

WHAT MAKES GEESE SILLY could be such an unexpected fall of snow the last of March. These Canadian geese at the state game farm didn't mind the snow too much. The same webs which send them through the water helped them through the snow Tuesday morning. But they had difficulty locating their nests under all that white stuff.

Although some people had just as soon not seen it so late in the season, the snow transformed the countryside into a fairytale Tuesday morning. The white mantle bedecked shrubs and trees and covered the ground 7 inches deep. By Tuesday morning strands of frost hung from fences.

In the bright sun all outdoors glistened. The sun melted down much of the snow by nightfall and again Wednesday noon the sun started to work in earnest.

Tuesday was as pretty a day as this world has ever seen. (Ingham County News photo.)

School Board Purchases East Side Building Site

Bought and paid for by the school board is 3 1/4 acres adjoining Athletic field on the north. The board bought the property, most of it now seeded to wheat, from Mrs. Emily Wixson Olsen of Detroit. The price was reported as $3,500.

The site was bought for an east side elementary school if and when one is built.

The house on the property was recently razed. It was the home of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Wixson for many years and had been in the family for half a century. The property has 156 feet frontage on Steele street, at the east end of Elm. It is flanked on the west by Steele street homes, on the north by Ash street homes and on the east by Hall Boulevard property. There is a 33-ft. right-of-way connecting the acreage with Hall boulevard.

For several years the board of education planned to use the land south of Athletic field for either an elementary or high school. That property has now been developed into a baseball diamond, with the west end used for parking cars of those who attend football games.

Last year the board became interested in the Jesse Burgess property between Maple and Columbia, at the end of Steele street north of Ash. The Mason Church of the Nazarene bought the Burgess property a few weeks ago.

The church offered the school district a chunk of the 8 acres but the deal was not made.

Mrs. Olsen has had several opportunities to sell the property but turned them down. She told members of the school board that she was glad to dispose of the acreage for a school. She has taught school in Lincoln Park for 30 years. She was graduated from Mason high school in 1922. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. John Wixson. She was a younger sister of the late Mrs. Walter Zimmer.

Rolie Speer razed the old Wixson home within the past few weeks. The house was considered to be beyond repair.

Tomlinson Enters Race for Sheriff

Sam Tomlinson of Mason has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Ingham county sheriff in the primary this summer.

Tomlinson was beaten out by Sheriff Bill Barnes in the primary 2 years ago. He is a former deputy sheriff and at present is on the sales staff at McCann Oldsmobile in Mason.

Tomlinson graduated from Mason high school and has spent the past 2 years as a car salesman, first with Les Foote Nash and now with McCann.

Have You Met?

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fleming, 427 1/2 S. Jefferson street, and their 4 children, Carole, 13; Frank, Jr., 11; Mary Lee, 10; and Kim, 2.

The Flemings moved to Mason from Munising the first part of November, 1953. In Munising they owned and operated a grocery store. Mr. Fleming is now employed by the Jewell Tea company.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Fleming are graduates of Munising high school. He served 2 years in the army during World War II, 18 months of which was spent in Italy, France and Africa.

The Flemings attend the St. James Catholic Mission.

Garage Looters Make Big Haul

Saturday night thieves entered the Ray Fisher garage on Cedar street in Mason and made off with much loot. The biggest piece of equipment taken was a booster battery charger and attachments valued at $1,500. A car radio at $105, another charger at $200, 2 men's wrist watches valued at $170 and a $200 diamond ring were among the loot. A cash box containing notes was also taken.

Ralph Bartholomew, owner of the building, discovered the break-in Sunday morning. Entry had been gained through a rear window and by forcing a lock on an inside door.

Three young men driving a red pickup were seen in the area late Saturday night. Sheriff's officers said they have some leads on the trio and expect to have them in for questioning Thursday.

Tax Reductions Spur Business

Reduction of many and elimination of some excise taxes gave even local business a spurt Thursday morning.

President Dwight Eisenhower signed the tax cut bill Wednesday. It is the biggest tax cut in the nation's history. With the 10% cut in income taxes made effective earlier in the year included, the tax reduction will mean 7 billions lopped off so far in 1954.

Telephone toll taxes, refrigerators, railroad fares, movie admissions, fountain pens, household equipment and hundreds of other services and items will not carry so much in excise taxes, or will carry none at all, starting Thursday.

Vaccine Tests Against Polio Start April 20

Dr. Douglas Fryer announced Thursday morning that Ingham's vaccine polio tests are now scheduled to start April 20. Delay in the arrival of vaccine and other test materials and Easter recesses for schools forced a change in schedule, the doctor said.

Ingham is one of the counties chosen for the polio vaccine tests which will be given to between 500,000 and 1,000,000 children in the nation. Pupils in the first 3 grades were chosen because they are the most susceptible to polio.

In Ingham county there are about 12,000 children in the 3 grades. Parental consent is necessary, and so health officials expect that between 85% and 90% of the 12,000 will actually participate in the tests.

Only half the youngsters will get the vaccine, the other half an ineffective control dosage. There are no noticeable reactions with either the vaccine or the other solution, said Dr. Fryer.

Local doctors will give the vaccine at 57 clinical centers in the county. Each child will get 3 injections. There will be a one-week period between the first and second injections and at least 4 weeks between the second and third. The first 2 injections start the production of antibodies, polio-fighting substances in the blood, while the third dose acts as a booster to raise the amount of antibodies to a high level, doctors claim.

Each dose is about a quarter of a teaspoonful. The vaccine is injected into the arm. It will leave no scar. Trials have been run on thousands of youngsters in Pennsylvania.

There is no charge for the vaccine tests. The reason why only some children are given the vaccine is because only a limited amount is now available. Wyeth Laboratories Inc. in Philadelphia and Parke, Davis & Co., Detroit, are among the 5 companies manufacturing the vaccine.

Gamma globulin gives only temporary protection, about 5 weeks, said Dr. Fryer, while an effective vaccine is expected to provide protection to the nervous system for several years.

Dull Days for Dogs

Three months of confinement started for Mason dogs at dawn Thursday. By city ordinance all dogs must be on leash, penned or otherwise kept in the immediate control of their masters or caretakers for the months of April, May and June. The ordinance was adopted for the protection of gardens.

Police Blame Blaze in Barn Onto Prowler

State police blame a prowler for the fire in the Howard Sims barn near Vantown March 22.

Evidence indicates, said Detective Russell Kitzinger of the state police, that the fire was humanly applied. There is no evidence, he declared, that the fire could have started any other way. Spontaneous combustion was ruled out because the fire started beyond the plate in the caves overhang. Heat of between 400 and 500 degrees would have been required to set fire to the chaff which apparently spread to the laminated rafters. There was no wiring near the spot.

While there is no direct evidence, Kitzinger and Capt. Robert Foster of the Lansing fire department, told Sims and Stewart Myall, who operates the farm, that a prowler might have started a small fire in the barn to keep warm and that it got out of control. Near the spot where the fire started officers found an overcoat and a blanket, owned by Myall. They had been left in another part of the barn by Myall.

On the night of the fire the Myalls had been away from the farm. They returned at 10:30. The fire was discovered at 11:45. Neighbors put it out with small damage.

On Sunday night several Boys Vocational school youths fled the Lansing institution. One is still at liberty. When he is caught he will be questioned about the Leroy fire, said the state police detective.

A Vocational youth confessed to starting a fire in a Fowlerville barn to keep warm.

Alaiedon Board Gives O. K. to Zoning Ordinance

Alaiedon township's zoning ordinance gained the approval of the town board Tuesday afternoon. It becomes effective May 1 unless residents file for a referendum.

Petitions for a referendum must be filed within 30 days following action of the town board. The signatures of 8% of the number of qualified electors who voted for secretary of state at the 1952 election are required on referendum petitions. There were 640 votes cast for secretary of state. Therefore only 51 signers can force a referendum.

In announcing the action of the town board Tuesday, Supervisor Lloyd Aseltine said, "No member of the town board was satisfied with every provision of the ordinance. We believe the ordinance fits most situations, or it can be made to fit through amendments."

The town board has not yet named a member of the zoning appeals board under the new ordinance. The zoning commission chooses a member to serve on the appeals board. Those 2 pick a third member.

Last December 7 the final draft of the ordinance was approved at a public hearing. The board of supervisors gave its approval in January.

Ralph Stillman is chairman and Robert Seyfarth is secretary of the zoning commission. B. L. Green and Wesley Thomas are also members.

Michigan Week Group Picks Leader

Ralph Toaz, secretary of the merchants division of the Lansing Chamber of Commerce, is chairman of Ingham's Michigan Week committee. Community chairmen elected him Tuesday night at a meeting held in Mason.

Toaz asked for an advisory board. Named to it were Richard Bailey, county agent; George Johnson, Williamston automobile dealer; and Nelson Brown of the Ingham County News. Kenneth Houck, representative of the Michigan department of economic development, was present at the meeting. He told of the various ways counties are organizing and the means they have chosen to promote Michigan Week, which will be observed from May 2 to 8.

Promotion of Michigan food products, from farms to the customers, and the influence of New York and New England upon Michigan through the first settlers, and the economic advantages of the state will be emphasized during the week, community chairmen decided.

Alton J. Stroud, county school superintendent, presided at Tuesday's meeting, as chairman of the organizing committee, until the election of Toaz.

Participating in the meeting, in addition to those named, were Miss Alice Chapin, Eden; Max Strother, East Lansing; mayor;

Voters Must Choose Four Councilmen at Monday's Election

Mason voters have the duty of choosing 4 councilmen Monday. There are 8 candidates. The city charter provides that there must be at least double the number of candidates that there are offices to fill. In case candidates don't qualify by filing petitions, the council itself must make nominations up to the required number.

This year the council had to make no nominations. All 3 entered the lists willingly. They are A. J. Betcher, Herbert Colby, Richard Morris, Robert Phillips, Eric Spenny, Ralph Strope, Don VanderVeen, Sr., and Dr. Lewis A. Wileiden.

Strope is the only incumbent. The 4 whose terms expire are Councilmen Strope, Frank Dakin, C. H. Hall and S. A. Morrison. Both Hall and Morrison have served as mayor. Hall was elected mayor and then served as mayor under the new charter by vote of his colleagues. Morrison served as mayor under the old charter. Councilmen are elected to 2-year terms.

Candidates Speak
Council candidates were asked to express their views on several issues. What they had to say is on Page 1, Part 2.

Terms. The terms of Councilmen Alton J. Stroud and Alfred Forche and Mayor Clairmont Everett run for another year.

There has been no active campaigning on the part of any candidate. Seven of the 8 candidates gave short talks before the Mason Kiwanis club Tuesday night. Absent was VanderVeen, unable to attend because of sickness. He and his wife returned from Arizona Monday night.

Polls will open at 7 o'clock Monday morning and remain open until 8 o'clock at night. As usual, first precinct voters will cast their ballots in court house booths. Second precinct voters will use booths in the city council room.

At the meeting Tuesday night candidates discussed sewer extensions, the sewage disposal plant, recreation program, city manager, restoration of the Legion Memorial building, parking meters, the fire department and prospects of obtaining more industry.

All candidates who said anything voiced opposition to parking meters.

Council Approves 1954 Budget

Mason's city council approved a proposed $154,509 budget for 1954 at a special meeting Monday night. The budget will be discussed at a public hearing Monday, April 19, at 8 p. m. in the city council room.

The councilmen proposed that $54,409 be raised by taxation in Mason. The balance of the revenue will come from state grants, interest on bonds and charges for some city services.

Under terms of the city charter adopted in 1951, a budget is required. A new budget must be effective beginning July 1 of this year.

This year's proposed budget is $476 more than the one approved last year. However, the proposed budget calls for $3,324 more in local taxes. The council plans to spend $55,421 for streets, as against $42,000 last year. Expenditures from the general fund are estimated at $2,000 under last year's figure. Other budget reductions are in the hydrant rental fund of $5,250, the water fund of $2,690 and the sewer and sewage fund of $4,077.

A complete report of the proposed budget is on file at the city clerk's office, according to Mayor Clairmont Everett.

Lodge Is Interested, Too
Masonic organizations, long anxious to build a temple, have a committee studying possibilities offered by the Legion building. The Legion post offered the ruins to any group or groups willing to restore the building to use as a community center. Some lodge members believe that an architect could plan the restoration to include lodge rooms and still permit use of the facilities for public meetings.

At a committee meeting held Wednesday night, members decided to await the outcome of Monday's vote before proceeding with plans.

Since the December fire several big farm meetings and other events usually held in the Legion Memorial building have been shifted to Leslie, Holt and Davison. The Mason junior-senior reception is going to be held in the Union building at Michigan State this year.

Beef Feeders Plan Tour of 6 Ingham Farms

Ingham beef cattle raisers will get a chance to see several methods of beef feeding at a tour planned for Thursday, April 8. The tour stops have been arranged in the western half of the county. Bill Findly, extension specialist from Michigan State college, will go along on the tour. Stops have been arranged to include several systems of management as well as including various weights of cattle, according to Dick Bailey, county agricultural agent.

The stops are as follows:
Stop No. 1. The tour will begin at 9:45 at the Ronald Remington farm on Bennett road between Hagadorn and Okemos roads. Remington's cattle are small bred Angus. He has 35 head including 15 cows, 9 heifers and calves.

Stop No. 2. At 10:30 the tour will be at the J. F. Wolfram farm now owned by H. C. Good and managed by George Moulton. The farm is located on Holt road, west of College road. Moulton has 51 Hereford calves which were brought from Texas November 1. They are on grass and corn silage and hay. They will be turned out to pasture later in the spring. The animals have not gotten and will not get any grain, according to Moulton.

Stop No. 3. The tour will continue to the Harold and Loren Spink farm on Nichols road at 11:15. Nichols road is just west of Aurelius road in Delhi township. The Spinks have 60 Herefords and 30 steers and roans bought in October and November. They averaged 670 lb. when bought. The Spink cattle were bought mostly at local sales from local breeders. The heifers get corn and grass silage and hay. They will go out on pasture soon and get a little grain on the side.

Stop No. 4. Following a time-out for dinner, the tour will continue on to the Carl Topf farm at 1:15. The Topf farm is on Gale road just south of Bunker road in Aurelius township. Topf has 41 Herefords from Wyoming. They weighed 719 lbs. last October and have received grain regularly. They now get 20 lbs. of ground grain, silage and hay. They are scheduled to go the last of May or April.

Stop No. 5. At 2:00 the tour will stop at the John Edgar farm on Barnes road, a half-mile east of Aurelius. Edgar has 33 head of cattle brought from Missouri 513 lbs. They are mostly Herefords with a few Angus and will be turned out to pasture this spring.

Dog Story Corrected

We would like to point out that in your article in the last issue of your paper headed "Dogs Will Lose Freedom April 1," we feel the statement in regard to the disposition of the dogs is hardly fair to the county dog warden, Clayton Huest, nor to the Ingham County Humane Society. You speak of "the county dog warden hauling the dogs to the Lansing animal shelter." The shelter is situated in Lansing but is maintained by the county and the Humane Society to serve the entire county. Then you say, "There they are executed unless they are bailed out." All stray dogs are held a full 7 days during which time an owner may reclaim them by paying a dollar pick-up fee and 25¢ a day for board. At the end of this time they may be and are offered for sale, with the hope that a suitable home may be found for them.

During the month of February, 41 dogs were sold and 34 redeemed from the shelter. We hate to have people think that all the dogs brought to the shelter are destroyed, although, of course, many people bring sick, injured or very old animals there for that purpose. Would you be kind enough to publish these facts so that persons would not have the wrong impression?

MRS. WARREN LOSMER,

Council Candidates State Views

Monday Is Election Day

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon J. Brown of Mason attended the ceremonies, as did Russell Brown, a senior at Michigan State college. The Mason man, now residing in New York, where he is a vice-president of Cal-Tex

Oil Co., received his award for service on the island of Bahrain in the Persian Gulf. He was general manager and finally a vice-president of the Bahrain Petroleum company. The Bahrain islands are a British protectorate.

Brown is the second Mason resident to receive a British medal for service to the empire. Mrs. D. C. Dart has one, awarded to her for outstanding service with the British consular service. Before her marriage she was with the British consulate in Detroit.

On Page 1, Part 3, Vernon J. Brown's account of the Washington ceremonies appears.

Wyeth Contributes to AHP Big Year

American Home Products Co., parent company of Wyeth Laboratories Inc. at Mason, did big business in 1953, the annual report shows. Income of $189,566,000 exceeded 1952 by a million dollars. Earnings were $13,693,000 in 1953, against $11,735,000 in 1952. On a share basis, the earnings were $3.41 in 1953 against $3.05 in 1952. During the year the company disposed of the Clapp Baby Food business in Rochester to Duffy-Mott Co., Inc.

Wyeth Laboratories Inc. and its sister plants at Meridian, Idaho; Mayfield, Pa.; West Chester, Pa.; Philadelphia and Chicago make up the chemical drugs division of American Home Products, accounting for 46% of AHP sales.

Besides SMA baby food, well known Wyeth products include Ampho-Jel, Phenergan, Sulphosol, Promarin, antibiotics, antihistamines, serums, antitoxins, vaccines, diet supplements, enzymes and hormones.

The Boy-Ar-Dee line of prepared food products, Anacin, Ascolin, toothpaste, Biso-Dol, Frezoner, Igeel, Zin-Oil, Aerowax, Aero Shave, many kinds of insecticides, Edna Wallace Hopper and House of Louis Philippe cosmetics, G. Washington's instant coffee and Burnett's food flavors are among AHP products.

The foreign division of AHP now circles the globe with offices and laboratories in Buenos Aires, Argentina; Mexico City, Mexico; Cali, Colombia; Caracas, Venezuela; Sao Paulo, Brazil; Montevideo, Uruguay; Havana, Cuba; Lima, Peru; Sydney, Australia; Auckland, New Zealand; East London, and Johannesburg, South Africa; Milan, Italy; and throughout the United Kingdom, Eire, India, Burma, Ceylon and Malaya. Offices and laboratories are maintained in London and Worcester, England; Dublin, Eire; and Bombay, India.

Okemos Electors Favor Proposals

By big margins Monday Okemos school voters gave their blessing to 4 proposals, 2 of which will take money.

They approved by a vote of 209 to 29 the proposal to levy an extra 10-mill tax for one year for school operating.

By a vote of 213 to 24 they approved raising the tax limitation by 5 mills for a building and site fund.

Voters approved the levying of the 5 mills for the building and site fund by a vote of 206 to 26.

The vote on authorizing the school board to sell the old frame school building and the site at the corner of Clinton and Ardmore in Okemos was 230 to 8.

Mason Whippet Wins Top Prize

Harbridge Sweet Alyssum, 21-month-old female Whippet owned by Mrs. O. H. Freeland of Mason, won highest honors at the Lenth and Collar club's junior all-breeds show in Lansing Sunday. The Whippet was awarded the best-in-show trophy.

A twin sister of the prize-winning Whippet was also in the show. Mrs. Freeland also has a Great Dane which she intended entering but the dog fell sick before the show.

Mrs. Freeland keeps the dogs as pets. "They are good companions," she said.

Eight men seek office in Mason Monday. Four will be elected councilmen.

The 8 candidates, listed alphabetically, are A. J. Beteher, Herbert A. Colby, Richard W. Morris, Robert O. Phillips, Eric Spenny, Ralph G. Strope, Don Vander-Veen, Sr., and Lewis A. Wildeen.

To enlighten the voters about the men and about their stands on several city issues, the Ingham County News sent each of them a questionnaire. They were also invited to state their views on other matters which they considered of interest.

These were the questions asked:

1. What should be done about the sanitary sewer system extension in the southwest section of town? If the sewers are extended, the sewage must be pumped. That means a pumping station.

2. What should be the council's stand on enlarging and modernizing the sewage disposal plant? How should it be financed?

3. Should the taxpayers set up a recreational program? How much in tax money should the council appropriate, if you feel that recreation should be supported by tax money?

4. What should be done about property valuations? Do you think they should be generally raised, lowered or maintained at the present level?

5. What is your opinion about the type of city government? Do you think a city manager is required or do you favor the present system of committee responsibility?

6. What about parking meters?

A. J. Beteher, 57, resides at 238 W. Ash. He is a welder at Oldsmobile. Adequate sewer and water service should be provided every home in Mason, he said.

"Let's do something about enlarging and modernizing the sewage disposal plant," Beteher said. "Not just talk about it."

A recreation program should be launched with a fair share of the cost borne by taxpayers, Beteher declared. He stated his belief that the present level of property valuation is about right. He does not favor the hiring of a city manager. Neither does he favor the installation of parking meters. "Let's bring trade to Mason instead of driving it to other towns," he added.

"I was your defense director for 2 years," said Beteher. "I saved money for Mason taxpayers while doing them a good job. As councilman I will work for the best interests of all the people, as I have in the past."

Herbert J. Colby, 52, resides at 421 East Oak. He is a painting contractor.

He did not discuss specifically the issues presented to the candidates. Here is his statement: "I have not made a study of these issues that you say may come before the city council in the near future. Therefore I do not feel that I want to commit myself to answer one way or the other. But if I am elected and these issues do come up before the council, I will study and judge them with an open mind for the best interests of the city of Mason and the taxpayers."

Richard W. Morris, 41, resides at 213 S. Jefferson. He is a graduate of Highland Park high school and of the Lawrence Institute of Technology. He was with Detroit Edison 17 years as a steam and electrical engineer. After deciding to enter the selling field he came to Mason 6 years ago as field manager for Steelco Stainless Steel Co. He is now employed as salesman for a vending machine company. He is married, has 2 daughters of school age and attends the First Church of Christ Scientist, Mason.

Here is the way Morris answered the questions:

1. An adequate sewer system is an absolute necessity.

2. The sewage disposal plant must be enlarged and modernized to take care of the immediate needs of Mason. These improvements are necessitated by an increasing population. They should be financed by taxes from the enlarged tax roll.

3. Tax-supported recreation would be fine, but my experience has proved that a successful program can be had with the full cooperation of local people and groups.

4. Property valuations should be at a level to meet the needs of Mason.

5. As to the hiring of a city manager, I am not qualified to answer that question at this time.

6. I feel that parking meters are not necessary in Mason at this time.

Morris added a suggestion of his own. He said, "I believe the city would do well to rebuild the Legion Memorial building to house city offices and to serve as a community recreation center."

Robert O. Phillips, 49, resides at 529 West Ash. He is plant engineer at Wyeth Laboratories Inc.

These are the replies submitted by Phillips to the questions asked:

1. If the development of the southwest section of the city is to continue, sanitary sewer facilities should be provided.

2. The city should follow the advice of a reliable sanitary engineer in enlarging and modernizing the sewage disposal plant. The work should be financed by a bond issue.

3. The city should be a partner with other organizations in a recreational program.

4. I feel that the present property valuations should be maintained.

5. I believe that a capable, trained city manager will save the city money.

6. Parking meters are not necessary at the present time.

Eric D. Spenny resides at 428 East Oak street. He is a mechanic at the road commission garage. For a number of years he was a partner with A. G. Spenny & Sons.

Questions regarding the need for extending the sanitary sewer system to the southwest area and for modernizing and expanding the sewage disposal plant, require further study before he arrives at an answer, Spenny said. They will both have to be done eventually, he stated. On other issues his replies were:

No. 3. Yes, Mason needs a recreation program, and it should be supported as much as required out of tax money if included in the budget.

No. 4. I can tell better about property valuations after I have attended several council meetings and learn what valuations now are.

No. 5. The matter of hiring a city manager requires further study on my part.

No. 6. At the present time I do not favor the installation of parking meters.

I have served on the Mason fire department for 25 years. I was in business here in Mason for 25 years. If elected, I will study the problems of the city carefully and will use the best judgment I possess in reaching my decisions.

Ralph G. Strope, 59, is director of the Ingham County Office of Civil Defense. He resides at 150 N. Jefferson, and presently is serving on the city council.

Strope rearranged the sequence of the issues as presented and set forth his views as follows:

Property valuations. Until the property valuation survey now in progress is completed and made available to the city assessor, I don't believe I can make a positive statement. I do think that we should be extremely careful not to make the city tax rate so oppressive as to cause business concerns to move outside the city.

Recreation is today a major problem. With reduced hours of labor, increased span of life and retirement programs, people find more and more time which can be devoted to recreational purposes. It does not only apply to juveniles, but to adults as well. I believe that time has arrived for a tax-supported recreational program. Study should be made, and when completed, submitted to the electorate and upon adoption, the city bear its just and fair share of such program.

Type of government. From the experience gained in the past 2 years, I feel sure that the present method of committee responsibility, whereby the committee under the present charter is limited in its actions, is not efficient. Savings in tax monies can be made by securing a city administrator.

Parking meters. I definitely am opposed to installation of parking meters for such revenue as they may produce. Actual observation and a check of parking violations during the hours of 8:00 a. m. to 6:00 p. m. do not indicate abuse of parking privileges.

Sanitation. Satisfactory plans for extended sewers, pump lift station and adequate disposal plant were studied in early 1953. Then a situation developed which made the plan look bad. Another study was made and the situation corrected. Mason's increased growth makes it mandatory to carry out the plans submitted by the city engineer. Revenue bonds to finance it is my answer to this problem. Those who gain the benefits should foot the bill.

Don H. VanderVeen, 55, resides at 810 West Columbia. He has been a highway and bridge contractor for 35 years. He has also subdivided several Mason areas and has erected business buildings in Mason. His replies to the questions submitted were:

1. If there is to be any extensive development in the southwest area, sanitary sewers will have to be provided. As to the best method of getting the sewage to the disposal plant and sharing of the costs, I am not certain. I will have to give it more study.

2. The same holds true of the disposal plant. Some reports indicate that the plant is in pretty good operating condition. Others say an extensive rebuilding program is necessary. I want to know the facts before I reach a decision.

3. I hear a lot of talk about recreation programs. I want somebody to tell what they expect in a program, what they expect to accomplish and what they expect it will cost.

4. As I understand it, experts are now overhauling property valuations. I think the council should first get the report and study it. I don't think the city should raise any more money than is needed.

5. As to a city manager, it all depends on the manager. Mason tried one once and it didn't seem to work out so well. A manager must be capable of managing and given complete authority to do so.

6. I am opposed to installation of parking meters in Mason or any other small town. There is plenty of parking space available in Mason and I can see no reason for meters now.

If I am elected to the council I will do my best to get the facts on every issue and to decide every issue on those facts.

Lewis A. Wildeen, D. V. M., resides at 531 W. Ash. He is a meat inspector for the Lansing-Ingham county health department. Here are his answers to the questions submitted:

1. The matter of sanitary sewers in the southwest section deserves study and the most efficient and economical plan pursued.

2. So does the matter of the sewage disposal plant. It should be financed by those who benefit.

3. The matter of a recreational program should be thoroughly studied.

4. Property valuations should be fair. I am concerned with a low budget and the following of a pay-as-we-go policy.

5. The city manager system is more efficient and probably more expensive.

6. Parking meters are not now needed in Mason.

Dr. Wildeen appended a note to his list of answers. In part he said, "I am not given to unanimous agreement on all issues. I am not a 'yes' man. I am not averse to reason. I follow the dictates of my conscience. This allows me to be at peace with my own mind, after the matter is settled and the clouds of confusion roll away. I am not deceiving election, but if chosen, I will do my humble best for God and country, especially this small part of it right here. My credentials include overseas service in World War I, membership on the Mason school board, and activity over a long period in church, lodge, American Legion and professional associations."

That the spiritual understanding which enables man to differentiate between the true and the false, is God bestowed and is unlimited by material heredity and environment—is a leading point to be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday. Selections from the King James Version of the Bible and correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy comprise the lesson; sermon entitled "Unreality."

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

I take captive every thought and make it obey Christ. (II Corinthians 10:5. Goodspeed.) Read Psalms 103:17-22 or Romans 6:12-16.
Obedience is a major element in life. None can safely disregard laws, natural or spiritual. Happiness, security and peace are found only in voluntary, cheerful obedience to God. His far-reaching and wise rules govern all existence.
In the spiritual life, belief and complete acceptance of the gospel message, faith in God's revealed will, and obedience that calls for action result in Christlikeness.
Jesus humbled Himself and became obedient unto death. His meat was to do the will of His Father. He prayed: "Not my will, but thine, be done." "Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven." He willed to do His Father's work. Thus He became the chief cornerstone in a world where the power and influence of redemption are at work.
His activity led to the highest and noblest life ever lived. Obedience on our part will lead us to strength, peace and acceptance with God. In this way we can truly glorify God and bear witness to His salvation.

PRAYER
O God, merciful in love and might, let Thy holy will become supreme in all our thoughts, words and deeds. Help us to walk with Thee in unity and peace, in faith and reverence. In the name of Christ who gave His life for us.—Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

A Civic Responsibility

* IN ANOTHER few days Election Day will be here and the people of Mason will be called upon to select a new set of councilmen. Home Economics in Business Offers Opportunity to Girls

Home economics in business is a field in which there is increasing opportunity for young women to open new frontiers, according to a new booklet published by the American Home Economics association. Purpose of the booklet is to tell high school seniors and college students about the possibilities for business home economists and how to prepare for positions in business home economics.

"The application of home economics training to the field of business is expanding constantly," the booklet states. "As women generally control more of the buying power of the country, business becomes more and more aware of the importance of woman consumers."

"The home economist in business performs a dual role: She interprets the woman consumer and her needs to her company; and she represents her company and its products to the woman consumer."

Different sections of the booklet give descriptions of jobs in these areas—advertising, consulting, equipment, foods, home service, journalism and editorial work, public relations, radio and television, restaurant and hotel management, textiles, apparel, and home planning and furnishing.

A good basic course in home economics is the best preparation for the business career in home economics, states the booklet. In addition, special courses in the major area of interest are valuable. Personal requirements include a good appearance, physical endurance, poise and ability to work under pressure, and a sense of responsibility.

The booklet was prepared by a special committee of the home economics in business department of the American Home Economics association under the chairmanship of Miss Mercedes A. Bates, advertising food consultant in Los Angeles. This department, which has a membership of 1710 business home economists, has as its chairman Miss Iris Davenport, editor of the women's department of Farm and Ranch-Southern Agriculture.

"Title of the booklet is 'Career Opportunities in Home Economics in Business.' It may be ordered from the American Home Economics association, 1600 Twentieth Street, N. W., Washington 9, D. C. Price of the 20-page, 2-color booklet is 35c.

"Be not deceived, God is not mocked,
for whatsoever a man soweth,
that shall he reap."

ATTEND CHURCH THIS SUNDAY

"Where He Leads Me . . ."

St. Matthew records the following statement of Jesus in Chapter 20:18-19: "We are going up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man will be delivered to the chief priests and scribes, and they will condemn him to death, and deliver him to the Gentiles to be mocked and scourged and crucified, and he will be raised on the third day."

Jesus was stating His own death warrant, and with a clear conception of His life mission, walked deliberately into a trap. I remember a comic strip character once saying that if he knew where he was going to die, he would never go near the place. Not so with Jesus. He demonstrated a faith which has characterized the Christian movement from then until now. The Christian label on a man sets him apart from the careless self-seeking crowd. As a follower of Jesus Christ, he will live by some very definite standards.

He knows where he is going. Throughout life's ups and downs, curves and corners, the ultimate goal is Christ-like personality. His vision of achievement ever before him, he rises from every fall, repents of every sin, and like the Master, steadfastly moves toward his destination.

In the second place, a true Christian recognizes only one Master. Jesus said, "I do always those things which are pleasing to my Father."

Conflicting loyalties will undermine the strongest character. A compromise with wrong sanctions it. Obedience to God's will and God's way is essential. "Where He leads me, I will follow."

A Christian knows that goodness is stronger than evil, love is stronger than hate, truth is stronger than lies, and that life can be lived beyond the reach of death. He does not fear the grave. Nor does he fear what evil men may do to him. Faith in the love and power of God overcomes the world.

Jesus faced the Cross with confidence and understanding. This was His highest hour. Normal human suffering lay ahead, but beyond it was a victory. His heart was with His friends for whom He was to die. His love for them directed every move. Looking back, we see the wisdom of His choice.

He lives! The Christian hope of immortality is here. He is still saying, "Because I live, you too shall live."

Story of Indian Wars Heads Fox Week

The week at the Fox theatre will open with "The Juggler," starring Kirk Douglas. An added feature of the Friday-Saturday program will be a full-length cartoon, "Johnny, The Giant Killer."

"The Juggler" is a Columbia Pictures tense saga of a man who tries to run away from himself. It features Kirk Douglas.

The picture marks the American debut of bronze-blond bombshell Milly Vitale, Italy's premiere movie charmer, who is being hailed as the greatest screen importation since Greta Garbo. Winner in a world-wide talent search for the role, Miss Vitale was picked on sight from only 3 minutes of film—the only footage of her available in Hollywood.

Importantly featured in the cast are Paul Stewart, who acted as fight manager for Kirk Douglas in "Champion," Joey Walsh, the child discovery of "Hans Christian Andersen," as Kirk's boy companion, and Oscar Kariwicz, New York stage star as Kirk's sympathetic friend.

For Kirk Douglas, the new picture brings opportunity for an intriguing change of characterization and a role of high dramatic impact. He is seen as a famous European juggler who has developed an obsessive fear of police. His neurotic behavior causes him to be challenged by a policeman and, after a frenzied battle, he flees believing he has killed his assailant. He leads the police, headed by Stewart, a breathless cross-country chase in the course of which he is sheltered by an attractive farm worker, played by Milly Vitale, finds romance, and, ultimately, the peace that is possible through self-understanding.

Jeff Chandler and Maureen O'Hara, co-starred with Suzan Ball in Universal-International's Technicolor production of "War Arrow," take time out for an embrace during the siege by the savage Kiowa Indians. One of the most amazing chapters in the history of frontier warfare, "War Arrow" features John McIntire, Charles Drake, Noah Beery and Dennis Weaver in the strong supporting cast. It will play at the Fox Sunday and Monday.

Jeff Chandler, who has been equally effective in Indian war paint or Cavalry blue, makes Major Howell Brady a near-fabulous Indian fighter. On assignment from Washington to mobilize the peaceful Seminoles, transplanted to Western Texas, to help put down a savage Kiowa uprising, Chandler and his two sergeants turn out a deadly guerrilla corps through a series of astounding maneuvers.

And how those maneuvers result in a showdown with the Kiowas provides some of the most electrifying battle scenes ever filmed—from tight ambush action to large-scale attacks and counter-attacks. Moreover, the romantic interest that grows between Jeff Chandler and his co-star Maureen O'Hara is vital in the development of the story. For the fiery redhead, who has never looked more enticing, carries the key to the action in the traitor's secret she hides. Charles Drake and Noah Beery, with many fine touches of comedy, add to an excellent gallery of personalities. "War Arrow," in short, shoots straight to the mark with sock entertainment. Also featured on the Sunday and Monday program is the Walt Disney academy award winner, "Alaskan Eskimo."

Permit Needed For Grass Fire

Anyone intending to burn dry grass or weeds, or brush, when the ground is not covered with snow, warned Conservation Officer Walter Mutchler, must first obtain a burning permit. The permits are available from local fire departments and from the county conservation officer at Mason. Mutchler resides at 937 S. Lansing street, Mason.

"The law," stated Mutchler, "requires all persons who set or have open fires for other than domestic purposes to get permits. The law also requires that such precautions be taken that the fire does not damage or endanger the property of another. Penalties run up to $100 in fines and not to exceed 90 days in jail, or both."

Obedience to the law will minimize the danger of little grass fires spreading into big ones, said the conservation officer. It will also save valuable soil and prevent the destruction of game cover and timber, he added.

"Here are some rules to follow," said the conservation officer. "Be careful of matches and cigarettes at all times. Don't set a fire, even with a permit, during periods of high wind or when grass and leaves are tinder-dry. Take necessary precautions to control your fire. If you have an unusual burning problem, consult your fire chief or the conservation officer before setting the fire."

Browns Visit British Embassy to See Son Receive Medal for Empire Service

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon J. Brown went to Washington to witness the awarding of a medal to their son Russell. The award was for outstanding service to the British empire. For 20 years Russell Brown was general manager of the Bahrain Petroleum Co. on the oil-rich island of Bahrain in the Persian Gulf. It is a British protectorate. Brown is now a vice-president of Caltex Oil Co., the parent company of the Bahrain Petroleum Co. His headquarters are in New York. His duties take him to all parts of the world. He returned from the Middle East and Europe a few days ago.

By Vernon J. Brown

I have something to write about. Therefore, as I promised, I shall attempt to tell my readers what I have in mind.

This is written on Sunday afternoon in the New York apartment hotel which is the present home address of our son, Russell, and his wife Joanne. We have just returned from a 3½-hour automobile trip about the city and the countryside in the upper Hudson river suburbs of this great city. We began with the United Nations building just a couple of blocks from the hotel door. We traversed the renovated East Side where fine modern apartments and spacious playgrounds have replaced the slums where the movie "The Dead End Kids" was filmed.

We followed East River to the Battery. We drove over the elevated highways along the Hudson, up and down Broadway and through the financial district. We saw the deserted piers where ships would be loading and unloading except for the longshoremen's strike. We passed along newspaper row where the Times, the Mirror and the News are edited and published. We threaded our way along Fifth Avenue and through Central Park where old mansions are giving way to towering apartments. We went as far up the Hudson as Yonkers and White Plains and then came back through the Bronx and past Welfare and Ward islands to our point of departure.

The day has been perfect for the last of March and by 2:30 we were heading toward home and meeting 3 and 4 lanes of traffic headed out of the city. We were glad to be coming in then, rather than in one of the thousands of autos which will be fender to fender and bumper to bumper this evening.

But what I meant when I said I had something to write about is our trip to Washington to be among the guests of the British embassy when Russell was invested with the insignia representing his elevation to be an officer of the Order of the British Empire. The occasion was one long to be remembered even though one was an outside spectator without a son involved.

In accordance with our invitation and accompanying instructions, we left our hotel in time to be at the embassy a quarter of an hour before the 4 o'clock ceremony. In our party were Russell's wife, his daughter, Joanne and her husband, Dr. Murray Klauber of Buffalo; and Russell's and Joanne's son, Russell, Jr., my wife and I.

The British embassy is a very large and imposing structure set in a typical English garden. It stands at the head of an avenue of embassies and consulates representing all of the governments of the world. Everything about this embassy and the nearby chancellery speaks of the might and glory of the British empire. The ceremony itself, while simple, was conducted with all the dignity and pomp of a coronation.

As one enters the great hall from which wide staircases reach the level of the state reception, and dining and ballroom floor, one is impressed with the atmosphere of royalty everywhere manifest. To the right and to the left are masterpiece portraits of former kings and queens of England. Included, of course, is the portrait of lovely Queen Elizabeth in all her royal splendor and array.

Greeting all guests as they arrived, Sir Roger Makins was most hospitable. Lady Makins arrived just before the ceremonies but remained to mingle with the guests during the serving of tea and cakes and sandwiches which followed. Both were on hand to say goodbye to each guest as the company passed down the grand staircase to depart.

There were 9 British citizens who were honored that afternoon. Citizens of the United States numbered 4—13 in all. Sir Roger was assisted by 4 of his embassy staff. One called out the name of the one being decorated and then read the citation. As this was being done another would pick up the insignia with ribbons attached and lay it on a silken pillow with embellishments of gold. The pillow bearer would then step over to Sir Roger and he in turn would lift the insignia from the pillow, attach it to the recipient, and then in all grace would come to strict military attention for a salute and handshake and friendly salutation.

The hall in which the ceremony was staged was evidently the grand ballroom. Huge crystal chandeliers hung from the ceilings, beautiful rugs were laid at intervals over the waxed and polished floors, and many fine paintings were lined along the side walls. Off this room is another equally rich in its appointments and probably designed to accommodate state dinners, frequently served in honor of visiting dignitaries.

For farm dwellers from Vevay, for even our son, a Mason high school graduate, and for his children, the setting, the ceremonies, the representation of the queen—all combined to make last Friday a special day for the Browns.

One thing more before I close. One thinks of New York as a great city of teeming millions, each out to get ahead of the other. This morning I went out with Russell to go to a nearby fruit and grocery store. On the way down in the elevator a woman with a spaniel dog entered. The dog was friendly and the woman was equally affable. When we entered the store, Tony, the proprietor, greeted Russell by name. He shook hands with me and everything was as cozy and friendly as it could have been in a store in Mason or Eden. I guess people are folks, no matter where they live.

Cadillac

"Dream Car" of Twenty-five Million!

You've heard and read a lot about various "dream cars" in recent months—but here's the "dream car" of them all!

Research among motorists would seem to indicate that literally tens of millions of people dream of owning this car—and would take steps to change their dreams into realities if they felt their economic situations justified them in doing so.

It is—of course—a Cadillac.

What can there be about a motor car to make it stand so clearly and so eloquently apart from all other products of its kind?

The reasons are not far to seek or difficult to evaluate. They are simply the fruition of a fifty-year policy of strictest adherence to the highest possible ideals in engineering, manufacturing and service.

Not once in all this time has Cadillac deviated from its policy of building as fine a motor car as it is practical to produce.

As a result, Cadillac has become an international symbol of all that is good and desirable in the automotive world—the very special favorite of the most discriminating motorists to be found anywhere.

Small wonder that so many millions who have never driven a Cadillac of have it so high on their dream list of wonderful things to own. The truth of its incomparable goodness is obvious to everyone.

The 1954 Cadillac is the greatest Cadillac of them all—more beautiful, more distinguished, and far finer in performance.

Come in and see it. Whether you expect to buy a Cadillac or not, you are entirely welcome to see and inspect the new Standard of the World.

"What a Life," the play presented by the junior class of Williamston high school, for the benefit of the local Kiwanis club, had 2 successful performances Friday and Saturday evenings. It was estimated the sale of tickets brought $300-$325 for the organization.

The play is a comedy built around the troubles of a certain student in Central high school, trouble with teachers, fellow students and with policemen.

The only mishap of the run was the sickness of Mary Kirkpatrick, who was to play the role of the mother, Kay Orsborn, the play's prompter, took over in the role.

Mrs. C. B. Smith left Saturday for Paducah, Kentucky, where she is spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander.

Book Talk

Hours open at Hall Memorial Library, Mason, are Monday through Saturday, 9:00 to 5:30, Tuesday and Friday noon, 11:30 to 1:00; Tuesday and Thursday evenings, 7:00 to 9:00; Saturdays 10:00 to 12:00 noon.

In the spring, there comes a renewed interest in nature and the general out-of-doors. You will be interested in some of the new books on nature that are now available through the Ingham county library. Hammond's GUIDE TO NATURE HOBBIES, by E. L. Jordan of Rutgers University, is especially good. Here you will find suggestions on collecting rocks, shells, plants and butterflies, instructions for constructing and managing aquariums and terrariums; advice on attracting birds and their identification; and viewpoints for nature and wildlife photography.

UNSEEN LIFE OF NEW YORK, by William Beebe, is a fascinating account of the observations of this well-known naturalist. Some of the life is too old to be seen, like the mammoth that long ago stumbled into a peat bog on Broadway; some is too young, as the eggs of insects and many birds which live in the city; some, like the bats, katydid, mosquitoes and opossums, prefer to roam only after dark; and those which are too familiar to be noticed, such as the sparrows and the cooches.

THE BEST OF TWO WORLDS, by Joseph Krutch, is a collection of interesting observations about the author's surroundings at his country home in Connecticut. Each chapter concerns "nature" but there are many, many different aspects— from the unreasoning of city-bred people at night in a lonely country house, to the intelligence tests given to animals, in order that some psychological theory may be proved. Included are accounts of the personalities and habits of this naturalist's cats, frogs, and other animals living near or with him.

LAND BIRDS OF AMERICA, by Robert Murphy and Dean Amadon, is a beautiful new book by these eminent ornithologists and curators of birds for the American Museum of Natural History. The book is illustrated with outstanding photographs of the birds, mostly in true-to-life color. Now that the birds are coming north again, you will want to see this book or one of the others on this subject available at the Ingham county library.

Pfc. Robert Howell of the army signal corps has written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Howell, that he is now stationed at an Army Micro-Wave School near Frankfurt, Germany. Mrs. Robert Howell lives in Lansing.

Funeral services for William S. Barrett, 84, Williamston's oldest merchant, were held at 2 p. m. Monday in the Goring Brothers funeral home with Rev. Harold T. Reese officiating.

Mr. Barrett operated the W. S. Barrett and Sons clothing store for 40 years before his death in St. Petersburg, Florida, March 23. He died of a heart attack.

He was also president of People's State bank, a member of the Baptist church and the church's Bible class. He held life memberships in Masonic lodge No. 153, Royal Arch Masons 117, and Royal Select Mason, and the Kiwanis club, of which he was a charter member. He was also a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Surviving are his son, Bernard, of Williamston, and a daughter, Dorothy T. Turnbull of Ontario, Canada; and 6 sisters, Mrs. Anna Skarrett of Lansing, Mrs. Maude Water of Williamston, Miss Sadie Barrett of Lansing, and Mrs. Mildred Oleott, Mrs. Nora Watkins and Mrs. Norris Davis of Perry.

Before coming to Williamston in 1913, Mr. Barrett operated general stores in Perry and Shattisburg. His family home was originally at Round lake, Clinton county.

Burial was in the family lot in Reed cemetery, Lansingburg. Pallbearers were Graham Jackson, Claude Gorsline, Roscoe Lease, Paul Brett, Harold Hess and David Beatty. In respect, Williamston business places were closed from 2 to 3 p. m. and People's State bank was closed all afternoon on Monday.

When we are thinking of the birds and other wildlife, our thoughts also turn to their ancestors, and you will find MAN, TIME AND FOSSILS, by Ruth Moore, to be a very readable story of evolution. The first part of the book deals with the growth of the theory and begins with Darwin, although Lamarck who offered the first logical modern theory of evolution is not neglected. In the second part, the author tells of the modern paleontologists and anthropologists who have dug up, studied and interpreted the fossils that record the evolution of man. Finally, in the third section there is something about the modern work and the revisions in the original theories of evolution, as new evidence has come to light.

AMERICA BEFORE MAN, by Elizabeth Baily, is an illuminating introduction to the prehistoric story of this continent, with its cycles of plant and animal life. The book, which is written in a very readable style, begins with the probable appearance of the land and the animals which were to be found in America many millions of years ago, and ends some 25,000 years ago when men first began to discover this continent.

Many other interesting new books on nature and evolution will be found in the Ingham county library. Besides these, the library is constantly adding other kinds. For purely recreational reading, the following new adult fiction is suggested this week:

Apple in a Pear Tree, by John Burtuss.

A Sunset Touch, by Howard Spring.

Except the Lord, by Joyce Cary.

The Whiteoak Brothers, by Mazon de la Roche.

The Good Spirit of Laurel Ridge, by Jesse Stuart.

Three at the Wedding, by Louis Grace Erdman.

Fire and the Hammer, by Shirley Barker.

White Orchid, by Henrietta Mason.

A vast rain-forest encircles the earth between the tropics, says the National Geographic Society. It extends across northern South America, central Africa, parts of India and the Malay peninsula, the East Indies and northern Australia. Half the continent of South America is covered by this forest belt.

Farmer Peck's Wife

Mrs. Peck attacks the cleaning.
A "back room" is a catch all.
Calm folks are nice to be with.

It surely seems good to feel like a human "being" once more! (That's what Susy used to think people meant when they said human "being.") This morning I got up with a desire to tackle the whole world . . . and to begin on this house. Oh, the deplorable condition of things around here.

I will have to keep my eyes glued to this typewriter or I won't be able to write this week. There are too many things that need attention around me. There are some vulnerable spots that show up very plainly when I let housekeeping slide. Today I intend to rectify the big and most evident ones. I don't know what yours are but a few of mine are: The top of the refrigerator as I'm too short to see up there and the back room through which everyone comes and which is the collecting place I ever saw for junk and miscellaneous. There ought to be a law against having one! I will never give my back room the honor of calling it a utility room. Until it is plastered, painted, has cupboards for the work clothes and overshoes, ceases to be a catch-all for the tools that stop there and get no further; until it has the nails removed upon which we hang "things" it will be a back room . . . and how I hate it. But such a place is a necessary evil, I guess.

The pictures appearing in farm magazines of all the efficient and attractive utility rooms get my approving eye. I have a scrapbook of them which would very nearly paper ours, and I may do just that. Oh, I could fix some cupboards and sort of improve on what it is now but I have other plans. I want the entire room built out wider which would mean quite a major construction job of new roof, foundation, plumbing, etc. I'm afraid a make-do arrangement would be right there for the rest of my life.

Right now I wash in the basement which is far from my ideal. It is very nice to have the mess out of the way but I'd prefer having it closer to the phone (ever notice how it always rings when you're down there?) and closer to the kitchen . . . and up. I also want the jars and canned goods in this room. This isn't a new fangled notion. As a little girl I hated those words, "Will you run down cellar and get a can of sauce for supper?" They have pictures of how many pails of water it takes for a household in a year. I've never seen a picture of how many times around the earth you go in going up and down stairs if the laundry, furnace and fruit and vegetables are there.

Well, I'm way off the story of what I intend to improve upon around the house today. There are the cold air registers, windows, plant shelves to wash and the saucers beneath, mirrors, shine every shoe, mend pa some overalls and clean and wax the kitchen and back-room floor. Pete just left for the barn and said, "Now work like a horse all day and see how fagged out you can be by tonight." He also mumbled something about spreading your days out so everything didn't come at once. That's just my trouble lately. By the time the washing, ironing, something to eat and chickens were tended to there didn't seem to be any time left.

I've been going to bed earlier and reading to the children more, helping them with their scrapbooks and letting the house go. It's a good arrangement of easy living and you can get by for a while, especially if you don't feel up to par but . . . what! Some morning you wake up, the house looks like a cyclone had struck it and you can't stand it another minute.

We've had more company lately than at any other comparable time, too. I've learned to keep my mouth shut about all the defects in my housekeeping because half the time I think folks turn and look at the mention of it. By dusting the desk, bookcases, television and high spots each morning it gets by. What a phrase! That's a far cry from my first year as a bride when I went through the house like a vulture and nabbed any spot or blemish that dared to invade the premises.

Senate Labor Committee May Wreck Taft-Hartley

By Walter Chamblin, Jr.

The senate labor committee is on the verge of wrecking Taft-Hartley.

It has approved on tentative votes . . . by the overwhelming majority of 12 to 1 . . . amendments which go far beyond anything recommended by President Eisenhower and which would destroy the basic principles of the act.

The revisions which the committee proposes would—

Drastically limit employer's freedom of speech. The committee has turned a deaf ear to Eisenhower's concept that . . . "The right to free speech is fundamental." Instead, the committee proposes to return to the doctrine that the National Labor Relations board could set aside elections lost by unions if the board does not like the "atmosphere" of an employer's speech.

The labor committee now proposes to return to the pre-Taft-Hartley era and permit the board to consider an employer's "course of conduct." This would enable the board to pass judgment on an employer's conduct on the basis of his past conduct.

Further, the senate labor committee has before it a proposal . . . to be voted upon shortly . . . which would legalize what is known as the "Bonwit Teller" plan . . . which would require an employer to provide a union with the same time that he (the employer) used in addressing his employees.

This question of the freedom of speech is a basic American principle. It is a guarantee placed in the constitution and many Republicans and Southern Democratic senators are surprised that senators of the labor committee are talking of returning to the Wagner Act days when the labor law was one-sided in favor of the big union bosses.

It is the opinion of a number at the capitol that in this case the big union bosses want the law revised so as to help the CIO with what it calls Operation Dixie—which is the up-to-the-present unsuccessful effort to organize unions in the South.

Other amendments tentatively approved by the senate labor committee are designed to give the big union bosses more control over the individual rather than give the individual more freedom of personal action. One amendment, still to be acted upon, would go so far as to try to make federal labor law supersede state "right-to-work" laws that have been adopted in 14 states.

The present attitude of the senate committee has astounded a number of its colleagues. The off-the-record observation is that the committee definitely is suffering from the lack of leadership and sound judgment displayed by the late Senator Taft of Ohio, who retained membership on the committee even after he became senate majority leader.

In sharp contrast to the nervousness of the Republicans on the senate committee is the action of the house Republicans in rallying as a party to support President Eisenhower in his opposition to an increase of $100 in the personal income tax exemption. This increase was proposed by Democrats for political purposes to embarrass the Republicans in the coming November elections.

For a while many Republicans wavered before the Democratic assault which included charges that . . . It was a rich man's tax reduction bill . . . It revived the old Republican "Trickle Down" theory . . . and "The Little Man" was neglected. But Republican chieftains . . . headed by their house majority leader, Charles A. Halleck, slowly beat down the Democratic arguments by developing—

That the total tax reduction either already enacted or on its way through congress gave to individuals a total of $3.778 billion which included an across-the-board cut of 10 per cent for everybody . . . That the $912 million cut in excise tax rates applied to the individual . . . for a total of $4.690 billion . . . compared with a reduction of $2.619 billion for business . . . also that if there ever had been a "Trickle Down" theory it was abolished by the income tax amendment . . . and that "The Little Man" received many direct benefits which the Democrats would find out about if they read the bill.

The Republican house victory was more than a tax-victory. It boosted the morale of house Republicans . . . gave the party a cohesion which has been lacking . . . was a much needed tonic for the whole Eisenhower administration . . . and stimulated senate Republicans to organize better to defend the tax bill in that chamber where it will be heatedly attacked by Democrats again.

Dansville Brotherhood Plans Meeting

Members of the Dansville Brotherhood are making special plans for their meeting next Thursday night, April 8. It will be Ladies Night, with an exceptional program planned, announced Bert Elford, the secretary.

The meeting will be held at the town hall in Dansville. The dinner will be served at 7:30. Those who attend are to take their own dishes and a dish of food to pass. Swiss steak will be served.

Clinton V. Ballard of the Michigan State college extension staff will be the toastmaster and Durward B. Varner, head of the Michigan State college extension staff will be the principal speaker.

One of the nation's youngest extension directors, Varner, since September, 1952, has been head of the Michigan cooperative extension service.

Administrator of the federal-state program in agricultural and home economics extension teaching all over Michigan, he directs the college staff of subject-matter specialists and the county extension staffs. These include county agricultural agents, 4-H club agents and home demonstration agents.

Born January 1, 1917, in Cottonwood, Texas, Varner has the distinction of being one of the few extension directors to grow up with extension work. Active in 4-H club work as a youth, he graduated in agricultural economics from the Agricultural and Mechanical college of Texas, in 1940.

He worked with the Federal Land Bank of Houston in an executive training position until called to army duty in August, 1941. Upon release from active duty, he became assistant dean of students at his alma mater in 1945.

Entering the University of Chicago in June, 1946, as a graduate student, he did research in a program co-sponsored by the U. S. army quartermaster general and the university. He received a degree of master of science in agricultural economics there in 1949 and returned there later to complete his work on a doctorate degree.

An extension specialist in agricultural economics at Michigan State college from 1949 to 1952, Varner gained nation-wide attention through his work on public policy meetings throughout Michigan. Besides speaking to more than 60,000 people, he helped develop the public policy program bringing important national and international issues before both rural and urban residents.

Since becoming director, he has revamped the county service in many areas, has laid new stress on value of marketing education, and has seen Michigan embark on some extension pioneering. This includes a program in cooperation with the Kellogg Foundation and local groups to set up an intensive system of extension aid and advice. In 5 areas, there now are township, or associate, county agricultural agents working with smaller groups than possible for the regular county agents.

Easily Answered

Most people, when the time comes to call a funeral director, are very concerned over the matter of price; they wonder, to put it bluntly, how much they will have to pay. At our establishment there is an easy answer; the family pay no more than they wish; the price is determined by the family when the casket selection is made. Each casket is plainly marked with the price of the complete service.

Scheduled for publication by August of this year is a 15- to 40-page illustrated brochure written by F. Clever Bald, assistant director of the Michigan historical collections and lecturer in history. This will contain some 10,000 words of text and several pictures and maps describing the early history of the area around Sault Ste. Marie, the construction of the locks, and their economic importance to the United States.

University President Harlan Hatcher will write the foreword. The audio-visual education center, under the direction of Lerner, is already at work preparing a motion picture which will use as its theme the "world's greatest inland waterway," the Great Lakes. The U. S. coast guard and the army's corps of engineers are cooperating in the filming of the scenes involving the locks. The movie is scheduled for completion by December, so that it will be available for showing early in the centennial year of 1955.

At least 13, and possibly 14, radio shows are being prepared by William Bender of the university's broadcasting service for use in the "Radio Classroom" series beginning in January. The programs will be put on tape for rebroadcast over radio stations throughout the state. While aimed particularly at school classrooms, these radio programs would be of interest to the entire population of the state.

During the spring of 1955, the locks and their importance to Michigan also will be highlighted in the television programs presented by the university on Sunday afternoons over WVV-TV, Detroit. Seven or 8 half-hour shows are planned by Garnet Garrison, director of television, in which not only the Soo area but also the northern half of the Lower Peninsula and the remainder of the Upper Peninsula will be featured.

In addition, an exhibit featuring the work of the university's department of marine engineering and naval architecture, which has made important contributions to the hull designs and propulsion systems of the big freighters that ply the Great Lakes, will be placed on display in the "Vacationland," a state ferry which links the two peninsulas of Michigan. The exhibit will be prepared by Prof. Louis A. Baier, department chairman.

Other members of the committee, besides those already mentioned, are Profs. Kenneth McMurry and Charles M. Davis of the department of geography. In addition to the information about the geographical importance of the locks which they have contributed to the committee, Professor Davis also has been helpful in arranging for the cooperation of the U. S. coast guard, the army engineers and the air force.

The rest of the committee includes Associate Prof. John C. Kohl, director of the transportation institute; Prof. Ivan H. Walton of the engineering college's department of English, who is an authority on the songs which have been sung by sailors of the lakes; Michael Church of the extension service; Arthur L. Brandon, director of university relations; and Cleland B. Wyllie, editor of the information and news service.

Legislature Considers Money for State Parks

Michigan's rapidly deteriorating state parks may undergo their greatest face-lifting since the start of World War II this year.

If everything goes well, the legislature is expected to appropriate about $300,000 in capital improvements for recreational projects before it goes home April 9.

That's about 3 times as much as the lawmakers have been setting aside for this vital work in recent years.

During the last 10 years, the conservation department has spent about $3,000,000 on state parks or an average of $300,000 a year.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams recommended appropriation of $1,000,000 for parks this year. He'll be happy if they get $300,000.

State park enthusiasts would also be happy with the big appropriation. They are disappointed that the legislature has not taken any action on the lucrative Nakkula state park bill. Sponsored by Rep. Walter G. Nakkula (R-Gladwin), the bill would do this:

All revenue received by the state from sale or lease of minerals on state-owned land would be earmarked for capital improvements of state parks.

The conservation department never knows how much it will get from year to year for parks. This year the appropriation will be high. Next year it may be cut back to $300,000 or less.

Under the Nakkula bill, the conservation department could count on receiving about $1,000,000 a year for state park improvements. That's how much the general fund now gets from mineral rights.

Reported out favorably by the house conservation committee the bill was then referred to the ways and means committee.

It will probably die there. Members of the committee say it will be a rather miracle if the bill comes out at this late date.

This year's big appropriation will give the conservation department an opportunity to inaugurate its 5-year capital outlay program for parks.

It calls for improvements totaling $1,037,500 during the 1954-55 fiscal year. Improvements totaling $8,787,000 have been budgeted for the next five years.

But the long-range program can fall flat on its face next year if the legislature reduces appropriations for parks. The only way the program can be carried out is with a fixed amount of money available each year.

"We have fared reasonably well during the past few years, but we are not keeping up with the demands for outdoor recreation for people of our state," says Arthur C. Elmer, chief of the conservation department's parks and recreation division.

"What we need more than anything else is a definite and continuing source of income for park development, maintenance and operation."

If it dies, the Nakkula bill probably will be introduced again next year. Its chances of becoming law should be much better then because lawmakers will have had a full year to think over the idea.

At first, several ways and means committee members felt the bill would set up another restricted fund. But by the time their fears were soothed, it was late in the session.

Michigan has one of the finest systems of public parks in the country. But in order to maintain its leadership, it must continue to improve the present parks and add new recreation areas south of the Muskegon-Bay City line. Ever expanding population in this part of the state creates continuously growing needs.

More than 14 million persons visited state parks during 1953, according to official figures. Park attendance is expected to reach the 20,000,000 mark by 1960.

"Good, clean outdoor recreation areas are just as important today as water, sewage, and housing," says Elmer.

"There is nothing wrong with Michigan's park system that wise financing by the legislature can't cure."

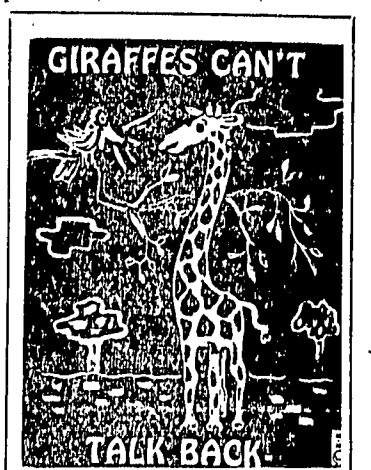

Charges by Auditor General John B. Martin, Jr., that conservation books are kept with "an amazing lack of accounting" will probably not ease the way for the department to get more money. Mr. Martin did not hint that there were "irregularities" and he did state that conservation officials had responded to his suggestions for his improvement.

Conservation Director Gerald E. Eddy realizes that he must have a clean bill of financial health to remain in the line of "hopefuls" for bigger appropriations. He can be expected to put his house in order at the earliest possible moment.

Carrying the Mail

By using transportation facilities now available, the mail service between Mason, Leslie and Stockbridge could be much improved.

Mason has comparatively good service, being on the end of the Saginaw-Mason run. Mail comes from the north in the early morning and again at noon, and from the south at night. But over at Leslie the mail truck makes just one trip each way a day. Stockbridge is served out of Jackson. Stockbridge mail sent to Mason and Lansing must first go to Jackson and then wait for the truck or a night mail train to Lansing.

Buses run regularly between Lansing and Ann Arbor by way of Stockbridge, and they run regularly between Lansing and Jackson, by way of Leslie. Those buses go right past the Mason postoffice. A locked pouch service, for first class mail, at least, would keep mail on the move. A letter mailed from Mason to Stockbridge or from Mason to Leslie, or from Stockbridge or Leslie to Mason would reach its destination the same day, as it would if a man took it in his hand and walked between the towns.

There's an improvement which could well be made at Mason. The north-bound mail truck now leaves at 5 in the afternoon. Letters dropped after 5 lie in the postoffice until the next noon. They don't get to Lansing, if that is the destination, until too late for afternoon delivery the next day.

This locked-pouch service by scheduled bus would greatly improve mail deliveries between Mason, Leslie and Stockbridge. It shouldn't cost the postoffice department much. Whatever the cost, the value of the speedier deliveries should be worth it.

Another improvement in mail service would not cost anyone anything. That's early mailing on the part of the public. Here in Mason, especially, the bulk of the business mail going out gets to the postoffice late in the afternoon. Business firms and public offices would help improve the mail service if out-going mail were taken to the postoffice throughout the day, in the forenoon and early afternoon. Then there wouldn't be the last-minute rush in the dispatch of mail. The mail truck wouldn't run light at noon and be loaded down at night. Our co-operation at Mason would result in better service in the Lansing terminal and all along the line.

With public cooperation, there can be better mail service everywhere and without running up the costs. Our co-operation could bring better service at less cost.

The Mason postal staff and the railway mail service are seeking ways and means to expedite the mail. Everyone who mails a letter or parcel can help improve that service, and if all of us help a little the men and women who actually handle and carry the mail will be helped a lot.

The One in 43

Back in Biblical days the lost sheep ratio was one to 99. Now it is one to 42. And that ratio is only in the lamb flock—not the old ewes and rams.

Yes, one out of every 43 children, a total of 1,000,000, has a police record. Our prisons are overcrowded with juveniles. The growth of prison population is often blamed on the general increase in population. But there is little connection. In the past 25 years the population of state and federal penitentiaries has increased nearly four times as fast as our national population. The prison population in those 25 years has increased by 126%, and most of the new inmates are just out of their teens, according to a News-Week survey.

The record of juvenile crime is even more appalling when the matter of probation is considered. The courts are a lot more lenient than they were 25 years ago. Many thousands of first offenders, even second-offenders, are on probation and not in prison.

Schools or recreational centers are not the answers to juvenile crime. The responsibility rests first with the parents, next with the churches.

Rural and small town parents have no reason to be smug over the situation. The rate of juvenile crime seems to run about the same—city or country.

Maybe all of us all ought to stop worrying a little about what goes on behind the Iron Curtain and pay more attention to what is going on right before our eyes. One out of the 43 may be right in our neighborhood. It could be in our own family. Juvenile crime isn't just a statistic. It is a boy or girl right here at home.

Better Milk Customers

In the United States the average per capita consumption of fluid milk and cream is 352 lb. In Akron, Ohio, the per capita consumption of fluid milk and cream is 536 lb, or 184 lb per person more than the U. S. average.

Had the rest of the nation used as much milk per person last year as Akron people did there would have been a shortage of 15 billion pounds. There would have been no dairy surplus to worry producers. There would have been no drain upon the public purse for support prices.

Why is the situation different at Akron than in other sections of the United States?

The difference is in the manner of distribution. In Akron much of the milk is sold in gallon jugs and through dairy stores, not put up in expensive quart bottles, not peddled around a quart or two in a place.

Our milk distribution system is a carry-over from the horse and buggy days, when there was no refrigeration. It is expensive for consumers, for distributors and for producers. Consumers have to pay for delivery whether they want it or not. Big city milk delivermen usually make more out of a quart than the dairymen who own the producing herds.

According to available figures, the savings to Akron milk consumers run to 30 and 40% of the average U. S. retail delivered price. Dairymen who supply the milk get as much in Akron as they do anywhere else. The saving comes in distribution. By getting the benefit of the savings in distribution, consumers use more milk and cream—184 lb per person more than the national average.

Dairymen who are worried over the present surplus should begin to ask questions. They should ask officers and delegates of Milk Producer locals, they should ask Michigan Milk Producers officials and federal marketing authorities why the Akron plan can not be given a fair trial in Michigan cities. And, if there is no reason why the plan can not be tried, why the delay in launching such a trial?

Down By the SYCAMORE

Business is not the hard-hearted, greedy grab for money that many people believe, or claim, it is.

After 7 Mason business men settled their own income taxes for 1953 they clipped in, with the help of the Kiwanis club, to pay a Mason man's 1952 bill for $83. Had the back tax not been paid the government collecting officer would have had to have filed a lien against the delinquent's home.

The man delinquent in his taxes was unaware of his plight until the collector showed up just before Christmas. He (the Mason man) had been doing his best to keep himself in food, and his hospital bills paid. Then came the collector with a lien.

Amos B. Lundstrom was the man with the document, and if anyone had to serve such a paper on me I'd prefer that it be Lundstrom. He felt bad over the situation. He realized the injustice of the law in such a circumstance. But he had his duty to do. He can't pick and choose which warrants he will serve and which he will file in the wastebasket. He came to Mason to collect or serve the paper.

He didn't do either, though, until the case was reviewed and time given for passing the hat. Six of the 7 personal contributors were Art Culham, Walter Peters, Leo Harrison, Ed Ware, Gib Howlett and Leslie Morse. No. 7 owes so much to other people he insisted that his name not be used. The total from the 7 amounted to $60. With $83 needed, an appeal was made to the Mason Kiwanis club for the $23. The club came through, and on Tuesday Collector Lundstrom came to Mason to pick up the $83 instead of the pound of flesh.

So you see, there are 7 Mason merchants and the Kiwanis club who all stopped beside the road to aid the man set upon by Washington spenders.

Harry Brown of Aurelius is another man who goes out of his way to do a good turn. As usual he wintered in Arizona. And as usual his stay there was made more pleasant by the weekly arrival of the Ingham County News. On his return he ran off a generous supply of maple syrup and brought it in to show his appreciation for sending his paper to him. Thanks, Harry, and I used mine with fritters.

It had been years since I had had fritters with new syrup. My brother Hugh reported the same lack of fritters. So we both issued orders. I had my fritters Wednesday night. Hugh left home for a week and anticipates a platter of fritters upon his arrival home Friday night.

Wilson Davis carries the mail to Clarence Whipp on R. 3 when both men are home. On Saturday, March 20, Mr. and Mrs. Davis called on the Whipp at Fort Myers, Florida. The Whipp said they intended to pull out for home Monday morning. The Davises did, too, but they didn't see the Whipp enroute, although both couples spent Wednesday night at Elizabethtown, Tenn., and both left there early Thursday morning. The Davises reached home O. K. Thursday night, only to learn that Mrs. Whipp lost her life in an accident and her husband was injured outside Elizabethtown Thursday morning.

R. B. Childs of Leslie sandwiched in several trips to Florida between his farm chores during the winter. He hauled apples down and oranges and grapefruit back. He handled 4,000 cases of oranges and grapefruit, selling them all, he said, through Ingham County News want ads.

Joseph E. Maddy, director of the National Music Camp at Interlochen, is protesting the plan of the air force to establish a jet base nearby. He claims the jets will disturb the musicians. The jet base should be moved to the shores of Pleasant lake where outboards have already cracked the sonic barrier.

A vacation shouldn't mean doing nothing, but doing something different, maybe just occupying different quarters for a week and keeping on the same job. I have had an enjoyable week by moving to a farm east of town to do chores for a man and wife who went East. He said if I would feed his cattle and chickens I could have all I wanted to eat out of his freezer. His cattle and chickens never fed better. Neither did my family, and all of us had as much fun as though we had traveled hundreds of miles.

The suspected bigamist pictured behind the bars in last week's Ingham County News went free. The woman who first complained decided he wasn't worth fighting either for or against in court.

The Good Old Days

One Year Ago

Mason merchants have agreed to keep their stores open Friday nights.

Three of the 7 occupants of 2 cars lost their lives in a crash near Leslie at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. Instantly killed were Leo Potter, 47, Jackson. Dead upon arrival at Foote hospital, was Thomas Leinhardt, 17, Leslie. Lee Stump, 34, Jackson, died of injuries at the hospital Sunday night.

The navy has abandoned search for the PBM Mariner, missing in the Caribbean near Puerto Rico since Sunday. Donald J. Eames, 21, of Okemos was a member of the crew.

Raymond H. McLean, Rev. Raymond L. Norton, Walter E. Zimmer, Al Rice, Harold Bell, Wilfred L. Jewett, Mrs. Robert Leonard, Mrs. William E. Clark and Rex Stribley are the directors of the group organized in behalf of a community swimming pool.

10 Years Ago—1944

Supervisor Claude D. Young of Leslie died March 29.

Resplendent in their flashy new uniforms of red and blue, the Mason school bandmen, directed by Marvin Rice, are rehearsing for their spring concert scheduled for April 4.

City councilmen at a special session held Monday night changed their minds about sickling to Eastern Standard time. Saturday night, April 1, the clocks will be set ahead another hour to war time.

Mrs. W. G. Meier has been named chairman of Mason's victory garden committee. The committee hopes to have every family out working in a garden this summer.

Faulty wiring resulted in the electrocution of 3 registered Holsteins and a Guernsey cow at the Harkness & Son farm on College road. A milking machine short-circuited and charged the stanchions.

C. Ross Hilliard has resigned as a member of the rationing board. It calls for more work than he is able to do without neglecting his duties as county clerk, he declared.

20 Years Ago—1934

Governor William A. Comstock has appointed Joseph Dunnebacke to serve on the county relief commission. Dunnebacke, a Lansing lawyer, will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Earl W. Goodnow, Lansing banker. The other 2 members are Prof. C. R. Hoffer of M. S. C., the chairman, and A. B. Ball, Mason.

Alfred Allen has been elected master of County Seat Grange at Mason. Other officers are Stanley Holmes, overseer; Lyman Freshour, secretary; Mrs. Stanley Holmes, lecturer; Amos McCullough, steward; Mrs. Elsworth Brown, assistant steward; Mrs. John Eames, chaplain; L. E. Bartlett, treasurer; Samuel Tomlinson, gatekeeper; Mrs. Norman Dart, Ceres; Mrs. Lyman Freshour, Flora; and Mrs. Floyd Launstein, Pomona.

C. C. Croy and Lee Bates of Lansing have bought a tract of land from B. E. Webb of Aurelius and intend to raise peppermint.

For reducing milk production,

Michigan dairymen are going to receive federal benefit payments. They'll get 44c per lb of butterfat on the number of pounds reduced below base production.

The winter's heaviest snow, 14 inches, fell March 27. Many roads are still blocked with drifts 3 feet deep. On March 28 the mercury dropped to 15 degrees below zero, the coldest March reading in 50 years.

In Ingham county 1,490 men and women will lose their CWA jobs this week. A thousand of them will be hired by a new federal works agency.

30 Years Ago—1924

Evangelist L. A. Meade is filling the Methodist church every night. Rev. Henry Candler of the Methodists made arrangements for the community revival.

Mason basketball girls have elected Dorothy Dart their captain for next year.

Tuesday the A. & P. moved to the next store west on Maple street. John Samann's Sons will occupy the vacated building with a clothing store.

On precinct of Mill street residents who resent having their mail sent to such a phlebotomy sounding address, the city council changed the name to Sycamore.

Major E. T. Rich, state sanitary engineer, appeared before a public meeting Tuesday night to explain why Mason must have a sewage disposal plant and to discuss how to get one and how to operate it. The Kiwanis club sponsored the public meeting.

50 Years Ago—1904

All Republican candidates for city office have signed a paper to refrain from the use of money or anything else of value in obtaining votes on election day. Democratic candidates have refused to sign.

Two suspects have been arrested for the theft of 2 hams and $5 in money from the Banghart & Critchett meat market Sunday night.

The Sycamore is the highest it has ever been. Last Friday morning water poured over the Elm street bridge. The floor underneath both south abutments at the Ash street bridge. The new Maple street bridge is undamaged but the neighborhood west of it was flooded. Many rods of railroad track were washed away north of town. There were no trains, and no delivery of mail and daily newspapers from last Thursday until the following Monday.

Farm Production Continues High

By Carl Collin

It looks like farmers will increase their laying flocks of chickens this year in spite of the fact that egg prices are likely to continue under a year ago.

In January and February, commercial hatchery output was up 11% over the same period a year ago. The March hatch should be a big one, too. The number of eggs in incubators on March 1 was 10% above a year ago.

Breaking down the purpose for which the baby chicks would be used shows that the number of chicks for flock replacement was up 18%. For broiler production they were 8% ahead of 1953. Those are rather big increases.

In spite of the warning that the secretary of agriculture directed to turkey growers about cutting down their output, it looks like there may be a big jump in turkey production. Commercial production of heavy breed turkeys during the first 2 months of 1954 jumped 19% over last year; the number of light breed poultry skyrocketed 62%.

Another farm production jump this year will be in hogs. Spring farrowing in 6 major corn-growing states (Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Wisconsin and Minnesota) is up 9% from last year. Last December USDA surveys showed total output of spring pigs this year would be up only 6%. Incidentally, the 6 states mentioned raise about 57% of all hogs. However, some livestock people think the fringe areas will boost spring pig output even more than the main corn-hog area. Reasoning behind this is that producers in the major states are running about at capacity anyway. But farmers outside the area are in a position to up their output more. With the high corn-hog feed ratio we've had for the past 2 months there certainly is plenty of incentive for a boost in porker numbers.

There's been some relief in the southwest drought areas. A lot more moisture is needed soon. Apparently the seriousness of the drought isn't realized outside the disaster area. USDA has officially designated all or part of 20 states as drought disaster areas. Actually the drought condition extends from Colorado to Pennsylvania and from South Dakota to the Gulf.

If the drought continues, grain prices will stay high. In the spring and summer, supplies of so-called "free" grains will get tight. Then prices have to go up if stored stocks are to be attracted from under CCC loans.

Another factor to keep in mind if the drought continues is that range cattle might be forced on the market in large numbers. Should this happen, beef prices would certainly weaken. That would have an effect upon hog prices. So continued dry weather could upset a lot of calculations on cattle and hog prices this summer and fall.

Scientists at Kansas State college have worked out a high-powered listening device so they can hear chewing insects inside kernels of wheat and other grains. So far they've discovered 2 kinds of sounds. A low-frequency noise is caused by the movement of larvae and pupae inside the kernels; a high-frequency sound is believed to be caused by the insects chewing. Engineers hope they can perfect a technique that will make possible quick determination of infestations in large quantities of stored grain.

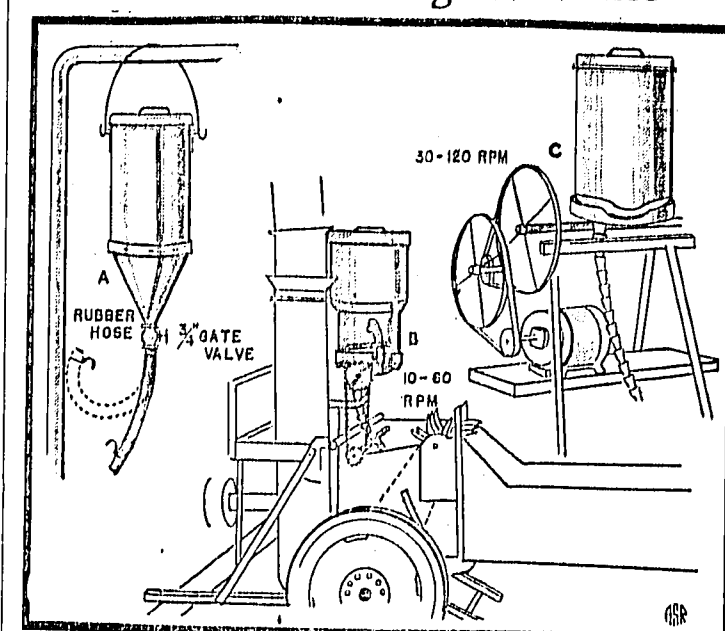

Farmers aren't going to follow corn acreage allotments very closely, according to their intentions March 1. A USDA report says that nationally the corn acreage this year will be off only four-tenths of 1% from a year ago. The national corn acreage allotment asked for a cut of 12% in this year's corn acreage.

Wheat growers intend to stick closer to their allotments. According to their intentions in early March, they would over-plant only 2%.

It appears that there will be a big boost on soybean acreage this year. That's not surprising, considering current prices and the fact that we have corn acreage allotments. The outlook is for about 2,000,000 acres of soybeans more than in 1953.

Speaking of bugs: At least 100,000,000 acres of U. S. soils are currently devoted to feeding insect populations. . . . Insects were as numerous 150,000,000 years ago as they are today. . . . There may be more than 2,000,000 different kinds of insects. . . . Insects inhabited the earth more than 250,000,000 years ago. . . . Most of the important insect pests in the U. S. came from other parts of the world. . . . Insects have as many as 4,000 different kinds of muscles; man has less than 500. . . . One pair of house flies and their progeny, if

For A Grass Silage 'Insurance'

Farmers planning to preserve grass silage with sodium meta-bisulfite this year will find a variety of means available for efficiently and economically using this low-cost "insurance" in putting up their winter's feed.

If the volume of the crop being put up does not warrant investment in one of the several available commercial models, efficient applicators can be rigged up from parts probably already on most farms.

Sketches above show three types of applicators. The simple and inexpensive gravity feed (A) can be used for small quantities of material.

The method of preserving grass silage with sodium meta-bisulfite has been given a boost by the U.S.D.A., and by state agricultural extension services in more than 12 states, including all of the major grass silage areas.

Much of the test work at various state locations has been carried out with supplies of the white powdery chemical given by Monsanto Chemical Company, St. Louis, long-time manufacturer of sodium meta-bisulfite. The chemical has been used in industry for many years.

Although most of the extension services agree that grass silage all survived, could produce 191 quintillion youngsters in a single season. These would weigh 9.5 trillion tons, and make a pile 110.5 quadrillion cubic feet in area. Bugs!

Malting Barley Is Recommended For Extra Acres

Michigan farmers who are worrying about what to do with extra wheat or corn acreage might profit by producing malting barley on a portion of that land.

That's a suggestion from Leyton V. Nelson, extension farm crops specialist at Michigan State college. During the last 10 years, he points out, malting barley has brought a substantial premium over feed barley. And there is a market for 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 bushels of malting barley—a market now supplied largely by Canadian and Dakota barley.

Nelson has these suggestions for farmers interested in producing malting barley: Select an acceptable variety—either Kindred or Montcalm. They will yield about as well as Moore, a variety malsters won't accept. The county agricultural agent or local seed dealer will know about supplies. Kindred grain is white, while Montcalm grain has a blue layer on the seed immediately beneath the hull.

Use good seed. Certified seed is preferable in order to avoid varietal mixtures.

Plant early in good barley soil. Use enough commercial fertilizer. Windrow to reduce losses from lodging and combine from the windrow. Adjust the combine to prevent skinned and broken kernels because damaged grain sells at a discount.

Plan to store the crop and store it dry to maintain high quality. Malsters usually do not have storage facilities at harvest time. Arrange early with the local elevator to market the crop.

Baker Holstein Makes 5th Test

Belle-Grant Rex Helen, registered Holstein owned by Kenneth Baker, has completed her fifth lactation period in the Ingham-South Dairy Herd Improvement association. She produced 15,500 lb of milk and 601 lb of butterfat while on test. Butterfat content average 3.9%. Belle-Grant was 6 years and 7 months when she began her testing period.

In 5 lactations she has produced 60,000 lb of milk and 2,349 lb of fat. In her fourth lactation period she produced 12,070 lb of milk and 518 lb of fat on 4.3% test.

Indonesia leads the world in coconut production, says the National Geographic Society.

Bailey Warns To Watch for Lamb Stiffness

Ingham county sheep raisers should be on the lookout for stiff lamb disease—a malady that causes heavy losses in some flocks before the trouble is recognized.

That's a suggestion from Dick Bailey, county agricultural agent. Caused by a lack of Vitamin E, the symptoms are lameness or stiffness in one or more legs, the back or the entire body. Death usually results from starvation or possibly from a paralysis of the heart or lungs, Bailey says.

Graydon Blank, extension animal husbandman at Michigan State college recommends force-feeding one or two 100 milligram-size Vitamin E capsules immediately to lambs at the first sign of trouble. Then one capsule should be fed each day until the lamb recovers.

Michigan State college research workers found, back in 1951, that the Vitamin E capsules—the same as sold by drug stores for human use—will take care of the stiff lamb disease.

He says the ewe and affected lamb should be placed in a small pen to prevent excessive exercise and to be sure the lamb nurses. Prevention is not as sure as the treatment, but flock owners report feeding some wheat in the grain ration for ewes before lambing. They have had no trouble with lamb disease. From one-quarter to one-half of the grain ration can be made up of wheat. And, Blank adds, encouraging lambs to eat from a creep as soon as possible and including one-third wheat in the creep ration also serves to prevent trouble. Other flock owners are giving their lambs a Vitamin E capsule as a preventative and report favorable results. The capsule is force-fed when the lambs are only a few days old.

They are of great assistance to the farmer who needs special financing in acquiring extra farm storage Benson declared.

The eligibility requirements with respect to quality and storage for the resale program will be the same as for the regular 1953 loan program.

Farmers who can resell their grain, or convert purchase agreements into "resale" loans, should make application to their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee during the month before the 1953 crop maturity date.

CAR FINANCING AND INSURANCE RATES ARE NOT STANDARD

Investigate before you buy and SAVE!

Many people pay too much for financing and insurance service when buying an automobile. They take it for granted the rates quoted them are standard or the lowest available when quite often they are not. They do not figure out the TOTAL cost before they buy—as they should.

Under the State Farm Bank Plan—4 items are clearly listed. You know: (1) Exactly what you pay. (2) Exactly what you get.

"I knew about the State Farm Bank Plan so before I bought my 1950 car I saw a State Farm agent. He saved me $122.22 on financing and insurance costs through the Bank Plan, as compared with a rate quoted me elsewhere." See your State Farm agent BEFORE you buy that car! (One of many actual cases).

USDA Announces Reseal Plan For 5 Crops

The U. S. department of agriculture has outlined details of a special "reseal" program for 1953-crop loan stocks, according to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

Under this program, farm-stored stocks of 5 commodities (corn, wheat, oats, barley and rye) can be rescaled for another program year, after the maturity of the original 1953-crop loans. Farmers will also be able to convert purchase agreements, now held in farm storage, into price support loans for the extended period.

Farmers who rescale their 1953-crop price support stocks for the extended loan period will hold the grain on the farm instead of delivering it to the Commodity Credit Corporation at the end of the original loan period, Benson declared. This will help solve difficult problems in storing the record supplies of grain expected this year, he explained.

Announcement of the program is being made early in order to give farmers time to plan and construct any additional farm storage facilities needed to make it possible for them to rescale 1953-crop price support stocks and still have space to handle their 1954-crops in an orderly fashion. To be eligible for the price support loans, grain and related commodities must be housed in satisfactory storage.

A storage-payment in line with the 1954 Uniform Grain Storage Agreement rates will be paid farmers who rescale their 1953-crop loan stocks. These rates will be announced in the near future, Benson pointed out.

Farmers who hold their grain until the maturity date for the rescaled 1953-crop grain will receive a full storage payment for the entire period. If a farmer redeems his loan prior to maturity, he will receive a storage payment for the period beginning 60 days after the maturity of the regular 1953-crop support program and continuing through the time he keeps the commodity in storage as loan security. This storage payment will be at a daily rate equal to the full storage rate divided by the number of days between 60 days after the 1953 maturity date and the 1954 maturity date, the secretary said.

The interest rate for the extended loans will be 3½%, commencing at the 1953 maturity date.

Farm storage facility loans, which offer farmers up to 80% of Harry and Lyman Freshour got a good play in the February issue of the Holstein Michigander. The father-and-son team operates Lymarian farm west of Mason. Freshours have been on the farm since 1901.

Chicago folks can buy milk in half-gallon lots and save 8c on the second quart. In gallon lots, it's conceivable that 24c could be saved. That would be the same as getting the fourth quart free. That's one way to drain the milk surplus.

Ingham 4-H folks put on a good show in Mason Friday and Saturday. It was the annual Achievement Day at which more than 500 boys and girls displayed their 4-H winter projects. Displays ranged from knitted caps to hog troughs.

The 4-H set is learning to do things right. Every wooden joint in every piece of carpentry I saw smacked of craftsmanship. Electrical appliances made by the 4-H youngsters matched the best safety standards. While I'm not much of a knitter, it appeared that most of the purs and stitches were right in order. Boys and girls in 4-H work learn to do things right. They even learn to live right, which is probably the most important of all.

The crowd of 4-H folks was a welcome sight in Mason last week. It will be a welcome sight anytime.

I took a young girl on a trip through the Long, Long Trailer parked in front of the Fox Theatre Friday.

"It won't do you much good to look," I said, knowing that she had 4 brothers and sisters as well as a papa and mama. "Your big family couldn't possibly live in such close quarters."

"Yes, we could," she returned. She thereupon told me how it was possible for her family to get in the trailer all at one time.

"There's just one reason why we couldn't live here," she finally admitted. "Daddy couldn't squeeze through this narrow hall."

The wise young lady was my niece, Kathy.

Under 5 years: John Ellsworth, Holstein, 74 lb fat, 2,240 lb milk; and John Arend, Holstein, 70 lb fat, 1,740 lb milk.

Under 4 years: John Ellsworth, Holstein, 65 lb fat, 1,860 lb milk; and VFW National Home, Holstein, 62 lb fat, 1,690 lb milk.

Under 3 years: Jerold Topliff, Holstein, 58 lb fat, 1,610 lb milk; and Hugh Ellsworth, Guernsey, 56 lb fat, 1,210 lb milk.

Soybean Supply Short for Seed

Michigan farmers who expect to grow soybeans this year should take an early delivery on their seed, because good seed is scarce.

That's advice from Leyton V. Nelson, extension farm crops specialist at Michigan State college. He points out that germination tests for Michigan certified soybean seed are all above 90%, generally better than tests in most states. But the supply is limited.

He says reports of low germination in soybean seed are very common this spring. Last fall's dry weather was the cause.

The National Soybean Improvement Council suggests that those growers having an extra supply of soybeans of any of the good recommended varieties should: Have their seed tested for germination at once.

Handle the seed carefully during cleaning operations. If the germination is 70% or better, advertise the seed for sale. If a soybean grower expects to buy seed for his planting, he should get it done.

A list of certified soybean growers in Michigan can be obtained from the county agricultural agent or from the Michigan Crop Improvement Association, East Lansing. Growers have certified seed of Blackhawk and Hawkeye varieties available.

Farm Production Grows Younger, Survey Indicates

The average age of Michigan farmers is going down, contrary to popular notions. A survey by E. B. Hill, Michigan State college agricultural economist, shows that the average age has declined almost one year in the past decade to 49.9 years.

Thirty-seven per cent of Michigan farmers are now under 45 years of age, an increase of 6% since 1940. The number of farmers over 65 has remained at the same figure since 1930.

There was some variation in the ages of farmers in the economic areas throughout the state. The western half of the Upper Peninsula had the largest proportion of farmers over 65 and was among the lowest in the number under 45.

The largest percentage of younger farmers is in the "Thumb" area of Michigan. Forty per cent of them were under 45 and had the smallest proportion over 65.

The three 10-year age groups, 35-44, 45-54 and 55-64, had each about 22% of the farmers throughout the state.

According to Hill's survey, the younger farmers operate the larger farms. There may be some tie-in between age and energy says Hill, and the fact that this young group has the growing family and the large debt may be reason for their having larger farms.

The older farmers are still inclined toward the poultry farm. The average age of poultry farmers was 5 1/2 years above the overall average. The specialized crop farmers average the youngest in age.

Beekers can buy fumagillin from established bee supply houses. The antibiotic is packaged in lots suitable for use in treating from one to large numbers of bee colonies.

New Antibiotic Helps Save Bees

Ingham county beekeepers who have been having trouble with weak and unproductive package bees or bee colonies may get help from a new antibiotic called fumagillin.

Dick Bailey, Ingham county agricultural agent, says that the U. S. department of agriculture has found that fumagillin is an effective treatment for nosema disease, the common cause of weakness in bees. The USDA report indicates that the antibiotic can be given the bees in the common feeding practice and it does them no harm when fed in amounts necessary to control nosema.
