Hall Joins Son in Buying Williamston Chevy Agency

C. H. Hall and his son Robert Hall bought the Vaughn Chevrolet agency in Williamston Thursday and plan to take over management Friday morning. Both father and son have been with Al Rice Chevrolet at Mason. The father sold the business to Rice in 1947 but after a year returned to operate the body shop.

C. H. Hall

C. H. Hall, former mayor and school board member, expects to continue his residence in Mason for the present at least, driving back and forth to Williamston. The son and his wife and children will move to Williamston as soon as a house becomes available. In 1925 C. H. Hall came to take charge of service for D. G. Barr & Son. A few months later he joined Dean & Jacobs, operating the Ford agency. He remained with Dean & Jacobs in charge of service until 1928 when he became a partner in Coleman Chevrolet Sales. He remained a partner with the late John Slaght when the company became Hall-Slaght Chevrolet and in 1937 bought his partner's interest. He operated the business alone until 1947 when he sold to Al Rice. For a year following the sale, Hall was a member of the Quality Sign Co. firm in Lansing. He sold his interest there and joined the Al Rice staff. Bob Hall grew up around his father's garage and while going to high school worked as a mechanic. After graduation he worked for Al Rice until he entered the army. Following 3 years of service he returned to Mason to rejoin Rice, and has worked there most of the time since. Mrs. Robert Hall is the former Arlene Crosby. They have 2 children.

Paul Vaughn has had the Williamston Chevrolet dealership since 1926. He is retiring from business.

Jurors Disagree In Long Dispute About Bananas

After 2 full weeks and a part of a third hearing testimony and arguments, the jurors in the banana dispute were unable to reach a verdict Wednesday afternoon. Jurors were discharged from further consideration and the case which took almost 3 weeks is still unsettled. There were 2 maximum verdicts which could have been brought or there could have been a verdict any place in between, but the jurors were reported divided 7 to 5 right from the beginning of deliberations Tuesday afternoon, and the score never changed. The jurors went out at 4:30 Tuesday and deliberated until 6. They returned to Mason at 9:30 Wednesday and except for an hour and a half nooning continued in session until 4:30. They told Judge Marvin J. Salmon they would be unable to ever agree on a verdict.

National Food Stores, Inc. could have had a maximum award of $4,054 and the defendants, Nico's Wholesale Produce Co., and others, could have had a maximum of $6,039. Neither got anything from the jury.

The long trial finally boiled down to the claim of $8,754 by National Food Stores against the Lansing produce firm. But there was a recoupment of $4,700 admitted by National Food Stores in favor of the produce firm. That left $4,054 claimed by National Food Stores.

National Food Stores, Inc., has retail outlets in Lansing, Niles, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and other places in Michigan and Indiana, one at LaPorte. Company executives testified that Nico's Wholesale Produce Co. charged for more bananas than were delivered at company stores. Nico's partners and employees denied the charge.

Actually there were 16 separate store transactions involved, 13 under the declaration by National Food Stores and 3 under the recoupment.

Fred Newman and Charles E. Chamberlain of Lansing represented the plaintiffs; Joseph W. Louissell and Ivan E. Barris of the Detroit law firm of Porritt, Fraud, Toppin & Louissell the defendants.

School Forms Summer Band To Play Concert Schedule

Adults and younger former band members have been invited to join the Mason school band for 4 summer concerts. The first concert is scheduled for Friday evening, July 15, with others on July 29, August 12 and August 26. They will be played on the court house lawn, announced director George Murthum.

"This is a wonderful chance," Murthum said, "for former band members to pick up their old horns again and join in the playing of marches, popular music, novelty arrangements and some new music bought especially for the summer program."

Rehearsals for the summer band will start Friday night of this week, with other rehearsals scheduled every Monday night, all of them at the school at 7:30. Musicians who want to play but lack instruments may get them on loan from the school, Murthum said. He added that even where musicians may not be in town all summer they are welcome to play while they are here.

Murthum has mapped out a full program for the summer in addition to the concert band. He is conducting a music course for all boys and girls who now play instruments and intend to play in school bands this fall.

"During the summer period," the director said, "it will be possible to concentrate on music and the development of musical skills to a much greater extent than during the school year. Therefore, I want to urge as many of our instrumental students as possible to make use of their leisure time this summer to progress in playing ability."

The course is for 8 weeks. It started Tuesday and will continue through September 2, except for the week of July 18. Classes will be at the high school. Class instruction and daily rehearsals are free for all boys and girls studying instrumental music. Pupils not yet assigned should notify Murthum at his home, 321 East Oak, he said.

Included in the course of study are basic musicianship for all pupils, full band rehearsals and sectional, emphasis on sight reading, drill in marching fundamentals and participation in outdoor concerts.

Most classes, the director explained, will meet as mixed groups, with some meeting on a like-instrument basis.

"Objective," Murthum said, are to place boys and girls where they can receive the most help, and to meet all classes as often as possible. "We realize," the director said, "that many pupils may be out of town for 2 or 3 weeks. Notwithstanding, we urge all to attend as many rehearsals and class lessons as possible when they are in town. We know they will enjoy life more with music when they learn to play instruments well, and so will their neighbors."

Deputies Vote To Affiliate With CIO Unit

Ingham sheriff's department has voted to affiliate with a Lansing unit of the CIO, reported Sheriff Willard P. Barnes Wednesday. At a meeting held in the jail Tuesday night, the sheriff said, the vote was 15 to 0 to join the Government and Civil Employees union, a CIO affiliate.

The CIO unit is composed largely of state and city employees in Lansing. Deputies who voted to join are all the turnkeys and patrolmen on the sheriff's staff along with 2 full-time Lansing township deputies and a Meridian deputy, said the sheriff. So far, added the sheriff, he has not learned that any of his command officers have affiliated. He lists as command officers Undersheriff Fred Frye, Chief Deputy Kenneth Proadmore, Captain Versile Babcock, Lt. Harold L. Barnhill and Sergeant Ralph Smith.

The sheriff appeared before his deputies prior to the organization meeting, he said, to advise them of their public duties and responsibilities. He said he told them he could see no necessity to affiliate with a union, that he had always represented them before the salaries committee of the board of supervisors.

Deputies informed him, the sheriff stated, that union affiliation would not interfere with carrying out their duties even though the duty might include control of picketing by other unions. Deputies also said, the sheriff reported, that they believe union organization will improve their salary scales and working conditions.

Roger Massman, a deputy for 3 years, said the contract covering sheriff's officers has not yet been completed. Massman is temporary chairman of the sheriff's unit. He said he has been assured that the contract will probably be drawn and signed by deputies Monday in time for demands for wage increases to go before Ingham supervisors Tuesday.

Kiwanians Boost Recreation Fund

Mason Kiwanis club at a meeting of its board of directors Tuesday night added $300 to the summer recreation fund.

City council and school district appropriations of $2,500 will not cover all the recreation budget, Kiwanians were told, and contributions from civic groups and perhaps individuals are being sought.

There are 3 employed on a salary basis in the recreation program. Ed Kehe is director, Patricia Rosebury and Kay White are assistants.

Youngster Is Hit By Pickup Truck

Douglas Davis, 2, was struck by a pickup truck in the yard of his father's farm on Curtice road in Aurelius Wednesday afternoon. Injuries did not prove serious.

The youngster is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Davis. He was clear of the drive to the barn when an uncle, Allen Davis, 16, starting backing a pickup truck loaded with grain into the barn. The uncle heard a scream and stopped the truck. He found the boy on the ground, cut and bruised about his head.

From the house the baby's mother heard screams. When she reached the scene she thought the baby had been run over. Apparently he was struck by the side of the truck. Mrs. Davis and the injured boy to Mason General hospital. Doctors found the boy suffered only cuts and bruises.

Boy Breaks Arm In Wagon Tumble

Dale Lawson, 3, broke his arm Wednesday afternoon when he tumbled from a farm wagon standing in the yard at the Lawson farm home, West Plains road in Aurelius. He broke his arm just above the elbow.

The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth B. Lawson. He was playing in the yard alone. Mrs. Lawson heard a scream and ran outside to find the youngster on the ground. She took him to Mason General hospital and then on to Lansing to consult a specialist. After the arm was set the boy was taken home.

School Bears Historic Name

Mason's newest school will bear an old name. The new east side school has been officially designated as Steele Street elementary.

Steele street is named for the Steele family, prominent in Mason in early days. Two Steele brothers lost their lives in the Civil War and Steele Bros. G. A. R. post was named in their honor. Property adjacent to the new school on Elm and Oak streets was part of the original Holt & Steele addition.

The new school is at the end of Elm street. Sentiment on the school board was divided between Elm and Steele as the new name, said Supt. James H. Vander Ven, but Steele street prevailed. He explained that school board members had received suggestions on naming the school for individuals but decided against it as there are not enough schools to go around. The west side school is officially designated as Cedar Street elementary.

Mason Streets Get Treatment By Ferris Co.

Mason streets are getting a triple-seal and patch face-lifting this week by Ferris Co. workmen. The Mason firm has the contract for repair of local streets. Most of the paving on Lawton street and Hall boulevard will be completed this week. Other streets where repair work will be done are South street between US-127 and Lansing street, Elm street between Lansing and Park, Park street west of high school, Cherry street between Barnes and Rogers, Elm between Jefferson and Barnes, Maple between Park and Lansing, and Okemos between Columbia and the city limits.

Other repaving may be scheduled and possibly some may be postponed, according to Dick Morris of the street committee.

The street projects are paid through refunds from the state highway fund, Doris Austin, city treasurer, stated.

Residents on Roosevelt street petitioned councilmen Tuesday night for a seal job, too. The petition was turned over to the street committee for evaluation and the possible scheduling of the work for the future.

The absence of Walter Zimmerman, city engineer, from the city summer isn't going to slow up any public improvements. Mayor Alfred Forch declared at the Tuesday meeting that the city will engage some other engineer to survey for the Lansing street curb and gutter and any other projects that may arise. The engineer is on a tour of Europe this summer.

Because special assessment improvements take about 2 months for just the paper work, the mayor suggested that the city start now on the Lansing street project. Even at that, he added, it will be late fall at the earliest before the curb and gutter can be built.

Another petition for curb and gutter, on Okemos street accepted by the city about 2 years ago, was turned back to the signers Tuesday night.

"Before we act on this petition, the council must be sure that the signers know what the costs are for such an undertaking," the mayor declared. "I understand that some of those who signed it have the mistaken idea that the city at large will pay the entire cost. Actually, the city would only pay for a sixth. If that fact is known, I doubt that enough property owners will be willing to sign. If the petition is returned to us and is in good order, we will act on it at once, however."

BON VOYAGES were said at Mason Sunday when 55 heifers were given a sendoff for farms of refugees in Germany. Admiring one of the heifers are Dr. L. C. Kraft, Leslie, Russell Hartzler, head of CROP in Michigan, and Colin C. Hoffmann, commercial attache at the German consulate in Detroit. Dr. Kraft, at left, spearheaded the Leslie campaign for funds to buy heifers. Hartzler is one of those making the long trip to Germany with the heifers. Rev. Samuel Wenger of Leslie's Congregational church is also making the trip. The German official is at the right in the picture. (Ingham County News photo.)

55 Heifers Leave Mason for Germany

Bearing one-way tickets, 55 heifers left Mason Sunday afternoon for new homes in Germany. They were transported from Mason to Delaware, Ohio, Sunday night. After a rest and feeding there, they were again loaded into trucks and hauled to New York where they were put aboard the SS Importer. The ship was scheduled to sail Wednesday for a German port.

The heifers will be parceled out to refugee families. Each heifer is bred and her calf will be given to a refugee family.

About 200 people came from all sections of Michigan Sunday afternoon to participate in the herding of the heifers in a central location and for their dedication. The ceremony took place at the Ingham fairgrounds.

Dan E. Reed, legislative representative for Michigan Farm Bureau and a vice-president of CROP, was master of ceremonies. Others who participated were William D. Dexter of Mason, Ingham CROP chairman; Thur Metzger of North Manchester, Indiana, executive secretary of Heifer Project, Inc.; Rev. Samuel B. Wenger, pastor of Leslie Congregational church; Rev. C. F. Badder, assistant superintendent of the Michigan Congregational Conference; Russell Hartzler of Lansing, Michigan CROP director; and Colin C. Hoffmann, commercial attache at the German consulate in Detroit.

Metzger explained the program which has provided heifers and other livestock in an effort to re-establish refugees on small farms in Europe and Asia. He said the program is far more effective than propaganda preachments.

Hoffmann, the German consular official, expressed gratitude for the heifers. By giving refugee families greater hope, by proving to them that the people of the United States care for the plight of refugees, by thus spreading Christian love, the gift of heifers is of far more defensive worth than a shipment of atomic weapons. Hoffmann stated. He cited figures showing that war and peace treaties drove 25,000,000 people from their homes, a total equal to the entire population of Spain. He said 2,300,000 died in flight. Added to the 50,000,000 population of Germany, he stated, are 10,000,000 Germans driven from lands in Russia and elsewhere in Europe. The 10,000,000 refugees number more than the combined population of Australia, Denmark and Switzerland, he added.

Rev. Wenger, the Leslie pastor, credited Dr. L. C. Kraft and Mrs. Bert Annis of Leslie and Dr. George R. Clinton of Mason with a big part in the success of the heifer project locally. Seven of the 10 Ingham heifers came from the Clinton-Holstein herd, all at bargain prices, Rev. Wenger said.

Dexter Trail Farm Bureau, West Alameda, Stockbridge, Lansing-Delhi, Square Deal, Millville and Aurelius Center units participated in purchase of the animals. East Alameda, Dunn, Cross Roads, Happy Hustlers, Okemos, Gunn, Tomlinson, West Locke and Sandhill 4-H clubs contributed.

Okemos Community church, a mission group, Women's society and Youth Fellowship participated, as did the West Alameda Ladies Aid.

Britten Congregational church, Jackson Congregational association, Howell Baptist, Pontiac First Congregational, Clarksville Church of the Brethren, and other churches in Ewart, Detroit, Roscommon, Saline, Pinckney, St. Clair Shores, Grand Blanc, Richmond, Mt. Clemens, Jackson, Three Oaks, Sunfield and Chandler were among donors of animals in the Michigan shipment. Representatives from many of the churches were at Mason Sunday to participate in the dedication.

Dennis Snyder, 7, of 725 West South street will be doing little running and jumping the rest of the summer. He jumped from the roof of Cedar Street school Wednesday afternoon and snapped bones in his right leg between ankle and knee. He will be in bed for 2 weeks and on crutches for 4 more.

The Snyder boy and several others were flying toy planes near the school Wednesday afternoon before the afternoon playground program began. Several of the planes carried to the roof of the school. The boy climbed up to the flat roof to get the planes. Instead of climbing down, he jumped.

Among the spectators was Valerie Harvath, 9. She ran to the Mason Dairy to tell about the accident and a girl there called the police department. Chief Harry Chandler answered the summons and took the boy to Mason General hospital. After the bones were set the boy was removed to his home.

Members of St. James church are already seeking a house for Father DeRose until a rectory can be built.

Monsignor Keating established the Catholic mission in Mason on Christmas Day in 1942. He remained as pastor during the growth of the mission into a parish with a church. St. James church was dedicated a year ago.

Both Msgr. Keating and Father DeRose are Lansing men. The Monsignor studied at Sacred Heart academy in Detroit and Mt. St. Mary of the West at Norwood;

Rain and Heat Aid Corn Crop, Dampens Grain

Instead of being knee-high by the Fourth of July, much Ingham corn was hip-high. Frequent rains and plenty of heat both day and night have made corn prospects brightest in years.

Some fields near Holt and east end of Mason suffered damage from hail Monday afternoon but hail damage was not general. Heavy rain accompanied by gusts of wind dampened some stands of wheat Monday.

But generally the rain has done far more good than harm, most farmers agree. Oats and beans have come along fast. So have cucumbers and muck crops.

The 1955 wheat harvest will probably run from 5% to 10% above the 1954 crop, according to Lorin Curtis, office manager of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee. However, farmers can plant up to 15 acres of wheat without violating any acreage allotments, he pointed out.

"We don't know how many there are who are planting just their 15 acres," Curtis said. "And of course, we don't know what the overall yield per acre will be."

Although some wheat fields look ready for combining this week, elevator operators said, the moisture content still runs too high. It will probably be next week before the first wheat begins to arrive at elevators.

Farmers have had to do some puddle-jumping the past 10 days to get their hay in the barns. Sporadic rains have made some hay tough and it's been even tougher on farmers.

School Directors Will Be Picked In Balloting Monday

In many primary and graded school districts Monday directors will be chosen. Most of the primary districts will conduct their annual elections and meetings Monday night. In most of the graded districts the voting will be by printed ballot.

Polls will be open in Mason from 7 in the morning until 8 at night, with the annual meeting scheduled a half-hour after close of the polls.

At Mason there are 2 candidates for the one vacancy. The term of Dee Bray expires and he declined nomination again. Harold Bell and William D. Dexter are the candidates.

Bell, a Mason high school graduate in the class of 1930 and an executive at Wyeth Laboratories, Inc. and William D. Dexter, an assistant attorney general, are the candidates. Both men are members of Mason's Lions club and are active in civic affairs.

All school districts do not have their elections at the same time. East Lansing, Stockbridge and most Lansing suburban schools have already had their elections. Among graded districts which will elect Monday, said County Superintendent Alton J. Stroud, are Ingham Township, Agricultural, Leslie, Williamston, Okemos, Haslett and Webberville.

TRIPLETS AND TWINS arrived the same day at the Mont Hayward and Donald Todd farm southeast of Onondaga. The 5 purebred Holstein calves were born in a pasture last Tuesday night. In the picture, Hayward tries his best to pose the nimble calves in a corner of the barnyard.

Two of the triplets are heifers and one of the twins is a heifer. Last year the dam of the triplets produced quadruplets. They all died, however, because they were born unattended.

Hayward and Todd operate Hayward's farm as a partnership. They maintain a milking herd of about 30 cows. There are 273 acres in the farm.

A new milkhouse is going up for the Hayward & Todd herd. It will feature a bulk milk system. With multiple births as common as they are, the bulk system is a necessity, Hayward joked. (Ingham County News photo).

HELPING HANDS and 9 tractors cultivated 100 acres of corn for Mr. and Mrs. Warren Mueller of Dansville Wednesday. Mueller's right ankle and leg were broken last Tuesday when he was wrecking an old farm building. The volunteer working party of neighbors arrived at the Mueller farm early Wednesday and stayed all day. Those who helped were Clifford Williams, Robert Bush, Rex Townsend, David VanDamme, George Soule, Dick Campbell, Steve Gonzales, Louis Freer, Lloyd Hayhoe, and Dave Diehl. Mrs. M. J. Green and Mrs. A. O. Greenough helped Mrs. Mueller serve a fried chicken dinner at noon.

Don Ward, Dick Campbell, Lester Fuhrman and Marion Pollok helped spray the corn earlier in the week. In the picture some of the men are starting out to finish cultivating after the noon meal. Mueller will be at the Mason General hospital for another 2 weeks. After that, he will be on limited farm duty for the rest of the summer, according to Mrs. Mueller. While Mueller is away, Gordon and Gilbert Ries of Dansville are doing the chores and keeping the Mueller chicken industry operating. They are assisted by their brother Clayton. Latin Americans Come To View Ingham Roads

Distinguished visitors from Latin America are in Ingham county today to learn about farm to market roads and how a county road commission is organized and operated.

Ministers of public works, highway department administrators and engineers from many countries make up the seminar and observation team touring several states under auspices of the Foreign Operations Administration at Washington.

The visiting executives and engineers are from Bolivia, British Guiana, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Paraguay and Peru.

The visitors reached Lansing Wednesday afternoon in time for a trip through state highway department offices. They were in Detroit Monday and Tuesday and Wednesday morning. There they visited Ford Motor Co. and General Motors plants. They are to leave for Milwaukee by chartered plane from Willow Run airport Thursday night at 6:30. Their tour started at Washington June 19 and will continue until July 16. Their itinerary takes in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois.

After breakfast in Lansing Thursday morning the visitors came by chartered bus to Mason. They were briefed at road commission offices and then they inspected the offices and shops. They expressed interest in the radio system which links cars of key road commission workers with Mason offices.

Visitors were taken west and north to have a look at Onondaga road, rebuilt last year, and at the section near Holt road now under construction. At noon they had dinner at Kellogg Center and were shown about Michigan State's campus. In the afternoon they visited the Thompson pit at Dansville to see the county's blacktop plant in operation, and then inspected farm to market roads in Ingham, White Oak and Stockbridge townships.

They were due to leave Ingham about 5 o'clock for Willow Run, pausing at Ann Arbor for a quick look at the University of Michigan.

Conducting the tour in Ingham were L. P. Scott, district engineer of the U. S. bureau of public roads; J. G. Schaub, secondary roads engineer of the state highway department; and Frank K. Evans, county highway engineer.

Inghram Secures Ashland Agency

Jim Inghram has secured the Ashland Oil and Refining company franchise for the Mason area. For the past year Inghram has been distributor for Mason under the Cutler Oil company of Lansing, area distributor of Leonard products.

Inghram expects to have a modern bulk plant in operation on Legion road, the road leading to the new Legion building north of Mason within 10 days. Workmen are sinking 4 tanks, 2 with 15,000 gallon capacity each, one 10,000 gallons and one 6,000 gallons.

Just as soon as Hilton & Richards Buick Sales move to new quarters under construction in the same locality the Ashland organization will start remodeling the present Buick garage. It will be converted into a modern service center, according to Inghram.

Before becoming Leonard distributor Inghram served on the sales staff of the Roy Christensen Ford agency, worked for Hilton & Richards and Standard Block & Supply.

Legion Schedules Sunday Contest

Mason's junior American Legion baseball team has finally lined up a game. Coach Mike Simone will send his charges against a Leslie team Sunday afternoon at 1:30 at the Mason athletic field.

Mason has seen very little action this year because of the failure of Ingham county Legion posts to field teams.

Next Saturday and Sunday Mason will host the sixth district Legion playoffs. Mason is assured of one of the spots along with Howell. The third team in the round robin tourney will be a representative of Flint. There are 8 teams in the Genesee county city battling it out for the right to the trip to Mason.

Flint teams have had a struggle hold on the sixth district championship for years. Dick Corbin, member of the Mason post, is sixth district baseball commissioner and in charge of next week's tournament.

Lightning Causes Eaton Barn Loss

Loss was estimated at $30,000 in a fire Friday night which destroyed a 2-section barn at the William J. Clarke farm on Waverly road, a half-mile south of Kinneville road and 4 1/2 miles southeast of Eaton Rapids. It is believed that a bolt of lightning struck a truss rod about 8 o'clock. Upon investigation no fire could be found although smoke could be smelled. At 9:20 a passing motorist reported the barn all aflame. Firemen said they believed the fire undoubtedly smoldered in the hay mow.

The main section of the barn was 40x70 feet with a 31x70 foot wing. A tractor and 74 tons of hay were consumed by the blaze as well as many other small articles of barn equipment. Fourteen head of feeder cattle were rescued from the burning barn by members of the family and neighbors.

Credit is due to the Eaton Rapids and V. F. W. Home firemen for saving the house and other buildings, the Clarks said. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

Injured were Mrs. Marie Krauss, 18, Lansing, and Mrs. Rose McMann, 41, Jackson. Mrs. Krauss suffered a neck injury and Mrs. McMann had a gash on her forehead and a bruised and cut right knee.

According to sheriff's officers who investigated, Charles McMann, 56, was driving north on Aurelius road. Headed east on Willowby, stopped for traffic on Aurelius road, was Krauss, 23. He told officers he did not see McMann's car approaching from the south and so drove into the intersection. The Krauss car after colliding with McMann's car struck the car of Arthur E. Fritz, Fritz, headed west on Willowby, had stopped his car waiting for McMann to pass on Aurelius road.

Jewett Begins Harvest of Flower Crop

Stalice Dumosa, Hungarian ornamental flower, is grown by the acre in Mason. In fact, probably more stalice is grown in Mason than in any other spot in America. Arthur Jewett first began growing stalice in 1920. Today he has 12 acres of the ornamental on his farm on the east side of Mason and is preparing ground for 2 more acres. Jewett is one of the few domestic producers of stalice.

Stalice Dumosa resembles a sponge or porcupine from a distance. At maturity it is a bush about a foot high. Each bush is made up of thousands of tiny blue and red flowers on tough fibrous stems.

Florists use stalice to dress up corsages, wreaths and bouquets. It's also used for straw flowers and shadow box picture frames.

Stalice is a perennial plant. It becomes productive after 4 or 5 years and remains productive until about 20 years old. To start a stalice planting is a lot like setting out an orchard, Jewett explained. There are those first 4 or 5 years when there is no income. Jewett estimated that it takes about $3,000 to prepare 2 acres of ground and set out stalice plants. Stalice is planted 3 feet apart in rows 3 feet apart. To prepare a stalice bed, it's necessary to cultivate the ground 20 inches deep and work in several layers of fertilizer. Because once the plants are in place, the ground can't be worked with a plow for 20 years. Stalice requires frequent cultivation.

In the picture Arthur Jewett is cutting stalice with a power cutter bar. His son Laylin with a long board helps position the plants for cutting. It was just a few years ago that stalice had to be cut by hand. Field workers bunch up the stalice and tie it. From there, it's handled with a pitchfork just like straw. Jewett has a barn where he cures the stalice before shipment. Stalice must be dried in darkness. When it's completely dry, stalice is white.

Mrs. Cecil Bradley of Stockbridge is in the picture holding an armful of the precious flower. Mrs. Bradley is among those helping Jewett harvest the stalice crop.

AUTOMATIC CUTTING helps speed the harvest of Mason's most unusual crop—Stalice Dumosa. In the picture Arthur Jewett uses an outboard motor-type cutter bar to cut the fibrous stem of the plants. His son, Laylin, with a long board helps position the stalice for cutting. Power machinery plus scientific growing methods are the edge the Mason stalice industry has on the rest of the world. Jewett is the major producer of the flower in the United States. Hungary is also famous for stalice and its product enters the United States duty-free.

HAND LABOR is still required to complete the harvest of stalice once the automatic cutter goes to work. Mrs. Cecil Bradley of Stockbridge is in the lower picture holding up an armful of stalice. At the peak of the harvest, Jewett hires about 10 field workers to help with the work. When it is cured, workers pack the flowers loosely in cartons and ship them to jobbers in the East. We can be thankful that Michigan's traffic deaths over the Fourth of July were almost half of last year's total.

Mrs. Barto Returns from Australian Visit

Mrs. Donald (Bud) Barto returned at her Mason home last Thursday afternoon from a trip to Australia. It was the first time she had been down under since leaving in August, 1948. Mrs. Barto left Mason December 2 of last year to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Reed, at Victoria Park, Australia, and her brothers, sisters and other relatives.

Mrs. Barto was a war bride. She met her husband when he was on submarine duty with the navy stationed at Fremantle, Australia, 12 miles from her home. When asked how they met, Mrs. Barto grinned and replied in her fascinating English accent, "It was one of those blind dates. You know, my girl friend had a date and the sailor brought along another fellow and wanted her to find a date for him."

"That was in 1941, and after a few dates Bud was shipped out and Betty thought little more about it. We didn't even write," she said. Eighteen months later he was stationed at Fremantle again, and went back to the beach house to renew the acquaintance. A year later, September 12, 1944, they were married at St. Joachim's church, Victoria Park. Seventeen hours later Bud was shipped out and the newlyweds didn't see each other again until he was discharged from the U. S. navy and returned to Australia to live.

After they had lived in Australia 2 years, Mr. Barto's father died in Mason and Mr. Barto wanted to return to see his mother. Bud had worked for the railway while in Australia. The couple came to the United States in August, 1948, on the troop ship Marine Phoenix. Mrs. Barto gained entrance to this country easily, since she was married to a U. S. citizen.

Mrs. Barto decided last October to make a return visit, because her father had not been well, but had to wait until December to get passage on the S. S. Ornisly, an English ship. Mr. and Mrs. Barto drove Ensign Jim Rickly's car to San Francisco, where it was shipped to Hawaii where Rickly is stationed with the navy. Mrs. Barto boarded the Ornisly December 2, and traveled for over a month to reach her destination.

"A big ship like that is just like a city to itself," Mrs. Barto said. "They even have a store on board where you could buy anything you could think of. You can get it at cost, too. Some sort of entertainment is planned each evening, and swimming, dancing and games are available."

On board ship Mrs. Barto met several other Australian war brides who were returning for visits, most of them for the first time since coming to the United States. Before the trip was over 10 of them were well acquainted, corresponded during their visit in Australia, and made the return trip together. Besides Mrs. Barto, there were women from Miami, Seattle, Chicago, Ohio, 2 from Oregon and 3 from California. One of the girls had lived just 4 streets up from the Reeds in Victoria Park, and the wives discovered that their husbands had worked side by side in the navy.

The ships made stops at Hawaii, Swa in the Fiji Islands and in New Zealand on both the trip over and the route back, and passengers had a day of sight-seeing in all 3 places. Mrs. Barto said. Even before they docked in Hawaii, representatives boarded the ship and put on entertainment, welcoming the travelers to their land. Orchid leis were thrown around the necks of the passengers as they alighted, and they had a busy day sightseeing, shopping and visiting the beautiful Waikiki beach.

Suva, capital of the Fiji Islands located on the largest island, provided an interesting day of looking around. Mrs. Barto commented on the beautiful flowers there.

In New Zealand on the trip over Mrs. Barto spent Christmas Eve with her father's uncle and aunt, relatives she had never seen before. On her return trip she also visited them and they spent the day at the horse races. Christmas aboard ship was celebrated halfway between New Zealand and Sydney, Australia.

"There was a captain's party and a ball, and for the evening meal we had a little bit of turkey and a little bit of plum pudding," Mrs. Barto reminisced. "But the noon meal was rabbit and bacon, it was terrible," she laughed.

When the Ornisly docked at Sydney December 27 Mrs. Barto discovered that she would have to wait a couple of days for a train, because rains had been causing difficulty in transportation. "It doesn't rain often there," she commented. "It hadn't rained in the desert for 4 years, then it flooded, and washed out some of the bridges. My train was the last one out for a week because of flood damage."

While waiting for the train in Sydney Mrs. Barto visited an ant who is a matron in a hospital. It took 3 1/2 days of train travel for Mrs. Barto to reach her home. She had short layovers in Melbourne and Adelaide before arriving at Perth, which is 2 miles from her home at Victoria Park. When she stepped off the train in Adelaide for a short stopover, her brother Ronald tapped her on the shoulder. "The brother, who works in the Royal mint at Perth, was in Adelaide as an infelder on the Western Australia state ball team. Australia is divided into 7 states, Mrs. Barto said, and each state has an amateur ball team. "Trains are always on time when they run in Australia," Mrs. Barto commented, "and the whole family was at the station at Perth to meet me. I was awfully tired after traveling so long but it was wonderful to see them."

Mrs. Barto has 3 brothers and a sister. In addition to the youngest brother, Ronald, who met her at Adelaide, there are Bill, the oldest, who is in the army and teaches music, and John, who is head cook in the railway department. Bill was in the marching band which participated in several band festivals when Queen Elizabeth visited. Mrs. Barto's sister, Mary, a dressmaker, is still at home with her parents. "She is quite good in sports," Mrs. Barto said. "She was chosen for the state side softball team, but had to be replaced because she twisted her knee."

A hundred friends and relatives called to welcome Mrs. Barto the first day she was home. "Then there were welcome home parties, afternoon teas given by my friends quite often, finally a round of farewell parties before I left," said Mrs. Barto. "The house was full of people all the time. I didn't know I knew so many people."

Mrs. Barto's grandmother on her paternal side had a heart attack while she was there, but she seems to be all right now, she said. Only one grandparent is living now, as 2 have died since she came to the United States.

After she moved here it took a while to get used to different ways, she said, and many of the idioms were different. She recalls with amusement one misunderstanding with words.

"After Don was discharged," his wife said, "just before he went to Australia to live, he sent me a clipping from the Ingham County News telling of our plans. In it I was called a 'native of Victoria Park.' I was furious! To an aborigine quite uncivilized for the most part. They were the original inhabitants in Australia, just as the Indians were here. Now all of them are kept by the government or by mission stations on reservations. The government and church groups are educating them, and for the first time, some of them are working in the cities. They have never had a chance before. But now I understand the difference in terms."

At first she had trouble making people understand what she wanted in stores, because things are sometimes called by different names here. "One day I went into Ware's drug store to get something and although Don had told me quite a few things that went by different names, I couldn't think what this was called," Mrs. Barto related. "Mr. Ware finally said he was sure what I wanted was in the store and I was sure it was there somewhere, too, so he kept trying different things until we found it."

Australia is warmer than this country, she commented. The farther inland you go the hotter it gets. They have a long summer there, with only about 3 months of winter. The war bride had never seen snow when she came to Mason, and it took a while to get used to the change of seasons.

People participate in sports much more in Australia than they do here, she said. There are lots of parks and ball fields and tennis courts. Mrs. Barto remarked with divided allegiance that the Americans won the Davis cup from the Australians while she was there. Racing is prominent there, with running races on Saturday afternoons and trotting in the evenings. Speedway races are also popular. In addition to movies and stage plays, a play in the form of pantomime is given each Saturday for the children, usually a Mother Goose story or children's folk story.

Wool is Australia's chief industry, with cattle raising and fruit also being prominent. Oranges are raised near the coast, with vineyards and apple orchards inland. Most of the exports are to England, she said, and English china is plentiful and cheap in Australia.

"We have regular tea sets for our afternoon teas, besides all our other dishes," she said. "Crystal, often heavy with hand-cut designs, is popular in the country but is imported from Germany and is quite expensive."

In the past 4 or 5 years the oil business has boomed at Quenona, 38 miles from Perth. Although it is Australian owned, many American men are working there. Big food supermarkets have opened in the cities now, and shopping centers similar to the ones in the States.

"We wouldn't think of going to town in slacks or pedal pushers," she said. "We always wear a hat and gloves when we go to town shopping. A hat helps protect from the heat, too, you know."

"There's no television yet in Australia," Mrs. Barto commented. Pointing to the set in her living room at 308 West Columbia, she added, "I've hardly had the set on since I've been back, though."

Mrs. Barto remarked that her speech has changed since she had been living in this country. She is conscious of the fact that she talks slower than before, and her relatives noticed that she has lost some of her rich English accent.

Australia's famous kangaroo is not as common as previously, she noticed on her trip overland to Perth. Rabbits are still plentiful, though.

When the SS Orsonia docked at San Francisco, Mr. Barto was waiting. They drove back, stopping in Chicago for a brief visit with Mrs. Barto's cousins from Australia, Dr. and Mrs. Vincent Williams. Dr. Williams is a doctor of science teaching at University of Chicago for a year as an exchange teacher.

On her trip as they drove across the country in June, Mrs. Barto commented that she saw no town she would prefer to Mason. "This is a good place," she said, "and I like it here."

Ingham Women Begin Tour of Good Kitchens

Twelve Ingham homemakers accompanied by Mrs. Annette Schaeffer and Miss Rhoda Kelly began their tour of kitchens Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. Elmer Phelps on Carter road.

Mrs. Phelps had employed a push cart in her kitchen which she said had saved her many steps in meal preparation. Her kitchen also featured different levels of working area, a higher place for the sink and a lower level for the mixing center. She also had her freezer in the kitchen. What was, once a back porch became a bathroom and laundry.

The next stop in the tour was at the kitchen in Mrs. Carl Nelson's home. A wood shed off the Nelsons' kitchen was remodeled to become a new and modern kitchen. The old kitchen became the dining area. A bar separated the 2 rooms and is also handy for dining, serving or even as a cutting table when she is sewing, said Mrs. Nelson. Her sewing machine is also in the kitchen. A small closet off the dining room was remodeled into a bathroom.

At noon, the group had lunch at the county park and continued their tour in the afternoon where they visited more kitchens in Ingham homes. Reports on these tours and those scheduled for Friday will be given next week.

Rain Harms Books

Monday's heavy rain doused about 50 books in the basement of the Hall Memorial library, according to Norman J. Bunker, librarian. Water cascaded down the basement entrance and rushed over the inadequate outdoor drain, he said. The books were in boxes on the floor. The books were dried in the sun Tuesday and some can be repaired. Two years ago, water from a sanitary sewer backed up in a rain storm and destroyed several books. This time, however, the sewer was not the cause, Bunker pointed out.

Bring Home the Bacon...

Do you "bring home the bacon" in the form of a regular pay envelope? Make sure that you keep a healthy slice of it for the future benefit of your family and yourself. Best "home" for the part of your "bacon" that you aim to hold onto is in your savings account, where compound interest can add steadily to its size. Decide how much you can reasonably expect to save each week. Then faithfully deposit that amount in your account, first thing every payday!

Save with a purpose... save with a plan... save here. Come in, open an account.

Michigan Bell Pays Big Sum To School Fund

Michigan Bell Telephone company will make a record contribution of $8,286,000 to the primary school fund this year.
A check for $1,143,000 covering the company's half-year payment has been turned over to Louis M. Nims, state revenue commissioner, by Courtney W. Kild, assistant treasurer of the company. Another check of like amount will be paid October 31.
The 1955 payments will exceed the tax of a year ago by more than $1,000,000. Payments this year, Kild said, will raise the company's total contribution to more than $128,000,000 since 1908 when the primary school fund provision was embodied in the state constitution.
The company's tax is allocated to school districts throughout the state on the basis of the school census. Michigan Bell is the largest single contributor to the primary school fund.

Schoolboy League Starts Second Year

For the second year the Ingham County Summer Baseball league will swing into action with schoolboy teams representing Mason, Okemos, Stockbridge, Dansville and Leslie battling it out for possession of the championship trophy.

Last year Leslie won the play-off. Mason's team is sponsored by Dr. O. Keith Pauley and will be coached by Denny Stoliz and Clint Willis.

Stoliz is a former Mason high school athletic great and graduated in June after sparking Alma college in football and baseball for 4 years. Willis is a former Charlotte high school star and has been a strong promoter of athletics at the grade school level in Mason.

In Okemos Al Cooper and Bob Baker will share the coaching duties while Bob Prudon will handle the Stockbridge club.

Vince Carlen will be at the helm in Dansville and Dick Frohlich will coach Leslie.

Prudon has been in charge of arranging the schedule and will conduct the play-offs in the latter part of August.

Games slated for the first week are Okemos at Leslie and Stockbridge at Mason.

City Buys Gas

Mason councilmen renewed a gasoline contract with E. D. Barr & Sons, Sinclair distributors, at a meeting Tuesday night. The contract requires the fuel company to furnish 5,000 gallons of Sinclair HC gas and 5,000 gallons of Sinclair Power X plus 2 fuel pumps and a 1,000-gallon ground tank. The city agreed to pay 1.5c under the regular tank wagon prices at time of delivery.

Williams and Ziegler Bury Hatchet

By Elmer White Michigan Press Association Uneasy peace reigns over Gov. Williams' office and the domain of Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler. But both are keeping their powder dry.

Williams has been heckling Ziegler since last year over Michigan's road system. It was a shambles and Ziegler was slapping on patches rather than building new roads, according to Williams. This session the legislature added 1/4 cents to the gasoline tax.

Letters to Editor

Trailer Camp Opposed

I wonder if the people in and around Mason realize what is being contemplated in regard to this trailer camp east of Mason on Columbia road. We understand that there are to be 50 trailers put in there. This is directly across from my farm, which is zoned as agricultural.

I would like to ask the people of Mason and Vevay township what they would do if they had such a project before their doors. We wonder what this will do to our future living here and to the value of our property.

We understand from a local real estate office that the same type of project was contemplated by a man from Detroit, just outside of Mason but was turned down by the health department unless it was equipped with a disposal plant. Why is this one allowed to go in equipped with a septic tank? Where is this drainage going? The natural water course goes directly across my farm emptying into Mud creek.

We have been approached with an offer to dispose of our property to people of another race who would like to plot it out.

Dog Ordinance Informative

We were very interested in your front page article on your Mason dog ordinance.

I'm going to send it to Ink White at the Clinton County Republican-News in hopes that he'll write about the need for more caution among dog owners in Clinton county.

Several children have been bitten lately in this vicinity.

Sally received a severe gash on her leg and her ankle was chewed in several places, her jeans torn, and sock and shoe torn this week.

She had gone on her bicycle to a neighbor's on an errand. Some new folks just moved in with this huge dog. It was a bad experience for her. She's so kind to animals—it was a double shock to her.

The wounds are mending well. The booster lock-law shot was almost as bad as the bites.

Independence Needs Support

Since this week we celebrated our attainment of independence, we should be thinking seriously about that subject. A short while ago a strong editorial on this subject appeared in a Detroit newspaper. It was entitled "One Workers At Work to Sell Out Independence."

That editorial reminded us that "Two powerful and well-financed groups, Atlantic Union, and the United World Federalists, Inc., are again beating the drums for federation with other nations." It went on to explain that this would make us "subservient to a world legislature." It suggested that if this should happen "our constitutional guarantees might well be destroyed" and that this "would spell the end of our Republic as conceived by the founding fathers."

The editorial does not question the sincerity of those advocating these things, but as it points out "it would seem that they are ready to abandon the principles for which this nation has fought and bled." It concludes by saying that "it is appalling that responsible elements of our citizenship have so little national pride that they would be willing to sacrifice our independence on the altar of a super-state."

My own work on the Un-American Activities committee taught me that Communism does pose a very real threat to this nation. But I agree with the very many others who hold that our greatest danger arises from within. The well meaning people who seem to think that we should surrender our independence and become part of a super-state, pose a threat we can no longer ignore. Apparently without knowing it they are, in the words of the editorial, "at work to sell out independence."

It is folly to believe that where the nations of the world can not now live in peace with each other, the creation of a super-state in which we would be a minority member would compose the differences and bring eternal peace. This would only serve to multiply our troubles. We all have the same objectives—the ending of senseless wars—but undoing the work of 1776 will solve nothing.

It would, in fact, deliver us into bondage.

Another subject: The president has exploded the idea that a Democratic congress really supports him. I've pointed out a number of specific instances where they went the other way for political reasons—as we must have known they would. The president's statement last week should convince everyone that we must have a Republican congress.

KIT CLARDY, East Lansing

No Candidates for 1956

Intelligent Democrats can't find a man for the presidency in 1956. Harriman, Kefauver or Stevenson will suit the secret higher-ups. But Stevenson was a character witness for Alger Hiss. Neither Kefauver nor Harriman could likely be nominated. Burton R. Wheeler or Senator George would either one be O. K.

Republicans are little better off with President Eisenhower. In fact, there is some talk that the President may again be the candidate of both parties.

Maxwell M. Rabb has taken the place of David Niles in the White House corps of advisors. Generals Mark Clark and Gerald Van Fleet were unable to win in Korea because their hands were tied by those higher up.

General Van Fleet has accepted retirement from the army in order to go to the Orient to search for his son. The general does not believe his soldier son is dead. He believes he is among the thousands of American prisoners being held as hostages for the Kremlin savages.

FROST UPDIKE, Stockbridge

Gas Control Is Needed

The amendment to blow the lid off the price of natural gas seems worn down to defeat in one of the most stubborn contests Capitol Hill has seen for many a day—and one of it in the headlines.

At the opening of the session the natural gas boys, bright and beaming, seemed as invincible as a steam roller. Finally, after months of hearings, came the committee action on voting out the bill. Amazingly it was a tie, and, therefore, the bill would not be voted out!

But this was a fluke. When the vote was taken, one of the supporters of the bill had gone out for a picture with some Girl Scouts. Think of that! From two to eight hundred million dollars a year at stake between the gas producers and the consumers, and it falls because a member is having his picture taken with a group of Girl Scouts. I don't blame him. Who would disappoint a fine group of Girl Scouts?

With a tenseness so profound that a pin prick might have exploded the whole House Office building, a generous member of our side moved to reconsider. We then voted out the bill by the narrow margin of 15-16. Since that time, the struggle behind the scenes has been going on in the semi-darkness. The bright and beaming gas boys have gotten run over by their own steam roller. We hear rumors they think the fight is lost.

Last January, Superintendent of Schools Clarence Scherer, Mr. Morris, came in my office and asked me to help present the needs of some 20 school systems in Genesee county to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. These schools have been crowded with the children of workers in newly enlarged defense plants. Over the months I have been in touch with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. We were rewarded a few days ago by getting $2,032,020 for 19 schools. Only 3 or 4 school systems in Genesee were turned down.

We hear rumblings in the committee on armed services about a new reserve plan, and other rumblings—even louder, I think—against any such plan for this session.

The 84th congress is being described as "hard working, but colorless." As one member I'm glad to accept the characterization. I think we've done a workmanlike job. And we are taking one bold, new step—or, at any rate, I think we will before the session ends—and that is to start this country on an honest-to-goodness road program. I believe we're going to cut the cloth big enough to make britches for the boy this country has grown to be.

DON HAYWORTH, Sixth District Representative

by granting funds to four major organizations for the purpose.

They are the American Farm Economics association $480, the Benton Harbor Market Board $10,000; the Michigan Bean Shippers association $1,300; the Michigan Beekeepers association, $240.

Clark J. Adams, a Pontiac attorney, should see, right at home in public life again.

He was appointed by Governor Williams as the new fourth circuit judge in Oakland county. He will take office January 1, 1956, and be required to face his first election test the next November.

Slightly abashed at the sudden show of progress, Williams called off his running battle with Ziegler.

"He has developed a reasonable plan," Williams said.

It has been a long haul since last October when Williams and the Democrats made the highway issue a major plank in the party campaign for election.

G. O. P. party leaders plainly were unhappy that Ziegler declined to come up with answers to toss back at Williams.

Through the legislative session of 1955, Ziegler was a storm center. At one point, there was talk of turning over the new highway program to a separate agency.

So now Ziegler comes up with a long-range plan for highways—an impressive presentation showing it must have been in preparation long before the tax bill for $35,000,000 was passed.

Where does that leave politicians next year at the time for vote-gathering?

Republicans can point to Ziegler and take credit for the highway program. Williams will say it wouldn't have been achieved without prodding from Democrats.

That way the motoring public will pay the tax, ride on new roads and accept any explanation they want—if they want one.

Farmers are getting another service from the state and Michigan State university.

The state agricultural commission approved a program creating a swine herd inspection system, complete with certification of herds.

And the commission also gave a boost to the promotion of Michigan agricultural products

Kiwanis Delegates Choose Indiana Man As President

Jackson A. Raney, Indianapolis school executive, has been named president of Kiwanis International. He was elected to the top Kiwanis post June 25 by delegates attending the 40th annual convention in Cleveland.

As head of Kiwanis International, Raney will be official spokesman for almost a quarter million Kiwanians in 4,062 clubs located throughout the United States and Canada, in Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands. He succeeds Don E. Engdahl, Spokane, Washington lumberman.

Raney has devoted most of his professional life to the education of the physically-handicapped. He has been superintendent of the Indiana State School for the Deaf at Indianapolis for 20 years. He is a graduate of Franklin college and a member of its council. Recently, he received the honorary degree of doctor of laws from that institution.

He will serve on the commission until he takes the bench as circuit judge next January 1.

"Adams has always done a good job wherever he served," said one executive office aide. "He will make a lot of friends for himself and do the public a great service."

Legislators are organizing a 15-member study committee to work out the future of higher education in Michigan.

There will be 5 members from each chamber and another 5, composed of businessmen, industrial executives and possibly an educator.

Already a difference of opinion has developed.

Senator Don Vander Werp (R-Fremont) is anxious to aid junior and community colleges while Senator Carlton H. Morris (R-Kalamazoo) goes more for building up 4-year colleges.

The committee will hold hearings in the capitol and around the state during the summer and come up with recommendations for the 1956 legislative session.

"We've got to find the answers," Vander Werp said. "This is a $150,000,000 problem."

J. A. RANEY President-Elect Kiwanis International and Albert J. Tully, Mobile, Alabama, trustees.

President Glen Dunn and Secretary Frank Guerinio of the Mason club were delegates to the Cleveland meeting.

King Orchards Will Be Plowed

Leslie will lose one of its apple orchards. Clinton Farms, owned by Dr. George R. Clinton of Mason, will discontinue its apple business. Bulldozers will pull out the trees on the 57 acres on Eden road and convert the orchard area into crop land.

The May 9 freeze ruined apple prospects for this year, Dr. Clinton said. He explained however, that the freeze was not the determining factor in the decision to plow under the apples. The main factor, he said, was finding someone to manage the orchard and keep it productive. He also needed the land for dairy operations, Dr. Clinton explained.

The late Harry King planted and developed the orchard, once one of the most productive in the state.

TODAY'S Meditation

Chelupper Room
THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Ye must be born again. (John 3:7.) Read II Corinthians 5:17-21.

The most remarkable fact about Jesus' insistence that we must be born again is His assurance that we can be born again. It means new life. We can start all over again.

We have often been told that humanity is waiting for a revolutionary Christianity which will say that the world is evil and then change it. The school, the home, and even the church must be made over. All these must be redeemed by the spirit and power of Christ.

We need the kind of self-surrender, of new birth, that quickens the conscience, opens the heart to God's love, and leads the will to the purpose of God. None of these results will follow unless individuals give their hearts — that is, their love and loyalty — to God. Only God can change man in any deep, radical sense. We do not decide to change our personality and then, with the wave of a wand, presto, change it. We give God the chance to possess us — and use us.

PRAYER
Father, we have too long followed the warped desires of our undisciplined minds and hearts. In our best moments we want to follow the way of Christ. Change us into His likeness by giving Thy direction and love this day. In His name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
God is able to do what I cannot do for myself; I yield myself to Him.

Mrs. Martha Owens of Clewiston, Florida, writes:
This is my testimony in regard to Star Rheumatic Solvent. A few years ago I was bedridden with rheumatic fever. It settled in my knees, eyes and hands and my fingers were sore and covered with bunces.
I had tried everything I had heard of, but without any relief. I had to give up my shell work — that is what I made my living at.
After taking 2 treatments of Star Solvent my eyesight cleared up, soreness left by body and the bunces left my hands. I am now at work and feeling good.

It's Time for Homemakers To Prepare Fair Exhibits

Mrs. Annette Schaeffer, home demonstration agent, states that Ingham homemakers will soon be receiving the 1955 Ingham county fair premium book and entry blank. She suggests that those interested in placing exhibits in the fair, look the classes over carefully in home arts.

The clothing department especially has been revised to include items more generally made by the average homemaker, she says. Ingham women's open class exhibits department at the fair can be one of the best and most modern in the state if every homemaker scans her handwork for suitable items for display. Those wanting to exhibit in other departments may write for a complete fair premium book. Special Project Is Planned Mothers from rural areas are needed to help with a special project to bring safety principles home to the children attending the rural one-room schools of Ingham county, according to Mrs. Schaeffer. In cooperation with the Lansing safety council, the county school superintendent and the rural school teachers, arrangements are being made for a special group of trained mothers to visit every one-room school in the county, show safety films and give a short safety lesson to accompany the film, she said.

This project was endorsed by the county board of education at its recent meeting. Assisting in the project would mean a special day of training to learn how to run a projector and what to say to the children. Plans are under way, that the program may be in operation this fall. A training meeting is tentatively scheduled in August, the week after the fair.

WHERE'S GEORGIA'S PEACHES?—Prices aren't so peachy at Georgia's peach stands this year. Discovering this is Mrs. J. Howard Crane of Atlanta. Lillian Lambert Weds Donald Rice In Church Rites

A pretty and impressive wedding, was that of Miss Lillian Jeanne Lambert, daughter of Mrs. Arthur J. Whitney and the late Joseph P. Lambert, and Donald Ward Rice, son of Floyd Rice and the late Lucy D. Rice, held in the Felt Plains Methodist church, in a double ring standstill service presided by the Rev. John W. Bullock Saturday.

Traditional music was played throughout the service by John Emerson Bullock, Mrs. John W. Bullock sang, "Because and At Dawning and Feetst Thou, Oh Holy Spirit," The congregation joined in singing, "The Lord's Prayer," following Mrs. Bullock's solo.

The bride was given in marriage by her step-father, Arthur J. Whitney.

She wore a ballerina length, very full skirted gown of white lace over satin, made with a fitted bodice, strapless, and worn with a lace jacket. Her fingertip veil was of illusion and hung from a sequin-trimmed lace cap edged with pearls. Her long gloves were white nylon and she carried a lace fan, outlined with stephanotis and pale pink and white rosebuds, which later became her going away corsage. A cascade of lace and ribbon streamers formed from lovers knots fell from the fan.

Her sister, Miss Carolyn Lambert, was her maid of honor. She was dressed in pale pink lace and net over satin, worn over hoops. Her tight bodice was strapless. She wore a lace and net bolero. Her flowers, affixed to a pink lace and net fan, were shatterproof pink and white carnations. She wore a bridesmaid's hat of shirred lace and net trimmed with flowers to match the ones she carried on her fan.

Her bridesmaids were her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Lambert and the groom's twin sister, Mrs. Donald Mull. They wore identical dresses of aqua styled similar to the main of honor's. They also had matching hats and bouquets.

Richard Betcher of Mason served his brother-in-law as best man. The ushers were the bride's brother, John Lambert and Glenn Rice, a cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore shell pink lace with matching hat and white accessories. The bridegroom's stepmother wore pale blue lace with white accessories. Both wore corsages of pale pink rosebuds.

Lindemer Becomes Law Firm Partner

The law firm of Foster, Foster & Campbell of Lansing on Thursday announced additions to the firm and a change of the firm name to Foster, Foster, Campbell & Lindemer. Lawrence B. Lindemer becomes a partner in the firm and Ted W. Swift becomes an associate.

Lindemer has lived in Stockbridge since 1941. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan, receiving his liberal arts and his law degree there, the latter in 1948.

During 1949 and 1950 Lindemer was an assistant prosecutor in Ingham county. He served as a member of the state legislature representing Ingham county's second district in 1951 and 1952.

In November of 1953 he was appointed as assistant to Commissioner Homer Ferguson on the Hoover Commission in Washington. He served under Senator Ferguson and his successor, Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, until the conclusion of the commission's work on June 30. On July 1 Lindemer became a special assistant to Chairman Herbert Hoover and for the next 8 weeks he will be commuting to Washington by air for 2 days each week to work directly for the former president.

Lindemer is a veteran of World War II, a member of the American Legion, Stockbridge Lions club, Stockbridge Presbyterian church, P. & A. M., and other organizations. He is a member of the Ingham county, Federal and American Bar associations and the State Bar of Michigan. In addition to the Michigan supreme court, Lindemer has been admitted to practice by the supreme court of the United States and the United States court of military appeals.

Lawrence B. Lindemer

The firm will also maintain a law office in Stockbridge. Lindemer also is president of the Rural Telephone company at Stockbridge. He and Mrs. Lindemer will continue to live in Stockbridge with their 2 sons.

Swift is a former resident of East Lansing and a graduate of East Lansing high school. He entered DePauw University in 1946 and was graduated in 1950. Upon graduation he was commissioned in the U. S. marine corps as a second lieutenant and served 15 months as an infantry platoon leader and machine gun platoon leader until his promotion to first lieutenant and assignment to the regimental staff. After serving 3 months with the regiment on Vieques Island, Puerto Rico, he was released from active duty in July, 1952, and promoted to the rank of captain in October, 1953.

Swift entered the University of Michigan law school in September, 1952 and was graduated in June, 1955. He is married and resides at Okemos. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lee M. Swift of East Lansing.

Farmer Peck's Wife

Farm is part of us. Farmers heed weather reports. "Flower" folks are understanding.

How much a farmer depends on it.

This project I mentioned will never be seen actually. But the results of tilling improve every aspect of farming. I am thoroughly sold on the benefits of it even if I can't see it. Can this be the same person who said, "All that money down in the ground where no one can see it? It seems like such a lot of money when it will produce as good crops as it does."

That was 10, 8, 6, 5 and 3 years ago. I will never say "too much money for tilling" again. I am not so dense that I can't believe when I've been shown the truth.

Pete grinned all over when I announced this spring, "Let's finish tilling this fall." So now I am looking forward to having the tilling machine making patterns wherever it has to. That may mean a path through the garden at its peak (though there is going to be no real peak this year. Lying so long wet and soggy seems to have soured the very core of what is planted there.)

I am hoping for the tilling to be done in time for rye to be sowed this fall in my garden spot. That would be about the best birthday gift in the world!

One of the nicest persons I know is Mrs. Harlow Bates of rural Bannister. She has a perennial border that is worth seeing . . . and not from the road for it does not run parallel to it. I have driven by slowly for years but the other day we stopped. I wish you could have seen it: not a weed and things looked like God had dropped them from heaven into that selected spot. The dirt was so mellow but she declared it had not always been like that; that it had taken years of working with. She had added sand, humus and kept at it. And her secret was to go out after every rain as soon as it was fit to work in the ground and hoe it to keep it loose and soft. . . . not to wait until it got baked hard on top. This takes her a forenoon to go over it.

Mrs. Bates has children about my age so I look at it this way: I will keep on pecking away and dreaming of tilling you just got to have well-drained soil! and someday I, too, will have a dream garden, like Mrs. Bates'.

The visit with her and the walk around her lawn was a real treat . . . like a garden catalog come to life. Seems as though folks who like flowers are mighty easy to talk to . . . so understanding and human like! Maybe it's getting next to nature and so close to God.

Little Publishes Smallest Paper

Col. E. A. Little, formerly of Holt, has launched another newspaper following a successful operation for removal of cataracts. It is the smallest newspaper in the west. It is called Moonbeams and circulates in Boyes Hot Springs, California.

Little once published the Holt Recorder. He worked for many Michigan publications and is one of the swiftest linotype operators anywhere. After leaving Michigan he launched several California newspapers.

Little's new newspaper is patterned after Swift Lathers' News at Mears, Michigan. It consists of 4 pages each 5 x 7 inches. Advertising in 2-line doses is sandwiched in between news items.

Nature Gives Woodpeckers Built-In Shock Absorbers

Occupational diseases among woodpeckers should logically include scrambled brains, loosened eyeballs and ruptured eardrums. But nature, as usual, has a logic of its own in adapting its creatures to peculiar living habits.

Besides protection against added pates, some woodpeckers have extra climbing toes, spiked tails for bracing against tree trunks, and retractable harpoon tongues that curl up inside the cranium when at rest, according to Walter P. Nickell, naturalist at Cranbrook Institute of Science, Bloomfield Hills.

Hours of daily hammering into trees would jar loose many delicate head membranes if there were not a built-in shock absorber of spongy cartilage between the beak and cranium. This buffer functions in the same manner as the cushion on a catcher's mask softens the impact of a ball striking the iron grillwork.

Most woodpeckers, including the red-headed, pileated, downy and hairy woodpeckers, and the well-known Michigan flicker, have 12 stiff tail feathers to keep them propped in a vertical position on tree trunks, and 4 strong toes, 2 forward and 2 behind.

Despite the staccato tumult he makes, the woodpecker is seldom working as hard as he sounds, for he usually chooses dead trees or the rotten parts of living trees in which to probe for food or to carve out an apartment. Not only is dead wood softer and free from oozing sap, but it contains a richer supply of tasty ants, beetles and grubs.

Destruction of harmful insects is the chief service these birds perform for mankind. Part of the flicker's special equipment is a tongue that can be shot out 2 1/2 inches beyond the end of his bill. This tongue is coated with a sticky saliva for trapping ants, and has a sniny tip for harpooning grubs deep in decayed trees.

Although trees and tall stumps are the most common sites for woodpecker homes, some of the more enterprising birds dig into telephone poles, the siding of barns and the hollow posts supporting house porches. Sawdust and chips from the chipping are used as the basic nest materials onto which eggs are laid.

Cavity-nesting birds such as the woodpecker have much greater success rearing their young than field birds whose nests are open to a wider variety of natural enemies. Woodpeckers, however, are often pestered by red squirrels and starlings who find it easier to drive away the original builders than to dig their own cavities, the Cranbrook scientist points out.

The yellow-bellied sapsucker, which sounds more like an epithet than a bird, is one type woodpecker who may be more trouble than he is worth. He is a tippler, and drills a circular series of holes in living conifers, maples and apple trees to sip the oozy sap. Trees perforated in this manner always grow deformed and often die.

But most species of the colorful and noisy woodpecker tribe are welcomed as useful citizens in the nation's forests, and as such, are protected by law in most states.

The centennial of farm mechanization at Michigan State college is set for August 15-20. One hundred acres of exhibits are scheduled.

AT THE BUTTERFIELD THEATRES

One Thing Men Agree Upon!

It is in the nature of things for men to hold opinions and to argue and dispute.

Football, baseball, politics—guns, golf clubs, breeds in dogs . . . name a best, and you have an argument.

And so it goes through boats and trains—and horses and tennis and makes of planes.

But when it comes to motor cars, you'll seldom get an argument if you name CADILLAC as the car of cars.

That's about as close as men come to universal agreement. And with good reason.

Who could look about him at the various styles in motor cars—and not give the nod to Cadillac for its great dignified silhouette?

Who could take the wheel of this dynamic performer—with a hundred horsepower added to its engine for safety alone—and not crown it the king of the highway?

Who could relax in its luxurious comfort for a mile or five hundred—and fail to recognize it as the finest riding car on the highways?

And who could look back over its illustrious past—or look about him at the people who own it today—and not acclaim it as the most distinguished car in the automotive world?

We feel assured that you, yourself, are aware that Cadillac is the car of cars. But that is but part of the wonderful Cadillac story for 1955.

There are economy—and value—and dependability. There are long life—and resale value—and freedom from repairs. And there are all the other sound, practical reasons for owning a Cadillac.

Come in and see us. We'll give you the whole story—and the keys to a car. Thirty minutes at the wheel . . . and you'll understand why there's no argument about a Cadillac!

Picnics are Popular Custom Among American Families

By Mrs. Annette Schaeffer
Home Demonstration Agent

Picnics are a way of life for the average American family. Now that the season for picnics has arrived, we're here to sing praises for the popular custom. Each year the increase in attendance at the public parks testifies to the fact that having a picnic is part of the great American way.

Some families have picnics just as an escape from regular routine, most all enjoy eating outside. It has become increasingly popular for the homemakers in today's small homes to entertain large numbers of friends and relatives using the whole outdoors as background. Picnics are especially popular for the young couples who relax more when their small children can't get into quite so much mischief. Eating outdoors on a picnic saves much of the hurried homemaker with her eye on the clock—if she plans it right.

Whatever the reason, picnics are fun whether it's a potluck with everyone sharing the burden of preparation beforehand or a hamburger barbecue on the beach or back yard. Everyone looks forward to the meal out of doors.

Some families seem to picnic more easily than others. They point out that previous preparation for the picnic is the secret. If they've mapped out their routines of preparation, packing up and going on a picnic is so much easier to do.

First, they say, every family interested in outdoor eating should have some of the special versatile equipment that makes packing easy. Under this category comes picnic baskets, large thermos jugs and bottles, carriers of cold food. Sometimes a camp stove is needed, charcoal

They should be stored together, kept in good condition. Time is lost chasing around looking for a cork for the thermos jug at the last minute. These families keep a constant supply of paper dishes, canned foods and beverages that can be packed at a moment's notice.

For example, if plates are needed, there's no need to make a special trip to the store to buy them for one specific picnic. Frozen food supplies can be ready for a moment's notice at any time.

Foods prepared and brought along should be simple as can be. Why bring an apple pie when fresh apples are in season? Utilizing foods in their natural state cuts down on preparation time. Fresh cleaned carrots, cantaloupe and bananas all have their place.

These families concentrate on foods that will not spoil easily. For example, hard cooked eggs keep for hours without refrigeration—that's why they make a good ingredient for the picnic basket. Thanks to the protection of both the shell and the paper-like lining underneath, they can be just cooked and chilled. On the other hand, peeled eggs or deviled eggs need to be kept cold to be safe against spoilage. It just takes a couple of hours in a warm picnic basket for eggs to become spoiled and also mixtures to become hazardous. Remember, cook them—don't boil them.

Do your casseroles and cake pans fit your packing containers? Packing can be quite a chore if you have to hunt down containers that fit spaces.

Lastly, take plenty of newspapers and a tablecloth that is easily cleaned. Plastic ones can be wiped off and stored with the picnic supplies. One homemaker rolls an old cloth on a broom handle and is always ready with a tablecloth.

Then, in most of these families, every member has something to do when a picnic is coming up. One packs the car, another rounds up needed jackets, swim suits, games and sports equipment. Some prepare the foods, others straighten up the house and lock up. Still another member washes up the final dishes and perhaps feeds and makes arrangements for pets.

Yes, picnics can be fun. You guessed it, too. We were one of the thousands of families who picnicked over the glorious Fourth!

There were no parades, we had to be careful to remind our youngsters that there was real meaning to the holiday. Such an

Church to Have Gospel Team at Special Program

A gospel team from the Kansas City Bible college will present a program of sacred song, testimony and message at the North Aurelius church, Friday, July 8, at 8 p. m. The team is composed of the college girls ensemble, featuring harmonious gospel singing, and Rev. Wendell Groat, the speaker.

Mr. Groat, a graduate this spring at the Kansas City Bible college, is a pastor and popular youth preacher. Mrs. Groat is accompanying her husband. The members of the ensemble are: Jerry Spicher, Evelyn Patterson, Doris Heldenbrand, Mary Higgins, Phyllis Wiebe, Edna Meek and Gayle Mann, pianist.

The purpose of the team is to present the Gospel in song and word and to encourage young people to seek training for Christian service.

Kansas City Bible college, an interdenominational school founded in 1932 by Dr. Walter L. Wilson, offers an educational program for the training of full-time Christian workers and also of laymen who desire to equip themselves for more effective service in the church.

The school is an accredited member of the Accrediting Association of Bible Institutes and Bible colleges, and is approved by the State Department of Education for the training of veterans. It offers courses in 4 fields of emphasis—theology, Christian education, music and missions—leading to the degree of bachelor of arts in Biblical education or bachelor of sacred music. A regularly established night school provides classes for church workers and laymen who cannot attend the day sessions. The college has been located at 75th and State Line since 1945.

The second of 10 union services to be conducted by the Mason Methodist and Presbyterian churches through the summer will be Sunday at 10 a. m. at the Methodist church. Rev. Paul L. Arnold, pastor of the Presbyterian church will speak. His topic is The Psalm of Godliness. The host choir will render special music.

ALL MIXED UP

Johnny's all mixed up! His coat rumbled and twisted! Buttons all wrong!

Do you know what Johnny's trouble is? He got a bad start. He poked the first button in the wrong hole.

You see, that first button is all-important. Unless Johnny gets that one right, the other buttons will never follow in pattern.

Johnny's first years are all-important, too. Without the proper Christian training, Johnny will get all mixed up inside. He will learn bad habits, dishonesty, untruthfulness. His life will become rumbled and twisted.

Bring your Johnny to Sunday School and Church. Help Johnny to a right start. The rest of his life will follow in the Christian pattern.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Training Camp for F.H.A. Members Convenes at Lake

Tenth annual leadership training camp for Michigan Future Homemakers of America convened June 19-25 at the Michigan Education association camp at St. Marys lake, Battle Creek.

Those attending from Webberville were Barbara Lambert, Carmen Snyder and Mrs. Catherine Nelson. The purpose of the camp, to train leaders in F. H. A., was carried out through discussions and meetings pointing out the characteristics of good chapters and officers and through demonstrations on initiations and installation of new members and officers. Plans were made for the future regional officers workshop in the fall.

Camp sessions were also filled with individual and group recreational activities such as crafts, swimming and square dancing.

The highlights of camp were the banquet and the candle float on the lake just as darkness fell. Each candle symbolized a certain purpose or goal to be carried out by each chapter.

Michigan Association of Future Homemakers of America in connection with the state department of public instruction sponsored the camp. Miss Wayne Granger and Mrs. Thelma Graper served as directors.

Lunch and group singing completed the work and fun-packed camp activities.

Counties and Cities Share In Extra Highway Revenue

Michigan counties and cities can expect their first payment of additional road money from the new highway construction program in October.

Under the new plan, which went into effect June 1, counties will share an estimated $6,000,000 and cities $3,000,000 more yearly than they are getting now.

Because payments are to be made quarterly, the first of the new money will be distributed sometime in October.

This is in addition to the counties' 37 per cent share and the cities' 19 per cent share of the regular motor vehicle fund.

"There has been some misunderstanding about the allocation of funds to local units of government under the new program and some fear that the counties and cities were being cut," said Senator Haskell L. Nichols, of Jackson, chairman of the senate highway committee. "Actually, they will receive more money than they are getting now. The distribution of money under the Motor Vehicle Fund—which includes 4 1/2 cents of the gasoline tax—was not touched by the new program. The same percentage of distribution will apply—41 per cent to the state highway department, 37 per cent to the counties and 19 per cent to the cities.

"The money allocated to counties and cities under the new program is in addition to those funds," Nichols said. "Furthermore, as state trunkline construction comes under the new program, more of the state highway department's share of the old funds can be spent on roads not named in the new act.

"Thus, there will be more money all around to build the roads Michigan needs—state trunklines, county roads and city streets. This program will benefit all the people as it gets into full operation.

Tarzan Story Heads Fox Film Fare

Action set against a backdrop of Equatorial Africa's big game country makes "Tarzan's Hidden Jungle" at the Fox Theatre sure-fire fun. It will be at the Fox on Friday and Saturday as the first part of the double bill.

Gordon Scott, 11th star to portray the always-popular Jungle hero, heads a cast which includes Vera Miles as the nurse of Peter Van Eyck, a doctor who operates a hospital in the African jungle under United Nations auspices.

Plot concerns the attempt of an unscrupulous white hunter to drive the game from a hitherto protected area for his own enrichment. He almost succeeds but for the timely intervention of Tarzan.

As the new Tarzan Gordon Scott appears headed for a long career portraying the well-known and well-loved character. He combines a lithe, powerful physique with conviction and appeal. Vera Miles, as the nurse who tries to protect her native charges, lends beauty and ability to the exciting story while Peter Van Eyck is admirably cast as the well-meaning but unknowing aid of the scheming hunter played by Jack Elam.

An adventure story set in colorful Mexico, "The White Orchid," is the second attraction on the Friday and Saturday program.

Starring Peggy Castle as an alluring photographer, William Lundigan as an archeologist, and introducing Armando Silvestre as his guide, the picture tells the story of a desperate, danger-ridden search for a lost civilization.

Nora Webster, one of the carnival girls of Hoosier Amusement Co., was arrested last Thursday for larceny of clothes and spoons from the residence of Mrs. D. W. Davis, where she was rooming. She was given a sentence of 30 days in jail. As far as known, this was her first offense or the sentence would undoubtedly have been heavier.

Miss Grace Walter was crowned queen by Mayor Root on Saturday afternoon during the carnival sponsored by the fire department. The queen was also given a fine opal and diamond ring and the 2 closest runners-up, Miss Rena Lincoln and Miss Jean McDonald, were given prizes. Allie Braman returned to Dansville last Thursday from California, looking well and hearty.

In English amusement parks, small cans of peaches, complete with opener and spoon, are sold in large numbers, and they compete favorably with hot dogs and ice cream in volume of sales. The American Indian also admires the canned peach, and uses it on any and all occasions possible.

188-hp Buick SPECIAL 6-Passenger, 4-Door RIVIERA, Model 43

This 4-Door Beauty is the Newest Hit in Hardtops

You certainly ought to come see why this new kind of hardtop is headed for the best-seller list. It's a Buick Riviera, of course. Which means the low and rakish look of a Convertible—a solid steel roof overhead—and no center posts in the side window areas to obstruct your view. But that's only the beginning. Here you get two extra doors. They open to the rear compartment. So no one in the front has to move when someone gets into or out of the rear. Here you get massive half-pillars on either side on which the front doors latch and the rear doors hinge. (That's why you see no center posts above the door line.) Here, too, you get wholly new structural principles in body design and strength that give this beauty the extra safety of rock-firm solidity at the top, sides and bottom. And here—bless those Buick engineers!—you get a lot more room in the rear compartment. For the 4-Door Riviera gives you over 9 inches more hiproom and 5 inches more legroom—yet with no increase in wheelbase or over-all car length. So we repeat—you certainly ought to come in and see this stunning new kind of hardtop.

It's the last word in beauty, comfort, convenience. It's available in Buick's two lowest-priced Series—the SPECIAL and the CENTURY. And it's all Buick—power, ride, handling—and the spectacular performance of Buick's Variable Pitch Dynaflo.* Drop in today—tomorrow at the latest—and learn what Buick's all-time record sales year can mean to you in the way of a whopping-big trade-in deal. *Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on ROADMASTER, optional at modest extra cost on other Series.

Thrill of the year is Buick

If You Seek a Beautiful -

Michigan's great seal sets forth the motto of Michigan, written in Latin - "si quaeris peninsulam amoenam circumspice." It means, "If you seek a pleasant peninsula, look about you."

To many people the motto seems to mean only the view from the Straits of Mackinac or from Mackinac Island, or the Blue Water Bridge at Port Huron. They believe that only the curving shores of the Great Lakes and the expanses of blue water, or only the forests in the north country, are beautiful. They are beautiful, of course, yet to many people from away the most pleasant part of Michigan is made up of southern counties where corn and wheat and beans flourish, where herds of dairy and beef cattle roam lush pastures, where on muck lands rows of onions or potatoes or mint stretch to the horizons, where well kept buildings attest to the industry and progressiveness of farmers.

Handsome is as handsome does. What makes southern Michigan so pleasant is not just the balmy breezes, the sparkling lakes and rivers, the green of the trees. Life is made pleasant by the fertile fields, by the planning and toil of farmers, by good crops.

If you seek a pleasant peninsula look about you. A few flowers planted about the house. The pile of junk hauled to the dump. New coats of paint to the barns and house. All of us can make the view and the prospects more pleasant.

State Traffic on Local Roads

Ingham has no reason to find fault with State Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler's long-range plans for the county. Right off quick the plans call for widening US-127 and US-16. Under that plan M-78 and US-27 will also be improved. All those roads are among the most heavily traveled in the state.

Yet there's another angle to a state system of roads. If more state trunklines were provided some of the present ones would not have to carry such heavy loads. There's still another in Ingham county. That's the knowledge of short cuts between trunklines possessed by truckers.

Truckers between Flint and Jackson and south to Ohio cut across on Okemos road from US-127 at Mason to M-78 north of Lake Lansing. Many haulers take Waverly road to the west of Lansing to by-pass Lansing, thus cutting across lots from US-127 to US-16. Another Ingham county road which carries trunkline traffic is Stockbridge road. It provides a cutoff between Jackson and Saginaw and Bay City and increasingly it is being used for heavy hauling. The south end of M-47 is at Grand River road (US-16) between Williamston and Webberville. The trunkline ends there but the truckers go on. They swing east a mile and then travel Stockbridge road to reach M-36, follow along to M-92 and thence to M-106 for Ann Arbor one way or Jackson the other.

Howell road and Columbia west of Mason serve as main state highways. If given trunkline designation they would carry even more state traffic.

These alternate routes now carry heavy traffic. Actually they serve as state trunklines with the entire cost of construction and maintenance borne by the county.

Of course, all the money for road construction and road maintenance in Ingham comes from state gasoline and weight taxes, except for the comparatively small shares of townships in local highways. And that money comes from state sales taxes. State trunklines, though, are built and maintained by the state directly, relieving counties of all financial responsibility, permitting them to use their own state money for local roads. On most miles of county road the travel is almost entirely local. Some other local roads are carrying trunkline traffic. Perhaps a program could be worked out for greater state aid on county roads which now carry trunkline traffic. Under any such program Ingham could be relieved of a heavy burden on many miles now built and maintained entirely out of Ingham's individual share of highway money.

Growth Isn't the Answer

Big populations live by big ordinances. As the population grows, so grows the long lists of can't-do regulations. That's one of the comforting things about living in small towns like Mason where still is to be found room for personal judgment and responsibility.

Mason is growing. But growth is not to be glorified just for growth alone. Because without exception, growth of any town means more problems, bigger slums, more lawlessness and other less desirable qualities.

If growth is the answer to happiness, then we would all be right in moving to New York, Chicago or Detroit.

But growth, as such, isn't the answer.

Mason will have growth whether or not we want it. That's why we should plan now for the kind of big town we want Mason to be. The right regulations or the absence of them can make the difference.

Mason people look to the Mason city council for the growth pattern. If Mason appeals to industry, hap-hazard subdivisions, good housing development or bad, it's usually the result of council action.

All of us, including councilmen, should make sure that the continued growth of Mason is not without benefit.

It's a fact, we will pay the price for a bigger Mason with more controls and infringements of personal rights. Let's make sure we get our money's worth and retain the desirable things that make Mason a good family town.

The Glorious Fourth

There are people who talk about the Glorious Fourth of earlier days. They sometimes bemoan the fact that firecrackers, roman candles, skyrocketes and bombs of various kinds are now outlawed in Michigan and most of the other 48 states. Some of them talk about the mean old fire insurance companies, blaming the insurance interests for spoiling good clean fun.

On Sunday, the day before the Fourth, a Detroit visitor at Leslie decided to celebrate. She lighted a firecracker and tossed it outside the door, unaware that her 18-months-old daughter was there.

Doctors are hopeful that the child's vision may not be permanently impaired.

What glory will the explosion of that firecracker bring to the mother or the daughter?

It was to prevent such useless waste of vision, such terrible and often fatal burns and tetanus infections, such horrible maiming, that legislators decided to ban fireworks. How much happier the Leslie visitors would be today had the mother obeyed the law enacted for the protection of her child.

Down by the SYCAMORE

Women who have been laughed at for wearing slacks and shorts are now joining in laughter at men in short pants and long stockings. At Houghton Lake and Mt. Pleasant Saturday the men with the new look were out in numbers, and even at Greenville Monday several men were self-consciously mincing around in the new garb.

In my own opinion, subject to revision, the men now wearing the knee pants and stockings are of that age which graduated from diapers directly into long pants. Before World War I the transition was gradual. After the diaper stage for boys there were dresses for a year or so, then knee pants with decorative buttons on the sides outside the knees. Then came knickerbockers until the seventh grade for big boys and the eighth or ninth for boys who developed more slowly.

One of the big advantages, of course, was that mothers could take a pair of hand-me-downs from relatives and convert them into pants for her sons. In fact, only youngsters from wealthy families wore store pants, even at the knickerbocker stage. The main difference in styling was that made-over pants usually had elastic bands below the knees, while store knickerbockers had cloth bands with saw-toothed buckles.

Men are no more consistent than women about dress. If they wear the walking shorts just in order to keep cool, why do they wear long stockings, too?

During vacation season keep off US-27 north of St. Johns, if possible. I traveled 100 miles of that stretch both ways Saturday and never drove in worse traffic. Vacationers towing boats and house trailers add to the congestion. Because there are so many hills and curves, passing of the elongated units becomes hazardous. Cars run bumper to bumper in half-mile trains. Average speeds Saturday were less than 40 miles per hour.

Until Saturday's trip I had difficulty visualizing the 1955 production of 5,000,000 automobiles. Now I realize what the pace has to be in order to keep automobile graveyards along the tourist routes filled. The big one at the Clare-Roscommon county line has become a village. Coopersort is the name, according to a sign recently erected.

Main tourist routes in Michigan are being made hideous with billboards. They should be placed only in locations where what they hide is even more hideous than the boards themselves. That would include automobile graveyards.

Michigan's greatest tourist need is decent restaurants. I was on the road for 2 days, one trip north and another into west Michigan, and failed to find good food. Perhaps it was available but I didn't find it and I tried hard.

Mason has a tourist possibility yet unrecognized. That's water. Fortunately or unfortunately our water doesn't show. There are no big lakes in sight. We haven't yet dared launch an adequate park system along our rivers and creeks. Our water is deep under the ground. But if tourists generally knew where they could buy such drinking water they would flock into Mason. At least that's what Colin C. Hoffmann, commercial attaché at the German consulate in Detroit, declared Sunday afternoon. After adding his blessing to the shipment of helpers for Germany, he came to my house to wash up and relax before returning to Detroit. He was enthusiastic about the water. He drank it straight from the tap and called it the best he had tasted on 3 continents.

U. S. army sanitarians with their penchant for dumping chlorine into water took the pleasure out of sipping it in Germany, Hoffmann said.

At Greenville Monday we called on the Bob Howards. Once with the Ingham County News advertising staff, Bob is now advertising manager for Dale Stafford's Greenville Daily News. He and his wife and 2 sons have a new home high on a hill on the south edge of town. Joe Carrow, another Michigan State advertising trainee who worked a summer on the Ingham County News, was with Bob until a few months ago. He's now in Germany as a civilian to help sort out refugees coming to the U. S. Joe is still unmarried.

Greenville has a clean lake right at its city limits and a bathing beach maintained by the city. It's all free—the swimming, and the use of bath houses.

The Ionia-Belding apple district was hard hit by the May 9th freeze. In many of the big orchards scarcely an apple is now visible. This is going down in history as one of the poorest apple years.

I haven't seen all the beautiful sights in Michigan but in my opinion there's no sightlier view than Ionia, approaching from the south on M-66. It has an Alpine setting, nestled there along the banks of the Grand with green-clad high hills on either side. The man who named Michigan's longest river might have stood there on M-66 when the name came to him. He surely didn't stand on Michigan avenue bridge in Lansing.

The people's right to know should not be confined to governmental affairs. When in Mason they have a right to know how to get on the roads to Charlotte Howell and M-78. Mason ought to put up a batch of signs pointing the way. Strangers would appreciate them and business men who are so frequently asked the routes wouldn't have to draw so many maps.

On West Ash is a sign indicating the route and distance to Pinckney. Without meaning to hurt the sensibilities of Pinckney people, few people show interest in either bit of information. The sign might better indicate that the route leads to Stockbridge and Ann Arbor.

Book Talk

Summer hours, effective immediately, at the Mason branch of the Ingham county library: Monday through Friday 2-5 p. m.; Saturday, 10-1; Tuesday and Thursday, 7-9 p. m.

Remember way back 3 or 4 weeks ago when school was just out, and you swore you were not going to do another thing all summer but lie in the shade with a tall glass of lemonade and a good love story or western? All right in moderation, the effect of an overdose can be about the same as too much candy.

Probably most of the older high school people, at least, feel like something a bit more substantial. Let's take a look at the new adult books that might be interesting. Now that dad's repairing the boat and mom's canning, these shelves are overflowing so there is a good choice.

Laura Fermi's ATOMS IN THE FAMILY is a wife's-eye view of the most interesting parts of the story in her account of the reaction on wives and families when news of Hiroshima came out.

A different kind of biography is Walter Havighurst's ANNIE OAKLEY-OR THE WILD WEST, the story of the lively little sharp-shooter and her showman husband, Frank Butler.

Robert L. Scott's BETWEEN THE ELEPHANT'S EYES tells the story of an elephant hunt with increasing suspense and a surprise ending. Don't let a slow start make you miss a good book.

MY ZOO FAMILY began the day when Mrs. Martin's husband, headkeeper of the lion house at the Bronx zoo, brought her a new-born lion cub and asked her to save its life. There followed a succession of baby animals—leopards, lions, monkeys, deer, gorillas and more. Even the most untamable she won with kindness. Mrs. Martin's story is lively and amusing but more informative than many popular type books.

Want to remake your personality before you go off to college this fall? Try John Robert Powers SECRETS OF CHARM. It says here the instructions are simple, concise, and easily followed.

Older girls who enjoy stories of the theater will like GERTRUDE LAWRENCE AS MRS. A: AN INTIMATE BIOGRAPHY OF THE GREAT STAR, by her husband Richard Aldrich. This starts with their marriage where her autobiography A STAR DANCED left off.

BORN TO PLAY BALL is Willie Mays' story as told to Charles Einstein—lively and exuberant, good reading to raise anyone's spirits.

For more about the outfit for which Willie plays try Thomas Meany's INCREDIBLE GIANTS—brief profiles of current players rather than history.

Will Oursler's BOY SCOUT STORY tells the history of Scouting in America since its incorporation in 1910 plus the accomplishments of some famous Scouts. Published by GUIDEPOSTS and edited by Norman Vincent Peale FAITH MADE THEM CHAMPIONS is a collection of short sketches about well-known persons, many of them athletes, who overcame obstacles, and achieved success through positive attitudes and Christian faith.

Harrison Evans' Salsbury spent 6 years from 1949 to 1954 in the Soviet Union as correspondent for the New York Times. Now out from under censorship he tells about his observations in Moscow, Siberia, and Central Asia during the terror-filled years before Stalin's death and of the relaxing of police rule that followed. He writes mostly of the daily life of the Russian people. Read his story in AMERICAN IN RUSSIA.

In case you still have a taste for "summer reading" come in and look around. There is a new supply of that, too, at the Ingham county library.

Accepting the Yoke

Now that the wheat farmers of the country have approved marketing quotas on the 1956 crop by a majority substantially higher than the required two-thirds, various "experts" are busy analyzing this particular bit of current history.

Because of a ground swell of resentment against the mandatory acreage controls outside the big wheat states of the Southwest, some of the analysts were led into pre-referendum guesses that farmers might reject government controls over their business.

The resentment is genuine, particularly against some of the truly irritating features of the control program. For example, a farmer who never has taken a nickel under the wheat price support program and who wants to grow grain to feed poultry or livestock, finds himself subject to cash penalties if he exceeds an acreage allotment in excess of 15 acres. He may not plan to offer the grain on the open market in competition with wheat grown under controls, but the penalties apply just the same.

The farmers are pictured as the great rugged individualists of America, and certainly all of them resent their government telling them how many acres they can seed to a particular crop.

What the vote really shows is that, while the farmers may have a high regard for their freedom of choice in conducting their operations, they are willing to accept the yoke of government restrictions rather than see the bottom drop out of wheat prices.

The referendum was something of a milestone in the development of the relationship between the farmer and his government.

In the wheat quota vote held last year (affecting the 1955 crop) the majority of the farmers favoring the restrictions reached a new low point. Had the trend established in that election continued through last Saturday, the quota system would have been rejected. But, as a matter of fact, the percentage favoring quotas jumped from 73% in 1954 to 77% in 1955.

The only possible conclusion to be drawn from the reversal of the trend is that so long as the government holds a vast surplus of wheat and the alternative to controls is a sharply reduced price, farmers will go right on accepting the restrictions.

The government's price and production policies through the years have led the farmer into a mess he can't get out of on his own. About all he can do now is ride along from year to year, voting controls on himself and taking whatever price aid the government offers.

The story of the farm program is a prime example of how government controls can be established by easy stages. The victim trades benefits for restrictions and awakens one day to find there is no easy road back.

The whole thing began back in the Hoover administration when the old federal farm board first attempted the experiment of bolstering wheat prices by buying up surplus grain. With only limited funds and no power to control acreage, the farm board quickly ran into trouble. The project collapsed, and wheat prices went their way.

The new deal experimented with several farm price control devices and finally returned to the old idea of buying the surpluses. In the meantime, worrying about the national debt had ceased to be fashionable so the government didn't have to bother with limits on what it could spend. Crop restrictions also were written into the price support law.

The new scheme went sour, however, because of the lack of one vital element and a surplus of another. Courage was the missing link in the new plan and partisan or sectional politics was the factor in oversupply.

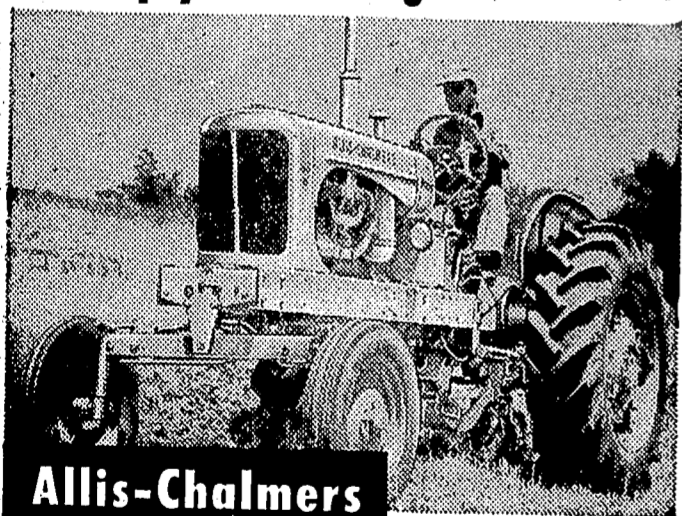

The new idea might have worked if congress had had the courage to impose acreage limits on growers, or invoke the flexible price support device before more than a year's supply of wheat was piled up in the government's hands.

Action to invoke mandatory acreage controls by calling a referendum of the growers came too late to be really effective. And even then the limits on production were not reduced to the point where real inroads could be made on the surplus.

The farmers who voted to give up their freedom of choice in exchange for a guaranteed price may not yet realize that they are near or beyond the point of no return in their partnership with the government.

And they may not understand just how it all came about. But there they are. — Jackson Citizen Patriot.

State's Biggest Barn Houses Steers

What is believed to be Michigan's largest barn was recently completed near Adrian on the cattle farm operated by Victor Kinterlin and Jack Ridley. Covering an area bigger than a football field, the pole-frame building erected by Tri-County Farm Service of Lansing is 360 feet long by 76 feet in width. It is designed to handle 1,000 steers at a time.

Engaged in what is believed to be the state's biggest cattle-feeding operation, Ridley and Kinterlin predict that the new barn in addition to existing facilities will enable them to feed-out over 6,000 steers annually. Feeding managers extend 26 rods. Self-unloading wagons distribute the feed the full length of the barn through a center alley running

Avoid Valve Trouble With Good Lubrication

An Illinois farm machinery specialist says that one-fourth of all the tractors on Illinois farms have some kind of valve trouble. The secret of trouble-free operation is to keep the valves cool and well lubricated. Here are his suggestions for helping to reduce valve troubles in a tractor:

1. Don't overload the tractor. Continued operation at overload causes high valve temperatures and valve failure. Let the tractor idle a few minutes after heavy work. Idling lets the valves and oil cool while the parts are still moving.
2. Keep the cooling system clean and in first-class repair. Use clean water in the radiator; add a rust preventive if the water is hard. Keep the fan belt tight and the entire system free from rust and dirt.
3. Check the exhaust system to make sure it's not restricted by a damaged pipe or a plugged muffler. Place a tin can over the exhaust stack when you're not using the tractor.

4. Don't store gasoline for more than 4 months. After that, it may deteriorate. Drain storage tanks when they are not in use. Drain carburetors and fuel tanks or engines that will not be used for several months.
5. If a valve overhaul is necessary, see that your mechanic does a good repair job and uses standard replacement parts.

their livestock can use, suggests Harrison. It's a good practice to leave second cutting forage to plow down as green manure for corn or other crops next year. If more good forage is grown than is used, this practice can be increased with added row crop crops.

A farmer who relies on poor permanent pasture may find that it forces him to let livestock overgraze good hay fields. In the end, he will see the loss in lowered milk production and damage to forage plants.

Pastures Pay

In the hot, dry mid-summer spell when native pastures are not productive, dairy cows drop in production, too, unless farmers have a plan to offset dry pasture. Ranting added permanent pasture acres seldom pays. Carter M. Harrison, forage crops specialist at Michigan State university, says cows should get their forage needs on the smallest possible pasture with the least effort so they will have time to rest and can save their energy to make milk. On a big, but low-yielding pasture area, a cow must work day and night to get her food.

"Added acreage per cow might work," Harrison admits, "if we could hang a combine muzzle on the cow and increase her speed to 25 miles per hour so she could cover enough ground in a short time."

Most farms have second-cutting hay fields ready for mid-July pasture and usually they contain forage plants with deep roots and more drought resistance than the permanent pasture grasses. They may help bridge the gap during low production of bluegrass, alfalfa and red clover, alone or with grass, should make excellent pasture compared to permanent pasture.

Hay fields should have a month's rest after the first cutting before dairy cows are turned in. This allows plant recovery and a build-up of feeding material. Grazing too soon on short plants cuts production and hurts the stands. The month's wait also will offset dry weather effects on use of the fields. If rain is adequate to keep permanent pasture productive, delay use of the hay fields. Milk output is a good barometer. Pasture on second cutting runs about half or less the production of the hay removed in the first cutting, Harrison points out, and so cows need a bigger area for the slack rainfall period. Allow an acre per cow for a month-to-6-weeks period of grazing as a yardstick.

Surplus forage is better than too close grazing—any forage not eaten will give green manure benefits for row crops in rotation.

The practice of pasturing new seedlings after grain has been cut, should be discouraged, the MSU farm crops specialist states. It gives a minimum of feed and damages the stand. The loss will be felt in less hay and pasture next year.

Ambassadors Under I.F.Y.E. Will Gather

America's youthful good-will ambassadors and 75 of their counterparts from foreign lands will assemble at Michigan State August 4-7.

The 150 Americans to be at the convention are those who have lived abroad with farm families under the International Farm Youth Exchange program. Seventeen IFYE alumni in Michigan will be hosts to that fourth annual national meeting.

"America in Perspective: What Makes Americans Tick?" is the conference theme. Dean Allen, Gratiot county 4-H club agent and state coordinator of the meeting, says the group will share and discuss ways to further the IFYE program and to bolster understanding and good-will between foreign countries and the United States.

Since the program started, a total of 512 IFYE delegates have visited in 41 foreign countries and 498 exchanges have been guests in U. S. farm homes.

Vaccinations Won't Always Prevent Bangs

Calthood vaccination will help prevent Bangs, but it's not enough to give complete immunity, according to M. H. Avery, Ingham county agricultural agent.

To get complete prevention, good management, care of animals and close attention to calving all are necessary, he says.

Dr. Glen Reed, extension veterinarian at Michigan State university cites this experiment by the U. S. department of agriculture at Beltsville, Maryland. One group of calves was vaccinated, another wasn't. Both groups were given a small drop of fetal fluid from an infected cow. None of the vaccinated calves got the disease while several of the unvaccinated animals did.

But when 2 similar groups of calves were given 5 to 15 drops of the contaminated fetal fluid, all of the animals, including the vaccinated ones caught the disease. That means, Dr. Reed points

Name Change Is Effective

Michigan State college at East Lansing, now celebrating its 100th birthday, became Michigan State university, effective July 1.

"Farmers and rural people who have looked to East Lansing for information and service for so many years will still find the 'college' coming their way," remarked T. K. Cowden, dean of the college of agriculture. He pointed out that many of the bulletins, folders and other publications bearing the "Michigan State college" seal or name are still in stock.

Shiawassee Farmer Finds Hobby Pays

How a farmer put a hobby to work and eliminated many of his tedious, back-breaking jobs—that's the story of the Russell Jenkinson farm—one of the stops on the Michigan farm management tour on August 4.

It's also a story of how new ideas, quick adoption of modern farming practices and a bit of Yankee ingenuity have paid off.

The Jenkinsons operate a 240-acre, 25-cow farm near Corunna in Shiawassee county. The cows' product is channeled through a glass pipeline milker from a modern milking parlor.

Jenkinson, with typical ingenuity, made some of his equipment do 2 jobs. Since he has to have a milk cooler to have a good quality product, he found that the gadget is also a made-to-order heat pump.

The milk cooler compressor then heats the milkhouse in winter.

Gratiot Hosts Sheep Meet

Management of a flock of 260 commercial ewes will be one of the highlights of the annual state sheep field day scheduled for Thursday, July 14, at the Lester Allen farm 2 miles north and a half mile east of Ithaca in Gratiot county beginning at 10:00 a. m.

Included in the program will be demonstrations on grading market lambs and wool, parasite control, spraying, dipping, foot trimming and the use of a horizontal silo from which grass silage is self-fed. The Allen flock is composed chiefly of Western ewes bred to Suffolk, Cheviot and Corriedale rams.

A Michigan State researcher believes the average red clover seed yield in Michigan can be doubled.

Breeders Fill Two Posts

The Michigan Artificial Breeders cooperative has named a field service-public relations manager and a manager of plant operations at its Michigan State headquarters.

Frank Helm of Jackson, MABC president, said E. A. (Pip) Werner, former district extension supervisor, is the field service-public relations manager, and Fred Dombroske is the plant manager. The latter has been with the organization for more than 10 years.

The positions were created to replace the late A. C. Baltzer, MABC secretary-manager, who formed the organization in 1944.

Helm announced that Byron Carpenter will continue to serve as fieldman for the artificial breeders organization which serves Michigan dairymen.

Since Secretary-Manager Baltzer's death last February, an executive committee from the board of directors, aided by Dombroske and Carpenter, has handled the MABC operations. The new appointments were effective July 1.

Farm Accidents Have Killed 79 Just This Year

Seventy-nine farm people have died in accidents in Michigan during 1955—4 more than last year, according to figures released by the Michigan health department.

This, says M. H. Avery, Ingham county agricultural agent, emphasizes the need for farm safety week, July 24-30, and observance of safety all through the year.

Statewide, farm machinery again was the biggest killer, taking 20 lives. And 17 of these deaths involved tractors. Twelve people were killed when tractors overturned.

A tractor fell on a girl of 6. A boy of 4 fell to his death off a tractor. A boy of 10 was drowned as he was pinned under a tractor which had turned over in a creek.

Three other farm machinery accidents brought death. One included a boy of one year who was crushed by a bulldozer. A man of 64 who was run over by a grain drill and a man of 60 who had his arms caught in a posthole digger.

Falls caused the next largest number of deaths—12. Firearms and blows from falling objects caused 10 deaths each. Drowning caused 5 deaths.

Farm safety week, Avery stresses, is an opportunity for Ingham farm people to organize to reduce accidents.

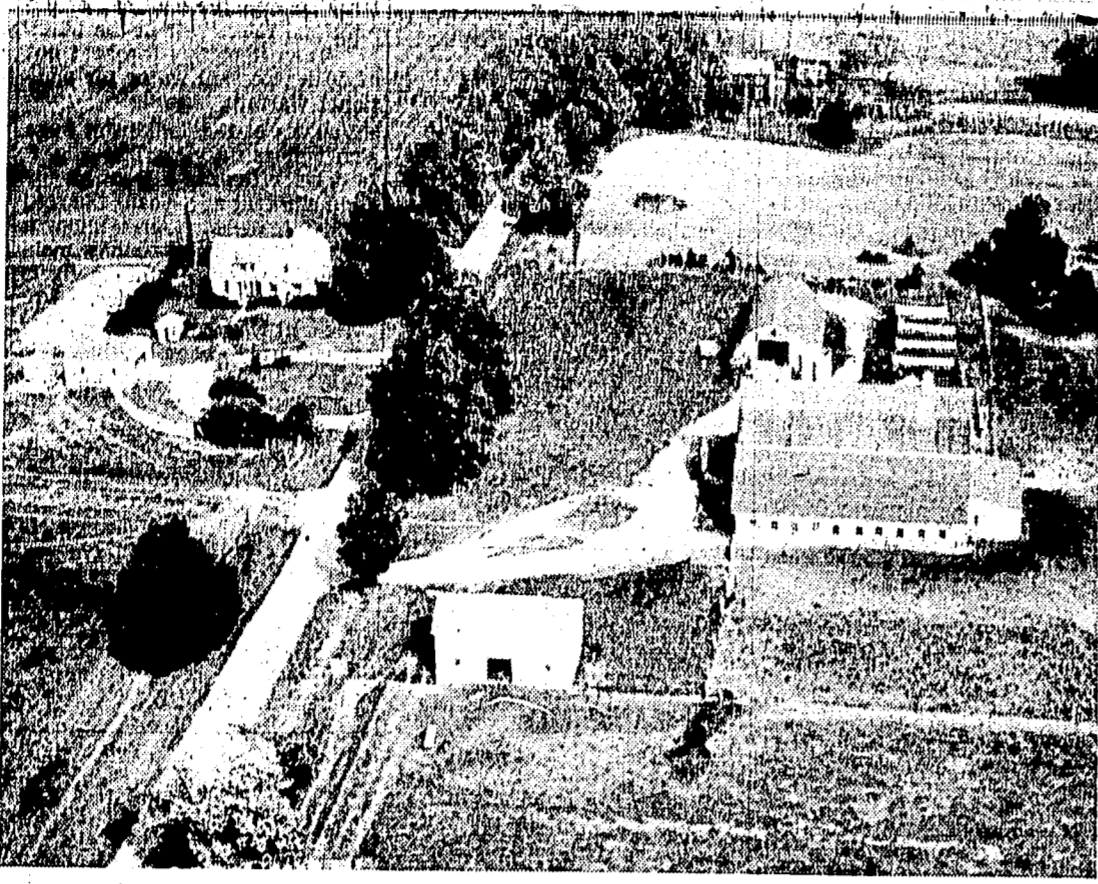

A person with intelligence enough to know what he deserves seldom complains about being unfairly treated.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES DAVIS live on the farm pictured in last week's Ingham County News mystery farm series. The farm is located 2 miles south of Aurelius on Aurelius road.

The 410-acre farm is used mainly for general and dairy farming, with 80 registered Holsteins on the farm. Forty acres of the farm were originally a government grant to Davis' great-grandfather, Charles, in 1847. The last addition to the farm was 130 acres in 1947.

Davis is president of the Lansing Dairy Milk Co. The Davis family attends the Aurelius Baptist church. Davis has 2 children, Jon, 20, a junior at Michigan State university, and Julie, 17, a student at Mason.

This week's winner of 4 theatre tickets for correctly guessing the mystery farm is Mrs. Robert Droscha. The theatre tickets may be picked up at the Ingham County News office.

Davis will also receive a free photograph of the farm at the News office.

Increased Fall Farrowing Will Lower Price of Pork

By Carl Collin

The planned increase in the fall pig crop was a big surprise. Farmers indicated several weeks ago in a survey conducted by USDA that they plan to boost fall farrowings 11% over a year ago. That's a tidy boost. It means hog prices won't strengthen much (if any) for another year. It also means the large pork supply will have a depressing effect on other livestock prices.

Several interpretations can be made from the USDA pig report. Low compliance with corn allotments again this year is probable. Compliance on 1954 crop was about 40%. There will probably be a lot of 1955 corn that can't be covered by loans. That's a price-depressing factor.

With a big fall pig crop coming, there won't be as many gilts going to market this summer. That may help hog prices a bit. But the current outlook is for hog prices to reach the summer peak in August—early August.

Wheat and cotton acreage restrictions have likely been an incentive to a bigger pig crop. Diverted acreages have been put into feed crops with a resulting increase in livestock to market those feeds. This trend seems particularly evident in southern and south-central states.

The special survey made last March on farmers' intentions in 6 corn belt states showed producers planned to reduce sow farrowings in the June-August period by 2%. Now the latest survey shows intentions have changed, indicating a 12% boost in farrowings in this potent 6-state area.

The government may have to get some more grain storage facilities ready in a hurry. The storage situation may be tight because of a large take-over of grains by the government under the price support program. Grain officials hope current government-owned storage will be adequate but they're ready to move fast if additional bin space is needed to take care of large quantities of grains farmers hand over to CCC because market prices are lower than support levels. The government now owns 840,000,000 bushels of bin storage.

The American farm delegation to the Soviet Union has been chosen. Of the 11 selected, 7 are farmers. The same number of Russians will come to this country in July. However, the Russian delegation is made up primarily of collective farm managers and government officials. Wouldn't it be interesting to get in on their private conversations after they've had a chance to see how free U. S. farmers raise corn and hogs?

Check your grain bins closely for bugs and rodent filth. Get storage in good shape. It will pay off. Government restrictions on contaminated wheat will get tougher. If grain contains just a little contaminating material it will either be graded down severely or just won't be salable. Farmers can get helpful information from county agents. They have good bulletins showing how to clean up and improve farm storage facilities. It's getting late to spray bins, so don't put off this job.

Potato prices aren't likely to be very high for awhile. Delayed harvests in early-producing areas (because of March freezes) are overlapping with later crops. The late spring crop is 14% larger than last year, and the early summer crops may be 20% greater than 1954, according to USDA vegetable marketing people.

To indicate changes in demand for various farm products, we've often mentioned some changes in consumer eating habits. Here's an interesting comparison of consumer food preferences:

Consumption of dairy products, eggs, meat, poultry, fish, citrus fruits and tomatoes has increased materially in the past 15 years. Use of potatoes, sweet potatoes and grains has decreased. Meat, poultry and fish show the largest increase. Today Americans eat a fourth more of these high-protein foods per person than they did 20 years ago. During the past 2 years Americans ate an average of 18% more dairy products (except butter), 26% more eggs, 27% more meat, poultry and fish, and 16% more citrus fruit and tomatoes. Consumption of grain products dropped 21% and potatoes and sweet potatoes declined 26%.

With central heating, members of the family can scatter to different parts of the house, and do whatever they choose, and not need to keep huddled about a stove or fireplace to keep warm; television directs all interest to the screen, not to each other.

Tour Highlights Chemical Plan

Chemical weed control will get special emphasis on a tour arranged for Thursday, July 14. The county extension staff has put out a number of plots in the county, part of which will be visited on the tour.

Buford Grigsby, Michigan State University, weed control specialist will be on the tour to explain plots and types of sprayers and kinds of spray for different weeds and crops.

There will be representatives of both the boom spray type of power sprayer and the boom jet type. Stops will be made according to the following schedule.

9:30 a. m.—Simon Clark farm on Lamb road—a pasture and brush plot.

10:00 a. m.—F. N. Fuller farm—oat spray without seeding.

10:30 a. m.—Wesley Thomas farm on Willoughby road—an oat spray in seeded oats and corn. At this stop the sprayers will be demonstrated.

2:00 p. m.—Stops will be made in the Dansville area—plots starting at Joy Packard farm on Clark road with a pasture plot and corn plot and brush stop at Charles Wood's farm and a wild carrot plot on a pasture at the C. A. Diehl & Sons farm.

21.3% of the entire continental U. S. On this land he has over 428.7 thousand buildings. In the recent referendum on wheat marketing quotas for 1956, Minnesota, with 95.8%, led all other states in percentage of farmers voting for the quota. West Virginia was at the bottom of the list with 36.1% indicating their preference for quotas. Of the 7,700 Michigan farmers, only 51.8% voted in favor of quotas. . . . Raw coffee prices may ease off again, which could mean lower wholesale and retail prices eventually. . . . A new blueberry juice concentrate has been developed by research scientists; it's good as a breakfast drink or for sauce and flavoring for ice cream.

Trefoil Adds Pasture Value

About a million acres of permanent pasture on heavy soil in Michigan could support more livestock with an addition of the legume, birdsfoot trefoil.

That's the claim of Michigan State farm crop specialists. They cite these experiments: In a fourth-year sheep pasture where birdsfoot trefoil was in the grass mixture, it produced more grain than either alfalfa-brome or ladino-brome.

And the birdsfoot increased its population over the previous year in the pasture mixture. At the same time, alfalfa decreased and the ladino was practically gone from the original ladino-brome mixture.

Crops researcher Milo Tesar and animal husbandryman Leon and Blakeslee did the experiment. They contend birdsfoot trefoil is a good bet to include when those heavy soil, long term pastures are renovated.

Farmers Receive Loan Dividends

A 4% dividend has been declared by the board of directors of National Farm Loan associations in Eaton and Ingham counties again this year.

Albert C. Mohr, secretary-treasurer of the 2 associations, said the payments would total around $9,700 to the farmer-members of the organization.

Mohr said that at the close of business on June 30, his office had made new loans of $463,800 for the year thus far. This compared to a total of $519,600 handled for all of 1954.

Mohr stated that the increase in business has been due to many farmers buying more land, equipment or livestock to increase efficiency of their farm businesses, as well as those who have consolidated their debts to take advantage of a long-term 4% mortgage loan offered by the Federal Land bank system.

With shrinking farm prices the past few years, the demand for long-term, low interest loans has been increasing steadily all over the United States, Mohr said. More than 50,000 farmers obtained Federal Land bank loans, totaling $0 million dollars, in 1954, which is more than any year since 1934, Mohr stated.

Cards Are Now Available For Marketing New Wheat

Wheat marketing cards are now available at the Ingham county ASC office in Mason, said L. B. Curtis, manager. If the cards are not picked up next week they will be taken to 5 places for distribution, beginning July 11. The hours for distribution at the 5 places will be between 1 and 6 in the afternoon. During those hours farmers will not be able to get cards at Mason.

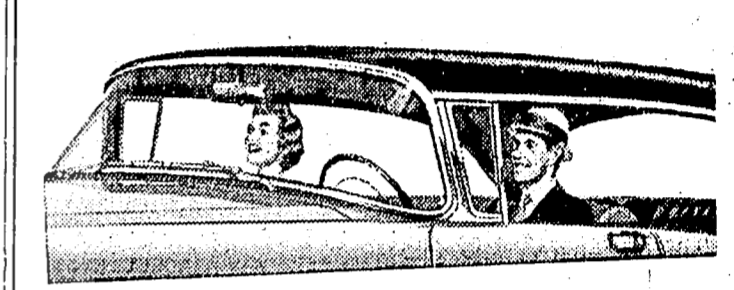

Unless and until a farmer sells his wheat he needs no card, Curtis explained. If a farmer doesn't intend to sell his wheat now, there is no necessity for him to get his card now, said Curtis. Cards can be issued by mail, if a written request is received, Curtis added, and may be obtained at any time during the marketing year.

Listed below are 6 places where farmers may get their cards next week: (Hours 1 to 6 p. m., except at Mason, where hours will be from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.)

Averys Vacation at Cabin in Rockies

By M. H. AVERY
County Agricultural Agent

I left of last week with our family of five, including our 8,000 foot up in the Rocky mountains. The cottage was a fine one made on the rocky banks of Silver creek which comes tumbling down from the mountains. The cabin is made of large pole pine which are peeled and treated. We enjoyed our stay very much in the cabin here with the smell of the pines all around, but had to be very careful about climbing or heavy exertion because of the rare atmosphere. It made a good place to rest.

The Rockies are very beautiful with their high rocky cliffs and snow-covered peaks and winding roads. The roads are very good now, mostly blacktop and those acquainted with the mountains travel at good rates of speed. However, newcomers need to round the bends rather carefully and stay on their own side of the road.

We visited Shadow mountain and Shadow lake—one series of mountain ranges which seems to be in a shadow all day as well as the lake at the bottom. We made another tour on Saturday, June 24, to the beautiful town of Boulder, Colorado, where the University of Boulder is located and where the national AAU track and field championships were held. The 2 outstanding events to see Arnold Sowell of the University of Pittsburgh set a new track and world record in the 880-yard run with the fast time of 1 minute 47.5 seconds. The other was to see Rev. Robert Richards of the Los Angeles Athletic club pole vault 15 feet, 7/8 inch. The world's record is 15 feet, 7/8 inches and Rev. Richards has done 15 feet, 3/4 inches a number of times. I overheard some folks say that Rev. Richards was one of the finest speakers they have ever heard. He is a fine type of young man. A third observation might be the large percentage of colored young men who participated in the events and who are such fine athletes as to be able to compete and win in these national contests.

We left Monday morning from Denver, Colorado, after coming down out of the mountains to 85 degree temperature in Denver and left for home by way of US Route 36, going through eastern Colorado. Near Denver, in the irrigated sections, crops were very good with alfalfa and livestock programs being carried. But as we got on 50 miles or more from Colorado, there was a stretch of probably 150 miles wide where this year's wheat crop had almost entirely blown out. Here the farmers were summer following their land for a new wheat crop and some were putting in sorghum to supplement their income. It will be interesting as a sidelight to mention that the governor of Kansas felt that Secretary Benson should put sorghum on the priority list with a high priority rating along with wheat and other crops so that the farmers there might have another cash income crop. We sometimes forget the pressure which a man like Secretary Benson is under from even governors of states to see that their people receive preferential treatment. Needless to say the folks of this area voted heavily in favor of the continuation of the present wheat program. Monday evening I talked with a restaurant owner in Norton, Kansas. He verified my observation that the wheat is the major crop—general farming is becoming more important and the farmers are trying to diversify by going into cattle for grazing with some corn and some sorghum since the corn does not stand the drought as well as the sorghum or wheat.

I might briefly mention that we traveled this same route just after the drought in 1934 and we were impressed with the fine change which has been coming about since that time of the dust bowl. Then, Eastern Colorado and Western Kansas just looked like one dreary sand area with nothing on it. Today, through conservation practices, a considerable variety of crops are being grown, and more grazing is being carried out.

Tuesday morning we stopped in Washington, Kansas, for breakfast and following breakfast I stopped in the county agent's office and had a little discussion with him. Washington county is near the eastern side of Kansas and where more livestock is being raised. He mentioned that Washington county had the largest acreage of alfalfa in the state and had grown the largest acreage of brome. For pasture, farmers out there prefer a brome to alfalfa since they don't apparently want to reseed very often and the alfalfa crowds the brome out. So where we here plant 6 to 8 lbs of alfalfa and 3 to 4 of brome, they just reverse and put in a heavy brome seeding. He said that wheat was yielding very well up to 50 bushels and more per acre. One of their big problems at the present time is the insect problem with the aphids doing considerable damage. It was interesting to us that they grow nearly all bearded wheat in this area in contrast to the beardless wheat which we grow in Michigan. He stated that the beardless wheat which they grow there is not acceptable to the milling company and therefore they grow the bearded wheat or varieties which are acceptable and they were all new to me. In strictly Eastern Kansas, from Seneca on to the Missouri border, the territory reminded me of Michigan except considerably more rolling. In this area it was more corn and alfalfa, less wheat and more dairying, but still predominately a beef breeding and feeding area. The first cutting of alfalfa was mostly harvested.

We crossed the Missouri river at St. Joseph, Missouri, at noon and noted that St. Joseph is the new national home of the Aberdeen Angus association. Close to St. Joseph in Missouri there were more cattle and hogs and less wheat, and a larger percentage of the land tillable. However, as we got further east again, there was considerable non-tillable land. We noted that the buildings were larger and a better quality in this area and we found that we were back in the area of more low dark soil than we had been seeing for a long time. We stopped at Hannibal, Missouri, in the evening to see Mark Twain's home and then crossed the river into Illinois. We were impressed by the high number of tourists traveling. We stayed in a hotel at Pittsfield. The hotel was not modernized and was close to the main highway which was very noisy.

When we left early Wednesday morning on our route in Southern Illinois we found that corn was hip to waist high and of a very good color. Wheat harvesting had been going on through all this southern area, even through Illinois and Indiana. Most of it looked good.

Crops throughout the whole territory which we covered were as good as usual. However, a radio program mentioned that crops and harvesting were not quite as far along as they were last year at this same time. However, last year was ahead of schedule. We arrived home Wednesday evening very happy as the result of our travels but very glad to be back in Ingham county, and as our daughter said, "Michigan looked even more attractive than when we left."

Country & Town

By Jim Brown

Jim Roberts of Wilmette, Illinois, is one of the most enthusiastic young men I've ever known. What's more, his enthusiasm is backed with knowledge, a fine personality and plenty of energy. That's why Jim has been moved up to district retail advertising manager with the Chicago Tribune.

Jim was lucky enough to marry Mason's Rosemary Greene and there may be the answer to his enthusiasm. They and 2 children moved into a new ranch home in Wilmette 3 weeks ago. The Chicago suburb is about an hour from the Chicago Loop.

Jim and Rosemary asked my wife and me to visit them over the week end. Jim wanted to find out why the Ingham County News carries more farm implement ads than does the Tribune.

Besides his family, Jim's enthusiasm runs in 2 veins—Chicago and the Chicago Tribune. Big things are expected of Chicago in the near future. Jim said nothing can drag him away from the big city. The future looks good for young men who want to work, he said.

Chicago, nearly 4,000,000 population, is expected to double by 1970. That will call for more of every kind of service including newspapers. And such a market will require more advertising to sell more goods.

But Jim was quick to point out that rapid growth isn't peculiar to Chicago. Even Mason is growing—and possibly at a higher rate than is Chicago. All over, Jim and I agreed, the future is bright for men and women who want to work. There is no limit to what personal gain and community contribution can be if we answer the challenge. Forty-hour weeks and coffee breaks mean nothing to Jim Roberts. He's on the go day and night at his job preparing himself for his next step up the ladder. I'll predict right now that Jim will go a long ways with the Tribune.

Bob Hope's Seven Little Foys motion picture is mediocre. Without Hope, it would be lousy. It's being given a big build-up all over the country. I bought a balcony seat ticket at the Chicago theatre Sunday to see the show and was disappointed. Hope could do a better job just being Bob Hope.

Ingham county farmers plus a lot of other farmers in the country have done a good job with international relations. The heifers sent to West Germany will mean more than their weight in dollars to European farmers. The gift is a visual fact that American farmers are interested in the welfare of Germany. It makes all of us seem like good people. And of course, most of us are.

If you want to get a guilt complex, try cashing a check in Chicago. Almost without exception, city folks give you the eye of distrust. A signature or a promise in Chicago isn't worth what it is in Mason, Dansville or Leslie. In lots of ways, small towns are bigger than big towns.

In Chicago I heard about a woman who salved herself nightly with cold cream, lanolin, wrinkle remover and olive oil and went to a psychiatrist to find out why she kept slipping out of bed. Once her husband hugged her and she shot out the window. A psychiatrist, I learned, is one who has answers and is looking for problems.

The Romans established many thriving colonies in North Africa. At one place, there is still standing an amphitheater built to accommodate some 60,000 people. Now, in this entire area, the land is desert for scores of miles in all directions. What happened?

Bright Comet Is Due Soon

People who are interested in comets should soon bring out the binoculars for a sweep of the north horizon where a bright one is budding, said University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh.

About two-thirds of the way from the bowl of the Big Dipper to the bright star Capella in the constellation Auriga is a comet which is rapidly approaching naked-eye visibility, she said.

Comets revolve around the sun with their tails pointing away from it and the one now visible has a well-defined nucleus with a misty tail more than one degree in length extending perpendicular to the horizon, she stated.

It's worthwhile to take a look at it since comets as bright as this one have been rare in the past several years," Professor Losh pointed out.

Now's a good time to look at the Milky Way too, she added. It's almost parallel to the eastern horizon from Cassiopeia in the north through Cepheus and Cygnus, where it conspicuously divides into 2 branches, the western branch passing to Scorpion and the eastern through Aquila and Sagittarius.

To the unaided eye it's a soft misty light but even binoculars show that it's made up of myriads of faint stars and nebulae, she said.

Another feature of July comes in the fact that the earth will have reached its greatest distance from the sun for the year on July 4. This doesn't cool things off in the slightest, said Professor Losh, because earth people aren't that far away.

The axe, fire, plow and firearms are the 4 fundamental tools of our modern civilization, and have made millions of acres of land unfit for human habitation.

Showboat Docks At Chesaning

Prospects are bright for a record-breaking run of the Chesaning Showboat, according to officials of the organization. They said they based their prediction on the quality of the 93 amateurs chosen for acts during the 5-night stand, Tuesday through Sunday nights, July 12 through July 17. It is the 14th annual Chesaning showboat.

The early reserved seat sale in Chesaning, Owosso, Bay City, Flint and Saginaw has been reported as good.

Chesaning Showboat is a community co-operative production sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce.

Upwards of 400 local men and women take part in it, giving freely of their time.

STARVED PLANTS SHOW THEIR HUNGER

Someone once said, "If starved plants could only squeal like hungry pigs, we would pay more attention to their fertilizer needs." Even though plants cannot squeal, they have means of telling us of their plant food deficiencies, which we speak of as hunger signs.
