powdered chalk or whiting, moistened with a cleaning fluid—preferably a non-inflammable one, if you can find it. Let the paste remain until it is dry, and then remove it gently with a soft brush. You may find it necessary to repeat this treatment, so don't be discouraged if you don't achieve 100 per cent success with the first application.

If your wallpaper is on the elderly side and stained as a result of general use, it first should be cleaned in the area around the crayon mark with a wallpaper cleaner (sold at any good hardware store). If this cleaning is not done, the paste will leave a cleaned place surrounded by a violently contrasting dirty ring.

Another everyday problem is the task of removing unsightly ink or rust spots from linoleum. In the case of ink, if it is not of the indelible variety, simply try washing with a mild soap and a small amount of scouring powder. Should this fail, scrub the surface lightly with thick soap suds and very fine "00" steel wool. Wipe off the soap with a damp cloth and dry. Then polish with a paste was, applied in a thin coat and allowed to dry hard before rubbing.

When you are confronted with rust spots on a piece of linoleum and have been unable to get results from the soap-and-water plus mild abrasive treatment, try this alternative: Rub the spots with the fine steel wool dipped in turpentine.

STILL ANOTHER puzzler is how to remove rust film or spots from chromium pieces such as a kitchen set, or from chromium plating fixtures. Your hardware stores sells good rust solvents which serve to loosen the rust for easy cleaning. After the rust has been taken off, brighten the piece with metal polish, then wash the surface with benzine and apply a coat of clear lacquer. This treatment is effective on chrome-plated items not exposed to the weather.

Holiday Time For Pie

Serving pie for dessert is one of America's favorite habits—so much so that we say "As typically American as apple pie." Pies are especially traditional for holidays—Cherry Pie for Washington's Birthday and Pumpkin Pie for Thanksgiving.

Of course we must always have a Mince Pie for Christmas. The one pictured here—Mincemeat Cream Pie—is a new version of mince, with a layer of packaged vanilla pudding added to the top. There are other pies that really exploit the color-scheme of a special holiday. Like the Christmas Delight Pies described below. Here the cherries are molded in red cherry-flavored gelatin, then a layer of lime-flavored gelatin is added, for a bright and colorful Christmas dessert.

Bring on the pies—it's holiday time!

Mincemeat Cream Pie
1 recipe prepared vanilla pudding
1 tablespoon cup or 1/2 teaspoon rum extract
3/4 cup cherry juice
1 baked mince pie shell

Prepare pudding as directed on package. Cool slightly (about five minutes), stirring occasionally. Add rum and mix well. Spread mincemeat in bottom of pie shell. Cover with pudding. Chill.

Christmas Delight Pies
1 No. 2 can red sour pitted cherries
1 cup cherry juice and water
1 package lime-flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
2 baked mince pie shells
1 package lime-flavored gelatin
2 cups hot water
2 cups cream, whipped and sweetened
1 cup shredded coconut

Drain cherries well; reserve juice. Add enough water to juice to make 1 cup. Dissolve cherry gelatin in 1 cup hot water. Add cherry juice and water. Chill until slightly thickened. Then fold in cherries. Place 1/2 cups gelatin mixture in each pie shell. Chill until firm.

Dissolve lime gelatin in 2 cups hot water. Chill until slightly thickened. Spread a thin layer of whipped cream over firm gelatin layers. Cover with slightly thickened lime gelatin. Chill until firm. Top pies with remaining whipped cream and sprinkle with coconut.

most star place a larger candle, and the cookie tree is completed. Double your favorite sugar cookie recipe.

White Frosting Snow
Add 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar to 1/2 cup egg whites. Beat until frothy. Gradually add 5 cups sifted confectioners' sugar, beating vigorously with electric mixer or rotary egg beater until icing is fluffy and thick.

If you have missed your Christmas tea you still have a chance to go to one. The Southwest District tea is on Friday, December 9, at the Onondaga town hall. The one today is being held at the Holt Methodist church.

Christmas gifts from the kitchen have that special magic—just for you and the ones you love. Fruit cakes head the list of such gifts with cookies a close second. For next door neighbors, a pan of cinnamon rolls, a loaf of homemade bread or a basket of fresh doughnuts are happy ways to say Merry Christmas. For your city-cousins tie some red tissue paper or cellophane around a sparkling glass of jelly, and tie with a big bow. People still love to eat and tasty gifts never lose their appeal or their warm thoughtfulness.

Have any of you ever made a Christmas Cookie Tree? It's a lovely bit of holiday baking and it will take awhile to make, but the whole family can join in creating the masterpiece. It's truly magnificent and will attract more attention than your family decorated Christmas tree. Here is the way to make your Christmas masterpiece:

For the tree base use a sturdy piece of wood with a hole in the center. Firmly secure a 15-inch rod in the hole. Cut out and bake a large cookie to cover the base. Then make star-shaped cookies in graduated sizes from eight inches to one inch. (Star patterns can be obtained from office though you can make your own). Bake two cookies of each star size (11 cookies). Bake 32 small round cookies to go between the star-shaped cookies. Make a hole in the center of all cookies before baking.

With all the cookies baked, it's time to assemble the tree. Frost each cookie with a thin coating of confectioners' sugar icing. Slip the cookie which fits the base over the rod first, then 2 round cookies, the largest star cookie, 2 more rounds, another large star, and so on using the stars in graduating sizes with the smallest at the top. When all the cookies are assembled put white frosting snow (recipe below) on each branch and drifts of snow on the base using a cake decorator. On the point of each star put a little rosette of frosting and place in it a small red birthday candle. On the top and worked on sequins, beads, trims and glass etchings.

Ray Chase and Miss Lois Chase of Lansing called on Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Diamond and family Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Kenneth Robinson and children, Annetta and Gary, spent Friday night and Saturday with Mrs. Robinson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bailey.

Panthers Ready to Meet Leslie Here Friday Night

After three weeks of hard practice, the Panthers are ready to meet their first opponent of a 10-game schedule. It is very likely to be one of their toughest games as Fowlerville is rated as one of the top teams in the league this year.

The line-up is still uncertain, as six returning lettermen are battling for starting berths. The seventy letterman, Bob Basore, is expected to be back to practice shortly, having been handicapped by a broken arm suffered in football. The other lettermen are: Dick Price, lone senior on the squad; Merlin Baldorff, Myron Baldorff, Ronnie Byerly, Bob Lambert and Paul Watson.

Olle Cole, Dick Worden and Bob Sweet are expected to round out the first team. The second team is still very much in doubt.

The first home game will be against Leslie five on December 9 at 7:30 p. m.

The basketball schedule is as follows:

December 2, Fowlerville, away; December 9, Leslie, home; December 14, Okemos, away; January 6, Dansville, away; January 10, Haslett, away; January 13, Williamston, away; January 17, Holt, home; January 20, Fowlerville, home.

Steam Pressure Needed for Safe Canning of Meat

Home-canned meat on your storage shelves will help spread your meat supply throughout the year and will be a wonderful time-saver on busy days.

Directions given by Michigan State college home economists for canning meat safely and holding food value and flavor will help you to can successfully.

Beef, veal, mutton, lamb, pork and rabbit may be canned at home and so can poultry. Meat mixtures are not recommended for home canning. These include chile con carne, stews or soups made with cereals and vegetables.

For safe canning, meat must be heated through and through in a can pressure canner. A boiling-water bath, an oven, a steamer without pressure, or an open kettle will not heat the meat hot enough to kill bacteria and the meat may spoil or cause serious food poisoning. If you don't have, or can't borrow, a steam-pressure canner, preserve the meat by curing or freezing.

After the animal to be canned has been butchered, it should be chilled at once and kept chilled until canning time. Chilled meat is easier to handle and calls for refrigeration or for weather that can be counted on to keep the meat at 40 degrees or lower. Meat held at temperatures near freezing may be canned at any convenient time within a few days after killing.

Avoid freezing meat, if possible. If it does freeze, keep it frozen until canning time. Thawed meat is very perishable. Meat may be packed by either the hot pack or raw pack method. It's best not to fry meat before canning. Salt does not help preserve meat in canning but may be added.

Demand Is Heavy For Snow Tires

Frank Dakin could have sold a half-dozen sets of snow tires from his 40c want ad last week. He only had one set to sell. They were sold within an hour or two at pre-Christmas last Thursday.

"That little ad paid off big," Frank declared.

Customers' Corner

The anti-trust lawyers, who want to put A&P out of business, don't like our low price policy. They say we use it to drive competitors out of business.

Actually, as every customer knows, our low price policy is designed to do just one thing. Give you more good food for your money.

Here are the facts about our low price policy:

1. We keep our profits at a minimum. They averaged less than 1 1/2% cents on each dollar of sales during the past five years.
2. We have for years had a strict policy against below-cost selling.
3. We do not have any "Week-end Specials," but feature low prices the whole week long.
4. We charge the lowest practical prices everywhere we operate.

That is why we say, "Regardless of where you live, you will save money week in and week out by doing all your shopping at A&P."

County League Cage Race Promises to be Red Hot

By Dick Brown

Ingham County league cage fights started firing at the baskets with a vengeance Friday night with a full slate of four games. Holt, Leslie and Haslett served notice on the rest of the league that they intend to take over where they left off last year.

Holt snowed under Williamson 51-19 at Holt, Leslie snuffed Oldens 55-34 and Haslett turned back the Danville Aggies 44-26. Powerville barely sneaked by Stockbridge 42-41 in the only close game in the initial round of play.

Friday the Holt-Haslett fray at Haslett will hold the spotlight. The Lakers were supposed to be just another team this year after losing all except one of the championship five from last season's squad. Haslett proved that it was still a power to be reckoned with in its one-sided triumph over Danville.

Other games scheduled for Friday night are Powerville at Oldens, Leslie at Stockbridge and Danville at Williamson.

Tuesday night, Holt will tangle with Danville in the Aggie stronghold while Leslie takes on Powerville and Williamson will swap blows with Haslett.

Holt, the preseason favorite, did the expected Friday night against Williamson. The Ramblers are rated by some to have the best material of any team in the Lansing area, including Lansing itself.

Ward Gates, a former Eaton Rapids cage coach and now salesman for Vandervoort sporting goods, has seen a good many of the teams in action from this area. He pegs the Ramblers as great.

Holt proved that Friday night. Coach Fred Lawrence came up with a pair of sophomore sensations in Hugh Smythe and Bob Spraker. The two lanky Ramblers forwards accounted for 20 of the Holt points. The outstanding feature of the Holt-Williamson game, though, was the tight defense the Ramblers clamped on the Hornets in the last half. Williamson was only able to part the meshes for a paltry five points in the entire last half.

Williamson pushed the Ramblers in the first quarter. The Hornets scored the Holt-Holt 75-55, shooting Blackhaws edging the Chiefs in the scoring race 8-5. Leslie again stepped up the pace in the third stanza but had to fight off a stubborn Oldens attack in the final minutes of the game before clinching the victory. The Chiefs found the range for 16 points in the last period.

Top scoring honors went to Howard Antif of Oldens with a total of 19 points on nine field goals and one free throw. Leslie honors went to Jim Budd with a total of 15 points with Bill Kinnaman and Bob Coppersoll following with 11 and 10 points.

Coach Walt Gephart has a flock of tall boys who love to control the backboards. Leslie will be a power in the league this year as it must always be.

Powerville Comes from Behind

Powerville went into the last quarter trailing by three points and ended up on the long end of a 42-41 count over Stockbridge. The Powerville victory was pretty much a one-man show with Jim Copeland dropping in 21 points.

It was all Powerville in the first half. The complexion of the game changed in the third period when the Panthers caught fire and forged to the front. Price paced Stockbridge with 15 points. Myron Batdorf was close behind with 13.

Winter graduates of the nation's colleges will find plenty of jobs, but they won't compare with the post-war flush of top positions available from companies then hard-pressed for executive talent of all types.

Tom H. King, director of the Michigan State college placement bureau, advised seniors "there will be enough jobs for fall and winter graduates, but it will mean harder work and for a longer period of time than before."

"Graduates will have to return to the procedure of working from the ground up," he said, "he attributed this to the general cut-back in training courses by business and industry because of an oversupply of college graduates employed."

King said most businesses felt a recession was in the offing last spring and junked plans for expansion. Firms slashed long-range employment of college trained men more than 25 per cent last year.

"However," King said, "bigger firms having large numbers of employees, reaching retirement age, leaving for other positions, or necessitating replacement as they through death require a large number of college graduates every year."

Most fields, though mainly crowded in the past few years by college graduates, will make room for qualified applicants, King said. Foreign trade and exporting, however, have shown a decided decrease in number of new men employed during the past eight years, he said.

"But the average engineer, accountant, teacher, or business administration major will find positions about as open as they have ever been," King said.

Aggies Tumble to Haslett

Haslett started off the 1949-50 season with a rush by outscoring the hapless Aggies of Danville in all but the final stanza. Coach Sord Briggs has just another team this year without the services of Sammy Williams. Haslett walked off to a 32-11 half-time lead and poured in 10 more points in the third stanza before Danville made any serious threat. The Aggies came to life long enough to rack up seven points while the Lakers were only able to drop in two.

Neville Miller, a newcomer in the Lakers lineup, accounted for 17 points on eight field goals and one charity toss. Bob Thompson paced the Aggies with nine tallies.

Leslie Has Scoring Spree

The Leslie Blackhaws showed plenty of team balance in streaking past Oldens. Everybody scored with three men turning in over 10 points each. The Blackhaws routed the Chiefs in the first quarter, stepping out to a 16-4 lead. The second frame was played on even terms with the shooting Blackhaws edging the Chiefs in the scoring race 8-5. Leslie again stepped up the pace in the third stanza but had to fight off a stubborn Oldens attack in the final minutes of the game before clinching the victory. The Chiefs found the range for 16 points in the last period.

Doris Day Is Surrounded by Comedians in Fox Film

"Joe Palooka," the famous comic strip by Ham Fisher, has long been one of the nation's most popular cartoons, and the latest Monogram film based on the funny-page hero, "Joe Palooka in The Big Fight," will be shown at the Fox on Saturday.

Joe Kirkwood, in the title role, is cast as a naive heavy-weight framed into a championship bout by a crooked boxer who, posing as a down-and-out fighter, gets a job as a sparring partner and leaves Palooka in a practice session.

Joined to sign for a title fight against a reporter, in league with the crooked boxer, is a cross-eyed champion that brings public sentiment behind the match. Palooka is dragged on the eye of the bout. His championship taken away, Joe tracks down the plotters in a tense, dramatic climax.

Public Feature
An unusual story of cowboys, bandits and the army is presented in "Gun Smugglers," newest RKO Radio drama starring Tim Holt in a trigger-paced western.

On the Arizona border in the twenties, a group of outlaws, using a small boy as a decoy, ambush in the low wagon train and make off with a valuable shipment of Gaiting machine guns.

The army sergeant in charge of the train is court-martialed and disgraced, but two of his accomplices pals him in an effort to find the guns and square matters with the bandits. Their exciting adventure includes a showdown and their efforts to straighten out the juvenile member of the outlaw gang, make for plenty of thrills.

Holt and his team-mate, Richard Martin, portray the two cowboys, and Martha Hyer has the role of the army doctor's daughter. The small boy, played by Gary Gray, is the sergeant's son. The feature is the second half of Saturday's double bill.

Big Star Roster

Those "Guys" are back with lovely Doris Day as an addition to their familiar comedy team in the technicolor production "It's a Great Feeling," coming to the Fox on Sunday and Monday.

Warner Bros. technicolor comedy, opens on Sunday, for that gay film roster, in addition to its own star roster, the guest appearances of nine other top Hollywood stars.

James Cagney, Virginia Mayo and Margaret Wycherly are the stars of "White Heat," coming to the Fox Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The story is about a gang chief who pulls off a big robbery and murder, and allows himself to be apprehended for a lesser offense in order to throw police off. Double-crossed by his wife and one of his mob, he continues on with another carefully planned holdup. But this one is his undoing as unerring police and federal agents close in to take the killer in a climactic scene high up in the intricate works of a chemical plant.

Bowery Boys Return
There's comedy and suspense in "Angels in Disguise," Monogram's new Bowery Boys film which will be shown at the Fox on Thursday and Friday.

The picture stars Leo Gorcey, cast as a metropolitan newspaper copy boy, and again brings him all the way but Ionia was never far behind. In the final stanza Ionia came through to outscore the Vikings but the early-game edge was great enough to assure Everett of the win.

Bulldogs Drop First Cage Contest

Mason's high school cage team tasted defeat the first time out of the floor this year when an alumni pickup team turned the Bulldogs back 30-27 Saturday night. All was not dark, however, Mason got a look at a team that is much improved over last year's fourth place outfit.

There was more aggressiveness and team play than has been in evidence in several years. Coach Don Funk has come up with a fast break offense that shows possibilities. The fast break worked fine against the Alumni but after bringing the ball down the floor the Bulldogs were tied up.

Two newcomers to the Mason lineup, Phil Parisian and Jim Roggow, turned in good games. Both will be big assets to Mason in the coming Capital Circuit race.

Mason meets the first conference game December 9 and will follow Tuesday, December 13, with Michigan Central. The Eaton Rapids team is at Mason with the Michigan Central game away.

Bulldogs Lose Lead
Mason led the Alumni all through the game until the final quarter, when Harold Ware and Clarence Wheeler, former high school cage stars, poured in a couple of baskets apiece to boost the Alumni out in front.

The high school outfit lost the game from the foul line in the last few minutes of play.

Coach Don Funk shifted his lineup all through the game, experimenting with different combinations. Windy Pell paced the Bulldogs with seven points. Bill Rogers was next in line with six. Jack Davis looked good on the back boards.

In the curtain raiser two reserve squads fought it out with seven team berths the real deal. Coach Lou Lari will carry Jim Smith, Norm Ostrum, Bob Thomas, Jim Heathman, Jack Pink, Roger Shepard, Stuart Taylor, Lawrence Hovey, Clarence Randall, Don Alderman and Tom Hunt on the reserve squad.

In the intra-squad game Clarence Randall proved to be the scorer with a total of 12 points. Jim Smith was close behind with 11 tallies to his credit.

Saturday night's cage program was a benefit affair with proceeds going to the high school injury players fund to cover the costs of injuries sustained in athletic contests.

Former Coach Abe Cohn and Ward Gates, salesman for Vandervoort Hardware of Lansing, donated their services as officials.

Major Swift Ends Long Army Career

Major Evan W. Swift, son of Mrs. Elmer M. Swift of Mason, retired from the United States Army at Camp Stoneman, California, November 30 after completing 20 years of service.

World War II gave Major Swift the opportunity to earn a commission after 13 years in the ranks. Major Swift is married and has and his wife have four children.

into the company of other comedians, including his side-kick, Huntz Hall.

This is a story with a background of gangland activity, and a amateur detective, determined to aid in bringing the mobsters to justice, Gorcey and Hall are the stars. Their interest in crime detection stems from the mobsters' killing of their detective friend, well portrayed by Gabriel Dell.

"Incident," which will be shown in the Fox screen Thursday and Friday is the kind of film which will hold your interest from start to finish. The cast, headed by Jane Frazee and Warren Douglas, deliver fine as the leads.

Often a little incident can change one's whole life, as it does for Warren Douglas when he misses the last bus by a few seconds. Mistaken for a gangster in the dark, he is almost fatally beaten up by another mobster. Determined to find his attacker, Douglas tracks him down, only to find the assailant murdered. As a result of publicity arising from this incident, Douglas loses his job. He meets Jane Frazee while on his man-hunt, and the two become romantically interested. Unknown to him, she is a special investigator who is after hijackers. When she pretends interest in a possible suspect, Douglas makes a mistake and discovers his mistake afterwards. Jane is taken to the lair of the mobsters. Douglas' rescue of the girl is excitingly depicted.

Unknown to him, she is a special investigator who is after hijackers. When she pretends interest in a possible suspect, Douglas makes a mistake and discovers his mistake afterwards. Jane is taken to the lair of the mobsters. Douglas' rescue of the girl is excitingly depicted.

Often a little incident can change one's whole life, as it does for Warren Douglas when he misses the last bus by a few seconds. Mistaken for a gangster in the dark, he is almost fatally beaten up by another mobster. Determined to find his attacker, Douglas tracks him down, only to find the assailant murdered. As a result of publicity arising from this incident, Douglas loses his job. He meets Jane Frazee while on his man-hunt, and the two become romantically interested. Unknown to him, she is a special investigator who is after hijackers. When she pretends interest in a possible suspect, Douglas makes a mistake and discovers his mistake afterwards. Christmas Is Contagious

What started out a year ago as primarily a commercial enterprise has developed into something different.

The Chamber of Commerce arranged for the appearance of Santa Claus in Mason to stimulate trade. Whether or not it has stimulated trade, it has stimulated a Christmas spirit.

That Christmas spirit was rampant in Mason Saturday afternoon. Hundreds of boys and girls from all over came to Mason to see the parade and to see Santa Claus. The eyes of youngsters who believe in Santa Claus sparkled when they saw the man in red. There were kindred sparkles in the eyes of non-believers who caught the contagion of joy and happiness.

Yes, Christmas is commercialized. So is the Fourth of July, Easter, Thanksgiving, Mothers Day, and every other holiday. True it is that Christmas should mean more of giving and less of receiving. Yet the very commercialization of Christmas is largely responsible for having a season of the year set aside to enjoy happy thoughts, good cheer, inspiring music and the joy of youngsters.

Excitement is contagious, and the boys and girls were excited by Santa Claus. Joy in contagious. Men and women of all ages cast aside their worries to join in an ecstasy of happiness. The spirit of Christmas is contagious, because the true spirit of Christmas lies deeper than the tinsel. It is something bigger than the holly wreaths, the beautiful Christmas trees and the Santa Claus legend. It is the striving of all of us to put our better impulses to work, to share the joyous singing in our hearts, to gladden the world.

Socialism Should Horrify

Somehow most of us seem to hold the opinion that socialism is something innocuous, that Socialists mean to do good, that they are Utopians at heart and really want to help. Socialists don't mean to do us any harm, we hear. They are just misguided Samaritans.

Actually, socialism should horrify us. Nazi was the word coined from the initials of the German Socialist party. Mussolini headed Italy's Socialist party. Russian tyranny is based on the theory of socialism. Russians are told to call their country the Union of Socialist Republics.

Socialism is not the weak sister of communism. It is the same thing, and based on the same theory. Freedom can not exist under either socialism or communism.

Great Britain has a socialist government and personal freedom, the freedom to choose employment, the freedom to enter business and to carry on business, the freedom to buy and to sell is disappearing. If an English Hitler, or a Mussolini or a Stalin comes along at the right time, the other freedoms will also quickly disappear.

Socialism is communism during the incubation period. We should recognize it for what it is.

It Could Have Happened Here

A Vernon church and the Sunfield school are getting harmful publicity which might have come to Mason.

Rev. Albert Kauffman, pastor of the church and a teacher at Sunfield, gained the newspaper spotlight by a letter of his which appeared in "Soviet Russia Today."

He had the right to write the letter and he has the right to speak his beliefs in the pulpit, yet his work at Vernon and at Sunfield will suffer because of the publicity.

Kauffman applied for the position of high school principal at Mason last summer. There was nothing on the application form which indicated that Kauffman might feel called upon to speak out of turn. There was nothing in his credentials which suggested that he indicate his teaching sympathy with the plight of the Russians. However a man who knew Kauffman informed Mason officials to be on their guard. The acquaintance told Mason school officials to closely check Kauffman's background and the soundness of his beliefs.

The checkup did not have to be made because Kauffman took the Sunfield job before his application came up for consideration at Mason.

But the publicity could have and might have centered around Mason instead of Sunfield. Maybe the episode proves that common sense should count for more than degrees on teacher applications.

Speedometers Don't Warn of Ice

Did you notice the long list of automobile accidents in Ingham county last week?

Those accidents happened because automobile speedometers give no warning of ice and snow on the highways.

On highways where speeds of 50 and 60 miles are safe under good conditions, speeds of beyond 25 miles per hour may be hazardous when the roads are covered with ice or when the pavements are narrow canyons between high banks of snow.

In Michigan winter weather it's a good idea to keep speeds 20 miles less than the summer normal range. That's what the owners conclude who are getting their cars back from bump shops after last week's epidemic of crashes.

The Dog Law Again

Ignorance of the law excuses no man, so the old adage runs. All of us, farmers and city folks alike, should know part of the dog law. Here is an important part:

"Any person may kill any dog which he sees in the act of pursuing, worrying or wounding any livestock or attacking persons, and there shall be no liability on such person in damages or otherwise, for such killing. Any dog that enters any field or enclosure, outside of an incorporated city, unaccompanied by his owner or his owner's agent, shall constitute a private nuisance and the owner or tenant of such field or other enclosure, or his agent or servant, may kill such dog while it is in the field or other enclosure without liability for such killing."

Few dogs can read. Most owners can, and should.

Down by the Sycamore

Roy Fishel, new owner of the Mason Frozen Food Lockers, is continuing the conscience locker policy established by the Fishels. Fishel provides without charge a food locker for the flock of each church. That's so each flock can provide anonymously or otherwise for its own.

If a Methodist conscience starts pricking and the owner of the conscience has a hunch to spare there's the Liddell locker available. If a Baptist wants to respond to his charitable impulse all he has to do is to drop off some steaks at the locker plant and ask to have them carried away to the Caraway locker. When a Nazarene is moved to obey the call to give Rev. Hugh Putnam provisions for the way, those provisions can be easily put into the Putnam locker.

That brings us down to the Presbyterian. The record shows that no one except Brother Simpson has ever yet laid anything stowed in that free locker. "I can't be," remarked Mrs. Henry Smith at the locker plant, "that Presbyterians don't have conscience trouble. I know many Presbyterians are charitable, and I believe they feel a responsibility for providing food for the Simpsons. Probably it's just because the Presbyterians don't know about this free locker set aside for them."

"But if any provide not for his own he hath denied the faith and is worse than an infidel." It is therefore suggested that if there is any sausage left after the Presbyterian pancake supper Saturday afternoon, let it be put into the Simpson locker.

Don't let anybody tell you that Aunt Jennima won't bake the pancakes Saturday night. She will. Her appearance in Mason was as advertised by Dick McLean in his Ingham County News.

And Mrs. D. J. Adams knows Aunt Jennima. Eight years ago Basil ran an A & P super market in Cleveland and Aunt Jennima came there to demonstrate her flour.

"The pictures on the boxes and signs of her pancake flour are striking likenesses of Aunt Jennima," said Basil. "I would know her anywhere even if she wasn't standing over a griddle. She sings and tells stories as she bakes. I am looking forward to meeting her again Saturday night."

Bob Adams, senior in journalism at Michigan State, became a member of Sigma Delta Chi, national honorary society, last Thursday night. Last summer he worked on the State Journal. He's now on the Michigan State News, and is considering several offers for after-graduation jobs.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mitchell of Danville are heading west soon. They'll go on up into Oregon, George and his younger brother can get together again. It was back in 1902 when they last saw each other. That was 47 years ago.

When Mr. and Mrs. Ray Abel went on a vacation tour last summer they spent most of their time trying to find accommodations. That won't happen again. Last Friday Ray went to Detroit to buy a surplus DSR bus. He's having it converted into a mobile home to use on hunting, fishing and touring trips. He's fixing shades for the windows. He may leave the coin box in place and pick up passengers along the way.

Lou Alice Sprite, 3, of Lansing has beautiful Auburn curls. She stopped at the office to see me Saturday. She's named for both her father and mother, Louis Sprite and Alice Wasper Sprite.

Joy Davis took his new camera along on his annual hunting trip in the Porcupines. He got many good pictures. Among them are some showing the tents and blankets hobnobbing around in Lake Superior when brother Nate's motorboat capsized. The pilot lost his bearings in a storm and the boat was grounded on a shoal at the entrance to a harbor. It took the hunters a day to dry out their gear before starting home.

Some people thought Santa Claus was Jim Cotton. They might be mistaken. Santa told me he was never in a town where the children behaved better or where mothers and fathers helped so well. Mrs.

How I Would Reorganize Government

By Vernon J. Brown

For the past three weeks in this column I have undertaken to discuss the possibilities of obtaining a more modern type of organization in state government. There ought of course to be a purpose behind every such movement. It is not sufficient to have something new, it ought to do a better job and perhaps operate at less expense than the old.

It is well, therefore, to constantly keep in mind the fact that merely because something is old it is of necessity of no further value, and the further fact that a lot of new things give much trouble.

At the risk of having my theories ridiculed by some of the experts in government, now infesting the halls of higher learning in this country, I am going to set down this week what I would do if by some miracle or some bit of conjury I was to be given the task of cutting from new cloth a garment to fit the expansive form to which state government has grown. More than 40 years have elapsed since our present constitution was adopted. Michigan meanwhile has grown up into quite a different figure than the lithe and supple miss of 1908.

First let me say, I do not belong to the school that believes the governor should be an autocrat and that every campaign promise he makes to secure his job stands as a mandate to the legislature and all administrative officers to obey. I am an advocate of cross checks and balances in government, be it local, state or federal.

Short Ballot Urged

I do believe, however, the task of voting for long lists of national, state and local officers and making decisions on a string of complex and involved questions submitted as amendments to charters, constitutions and statutes, is beyond the ability of the average voter to make wise decisions.

I believe in a shortened ballot and for the public I would cut for the state, here it is:

At primary and general elections the only state officials whose names would appear on the ballot would be those of the candidates for governor and for auditor general, plus of course candidates for state senator, and members of the house of representatives. I would abolish the office of lieutenant-governor and make the one whom the house members choose for their speaker or presiding officer the one to succeed to the office of governor in case of his death or incapacity. It is my considered opinion that over the years the lieutenant-governor has been a source of intrigue, political chicanery and sheer ineptitude. There have been exceptions to this but they are few.

The senate should elect its own presiding officer just like the house does and that person should be next in line as successor to the governor in case something happened to the speaker of the house also. The reason I would place the speaker of the senate above the president of the senate is because I believe the house is more representative of the people of the state than is the senate. I have served in both bodies.

Governor Would Appoint

The duties of the secretary of state and the state treasurer are administrative only. These offices could well be filled by appointment by the governor. As for the attorney general he by all means should hold his office at the pleasure of the governor and be responsible to the executive office for all legal advice and to every other state official wherever officially demanded.

The entire educational system of the state should be reorganized and its existing competitive and paralleling and overlapping elements correlated under a single administrative head. For this purpose the state board of education, the board of regents of the university and the state board of agriculture should all be abolished along with the office of superintendent of public instruction, and the whole outfit reorganized under what might be called the department of education. A board of, say seven members, made up in part by representatives of business and industry, in part by members of the leading professions, such as the law, medicine, dentistry and engineering, and in part by those who have achieved success in the field of education would take over. Each would be appointed for a term of, say, four years, but no more than three to expire in any one year.

Under a reorganization of the entire system, the school code would need revision and the manner of financial support for the public schools re-determined. Under such a system the entire public school system and tax supported colleges and universities from the kindergarten to the realm of post-graduate work and adult education would be under a single control responsible to the people. Highways of the state are too important for Lewis, but they do not see things the same way. This is important reading for all.

Teenagers will probably like the newest of the Dorothy Bird books. Mrs. Bird is a resident of Eaton Rapids, so seems like a neighbor. None of her books are well done as GRANTITE HARBOR, but they do have a ring. The setting for this is an imaginary college in Jackson or Lenawee county near an old inn where a still unsolved murder did actually take place. The murder is about the only actual episode, and the setting is unimportant. Has a mystery element which seems rather obvious.

HAPPILY EVER AFTER is a book-to-the-land book by Hartzel Spence, author of your favorites—GET BACK IN HEAVEN and GET THREE BEHIND ME. The thing that makes it different is that he and his wife do not succeed in becoming excellent farmers, even though they pour their energies and money into the 700-acre estate they buy. They realize that they are not getting the good life they expected to find, and sell most of it and farm on a much smaller scale. It would be good reading for many city-farmers, or perhaps we should say "would-be-farmers."

JOHN L. LEWIS by Saul Alinsky has been running in the Detroit Free Press, so many of you have already read it. It is timely, to say the least. The author, has the permission and respect of Lloyd Thurby stood the full three-quarters of an hour in the cold wind to help the little tots down off the stage after they had received their presents.

Did you notice the apple Santa was munching as he boarded the plane to go back to the North Pole Saturday? The big red apple was inside the package a little boy handed to Santa. It was the only package Santa Claus received all the afternoon, and it touched him deeply.

"If I lived in this part of the country," Santa declared, "I would put apples, honey, canned fruit, meats and other foods and delicacies on my Christmas shopping list. A bushel of apples, a few cans of honey, or a pork loin would fill a Christmas stocking way up to the top."

Jim grew trigger happy at the Christmas festivities Saturday afternoon. So did I. We just couldn't stop shooting pictures as the hundreds of boys and girls greeted Santa Claus. As much as we would like to, we couldn't use all the pictures we took. Many of them are on display at the office of the Ingham County News. Prints or enlargements are available.

Nominations are in order for the man and the woman of the year.

"The Jews ruin themselves at their passover; the Moors at their marriages; and the Christians, in their lawsuits."

Some will say that man Brown is naive, he is idealistic and artless or he is just talking. Let it here be confessed that I realize fully that I am proposing to take the business of government out of the realm of political chicanery and trick promises and set it up as an honorable profession. My ideas may never be adopted but that will not bother me a bit. I insist however in closing this series of articles, that whenever any substantial benefits of reform in government seep down to the people those benefits will come only as the result of keeping some of the cheap political shoddy out of the fabric of government and substituting good clean warp and wool.

Honest, purposeful and efficient management is possible only when reason and logic can be substituted for self and self-interest.

Real Roses in the Cheeks— You Call That a Handicap?

By BILLY ROSE

When Eleanor and I first moved up to Mt. Kisco, some of our neighbors dropped by to pay their respects, but I didn't encourage these visits. The landed gentry of Westchester are nice enough folk, but they don't talk my lingo. Besides, I see no point in cultivating people who think it's smart to chase a fox.

But a little down the road from us live a couple I cultivate as often as they'll have me. Their names are Fred and Jane Newell. I met them through Eleanor two years ago, and I'll never forget the first night we had dinner at their house.

Jane answered the doorbell. She was pretty all over, and I liked her right away. "Excuse the peasant skirt," she said. "I have a baby penciled in for the fall."

Fred was in the living room listening to the radio. He had the tweedy look of the good guy in the women's magazine stories. We talked for a couple of minutes before I realized he was blind. He told me he was a writer, and answered my unspoken question by explaining he dictated his stuff to his wife.

It was a fine dinner and a fine evening. Jane carried her child as if baby-having were some kind of party. Around eleven o'clock, Fred said to Jane, "Maybe the Roses would like ice cream."

"Maybe they would," said Jane, "but we haven't any. I'll drive down to the village and get some."

"I'll go with you," I said, "just to make sure you don't forget chocolate."

ON THE WAY to the ice-cream parlor I said, "Tell me something. What makes you kids act as if you had a gold mine in the cellar?"

Jane smiled. "I don't know. I guess we've been pretty lucky."

"Lucky?" I said, and then stopped, embarrassed.

"It's all right," said Jane. "Of course, it would be nice if Fred could see, but neither of us thinks that's very important."

Star of Bethlehem Continues to Puzzle Modern Scholars

Once again Christendom sees the Star of Bethlehem and, like the Wise Men of old, rejoices with exulting great joy.

Astronomers have discounted possibilities that the star may have been a natural phenomenon since such phenomena occur too far from the earth to serve as any sort of local guide. Modern opinion is, however, inclined to hold that there was a Star — although the story probably has been touched by Oriental imagery.

St. Matthew suggests that even the Wise Men may have lost sight of the star while they were in Jerusalem; hence, they rejoiced when it reappeared to their vision as they approached the Manger of Bethlehem.

Come to think of it, astronomers have sought an astronomically authentic star — and found it not; historians have sought an historically authentic Jesus of Nazareth — and they have found Him: even zealous theologians, striving to harmonize messianic and eschatological theories with the illusive historical and human Jesus, have sometimes lost sight of the Babe in the Manger Who from His lowly stable draws unto Himself all who are weary and heavy-laden.

Pressing close to that sacred Manger, Christendom glimpses the Star of Bethlehem once more and rejoices in the light of righteousness and peace which has conquered every tyranny that evil men could think of, the light that shineth in the darkness and shall not fail.

Finns See Evergreen As Mourning Symbol

Evergreens are never used as decorations in the homes and churches of Finland because the Finns regard them as symbols of mourning.

At Christmas most homes where there are children suspend a "heaven" from the living room or dining room ceiling. Such "heavens" consist of a cord framework covered with straw and different colors of paper ribbon, etc., and decorated with paper stars and silhouettes cut in various designs. The effect, when reflecting the firelight and the candles' glow, is mysterious and fascinating.

Candles are used profusely in the churches; the alters are banked and the windows are filled with them, so that in the pre-dawn darkness (Christmas morning services begin at 6 A.M.) the churches beckon approaching worshippers like brilliant lanterns.

After the early church services, the gayly decorated sleds rare for home, bright robes flying and sleigh bells a-jingling, breakfast is festive, and then everyone takes a long nap. Christmas Day is not devoted to play or gift-giving; it is religiously observed, with intervals of carol singing and Bible readings.

The day after Christmas is St. Stephen's day, and from then until New Year's parties and general festivity are in order. Although gift-giving is not an integral part of the observances, in some parts of Finland trinkets and useful gifts of wearing apparel are presented to children by Wainamoinen, the Kalevala hero of Finnish legend.

Legend relates that the crown of thorns which was placed on the head of Jesus was made of holly and that before the crucifixion, the berries were white, but turned crimson like drops of blood.

Lawyers Study Legal Aid Plan

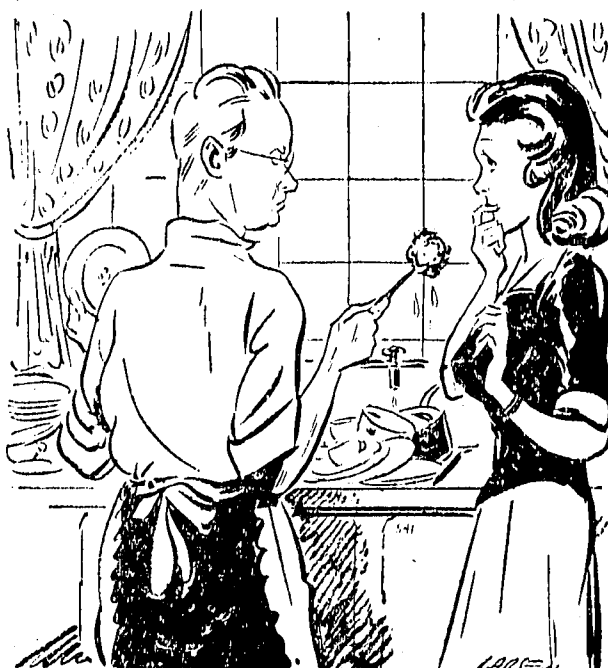

Lawyers of Michigan will inaugurate a lawyer reference service and a statewide legal aid program at a meeting to be held in East Lansing, Saturday, December 10, according to Carl H. Smith, Bay City, president of the State Bar of Michigan.

Sponsored by the State Bar, the lawyer reference plan calls for its establishment by local bar associations. It is a means by which a member of the general public can be referred to a competent and reliable lawyer who for a fixed fee will be willing to give a consultation on a legal problem and then render additional legal service for a moderate fee if further legal service seems desirable and necessary. The second project, a statewide legal aid program, will make legal advice available to those who may not be able to pay part or all of the cost of a lawyer's services. Smith pointed out that Michigan has tried the lawyer reference plan experimentally in Grand Rapids and that its success has encouraged the statewide development of the idea.

Legal aid is based on the concept that "it is a fundamental duty of the bar to see to it that all persons requiring legal advice are able to obtain it, regardless of their economic status."

To the Man Who Is Worried About His Friends ...

OCCASIONALLY, we encounter a man who hesitates to buy a Cadillac for fear his friends might think him ostentatious.

For all such people, we have the most reassuring news: The experience of Cadillac owners would indicate that your fears are without foundation.

True, the world has long since recognized that a Cadillac car is a fine and distinguished possession—but most people understand that quality is not a luxury, and that distinction is the offspring of long-continued goodness.

The facts in support of Cadillac's practicality are so convincing that the recital of just a few should be sufficient reassurance for anyone.

Take, for instance, the matter of cost. There are eight other makes of cars which actually have models priced above the lowest-priced Cadillac. Yes—thousands of the motorists you see on the highways paid more for their cars than the man who sits at the wheel of a Cadillac '61'.

And, oh, the other facts in support of Cadillac's value!

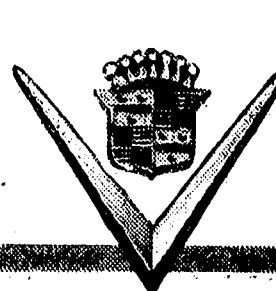

There is long life, for example. Four Cadillacs, of the 1942 Series, ran a total of 2,599,000 miles in a test recently concluded by a great tire manufacturer—almost 650,000 miles per car.

All four were then sold into private service.

Then there is economy. Innumerable tests show that the 1949 Cadillac actually approaches the lowest-priced popular cars in gasoline economy. Few cars will run farther on a gallon of gasoline!

And, finally, there are the dependability records—records which prove beyond dispute, that the car's freedom from the need of repairs is just as unusual as its performance and beauty!

Yes—if you are ready for a Cadillac, come in and place your order. You will never make a more sensible purchase—or one of which your friends will more heartily approve.

Speaking of Christmas

SPEAKING OF CHRISTMAS . . . Throughout the world wherever Christmas is celebrated it is customary to place a lighted candle in the window . . . The legend is that candles originally were set out to light the Christ child's way as he made his visits through the children . . . One explanation of the custom of hanging stockings on Christmas Eve recalls the baronial halls of England where huge fireplaces were constantly in use . . . Each Christmas a special log, the Yule log, was drawn on the fire . . . This log burned steadily as long as the feasting and celebrating continued. Naturally, it burned with a pungent odor and stockings were hung over the fireplace to absorb some of this odor and to protect the owners from evil spirits . . . Christmas Eve, 1863, a special log of festivity . . . Just as dawn was breaking, they embarked on a perilous promenade over the town's rooftops. A policeman, mistaking them for burglars, drew his revolver and prepared to shoot—but a passerby stopped him . . . Had he fired and the bullets found the mark, the world would have been deprived of two great humorists—Artemus Ward (Charles Farrar Browne) and Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens) . . . Mince pies, so long a part of our Christmas tradition, originally had a deeply symbolic significance . . . The first mince pies were patterned in oblong shape, after the manger in which Christ was born . . . The crust represented the gold brought by the Three Wise Men; the many spices, the frankincense and myrrh . . . On May 11, 1659, the general court of Massachusetts Bay outlawed Christmas . . . Anyone celebrating, stopping work, serving holiday fare or deviating from normal daily life would be fined five shillings . . . The righteous Puritans were sure they were acting wisely—for how could good Christians condone the pagan origin of Christmas? Did not such a holiday encourage excess in eating and drinking? . . . It was 22 years before that law was repealed.

Of Interest to Farmers

Lapeer Editor Offers His Farm Plan

Meets Needs of Public
And It's Easy to Figure,
Lapeer Farm Editor Says

Bob Myers, farm editor of the Lapeer County Press, has worked out a farm program. Here it is as set forth in his own newspaper last week:

Everybody's got a farm plan. It used to be we all knew how the war should be won. And now, if you don't know what should be done about the "agricultural situation," you're as lost for conversation as a childless woman at a bridge party.

With the above as my excuse, I'll tell you what I would do if I were running the show.

First, let's see what we want from a farm plan (the big shot) call it an "agricultural policy" but I get paid just as much for little words:

(1) I want a minimum of government interference or red tape. We want a flexible plan of which we can take as much as we want, grow what we want and as much as we want.

(2) We want low prices to the consumer.

(3) We want a plan that helps the little farmer who is trying to get ahead on a poor farm.

(4) We want a plan that fits in with free world trade, promotes better international trade and feeds as many of the world's people as possible.

(5) We want a plan that improves the national diet, giving us more of the so-called "refrigerator foods" and less of the cereals.

(6) I want a plan that conserves our soil.

(7) We want a plan that is as simple as possible and one that assures the farmer of a minimum living standard at the lowest possible cost.

On what we want, there isn't too much argument. The above seven points include about all the major wants that farmers or brass hats have yet thought of. Before they think of more, let's get on with this plan of mine that's going to answer all of them.

None of the plans yet advanced answer all of the "wants". Their deficiencies have been pretty well discussed. All of the plans, even Brannan's, stick to the old support price theory, at least for the major commodities.

Why not throw out ALL support prices? That immediately gives the consumer cheaper food and promotes international free trade.

We then have five points left to satisfy. Maybe we can do it this way:

Make all government aid to farmers in the form of cash payments for soil conservation work. Pay for fertilizing, liming, planting legumes, building farm ponds, draining and so forth.

The government is doing that right now, except it is on a very small scale. Payments per farm in Lapeer County average less than $50 per year.

These payments should be large enough to cover the difference between what the farmer gets for his products on a free market and what he should get to earn a minimum living.

O. K., you say, what have you got then?

Well, you have more or less answered all of these "wants" listed earlier.

(1) You have wiped out acreage allotments, marketing quotas, a half-dozen or so conflicting agencies and given the farmer something he can take or leave.

(2) You have lower prices to the consumer.

(3) You can help the little farmer. Under price support plans or the Brannan plan, the little guy on the poor farm isn't helped much because he doesn't produce enough to earn much government help.

Under this plan, the poorer the farm, the more room there is for soil conservation and thus more government payments.

(4) Maximum production is permitted. That means more food for the world. Surpluses, however, of any one crop are unlikely to continue for long. Farmers will produce that which makes them the most money. Their profits will be lowest on the surplus crops in this free economy so, without government direction, production will be naturally channeled toward the crops that are needed.

(5) This plan will improve national diet, for to earn the most soil conservation money, farmers will grow more forage crops. This means more meat, milk and related products.

(6) The plan will do more than any other to conserve our greatest national resource, the soil. In times of emergency this national bank account in the soil can prove invaluable.

(7) The plan is simple. Its costs will be no greater than that of the Brannan plan (its administration costs will be much lower because of its simplicity.)

There's an added advantage to the plan which, if we pretend to be unselfish, should be mentioned. Growers of fruit or other fresh produce now get little government help. Growers of corn, wheat, cotton and tobacco get a disproportionate share of federal assistance because it happens that they have the votes in Congress. This new plan gives the same break to all types of farmers.

Rates of payment for soil conservation practices would vary from year to year. When farm prices are lowest, government payments would be highest. High payment rates in depression times would be an additional boost to the national economy because this money would be spent for labor, equipment and fertilizer.

Add to this plan an increased program of research and technical help for farmers. The results of this would tend to lower production costs and thus lower prices to the consumer.

So there's my farm plan. Is it something out of the old price-support groove that offers a solution to a mighty tough problem? Well, what do you think?

Plant Breeder Joins M. S. C. Staff

Addition of W. J. Haney, plant breeder, to the Michigan State college department of horticulture staff is welcome news to florists and flower lovers. He has done outstanding work in developing a large number of hybrid snapdragons and his creations have not only been highly attractive but unusually productive.

Dr. Haney is a native of northern Illinois, having grown up on a farm in that area. Following graduation from the University of Illinois, he accepted a position with the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research in New York. He later worked for a year with the Carnegie Institution at Cold Springs Harbor, Long Island, and then joined the staff of the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Beltsville, Maryland.

Haney received his doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Maryland in 1941, just prior to enlistment in the U. S. Marine corps, where he served for three years. Following his service in the marines, Haney joined the staff of the George J. Ball company, Chicago, in addition to his work there with snapdragons, he worked on asters, stocks, coleus and petunias. He plans to continue his work with snapdragons and to work toward developing varieties for forcing under Michigan greenhouse conditions.

Dr. Haney is 32 years old, married, and has three children.

Move to Cut Loss In Stored Wheat

Farmers and elevator operators in Michigan are losing considerable money because of deteriorated wheat, reports Clarence Prentice, marketing specialist in agricultural economics at Michigan State college.

Prentice says much of the wheat was farm stored at a high moisture content. Temperatures and humidity were unusually high this fall, and the wheat did not dry out after storing. Instead, it started to sprout, and in many cases the germ died causing what is known as "sick" wheat. Such wheat is very low in milling quality. Much of it would not grow if planted.

In an attempt to learn more about this wheat damage, a total of 450 elevator managers gathered at 15 moving places in 15 Michigan counties. Prentice arranged for six federal grain inspectors from Toledo, Detroit and Saginaw to assist in the demonstration meetings.

H. F. Frue, officer in charge of the Toledo grain branch of the U. S. department of agriculture, told elevator men that much of the trouble could have been prevented. Many farmers were not careful about storing only wheat of low moisture content and then watching it closely, he said. With careful attention, preventive measures could have been taken at the first sign of trouble. Turning, drying and fumigation for weevils as soon as the trouble was noticed would have saved the wheat, Frue said.

Because of the meetings, elevator operators and other grain buyers will now be better able to determine sick wheat, according to Prentice, and keep closer tabs on the grade of wheat they buy. Thus farmers can expect to get more uniform grades on their wheat regardless of where it is sold.

During seven years in 4-H, he specialized in Poland China swine, winning three county grand champion awards in barrows. He has handled a total of 286 animals. Hog sales grossed $5,885, and he estimates the present herd worth $1,500. Robert also has given radio talks on swine. Good Trappers Know Habits of Animals

With muskrat trapping season close at hand, many farmer-trappers and 4-H club members are making final preparations for harvesting Michigan's million-dollar muskrat crop. In the southern part of the lower peninsula the season opens at noon on December 1.

Charles Shick, extension game specialist at Michigan State college, advises the amateur trapper to learn the habits of muskrats and acquaint himself with the marsh or stream area where he plans to trap. Such information provides a basis for successful trapping. He also advises a careful check of trapping regulations.

Last year trappers harvested an estimated 367,000 muskrats in the state. Of this figure, 249,000 were trapped in a line running from Muskegon through Clare to Bay City. Many of the rats were taken by farmers and farm boys.

Producers Again Choose Maystead As President

Ivan K. Maystead of Onsen was elected president of the Michigan Milk Producers association for the coming year by the board of directors at its organizational meeting. Other officers again elected were Bruce P. Clothier, North Branch, vice-president; William Bristow, Flat Rock, treasurer; Howard P. Simmons, Pontiac, secretary-manager. Of the 14 directors, those elected for three year terms at the recent annual meeting of the association are Theodore Launstein, Marlette; William Bristow, Flat Rock; Ward Eagle, Farmington; and Clay Croll, Britton.

Plans for the enlargement and modernization of the association's receiving station and manufacturing plant at Inlay City were approved by the new board and the work will be started immediately in the hope of having the plant in operation next summer. Although the plans call for a completed rebuilding of the entire structure and a large addition in both floor space, machinery and equipment, regular operations will not be curtailed at any time.

The Inlay City plant has provided facilities for turning out powdered skim milk by the roller process during the lush season for many years. But now equipment is being added to produce the product by the modern spray method which will greatly increase the plant capacity in addition to providing a better product. The directors also are considering the installation of butter-making equipment in addition to greatly increasing refrigeration capacity for both milk and cream.

The plant is owned by the farmer-members of the association supplying the Detroit market.

Dow Chemists Have Cure for Quack Grass

Dow chemists claim they have the dope now that will doom quack grass. The chemists at the Midland Dow plant have TCA, a recently developed herbicide, which they insist has proved its worth in extensive field tests.

Until now, the future for widespread use of TCA seemed dim. As a spray it must be applied at the rate of at least 50 gallons per acre. A sprayer that will do this costs about $400. Only a few farmers now own sprayers of this type and few would probably feel they could afford one just to use on quack grass.

The inexpensive, low gallonage 2-4-10 sprayers will not work for TCA.

Dow experts now think they have the answer to this problem. TCA can be sold as a powder which should be applied at the rate of about 25 pounds per acre.

The ordinary grain drill won't spread accurately at a rate less than about 125 pounds per acre. To overcome this difficulty, the TCA powder is mixed with a bag of fertilizer and the mixture then sowed on the field with the grain drill.

Dow folks say it will work. TCA is readily soluble in water. Soil moisture will pick up the TCA and spread it evenly through the soil, conquering the quack roots and quickly killing the plant.

Farmers fertilize their fields and kill the quack at the same time. They can use large amounts of fertilizer. The TCA powder is cheap because it is bought in a concentrated form and bulked up with fertilizer. Farmers don't have the mess of large quantities of messy, coarsely spray. They don't have to buy any equipment.

To kill quack with TCA, the field is plowed in the summer or early fall. The TCA is put on. In 60 days, the quack is dead. The TCA is washed out of the soil, and it's ready to be planted to any crop.

One method for using TCA will be to plant the hayfield after the first cutting of hay is taken off. The TCA is then used immediately and the farmer can plant wheat on the field that fall. A crop can't be planted immediately after using TCA for the chemical sterilizes the soil for short time.

Barn Check Cuts Mastitis Risks

Cold weather need not mean an increase in mastitis as it some times does, says Dr. B. J. Kilham, extension veterinarian at Michigan State college.

Now that animals are being confined indoors more, he advises farmers to check the barn for high silos, protruding nails or any objects which may injure teats and udders and increase mastitis hazards.

He also advises that milking equipment be disinfected. Cow's teats and udders and milker's hands should be washed and dried, since they are the paths by which mastitis infection travels from diseased to healthy animals.

Turkey's imports of paper products in 1948 totaled 22,804 tons.

COLD WEATHER BUTCHERING

Butchering should be postponed until you're sure near-freezing weather is here to stay. It requires near-freezing temperatures to cool down the 100 degree meat of a freshly slaughtered carcass to below 40 degrees in 24 hours. Most spoilage starts during the first day in carcasses that have not been properly hung, split and cooled.

Clipping Advised For Dairy Herd

Clipping dairy cows now that they are spending more time in the barn is a good management practice, say Michigan State college dairymen.

Planks, rubber, belly, and tail are often sources of bacteria that get into milk and lower quality. Clipping aids in keeping the herd clean and free from dirt, chaff and foreign matter.

Sharp blades with the proper tension are needed for the job, the dairymen say. Careful strokes will result in a clean job that will be a big improvement to the herd and the quality of milk produced.

Have drinking bowls or other water supply always available to the dairy herd, say Michigan State college dairymen.

Sugar Beet Crop Has Buying Power

Sugar beet prices paid in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois in 1949 are estimated to be 220% of the 1935-36 level, according to the Farmers and Manufacturers Beet Sugar association. This is 12% better than the United States average on all crops, 13% better than food grains, 18% better than truck crops, 56% better than feed grains and hay, and 80% better than fruits, the association declared.

In terms of how much midwestern sugar beet farmer can buy now compared to 1935-36, the association stated that sugar beet revenues will purchase 24% more of all farm machinery, 28% more of all items of farm production equipment and supplies, 34% more tractors, 40% more fertilizer, 65% more gasoline, and 87% more tires.

Sugar beet prices to hold at firm levels, according to the association. Federal legislation has the effect of tying them to the cost-of-living index, the association pointed out, which gives sugar beet growers a break on meeting production costs, while providing sugar to consumers at fair and reasonable levels.

New Housing Act Will Aid Farmers
Some provisions of the housing act of 1949 will make it possible for many Michigan farm families to get the housing they want and need.
A. W. Farrall, head of the department of agricultural engineering at Michigan State college, says the act is not a "dollar-a-week" program for farmers. Farm families eligible for benefits under the housing act may obtain long-term loans at favorable interest rates, along with assistance in planning their improvements. However, the loan must be repaid, leaving the family independent of gifts or subsidies.
Part of the program covers research in farm housing problems and structures.
Public attention has been centered mostly on the urban and slum clearance sections of the housing act, Farrall states. Several billion dollars will be required to clear blighted city areas and build and operate 810,000 housing units.
By comparison, the money authorized for rural housing would build less than 50,000 farm homes if all the money were used for this purpose, Farrall believes that if widespread benefit is to be gained by farmers, it will be through research, planning service and extension work, together with supervised loans and small grants.
Michigan State college has valuable resources for farm home planning, he reports. The college has published a number of circulars on housing subjects.
"Our interest is mainly in service to farmers through research and extension," he concludes. The Farmers' Home Administration handles loans and grants and provides the supervisory assistance.

Chicago Livestock Show Boasted Some Well-Bred Animals

Ten thousand animals, all groomed to a "T," were brought to the 50th annual International Livestock Show in Chicago to meet in exacting competition during the "greatest farm show on earth." Many of the proud owners were members of the 4-H clubs of America and the young farmers did a swell job in their own right. They reflected both serious and gay moods as the pictures below testify.

Roland Anderson, 15, of Leland, Illinois, proudly displays the 225-pound Poland China hog that won the junior grand championship. Roland is a 4-H clubber.

Meat packer Thomas J. Wilson, center, congratulates Dwight Nelson, 20, of Boone, Iowa, and Dianne Mathre, 18, of De Kalb, Illinois, winners of 4-H "Citizens Award."

"Hots" Michels, right, helps Hal White entertain the pigs that White raised inside the city limits of Chicago. They were billed as "city-bred" hogs.

Bonnie Lou Logan, 15, of Van Wert, Ohio, gives her black Aberdeen Angus steer, Lin-Lu, a great hug for winning junior grand championship ribbon.

College Research Helps Product

Seldom is the story of creation behind the advertised products in farm magazines known to the ultimate user.

Recently in a national trade magazine an advertisement appeared with the heading "A New Inexpensive Bactericidal Agent for 2, 4-D in Hard Water." It went on to describe how the addition of citric acid to commercial preparations of amine salts of 2, 4-D increased the killing properties of the herbicide.

To Michigan State college scientists, the story was nearly two years old. In 1947, horticulturists C. L. Hanner and Carl Jorgensen, in checking factors that influenced the ability of 2, 4-D to kill weed seeds in the soil, found that the more acid the soil, the more effectively seeds were killed.

Following that lead, Hanner, E. H. Lucas, also of the department of horticulture, and Harold M. Sell of the department of agricultural chemistry, conducted experiments using the sodium salt of 2, 4-D in distilled water and combined with solutions of 19 different acids. As was the case with the acidity of the solution, the more effective was the 2, 4-D as a weed killer.

In a release at that time, the scientists stated: "Although not so effective as the acids or esters of 2, 4-D, the sodium salt had the advantages of being less expensive, available in quantity and soluble in water. For these reasons it seemed best to develop a simple method for increasing its effectiveness to the point where it equals commercial acid and ester preparations."

Today, two years later, that idea that seemed practical in the laboratory is advertised to the chemical industries of the country as a means of providing the consumer with a better product.

LANSING COW GIVES DOWN

Oak Ridge Silverleaf Pearl, a registered Holstein cow owned by Fred Angell & Son, Lansing, has completed a 365-day production test of 595 pounds of butterfat and 17,078 pounds of milk made in herd improvement registry. "Pearl" was milked twice daily and was 5 years 10 months when she began her test period.

WORK STUDY NEEDED

Work methods on farms can often be improved. Studies at Michigan State college have shown that more time can be cut as much as one-fourth by improving work methods with only small changes in buildings and equipment. Waste motions caused by back tracking and walking empty handed don't accomplish much in getting chore work done.

RAE BUYS HOLSTEIN SIRE

Robert Rae, Mason, recently acquired a registered Holstein bull from the herd of L. D. Coffey, Pottsville. Change of ownership for this animal, Coffeydale Sir Paul Pedro, has been officially recorded by The Holstein-Friesian association of America.

More Food Per Person

Americans are said to be eating approximately 15 per cent more food per person than before the war.

Fencing for Sheep

Fencing is often a problem in the sheep business, say Michigan State college animal husbandry specialists. Sheep require good fencing and because of their fence, electric fences in good shape and keeping fences in good shape will help to make your sheep business more successful.

18 Herds Reach 30-lb Average

Eighteen herds in the Ingham-Williamston dairy herd improvement association averaged more than 30 pounds of butterfat in November, according to report of Junior Brownfield, tester.

Christmas Kindles Astronomy Interest

Interest in astronomy reaches its highest peak each December, according to Dr. Hazel M. Losh, assistant professor of astronomy at the University of Michigan.

"The official arrival of winter, the appearance of some of the most beautiful stars in the heavens and the never-ending mystery of the Christmas star help to arouse the interest of both the amateur and professional astronomer," she reports.

For the record, winter will arrive officially at 11:24 p. m. on Wednesday, December 21, when the sun enters the winter solstice. The shortest day of the year occurs then but this also means that the sun will be heading northward again after dropping more than 23 degrees south of the equator.

"The mystery of the Christmas star stirs men's thoughts and imagination," Dr. Losh says. "Everyone is familiar with the story of how a bright star directed the wise men bearing gifts for the newborn Christ to Bethlehem. But the astronomical information is too incomplete and the date and early calendar too uncertain for any definite conclusions to be drawn as to the identity of this star."

Venus is mentioned most frequently since it is in a favored position for the Christmas season, the University astronomer reports. During the month, Venus will be a "miraculously beautiful and brilliant" object in the southwest twilight and will reach its greatest brilliance on Christmas night.

Besides Venus, a bright meteor, a bright comet, a new star or nova or an unusual grouping of two or more planets have been suggested as other possibilities as the Christmas star 1,949 years ago," Dr. Losh says. This year, Venus passed just to the south of Jupiter on the night of December 6, providing an unusual attraction in the heavens.

While there will be many beautiful stars in the December sky, Dr. Losh asks particular attention to the Northern Cross which will be standing upright in the west at around 9:00 p. m. on Christmas Eve.

YOUNG COW PRODUCES

Jessie Loyds Senator Dixie, a registered Holstein cow owned by Ray Platt & Son, Mason, has completed a 365-day production test of 544 pounds of butterfat and 15,917 pounds of milk made in herd improvement registry. "Dixie" was milked twice daily and was 3 years 11 months when she began her test period.

CROP Food Train Is Being Made Up

Michigan's symbolic train representing the carloads of commodities contributed by each county in the state to the 1948 Christmas Rural Overseas Program (CROP) is on display in the second floor corridor of the state capital building in Lansing.

State Director Russell Hartzler, Dr. Lee Thurston, superintendent of public instruction, and CROP's Regional Field Representative Arnold Lambert officially opened the exhibit.

In explaining the idea of the symbolic train, Lambert pointed out that this plan is being carried out in all states and also in all counties in Michigan participating in the CROP drive.

"Farm products from Michigan counties will go over the seas to the needy," said Lambert, "and this miniature train symbolizes the Christian brotherhood that your contribution of commodities or cash represents."

The table display shows a small train coming from a cut-out of the state and going across to the world, represented by a globe with a train track circling it. The plan, as explained by Director Hartzler, is for each county to send in a miniature train to be attached to the train in the capital as soon as the county completes a full carload of commodities for overseas relief. By the end of the CROP campaign it is planned that there will be 110 cars in the tiny train. These miniatures will represent the goods for the state, and this small train will then be sent on to National CROP Headquarters where it will be combined with other state trains into one spectacularly long National CROP Friendship Food Train.

In the picture, Hartzler and Dr. Thurston are watching Mrs. Mayer place a miniature car representing an export of oats shipped from Chippewa and the east half of Mackinac counties.
