Judge Continues Rinehart Hearing

Judge Earl McDonald of Lansing municipal court has continued the hearing of Dale Rinehart, 33, Holt, until September 21. The Holt man is charged with negligent homicide July 5. He was the driver of the car in which his brother, Wayne, 24, of Lansing was killed. The car left the pavement on M-36 east of Danville and struck a tree. Two others were injured in the accident. The four men were headed for Lowe lake on a fishing trip.

At the hearing before Judge McDonald last Friday the prosecution completed its presentation. Dale Rinehart's attorney, George Hute, asked that the charge be dismissed. The judge denied the motion. Then Hute said he might want to have witnesses testify.

Judge McDonald adjourned the hearing until September 21 to give opportunity for testimony to be presented.

If on September 21 Rinehart is bound over to circuit court for trial the case will be placed on the current term calendar, Prosecutor Paul C. Younger indicated.

And with such smiles and good looks it might be said a thing of joy is a beauty forever. If you've wondered how baby contest winners turn out, take Marilyn Yvonne Miller of Pierre, S. ### Weather Boosts Corn Prospects

Corn has matured more this past week than during the last three weeks in August, many farmers declare.

Another week of warm days and nights is needed to get much of the corn out of danger. Yet right now some corn is made.

Corn stood still for two weeks until the sun came out Saturday and Monday's warm rain fell.

It looked like a frost for sure several nights last week but the cold lifted before the freezing point was reached. A frost in August nipped some corn on low ground but spared fields on the uplands.

Farmers who go by the almanac are a little fearful that the full moon may bring frost Saturday. They hope for another week's respite.

The rain did a lot of good for pasture, too.

Dansville Youths Take Clover Seed

Four 16-year-old Dansville boys admitted stealing two bags of clover seed over the week end and are being held at the detention home in Mason by the juvenile court.

The seed was taken from Spencer Pinckney, who lives on Shepherd road near Stockbridge. The boys admitted to Deputy Sheriff Versile Babcock that they skipped school and attempted to peddle the seed for cash at several near-by elevators. There is not much of a market for clover seed, the boys learned, and they were unable to sell it. When the missing seed was reported by Pinckney, Babcock made a check of the elevators in the area. One operator had written down the license number of the boy's car, because clover seed is "a peculiar thing to sell at this time of year."

The Dansville youths quickly admitted to the theft.

In addition, they admitted to taking canned goods, bananas, and candy bars Monday from the farm home of Roger Church on Waldo road.

Electrification And Production On Farms Linked

Rural electrification is largely responsible for the increase in farm production, Ira B. Baucus of the electrical engineering staff of Michigan State college, declared Tuesday. He spoke before the Mason Kiwanis club.

In 16 years, the speaker pointed out, farms have jumped from being 10 per cent electrified to 90 per cent. Without electricity farmers would be unable to reach their production goals, Baucus asserted. Baucus credited REA with spurring farm electrification. He praised utility companies here in Michigan for expanding their systems to serve farm areas without waiting for REA. In many states, though, Baucus declared, the REA cooperative made farm electrification possible.

The importance of the experimental work on the Dansville-Mason farm line 25 years ago was pointed to by the speaker. That was one of the first lines and it proved that farmers needed electricity and that it could be made to pay out, Baucus said.

For two years Baucus was with REA companies. He decried the part politics have played in REA administration and development. Yet in spite of politics, Baucus said, the REA has accomplished much and many able men work for the cooperatives.

West Elm Street Will Be Repaired

West Elm street will be repaired this week, according to County Highway Engineer Frank Evans. Heavy traffic crushed the once-smooth asphalt surface while the street was used as a detour route last month.

Trucks and automobiles used the street while repair work was in progress at the corner of Ash and Lansing streets.

Other county highway work is underway in the northwest part of the county. Patching and surface work will continue for about two more weeks, according to Evans.

After the lunch Mrs. Earl Salisbury, president of the society, welcomed the members. Mrs. Ray Perkins gave the devotions and prepared the worship center.

Salisbury presented the program in the form of a four-act play. It described the work for the year which should be done in the different circles and explained the materials which are available to the circles and the society.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Rich Fabrics, Tubular Silhouette To Highlight New Fall Fashions

By Ertia Haley

RICH LOOKING clothes made of lavish and opulent fabrics are the most important fashion news of the moment. There are no radical changes in silhouette, except for the fact that the tubular type which can be worn as easily by the large woman as the woman with reed slim lines, will be most popular.

The new fabrics which will play such an important part in the fashion scene will have touch appeal as well as eye appeal. There will be woolsens so thick and luxurious, they'll need no lining. There will be silks and velvets, too, as well as other luxury fabrics such as the tafetas, both plain and metallic, slipper satin, ribbed satin, hammered satin, pure silk and flat and canton silk.

Subtle dressed-up touches will appear even on the daytime and sports clothes, while fabulous jewel embroideries will blaze on evening coats and dresses. Jet, that popular trimming of some time ago, which has been making a comeback, will really have arrived in fall glory with the new fashions, especially on afternoon clothes.

Color is the prime inspiration of the top designers. Though black, brown, gray, winter navy and the basic red introduced last year are to be seen frequently, you'll be noticing unusual colors and inventive color-blending.

There will be blues in at least a dozen shades ranging from the pale steel blue to the soft wedgewood blue. Orange shades are destined to be popular as well as green. Bright, flaming reds are on the scene, and so are pinks from flesh to intense hues.

Satin Ensemble

Claret red satin is used in this dinner ensemble to add a luxurious note to the fashion scene. The dress is squared across the bodice and has wide shoulder straps. Tabs on the hips look like pockets, and are centered with rhinestone buttons.

Fashions promote sheath silhouettes.

Women Will Appreciate Silhouette, Neckline Interest
The tubular lines of the sheath silhouette are an important part of the current fashion picture. This will come as good news for women of all sizes, but especially so for those who wear larger sizes, as it's an easy and flattering line to wear.

Many skills are included in the new silhouette as the working and wrapping of the fabric cross-grained to give a dress "muscle" that will follow those of the individual. Strategic use of curved lines at neck and hip act as a balance to the vertical body lines.

One of the most important features of the new silhouette continues to be width at the neck or at the top. Wide necklines, wide collars in many fascinating shapes, deep armholes and dolman sleeves are featured in dresses, suits and coats.

Collars with fur bandings or up-standing cuffs are fashion highlights. For the plunging or daring décolletage, there are "fill-ins" which include dickies, lace or massed flowers, all lending their particular effects for the lavish effects so important now.

The squared shoulder and set-in sleeve is also in for a return visit. There will also be sleeves utterly absent as seen so extensively in warm weather fashions and the long, tight, dramatically cuffed sleeves.

Hemlines, Waistlines Remain Unaltered

You don't have to get used to a lower waistline, yet, although there are signs that the eyes are being trained for it. It happens in subtle ways, though, by the use of long placed tabs on narrow box coats and the cascade panels that shoot out from the long molded torso line of evening dresses.

Hemlines for the current crop of clothes remain at midcalf, which is about 14 inches from the floor, on both daytime and evening dresses. The newest evening hemline is street length at the front though it swoops down at the back, and gives rise to what is called the peacock line.

Skirts are still slim as they've been, but are more supple because of intricate skill used in wrapping,

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Putnam of Columbusville visited his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Hugh Putnam, Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Green and family of Yale low placed flounces, tiers and back flares.

Skirts for the evening open flower-like above the knee or are like huge petals, narrow as a daisy or wide as a rose. Overskirts are growing in importance, and borders of fur, embroidery or pleats are featured everywhere.

Suits Overshadowed By Dress Combinations

Suits which frequently make news in the fashion picture are bypassed this season in favor of the dress with a coat or the dress with a jacket which many women will appreciate. This is, of course, in line with the dressed-up look.

Designers have concentrated on coats with exciting outlines, rich detail and silken linings. They have both originality and distinction, and, when chosen carefully, they will do a great deal for both face and figure.

The dresses underneath the coats and jackets are slim and elegant. When worn with their respective coats, the dress material is in extreme contrast.

Fabric weight determines the design and function of the costume. Wafer plaids, sheer wool crepes and chiffon jerseys are balanced by the other extreme.

You'll be seeing velvet accents on many of the daytime dress and jacket combination. With a dress and jacket combinations, for instance, you may find that the dress has a velvet collar and belt to match the cuff collar and revers of the jacket.

Capas are also being used in place of coats and jackets on some of the dresses, and these, too, have their velvet accents. Some of the capas are reversible, and it's not at all unusual to find wool fleece capas made with velvet on the reverse side.

Coats Add Lavish Note To Fashion Scene

Thick but very soft coats will be popular this fall and winter in the fashion picture, according to designers' forecasts. No woman need feel chill breezes, either, for they'll be warm, and lavishly so.

Loop weave chinchilla cloth is being used for both long and short coats. Reversible two-tone and plain and plaid coatings appear destined for popularity. Cashmere and camel's hair coats are a real surprise with their linings of white satin.

Some of the newest coats are made in a Spanish cloak style, with buttons and banding in black silk braid. Drop shoulders are featured on many of the coats with stitching defining the deep underarm sleeve treatment.

Trick sleeves are another feature seen on many coats, this taking the form of a contrasting cuff, made wide and dramatic, at about the elbow.

High, upstanding collars, large but very neat looking, give many coats much of their interest. Buttons are used on many of the coats to point up collar interest.

Spanish Influence Felt In Both Colors, Trimmings

As you may have guessed from the description of the cloak style coat, Spanish influence is being felt in fashions of the season. The colors have a Spanish feeling, as you'll note when you see bold Castilian red and black, Goya yellow and black, as well as muted brown and black, and the soft Velasquez blues and greens.

Spanish, too, are the trimmings which will decorate the fashions. There will be velvet and jet combinations, tassels, bead fringes, black braid bindings, Andalusian plaits and picador vests.

Blanket Coverage

and More, Too

Some people talk about blanket coverage. But what kind of a blanket? That's important.

Newspapers offer blanket coverage and more, too.

The newspaper blanket is thick and wide and long. And it has fringes. Those fringes make it attractive. They make people anxious to get it.

Maybe it's the fringe that makes them pay for it and makes them want to take it out of the mailbox. Maybe it's the fringe that makes them pleased to see your advertising message there, whether you are in big business or have just some farm or home item you want to sell or want to buy.

Newspaper advertising reaches out. That's the kind of advertising you need. Maybe what you want to buy isn't in your own town. Maybe the customer that wants what you have to sell is out on the fringe of the blanket. You can reach him with newspaper advertising.

There's a lot more to advertising than just writing it down on a piece of paper. Advertising that gets attention and action is the advertising printed in newspapers, in newspapers that are welcomed in the home, in newspapers that are read by all the family.

The blanket coverage (with fringe on the blanket) is what every good newspaper provides.

That kind of a blanket comes with every ad in the Ingham County News.

It's a blanket that 5,421 families pay to have spread over them every week. Advertisers who want to learn more about the warmth of that blanket, and the attractive fringes, only have to call the Ingham County News and someone will come on the run.

BETTER CARS. YES! BETTER DEALS, TOO!

LES FOOTE, INC., has found in the past that satisfied customers are his best advertisements. Derwood Fletcher, local lot manager, has been instructed to follow the same policy that has made so many friends in the Lansing area, and that is to price all cars at the lowest possible markup. Volume turnover of reconditioned and guaranteed cars will be our contribution to Mason area car buyers.

SEE AND DRIVE one of our better cars before you buy.

1950 NASH—Statesman 2-door. These cars get the most out of every gallon of gas. You'll enjoy the "Weather-eye" air conditioned heater, smooth riding qualities of coil springing, overdrive and foam rubber cushions. This one has a reclining seat which converts into a bed.

1950 NASH—Ambassador with hydraulic, air conditioned heater. This too converts into a bed. Looks and performs like a new car, but it can be yours at a considerable reduction in price. Get the facts before you buy. We make it easy for you to own any lot of the better cars on our big lot by giving you top dollar trade allowance on your present car.

1950 OLDSMOBILE—'88" with attractive, spotless buff colored club coupe has standard shift, radio and heater. Buy where you get a guarantee.

1949 FORD—Business coupe, green. This car has had best of care and shows it. If you are operating on a limited budget, let us give you the facts on buying a car such as this one.

1947 NASH (2) club coupes. Both have radio, heater and overdrive.

1946 OLDSMOBILE. A sound 4-door with hydraulic, radio and heater. See and drive it, get our price, get our guarantee, get our bigger trade-in allowance on your present car.

1948 CHEVROLET—Fleetline 4-door. Beautiful swan-gray finish. Has radio and heater. This car looks like the owner had expected to keep it in the family for the next 20 years. To tell the truth he got a hanker' for one of the Nash cars that converts into a bed (used it on his vacation). No apologies for the appearance on this one, and we guarantee the condition.

1940 PONTIAC—"8" 4-door.

SPECIAL THIS WEEK ONLY! 1942 HUDSON—$150 will make this good 4-door Commodore sedan yours. This is a "get-acquainted-offer" wish we had a dozen more, but buys like this are hard to find. So stop in at our earliest convenience.

Salyers Returns To Ingham Jail

A 90-day term in the Ingham jail didn't cure Irving Salyers of Stockbridge of drunk driving. He got the 90-day sentence from Justice of the Peace Roy W. Adams at Mason. He was out one day and was arrested again on the same charge. After being bound over to circuit court, because his second arrest constituted a circuit court offense, Salyers pleaded guilty before Judge Marvin J. Salmon Tuesday.

Judge Salmon gave Salyers 10 days in jail.
Army induction looms for Salyers, Judge Salmon commented. That was the reason for the 10-day sentence, court attaches said. By the end of the 10 days the army will take the man. If a longer term had been imposed he would have been fouled up on his induction and the county would have been put to additional expense, the judge pointed out.

Salyers' record since coming to Ingham has been rapidly building up. On July 24, 1948, he was sentenced to 20 days in the Ingham jail on a larceny charge. On March 6, 1950, he was sent to jail for 20 days for disturbing the peace. He appeared before Judge Adams on August 8, 1950, on an assault and battery charge. He was fined $16.00 and put on probation for a year. On April 23, 1951, he was fined $30.00 and put on six months probation for being drunk and disorderly.

On May 5, 1951, Salyers was picked up for violation of justice court probation and was given 90 days in jail by Judge Adams. Upon gaining freedom he celebrated and was arrested for drunk driving on June 3. He drew the 90-day jail term then because he did not pay the $112.00 fine and costs. After completing the 90-day term, less time off, he was out one day before getting into the coils of the law again.

Book Talk

from INGHAM COUNTY LIBRARY

Hours open to the public at Hall Memorial Library, Mason: Daily, 2-6 p. m.; Monday, Wednesday, Saturday, 7-9 p. m.; Saturday, 10-12 a. m.

THIS IS THE HOUR, by Leon Fouchwanger, is a biographical novel which should appeal to both the art lover and the reader who likes good historical fiction. It is the story of Francisco Goya and the Spain of Charles IV and the Inquisition, bringing to life the court personages of Goya's portraits and injecting reality into the international and personal intrigue.

The author begins with the effect of the execution of Marie Antoinette on Spain and relates the artist's tragic love affair with the frivolous Duchess of Alba. At the same time he traces Goya's developing character in the rise from artistic peasant to first court painter and his growth from a saintly, pious, fearful man bound only by his art and personal needs to the social-conscious man who used his art and influence to further justice and to denounce the evils of the court and church of that time.

THE SPUR, by Ardyth Kennelly, is an absorbing drama, combining history and fiction—the story of the man who assassinated President Lincoln. But it is also a dramatic account of the strange workings of a man's mind. It is John Wilkes Booth's review of his 26 years of life during the six cold and pain-ridden nights while he lay in Cox's woods after one of the most notorious crimes in American history.

The story begins with Booth's stealthy approach to his crime. A great actor, with a strong sense of the dramatic, he saw the drama of the situation more clearly than its actual importance. Here, in this novel is the picture of the twisted emotions and the hidden passions that turned a handsome, famous young actor into a bitter, psychopathic murderer.

THE CAPTAIN, by Russell Thatcher, is a gripping, realistic tale of the trials, tribulations, accomplishments and failures of a young naval reserve lieutenant in command of an LST (Landing Ship Tanks), although here it seemed as though the letters should stand for Large Slow Target on major convoy heading with an uncertain crew and shipload of marines and their equipment for a dangerous landing at a Japanese island fortress which suggests Ikinawa. The captain knew his ship, completed his mission, then is "broke" for infractions of rules and regulations.

THE SCANDALOUS MRS. BLACKFORD, is Harnett Kane's newest novel. The story is based on information discovered by Victor Leclere, Russian scholar and lecturer. It is about Harriet Blackford, a nineteenth-century girl who began life as a clergyman's daughter in Philadelphia.

The heroine is a rebel who, after being widowed following an unfortunate elopement, vowed that she would never again submit to the genteel poverty which she had known in the past. Moving into an elegant house in Philadelphia, her tremendous charm and beauty made her the toast of the rich young men of the city and the talk of the women.

From Philadelphia, Harriet moved on to the brilliant Paris before the Franco-Prussian War and to a freedom that she had never known before. When the German siege brought an end to her successful career there, she went to St. Petersburg where she met Archduke Nicholas.

The tragic love story of Harriet and Nicholas with its secret visits to luxurious palaces, the summer maneuvers of the Imperial Guard, where Harriet was smuggled into Nicholas' quarters disguised as an aide-de-camp; a journey to Italy where Nicholas had a marble statue made of his beloved, and a dramatic meeting by the Volga to share his triumph after defeating the Khan of Khiva, to the political intervention which quickly followed Nicholas' announcement of his intention of marrying the beautiful Harriet, makes a fascinating novel.

"... pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest." (Luke 10:2.)
Read Matthew 9:27-38.

Our most important work is to carry out our Lord's last orders, to proclaim His gospel to the unreached peoples of the earth. Our task is to lay everything else aside and dedicate ourselves to this one great objective—evangelization of the world in our generation.

Hundreds of thousands of people have never heard the name of Christ or of His gospel. They are living without knowledge of Christ, dying without experience of His saving power. We are duty-bound to point out to these the way, the truth, and the life. God expects us thus to labor for Him. God had an only begotten Son. God made Him an Evangelist. Can we become less?

Why not put our prayers, talents, gifts, and money into this great work? Why not invest our lives in this supreme task?

The harvest truly is plenteous. Will we go? Will we enter the field? God has spoken to us. Have we heard His call? Will we not answer, "Here am I; send me?"

PRAYER
Our Father God, Thou hast made plain to us our duty, our work in Thy vineyard here on earth. Help us to labor earnestly and faithfully for Thee for the redemption of our fellow men the world around. In our Redeemer's name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Obedience is better than sacrifice.

Remodeling? Make It Fire-Safe

PUT FURNACE IN FIRE-SAFE ENCLOSURE

Cover ceiling joists with plaster, asbestos or gypsum. Keep the pipe between furnace and chimney short and straight. Clean heating plant yearly.

WIRE HOME TO MEET FUTURE NEEDS

Don't overload circuits. Have separate circuits for deep freeze, refrigerator, stove, etc. Provide plenty of outlets. Don't use a penny for a fuse.

BUILD CHIMNEY ON SOLID GROUND

Don't let it land or get structural support from house. Have solid masonry units or reinforced concrete at least four inches thick, lined with fire brick or clay. Clean yearly.

PREVENT ROOF FIRES

Fire resistant roofing like asphalt shingles protects homes against sparks from chimneys, and other sources.

ADDED TIP
Fire stops placed in fire from floor to floor.

Four fire hazards actually are "built in" American homes, says the National Fire Prevention Association, and these structural hazards account for about 50 percent of all residential fires.

With emphasis being given to home modernization today, the NFPA sees this as an ideal time to eliminate these four structural hazards. Also, the NFPA points out that it is far easier to correct the mechanical causes of fire than the human tendency towards carelessness.

The agriculture I class enrollment is somewhat lower this year with only 19 boys in the class.

The number steps up in the agriculture II class with a total of 27 boys. Of this number all except two were enrolled in agriculture last year. Charles Brown attended Mason last year but has moved on the farm formerly known as the Wilbur Singer farm. Donald Gailey is working on a farm this year so now has an opportunity for a supervised farming program and is taking agriculture.

The agriculture IV class is composed of 21 juniors and 11 seniors. All juniors were in agriculture last year but with the seniors is Roger Bator who was a former agriculture student but didn't take agriculture last year. This makes a total enrollment of 78.

The chapter voted to pay one-half of the expenses of the delegates at the last meeting. These boys will leave Lansing on a special train at noon October 8 and will return the following Saturday. Following their return the boys will report to the agriculture classes regarding their duties in Kansas City.

Plans are underway for a cooperative P. F. A. wheat project. Following the P. F. A. meeting when the chapters vote to go ahead with the project, immediate action was taken. A committee of six was appointed by the president, composed of Harold Sheathelm, Leroy Soules, Donald Williams, Leroy Brower, Jack Freeman and Gordon Monroe, to plan for the project. Plans are for two fields of wheat on the Mrs. Dorothy Hedglen farm, located just south of Dansville. A total of 12 or 13 acres are in the two fields. The project is in making definite plans regarding seed selection, fertilizer to apply and time of planting. ### BRIDLE INTENTIONS? — A Hollywood "gallop" poll has discovered that actress Joyce Holden is a cinch to go places in the "horsey" set on the basis of her almost completely equine outfit—or maybe someone's just trying to stir up an argument. Miss Holden wears "ears" on her hat, saddle-trappings on her belt buckle, her hair in a "mane" fashion and her purse resembles a nag's feed bag. Right from the horse's mouth, though, we have it that the big idea behind this and all fashions is to suggest to men that it wouldn't be a bad idea to get into double harness.

Farmer Peck's Wife

Elizabeth can walk around the house. On taking vacations—spend the last two days at home! We visited Mrs. Mae Best in Canada.

Such good news as this goes before anything this week! Elizabeth is gaining duty by day and gets around the house. She can't bend over or lift anything and she has to watch for the least lump or rise in the rug, but she watches, and makes it.

My, but it seems good. The doctor promised her she might go riding very soon and she has a mental list as long as your arm where she wants to go. Six months to make up.

You know how in the beginning of her sickness I kept asking, "Why? Why? Why?" Well, anyone who has seen her and the family has gained something. It was for some purpose and I for one have received a bigger slice of trusting, patience, compassion and closeness to the Lord than I would have otherwise.

I didn't see at first why it had to be Elizabeth who had never done anything wrong—now each week I find out someone else who has been helped.

If anyone reading this has never believed in God or given it much thought—believe me when I say that my sister has had a strength beyond her physical body to help her. There is a lesson for us to learn and I pray that I have told you enough of it so you can benefit from it, too.

Last week I wrote that home was the place where you could pick up the thread of living as though you had not been away. All week I've had a good laugh over that statement.

What I meant was that home was where everything was familiar and dear and yours, and where, if you were gone a week, there were a dozen things you would miss—such as mowing the lawn, scrubbing the front porch (dog's hang-out), washing windows, getting the colicows out, washing and ironing the biggest batch of clothes in many a month, baking up a batch of food, writing letters back to say we arrived home safely and that we had a wonderful time, and then there is canning and freezing that garden stuff.

Tomatoes, beets, cauliflower, corn, peaches (at $4.50 a bushel), cucumbers—well, if I went a few minutes of not canning I prolong my habit of going to the garden the first thing in the morning to see what has come out during the night. Even so, that "out-of-sight-out-of-mind" works only so long.

If that sounds like I'm complaining you've got me wrong as a general rule. I have the willingness to have a good and varied one can save on the grocery list. All fall and winter and spring we can have delicious vegetables green, red, yellow or orange with little cost.

Now here I am going on about the wonderfulness of having a garden (which would be one of my hobbies if I were a millionaire!) instead of telling you about what I promised—the interesting trip we took—our first vacation in 10 years.

As I ironed parts of two days, I had a good chance to think. And these two thoughts are foremost. Our appreciation of Pete's brother-in-law, Howard Whitaker, and my niece, Peggie Phillips, who did our chores while we were gone.

I know Pete went with no doubt or worry in his mind over how telling of them that he knew they would be done as well if not better than he would do them. Howard is meticulous beyond compare. And I didn't worry about Peggie or how Mrs. Fisher would feed the dog or cats, chickens, rabbits and ducks. Tommy kept Phoebe. I didn't worry there either.

The other is how if you plan on a vacation you should include an extra two days which are not spent on the road, but at home sleeping or resting up. Include those two days as part of your vacation. If you have 10 days off take eight away and two at home. But I'm not the only one who thinks that!

Before we left, I spent a whirly-twirly night. I mean my stomach did. I tried to relax and be calm but I felt so excited inside. (I get that way over a lot of things.)

Aunt Lella came out and ate breakfast with us and she did up the dishes while we got suitcases and things in her car. The last minute I dashed to the garden and picked a huge bouquet of glads which we stowed in the trunk for my mother who lives at Capac. The dew was heavy on them and I don't believe they ever looked more beautiful. When amid giggles and frantic waving at the dog and animals from the girls, we were off.

I'd better be careful or I'll be writing a book so I'll just tell the highlights, a few jokes and some impressions.

In no time at all it seemed we were at Capac. I was in the house at mothers and standing behind her. There is a lesson for us to learn and I pray that I have told you enough of it so you can benefit from it, too.

The dew was heavy on them and I don't believe they ever looked more beautiful. When amid giggles and frantic waving at the dog and animals from the girls, we were off.

I'd better be careful or I'll be writing a book so I'll just tell the highlights, a few jokes and some impressions.

In no time at all it seemed we were at Capac. I was in the house at mothers and standing behind her. There is a lesson for us to learn and I pray that I have told you enough of it so you can benefit from it, too.

Last week I wrote that home was the place where you could pick up the thread of living as though you had not been away. All week I've had a good laugh over that statement.

What I meant was that home was where everything was familiar and dear and yours, and where, if you were gone a week, there were a dozen things you would miss—such as mowing the lawn, scrubbing the front porch (dog's hang-out), washing windows, getting the colicows out, washing and ironing the biggest batch of clothes in many a month, baking up a batch of food, writing letters back to say we arrived home safely and that we had a wonderful time, and then there is canning and freezing that garden stuff.

Tomatoes, beets, cauliflower, corn, peaches (at $4.50 a bushel), cucumbers—well, if I went a few minutes of not canning I prolong my habit of going to the garden the first thing in the morning to see what has come out during the night. Even so, that "out-of-sight-out-of-mind" works only so long.

If that sounds like I'm complaining you've got me wrong as a general rule. I have the willingness to have a good and varied one can save on the grocery list. All fall and winter and spring we can have delicious vegetables green, red, yellow or orange with little cost.

Now here I am going on about the wonderfulness of having a garden (which would be one of my hobbies if I were a millionaire!) instead of telling you about what I promised—the interesting trip we took—our first vacation in 10 years.

As I ironed parts of two days, I had a good chance to think. And these two thoughts are foremost. Our appreciation of Pete's brother-in-law, Howard Whitaker, and my niece, Peggie Phillips, who did our chores while we were gone.

I know Pete went with no doubt or worry in his mind over how telling of them that he knew they would be done as well if not better than he would do them. Howard is meticulous beyond compare. And I didn't worry about Peggie or how Mrs. Fisher would feed the dog or cats, chickens, rabbits and ducks. Tommy kept Phoebe. I didn't worry there either.

The other is how if you plan on a vacation you should include an extra two days which are not spent on the road, but at home sleeping or resting up. Include those two days as part of your vacation. If you have 10 days off take eight away and two at home. But I'm not the only one who thinks that!

Before we left, I spent a whirly-twirly night. I mean my stomach did. I tried to relax and be calm but I felt so excited inside. (I get that way over a lot of things.)

Aunt Lella came out and ate breakfast with us and she did up the dishes while we got suitcases and things in her car. The last minute I dashed to the garden and picked a huge bouquet of glads which we stowed in the trunk for my mother who lives at Capac.

The dew was heavy on them and I don't believe they ever looked more beautiful. When amid giggles and frantic waving at the dog and animals from the girls, we were off.

Total Taxes Now Equal the Incomes Of People in Four-Fifths of Country

This country must, of course, spend whatever is necessary to bolster our national defense, says "The First National Bank of Boston" in the current issue of its New England Letter. Continuing, the bank says, "While we are spending staggering amounts for military purposes as a protection against aggression, the administration is undermining our financial segment, the cornerstone of our nation's security, by condoning waste and extravagance that in the aggregate runs approximately $10 billion annually. Furthermore, there is no apparent official concern over our financial plight, as is evidenced by the fact that pressure groups within the government itself are busily drawing up blueprints and proposals for all sorts of projects, many of which not only have no connection with national defense but rather have a Utopian tinge. It is to be hoped that the taxpayers of the country will be aroused from their lethargy and while there is still time realize that they are the victims of a stupefying public servants who are 'selling them down the river.' The crucial financial situation calls for a united front by those who pay the bills.

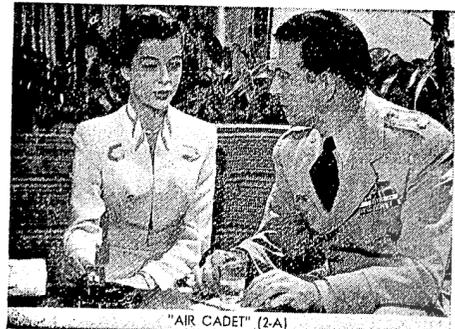

The extent of the drain by government of the people's income is graphically presented on the accompanying map. In 1929, federal expenditures were less than two-thirds of the total income payments to the inhabitants of California. In 1938, federal expenditures were equal to the income payments of the 11 Pacific and Mountain states. For the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1952, it is estimated that federal expenditures will take the equivalent of the aggregate income payments of the Pacific and Mountain states and, in addition, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Minnesota, Iowa, and nearly three-fourths of Missouri. This is shown by the blackened area on the accompanying map. If total state and local expenditures are added, the area would be extended to include the remaining portion of Missouri, plus Arkansas, Louisiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, and two-thirds of Georgia, as is shown by the cross-hatched section of the map.

Estimated Federal expenditures for current fiscal year ending June 30, 1952, equal to estimated total income payments of all individuals in the blackened area, while total state and local expenditures equal aggregate income payments of states in cross-hatched area.

The proportion of these taxes paid by those in the upper income groups declined during this period from 80 per cent of the total to 40 per cent. On the other hand, the British experience should be a dire warning to us as we are traveling down the same road to insolvency, and we must make a detour before it is too late.

Air Cadets Will Zoom at Fox

"AIR CADET" (2-A)

Popular Stephen McNally plays the role of a United States Air Force flight instructor in Universal-International's new release, "Air Cadet," the dramatic story of the training of jet fighter pilots for the Air Force. Gail Russell is also starred in the film's cast which includes Alex Nicol, Richard Long, Charles Drake and Peggie Castle. "Air Cadet," directed by Joseph Pevney and produced by Aaron Rosenberg, was filmed at Randolph Field, Texas, and Williams Field, Arizona. The film will be shown Sunday and Monday.

Portraying an exciting era of the American frontier, "Wyoming Mail" comes to the Fox Theatre Thursday and Friday with a cast of Stephen McNally and Alexis Smith. The screen story is dramatically constructed around the career of Gen. George Armstrong, referred to in history as "the father of the United States mail service."

McNally, cast in the role of a fighter is recruited by General Armstrong to work as an undercover agent for the railroad mail service.

Hollywood of today is cleverly blended with the Hollywood of the fabulous "silent days" in the solving of a 20-year-old murder in Universal-International's new suspense release, "Hollywood Story," opening Saturday at the Fox Theatre.

Richard Conte is starred in the new movie with newcomer Julia Adams and the popular young actor is seen in the role of a producer who becomes more interested in the solving of an old-time murder than in the making of a movie using the unsolved crime as a background.

"Hollywood Story" features Henry Hull, Fred Clark and Jim Backus.

Hex Comes Saturday Starring Rex, the wonder horse, Columbia Pictures' "King of the Wild Horses" opens Saturday at the Fox Theatre. The outdoor adventure reprint tells the story of an Indian brave and his famous black stallion, Rex, and the love of an Indian girl for the young warrior. The picture features William Janney and Dorothy Appleby, in major roles, Wallace MacDonell, Harry Semels, Ford West and Art Mix. Fred Myton penned the screen play from a story by Earl Haley, who also directed "King of the Wild Horses."

Cadets Fly Sunday Universal-International's "Air Cadet," featured Sunday and Monday at the Fox Theatre, tells the dramatic story of the training of jet pilots for the United States Air Force.

Starring Stephen McNally, Gail Russell, Richard Long, Alex Nicol and Charles Drake, "Air Cadet" was filmed on location at Randolph Field, San Antonio, Texas, and Williams Field, Arizona.

A photographic highlight of the semi-documentary film shows the daring jet acrobats, four death-defying jet propelled artists who actually fly 600 miles an hour in a four-ship diamond formation with only 18 inches from wing tip to wing tip.

Francis Will Race The world-famous Santa Anita Race Track was the background for many of the important comedy scenes in Universal-International's "Francis Goes to the Races," featured Tuesday and Wednesday at the Fox Theatre.

Donald O'Connor stars with Piper Laurie and, of course, Francis, the talking mule, in the new laugh sequel to the highly successful "Francis," released last week.

Several of the nation's top race horses including Hill Prince, Coaltown, Moonrush and others are seen in the new comedy release.

Jockeys named the red-haired Piper "the girl we'd most like to throw a halter on" and then proceeded to give the young actress pointers on riding a thoroughbred race horse.

Jesse White and Cecil Kellaway head the supporting cast of "Francis Goes to the Races," produced by Leonard Goldstein and directed by Arthur Lubin.

Western Thriller Roy Rogers' new Republic thriller, "In Old Amarillo," will appear at the Fox Theatre Thursday and Friday.

The picture is spiced by novel plot innovations and is fast-paced action from beginning to end.

The hilarious antics of comic Pinky Lee and the fiery charm of Estelita Rodriguez add to the attraction, while Penny Edwards, Elisabeth Risdon, Ken Howell, Roy Barcroft and Pierre Watkin ably handle supporting roles.

The story concerns a disastrous drought which has plagued the country; cattle are dying off like flies. Rogers, employed by a wealthy rancher, endeavors to follow instructions and move tanks of water into the area. The plan is frustrated by renegades who plan to buy up the dying cattle cheaply for cannibal purposes. Rogers then contacts a private concern to seed cumulus cloud formations to produce artificial rain.

The weak and spoiled son of the wealthy rancher succumbs to the renegade's overtures and for a time serves their evil purposes. Meanwhile, the tempestuous romance between the youth and fiery Pepita, attains riotous proportions, with comic Lee proving to be a hilarious dupe in the rough and ready two-gun setting.

The exciting action which roars to a suspenseful climax, finally sees the forces of good triumphant, but only after a series of situations which place Roy in grave jeopardy.

Seventh Infantry Band Hails Dansville Lass as Their Queen

The Seventh Infantry band came all the way from Korea to Ingham to choose a queen. Their queen is Georgia Foster of Dansville.

Addison Crittenden of Mason is a member of the band. He is a reader of the Ingham County News and naturally read the page display showing Turtle Derby Queen candidates. By ballot the bandsmen decided that Georgia was the girl they wanted for queen of their band, if she would accept.

Crittenden was assigned the task of getting the queen's consent. She received the bid Thursday. The soldier musicians asked her to send a picture and in return they promised to send her a picture of the 55-piece band. Georgia consented and her picture will be mailed to Korea this week.

Georgia is 14 years old and a majorette with the Ingham Township Agricultural school band.

Placing the Blame for Fair Losses

There are two fair schedules in Michigan. The first lists the dates of the fairs. The second list is posted about a week or two after the fairs are held. It lists the excuses why the fairs didn't pay out.

Maybe a fair shouldn't pay out. Perhaps the attitude should be that expressed by Supervisor Fred L. Kircher of Lansing last week: "The fair is a good thing even if the finances do run a few thousand short."

Yet the directors themselves set out to make a profit. If they happen to make a profit or to come out even they take credit for managerial ability. So if they take credit for the few times a profit is made they should be willing to take the blame in years when losses result.

The state fair is in the hole some $65,000. The state fair directors are blaming movie, radio and television stars, and gingle handlers. Directors guaranteed Bob Hope $20,000 for three shows. People only parted with $9,000 for the privilege of viewing or hearing Hope, and they didn't say why.

Other stars didn't draw, either. And then there was the dispute over whether the CIO or AFL was going to peddle Vernon's gingle. Fair directors blame that dispute for part of the loss, although the money that didn't go for pop should have been available for merry-go-round rides.

The Ingham fair board blames the weather for lack of patronage at the fair. There was rain two days. There have been years when the lack of attendance was blamed on good weather, weather so good that farmers stayed home to combine.

Bob Hope or Marilyn Maxwell should not be blamed for the financial loss at the state fair. The directors who agreed to pay such fabulous sums for entertainment are the ones who should be blamed.

Ingham fair directors have no call to blame the weather for Ingham's fair. The weather was normal for August. The weather was good enough so that most of the people operating concessions at the Ingham fair made big money. Several local organizations operating stands came out of the fair with handsome profits. They offered the people what they wanted.

It's the entertainment item that wrecks most fairs. Here in Ingham the first $5,000 of the grandstand entertainment receipts on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights went to the operator of the show. That's still a lot of money. Then there is always the argument about whether or not the horse races pay their way.

Really, the entertainment in front of the grandstand and on the midway is not the primary function of a fair. Here in Ingham, the showing of 4-H livestock and other exhibits is claimed to rank No. 1. The same should hold true at the state fair. Principally because of the submerging of the 4-H angle at Detroit, the 4-H show is now held at Michigan State college. It's successful even without Bob Hope, Marilyn Maxwell and gingle vendors.

The blame for fair losses rests on the same ones who take the credit when a profit is made. They are the directors. A fair which pays off handsomely to midway and grandstand operators somehow ought to return a profit to the fair management itself.

Edgar Reynolds Wins Advance

By Vernon J. Brown
A few weeks ago in this column I mentioned the satisfaction that comes to one who embraces the opportunity to give a boost to some young person who needs just that to enter upon a career that leads to acknowledged success. In that I made reference to a certain young woman, who lived in Mason as a girl, and who made a real place for herself in public employment.

This week I make mention of another, for since my last letter was written I have received through the mails an engraved announcement that Edgar Reynolds has just been made manager of a branch accounting office being opened in Lansing by Ernst & Ernst, internationally known among the leading firms practicing certified accounting.

I first knew Edgar when he was a young boy and his father was employed by the Ingham county road commission. Later I got to know him better when I visited the Reynolds farm to look at some fine Brown Swiss cattle. Edgar and his brothers, Clarence and Raymond, had by that time grown to sturdy farm lads. Still later I watched the progress of the three boys through Mason high school. Then I lost track of them.

Edgar Lands State Job
One day not long after I became auditor general the head of the accounting division came in to report on a mission I had entrusted to him. He was to seek an ambitious young man with some training and experience who would be willing for the sake of the opportunities afforded to accept the limited salary provided in the budget set up for the auditor general by the state legislature.

The comptroller reported that he had found a young fellow who had worked with a local accounting firm, who had some good training behind him and who seemed to have the other qualities desired. Finally he told me the young man's name. That was enough. Knowing Edgar's background, the kind of home training he had received, and knowing how he had conducted himself through high school, he was immediately offered the job.

Burroughs Offers Opportunity
The trouble was he didn't stay long enough to satisfy us. Burroughs Adding Machine company was installing some new equipment on a new accounting job and its experts quickly recognized Edgar's good qualities and offered him more salary and better opportunity for advancement than any state position held.

road commission office. I don't believe I had ever thought much about it either. I knew kraut used to come from a barrel and that cabbage and old boots went into it. After being called upon to settle the argument I made a further study of cabbage. Seed comes the second year. To get cabbage seed the entire plant should be dug and stored for replanting the following spring. Then seeds will develop. The name cabbage comes from caput—meaning head.

From agriculture I'll swing over to silviculture. Farm Forester Eiton Twork declares that leaf blotch is what ails the horse chestnut trees on the court house lawn. It's a fungus and isn't catching. It is present year after year but conditions this season were just right so premature defoliation developed. Twork said that meant the leaves turned yellow and brown and fell off early.

"You fretted over huckleberries going to waste and you're still worried over women not carrying enough plums and peaches, what about elderberries?" inquired my neighbor, Mrs. Harry Smith.

That's a fair question. I have never worried over the elderberry situation. One elderberry pie has always been enough. Yet it probably should be chronicled that this is a good elderberry year where the road commission has not sprayed the roadsides.

This column business is getting crowded. Governor Williams offers one free. Senators Moody and Ferguson are also available at the same price. Now Lieutenant-Governor Vandenberg has entered the field. If this keeps on a lot of columnists will have to enter politics to keep even.

A good investment of a fraction of your Dollar Days savings is in 40 words for 40c at the Ingham County News. It might make you $100.

I had my satisfaction from the Burroughs concern when a year or so later, Edgar was sent to another new installation at the Pontiac state hospital where Ernst & Ernst had been commissioned to make a study and prescribe a system that later could be adopted for all mental hospitals. Accounting officials saw in Edgar more than Burroughs people had recognized and so they hired him away from the Burroughs company.

Edgar's advancement since that date has come consistently and regularly. Now he is to manage an important new branch office for one of the top half-dozen accounting firms in all the world of business.

Naturally I rejoice with Edgar and take no little satisfaction in recalling my own small part in getting him in line for his chosen profession.

Back to Economics
Now I am going to wind up what I have been trying to say concerning Michigan's sad financial plight and the part my own party and the Republican members of the Michigan legislature have played in it.

It was in the early 20's when Michigan's administrative officials first began to feel the pinch of poverty. All costs of government, including schools and highways, both state and local, then were borne by the property tax. That tax was becoming heavy. The constitutional convention of 1908 had struggled with finances and had written some pretty stringent restrictions into the constitution later adopted by the people.

Governor Groesbeck had faced the issue of more adequate revenues with some courage. He forced the legislature to adopt the corporation tax as an emergency measure.

Big business, of course, opposed any such tax. Its representatives could not prevent its passage but they wrote limitations into it that made it perhaps one of the most inequitable pieces of tax legislation ever enacted. Moreover, in order to placate the voters, members of the legislature and the administration insisted it was merely a stop-gap measure to meet an emergency and that it would be repealed and better tax measures adopted.

That was a mistake. Few taxes are ever repealed and this one has infested Michigan's revenue laws now for about 30 years and still stands in all its stark iniquities.

Neither did the corporation tax produce sufficiently to satisfy the necessities of the state government and so by 1929 when I first came to face the responsibilities which rest upon every legislator there was much talk of a state income tax to be added—not to supplement.

Opposition Again Develops
Representatives of business and industry were on hand as in 1920 to oppose any new taxes. In the traditional manner of legislative bodies all over the country, all that was done that year was to provide for a tax study commission. Besides doing this the legislature appropriated something like $3,000,000 and under the statute then prevailing an administrative board that year ordered the levy of a state property tax of about $28,000,000.

To keep the books clear, counties and other local units of government were not paid their money when due. In other words, in effect the state borrowed some $5,000,000 of local units, holding their money back until next year's taxes were collected.

So it went. Appropriations for needed new buildings were made but the buildings were not constructed. By 1932, arbitrary reductions in legislative appropriations were being made by administrative board edict. By 1933, the state was practically bankrupt.

Then the sales tax was resorted to and again the people were told it was only for the emergency. And again it is still with us except the school districts, the cities and the townships have grabbed most of the revenues and the state is now going steadily in the hole again. One hundred million surplus accumulated by 1946 has been used up and by January 1, 1952, the general fund deficit will approach the $50,000,000 mark.

Only for a single term during all this time between 1920 and 1951 have the Democrats been in full control of the legislature and the administration. When I entered the legislature in 1929, there was but one lone Democrat in the house and not in the senate.

I am not proud of my party's record in respect to revenues and tax laws. It is time the business

There Are Enough SDDs

Some members of the state legislature are proposing to double the number of SDD licenses. An SDD license gives the holder the right to sell liquor for consumption off the premises. The present quota is one license for every 3,000 people.

There is nothing in the record to indicate that anyone is suffering because there are too few places to buy liquor. In fact, the record shows the opposite. Just a few months ago the state legislature appropriated $140,000 to study how to rehabilitate the state's best liquor customers, the chronic alcoholics.

The reason why legislators are proposing to double the number of SDD licenses is the same reason they had for passing legislation to get around the law about locating saloons within 500 feet of churches. That reason is because the liquor traffic wants to sell more liquor. Another reason is because people who sell liquor speak up while most of those who realize the social and economic cost of the liquor business remain silent.

The time has come when people can no longer afford to remain silent on a traffic which takes such a terrific toll in human life and causes such tremendous waste in our economy.

Every main Michigan highway is lined with spots where liquor can be bought by the bottle or by the glass. One state agency encourages highway safety. Another encourages the sale of liquor. It just doesn't make sense.

Yes, the time has come when people must speak up, all the people, not just those engaged in the liquor business or those who want to get into it through new SDD outlets.

Down by the Sycamore

My younger daughter and the three oldest grandchildren and I returned from safari Sunday night. We went north after a wildcat and came home with one in captivity.

On Labor Day in the wilds of Roscommon county Margaret's cat suddenly cast off her veneer of domesticity and took to the brush. We just couldn't lure her back so we finally pulled out. I might have left her there to shift for herself with other Roscommon natives but I read a piece in the paper about the cruelty of abandoning pets. So when Saturday broke warm and bright I rounded up my helpers. They had in a supply of catnip and at noon we took off for the north country.

Late that afternoon at the exact spot where the cat had leaped into the woods I stopped the car. We heard a plaintive "Meow," and the cat crawled out of the brush and up to the car. We didn't even have to use the catnip.

Our mission so quickly accomplished, we decided to see what else we could lure out of the brush. One rabbit, two squirrels, a real estate agent and a porcupine showed up but we chased them back in.

The five of us, six counting the cat, put up in a cabin for the night. We went to a restaurant for supper Saturday night. As we ate hamburgers the waitress unloaded thick steaks at the table next to us. At which Vernon, the first game here, remarked, "Some people here must be rich with money."

That afternoon I had asked Vernon how he liked school and his new teacher. "O, she uses paint and she's pretty to look at," the boy replied.

Many people take their vacations in September. Cottages which had been closed all summer were lighted up. I wondered why.

"It's like this," a man told me. "I built my place 30 years ago so I could have a quiet spot to rest. Now there's more bustle and noise here at the lake in June, July and August than there is in Detroit where I have my home. So I come to the lake in April and May and September and October. It's quiet. The summer vacationers are gone. Even the few speedboaters who stay in September have spent most of their money and don't make much noise."

Such clubs as the Lions, Rotary, Exchange and Kiwanis undertake worthwhile projects. I can't think of a better one than the annual Kiwanis rummage sale. This year it will be held Friday and Saturday of next week at the former Dart & Cady store on West Ash. (Free ad.)

The rummage sale project is worthwhile because it serves a real purpose. It takes goods from those who no longer need them and makes them available to those who do.

There are few households not cluttered up with used articles, useful for some other family. The rummage sale program extends the wear in household goods. It reduces waste. It shares the wealth and spreads prosperity. Getting rid of beds, mattresses, tables and chairs makes space available for buying something else. Getting rid of clothing gives a woman the opportunity to say she has nothing to wear.

Last year at the rummage sale I was able to buy a supply of neckties at prices ranging from 5c to 10c each. The average was 8.2c. They were four-in-hands brought into the market when a politician converted to how ties.

The source of cabbage seed was the source of an argument at the of the state and the operations and welfare of its local units were given first consideration and politics were abandoned. There has been feeble leadership over the years and just about no "follow-up."

Diversion Papered State
Not since the diversion amendment was adopted in 1946 has there been the slightest doubt in any reasonable mind concerning the end result. Without new taxes are going to pieces fast, all because of heavy use and too little money. In the face of that fact, elapsing since the diversion and the petitions to have the gas tax re-

000,000 a year more than it has been able to legally retain out of its collections. Meanwhile many genuine needs have been ignored and many worthy objectives neglected or starved. The state is at least $200,000,000 behind where it should be and could have been with intelligent administration.

Everybody expects service from government but nobody wants to pay. Right now we have an excess of government and too little money. In the face of that fact, petitions to have the gas tax reduced. No wonder candidates use the wind and not the compass for navigation between elections.

A governor of one faith and a legislature of another may serve as good interference but no goals are kicked. Just so no scores are marked up when members of the team fight among themselves.

Probably no great improvement can be expected until state government has spent its last cent and all it can usurp that belongs to trust funds and other agencies. While waiting for that day our people may as well prepare for all sorts of screwball pre-election promises and vague ideas.

Ingham Grangers Blast Federal Farm Controls

Grange Delegates Question Motives Of Brannan Survey

Delegates to the Ingham county Grange convention held Thursday at the court house in Mason went on record as being opposed to:

1. The Brannan plan.
2. Socialized medicine.
3. The combining of soil conservation districts with other federal agencies.
4. Using high powered rifles for hunting in Ingham, Jackson, Livingston and similar counties.
5. Brannan's exploitation of his family farm policy review.

The resolutions will be forwarded to the state Grange convention and eventually to Grange headquarters in Washington.

Most of the resolutions passed unanimously after the Grangers voiced their opinions on farm problems.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan's plan for seeking out the "grass roots thinking" of the American farmer received several blasts from "grass root farmers."

"The Brannan family farm policy review smacks of loaded questions and Charles Brannan answers," Delmar Carr of White Oak told the group.

Carr said he took part in a meeting in which the plans for carrying out the family farm policy review in Ingham county were discussed. He explained that two meetings will be held during the last week in September in which farmers and city people will be encouraged to come and say what they think about the Brannan plan and the reorganization of the USDA.

"Two secretaries will be available to record every statement made during the meetings," Carr stated.

The plan to record the American farmer's thinking is being carried out in every county in the country.

In some other counties, federal employees have covered up the plan, and have returned the reviews to Washington with a stamp of approval without even discussing the program with local farmers.

"Rest assured that such a situation will not occur in Ingham," Carr stated.

Employees of the USDA in Ingham county are eager to hear and record what Ingham farmers think about the USDA, he added.

"Many fear that Brannan will use only the 'right' answers for telling the people and congress what the 'grass roots' farmers are thinking," Carr told the group.

"The real danger lies in misrepresenting the results of the survey," Carr added.

The group expressed the belief that the conservation department should consider the already strained relations between hunters and farmers, before carrying out its ruling to permit hunters to hunt with high powered rifles in heavily populated areas. The Grangers resolved that the department should consider this relationship as well as the safety of man and beast.

Country & Town

By JIM BROWN

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan's family farm policy review makes good reading. Don Curry, county agricultural agent, lent his copy of the report to me and I took it to bed on Friday and Saturday nights. I had heard about the Brannan plan, but not until I read the 121 pages of recommendations, did I actually know what Brannan was talking about. Two public meetings are scheduled here in Ingham county for September 26 and 27 to discuss the Brannan plan. That's why I boned up on the facts.

There are only a few copies of the Brannan plan available in the county and with Don's permission I will be glad to pass this copy along to anyone who wants it.

The report covers 121 pages of small type. The first 10 pages explain what a whale of a job the American farmer has done in the past 25 years.

Brannan states that family farms encourage strong family relationships and that the managing office is right there on the farmer's dining room table and not in some downtown office building.

That is commendable. But later on, Brannan takes 111 pages to explain how to move the managing office to a downtown office building so fast that it would make even a socialist's head go swish.

Brannan discusses country schools and says the city depends on good farm youth to move to the city, and that the real top cream of the city actually stems from the farm.

Then later, Brannan goes on to recommend that more and better degrees be required for country school teachers and that better buildings be built so the county school system will be as good as the city's.

"... the family farm helps build strong communities. Living in this kind of community makes for attitudes of tolerance, cooperation, self-reliance and a love of freedom... In a family farm area, most of the people have common interests: Their churches, their schools, their roads."

If the above paragraph is true, and I think it is, then why does Brannan want to change it?

Brannan lists the progress on the farm during the last 20 years:

"In 1930 about 42 per cent of the nation's farms were operated by tenants. In 1948, less than 28 per cent were tenant-operated. Many tenants, moreover, farm under conditions which are favorable and profitable."

"More and more work is being done by machine. There are twice as many tractors on farms, twice as many tractors, three times as many combines and more than three times as many milking machines and corn pickers today as there were 10 years ago."

"Twenty years ago 9 out of 10 American farms were not on electric power lines. Today 9 out of 10 do have electric power."

What does Brannan recommend?

In regards to the Agricultural Research Administration he would set up federal research farms all over the country to "carry on research too risky for the individual farm family."

Brannan recommends combining the independent soil conservation service with the PMA.

In effect, the Brannan plan could be possible only by adding thousands more to the present list of 82,134 employees of the USDA. But worse, the added subsidizing on the American farm would shortly come to an end and it would permit men like Brannan to direct and control every farm in the United States. There is no doubt that the waning freedom enjoyed on the farm would be eaten up by "a downtown office building."

Tired Pastures Mean Money Loss

You lose all kinds of ways when you overgraze your permanent pastures.

C. A. Van Doren and L. E. Gard of the Soil Conservation Service and the University of Illinois have experimented for nine years at the Dixon Springs experiment station in Illinois, and here's what they found:

Sheep produced an annual gain of 185 pounds of mutton per acre on moderately-grazed pastures, but produced only 49 pounds of gain on the same kind of pasture that was severely grazed.

The moderately-grazed pastures produced an average annual yield of 3,448 pounds of desirable grasses and legumes, as compared with only 2,507 pounds of forage for the severely-grazed pastures.

Even more striking was the difference in the amount of forage required to produce a pound of gain with sheep—19 pounds from the moderately-grazed pastures, and 51 pounds from the severely-grazed pastures.

It was the same story for soil and water losses, the average annual soil loss per acre was 851 pounds, but only 259 pounds of soil were lost on the moderately-grazed pastures. The severely-grazed pastures lost 6.8 inches of water as runoff; the moderately-grazed pastures lost only 3.6 inches.

In these experiments, 3 1/2 tons of limestone per acre was applied to all pastures at the beginning. Superphosphate at the rate of 1,000 pounds per acre was also applied before seeding. About 150 pounds of 20-per cent superphosphate per acre was applied in alternate years during 1938-47.

All pastures—whether moderately or severely grazed—received the same soil treatments.

Cattle that lick clothing or most anything around the barn probably need salt.

Curry Warns Against Grazing Wood Lots

Michigan Tex Marion, registered Brown Swiss cow owned by Michigan State college, recently completed a 305-day lactation record on herd test of 10,699.8 pounds of milk testing 3.88 per cent. She produced 418.18 pounds of butterfat on two times a day milking as a two-year-old.

When regular pastures have dried up, many farmers are tempted to turn their livestock into the farm wood lot for supplemental grazing.

It's not a paying proposition, though, according to Don Curry, county agricultural agent.

Wood lots make poor pastures, as the sparse grass and other plants yield less than one-fourth to one-half of the forage that open pastures produce, and pasturing soon leads to poor wood lots, Curry stated.

Timber should be considered as any other crop, since it provides a good supply of native lumber, fence posts and fuel during winter months. If wood lots are to produce and still maintain high yields and quality, they can't be grazed, he added.

Grazing destroys the humus layer of the forest floor, increasing soil losses from erosion and water run-off. Many young trees often are injured or destroyed by grazing livestock, keeping the trees from replacing themselves as the older trees are harvested, Curry said.

This soon results in run-down timber. Livestock tend to trample over the ground too, packing the soil with their hooves. This slows down or prevents the penetration of air and moisture into the soil.

Grazing animals also destroy the bark layer on tree trunks and damage roots running along the ground. This leaves the trees susceptible to fungus diseases, and often results in decay and death of the trees, Curry claims.

New Mexico has 176,000 acres of gypsum.

Kerosene Lantern Important Gadget For Filling Silo

Although it may seem a little out of place, a kerosene lantern is an important tool to have around when silo-filling time comes.

It's a handy gadget for checking the silo for carbon dioxide and may save someone a lot of trouble, according to David Steinicke, Michigan State college farm safety specialist.

He says there is always danger of carbon dioxide in a silo, especially if silage has stood overnight or longer. His suggestion is to tie a rope onto the lantern handle and lower it into the silo. If the light goes out, watch out.

Among other silo-filling suggestions, Steinicke urges farmers to repair their silo ladder before filling time comes. That job and removing or covering the bottom rungs to protect young children may save a costly injury.

After the filling job is underway, be careful around the cutter. Many a hand and finger has been lost in the rollers of the cutter when the operator tries to work stalks loose. Be safe by always putting the machine out of gear before unclogging, he warns.

Never open the housing that covers the blower blade to unplug the blower while the machine is running, Steinicke cautions.

Planted 37 1/2 Years Ago

The first red pine pulpwood thinning ever made in a state forest has started in Crawford county, marking a significant milestone in Michigan reforestation history. This Higgins Lake forest stand was planted in 1914, about the time the state's reforestation of denuded acreage began gaining momentum. Since 1902 some 206,000,000 mainly red, white and jack pine have been planted in state forests. First actual cutting of planted trees of any type started with jack pine in the Alpena state forest seven years ago. Here, Frank Allen and son, Rosecommon, use horse and dray rather than tractor for more efficient harvesting of an early, closely spaced plantation.

Brannan Plan Will Be Argued at Two County Meetings on September 26-27

Ingham farmers and city people will have a chance to express themselves concerning the United States Department of Agriculture practices at two public meetings scheduled September 26 and 27.

The meetings will be held in the court room at the county court house in Mason. The meeting on the 26th will be held at 8:00 at night and the one on the 27th will be held at 1:00 in the afternoon.

"This plan should permit everyone in the county to express himself either at the afternoon or night session," County Agricultural Agent Don Curry stated.

"The public meetings are being held at the request of the USDA. In particular, the family farm policy of Secretary Charles P. Brannan will be open for discussion, according to Curry.

Secretary Brannan has issued a 121-page book setting down the 12 main operations of the USDA, their purposes, and what the Brannan plan offers to improve the situation.

All the opinions made public at the two meetings will be recorded by two secretaries and sent to the USDA in Washington. There, according to Brannan, the facts will be sifted and the "grass roots" thinking of the American people will be placed on the public record.

Last week, however, delegates to the Ingham County Grange convention showed skepticism over the plan, stating that maybe only the "right" answers will be made public by Brannan. The secretary may be looking for loaded answers to back his own defense of the Brannan farm plan, according to Delmar Carr, Grange delegate from White Oak.

The public meetings are part of a national program. Every county in the country has been asked by the USDA to turn in a report, according to Curry.

However, some counties have experienced strong criticism because the only people surveyed were federal government employees, Curry explained. The working farmers were not even asked what they thought in some areas, he added.

"We don't want that to happen in Ingham county," Curry stated. "We are making every effort to get everyone out to the two meetings."

Originally the Ingham War Mobilization committee handled the survey. The committee turned it over to a group composed of farm leaders, Delmar Carr, representing the Grange; William Panson, president of the Ingham Farm Bureau; Hugh Oesterie, Farm Home Administration; Paul Simpson, soil conservation service; and L. B. Barr, extension advisory committee. The farm leaders set the meeting dates and are planning the program.

Ingham-Central Herds Average 30 Lbs. of Fat

Eleven herds in the Ingham-Central Dairy Herd Improvement association averaged more than 30 pounds of butterfat during the month of August, according to the report of the testers, Leland and Beverly Christiansen. The herds were: M. H. Avery, nine registered Guernseys, 50 pounds butterfat, 1,130 pounds milk; Russell Kleis, 11 registered Holsteins, 49.7 pounds butterfat, 1,531 pounds milk;

Henry Buckingham, 15 registered Holsteins and mixed breeds, 37.7 pounds butterfat, 1,033 pounds milk; Clarence Puffenberger, 10 registered Shorthorns, and mixed breeds, 33.6 pounds of butterfat, 910 pounds milk;

Hugh Ellsworth, 23 registered Guernseys, 32.2 pounds butterfat, 710 pounds milk; Frank Cosgray, 31 grade Jerseys, 31.8 pounds of butterfat, 741 pounds milk; Robert Remar and Ralph Hudson, 12 registered Jerseys, 30.1 pounds butterfat, 670 pounds milk;

Eugene Lyon and Son, 20 registered Holsteins and Jerseys, 30 pounds butterfat, 691 pounds of milk; Jewell Tojner, 16 grade Holsteins, 30 pounds butterfat, 810 pounds milk; and R. J. Benn and Sons, 11 registered Holsteins, 30 pounds butterfat, 885 pounds milk.

High cows in the mature class were Jerold Topf, grade Holstein, 71 pounds butterfat; Michigana No. 1, registered Guernsey, 61 pounds butterfat.

High cows in the five-year-old class were Russell Kleis, registered Holstein, 70 pounds butterfat; Henry Buckingham, 68 pounds 68 pounds butterfat; M. H. Avery, registered Guernsey, 66 pounds butterfat.

High cows in the four-year-old class were Eugene Lyon, registered Jersey, 64 pounds butterfat; E. J. Benn, registered Holstein, 56 pounds butterfat.

What About Calf Scours?

Q: Just what is calf scours?
A: It means an inflammation of the intestines which results in scouring.

Q: Is calf scours always contagious?
A: No. Some types are due to improper feeding or overfeeding. However, "contagious" scours—often called white scours—is a quick-killing infection which may appear suddenly even with careful feeding.

Q: What causes contagious scours?
A: Generally a germ called "E. coli". However, a virus may be responsible for some outbreaks. Once the intestine is damaged many kinds of germs may cause complications.

Q: What are best precautions against calf scour losses?
A: Do sure calves get first milk or colostrum. Avoid overfeeding. Provide clean quarters, ample ventilation and sunlight. Prevent calves from eating bedding. Use clean feeding buckets.

Q: What if an outbreak of scours appears?
A: Isolate sick calves and get a veterinarian immediately. He can recommend the proper control plan and treatment. This may involve use of serum, sulfa drugs or antibiotics. Don't guess.

Q: What about scouring in older calves?
A: Sometimes this is due to worms or to coccidia. A technical diagnosis is usually required to be sure of the cause.

NOTE—Due to space limitations, general questions cannot be handled by this column.

POSSIBLE TO RID HERD OF MASTITIS

Veterinarians say that a good half of the problems arising in dairy herds today are due to mastitis.

Yet, research has shown that a mastitis-free herd is within the range of any farmer. A sound mastitis control program comprises two parts: 1. Proper management. 2. Treatment. Correct management is more important than treatment, because it helps PREVENT most mastitis cases.

Here are some common causes of mastitis: Teat and udder infection; housing cows in too-small stalls; failure to milk the cow dry; using too high a vacuum on the milker; inadequate bedding, and chilling of the udder.

Other factors may also be involved. To get to the bottom of the trouble, it is advised that the dairyman and his veterinarian conduct a careful herd survey. This will show up damaged udders, type of infection present, and form the basis of a sound control program.

When the situation has been analyzed, the dairyman and the veterinarian can work out a sanitation routine that will prevent infection from spreading. This will include arrangement of the milking line to provide for infected animals or suspects to be milked last.

In the final phase of the program, with the danger of reinfection greatly reduced, treatment can be instituted with good prospects of success.

But here again, great care must be used. Udder infusions and other treatments should be regarded as delicate operations. They should be performed only by a person with special training and skill in their use. Remember, mastitis cannot be controlled by treatment alone. Good management must accompany good treatment.

Dr. C. M. Clothier, Veterinarian, 118 N. Main St., Leslie.

THIS FARMING BUSINESS
BY CARL COLLIN
Hog prices were low in August.
What will happen when the government feeds also to servicemen?
Hoover's idea of reorganization of the USDA will bring a lot of yells from government employees.

Hog prices in Chicago during August averaged the lowest of the year. They were the lowest, for August in six years, with the exception of 1940.

Chicago buyers, according to Drovers Journal, paid an average of $20.40, compared with $20.50 in July. The August 1950 average was $21.70. The highest August average on record was $28.00 in 1948.

The average price last month was estimated at 50 cents under parity. Movement of spring pigs late in the month brought down the average weight and prices fell more than $1.00 below parity.

There are several chemical sprays which cause plants to mature more quickly than when they are left to nature's timing. These sprays cause the leaves to dry. In the case of soybeans, the pods then ripen in a few days.

Purdue economists say, however, that the practical use of defoliant on soybeans is primarily to kill big green weeds or to dry patches of green lodged beans in fields where the beans have matured. They also claim that the use of defoliant will lower the yield unless the beans have almost matured.

Before trying a defoliant spray, better check with your county agent for the proper materials and exact timing for the spray.

The long and bitter fight over oleomargarine could flare up again in congress with the introduction of a bill to permit the serving of oleomargarine in navy rations.

The August 15 parity percentage figures for milk and butterfat showed a drop from July to 95 per cent for parity for milk and 94 per cent for butterfat. For July they both were 96 per cent. Actual average farm price for milk in August was $4.45 per hundredweight, for butterfat 68.5 cents per pound.

If a hard frost holds off until the first of October we could have a good crop in Michigan. On the first of September, most of the crop in the southern half of the State was in the soft to hard dough stage. Around 10 to 20 per cent was denting. The Crop Reporting Service says this year's crop is at about the same stage of maturity as was last year's at the same date. In 1949, which was a very favorable corn year, the crop was about three fourths dented on September 1. The year 1947 was a soft corn year. The present crop is about two weeks ahead of the 1947 season, according to the Service.

Nationally, the corn crop deteriorated during August. Best prospects are in Illinois and Indiana. In Ohio and some southeastern states, drought conditions have cut down the crop. Too much moisture and low temperatures have retarded growth west of the Mississippi in the main corn belt. Reports from Iowa, Minnesota and Nebraska say the crop is very late and cannot escape frost damage unless the first "killer" is delayed well beyond its usual date.

The weather bureau's 30-day outlook for September calls for above normal temperatures in the eastern half of the nation with subnormal amounts of rainfall. That's what the bureau thought August weather would be. Maybe the law of averages will work out better for the weatherman this month than last!

The largest investment made by the Commodity Credit Corporation in carrying out price support operations during the 1950-51 fiscal year was in corn. At the end of the last fiscal year, CCC held near 413.6 million bushels.

The CCC took a larger loss in its operations in the year just closed than in 1949-50. Total losses were about 345.5 million dollars. That's around 96.3 million more than in the previous year. Losses came about primarily through the support programs on eggs, potatoes, butter and milk. This year there are no price support programs operating on eggs and potatoes.

The fungus disease on corn, reported as severe in some parts of Illinois recently, is a leaf blight. The answer to the problem is development of resistant inbred lines. USDA scientists have been working on the disease since 1942 when the fungus reached epidemic proportions in the corn belt. No hybrid now widely known is resistant to the disease. But resistance has been found in breeding material from North Carolina, Missouri, Kentucky and Louisiana. The next step is to combine this with other productive characters and originate new lines.

The disease has been known for more than 50 years. It shows up in varying degrees every year. Wet weather during August spreads the infestation rapidly. Lower leaves turn yellow as though damaged by frost. Losses in forage may go as high as 30 per cent. Stalks may be weakened, weight of the grain reduced.

The senate bill to reorganize the USDA along the line suggested by the Hoover committee would bring some drastic changes affecting county agricultural personnel. It also would bring up some very controversial issues.

The bill would make all farmer committees advisory only. It would cut out administrative work as now performed by PMA. All local programs would be handled by career employees. SES conservation work would come under extension services. And extension would handle most, if not all, informational work.

A lot of people and issues are involved, including farm organizations and folks who have been in federal and state agricultural jobs for a long time. If the bill gets very far in congress there probably will be numerous compromises. The final result will be a softening of some changes.

A gangster rushed into a saloon shooting right and left, and yelling "All you dirty skinks get outta here." The customers fled in a hail of bullets—all except an Englishman who stood at the bar calmly finishing his drink.

"Well," snapped the gangster, waving his smoking gun.

"Well," remarked the Englishman, "there certainly were a lot of them, weren't there?"

Extreme Bleeding May Cause Death

Editor's Note—This is the first in a series of five articles dealing with emergency action to save lives. The series was prepared by the Michigan office of Civil Defense. Civil Defense officials emphasize that the measures outlined in this series are minimum actions that an untrained person can take to sustain life until medical treatment can be procured. The series is not designed as a substitute for first aid training. Widespread knowledge of these fundamental measures may save thousands of lives should we enter an unprovoked war. The knowledge is equally useful in saving life in any civilian accident.

In accidental injuries, a victim often unnecessarily bleeds to death before medical help arrives. If you are called upon to administer first aid to an accident victim, even if you are untrained, you may be able to prevent death from bleeding. Be sure to make the victim comfortable. Then attempt to stop the flow of blood.

Trained first aid people know that pressure applied to certain veins and arteries, called "pressure points" is the best way to stop bleeding. If you do not know this method, do not try to use it. These are the rules to follow:

Apply a clean pad of cloth directly to the wound. Hold it firmly in place. If bleeding does not stop, apply more pads and more pressure.

Do not use tourniquets unless you know how. Improperly applied tourniquets do great damage to nerves and tissues.

For an abdominal wound, cover with a clean damp cloth. Do not feed the patient.

For chest wounds, cover with a dry pad of cloth, to prevent air from being sucked in through the wound.

The important thing in such cases is to stop the loss of blood as quickly as possible. Direct methods such as those described above will often turn the trick. They may not be the best methods, but they are the only methods an untrained person should use. Red Cross first aid training courses give a more intensive view of this important phase of action in emergencies.

THREE FACTORS IN SELLING
Weight of calf at birth, price of milk and expected selling price of the calf are three factors to consider in deciding whether or not to sell calves for veal. Michigan State college dairy specialists advise farmers.

REGULAR MILKING IS BEST
A regular milking routine is best, say Michigan State college dairymen. They point out that cows are largely creatures of habit. Feeding grain, the rattle of milk pails and washing the udder help get the cows ready for thorough milking.
