

NEWSPRINT COST REACHES ALL-TIME HIGH

Subscription Price Is Going Up

Another $10 advance in the price of newsprint was announced last week. The present $130 per ton price is the highest in history. Postage rates advanced April 1. All other publishing costs are at all-time highs.

Those are the reasons why the Ingham County News must set a new price after June 1.

After June 1 the subscription price in Ingham and adjoining counties will be $2.50; outside the area it will be $3.00.

Act now and save money. Until June 1 the subscription rate in Ingham and adjoining counties will remain at $2.00 for 1 year; 2 years for $3.50. Outside the area it is now $2.50 for 1 year, $4.00 for 2 years.

Anyone can sign up now at the going price. Subscribers can even pay 2 years ahead at the present rate.

Gypped On Its Jeep

Owosso Dealer Sues City

Mason bought a Jeep from Mason Barrus & Sons of Lansing at $1,664.93 December 17, 1951. Now the Wilkins Motor Sales of Owosso claims it owns the Jeep, that it never belonged to Mason Barrus & Sons who sold it to Mason.

The Wilkins Motor Sales of Owosso holds the title to the Jeep, although the company didn't acquire the title until April. Because the vehicle was to be used for city purposes the city did not make application for a certificate of title.

The writ of replevin for the Jeep was served on city officials Tuesday. The matter was turned over to City Attorney Howard A. McCowan.

Tuesday afternoon the Jeep was surrendered to the sheriff at

City Wants Talk With Fair Board On Sewer Issue

In hot potato fashion, the Mason city council tossed the fairgrounds sewer question back to the county and the fair board Monday night. Health officials have called for an improvement in sewage disposal at the park and have threatened to shut down some activities at the fair if the situation is not remedied.

Mayor C. H. Hall asked that members of the water and sewer committee meet with the fair board and health officials to work out a solution.

At the present, sewage from the 4-11 building and public toilets at the park and at the fairgrounds flows into the storm sewer. However, according to health officials and City Engineer Walter Zimmer, some of it is seeping into the county park ponds and Rayner creek.

Zimmer submitted a plan Monday night for tying in the park sewerage system with the city sanitary sewers. He suggested extending the sanitary sewer on Lawton street 65 feet to Ash street near the entrance to the park. From there, the sewer would extend to a pumping station near the fairgrounds.

"It is unfortunate that the fairgrounds is in a geographical hole," Zimmer told the council. "When the park and fairgrounds sewer is hooked with the city's, it will always be necessary to pump the sewage to the city level."

"I would go along with a plan whereby the city would pay for that part of the sewer which benefits the city," Mayor Hall stated. "That might include the 65 feet of proposed sewer on Lawton street and the engineering expenses incurred by Zimmer. The fair is no direct benefit to Mason and I can't see why the city should carry the load for a county-sponsored operation."

Other sewer construction plans took shape Monday night as Zimmer submitted plans for supplying water and sewer service to Sycamore street between Barnes and Rogers streets. The plans were tabled until the next council meeting.

Arthur Jewett requested that the city look into the possibilities of laying 20 rods of storm sewer along Stevens street which at present is only a plowed path in Jewett subdivision. In a letter to the council, Jewett said he plans to grade the street as soon as a storm sewer is available.

Councilmen asked Zimmer to draw up plans and costs for the project and report at the next meeting.

Residents on Sycamore street petitioned the city for the water and sewer service two weeks ago. Costs would approach $2,500, according to Zimmer. A public hearing will probably be called following the next council meeting, Zimmer explained.

Telephone Firm Extends Lines To Fitchburg

Fitchburg Residents Ask Service from Stockbridge Under New Dial System

Residents of the Fitchburg area are getting action on their demands for improved telephone service.

The Rural Telephone company of Stockbridge has begun construction of the new dial system to serve Fitchburg. Lawrence Lindemer announced Wednesday. He is secretary of the company.

From Leslie and Jackson the Michigan Bell Telephone company is extending lines. Connected with the Leslie exchange will be a few houses east of Bunker Hill Center. Jackson will extend its lines to serve homes south of Fitchburg in Henrietta township. All the rest of the Fitchburg area will be connected with the Stockbridge exchange.

Lindemer said that while the present Fitchburg company has approximately 65 subscribers, there have already been received nearly 60 applications for the new service by the Stockbridge company.

Extensive surveys and plans have been made. There will be 273 new poles set for the additional line and 51 miles of wire will be used. In Fitchburg itself a small building will be constructed to house the dial unit. Lindemer claimed that the work was progressing as rapidly as possible and that it appears that the entire job will be finished ahead of schedule.

Within the village of Stockbridge itself, the telephone company has recently installed a new pay station on the northwest corner of the town square. This pay station has already proved to be of service and the company feels that the use of the station will increase as the familiarity with its location increases, the secretary said.

Within the base district of the Stockbridge company new phones with magnet connections have been installed for all businesses that have been operating on battery service. This, too, was in compliance with an order of the Michigan Public Service Commission.

Ingham District Will Decide on Extra Millage

Ingham township voters will vote on a pay-as-you-go plan for school expansion Monday.

There will be 2 propositions offered, one to raise the tax limitation by 5 mills for a period of 5 years; the other to put the money in a building and site fund to pay for a new school.

Present plans call for the erection of a 4-room elementary building with heating plant for use by 1954. The building will be designed so that additional rooms can be provided as needed.

The extra 5 mills will yield about $7,000 a year, it is estimated. There is no bonded debt at Dansville. The last of the school bonds were retired in 1941.

The district has $23,000 in its building fund, with the prospect of some addition by way of surpluses.

Classrooms at the Ingham Township Agricultural school are now overcrowded and the census shows increased enrollments must be anticipated every year for the next 5.

Polls will be open from noon until 8 o'clock in the evening for Ingham voters to cast their ballots Monday.

Sheriff Barnes Is Candidate Again

Sheriff Willard P. Barnes announced Thursday that he will be a candidate for reelection for his second term of office as the county's law enforcement chief. He was elected to office for the first time two years ago.

Since assuming office Sheriff Barnes has instituted many changes and reforms, and has built up a staff of trained law enforcement officers.

The Ingham department is recognized as one of the top three departments of its kind in Michigan, Sheriff Barnes said.

In the past two years, the department has developed a scientific investigation division, featuring photography, fingerprinting, and numerous other subjects, with department deputies receiving first-hand schooling from FBI, state police and Michigan State college training programs.

This year departmental ranks were created with veteran Deputy Fred Frye being named captain in charge of the uniform division, Deputy Versile Babcock elevated to the rank of lieutenant to head the investigation division, and Sergeant Harold Barnhill was placed in charge of turnkeys.

Sheriff Barnes, through the cooperation of the county board of supervisors, has provided Ingham county with 24-hour patrol and law enforcement service. Two years ago the department had one county-owned car. Now it has six county patrol cars in use daily.

A 12-acre jail farm is kept under cultivation to raise food for jail prisoners.

Sixteen full-time officers comprise the sheriff's department police staff which is supervised by Undersheriff Jack Voss.

Sheriff Barnes said Thursday that his main interest in seeking the Republican nomination August 5 and reelection, is so he can continue to carry out his program of improving the department and providing greater and Sheriff Barnes more efficient law enforcement for citizens of Ingham county.

Dedication of Memorial Stone To Be Postponed

Disappointment came this week to the group of patriotic societies who have been working on the project of placing a soldiers memorial in Maple Grove cemetery, when it was learned that, due to a stone-cutters strike throughout New England, the stone ordered some time ago was not ready for shipment.

A telegram, confirmed by a letter giving more detailed information, was received by Carlton P. Hunter early this week, stating that all work of this kind had been at a standstill since May 1. Hunter was assured that shipment would be made at the earliest possible moment.

It had been planned that dedication of the monument would elmax next week's Memorial Day services. The foundation has been set, and a ceremony in which the Blue Star Mothers, D. A. V. Auxiliary, Jean Anderson Post of the VFW and Browne-Cavender American Legion Post and Auxiliary would participate. "We are, however, going ahead with our plans," stated Harley Ankeny, chairman of the memorial committee, "and will set a later date for the dedication, as soon as we are sure of the arrival of the stone."

Although the entire city has not been canvassed, a number of additional contributions have been received, according to Miss Ethel Adams, of Browne-Cavender American Legion Auxiliary, who is secretary of the monument committee.

A gift was received this week from Mrs. Ivah Standish of South Coventry, Connecticut. Mrs. Standish, whose twin sister, Miss Evah Godfrey, died last year and was brought to Mason for burial, stated that her contribution was given for herself and her sister in memory of their Civil War grandfather.

Other recent pledges and gifts include the Farmers bank, the Mason Archery club, Orrin J. Phelps, Herbert O. Halstead of Lansing, Ball-Dunn funeral home, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Jewett, Mrs. Pearl Hardenburg, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McLean, Ray Squires, Lyle B. Justice Court

Jack Waltman of Jackson is in the Ingham jail on two charges as a result of his actions at Leslie Sunday morning. Deputy Don Haynes arrested Waltman for reckless driving and for resisting an officer. Justice of the Peace John Grugel came to the jail Monday to hear the plea of Waltman. He pleaded guilty to both charges. The judge imposed a fine of $50 plus costs of $9.30 and gave Waltman 15 days in jail on each of the charges, 30 days in all.

Judge Grugel relented on Joseph Caudill of Stockbridge who on May 12 was fined $100 with costs of $9.35 plus 90 days in jail with another 90 days added if the cash is not paid. The judge came to the jail Monday offering Caudill his freedom if he can get his job back, will settle the fine and costs and agree to sin no more. Caudill got his job back and was released.

Justice of the Peace Roy W. Adams had a busy day Monday when a quartet appeared before him on charges growing out of a melee in Stockbridge Saturday night. According to Stockbridge Deputies Alva Beeman and Glen Drown, they set out to break up a brawl and the brawlers attacked the officers.

Arrested for disturbing the peace were James M. Rudd, Dingus Allen, Joe Allen and Tony J. Weyman. They all pleaded guilty.

Judge Adams ordered Dingus Allen, Rudd and Weyman to pay fine and costs of $32.75 each and serve 20 days in jail, with another 20 days added if they don't pay. Joe Allen, who said he tried to act as peacemaker, got off with a fine of $12 and 3 months probation.

Supreme Court Upholds Ingham

Ingham county was saved $5,200 in welfare claims by a supreme court decision Friday.

In 1943 Oakland county admitted a woman to its hospital. The Oakland welfare department notified Ingham that the woman had legal settlement in Ingham. The Ingham officials asked for further details. No periodic invoices were rendered by Oakland against Ingham as the law requires. For some 3 years the files covering the case were lost, Oakland officials said.

Oakland started suit against Ingham to recover for the care given the woman. Judge George Desjardins of Lapeer heard the case a year ago. He ruled that Ingham had not received the required billing and thus did not have to pay. Oakland county appealed the ruling. The supreme court decision upheld Judge Desjardins.

Prosecutor Paul C. Younger defended Ingham county in the suit and argued the case before the supreme court.

Guile Returns From Belgium

L. F. Guile has returned to his home in East Lansing after spending 8 months in Ghent, Belgium, and touring France, England and Holland. Mr. Guile left with his son and family, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Guile, Mary, 5, and Jean, 3, September 1.

Dr. Guile teaches organic chemistry at Michigan State college. He received his M. A. degree there. He was granted a leave of absence for a year to receive the Belgian lectureship under the Fulbright Foundation. The Ralph Guiles will return in the middle of July.

"Employment is up in Belgium and there's plenty of food," reported Mr. Guile, "but the poor man doesn't have much of a chance. For instance, a barber gets only 24c for a haircut, yet he has to pay as much for beefsteak as we do here. He doesn't eat much steak. The system seems to favor the rich and keep the poor man poor."

Robins Are Crossed With Woodpeckers

Mrs. Wayne Chapman on Dansville road wonders whether a robin and a woodpecker have somehow mated and brought forth a bird that looks like a robin but is as handy as a woodpecker with his beak.

The robin visits the new Chapman house every day and pecks away at the window glass. He keeps at it for hours. Just before dusk he flies away but not far. He's right back at his work early the next morning, Mrs. Chapman said.

City Adopts Plan For Water Charge

One-third of the city residents will pay their water bills every quarter under a new bookkeeping plan approved at the city council meeting Monday night.

The move was made to bring a smoother flow of billing through the city clerk's office, according to George Kellogg, city clerk.

In the past all water users were billed every quarter of the year. It called for a lot of piled up work, those four times each year, Kellogg said.

Action came too late to adopt the plan immediately. Bills for the past 3 months of water service will be sent out soon, Kellogg stated. Next month, the new plan will be adopted. Within 3 months, the whole city will be on the rotating system. Before the plan can be fully adopted, a third of the city will have a 30-day grace period and another third will have 60 days of grace, Kellogg explained.

Mason Wins Over Vikings

Mason handed Everett a sound 9-1 whipping in baseball Wednesday afternoon over at the Viking field. The game was started Tuesday but after two innings the rain took over and the entire game was replayed Wednesday.

Mason was never threatened. Jon Davis handcuffed the Vikings on 4 scattered hits. Mason collected their 9 runs on 12 safeties. The victory broke a 2-game Mason losing streak. Losses to Howell and Grand Ledge just about cancel Mason's chances for the baseball crown.

Tuesday night Mason winds up the baseball season with a home game with Eaton Rapids.

Pace Too Swift, Kiwanians Told

E. L. V. Shelley, clinical psychologist on the staff of the Boys Vocational school in Lansing and an instructor at Michigan State, told Mason Kiwanians Tuesday night their pace is too swift.

Modern living with its rushing traffic, its raucous radios and TV, its myriad of lights, is too great a strain on the nervous system, the psychologist declared. Nervous breakdowns, physical ills and mental cracks threaten men and women who do not heed danger signals, he warned.

"It isn't that men and women don't have faith enough, Shelley said; they have faith in the wrong things, in bank accounts, in exaggerated evaluations of their jobs and in social position. They neglect their families, the lasting values found in community life, and they lack faith in God, he asserted. They end up at 50 or 60 with the knowledge that they have failed in the chief aims of life, he explained. They recognize themselves as failures, he added.

Spiritual development will prevent mental and physical breakdowns, Shelley said. He urged Kiwanians to take more interest in church affairs and in school and community undertakings. He also said everyone needs some quiet time each day to relax, to get away from noise and movement.

Besides taking these honors Brooks ran the 220 leg for the winning Aggie medley relay team.

City Offers Tower For CD Radio

Civil defense operations may be centered around the Mason standpipe in the case of an actual bombing attack.

Couple Wed in Mason Methodist Church

Miss Janette Strickling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olen Strickling of Mason, and Glen Crandall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Crandall of Webberville, spoke their wedding vows Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was performed at two o'clock in the Mason Methodist church.

Rev. Paul Mergener of the Springport Methodist church officiated at the double-ring rites, assisted by Rev. Raymond Norton, pastor of the Mason church. The couple stood before an altar banked with baskets of gladioli, peonies and snapdragons.

Mrs. L. Derwood Carn played traditional wedding music for the nuptials. She was also accompanist for Mrs. Florine Wilson of Grand Ledge who sang "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose an ankle-length gown of net and lace over satin. It was styled with a lace bodice and alternating tiers of lace and net adorned the full skirt. Her fingertip length veil was held in place by a lace cap and she carried a white Bible topped with white roses and lilies of the valley from which extended white streamers with lover's knots.

Miss Ruth Crandall of Webberville, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore an orchid ankle-length gown and carried an arrangement of pink roses. Miss Ruth Strickling, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid. She wore a green gown styled like the maid of honor's, and carried a bouquet of yellow and red roses.

LETTERS to the Editor

More Audience Needed
It seems to me that such an occasion as the concert presented Tuesday night, by the vocal groups of Mason high school should not be allowed to pass without at least a word of commendation for the singers, as well as Miss Mary Scott, the director. As a student of vocal music for many years, and an active participant in musical circles here for many more, I feel in a measure competent to say that I cannot recall a finer demonstration by our students. It clearly showed the result of many hours of patient study and practice on the part of the singers, which in turn points up the ability, the patience and skill of the director.

The one flaw in the evening was the fact that so many of the participants, seemingly, were orphans, or else their parents did

Three Come from Middle East To Learn About American Ways

From India, from Egypt and from Iran came three men last week to gain first-hand knowledge of American ways.

The three were brought to the United States by the U. S. Department of State. Upon their return to their native lands they will then be able to tell of the wonders they have seen. Thus they can combat communism. At least, that's the theory of the state department officials who arranged the tour.

Shankar K. Pendse, a writer and a lawyer from Bombay, represents India. John A. Vavakis, a Greek whose family had to flee their native land to escape the Turks after World War I, represents Egypt. He is employed in the American consulate in Alexandria. From Iran came Hassan Shalhbaz, a former editor for the United States information and educational service in Teheran.

Pendse is a guest of the Jerold "Poppy" family in Aurelius. He was the speaker at the Robbins Methodist church Sunday morning. Vavakis was a guest at the Wayne Bullen and Ralph Hart homes in Aurelius. The Iranian was a guest of Bruce Granger of Leroy township.

All 3 of the men came to Ingham after a visit at Wayne University. They arrived Thursday and departed Sunday. They were going to Chicago and then to the University of Nebraska. In Ingham their visit was sponsored by the Michigan Farm Bureau and the Ingham County Farm Bureau.

The visitors from abroad welcomed the opportunity to mingle with people not connected with government. They said they wanted to learn for themselves how average Americans work and live. They marveled at the labor-saving machinery found on the farms and in farm homes.

One thing certain, Ingham hosts said, the British did not have a hand in choosing the 3 visitors. The Iranian expressed bitterness toward the British in the row over oil. He declared that Great Britain has exploited the island of Bahrain from the British American aid given the Jews in wresting Palestine away from the Arabs didn't set well with Iranians, Shalhbaz declared.

The displaced Greek from Alexandria found fault with the British treatment of Egypt and the Egyptians.

The Indian, too, told of the long struggle to throw off the British yoke.

cluded Mrs. Grant Rex, Mrs. L. A. Gearing and Mrs. Paul Lantz. After the dinner the band gave a concert of marches which were played in the parade in the afternoon. A short business meeting followed and the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Malcolm Stuart, the program leader.

She in turn introduced Mrs. Belle Farley Murray who spoke on "We Learn From Our Children." Her first point was putting yourself in your child's, or husband's or wife's place and seeing how you would like to be "Your Little Boy." The second point was that children, even very small children, are sensitive to parents' moods and often judge their actions well. Point three was that everyone in the family wants appreciation for the good things he does and not just criticism for the bad things. Point four was the children and adults alike arise to emergencies and like to be independent in their meeting them.

Mrs. Murray closed with the thought of holding two pennies in your hand and bringing them so close to your eyes that they shut out the light. Parents should not hold little things, really as small as pennies, so close that they cannot see the bigger and more important things developing in their children.

Rev. S. B. Wenger led in the installation service and presented the following new officers to those present: President, Mrs. Carl Losey; mother vice-president, Mrs. Claude Smith; father vice-president, Clyde Allen; grade teacher vice-president, Mrs. Charles Ranney; high school vice-president, Otto Hocksel; secretary, Mrs. Robert Farley; historian, Mrs. Wilfred Wardowski; and parliamentarian, Rev. Paul Tucker.

Mrs. Losey spoke words of appreciation to Mrs. Moore Brownlee, retiring president, and presented her with a president's pin. Mrs. Brownlee read a poem to close the meeting.

The new officers will take office at the June meeting of the Anna Marie circle, according to the president, Mrs. John Hizer. The other officers recently elected are: Vice-president, Mrs. Leonard Rouse; secretary, Mrs. Leo Brown; treasurer, Mrs. C. V. Horne. Mrs. Merrill Andrews is the outgoing president.

Crowd Greet MacArthur

A large crowd gathered in front of the Veterans Memorial Friday to welcome General Douglas MacArthur. The high school band played and the post and auxiliary members stood at attention holding the colors and banners. Dan White, president, introduced the honored guest who spoke briefly. Mr. and Mrs. Don White accompanied them to Detroit.

Eighteen Models of Other Makes of Cars Cost More!

Official price lists show that there are eighteen different models of American motor cars, produced by five separate automotive manufacturers, which actually cost more than the lowest-priced Cadillac—when similarly equipped.

If you find this difficult to believe—then you're in good company!

For the record also shows that, during the past few years, literally hundreds of thousands of motorists have taken title to these costlier models. And there can be little doubt that many of them did so simply because they failed to realize how relatively modest the cost of a Cadillac can be.

They simply assumed that exclusive in quality means exclusive in price! And it is doubtful if a single misunderstanding ever cost so many motorists so much!

It cost them, first of all, the satisfaction of owning a Cadillac! For there is no substitute for the sense of pride and well-being that comes from owning a motor car that is universally recognized as the "Standard of the World." Owners have told us, time and again, that possession of a Cadillac adds to the pleasure and contentment of every waking hour.

It cost them, too, the pleasure of driving a Cadillac! And this, beyond any question, is the greatest penalty of all! For in missing out on Cadillac's marvelous handling ease, its superb power and quiet, and on the contentment to be found behind its wheel—they're missing out on motoring's finest rewards.

And, of course, it also cost them Cadillac's many long-range economies. It is almost unbelievable how far a Cadillac car will travel on a single gallon of gasoline—and Cadillac's dependability is one of the truly great legends of the highway. And from the standpoint of investment—well, Cadillac cars built before the war are still in active demand.

We know that you wouldn't want to make such a costly mistake in the selection of your next car. But you'd better be careful—because there are eighteen different ways to make it.

So when the time comes—investigate! And if you pay for a Cadillac—be sure that you get one!

"There is every prospect for a splendid school," Mason ministers said. "Parents are urged to cooperate and encourage their children to attend regularly. Thirteen gift certificates will be given, while each boy and girl in the parade will receive something. Success to be proud of was not earned by acts that needed lengthy explanations.

Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; and the greatest of these is love. (1 Corinthians 13:13. A. S. V.) Read I Corinthians 13.

Often we hope for things that we cannot obtain. We sometimes despair because we cannot get the things our hearts are set upon. But worthy though they may be, it is not merely in acquiring things that we find our true satisfaction and joy in life. It is only when we really love with Christ-like love and compassion that the warmth and glow of God's blessings descend upon us, blessings sensed both in mind and heart. Imagine the result if but half of the lives being lived at this moment were guided by the love of Christ!

To have faith and to hope that our world will be a better and happier place is to believe that it will be. By loving we satisfy our desire to help make the world as God would have it.

We rejoice in the hope that there may one day be lasting peace and good will. We have faith that we shall, under God, be so blessed. But we love, so that faith and hope will not be in vain. Love conquers all; without it, we are nothing; with it, we are everything. God so planned it for us.

PRAYER

Our Father, help us to have faith and hope, seeing that they are important to life. But help us, above all, O God, to love so that our faith and hope will not be in vain. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Love in Christ's spirit and see what happens! A. S. Herlong, Jr., Lawyer (Florida)

Farmer Peck's Wife

Woodchuck builds a nest in a tree.
The girls have a mouse for a pet.
Killdeers are hatched on the run.

Does a woodchuck climb a tree? Today Pete, Susy and I went by our woods and saw a fat brown animal scurry into the ditch. Susy yelled, "Stop Daddy, so I can see it."
When we did the animal hurried into the woods and right up a tree. . . way, way up. We went over and Pete says, "Well, I never knew a woodchuck could climb a tree." Although there were no rings on it anywhere I think it was a coon. It was the size of a coon! I've never seen many woodchucks but Pete says he has and this surely was one. The girls and I walked through the woods tonight looking for flowers but we looked up at the tops of the trees as much as we did down. Susy says, "Maybe Daddy is right and there may be a woodchuck nest right up in one of those trees."

Animals, especially baby animals, make Susy and Sally all excited and happy. They just about live in the barn these days. Three mother cats have kittens and someone higher up than I says they can't come in the house. So the girls make a dash first thing in the morning down to see them. We have them all named. One mother cat is Susy's, one Sally's and one mine. We have one other cat which is a little bit ironic. The girls know their daddy doesn't like cats beyond a point so when they were naming cats and saying which belonged to who they gave him a father cat because he would never have any babies.

After the girls and kittens have all rolled in the straw I comb for a long time trying to get snarls and chaff out of the girls' hair, especially Susy's long, long tresses which are Pete's pride and joy. He doesn't want me to cut them but after one of these hair sessions I feel like going back to bed.

We also have a pet mouse. The regular barn variety. Sally took it away from a cat and it was so little and soft and "cute" (Sally said) they asked for a pen for it. I got a fish bowl and with a screen on top it makes a good view. . . if you like mice. I asked them not to bring it into the house so they have fixed a place under a box in their sandpile and have made a million trips in the last two weeks to see if it is all right and to feed it. They used to take it out and admire and pet it but Pete made them quit as he was afraid of rabies or something. His name? Tommy "Tittle Mouse."

Clarence, the chameleon, is still coming fine and keeping this house free of flies. We are back to begging and borrowing and getting them anywhere we can. Sally said we ought to take a bottle along with us when we go visiting so we can have something to bring flies home in.

I think it looks so comical to see the chameleon playing in the doll house. They put him in the wee doll buggy and to bed under tiny covers where he scuggles down and shuts his eyes. He slides down the play equipment and just fits the bathtub with his long tail curled around and tucked down beside him. Lately though he is so frisky that they have a hard time to keep track of him. At first I thought it was vitamins but have figured out that winter up north makes them dormant and come spring and warm weather they wake up. I've warned the girls to keep him within bounds or I wouldn't be responsible for what happened to him. . . should he turn up. . . under another cake plate. . . on the davenport or on my favorite magazine. . . or under the pillows, for he loves to hide and crawl under. Sally thinks he is her responsibility

AN OPINION ABOUT COAL

The brilliant essayist, Ralph Waldo Emerson, wrote in 1860; "Coal lay in ledges under the ground since the flood, until a laborer with pick and windlass brings it to the surface. We may well call it black diamonds. Every basket is power and civilization. For coal is portable climate. It carries the heat of the Tropics to Labrador and the polar circle; and it is the means of transporting itself whithersoever it is wanted. Watt and Stephenson whispered in the ear of mankind their secret, that a half-ounce of coal will draw two tons a mile, and coal carries coal, by rail and by boat, to make Canada as warm as Calcutta; and with its comfort brings its industrial power."

Former Teacher at Stockbridge Is Seeking Congressional Post

Kenneth Brown, former teacher and coach at Stockbridge high school, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination as congressman in the third district. The third district is made up of the counties of Eaton, Calhoun, Branch, Hillsdale and Kalamazoo.

Kenneth Brown

Brown left Stockbridge schools for Charlotte where he was high school principal. He left teaching to serve 2 years as a chemist and in 1944 joined the faculty at Michigan State. He is an instructor there now, although he continues to live in Charlotte. Brown taught physics at M. S. C. 6 years. For the last 2 he has been a student counselor.

For 10 years Brown has been a member of the Charlotte board of education. He is a member of the Congregational church, Farm Bureau, Lions club, Parent-Teachers association, and of several professional groups including the Michigan Education association. He was a candidate for the Michigan legislature in 1942.

The two older Brown sons were outstanding athletes at Charlotte. Bob is now a junior at Yale where he is majoring in mathematics and physics. He is on the baseball team. He pitches and plays first base and the outfield. Dan was at Yale last year. He was captain of the baseball team. He didn't take to Yale and transferred to Michigan State. Because of the transfer he is ineligible to compete in athletics at Michigan State this year.

There are two other Brown sons still in school at Charlotte.

Book Talk

Ingham County Library

Hours open to the public at the Hall Memorial Library: Daily 2-5; Mon. Wed. Sat. 7-9 p. m. Tues. and Fri. noons, Sat. 10-12 p. m.

Spring! Commencement! Every year graduates of high schools throughout the country are confronted with the problems, "What college should I attend," or "What vocation would I pursue when I finish high school?"

The Ingham county library can be of service to them in answering both questions. For those concerned with selecting the right college, the library has a collection of 1952 catalogs of all the Michigan colleges as well as catalogs for most of the important colleges in other states. These bulletins describe the courses of study, housing facilities, cost of tuition, board and room in the respective colleges, and answer many other questions which come to the mind of the prospective student.

A recently published book of interest to adults concerned with questions such as, "Where should my children go to college?" "How do I compare with the graduates of other colleges?" or "How much money does the average graduate earn?" is THEY WENT TO COLLEGE. This very readable book is based on a survey sponsored by Time Magazine, and is an interpretation of statistics and facts collected about U. S. college graduates during this survey. It covers opinions, politics, religious activities, marriages, and other phases of the college graduate's life, and also compares the graduates of different kinds of colleges.

The library maintains a vocational file of bulletins and pamphlets describing vocations which may be of interest to the high school graduate. Vocations covered in this file include engineering, farming, dry-cleaning, banking business, aeronautics, medicine, teaching, journalism, business, office work, and many others.

In the library there are also a number of books on vocational opportunities. An example of books of this type is Lingenfelter's VOCATIONS FOR GIRLS, which aims to give an overall picture of many vocations open to

American Legion Fights Communism

The American Legion believes there's no business like show business—when it comes to fighting communism.

So, the Michigan department of the Legion has decided to present an interesting musical pageant entitled "Know Your America" in 30 Michigan cities to portray graphically the advantages of the American way of life in the hope of helping to bring an awakening, revival and new surge of American spirit and patriotism. The pageant, which is entirely free to the public, was presented for the first time May 16 at the Holland Tulip festival. It will be presented in Lansing on the evening of May 29. The pageant will be held at Pottengill field at Jerome street east of Pennsylvania avenue. In the event of bad weather it will be moved indoors to Eastern high auditorium.

All American Legion posts in the Lansing area are uniting to sponsor the "Know Your America" pageant. Other ex-servicemen's, civic, church, school, fraternal and women's organizations are being invited to get behind the pageant in order that huge crowds may see the "big show."

George VanDusen, general chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the Lansing presentation, has announced there will be no commercialization of any kind in connection with the pageant. It will be a 14-hour presentation depicting highlights in America's history and showing how freedom of thinking, individual initiative and private enterprise have helped to make the U. S. A. the greatest nation on earth.

It includes some of the newer careers such as WACS AND WAVES, radio and television workers, women farmers, bankers, engineers and lawyers.

High school students and graduates are invited to visit the library and examine these catalogs, books and pamphlets.

Ohio has enough coal to last for 1,200 years at the present rate of production.

Ultra-modern streamlined caravan buses will carry the traveling Americanism production sponsored by the American Legion, Department of Michigan, as it makes its 33-day tour of the state in May and June. The photo shows the appearance of one of the vehicles as it will appear on tour. The sides of the buses open out and form a stage from which the anti-communist production will be seen. Thousands of Michigan Americans are expected to view the musical pageant which opened at the Holland Tulip Festival May 16.

Advice to Stockbridge

Unought advice is seldom welcome. Yet the temptation to offer it to Stockbridge is overpowering.

What some newspapers called a riot took place on the town square at Stockbridge Saturday night. It wasn't a riot. Some spirited young men resented having officers interrupt an argument among themselves. The youths joined forces to rescue their friends from the deputies. A goodly crowd looked on.

Nobody was hurt much. Some of those engaged in the fracas were arrested, hauled off to Mason to appear before a Mason justice of the peace. Some were sentenced to jail. Some were fined.

What of next Saturday night, and the other Saturday nights to come? Some Stockbridge officials have requested the sheriff to assign more men to patrol village streets. The sheriff has asked the village to install 2-way radio in village deputies' cars so reserves can be summoned in case of trouble.

That may not be the right answer. Such a program could build up week after week until the sheriff would have to concentrate all his deputies at Stockbridge and might even then run short. There are more onion and mint workers in the Stockbridge area than there are deputy sheriffs or state troopers. And if those young men from the hills of Old Kentucky feel they have been flung a challenge it's going to be rough on deputies.

A better plan might be for Stockbridge to recognize the problem as its own. The village board has authority to appoint marshals. The township elects 4 constables. There's no good reason why onion and mint workers couldn't be appointed or elected. The great majority of those workers are peaceful and reliable.

Another thing worth trying would be for Stockbridge to take offenders before a Stockbridge justice of the peace instead of trussing them up and lugging them to Mason 18 miles away.

By having their own constables and marshals in service and settling with offenders right there before a Stockbridge justice of the peace, Stockbridge people would realize their own responsibility. They might learn who keeps the young men supplied with booze. They might figure out some way to supplant brawling with a healthier form of recreation. They might even insist that all the growers who hire seasonal labor provide decent quarters so workers would look upon home as a good place to stay.

The Stockbridge situation is serious only in that Stockbridge people believe the cure lies at the county seat and in the clubs and guns of deputy sheriffs.

The cure rests with Stockbridge people themselves.

The Right to Know

Some commentators have sought to compare the Jackson prison riots with the POW riots at Koje. The two outbreaks may have some things in common, such as the seizing of hostages. Yet there is one thing that is in contrast. That is a straight report.

At Jackson newspapermen and radio reporters were at the scene to get their accounts first-hand. At Koje the press has been barred or rigidly controlled. All that the people know of Koje is what the army officers want to tell them.

There are some people who have made the claim that the Jackson riot was extended because of the lurid newspaper and radio publicity the rioters received. There was no good reason why the prison radio could not have been disconnected or jammed so prisoners would have been unable to listen. Certainly the newspapers could have been kept from prisoners while the riot was on.

Yet if the riot was actually extended by the news carried by radio and newspapers the news service was worth it. Because the people have the right to know what's happening in state institutions. They have the right to know what's happening on battlefields and prisoner of war camps.

Freedom of the press is not the right of publishers and editors to print what they want to print. Freedom of the press is the right of people to know what's going on anywhere the public interest is involved.

The Burning Question

In last week's Ingham County News was an item telling about a Mason justice of the peace fining a man $15 for setting a fire without getting permission of conservation officers or local fire chiefs.

For several years this newspaper has carried warnings that such permits are required. Few gave heed. Mason firemen and firemen from other towns made run after run every spring to fight grass fires. Now a man has been fined under that law.

No one likes to see any person in trouble with the law. Yet it was high time that the law was either enforced or scratched off the books.

This setting fire to dry grass is a costly business. It harms the soil by destroying the humus. In woods the firing kills off the young growth. Such fire can destroy valuable property. In every case where a fire alarm is turned in, the taxpayers have to foot the bill. Firemen are paid for making the runs.

That $15 fine against the one man for starting a fire may save hundreds of acres from being burned over. The fine is a good investment if it serves as a warning to all of us to obey the law against setting fires.

Pay-As-You-Go at Dansville

Ingham township is faced with the same school situation that Mason faced. It is seeking the same solution—that of providing more classrooms without issuing bonds.

Next Monday Ingham township voters will decide on lifting the millage limitation for 5 years, raising an extra 5 mills each year. The Ingham school district has a fund of $23,000. A little more is in sight. The extra 5 mills will yield about $7,000 a year. By 1954 there will be enough cash on hand to start the building program.

If an Ingham farmer has his property assessed at $6,000 he'll have to pay $30 a year to the building fund. That's a lot better than paying just as much with interest added as would be required on a bond issue.

This pay-as-you-go program is not adapted to the needs of every school district. It was here in Mason and so the people adopted it. The program offers promise at Dansville. Ingham township voters should give it full consideration.

Settlers Combined Lumbering With Farming In Early Days

By Vernon J. Brown

My father came to Ingham county in the fall of 1865, just after the close of the Civil War. He had owned a small farm in Branch county which he had sold to an advantage and came here to a newer section to seek land for a larger farm. He first went to Gratiot county but at that time the land in that county was low flat and wet and the soil very heavy, and according to those he talked with there the country was just right for fever and ague. That, of course, was before the country was drained. Now one would scarcely choose the rolling hills of the farm he bought here in preference to the rich bottom lands he rejected.

After looking about at available lands near Mason, he finally fell before the salesmanship of John B. Rayner and bought the farm where I now reside on Section 13 in Vevay. With his family he came the following spring.

Misfortune seemed to have picked him out for a victim. He had scarcely settled himself in the frame structure he had bought and moved to his new holdings when one of his team of Morgan-Messenger mares fell sick and died. The price of a good horse in those days was a serious matter, at least to him.

There were four children when the family arrived. In late summer a fifth child, my half-sister, Nettie, later Mrs. Charles W. Clark, was born. Her mother lived but a few days.

Several years elapsed before my father and my mother were married. Meanwhile the expense of hired help and a growing family made serious inroads on what had been depended upon for subsistence until the new farm could be cleared of the timber which covered it, and crops planted and harvested.

Two sources of cash income were open. My father had a good team. He knew timber and was skilled in handling logs and stave bolts from which barrels were made. Oak logs were cut into cooperage lengths and hauled to Mason for meager cash payments.

Other logs of oak, elm and whitewood could be sold at the Wilson mill located 1 1/2 miles north of the new farm. Timbers for building purposes were also cut from the standing timber.

hewed out by hand, and hauled into Mason for what they would bring. Some of the long squared timbers still to be found in the roof structure of the Mason Methodist church were cut, made ready and delivered during the first year my father lived in Vevay.

Washboards Were Made
But what I wanted to write about here is the old Wilson saw mill which later became a bustling factory for turning out washboards for family use. That was long before the days of mechanical washers and certainly long before the coming of the modern automatic washers now so common.

Fitzland Wilson and Alex Bush were partners in the enterprise but Wilson was something of an inventive genius as well. He patented a certain type of corrugated zinc board. His washboards were popular and found ready sale all over the country. One difficulty was in getting lumber for backing which was thin enough so that the board was not too heavy and unwieldy.

Wilson perfected a method of cutting thin layers off elm logs, by putting them on a turning device and with a power-driven knife cutting the thin sheets off the turning log. This was in reality the beginning of the business of laminating or gluing together thin sheets of wood to make the lumber we now call plywood.

Wilson subsequently went to Bay City where he entered the lumber business on a much larger scale than at Wilson's Corners as the place was familiarly known in those days. Mill was on Columbia.

The mill stood back from what is now Columbia road, just east and north of the farm residence now owned and occupied by Mrs. Lulu Whipple. Around the corners were a number of small houses, occupied by mill hands, the last of which disappeared not so many years ago. To the east across the road, now called Diamond road, there stood for many years a log structure constructed as Ingham's first county building.

Old-timers remember that a commission named by Michigan's boy governor, Stevens T. Mason, came out from Detroit and located the county seat at that point. The first county court was to have been held there but an early winter cold spell made the commissioners adjourn to the Elwyn Parker home located at the spot now occupied by the Lawrence Osterlies out M-36.

As indicated above, the Wilson mill was a life-saver for the Browns of those years. Meager as the cash returns were, they were vital to the continued subsistence of the motherless family. While the forests were being cut and land cleared for planting crops, that little cash money meant the difference between sticking it out and going back to relatives in southern Michigan.

Wilson never won a fortune for himself. His lumber business folded up and subsequently when sugar beet production came to Michigan, Wilson became a field supervisor for the beet companies. The mill in Vevay has long since disappeared and all the rubbish cleared away. For several years it served an economic purpose in the life of a wide section of Vevay and Ingham and centered about it was an active community.

School Named for Wilson
When school district No. 9 was formed, it was known as the Wilson school. The building stood on the north side of Columbia road just west of what is now the Whipple farm. To the west there were the Berri Noyes family, the Johnsons and the McCormicks.

Then north on Every road were the Stids and south of the corner the Crandalls, and the Barkers. Then came Luke Aeltine and his family and across the road the Cochrans. On the corner to the east was the home of Mrs. Fred Searl, Civil War widow with 3 children among whom was the late Fred Searl, for many years Ingham county's school commissioner. Across from them was the Elijah Brooks farm and to the east the Wordens and the Aaron Garrison family.

North of the corners were the homes of Ira Collar and James Irish and south were the Seeleys, the Sibleys, the George Garrison family and then came John Diamond, grandfather of Gerald. In my youth, the widow of John had gone to live with her father, the late Henry Hawley, one of Vevay's earliest and most prominent settlers. The Diamond farm was occupied by the late John Coy, father of Howard.

That is the way I remember the old Wilson neighborhood. The Wilson school was always a good school. One of its teachers was Charles Jenkins, who married one of the Noyes girls and who later went on to become one of the leading physicians of his day.

The school house burned down 20 years ago and was never rebuilt. Like others, it had already ceased to be the center of social and cultural activities for the people of the area.

Ingham Center was once laid out as a town site. Loss of the county seat to Mason, Fitz Wilson's removal to Bay City, the passing of time, the destruction of the school house, have combined to just about wipe away all memories of the Wilson neighborhood. Once there were political meetings, lectures, singing school, writing school, debates, dramatics, Sunday school and spelling bees held in that school house. It was a good school in a neighborhood of fine people.

Down by the SYCAMORE

There's no better time for a picnic. The high price of potatoes is preventing women from making potato salad.

Not for the inhumane and indigestible purpose of relieving the potato salad shortage, but for the benefit of all humanity, especially the Browns, 200 lbs. of seed potatoes have been planted out in Vevay. Russets and Cobblers are already above ground for early relief. For filling bins next fall we planted Pontiacs. The moon wasn't quite right and neither was the field Saturday, but we planted the Pontiacs anyway. For late potatoes the best moon phase is from May 23 through the 25. Moonbeams these three days are easy on the eyes. In addition to mascara we used a touch of Semesan Bel on the Pontiacs.

I never saw thornapple blossoms any prettier than last week. I hope the road commission crews forget to go down Diamond road this year.

I saw 3 bluebirds Saturday. Two of them watched us plant potatoes and I saw the other flitting around Buster Whipple's place.

Don't sell all your old clothes at the rummage sale just because twirlers are being recommended for scarecrows. Yes, these twirlers that gas station operators and car dealers use to attract customers scare the birds. But they'll catch on soon enough. What's the use, anyway, of putting up a twirler in your cherry tree to scare away a few robins if it attracts that many more neighborhood youngsters?

The public isn't given much credit these days for understanding. I sat in the balcony of the house of representatives in Lansing last Thursday night when General MacArthur spoke.

The general spoke right out. He used simple words and talked plain. I was able to hear and to comprehend. Yet just about every newspaper I have picked up since has carried comment and explanations on what General MacArthur said, and what he meant, and what some people think he meant, or think that the general thought he meant.

This search for hidden meanings and inconsistencies is an absorbing topic for some writers and radio talkers. It is my own opinion that General MacArthur knew what he said and knew what he meant, and that his listeners knew what he said and knew what he meant.

Some people have charged the general with voicing different sentiments than he did 4 years ago. What of it? Here in Michigan we have named a highway for a statesman who made the biggest switch a man could make. He was elected on an isolationist platform and immediately after the election he became the leading internationalist? That's why US-16 is now officially the Vandenberg highway.

Ed Blackmore stopped at the office Monday morning. He said he wanted to scare up a baseball game between Leslie and Mason business men. Ed still looks as though he could go the route, went to the plate or at third. He was summoned to Mason to serve on jury but had to ask to be excused because of business.

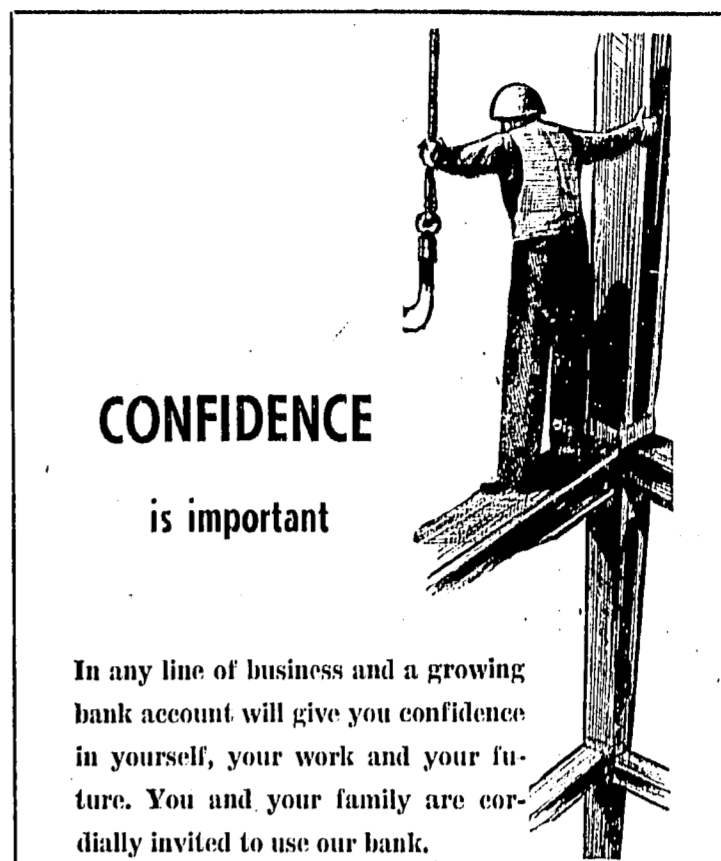

Dr. C. M. Clothier, the Leslie veterinarian, is a son of Bruce M. Clothier, former state senator from the 11th district. The father, who lives at North Branch in Lapeer county, is an important man in the Michigan Milk Producers association. He once served as its president.

"Why did you use all that space on the justice court case of the Leslie helper?" asked a city reader last week. "That's more space than most papers gave to the supreme court decision on the steel plant seizure."

The answer was that the justice court case was probably the most interesting, if not the most significant, piece of news in last week's paper. Every farmer selling a cow or buying one, every farm resident, was interested in that story.

Circuit court is in session this week at Mason. I used to spend long hours covering circuit court trials. Maybe it was because I liked the trials as entertainment, but I always tried to fool myself that it was because the public was interested. The public is not interested in an ordinary court trial. The principals have to be known locally, or the evidence must be sensational, to attract and hold a crowd in the court room. Unless trials meet one of those two specifications I now condense the story.

The helper case met both specifications. That's why I put in several hours listening to the testimony. That's why the story appeared at length in last week's paper.

KIT CLARDY Speaks Out

Will Rogers said that our diplomacy was an open book—usually a check book.

Graft and corruption should have been expected—look at the background of those in office.

People earning $4,000 or less pay most of the taxes because there's so many of them. Only demagogues talk about the rich carrying the load.

The closer government is to the people the better it is. That's why I'm for states rights.

The foregoing are extracts from Mr. Clardy's regular radio broadcasts, heard each Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. on WJLS (Lansing) and WBBC (Flint).

Mr. Clardy is seeking the REPUBLICAN nomination for CONGRESS from this district.

Alumni Banquet Is Held Monday

Twelve members of the 1902 graduating class of Williamston high school attended the alumni banquet and meeting in the high school auditorium Friday evening.

There were 20 pupils in this class. Those present were Birney Adams, Floyd Corwin, Harold Hanlon, John Dexter, Maude Hancock, Julia Klunzinger Hartwig, Marguerite Lawlor Klunzinger, Belle Pennock Pond, Jessie Rockwell Porter, Gertrude Hoodman Beeman, Anna Leighton Leidler and Inaice Morrison Smith.

President of the Alumni association was John Dexter who gave the welcome to the 41 members of the class of 1902. Response to the welcome was given by Paul Straugh, who is valedictorian of this year's class.

Colin Hayward was chairman of the program committee, with Dale Dunekel as master of ceremonies.

Principal speaker of the evening was Frank A. Liverance, Grand Rapids attorney, who graduated with the class of 1899. He spoke on the subject of militant individualism. During the roll call of classes, Earl Parham gave musical illustrations.

The roll call of classes started with Elmer Hammond, the only member of the class of 1891, present. The next class represented was that of 1895, with Kate Harvey Gorsline and Garman Eberly present.

New officers of the association for the coming year are: Robert Wood, president; Dick Traverse, vice-president; Lillian Kuehn, secretary; and Margaret Stevens, treasurer.

Juniors Named King and Queen

Two Williamston high school juniors, Fred Powell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Powell, and Katherine Dolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dolph, were named king and queen for a day at the Leonard Refineries in Alma Tuesday.

They were met at the Lansing airport by the private plane of the Leonard Refinery Co., and flown to Alma, where they were given special privileges at the refinery for the day. At noon they had a duck dinner, and later in the day returned to Lansing.

April 28 juniors and seniors with L. D. Friseth, made an all-day field trip to Alma and were shown through the Leonard Refineries.

Upon their return home, all members of the two classes were required to write papers on the petroleum industry. These papers were judged by four independent judges, among them the chemistry, physics and English teachers. The composite judgment of the four judges placed Fred Powell at the top in his chemistry class and Katherine Dolph at the head of the physics class in regard to their papers.

FREE AIR

It gives this old familiar sign new meaning

Would you be interested in getting one gallon free with each tankful of gasoline you buy?

Then we can tell you this: It will certainly be worth your while to read this brief story of Buick's new Airpower carburetor.

Truth is—a skillful driver can just about double the bonus we mention, if he makes the most of what this year's ROADMASTER has to offer.

The reason you can get such a bonus traces to a pair of simple facts:

- (1) It's a mixture of gasoline and air that gives you power.
- (2) Buick engineers have come up with a four-barrel automatic carburetor that lets you use more gallons of air per gallon of fuel.

Most of the time, only two of these barrels are needed—and they feed such a thrifty mixture that you use less gasoline at 40 mph than you'd formerly use at 30.

But—when you want a quick burst of eager power—you can double the air supply as well as the gasoline feed—and come up with the highest horsepower that Buick's Fireball 8 Engine ever delivered.

Of course, any man who's buying a car as fine as a ROADMASTER wants a lot more than extra miles from a tankful of gas.

He wants the distinction of extra room, extra comfort, richer fabrics and all the other refinements that make a car truly fine.

He wants to ride with solid security, confident poise and lordly silence.

And, while he may not admit it, he yearns for a car that's full of fun.

All this, we promise you, and more will be yours when you take the responsive wheel of a ROADMASTER.

How about doing that—soon?

Producers Get Improved Price On Graded Eggs

Ingham producers are getting more money for their graded eggs, reported County Agent James P. Hoekzema. The producers who are grading their eggs give them better care, and that's why they get a better price, Hoekzema explained.

Mrs. August Balzer, secretary of the Central Michigan Poultry Marketing Cooperative association, compiled figures on 6 producers who have shipped eggs all four weeks. One producer had 28 dozen the first week and only 60% graded A. The following weeks the percentage of A eggs was 81, 85 and 87.

Another producer had 75 dozen the first week and 60% were graded A. Since then the percentage of A grade has been 88, 85 and 88.

The largest sender shipped 120 dozen the first week. Only 60% were A. Since then the number of eggs sent has been about the same but the percentage of A eggs has increased to 89, 86 and 86%.

The producers are now receiving 37¢ per dozen at the farm for all eggs grading Large A. Large B eggs net the producer 31¢ per dozen or 6¢ less. With one producer the increase in grade is making an added income of about $2 per week. In addition, he is receiving the added increase over the price that he could have received locally.

The producers of high quality eggs are now able to receive a premium for their eggs. Producers of eggs of poor quality will actually receive a lower income when their eggs are sold on grade than when they were ungraded eggs. However, consumers are becoming more desirous to have high quality eggs so the market for the poorer eggs will be decreasing.

Eggs are collected each Monday by Fred Ruthig, Leslie, who delivers them to Hudson, where they are purchased according to grade. The grading is all done under the supervision of a federal egg grader.

Lott Holsteins Complete Tests

With an average of 442 lbs of butterfat and 11,318 lbs of milk testing 3.9%, the 15-cow herd registered Holsteins owned by Ray Lott & Son, of Mason, completed its test year recently. The production averages approximately 17 quarts daily for each cow in the herd for the year.

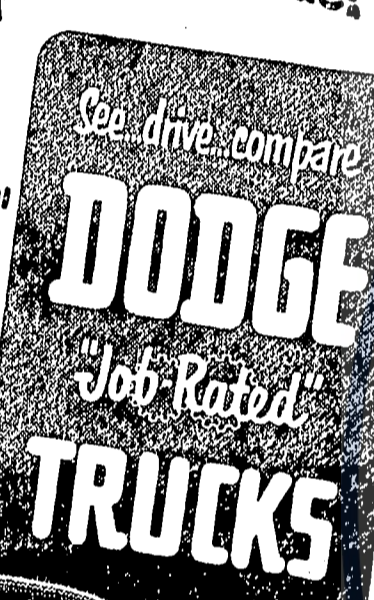

One of the top cows was Mar-Jo-La Pieterje Marie. She produced 637 lbs of butterfat and 13,605 lbs of milk in 365 days. She was 4 years, 10 months of age when the test began.

British Biddy Lays 4 a Day

Howard Sims of Vantown is keeping tabs on Duplicate, the famous English hen which started out to lay 2 eggs a day and now lays 4, making it necessary to call her Quadruplicate.

The account of the hen's achievements is big news in Britain. The home-town British paper which comes to the Sims home carries the score.

In 88 days Duplicate has produced 211 eggs. She is now 8 months old. She is a North Holland Blue and seems no different than 83 other of the speckled hens in the Sussex flock.

Duplicate's best record is 25 eggs in one week.

Rabies Outbreak Can Be Avoided

County Agent James P. Hoekzema has asked farmers to be on the lookout for symptoms of rabies. Precautions will avoid an outbreak, he said.

He said that dogs, cattle and cats have rabies most frequently. Dr. Glen Reed, Michigan State college extension veterinarian, told Hoekzema that no cases of the disease in humans have been reported in Michigan during the past 7 years.

But Dr. Reed said that the state health laboratory got reports of 100 cases of rabies in animals in the state in 1951, 260 cases in 1950 and 177 cases in 1949. Many farm animals are susceptible to the disease.

Symptoms of the disease include a change in behavior caused by the effect of the disease on the brain. Gentle animals may become restless and excitable. Friendly dogs may become snappy and snappy dogs may become friendly. "One of a dog's bark may change and dogs may wander.

In the dumb form of the disease, a partial paralysis may develop. The animal may stagger, drop its jaw, be unable to swallow and become extremely hungry and thirsty.

Hoekzema said that the disease could be practically eliminated if all dogs were controlled. Pets should be controlled and not allowed to stray. Stray dogs should be reported. Stray dogs should be kept away from stray dogs.

Vaccination of dogs will help reduce the disease if done on a wide basis.

Everyone lives and learns—but some live so very much faster than they learn.

Warm Weather Poses Problems For Poultrymen

Hot weather is coming along to pose some new egg marketing problems for flock owners of Michigan. William A. Aho, Michigan State college poultry specialist, has some suggestions along this line.

He says that eggs should be gathered often and stored in a moist place at a temperature of about 55 degrees to maintain good quality. Also they should be marketed at least twice a week.

Most all flock owners feel they have to wash eggs at one time or another. Aho cites work done at the New Jersey Experiment stations which seems to have the answer for doing the job right.

Their work shows that eggs can be collected in wire baskets and dunked in a detergent solution made at the rate of one-half pint detergent to six gallons of water. The solution should be about 140 degrees and the eggs should be rinsed after dunking with a clean, forced spray of tap water at 140 degrees.

If they are then air-dried by a fan, they maintain quality equal to unwashed eggs under comparable conditions.

Aho also suggests putting a small basket on the side of the egg-gathering basket for collecting the dirties. In this way they won't contact the clean eggs. Soiled eggs should be brushed clean. Dirty eggs should be washed immediately.

Country & Town

By JIM BROWN

Figuring a thousand bushels of potatoes to the acre, more than 500 bushels of the tubers will be dug from the sandy loam at the Vernon J. Brown experimental farm next fall. Of course the 500 mark doesn't figure in the ones my brother Dick has already dug up with the cultivator. And it doesn't figure that one row in the south field where I ran out of fertilizer.

The "we" of the potato business includes the three experts: Vernon J. Brown, Neison Brown and Dick Brown. The fourth "we" is me. I run the errands and carry out some of the self-styled innovations in growing potatoes.

We planted the last 100 pounds of Pontiacs in a drizzling rain Saturday afternoon. Vernon J. worked the ground over while the rest of us cut up the potatoes and saturated them with Semesan Bel, a rust preventative. Finally, we loaded up the trailer and headed for the field with cultivator, spuds and accessories. Setting the cultivator for making the seed bed, we curved four rows next to the apple orchard.

Some claim that best results are obtained by putting fertilizer under the seed, some claim over it, and some think that just as much good comes from putting in the fertilizer between the seed. Some still hold to the dead fish principal. We've tried all methods. See Country & Town later in the summer for a full report on accepted tricks.

"Mr. X" told me (I was the fertilizer applicator) to put 10 level tablespoons of fertilizer on each side of each seed potato. That amounted to two piles of the stuff between each spud. We had earlier planted the seed 15 inches apart, so you can see the program called for a lot of measuring. I started up the hill following the recipe to the letter. Soon I lagged to the point of throwing in 5 heaping spoonfuls. Later I put away the spoon and just threw in a handful.

Passing over the hill, I met "Mr. Y" who suggested that I increase the quantity to 20 level tablespoons and dump it in one pile between the seed potatoes. I tried that until I met my third partner who grabbed the fertilizer from my fumbling hands and simply walked along the rows scattering the fertilizer in a dusty trail.

So you see, we are doing a great deal of experimenting out at the Brown farm. Following the normal curve, some of the spuds will probably weigh 5 lbs apiece, while the more normal ones will slump to a pound or two and in all probability there will be a few that will be smaller.

I forgot to mention last week that I harvested radishes from my own little garden. I think it was May 5. Who can beat that record?

38 Scholarships Offered in 4-H

Thirty-eight $300 college scholarships are offered to boys and girls as awards for top-rating achievement records in five national 4-H programs being conducted by Michigan this year.

The program, number of scholarship awards in each, and donors are: Field crops and frozen foods, 6 each, International Harvester; poultry, 10, Dearborn Motors; soil and water conservation, 8, Firestone; and tractor maintenance, 8, Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

All these programs are directed by the cooperative extension service.

State winners in field crops, poultry and tractor maintenance each will receive an all-expense trip to the National 4-H club congress in Chicago next November. State champions in frozen foods and soil and water conservation will be presented a 17-jewel wrist watch; 8 sectional winners in the former program and 16 in the latter will be given a Chicago Club Congress trip.

County winners in each program will be presented a medal of honor by the respective donors.

Mastitis Is Found In a New Form

As if farmers didn't have enough trouble already with bovine mastitis, a new form of this great "milk robber" has been found.

The new form has the long-handled name of "Cryptococcus neoformans," which is actually a type of yeast cell. It causes the losses by infecting the lungs as well as the udder in some cases. It is very infectious and in one 200-cow dairy herd, it spread to about one-third of all the animals.

Since no specific method has been developed for treating this new form of the disease, veterinary medical authorities are recommending control measures like those now being used to curb other forms of mastitis.

Successful democracy depends upon the collectively-expressed judgment of free-thinking individuals.

Better Seedings By New Methods, College Advises

Better seedings in oats and barley are possible by observing a few tips from farm crops specialists at Michigan State college. Good cultural methods, plus a new method of seeding help do the job.

Soil should be right, they say, with a pH (acidity rating) of six or above. County agricultural agents can help check the pH of the soil. If pH is below six, lime should be added, especially for alfalfa. Use 400 lbs. of 0-20-20 fertilizer per acre at time of seeding.

The drill should be set so the seed falls behind the disk. Michigan agricultural experiment station tests in 1951 got twice as good a stand when seed fell behind disks as when it fell in front of the disks. When dropped in front, seed was covered too deeply.

Cultivating after seeding is a valuable practice, too.

Band seeding is a new method of improving seeding in oats and barley. To do it, add a piece of galvanized hose two and one-half feet long to tubes leading from small seeding attachment, and wire the hose back of the disks so seed falls on top of the ground. It should fall 8 inches behind disks to get seed directly above fertilizer for a quick boost in seedling growth.

Band seeding is especially valuable on poor soils or when the season is dry, the farm crops specialists say.

Experiments at East Lansing gave a 43% better stand of alfalfa by using band seeding as compared to conventional drill seeding.

Taking time to insure good seedlings help reduce costly failures. Seeding failures result in loss of expensive seed, soil erosion, lack of high quality roughage for livestock and breaking up of planned rotations with reduction in yield of following crops.

Prices on Hogs Look Promising

The ratio which shows how many bushels of corn are equal in value to 100 lbs of live hog now indicates that prospects are becoming better for hog production.

Robert C. Kramer, Michigan State college agricultural economist, points out that the cost of producing 100 lbs of live hog compared with the selling price leaves some profit. But he says that several factors indicate this relationship will become even better by this fall.

Soft corn and a "short" crop has made the price of corn higher during the past 6 months than a year earlier. Hog prices have averaged a little lower than a year ago.

Kramer points out that the annual pig crop in the United States has increased since 1946, reaching a total of 102 million head in 1951. So prices have broken and indications are that the downward phase of the hog production cycle has begun. This downward phase of the cycle should last only 2 or 3 years. Beginning this summer, the number of hogs slaughtered will reflect the smaller pig crop this spring. Prices will rise this summer and reach a peak in August or September, Kramer believes.

Farm Loan Office Is State Leader

The Ingham and Eaton National Farm Loan associations have completed one of their most successful months in the history of the organization according to Herbert Bullen, president of the Ingham group. He reported that in April the local office led the state in both volume of money loaned and in number of loans.

National Farm Loan now has over 700 members in Ingham and Eaton and over $2,000,000 in farm mortgage loans. National Farm Loan associations are farmer-owned cooperatives which handle loans for the Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul.

Officials of the Federal Land Bank have honored the Ingham and Eaton associations by designating their office as "Michigan's Office of the Month" among the 18 farm loan offices in Michigan. The office closed 25 loans for a total of $154,000 during April. George G. Greenleaf is secretary-treasurer and Anna Crane and Kenneth L. Brown are assistants.

Prices on Hogs Look Promising

The ratio which shows how many bushels of corn are equal in value to 100 lbs of live hog now indicates that prospects are becoming better for hog production.

Robert C. Kramer, Michigan State college agricultural economist, points out that the cost of producing 100 lbs of live hog compared with the selling price leaves some profit. But he says that several factors indicate this relationship will become even better by this fall.

Soft corn and a "short" crop has made the price of corn higher during the past 6 months than a year earlier. Hog prices have averaged a little lower than a year ago.

Kramer points out that the annual pig crop in the United States has increased since 1946, reaching a total of 102 million head in 1951. So prices have broken and indications are that the downward phase of the hog production cycle has begun. This downward phase of the cycle should last only 2 or 3 years. Beginning this summer, the number of hogs slaughtered will reflect the smaller pig crop this spring. Prices will rise this summer and reach a peak in August or September, Kramer believes.

Mastitis Is Found In a New Form

As if farmers didn't have enough trouble already with bovine mastitis, a new form of this great "milk robber" has been found.

The new form has the long-handled name of "Cryptococcus neoformans," which is actually a type of yeast cell. It causes the losses by infecting the lungs as well as the udder in some cases. It is very infectious and in one 200-cow dairy herd, it spread to about one-third of all the animals.

Since no specific method has been developed for treating this new form of the disease, veterinary medical authorities are recommending control measures like those now being used to curb other forms of mastitis.

38 Scholarships Offered in 4-H

Thirty-eight $300 college scholarships are offered to boys and girls as awards for top-rating achievement records in five national 4-H programs being conducted by Michigan this year.

The program, number of scholarship awards in each, and donors are: Field crops and frozen foods, 6 each, International Harvester; poultry, 10, Dearborn Motors; soil and water conservation, 8, Firestone; and tractor maintenance, 8, Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

All these programs are directed by the cooperative extension service.

State winners in field crops, poultry and tractor maintenance each will receive an all-expense trip to the National 4-H club congress in Chicago next November. State champions in frozen foods and soil and water conservation will be presented a 17-jewel wrist watch; 8 sectional winners in the former program and 16 in the latter will be given a Chicago Club Congress trip.

County winners in each program will be presented a medal of honor by the respective donors.

Kentucky mines produce 15% of the nation's bituminous coal.

and winter litters. Hogs will become relatively more profitable. If there is a normal corn crop this year, 1953 should be a good hog year. So farmers who are efficient hog producers, should stay in the hog business.

Storage Battery Can Be Fatal to Farm Livestock

Discarded storage batteries may be useless for starting motors, but they can still pack a lethal punch when it comes to killing livestock, the American Foundation for Animal Health warned farmers.

"Batteries left lying around barnyards, feedlots, or pastures can be a deadly source of lead poisoning to farm animals," says the Foundation. "Lead poisoning can occur when an animal licks old batteries, eats orchard grass that has been treated with lead arsenate, or licks paints, ointments, or salves which contain lead."

Foundation authorities also recommended that farmers check against five additional livestock poisoning hazards:

Mercury poisoning from eating seed grain that has been treated with mercury.

Rat poisons, including warfarin, if sufficient amounts are consumed over a long period of time. Chemical weed killers which may contain substances poisonous to stock.

Grasshopper poisons, such as arsenite-treated bran.

Highway surfacing oil which rains may wash into pastures.

Farmers who suspect a case of livestock poisoning are urged to get a veterinarian on the job as promptly as possible, as time is an important factor in saving the animal's life.

REACHES THE TOP
The fellow who is willing to take one step at a time is the man who eventually reaches the top.

Sawfly Damages Pine Plantings

People who are growing pine for Christmas trees should inspect their trees at this time if their trees are 3 feet or over in height, said Elton Twork, district forester of the conservation department.

This is the season when the larvae of the pine sawfly hatch. These shiny black-headed, dull green larvae may already have grown a half-inch long and consumed the needles on a branch. That can spoil the sale of the tree, he continued. The larvae hatch near the tips of branches. They feed in groups. Usually three or four are found feeding on a needle, with from 25 to 100 or more to the group.

The control recommended is spraying the infected trees with a mixture of 3 pounds of wettable 50% D. D. T. or lead arsenate to 100 gallons of water. For smaller quantities, use 3 tablespoons to a gallon of water.

Pine to be used for Christmas trees should be shaped during June and early July. Instructions are available at the county agent's office.

Encouragement for the Future Farmers

CHICAGO, ILL.—Good progress is being made to increase the operating budget of the Future Farmers of America, largest farm boy organization in the world. Here, Roger M. Kyes (right), Chairman of the Sponsoring Committee of the FFA Foundation and vice president of General Motors, presents checks totaling $25,000 to Dr. W. T. Spanton, national FFA advisor, as a starter for the 1953 FFA budget. Companies in business and industry donate the money, which will go into cash awards for the farm boys in various FFA contests throughout the U. S., Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

Weather Hazards For Haying Are Cut By New Methods

Newer hay-harvesting methods which reduce weather hazards are becoming more common on Michigan farms, resulting in higher quality hay, according to Karl Vary, Michigan State college agricultural economist.

"The weather problem in field-curing hay to 25% or less is obvious. To field-cure hay to a moisture content of 25% requires about 15 to 20 hours of sunshine. That means about 1 1/2 to 2 days of clear weather.

According to U. S. weather bureau records at East Lansing, the probable number of days without rainfall during the first 2 weeks in June is about 2 to 3 days in a row. Farmers can count on about 1 to 2 clear days in a row during the second 2 weeks in June, and 3 clear days in a row during the first week in July. These figures were compiled by Vary from records from 1918 to 1951.

With a hay crusher the number of hours of sunshine required to field-cure hay is cut to 8 to 10. A barn drier will cut hours of sunshine required to 6 to 8. And farmers who make grass silage need only 1 to 3 hours of sunshine to cure their hay.

The dry matter loss for the hay loader method is 24%, for the hay crusher it is 21%, for the barn drier 16%, and for grass silage, 15%. These dry matter loss figures are from time of cutting until time of feeding.

Cattle Midgets Yield No Profit

Midgets can usually get along pretty well despite their handicap, but when it comes to dwarfism in the livestock world—that's another story.

So say veterinarian medical scientists who are investigating the problem of dwarfism in cattle. Surprisingly enough, dwarfism is the cause of considerable loss in all the major beef cattle breeds, these authorities declare.

Most dwarf calves die at birth, but some do survive to live out their unprofitable span of life.

What do dwarf calves look like? Besides being stunted, they develop potbellies, have broad heads with a bulging forehead, and their lower jaws are out of proportion.

GREAT BANGS
A would-be drinking driver should always remember that great bangs from little binges grow.

Veterinarians say that many of these hovine freaks have a deficiency in thyroid hormones.

The heat value of one ton of bituminous coal equals that of 4 1/2 barrels of crude petroleum.

Eaton Guernsey Sets High Mark

A registered Guernsey cow, Longacres Matilda, owned by Waldo E. May and W. W. Knapp, Longacres Farm, Eaton Rapids, produced 10,723 lbs of milk and 480 lbs of butterfat. This is according to the official herd improvement registry record released by the American Guernsey Cattle Club.

"Matilda" was a junior 2-year-old and was milked for 343 days. The Guernsey is the daughter of the registered Guernsey sire, Cowham Farm Goldrex, that has 7 daughters in the performance register of the American Guernsey Cattle Club.

Sixteen Michigan counties are named by the Federal Government—in a list marked "restricted"—as containing target areas. Three of these areas are listed as "critical" targets. Only four states surpass Michigan in the number of target areas on the Federal list. They are New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana.

It seems probable that any of the free peoples of the world who want to maintain their independence will have to fight for it.

THIS FARMING BUSINESS BY CARL COLLIN

The worst locust plague in a century threatens the entire food supply of agricultural countries from Africa to Asia. Vast swarms of desert locusts have swept from their East African breeding place since the first of the year. They are now breeding a new generation of young locusts which will threaten the cotton and grain of the Nile delta on one side and the rice fields of India on the other.

Both the United States and Soviet Russia have sent in planes and experts to help fight the menace. Just how effective spraying and dusting with insecticides can be is a question because of the tremendous areas affected. Officials of the food and agricultural organizations have warned that the locust menace may be a new threat to the political stability of the Middle East.

The first phase of the USDA's pork and egg buying program probably will end in about 5 weeks. Purchases of pork and shell eggs have been made to help bolster prices farmers receive for their hogs and eggs. The buying program won't be terminated but there will be a lull before the government starts buying again. Hog prices should be at a point in another few weeks where government buying won't be needed to boost farm prices closer to parity.

It looks like the wheat crop here in Michigan this year will be a "whopper." The Michigan crop reporting service says that the outlook on May 1 was for the largest output in the state since 1882. If the crop continues as well as it has so far, the wheat crop here in Michigan this year will be 22% greater than last year and 52% above the average for the past 10 years. However, the rice crop is down 20% from last year.

April milk production in Michigan was off about 3% from the same month a year ago. We haven't as many dairy cows now, and output per cow was off.

Egg production in Michigan during April slipped 2% below a year ago, too. However, total production for the first quarter of the year was larger than a year ago because of the heavier output during January and February.

We've reported regularly on the production and consumption trends in the dairy industry. Particular emphasis has been noted on the smaller demand for butter (and the increase in the use of oleo.) Now the USDA reports that the principal countries of the world are using more of their milk supplies as fluid milk and cheese and less for butter. And foreign relations officials of the USDA say this trend will continue. The total milk production in these countries has jumped almost 8% since the war. But population increases have lowered the amount of milk available per person.

The early potato crop is down sharply. The spuds are raised mostly in Florida, Texas and California. The largest part of the early normally comes from California. But shipments from that state are late. California growers usually get premium prices for the first spring tubers to hit the market. To get these prices, growers harvest some of their spuds before they reach full size. This spring, though, with the ceiling prices giving little incentive for early delivery, the California growers aren't digging these early potatoes. They're leaving them in the ground longer.

When warmer weather comes, poultrymen gather eggs more often to preserve quality. Temperature of an egg when it's laid is around 100 degrees. When other hens use the same nest, the egg doesn't have a very good chance to cool off.

Eggs will cool in 3 hours if spread on a wire tray, and in 5 hours in a wire basket. It takes 11 hours for eggs to cool if placed in a pall that has no ventilation along the sides. If the eggs are placed in an egg crate they won't cool off for 19 hours.

The government purchased 492 carloads of apples in 6 midwestern states last fall and this winter. The idea was to remove surplus stocks from the market and help growers get better prices. Total cost of the purchase program in this 6-state area was $677,700. The largest quantity of apples purchased in the midwest was in Michigan, where 285 carloads were taken by the government. For the U. S. as a whole, $3,300,000 were spent for 2,215 carloads (1.5 million bushels).

Miscellany. . . Corn belt farmers have 25% less corn on hand than a year ago and 60% less than 2 years ago. And, of course, they have more livestock to feed. . . Early lambs from most areas are going to be coming to market later than usual this year. Slow growth of pastures has delayed the development of the lambs.

The Chicago Board of Trade (the grain market) will remain open on Saturdays this summer. Last year the exchange didn't operate on Saturdays during June, July and August. . . Only 14% of the nation's workers are not covered by some type of retirement benefit—social security, civil service, etc. Farmers are included in this minority.

Security Checks Paid to 5,000

Checks for insurance payments under federal social security went to 5,000 aged persons, children and their widowed mothers in Ingham county for December, 1951.

W. Scott Hamlin, manager of the Lansing social security office, said that these monthly payments under the old-age and survivors insurance program amounted to $188,068 in this area.

More than one-third of all people over 65 in the United States who could not count on income from work for support, were getting social security insurance benefits. In Ingham 3,870 persons over age 65 were receiving the payments.

Pigs Without Grunt May Have Disease

Swine raisers are being urged to watch out this spring for a serious disease of young pigs that is reported to be spreading. The disease, known as pig edema, chiefly attacks young pigs and growing shoats from 6 to 20 weeks of age.

Losses may come on quickly, many of the pigs dying within 36 hours. As high as 50% of a herd may be stricken at one time.

Pigs which get this disease lose their appetites and body coordination. The edema, or swelling, first appears on the eyelids, then spreads to the snout and lips. The pig's grunt may become hoarse and it may stumble and drag its hind legs. Paralysis and convulsions occur in the final stages.

Farmers were urged to be on guard against this disease and to report suspicious symptoms immediately, to help avoid its spread.
