

EVERYTHING WAS LOST at the Harold Bailey residence on the Earl Smith farm, corner Meridian and Howell roads, Saturday afternoon. A strong wind fanned the flames and within a few minutes from the time fire was discovered the flames had spread through the house. The fire started from an oil heating stove. The Baileys had no insurance on their household goods. The heat was so intense that tires on the car in the foreground were set on fire. (Story of fire is on Page 1, Part 3.)

City Is Offering 5 Housing Units At May 1 Sale

Mason is going out of the veterans housing business. Sealed bids will be taken May 1 for the purchase of the five two-family units on East Columbia street. The city went into the housing business four years ago, erecting five new surplus two-family structures. The buildings were located on land offered rent-free by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Jewett. The city extended sewer and water services to the project.

Under the original agreement, the city was bound to dismantle the houses at the termination of the lease, from three to five years. The veterans have occupied the buildings for three years and two months. Government regulations were changed a few weeks ago so that the city can sell the houses without any use restrictions. They can be sold for dwellings or for storage buildings without dismantling.

Alderman Gerald Parsons offered the resolution Monday night calling for the taking of bids. At first he sought to have one of the buildings turned over free for use of the Boy Scouts and Civil Air Patrol. Then Alderman Harold Barnhill suggested that a building be presented to the county detention home for a combined storage building and play room.

Alderman John Taylor suggested that present occupants of the buildings be given first chance at purchase, even at prices below other offers.

Finally it was agreed that all veterans should have the same opportunity inasmuch as occupants had had the benefit of low rents at public expense. The aldermen finally decided that all people had invested money in the project and that the council may not have the right to favor any bidders or to give public property away.

All Units Offered
It was finally agreed that sealed bids will be accepted on all five two-family units with bidders being required to enclose a certified or cashier's check of $100 on each unit. The council is reserving the right to accept or reject any bid offered.

The price range on the units was pegged somewhere between $500 and $1,000 in the conversation around the council table Monday night.

A suggestion was made that Boy Scout and Civil Air Patrol organizations could raise money to purchase the buildings. The council authorized the city attorney to consult with the rent control office.

Under the resolution adopted Monday night the five buildings must be moved from the present location by June 15.

Supervisors Due Tuesday To Equalize

Few Changes Are Expected In Valuations Set by Supervisors and Assessors

Ingham's board of supervisors will meet in Mason Tuesday to equalize assessed valuations.

Until the law was changed a year ago valuations were equalized at the June meeting of the board.

No major changes are expected in the valuations of cities and township beyond the addition of new construction to the rolls.

The state tax commission insists the Ingham valuation is too low. The commission set up a figure four years ago that Ingham must reach on equalization. Assessing officers use their own figures on fixing valuations but the supervisors have to use the state figures in equalizing.

Taxes are spread on valuations assessed but the rate used is based on the valuations as equalized under orders of the state. That works out so that the 15-mill levies on valuations as assessed often go much higher than 15 mills on assessed valuations when the equalized figures are used.

Following the equalizing of valuations Tuesday the tax allocation board will begin its work.

No Pension Action
No action is expected on employee pensions Tuesday. At the March meeting the supervisors voted to appropriate $500 to have an actuary work out a program to plan before the board. The report will probably not be ready for the meeting Tuesday, it was learned at the court house Thursday morning.

Allowance of bills and the transaction of other routine business is on the schedule for the supervisors Tuesday.

The fire department official explained that firemen are now being trained to protect rugs and furniture by spreading canvas coverings before they start using water and chemicals. Many loss claims against insurance companies represent water and smoke damage and the tracking of mud onto carpets, Silsby said.

Two Mason insurance agents have asked their companies to provide tarpaulins, Silsby reported. He asked the council to authorize the purchase of one at $10.50. The council decided to withhold action until the insurance companies are heard from.

City Buys Water Pipe
The council authorized the sewer and water committee to buy a carload of water mains from James B. Clough & Sons of Chicago at current prices. Chairman W. Davis said the 1950 price is about 10 per cent below what was paid last year for less than carload lots. The cost will run between $2,500 and $3,000.

Mayor C. H. Hall reported that the drafting of the proposed electrical ordinance has been temporarily held up. He indicated that it may be ready for introduction at the next meeting.

The mayor informed the aldermen that two builders have inspected the old waterworks building and both have said it is worth saving.

It would cost the city $1,200 to raze the building, the mayor said, while $2,000 might make it usable as a storage building. The council authorized the mayor to get estimates on the cost of repairs to the building.

Mayor Hall informed the council that a meeting will be held soon to discuss charter revision.

A Mighty Yawn For Woody

Irving Wood, the proprietor of Woody's Bail Shop at Pleasant lake, was winking slumber at midnight Wednesday when he felt a yawn coming on. It proved to be the mightiest yawn he had ever experienced. It dislocated his jaw.

Dr. L. C. Kraft of Leslie was summoned but finally Wood had to be taken to the doctor's office to be put under anesthetic so the jaw could be hooked back in place.

Woody was being a bit careful Thursday how he yawned.

Have You Met?

Mr. and Mrs. George Field and their son Carl? They moved into their new quarters at the Mason golf course Wednesday after a stay in Florida. Carl is 12. There are also two daughters who are employed in Charlotte.

Field bought the Mason golf course last winter. He has been operating golf courses for 25 years, first as greenskeeper at Inverness near Chelsea, then at Crystal Lake, Charlotte and Saugatuck. He owned the Saugatuck course for two years, selling out last fall. He also owned bowling alleys in Charlotte.

Quarantine Looms For Ingham Dogs As Rabies Spread

Quarantine of the entire county against rabies appeared probable Thursday. The board of supervisors at its meeting Tuesday will likely receive a request for imposition of quarantine regulations.

The demand for quarantine has resulted from one laboratory-proved case of rabies in a Leslie dog and from three clinical diagnoses of rabies in other dogs in Leslie, Eden and Bunker Hill.

Dr. Robert P. Azelton of Mason diagnosed the proved case at Leslie. Laboratory tests confirmed the diagnosis. Dr. Azelton made the clinical diagnoses of the other three cases.

The Mason veterinarian consulted Dr. Leo Davison, state veterinarian. Dr. Davison agreed with Dr. Azelton that a quarantine is needed to stop the spread of rabies.

Unless a quarantine is imposed and enforced, the doctors said, there is immediate danger of rabies spreading to the Lansing city and suburban area.

Two Methods Available
There are two methods which can be employed to set up a rabies quarantine. If the board of supervisors is not in session or no meeting will be held soon, the state director of agriculture may act on a petition signed by the chairman of the board of supervisors, county health director, the sheriff and the prosecuting attorney.

When a meeting of the supervisors is scheduled as it is in Ingham next Tuesday, the board itself may take action, requesting the state department of agriculture to establish quarantine regulations.

County dog wardens and local police and sheriff's officers are charged with enforcement of the rabies quarantine.

Dr. Azelton has informed the sheriff and Dr. Lansing of the rabies situation in Ingham. The prosecutor has been asked to outline the legal steps Tuesday at the meeting of the county board.

Back in 1944 Ingham and several other counties in the southern part of the state were under rabies quarantine.

Under city ordinances Mason dogs must be on leash or confined during April, May and June, and Lansing dogs are not permitted to run at large at any time.

There is also an outbreak of rabies in Eaton county. Several skunks have been found dead of the disease, and on Wednesday night, Dr. Davison said, a Grand Ledge veterinarian reported he had found rabies in a cow.

Dr. Davison explained that skunks are often found with rabid dogs and in turn infect dogs and other animals.

Eight Are Treated

The dog of J. H. Adams at Leslie is the one that Dr. Azelton first found rabid in the recent outbreak, and that's the dog in which state pathologists found rabies to confirm Dr. Azelton's clinical tests.

The Adams youngsters thought the dog had straw lodged in his throat and so they took turns reaching their hands down the dog's throat to grab the straw.

Instead of having straw in his throat, the dog was paralyzed with rabies.

All eight in the Adams family have been taking Dr. Fustel treatment under Dr. L. C. Kraft of Leslie. That's the only safe precaution, doctors said, against rabies in humans. The treatment consists of from 8 to 14 injections of serum.

Dogs and other animals can be vaccinated against rabies. Less than five per cent of Ingham dogs have been vaccinated, veterinarians said.

Gunmen Are Held In County Jail

In separate cages at the Ingham jail are Arthur Ackerman, 28, of Detroit and Charles Morrison, 28, of Royal Oak. They are held under bond of $25,000 on charges of armed robbery. Both men admitted the robbery of the Market Basket food store on East Michigan avenue in Lansing last Friday night.

The two men were captured in Detroit and Royal Oak Monday on a tip received by police from a Lansing friend of Ackerman. The Detroit robber had visited the friend after the holdup Friday night.

Three Lansing policemen were shot down in the holdup. All three are recovering.

Both Ackerman and Morrison have served prison sentences.

Ackerman is awaiting justice court examination in Lansing. Morrison waived examination and is awaiting arraignment in circuit court.

Ewe Matches Dionne Feat

Elaine Rice flock in Bunker Hill gave birth to five lambs Friday morning. The Dionne trait in sheep is as rare as in humans. Lamb twins are common, triplets are few and quadruplets are rare. Quintuplets are practically unknown, Michigan State college authorities said. There has been no known case of lamb quintuplets in Michigan in recent years until last Saturday at the Rice farm.

All five of the lambs were normal and they were all of a size. Their total weight was 34 3/4 pounds. The Shropshire ewe was bred to an Oxford ram.

Glenn Rice, 15, a 10th grader at the Dansville school, had charge of the delivery room last Friday morning. The first lamb arrived at 3:30. No. 2 came a few minutes later. The Rice boy decided that triplets might be on the way so he stuck around. Two arrived in place of one. That made quadruplets. The time was then 5:30 and Glenn didn't dream that something almost unheard of was about to happen, so he went to the house. His older brother, Rollin, returned a few minutes later and found the fifth lamb there. But it was dead of suffocation.

The boys feel bad over the loss of the fifth lamb. It was apparently as strong and healthy as the other four and could have been saved, they declared.

The picture shows Glenn, the ewe and the four surviving lambs.

Census Official Lauds Residents On Self-Counting

Ingham and Livingston county residents are doing a good job on counting themselves for the 1950 census, Wayne Krummherer, district census supervisor, reported Wednesday that the people have been most cooperative in the reception of census workers.

The two counties along with two in Ohio are piloting the self-enumerating plan which may be used throughout the nation in 1960. Elsewhere census enumerators make the count and fill out the blanks. In Ingham and Livingston the people fill out and mail in their own blanks.

"This cooperative attitude is appreciated by all the census workers," Krummherer said. "It makes a difficult job easier. The census office in Lansing has not yet received all of the report forms which were left at residences but we expect to get most of them within a day or two. The reports so far received show that people have done a good job in filling out the forms. Nearly all reports are neat and legible."

Due to road conditions distribution of some of the forms were delayed. Census enumerators will call on households who fail to send in reports. Calls will also have to be made where the reports were incomplete or were made out incorrectly, Krummherer explained.

"We hope to keep the number of follow-up calls to a minimum," the census supervisor said, "because residents in Lansing have not yet received all of the report forms which were left at residences but we expect to get most of them within a day or two. The reports so far received show that people have done a good job in filling out the forms. Nearly all reports are neat and legible."

Probers Blame Low Tank Level For Fatal Blast

The explosion of blacktop fluid which cost the life of Clayton Perrine, 45, of Leslie March 29 probably resulted from the tank level falling too low. That is the opinion of County Engineer Frank K. Evans and members of the county road commission after a week of investigation, Evans reported.

Perrine was killed instantly at the road commission plant in Mason while loosening or fastening the lid covering the vent on a 2500-gallon tanker. The explosion came about three hours after the fire had been started in the retorts. The material must be hot for use in repaving roads.

Chemists checked the MC3 cut-back asphalt and found it met standards with a 30-degree margin of safety. The tank and the heating units were also checked. The investigation indicated, Evans explained, that the level of the mixture dropped low enough so one of the heating flues was above the mix or close to the surface. That condition resulted in a highly combustible fluid, the county engineer said.

Representatives of the Standard Tank Co., chemists and technicians from the Leonard Refinery at Alma, a professor of heating and ventilating from Michigan State college, insurance company representatives and county road commission officials participated in the investigation.

One hard and fast recommendation came out of the investigation, Evans said. Orders have now been given that tanks must be full before the heating retorts are lighted.

"I may change my mind in the next 10 days," Evans said, "but right now there are no long stretches completely gone. Blacktop has been burnt but most of it can be repaired."

The road commission has started its blacktop mixing plant in the Dart pit at Mason to provide a supply of patching material.

Council Adopts Street Budget Of $37,500

City May Overhaul Traffic Ordinance To Designate Through and Stop Streets

Mason will spend up to $37,500 on its streets this year, if the money is available.

The city council by a 6-0 vote approved the budget presented by Alderman Frank K. Evans' street committee March 6.

When the budget was offered March 6 it was tabled for two weeks. No move was made at the March 20 meeting to lift the budget approval request from the table. On Monday night Alderman Evans told why.

"That budget is going to lay right there on the table until someone else gets it off," declared Evans. "The street committee gave that budget careful consideration. It was drawn up to meet the real and actual needs of the city. I may be wrong, but it seems to me there is a lack of confidence in the recommendations I have made as chairman of the street committee."

Evans looked at Alderman Gerald Parsons while speaking of lack of confidence. It was Parsons who led the move for tabling the budget March 6.

Parsons denied having a lack of confidence in the street committee. He replied it was a question of lack of money instead of a lack of confidence. He then moved that the budget be taken from the table and approved. All five of his colleagues voted for the measure after Evans explained that no more money will be spent than becomes available.

City Revenue Is $120,000
Alderman Evans estimated the city's gross income for 1950 at $120,000. That includes property tax, sales tax, diversion money, gas and weight tax, sewer and water service revenues, liquor tax money and intangible tax revenue. The legislature is considering reducing only the city and township shares of intangible tax money, Evans explained. That item amounts to $8,000 a year in Mason. City Clerk George Kellogg commented.

With the city starting the fiscal year with a surplus of $19,000, the street committee head pointed out, the city can afford to invest $37,500 in maintaining and rebuilding streets, storm sewers and repairing the Maple street bridge. Unless such a program is undertaken, he declared, the city streets will soon be beyond repair.

Last year the city spent $29,000 on streets, storm sewers and bridge repair, Alderman Evans said.

The $37,500 includes $18,000 for regular maintenance of streets, storm sewers and gutters, $6,000 for seal-coating of blacktop, $10,000 for improving new streets and building storm sewers, and $3,500 for making emergency repairs to the Maple street bridge.

Stop Signs Debated
Before the street budget matter came up, Alderman Evans and Parsons debated the need of street signs. Evans produced a map he had drawn for the traffic commission, showing the lack of system on through streets and the lack of a red and white designating stop streets. He said he had met with the traffic commission to review the street-marking system. He moved that the recommendations of the traffic commission be accepted and that stop streets be designated by ordinance. Alderman agreed, asking the traffic commission to present the list of stop streets to the council for study.

Projector Fund Tilted by $100

The Ingham county library's ceiling projector is in sight. Only $10 is now lacking. That's the housewife Mrs. Harry J. Bond sent on her $100 check from California last week.

Clubs throughout the county have been contributing to the fund, which was started off a few months ago by the Mason Women's club contribution of $20. The Hassett Child Study club and the Mason Catholic Women's club have recently contributed. A projector costs $180.

The projector will be used to project book pages onto ceiling above bedridden patients unable to hold books in their hands or unable to turn pages.

County Librarian Alta Parks said that although book films can be borrowed, she is hopeful enough money can be raised to buy a small basic collection of films.

Mason Women In Train Crash

Last Friday forenoon near Columbus, Indiana, a Pennsylvania freight engine struck a car driven by Miss Maude Barber of Mason.
Riding with her were Mrs. Edith Barr of Mason, Mrs. Alice Williams of Lansing and Pleasant lake and Mrs. Laura Dewberry of Alabama.

Miss Barber had her leg broken below the knee. The other three escaped with cuts and bruises.

None of the occupants saw the approaching train until just before they were hit, they said. The Mason women were returning from Florida. Miss Barber stopped her car before crossing the tracks and then drove on. The cowcatcher of the train picked up the car whirled it around and carried it down the tracks.

The engineer said he applied the air brakes when he saw the car at the crossing. The train was going slow.

Emory Barr drove to Columbus
Saturday to return his mother and Mrs. Williams to Mason. Miss Barber was returned to Mason by Arthur W. Jewett and William J.
Barber by ambulance Wednesday.
Mrs. Dewberry also made the trip by ambulance. Miss Barber is at her home.

Williamston Man Buried Thursday

James Cotter, 73, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Chris Breithaupt, in Lansing Monday.

He was a prominent school administrator and for 11 years before going into retirement in 1944 he served as superintendent of the Williamston school system. He taught school for a total of 48 years before his retirement.

Cotter was superintendent at Williamston when the present building was constructed and also helped to promote the construction of a large school at Mattawan.

He served at Essexville six years, Pinconning five years, Auburn five years, Dimondale three years and Mattawan nine years before coming to Williamston.

He was a member of the Williamston Methodist church, past president of the Kiwanis club and member of the Williamston Masonic lodge.

Those surviving besides the sister at whose home he died are the widow, Venu and three sons, Duane of Porterville, James, Jr., of Dearborn and Redmond of Sacramento, California. There are three Small fry, wearing the latest fashions in children's clothing, stole the show Friday night at "The Shoe String Stroll." It was the Junior Child Study club's second annual children's fashion show and dessert bridge staged at the Legion Memorial building.

The stage setting effectively entered into the theme, "The Old Woman in the Shoe." Child models, dressed through a big shoe, designed and made by Mrs. P. H. Tinkler and her committee, and proceeded down the runway. Mrs. Robert Schaeffer, as the old woman in the shoe, was in costume. Mrs. Tinkler and her committee, Mrs. Joe Cappel, Mrs. Clarence Jacobs, Mrs. LeRoy Seiders, Mrs. Robert Schaeffer and Mrs. Edward Ware, placed lamb cutouts on the walls with Little Bo Peep and Mary with her lamb.

Dessert was served at the beginning of the program by Mrs. Richard Brown, Mrs. Stuart Bullen, Mrs. Robert Clark, Mrs. Kenneth Graham, Mrs. John Hassinen, Mrs. Robert Seyfarth and Mrs. Orville Woodard.

The style show was in 10 scenes with song titles used as the themes. Sandra Potter, Janet and John Hassinen and Kathy Hulett, wearing housecoats, pajamas, slippers and underwear, were modeled for "Oh What a Beautiful Morning." Wendy Wardell, Jane Guerrero, Debby Dunn, Betty Sue Burgess and Connie and Mary Alice Harrison modeled play togs for the "Sunny Side of the Street."

Linda Forche and Ted Seyfarth wore blue jeans and sport shirts for "The Farmer in the Dell." "April Showers" meant rain out in the scene with Jerrylyn Morris, Tommy Schaeffer, Claudia Seibert, Kathy Azzelton, Kathy Morris, Margo Huntington, Kay Seyfarth and Anita Schaeffer.

Typical clothes for "School Days" were modeled by Merritt Wardell, Billy Jacobs, Judy Leonard, Dick Seibert, Joel Schaeffer, Bert Seyfarth and Billy Bullen.

Jo-Lynne Cappel and her sister, Janell, Harry Stuart, Stephanie Tinkler, Kathy Brown, Barry VanderVeen, Louie Leonard and Valerie Brown modeled party costumes in the "Tea for Two" scene.

In the two final scenes, "Sleepy Time Gal" and "Rockabye Baby," Sandra Potter, Janet Hassinen and Anita Schaeffer returned in their pajamas ready for bed.

The costumes were furnished through the courtesy of Schmidt's department store. Mrs. Robert Starr of Schmidt's directed the preparation and fitting of the outfits. Mrs. William Dabb of Schmidt's assisted in preparing the narration given by Mrs. Glen Dunn, Jr.

Mrs. Wayne Chapman was given a corsage for being the youngest mother present. A corsage went to Mrs. Donald VanderVeen, Sr., for being the youngest grandmother and to Mrs. S. A. Morrison for being the youngest great-grandmother.

Home Fashion Notes From Ann

Miss Ann Zimmerman

Wallpaper sets the mood for your room. Because the wall space is the largest area of the room, the wall covering you choose is the dominating factor in the decorative scheme.

By using wallpaper you can not only achieve interest in pattern, but also achieve unity of color which ties the room together.

When you are choosing wallpaper, consider these points: above all, color; secondly, size and scale to suit the room; third, type of pattern, for instance, gay and informal or serene and dignified.

We have over 3,000 patterns from which to choose, many of them new this year. You may also be glad to know that it is not necessary to use the varnished papers in kitchen and bath; new products are available to protect and preserve any paper you desire to use in an area where it must be washable.

Last, but not least, don't overlook the plain, textured papers that give you the background of a painted wall plus the textural interest.

Whatever your plans you'll find nationally popular papers at our store including Imperial, United and Varlar.

P. S.

is a chorus of Accessories

Accessories . . . a magic formula . . . the abracadabra . . . the incantation . . . that transforms a single Easter costume into a new ensemble every time it's worn. It just takes a bit of jewelry . . . a Kimball scarf fastened with a gold scarf pin . . . a velvet rose pinned to the pocket . . . a medalion for a simple frock or a bright or lacy handkerchief tucked in a pocket.

So simple . . . so inexpensive . . . and so satisfying

Car Buyers

Will You Finance Your Next Car

BEFORE YOU BUY your new car see your local insurance agent for good sound advice regarding the financing of your next automobile. It will save you money.

The laws of the state of Michigan protect and give you the right to buy your automobile insurance from the agent and company of your own choosing; you can buy it where you wish.

NO LONGER IS IT NECESSARY TO "TAKE" WHAT THE FINANCE COMPANY "GIVES YOU."

IT IS ILLEGAL for any bank, dealer or loan company to coerce or require that you buy insurance from them or any other particular company. If it is attempted, see your agent, he may be able to help you.

REMEMBER—Your present auto insurance policy can be transferred to your new car. You usually lose money if you don't transfer the policy to your new car.

Before you buy your new car, see your agent about the financing and insurance. He has a local plan for local people.

ANN ARBOR — Troublesome doors and windows that do not open or close easily in damp weather are a nuisance in many a household.

Robert E. Snyder, a graduate student in wood technology from Detroit, is checking the effectiveness of wood preservatives and water repellent substances.

He is using a "swell-o-graph," a special device which records how much and how fast a treated or untreated piece of wood expands due to moisture.

Cancer Research Conducted Here Proves Valuable

Scientists at the Detroit Institute of Cancer Research are interested in the experiments conducted at the Curtis farm on Dexter Trail in Ingham township.

Dr. Mayne Curtis and Dr. W. F. Dunning have been engaged for years in cancer research with rats and cats. The doctors brought their rats from New York to the Curtis farm east of Mason early in the war to continue cancer research experiments which they had started several years before. They came to Mason to be near a source of supply for food. After establishing their laboratory here they did research work for Wayne University.

The two women scientists proved by their experiments that some forms of cancer are transmitted by tapeworms. Cats get tapeworms by eating rats, whose livers are infested with larvae. The tapeworms lay eggs in the intestines of cats. The eggs are eaten by rats. The larvae hatch out and pass through the walls of the rat's intestines into the blood stream and are strained out into the rat livers. When the cats eat the rats the cycle is completed.

Dr. Dunning has also been conducting breeding experiments on Cancer sheep at the Ingham farm.

Dr. Curtis is a graduate of Mason high school with the class of 1900. She is also a graduate of the University of Michigan.

Appeal Taken On Crash Judgment

The judgment of $11,386 awarded Mrs. Grace Winslow against the Veterans of Foreign Wars National Home at Eaton Rapids has been appealed to the state supreme court. Cleveland Winslow was killed February 12, 1948, when his car was struck by a V. F. W. school bus.

The appeal is based on a claim that the V. F. W. is a charitable organization and as such can not be held liable for negligence on the part of its agents. The appellants also charge Winslow with contributory negligence in the accident.

Ballard, Jennings, Bishop & Ellsworth are attorneys for V. F. W. and Mark Dillingham, the bus driver. Benjamin F. Watson with Frederick Newman, Jr., of counsel, represent Mrs. Winslow.

Judge Marvin J. Salmon certified the record of the trial to the supreme court Friday. The appeal will be heard by the state's high court in June, it is expected, with a decision probable in August or September.

Densmore's Grandson Invents Weapon

B. A. Densmore's grandson, Captain Fred E. Densmore of the army signal corps, has become famous as the inventor of a multi-purpose weapon.

Pathfinder in its March 22 issue devoted a third of a page to the invention. The magazine carried a picture showing the combination tank, ship and plane.

In telling about the invention of Captain Densmore, Pathfinder said, "It looks like an airplane—except it has a turret and caterpillar treads like a tank."

"It looks like a tank—except it has a keel like a battleship and a deck like a submarine."

"It looks like a ship—except it has wings and four motors, equipped for propeller or jet propulsion."

This all-in-one-piece weapon for the "unified" armed forces was unveiled in Washington early in March. The inventor calls the weapon, according to Pathfinder, "a war planner's vision of the ultimate in a multi-purpose weapon."

City Asks Truman To Kill Kerr Bill

At the request of the Michigan Municipal League, the Mason city council has joined other cities in asking President Harry S. Truman to veto the Kerr bill.

As explained by Alderman W. Davis Post Monday night, enactment of the Kerr bill amending the natural gas act would remove from the federal power commission regulation of the price paid independent producers for natural gas. Without regulation, the Michigan Municipal League insisted that independent producers would charge more to pipe line companies and that the increased charge would be passed on to gas consumers. The Kerr act has been passed by both houses of congress. It gained its support from Oklahoma, Texas and other sections where natural gas is produced.

Post's resolution asking the president to veto the bill was adopted unanimously.

Stockbridge Man Loses Court Case

Circuit Judge Charles H. Hayden directed a verdict of no cause for action in the case of Wireman vs. Basore, Abrash and others in Lansing Thursday.

Adam Wireman, 68, of Stockbridge asked damages of $10,000 from N. E. Basore of Stockbridge, Joseph Abrash of Detroit and the H. D. Jeffers estate for injuries received Labor Day. Wireman slipped and fell while cleaning out the Abrash and Jeffers barn last Labor Day. The barn was being converted to an onion storage. Basore is foreman for Abrash and the Jeffers estate. Wireman suffered a broken hip.

The court held that Wireman did not prove negligence on the part of the defendants.

Lawrence Lindemer of Stockbridge represented Wireman. Howard McCowan of Mason was the defense counsel.

Vacation Business Bigger Than Ever

The summer of 1950 will be another big vacation season for Michigan, according to the Michigan tourist council. Predictions are that more Americans than ever before will be enjoying paid vacations.

"With thousands of visitors coming to enjoy our fishing, our scenery and our other attractions, every one of us in Michigan should re-alert ourselves to the importance of protecting those assets from their greatest danger—forest fires," said Robert J. Furlong, administrative secretary of the Tourist council. "Forest fires would cause our rivers and streams to dry up; they would destroy game cover for the hunter and they would mean an end to our scenery."

Furlong pointed out that because the tourist business means hundreds of millions of dollars to Michigan each year, the preservation of the state's vacation attractions is vital to the general economy of the state.

"Every resident of the state, when he finds himself in one of our forested areas, should be a self-appointed fire warden. And he should urge the tourists who visit the area to be careful with camp fires, matches, cigarette butts and so on," Furlong said. "So much of Michigan is almost entirely dependent upon the tourist business for a livelihood, that forest fire control actually means bread and butter."

Clifford M. Holland engineered the Holland tunnel.

270 Children Are Immunized

Two hundred seventy infants and children between the ages of 6 months and 12 years received protection against the preventable childhood diseases, diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and smallpox, March 29 and 30 at Stockbridge and Harper schools. Children received either a booster dose or the first protective dose of the immunization material.

The immunization session in the two schools was the first in a series of three being sponsored by the schools and conducted by members of the Ingham County Medical Society and the county health department.

Parents in the two schools prepared for the program for two weeks prior to the sessions held in the school last week. Appointments for immunization were scheduled by callers who visited in all homes in the two school districts.

Millville also participated in the Stockbridge immunization day. Transportation was provided by school buses. Doctors who served at the Stockbridge program were Dr. Sidney Beckwith of Stockbridge and Dr. Ruel Lanting, director of the health department. Assisting the two men were Mrs. Mildred Bauer, Miss Mildred Cardwell, Miss Bertha Sanders and Miss Margaret Boice, all public health nurses. Parent volunteers who did the home calling and acted as recorders, receptionists and traffic directors during the immunization day were Mrs. Robert Miller and Mrs. Harold Lantis, general chairmen of the project, and Mrs. Gordon McEwing, Mrs. Cecil Cobb, Mrs. John Wilmore, Mrs. Wendell Barber, Mrs. A. J. Spencer, Mrs. James Rowland, Mrs. Dave Basore, Mrs. Arthur Wilde, Mrs. Robert Schilling, Mrs. W. Kuiper and Mrs. Leonard Esch, all of Stockbridge.

Doctors conducting the program at Harper school were Dr. F. Troost and Dr. E. F. Marriner of Holt. They were assisted by Miss Elma Wiegman, public health nurse. Parent volunteers helping with the program were Mrs. Edwin Wentland, chairman for the project, Mrs. Jack Butler, Mrs. C. J. Henderson and Mrs. Duane Dunn. Mrs. Doryce Cogswell, teacher at Harper school, and Miss Betty Ahrens, public health nurse in the area, assisted in the organization of the program. How $10 may save you $10,000

Any day you may wake up with a damage suit on your hands. If a postman, milkman or tradesman hurts himself on your premises—if part-time servants hurt themselves in your employ—if your child or dog hurts somebody—if you hit somebody with a golf ball—MAYBE YOU'VE GOT A LAWSUIT ON YOUR HANDS.

But there's a fine new "hedge" policy, which covers just about every damage to people and property for which you're legally liable.

For $10 a year it will protect you up to $10,000 and also insure medical payments up to $300 for non-family injuries even if you're not legally liable. Ask us.

Community Chorus Did Well With Stainer's 'Crucifixion'

Everyone who attended the presentation of Stainer's "The Crucifixion" at the Presbyterian church Sunday night was impressed. They were impressed by the sure direction of Gunther Decker, by the volume and quality of the chorus and by the work of the soloists.

Decker, Dr. D. R. Lethbridge, Charles Davis, John Carroll, Norman Lyons and Max Bement took solo parts. Decker and Bement also sang a duet.

Choirs from the Mason churches and the Aurelius Baptist church combined for the chorus.

"The Crucifixion" had been in rehearsal for two months and the presentation of it Sunday night proved that the time had been well invested.

Mrs. N. S. Davis was the organist. She opened the program by playing Bach's "Come Sweet Death." The chorus sang the words to it at the close of the final recitative in the meditation.

Martin Luther's "Mighty Fortress Is Our God" was used for the processional hymn.

Rev. Lloyd G. Caraway of the Mason Baptist church read the scripture from Isaiah. Rev. Henry Liddicoat of the Mason Methodist church gave the prayer of invocation and read the New Testament scripture from John. Rev. Marshall W. Simpson, who sang in the chorus, gave the benediction.

The Promise

Our World Will Never Forget

Without that promise of which Easter Sunday is the symbol, the great Christian religion would be shallow and meaningless, for it is the promise of eternal life which gives us courage to follow those principles for which Christ came to earth, and for which He died on Calvary.

Have you tried Hudson's "New Step-Down Ride"?

It's the basic new automobile idea for 1950!

Most Room! Best Ride! Safest!

It's here for you now... a delightful, new way of motoring... the direct result of Hudson's exclusive recessed floor ("step-down" design). Low-built design instantly telescopes the fact that Hudson has the lowest center of gravity in any American automobile. You quickly see, too, that Hudson has full road clearance and more seating room and head room than in any other car—thanks to "step-down" design with its recessed floor. You know instinctively, as you view this low-built beauty, that it hugs the road more tenaciously and is therefore America's best-riding, safest car. The Dolen Radio Division of General Motors points out that the home radio has an easy life compared to the receiver in an automobile. The latter must withstand temperatures from 30 degrees below zero to 130 above; it must withstand road shock and continuous vibration; it must be more tuned; it must deliver more volume to overcome wind, rain and car noises; it must be shielded from the static of the ignition system, and it must do all this with a short antenna, strict economy of battery current, and regardless of where the car owner drives.

Farmer Peck's Wife

Susy didn't have measles.
Children like play barns.
On celebrating birthdays.

The world is once more right side up! Susy didn't have measles after all. It was a cold with an inflamed ear and high fever. A shot of penicillin and in no time at all she was bounding around tip-toe-ted again. It did seem so good to have her smile and start eating. Surely is queer how sick and feverish they can be and how quick they can recover with modern medical discoveries. I don't think the discovery of penicillin should receive a very special Oscar of the best kind ever given!

We're celebrating a birthday Friday makes us feel kinda like reaching out and hanging onto Susy. Parents must feel like that the world over when their baby grows up. Susy has been our baby for three years and such a soft, cuddly little thing with big wet smacky kisses oh, but she is sweet! That babyhood is going and being replaced by a big little girl who tries to do everything for herself and sometimes very anxious to watch and who looks right along behind Sally, a pet-mine of every gesture and word, both the good and the bad. Remember if you were the oldest in the family how you were with her, won't she? I want to go with her. I can, can't I?" and Sally explains, "you and mamma and daddy will have lots of fun . . . while I'm at school learning things and I'll come home every day with new words and things and will show you what I learned but you can't go to school yet until you get big like me." Susy says, "OK."

We are making a little wooden barn, chicken coop and dog house for Susy's birthday out of plywood. We bought a set of rubber farm animals as she says most every day, "Let's go up to Johnny Steele's or over to Jimmy Ne-nicks to play with their barn-yard." We knew of nothing else she'd like better but the cardboard barns look so fragile we decided to make a solid one. Sally and I painted the first coat yesterday while Susy was taking her nap. My helper kept up a steady patter while dabbing green paint supply over the roofs. "Mamma, isn't this fun? Won't she be surprised? I couldn't be doing this if it was a surprise for me, could I? Wonder if daddy will think I can paint nice. Do you think I am doing it nice, mamma?"

Tonight as a surprise for Sally I'm going to make a little white noise in proportion for her tiny dolls. It seems I'll never get over the thankfulness and the wonder of being allowed two little girls to love and work for. What do people without children ever think it to do with their time?

We used some Christmas money and bought a lamb cake mold. And now I am beginning to think I can't learn to make a proper lamb. Last night I used it for the first time and such a sorry looking creature came out. Both girls and Pete were at my elbows scarcely breathing, watching me take the mold off. If sheer love and anticipation would have helped a lively lamb would have bounded right off that platter. But alas, it was not so as a curiously mass of lumpy chunks not looking much like a lamb came forth. Tomorrow another attempt will be made. We always take a picture of the girls and their birthday cake but Sally says not to put the candles in the lamb's back but on a little round cake like he is eating it. If this year's picture (and cake) turns out well I'll send it to the editor so you can see if Susy looks happy or not.

So much about these girls this week but birthdays are something special around here as it is in many of your homes. Such happy memories and many more to come. That is something each person on earth has a chance to let him have his day and make over him. That's why I feel sorry for children born on a big holiday or for those who get married on their birthday. I hesitated putting that thought down here but think it so, why not?

Well, I'm really wound up to-night and haven't half got started on the five topics on my memo pad. It's so much easier to write when you're happy. Now if you have a pie in the oven don't let it burn to read about me talking about my family! You know sometimes when I see what Farmer Peck's Wife has said I blush and say, "Oh, no." No matter how egotistical and bragging I may sound, underneath all of it is a very humble heart and every week I ask God's blessing on it.

Took up for the Red Cross last week. Just made it in time as next day the roads started to break up and now what a mess. Pete has been running up and down the road with his scraper pretending to be the county road grader. He looks very happy in spite of the mud and waves gaily as he goes by.

Our first batch of kittens this spring came yesterday and down went Susy and Sally to see them and pick out the ones they wanted. There were three so they said I could have one. They asked their dad if he wanted one and he said, "My goodness, no. I'll see enough of kittens with them under foot every minute."

BUY WHEN PLENTIFUL
It's the alert homemaker who buys food products when they are plentiful. If she's economy minded she will keep a buying eye on midwest-produced protein food in April—particularly pork and eggs. Hogs will be moving to market in such volume in April that plenty of pork and very reasonable prices are assured. Eggs will remain plentiful.

South Aurelius and North Onondaga
Mrs. B. H. Field
Wendell Hale, Aurelius barber, received word recently of the death of his father, Fred Hale of Indiana, a former resident.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Edgar who have been cared for at the Clarence Freer home for a long time are at their own home at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Alberts of Holt were Saturday evening guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Warner.

H. Sandford and Mrs. L. Haven of Mason were Sunday callers at the Percy Van Sickle home. Monday the Van Sickle's visited relatives in Jackson.

The Aurelius L. A. S. will serve a ham supper and all the trimmings April 19. Serving will start at 6 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Van Sickle recently attended the funeral of a sister, Mrs. Clara Shaddock of Grand Ledge.

Cotton Evening Dress for Spring

Broad, tri-colored panels in the skirt and a high, choker-type collar on the bodice give this evening ensemble a regal air. Made by Lotte of Dreyer from Wesley Simpson's "Rustler" cotton, it was selected by Cosmo-politan magazine editors for a spring wardrobe. The skirt, cut full and long, comes in gray-champagne-white, or gray-navy-mauve and sells for about $25. Another $8 buys the blouse, which buttons to the waist and is in gray, champagne or mauve solid colors.

Few food items have as much to offer as dry beans for stretching the food dollar and feeding the family well, according to Mary Bodwell, agricultural economics department food specialist at Michigan State college.

Now in good supply, they are hitting 1000 on homemaker's economy meters. They are highly nutritious, can be used in many ways, and can be very appetizing.

To really enjoy bean dishes, however, we must know how to "dress them up," how to buy them, and how to cook them.

"Although beans are a bland food," Miss Bodwell advises, "they blend very well with other flavors such as ketchup, molasses, onion, tomato, brown sugar, various spices and meat flavors. It's up to you to discover that special bean recipe preferred by your family."

Most important, of course, is to get off on the right foot in your retail store. A white bean variety such as navy or pea beans may be your choice for baked beans and soups. Kidney beans are used mainly for side dishes, chili and salads. Other "colored" varieties like pinto and cranberry beans blend well with hot sauces. Lima beans are used mainly as a side dish.

If you buy packaged beans in

FRESH VEGETABLES

Look for good supplies of fresh onions, beets, cabbage and carrots to arrive from spring harvests in southern and southwestern states in April. In addition to dry beans, the "best supply" list will include Irish potatoes, canned corn, canned lima beans and peaches.

Popular Plaids Need Extra Care In Home Sewing

If the beautiful plaid fabrics appearing in the yard goods departments have given you the urge to make them up, remember that they are not as simple to sew on as plain colors are.

Usually you will need about one-fourth yard of extra material to make a plaid dress or suit for here is often waste in matching the plaids, reminds Mary Gerhart, clothing instructor at Michigan State college.

Extra fabric is used because the pattern is laid out so that the plaid design matches at the seams. Fabrics with an up-and-down design as well as a right and left design are most difficult. It is easier to match plaid in a simpler pattern with few seams. A good example of a simple skirt pattern is a four-gore skirt. The plaid mitered down the center back is beautiful in line and design.

It is important to check the notches when laying the pattern pieces on the material. Make sure, for example, that a notch on the sleeve comes at the same place in the plaid as the corresponding notch in the armhole of the blouse front and back.

When making a plaid garment it usually pays to cut each piece singly and match the plaid pattern perfectly as you proceed. Check first to see if you have enough material for the whole garment. There is a great deal of satisfaction in making a plaid garment with the plaids matched perfectly at the seams.

Dr. L. A. Wileden Cites Need Of Careful Inspection of Meat

April 6, 1950

THE INGHAM COUNTY NEWS

Section 3

Local meat inspection is of primary importance in any public health program, Dr. L. A. Wileden declared at the dining and food inspection conference held at the Lansing State College Thursday morning. The school has been held at Michigan State college this week. Sanitarians from all over the state are in attendance. Dr. Wileden is a meat inspector for the Lansing-Ingham county health department.

"Constant vigilance is necessary to protect the public against health hazards in the slaughtering and processing of meat," Dr. Wileden said. "It's a constant struggle to maintain the high quality of the meat supply coming from all types of surroundings, and it is worth the effort. We have to watch out for diseased calves and they-old veal, emaciated and half-dead cattle brought to slaughter houses or killed on the farms, diseased hogs and other animals often slaughtered by unsanitary operators in tool houses, barn yards or stock pens."

Food inspectors and sanitarians play an increasingly important part in the public health program, Dr. Wileden continued. He pointed out that from the standpoint of diseases such as glanders, rabies, tetanus, leptospirosis, typhoid, trichinosis and parasitic diseases, meat inspection is more important than milk inspection.

On the average, Dr. Wileden said, an American consumes 61 pounds of beef, 70 pounds of pork

Gregory Peck Typifies Army "Brass" in Fox Theatre Film

A bewildered veteran's struggle to clear himself of a charge of treason forms the exciting theme of "The Clay Pigeon," RKO Radio's action-paced melodrama, coming to the Fox on Saturday.

Bill Williams portrays the hero and Barbara Hale shares stellar honors with him as the suspicious wife of a former buddy, who decides he is innocent and helps him. Mysterious complications, stemming from a sinister alliance between a Japanese and a treacherous American, lead to thrilling adventures.

Richard Quine, Richard Loo, Frank Fenton and Marya Marco head the featured cast.

The second half of the Saturday double bill is "Buck Privates," starring Abbott and Costello.

Gregory Peck portrays a hero who goes air-bus on a mission in "The Clay Pigeon," coming to the Fox on Saturday.

Air Force Drama

The intimate and yet spectacular dramatic story of "Twelve O'Clock High" tells, through the eyes of a dozen colorful flyers, of aviation's part in the recent war and the rising prestige of daylight bombing. The definitive aviation film of the war, it contains specially staged crash sequences quite unlike any ever attempted before as well as authentic German and American combat footage not previously released to the public.

The picture, being shown at the Fox on Sunday and Monday, stars Gregory Peck in the role of General Frank Savage, commander of the fictional 98th Bomb Group, which is reportedly based on the actual history of the 305th Bomb Group.

The key part of Savage, whose real life prototype is General Frank Armstrong, Peck has called his finest role. And in it he is said to give his finest performance. One of the longest and toughest assignments Peck has ever drawn, the part calls for him to risk his personal stability for the sake of transforming a demoralized, straggling army group at the outset of the war into a trim, efficient fighting unit that had a great deal to do with the winning of it. To accomplish this, General Savage must adopt a steel exterior and drive his men, like himself, hard.

Eventually, as he must, he cracks -- but not before his job is done, and done well.

Families Wage War

The Hatfield-McCoy feud, which is depicted as the background for the romantic theme in "Roseanna McCoy," kept the Kentucky-West Virginia border in a ferment for many years.

This local but long-enduring war to the death between the two families, first broke out in 1863 and raged intermittently until 1910. At one time or another it involved several thousand persons of Pike County, Ky., Logan County, W. Va., and the contiguous mountain country.

It embroiled the two states and their governors and finally in some of its aspects was carried to the Supreme Court of the United States. Central theme of the Goldwyn production centers around the love affair between Johnnie Hatfield and Roseanna McCoy which caused the feud to flare to a bloody climax in the late 1890s.

Mr. Goldwyn's new discovery, Joan Evans, portrays Roseanna and Farley Granger is Johnnie. Charles Bickford is Devil Anse

McCoy.

The intense heat peeled the paint off the car and set the tires on fire.

The Smiths also sustained a heavy loss. They had remodeled, practically rebuilt the house, before the Baileys moved in. It had been remodeled throughout and plumbing had been installed. The insurance coverage was $1,200.

They had no insurance on their household possessions valued at about $2,000. They had bought a new refrigerator last week. Their automobile, parked at a corner of the house, was also damaged. The intense heat peeled the paint off the car and set the tires on fire.

The Smiths also sustained a heavy loss. They had remodeled, practically rebuilt the house, before the Baileys moved in. It had been remodeled throughout and plumbing had been installed. The insurance coverage was $1,200.

Mrs. Bailey and the baby went to the home of her parents in Detroit until other quarters are found in or near Mason.

We Can Make Over the World

This world of ours in such chaos today can be made over tomorrow.

We know what's wrong with the world. We know that greed, hatred, envy, fear, hunger and cruelty have brought on the chaos. We know that chaos will continue until love replaces hatred, until courage drives out fear, until charity overcomes greed and envy. We know that those transformations can take place in nations only as they take place in individuals.

This is Holy Week, the week we crowd the churches, the week we are filled with repentance, the week we are filled with resolve. We know that the sorrows and pains of the world are the sorrows and pains of men. We know that the sins of the world are only our sins magnified. We know that the world can be made over only as we make ourselves over.

There is not one thing wrong with the world today that the practice of Christianity won't cure.

The faith we have misplaced in armaments, in atomic bombs and in the race for a hydrogen bomb won't save us or the world from destruction.

The faith we misplace in the treaties, the pacts, the charters, the agreements and the compromises can't save us or the world.

Only as we believe and accept the divinity of Christ can we believe and accept the brotherhood of man. And when we believe and accept those two things we will have no need of armies and navies, of A-bombs or H-bombs. Only then will pacts and charters have any real meaning. Only then can we make over the world for tomorrow and make it better instead of worse.

This is Holy Week. We can renew our faith, our strength and our resolution. We can make over the world by starting from here to make over ourselves. Only as we redeem ourselves can we redeem the world.

Today is Maundy Thursday. Tomorrow is Good Friday. Sunday is Easter. As Christians we must not pass by.

Subsidies Are Not New

Some people talk about government subsidies as a new development.

They are comparatively new to farm produce but they have been with us a long time in other fields. The tariff was long accepted as a subsidy measure for the benefit of industry. Special subsidies have been granted gold and silver mining and copper mining for years. Air lines received handsome government subsidies in the guise of special high rates for carrying mail. Ocean shipping firms have long operated under subsidies.

The farmers are now getting subsidies and they probably will for a good many years. All during the war they were urged to raise production. They did and thereby saved millions of people all over the world from starvation. Now under our schemes for foreign aid, American tax money is being used to send American agricultural equipment all over the world. The American taxpayers are also sending farm experts to teach Italians, Egyptians, Japanese, Arabs, Turks and many other peoples the secrets of American farm production. Hybridization of seeds, research in fertilizers and in soil handling, and progress in allied fields have jumped farm production figures in the last 10 years. World scarcities have given way to world surpluses since the end of the war.

Within another five years there will be few foreign outlets left for American farm products. Right now there is strong sentiment in congress to admit agricultural products to the United States from foreign countries to help relieve the dollar shortage in Europe, Asia, Africa and South America.

Some way, somehow, the American farmer will have to be paid, will have to be subsidized, if he stays in business. We have learned by bitter experience that unless agriculture is healthy there can be no health for industry. Our American economy still rests on the soil and the products of the soil.

There is waste and inequity in the present government purchase and loan plan. Many call the proposed Brannan plan a political scheme. The farmer would probably be as willing as any other segment of the American economy to operate on a strict demand and supply basis. But he doesn't want and should not be forced to do without government aid while the rest of the nation's industry is propped up by subsidies of various kinds.

If we could put aside partisanship and political advantage long enough we might be able to work out a fair and equitable program to bolster agriculture and thereby help our entire economy.

Sidewalks for Bicycles

When most ordinances governing the use of bicycles were adopted the sidewalks were traveled by pedestrians and the streets were used by horses. Naturally, the cyclists were ordered to use the streets along with slow-moving vehicular traffic.

The ordinances have not been changed. But conditions have changed. There are fewer pedestrians on the sidewalks these days, and the streets are congested with fast automobile traffic.

Except in the business section of cities and villages, the cyclists should be permitted to use sidewalks. They should be kept out of the streets.

On main highways we should provide bicycle paths to keep cyclists out of the automobile traffic.

Most of us would rather run the risk of being hit by a bicycle the few times we go afoot than to strike a cyclist while we are driving automobiles.

Here in town bicycle riders should be kept out of the streets and on the sidewalks.

Work Is Most Fun

Proof that work is more fun than steady play was again borne out by the exhibits on display at the 4-H achievement day Saturday.

Boys who had carpentry and electrical gadgets of their own make and girls who had garments of their own make on display were filled with the pride and satisfaction of doing.

They gain confidence in themselves that they can gain no other way. That's why the 4-H program is so valuable. Boys and girls shape their own habits and character as they shape their exhibits.

City parents have overlooked a good bet in not offering more leadership to the 4-H program. Work can be fun for city boys and girls, too.

Golden Wedding Jogs Memory About Two Bad Horse Trades

By Vernon J. Brown

Here I am again dwelling along down memory lane and down the trail that leads to happenings of the long ago. Just a few weeks ago the missus and I attended the golden wedding party held for Frank and Daisy Hayhoe and that led to the business of wood sawing when Frank and I were a lot younger than either is today. Saturday last we dined our Sunday best to pay our respects and extend our best wishes to another birthday and his good wife, also celebrating 50 years of wedded life. This time it was Ford and his sweet companion of the years, the one-time Ollie Stid.

It is of Ollie I am to write this time. Ford and I never sawed any wood but Ollie was a member of our household when our daughter Ruth was in her first few weeks of infancy.

There had been a slight delay in Ruth's arrival, so the combination "housekeeper" and nurse, thought sufficient in the ordinary maternity cases of that day, had to leave us to take up the next case on her schedule. Hugh and Nelson were still not far out of the baby stage and mother had to have some help. Our good neighbors, the Will Stids who lived a few miles away, had agreed to let their daughter Ollie come and help us out.

Bringing Ollie home On a Monday morning after the switch from the nurse to Ollie, it was decided that I must go fetch her and then get to my own work on time. That meant an early call. For some reason it did not seem convenient for Ollie to come Sunday evening. I presume Ford or some other fellow was the real reason for that. At any rate, I was to go to the Stid home and bring Ollie under Captain Earl Miller, former Lansing fireman.

With carpentering costing $10 per yard it has become the most valuable of household possessions. Folks once grabbed the silver and ran when fire broke out. Now they try to save the rugs. They can rebuild around the carpet.

Firemen are enthusiastic over Captain Miller's weekly lessons. What's needed now is a school for the hundreds of men and women who follow the fire trucks to fires. So long as they go to the fires anyway they should have the benefit of training. Some would be trained solely as spectators and others could specialize in advising the firemen.

Business men are enthusiastic over their Monday night classes. Maybe more schooling is the answer to all our problems. We could have schools for aldermen, for taxpayers, for legislators, and for Mason drivers who turn right or left on green lights without pausing to let pedestrians get out of the way. Probably we should set up a school for diplomats, something better than Harvard. I read the other day where a young man asked an ambassador directions on how to become a diplomat. The ambassador replied, "Go to Harvard and turn left."

People who are unable to find a good seat in church this coming Sunday should go back again April 16. They'll have their choice then.

from Ingham County Library

Hours open to the public at Hill Memorial Library, Mason, Mich.: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, 2-5 p. m.; Thursday, 2-5 p. m.; Friday, 2-5 p. m.; also Saturday mornings, 10-12. During school year. Tuesday, Friday noon.

DOORWAY IN ANTIGUA is the story of the author and his illustrator wife who wrote CEN-TEENAL SUMMER. Albert and Marguerite Idell. Because of their work, they felt they could live anywhere. The place they decided upon was in Antigua, Guatemala. Their life there, particularly in relation to the workmen with whom they have contacts, makes up the story. The rivalry which makes their two masses more different looking fireplaces in the same room, is only one of the samples. The merry-makers who celebrate an Independence Day which has no meaning for them is another. It's not hilarious fun, but the quiet chuckle kind.

LOVE STORY is by the Ruth McKenny whom you will remember as the author of MY SISTER EILEEN. It is written in the same rather slap-stick style, making fun of herself and all with whom she has contact. Primarily it is the story of her marriage to the son of a wealthy family, their attempts to get together on their philosophies of credit, ideas on labor and radical groups, and how one supports relatives.

THE DOCTOR HAS A FAMILY is by the same Emily Barkins who wrote THE DOCTOR HAS A BABY. In similar vein, she tries to tell in a humorous way, her philosophy of how to bring up a family lie to our house and then get to my own job.

This brings me to confess about my horse-trading affairs.

I had but recently traded a staid and true horse for a four-year-old. The man with whom I traded had a perfectly good excuse for wanting to sacrifice a young horse for me alone in years. At least the story sounded good to me. He said he had a lot of heavy farm work to do and this colt could not keep up his end. The colt was gaunt and his ribs showed but I thought I could turn him out to pasture and soon have a fine animal.

A Poor Trade

The first time I drove him I found I had acquired perhaps the balkiest horse in the land. No mule could have been more obstinate than that gelding. When he thought he had gone far enough he would stop in his tracks, then begin to back and turn, and no amount of reining or lashing had the slightest effect. The only way to save the buggy was to jump out and grab the horse by the bit.

There were certain places that for some unknown reason the horse would not pass. And right there the driver might just as well decide to turn back. No amount of cajoling or urging would budge the steed.

One of those spots, I had learned, was between our home and the Stid place. So that morning I drove around the mile square and came to the Stid place from the opposite direction. That horse would never balk going toward home and so once I had arrived at Ollie's home I was quite sure there would be no further trouble.

But that is not the whole of the story of my horse trading experiences. We've all heard of that old fellow who went out in the mornhealthfully, but in a way to insure some freedom to the parents.

LADY BE CAREFUL is a delightful mystery story in which the major part of the sleuthing is done by a middle-aged aunt of the heroine of the story. Although one suspects the true identity of the real villain earlier than in some mysteries, the outcome is withheld successfully.

ing with a good horse and after trading all day, came home with a good halter. I did better than that.

Another Trade I traded the balky steed for a high-bred trotter from racing stock. I knew what I was getting that time. I knew that high tempered steed was a runaway of the worst sort but I had become so irritated at the obstinacy of the gelding that would go only when he wanted to I was ready to take a chance at one that would go even when I did not want him to.

After a few escapades with the runaway I came to realize he was no family horse so I traded him for a wagon and went out and paid money for a more dependable horse.

That was a good wagon too. I kept it until I went into farming as a tenant and used it until I quit the farm to go into the city.

Now let's get this straight and have no misunderstanding! There is absolutely no connection between the youthful and charming Miss Ollie Stid and either the balky or the runaway horse nor even with the wagon, good as it proved to be, except I always remember that early Monday morning drive several miles around about to get on the other side of the Stid home so I could get Ollie to our house without the embarrassment of a balking horse and perhaps a smashed buggy. Ollie was a cheerful and efficient helper, at a time when our family was in desperate straits. Last Saturday she was just as charming a hostess as she was a member of our household 51 years ago next month. The years have dealt very gently with her. De-lad that orchid Saturday she was mighty good to look at. She wore a lovely dress that day morning but she looked good to the Browns as she so capably took over in our home.

Alfred Corden Home Destroyed by Fire

Two fire alarms within a half hour of each other kept the members of the Leslie fire department from their dinners Friday night. The first alarm came at 12:15 from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Corden, 1805 E. Kinrossville road, and the second followed in 30 minutes from the Morea Radio and Electric store on South Main street.

The fire at the Corden home nearly destroyed the one-story pre-fabricated residence with its contents. The loss is estimated at $3,000, $2,000 on the building and $1,000 on the contents, partly covered by insurance. The fire was discovered shortly after Mr. Corden had left for his work at the C. & B. garage and Mrs. Corden for a visit at Mason. The cause of the fire was unknown.

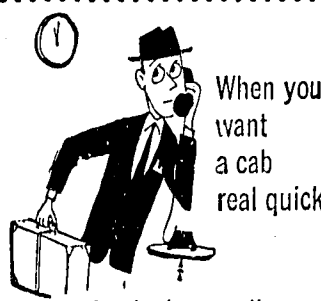

The fire at the Morea building was in a rear storage room and was believed to have been caused by some burning paper from a bonfire, at the rear of the Robinson Drug store, floating through a broken window glass and igniting some fibre board therein. The damage is estimated as about $500.

'Too Little for Brains' Idea Is Hindering Research Medicine

By BILLY ROSE

Today, I'd like to tell you about a talk I had with a doctor who is doing research work at one of the New York cancer clinics. He made me promise not to use his name because he was afraid he might be blacklisted by the foundation which pays his salary. I began by asking him to sketch in his pre-research career.

"The usual 10-year grind," he said. "Four years of college, four more at medical school, a year as intern, and a year in residency training."

"What made you go into research?"

"Like a lot of young doctors," he said, "I couldn't get used to sitting by while a patient died simply because I didn't know anything else I could do for him. Every time I looked up into the eyes of relatives gathered around the bed of a man in the last stages of cancer, I told myself that my job wasn't to go on using the hit-or-miss techniques but to get into a laboratory and help find the real cure."

"How did you go about getting started?"

"I made the usual applications," said the M.D., "but I soon found the hospitals and universities had no funds to hire research men, and that I couldn't get a job unless a foundation paid my salary. To complicate things, most foundations won't give you a fellowship unless you first have a job. In addition, it's almost impossible to get a grant until you've published a certain number of scientific papers and, of course, you can't publish such papers until you've worked in a laboratory and had a chance to do research worth writing about."

"It finally boiled down to this—I could work for nothing in a cancer laboratory, or I could take a job paying $120 a week doing research for a cosmetic outfit. Well, I had just gotten married and was ready to settle for the money, but my wife wouldn't hear of it—she went out and got an office job and made me stick to my test tubes."

"HOW LONG did you work for free?"

"About a year," said the doctor, "and then the head of the medical center—a very decent guy—squeezed me onto the payroll at $28.87 a week."

"You could have earned more washing dishes."

"We managed to get by," said the doctor, "but the following year my wife had a baby and had to quit her job. After that, it was pretty rugged. As, for instance, we couldn't afford to buy a crib, and the youngster had to sleep in a donated baby carriage.

"Somehow, though, we pulled our way through, and by the end of the following year I had gotten a couple of research pieces published. With these to back me up, I applied for a fellowship paying $3,000 a year."

"Minus withholding tax, I presume."

"It may not sound like much, but I felt like John D., Jr. when the grant came through," said the doctor. "Last year, I went through the application rigmarole again—275 typed pages—and this time I got the full $3,600."

"WHAT DO YOU DO to earn all that money?" I said.

"I'm in charge of three cancer projects and help on half a dozen others. On the side, I run a throat clinic, work in the wards and give seminars."

"Any chance of a raise?"

"I'm afraid not," said the doctor, "and, as far as fellowships are concerned, I'm getting near the end of the line. I'm 29 now, and the foundations don't like to make grants to men over 30."

"There's always the job in the industrial lab," I said.

"I may come to that," said the M.D., "but I hope not. No matter what it pays, I want to keep plugging away on cancer. It seems a lot more important than developing a new shade of face powder."

The day after our talk, I happened to pass the medical skyscraper in which the young doctor works, and I noticed that an additional wing was under construction. Dozens of steel workers, bricklayers and carpenters—all averaging around a hundred a week—were getting in each other's way.

Over the half-finished entrance was a space which looked as if it might eventually be filled with a block of marble on which a fitting inscription would be carved. "I know what it ought to be," I said to myself. "Too much for bricks, too little for brains."

Other States Woo Michigan Industry

By Gene Alliman (Michigan Press Association)

Keeping Michigan's industry in Michigan has become one of the highest post-war problems before the Michigan department of economic development.

Because of the interest taken in the development of new industries for Michigan small towns, the writer was privileged recently to view a presentation made by the state department in the interest of a proposed $250,000 industrial advertising fund to be raised by industry itself.

A group of 50 business leaders gathered at Michigan State college with the state economic development commission to study the problem. Other states are spending large sums of money to woo industry inside their borders. While the department of economic development, cooperating with local Chambers of Commerce and utilities, has been successful in attracting many new industries to Michigan, there has been a noticeable migration of industry from Michigan to other states.

Don Weeks, acting director of the state department, presented the program to the group in the form of large charts. The group is headed by Walker L. Cislser, executive vice-president of the Detroit Edison company. Dan Gerber, president of the Gerber Baby Food company, Fremont, presided at the meeting. Cislser's group includes representatives of manufacturing, banking, public utilities, organized labor, retail business and community groups.

"One of the biggest problems is keeping Michigan companies in Michigan," said Weeks in presenting the charts.

"In recent years and in recent months Michigan has suffered severe losses."

The following information on industries which have moved away from Michigan is taken from the official record of the state department of economic development, as presented to the citizens' group: American Lingerie Co., moved from Detroit to Greenville, N. C. Diamond Power Specialty Co., moved from Detroit to Lancaster, Ohio.

Amperco Twist Drill moved from Jackson to Greenfield, Mass.

Armour Leather Co., moved from Holland to Chicago, Ill.

Bruehauf Trailer Co., moved from Detroit to Avon Lake, Ohio.

Helmus Industrial company moved from Grand Rapids to Birdshorn, Pa.

Mendon company moved from Mendon to Ligonier, Ind.

Koppers company moved from Reed City to Virginia.

Lake States Products moved from Jackson to Cleveland, Ohio.

Potts Machine company moved from Jackson to Chicago, Ill.

Hyde Spring, Lisbon, Ohio, still operating in Detroit.

Chayton-Lambert company moved from Detroit to Louisville, Ky.

Eureka-Williams Corporation moved from Detroit to Bloomington, Ill.

Crest Industries moved part of its operation to South Carolina.

Heywood-Wakefield moved from Menominee to Massachusetts.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool moved from Detroit to Ulen, New York.

Aluminum Fabricators moved from Charlotte to Rome, Georgia.

Precision Parts moved from Ann Arbor to Geneva, Illinois.

Detrola company moved from Detroit to Kentucky.

"Today 21 other Michigan companies are known to be considering locations in other states," pointed out Weeks. "In each known case the state department is making every possible effort to hold the company in Michigan."

In reviewing the situation of attracting industries to Michigan, it appears that little attention has been given to the problem of keeping industry in Michigan, as illustrated by the above examples of industries which have migrated to other states.

Why have these industries left Michigan?

What were the reasons which prompted manufacturers to close up their Michigan plants and seek employment conditions elsewhere?

In view of the state department's profits tax, now pending before the state legislature, it would seem that answers to these questions are pertinent to 1950 political issues.

Industries mean payrolls; payrolls mean purchasing power in the community. It is obvious that the industrial prosperity of Michigan must depend to a large degree upon making Michigan an attractive place to work and to live.

Federal Reserve Official Urges Income Support Farming Plan

By F. L. Parsons
Associate Director of Research,
The Federal Reserve Bank

The average farmer is made aware every day that the farm problem is back with us again, bigger and more formidable than ever. Stated as simply as possible, the farm problem is: what to do with actual and potential surplus farm production in order to keep up farm prices and farm income.

This problem is far from new. It has cropped out from time to time. In fact, in all recorded history, it has been attributed to many causes, and the farm problem has been attacked in various ways within the last 100 years.

About a century ago, the economic disparity between agriculture and industry was attributed to free land on the frontier and to the development of railroad transportation to areas of over-abundant farm production. Surplus farm production broke farm prices and incomes to low levels at that time.

During this era the solution to the farm problem was thought to be a reduction in freight rates, and the issuance of cheaper money, which would help debtor-farmers, as contrasted with dealer money, which would benefit their creditors.

Later, around the turn of the century, the big cry was that eastern capitalists were exploiting western agriculture. A suggested solution to the farm problem at that time was "trust busting" to reduce the more or less imagined strangulation influence of Wall Street in monetary policy. Another suggested solution was to establish lish government credit facilities on favorable terms to farmers.

In the 1920's following World War I, agriculture was again afflicted with surpluses, low prices, high costs, and a heavy debt load. One solution suggested at this time but never tried was the McNary-Haugen proposal which in effect was a two-price system. Producers, under this proposal, were to get one price for domestic consumption and another price for export quantities.

Another proposal tried in the 1920's was the farmer's own co-operative marketing system designed to give the farmer a larger share of the consumer's food dollar as well as to raise the general level of farm prices by government purchase of farm surpluses in years of large crops.

Along in the early 1930's the great depression hit the nation and the agricultural situation really became serious. It was at this time that the farm problem was recognized to be of national concern, to be dealt with more or less directly by government action.

Government-inspired solutions to the farm problem took several forms, including the present-day concept of parity prices for agricultural products, the AAA, commodity loans, soil conservation, increased government-sponsored agricultural credit facilities, and free school lunches. Agricultural production was to be curtailed and the market expanded in order to give the farmer a larger share of the national income.

However, the effort by the agricultural adjustment administration to control production did not yield results expected of it in the 1930's. Farmers became more efficient. They farmed more intensively. They produced more rather than less. They received about the same proportion of the national income in the thirties as was received by them in the twenties.

Farmers began to enjoy greater prosperity only when the whole economy was stimulated by the development of war programs and foreign aid.

Today, after a hundred years or more of wrestling with the problem, there seems to be no certain or positive solution to agriculture's ills. The emphasis at the present time is on support of farm prices at high levels. Several methods whereby high-level farm prices might be achieved have been suggested or tried in recent years.

The present farm program is designed to get higher prices and to maintain farm incomes by government-sponsored monopoly methods. In other words the present plan is designed to control—regulate production or destroy—and give away farm products until the market price approaches the price fixed by law or edict.

The benefits to the average farmer from a high-price support plan are immediate and apparent. It means higher prices and it means a higher income in the current year if there are no drastic production controls. If production is curtailed, net farm income may be no larger than it would be with free prices and no controls.

The disadvantages of high-price supports are often less obvious. Several specific disadvantages to high-level price supports may be listed.

1. As a rule, higher prices for farm products encourage increased production. At the same time, higher prices discourage consumption. The result often is surpluses. This happened in 1929 under actions of the Federal Farm Board and again in the 1930's under the AAA activities.

High price support programs have a tendency to perpetuate surpluses, and there is no easy way to get rid of surpluses once accumulated. They must not be allowed to come back into the regular market and depress prices. They must be sold in relatively expensive, nonproductive ways, destroyed, or dumped abroad.

2. A second disadvantage to high-price supports is forceful restriction of output. At first, acreage allotments are imposed. When these fail to do the job, a sales quota to each farmer is likely to be fixed. If the quota is exceeded, stiff penalties may result.

3. Farm surplus accumulations dumped on foreign markets are usually not appreciated by farmers in those countries. They retaliate with higher tariffs or import quotas. Also, the U. S. must keep its tariff rates high in order to keep these "dumped surpluses" from coming back upon our own domestic market. This does not promote international cooperation. Rather it promotes economic nationalism.

If farm prices cannot be manipulated equitably and fairly to all farmers and for the general welfare, why not let them seek their real market level and compensate agriculture on some other basis in depression periods?

According to the suggestion made at various times in the past by students of agricultural economics, one way to do this is by making income payments to farmers adjustable to changes in general economic conditions. That is, the more serious the depression, as measured by unemployment, or some reliable business index, the larger the payment to farmers. In good times, payments to farmers might be discontinued altogether.

The method of making such payments will not be discussed here, but such payments might be based on farm production, number of acres farmed, or perhaps on a "per farm" basis. It would have no relation to price in any manner.

Such a system of payment would protect the farmers' income just as effectively as price supports above the natural market level. At the same time the consumer, and particularly the unemployed and low income group, would get food at real market prices.

Furthermore, income payments may be geared to good farming practices. This would be politically acceptable in depression periods to consumers, particularly if they understood that the farmer was getting payments for maintaining production. The general public would, therefore, likely be sympathetic to such payments in depression times.

Consumers are not likely to be sympathetic to artificially high-level farm price supports when millions are without jobs. Curtailment of food production or dumping of accumulated surpluses here or abroad probably would be boomerang against farmers in depression periods, and economic help for agriculture would be jeopardized for years to follow.

An income payment program geared to depression conditions would in a sense parallel the benefits now available to industry as unemployment compensation. Such a program might be sold to the public on that basis.

1. This suggested program for agriculture would keep agricultural prices flexible and free to adjust quickly to real market needs as measured by consumer choices. Adjustments in use of resources would come quickly.

2. It would encourage efficiency. Excess farm population would be encouraged to move into other lines of economic activity rather than to stay on farms. This is a desirable adjustment if the most efficient use is to be made of the nation's resources.

3. Such a farm program would fit in with an expanding economy ively. They produced more rather than less. They received about the same proportion of the national income in the thirties as was received by them in the twenties.

HOG CHOLERA STILL NO. 1 HOG KILLER

Other diseases may hit harder in some communities, but the nation's No. 1 swine killer is still hog cholera.

Thousands of outbreaks are reported every year. The disease tainting uncooked pork scraps, by virus present in rivers and creeks, by carrier birds, or by the virus being carried on people's shoes, and even on truck and wagon wheels.

Careless or inexperienced use of vaccination virus also may start an outbreak. In such cases, instead of protecting the animals, the unskilled vaccinator actually is giving them the disease.

Usually, once introduced into a drove, hog cholera spreads rapidly from hog to hog, killing most animals it infects. This high death loss is one of the most typical symptoms of the disease, although in some forms it kills slowly.

All breeds of swine are susceptible. At one time it was thought that the mulefoot hog was immune, but research veterinarians disproved this idea.

In view of the many ways which hog cholera virus can be spread—by garbage feeding, unskilled vaccination, streams, visits to fairs, insects and birds—the only safe protection against it in regions where it has occurred, is by vaccination of pigs around weaning time.

WATCH CALVES' HEALTH
Always watch calves carefully to detect any signs that a calf may be ailing. Don't give an ailment a chance to progress even to the next feeding. A delay of too many hours may be dangerous.

Ground Water Level Is Making Comeback
Upstate ground water levels registered another gain in March and now approximate the average stage recorded last year at this time, the conservation department reports.

Test well readings in north central Lower Peninsula locations show an average climb of .06 of a foot over February levels. But the March levels still are .05 of a foot below those recorded in March, 1949. And they are .61 of a foot under the 10-year March average.

Melting snow and rain in the next five to six weeks should result in department geologists recording a substantial stage increase at most readings. Rainfall in this period is most important in the annual recharge of ground water.

On a 10-year average basis, the April climb over March readings approximates 1.5 feet.

SPRING IN CLOVER
Early pasture is good for both sows and their litters. Michigan State college animal husbandry specialists say that putting the pigs on pasture as soon as possible, helps avoid the dangers of anemia and other baby pig ailments.

Spring and early summer is the time to kill sheep ticks. Ask your county agricultural agent for information.

Importance of giving complete and accurate figures in the 1950 farm census was emphasized today by C. V. Ballard, director of the Michigan cooperative extension service.

Although individual information is personal, the director pointed out that totals gathered furnished basic data to be used in another federal census is taken.

"It is highly important that an accurate and complete census is taken because farmers, industry, government agencies and other groups will depend upon the figures as a guide," Director Ballard commented.

Information is summarized by areas such as county or state which will give the basis for developing agricultural programs or determining the shift of crops or livestock numbers. Facts concerning individual farms are never revealed.

Black walnuts to plant for game food and timber production can still be obtained from the forestry department of Michigan State college, reports W. Tra Bull, who supervises the college tree nursery.

The nursery advises early orders so the nuts can be planted before the end of April. The nuts have been stratified over winter in moist sand to keep them in good growing condition until spring. They are sold in peck or bushel lots. A peck holds about 225 nuts.

Walnuts should be planted in fairly fertile farm soil in order to get best results. Odd corners not large enough to farm or openings in the farm woodlots are excellent places to plant these nuts. They grow better mixed with other hardwoods than in a pine plantation.

Orders for walnuts should be placed on the regular forest tree seedling order blank that can be obtained from county agricultural agents' offices or by writing to the Forestry Department, Michigan State college, East Lansing, Michigan. A nominal sum is charged for the walnuts to pay for the cost of handling and stratifying.

Walnuts are furnished by the walnut veneer industry in cooperation with the American Walnut Manufacturer's association.

established on the principle of free enterprise, competitive prices, and low-cost production—a system that gives consumers the most for their money.

4. It would encourage foreign trade in foreign markets on a realistic market level and thus encourage world peace.

5. Income payments adjusted to changing economic conditions would be a reward to farmers for continuing full production in times of depression. It would appeal to the general public if properly explained.

6. In brief, it would do away with burdensome surpluses, price subsidies, and controls which are laden with obvious weaknesses both from the farmers' viewpoint and from the viewpoint of the national welfare.

Good Crops Come From Once Over In Fitting Ground

"Once over" soil preparation that eliminates extra tillage steps, can help cut down seed bed preparation costs and still maintain crop yields, advise Michigan State college soil scientists.

R. L. Cook, soil scientist at Michigan State college, cites tests conducted at the Michigan agricultural experiment station. They show that plowing, light fitting and planting in a single operation, produced as high yields of small grains on soil of good till as did conventional seed bed preparation that included double disking and spiketooth harrowing.

The once-over method also permitted quicker planting and a saving in motor fuel. Two disking and two harrowing operations were eliminated. Another advantage was that the soil had greater water storage capacity, for till was not broken down by excessive tillage.

The Michigan State college scientists say that keeping soil in good till is needed for crop production. Loose, grainy soils give a good contact between the soil and the seed, making it easier for roots to reach plant nutrients, water and air.

Good till is a product of good rotation, not repeated workings with machinery, they say. Every time you go over a field with a tractor or heavy equipment, the weight and action of the machinery grinds up soil particles and damages soil structure. It cuts down the soil's water-absorbing capacity. Roots have a harder time getting nutrients and moisture.

Till and structure can be built up and maintained if the soil is steadily supplied with organic matter. The best source of organic matter is well-fertilized grass pastures grown regularly in rotation. Crop residues and manure help, but they alone cannot do the whole job of maintaining till. Legume-grass crops need plenty of fertilizer carrying phosphate and potash.

Early pasture is good for both sows and their litters. Michigan State college animal husbandry specialists say that putting the pigs on pasture as soon as possible, helps avoid the dangers of anemia and other baby pig ailments.

Seed of Kent oats, a variety released by the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station in 1948 and increased under certification in 1949, is available in good supply for planting this season.

Michigan Now Has 200 Tree Farms

Michigan now has over 200 tree farms.

Conservation department foresters have inspected and approved 200 projects, covering 630,647 acres, and most participating owners have received certificates and signs which identify individual timber management areas.

Michigan Forest Industries and the state conservation department sponsor the program. Certificates and signs are given to owners of woodlots or forests of more than six acres which identify individual timber management areas.

Start creep feeding for little pigs at two weeks, say swine specialists at Michigan State college. You can feed most any mixture, but cracked grain is better than fine ground grains.

Brannan Plan a Straight Jacket, Farm Bureau Executive Declares

"If the country ever adopts the proposed Brannan plan for agriculture, then agriculture is in for a straight-jacket regimentation," declared Jack Yeager, of the Michigan Farm Bureau. "It would be impossible to guarantee the farmer a set income while the consumer has the advantage of buying farm products on the market at a price established only by supply and demand. The government eventually would have to control the acreage and volume of farm products."

But the idea has great appeal Yeager warned. It proposes to give the farmer high prices and give the consumer low prices. In Yeager's opinion the present plan to flexible farm support prices is much better and safer for the country.

Because the farm price support plan as now in use is not understood by the general public and is not presented correctly by city newspapers and magazines and commentators, folks condemn the practice, but Yeager warned that without a prosperous agriculture there cannot be prosperity for the country as a whole. Every major depression was led by a drastic drop in farm prices; that 30 per cent of all manufacturing is directly engaged in the processing of food and farm products which in turn employ 20 per cent of the 14 million employed in industry; that one-half of all retail stores are food dealers.

"Certainly as important a basic industry as agriculture cannot be allowed to get down to only a subsistence level," Yeager said. "It does this country in for another depression like the early thirties. Farm income is already down 30 per cent from 1947. A further drop is extremely dangerous. Without a prosperous agriculture there cannot be prosperity in the nation."

"There always have been subsidies for many industries, services and products," Yeager stated. "There are subsidies to the merchant marine, the airlines, the railroads for mail service, labor through the minimum wage, large segments of our population through social security, unemployment insurance, industry through tariffs. The farmer is not alone in getting subsidies."

Northern Counties Again Accredited On Bang's Disease

Alpena, Mackinac, Chippewa and Marquette counties have been approved for reaccreditation as modified accredited Bang's disease-free counties. Dr. Lee Davidson, state veterinarian, in his announcement, said that Baraga and Montmorency counties are in process of reaccreditation.

To be accredited a county must have less than 5 per cent of the herds and less than 1 per cent of the cattle infected with Bang's disease. To keep these areas accredited, they must be retested every three years.

The Bang's disease control program is conducted cooperatively by the federal and state bureaus of animal industry under the direction of Dr. C. H. Hays of the U. S. bureau of animal industry and Dr. Davidson. At the present time, work of eradication of Bang's disease is in progress in the Upper Peninsula and that portion of the Lower Peninsula above the Midland and Oceana county lines and in Newaygo county, on a test and slaughter program. Under this program cattle are identified when found to be reactors to Bang's disease and must be slaughtered within the next 15 days. In this area, districts are set up according to the cattle population, and a veterinarian left in charge to retest the infected herds.

In the counties in southern Michigan, Bang's disease control work is being conducted on a test and deferred slaughter program in which the reactors may be retained in the herd under quarantine. In these counties no indemnity is paid on the reactors. Because of the larger cattle population in southern Michigan counties, fewer new counties may be started each year.

Silage Feeding Time Can Be Cut

Feeding silage to dairy cows by the fork or basket method is one of the best examples of wasted time and work on many farms, says E. R. Bookhout, farm management research specialist at Michigan State college.

Use of a silage cart, he says, saves three-fourths of the walking done with the fork method, and nearly all of the heavy lifting.

Bookhout published results of a study made at the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station in the current issue of Michigan Farm Economics, agricultural economics department monthly publication.

The study revealed that in feeding a 15-cow herd with the fork carrying method, a farmer walks more than a quarter of a mile a day. This chore takes him 20 minutes. By using a basket he walks 825 feet, and takes 15 minutes to do the job. With a silage cart the feeding takes 13 minutes and he walks only 375 feet.

Silage carts cannot be used on all farms due to barn arrangement. But in many cases, minor changes such as widening a door or replacing a step with an incline would permit the use of a cart, Bookhout says.

The full advantage of the cart is obtained when it is run under the silo chute and filled as the silage is thrown down.

SUMMER PASTURE Role's test you have plenty of summer pasture. Good summer pasture not only makes for high production during the grazing months but also puts the cow in shape to do a better year-round job.

BROWN SWISS PRODUCES Lucy of Plainview 118436, a registered Brown Swiss cow owned by Max Difert & Son, Mason, has recently completed a 305-day lactation record on herd test of 10,419.3 pounds milk and 422.38 pounds fat on twice-a-day milking, according to Fred S. Jette, secretary of the Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' association, Beloit, Wisconsin. Lucy is 5 years 10 months old.

Farmers who are interested in purchasing a large, expensive farm machine for special jobs, can often interest neighbors in joining on a cooperative basis to share expense and work.

DUST STORM AFTERMATH—Albert Brubander digs out a culvert on his father's farm near Shawnee, Kan., after recent dust storms swept over the land. When the winds abated, loose soil like this was deposited like minor snowdrifts over many Midwestern farms, causing damage to crops which is still not fully estimated. Weather Bureau and Department of Agriculture officials admit that nature may be setting the stage for storms which could match the disastrous "Dust Bowl" days of the Thirties.

SEE WHAT YOU'RE DOING!

Because MM tractors are completely VISIONLINED . . . permitting you to see easily the work being done without stretching or straining.
Because cultivator gangs are mounted just behind the front pedestal where it is easier to see and to dodge out-of-line plants.

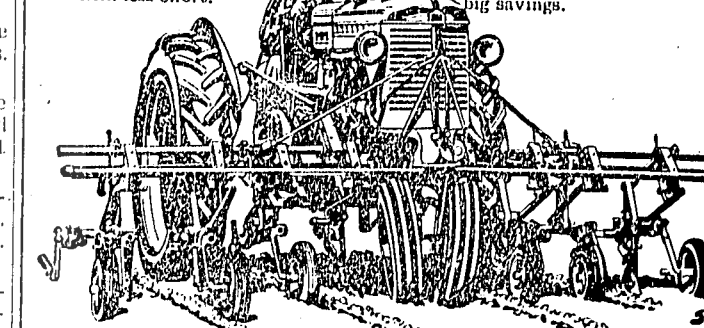

MM Universal tractors and famous Quick-On—Quick-Off cultivators are a combination hard to equal for getting work done fast and efficiently. This is especially true since new Uni-Matic Power gives added smooth, positive control. The gangs of MM cultivators enter, stay, and leave the ground in level position because of the parallel link tie-up to the main tool bar. Gauge wheels assure even ground penetration by the outer gangs no matter how uneven the field.

NEW UNI-MATIC POWER

Optional on all MM Tractors is the new hydraulic unit for raising, lowering, and controlling mounted and pull-behind implements. Get more work done every hour with less effort.
