

Father, Mother, Sister— All Take Part in Rescue

Every member of the family played a part in the rescue of a little girl from drowning Monday afternoon.

Julie Sheffer, who'll soon be 3, slipped on the edge of a pool behind family dwellings on East Ash. Her sister Linda, 5, and Priscilla Pinch, 5, quickly ran between houses on Steele street to the Sheffer home at 328 Steele to tell of the accident. The mother was outdoors shaking a dust mop. She ran to the pool with the 2 girls. She saw Julie lodged face-up under the ice. The mother leaped in, grabbed the girl and ran to the Pinch home, 522 Maine court, adjacent to the pool.

Mrs. Pinch had telephoned the father, Kenneth Sheffer at the Ingham County News, and summoned an ambulance, police and inhalator squad.

The father dropped the telephone and ran for home. Near the Methodist church Herb Howe saw Sheffer, without hat or coat, sprinting. Howe wheeled his car, picked up Sheffer and sped the 3 blocks to the Pinch home. Sheffer flipped his daughter onto the floor of the kitchen and applied artificial respiration. She gasped and gagged. By then the ambulance had arrived. Sheffer carried the little girl to the ambulance. She was given oxygen enroute to the hospital. No sooner had she been taken to a room than a doctor was working over her. Quickly she resumed normal breathing. Julie ran a temperature Monday night and remained at the hospital until Tuesday afternoon when she was taken to her home none the worse for her close brush with death.

The pool in the swale resulted from the filling in of adjacent land. In dry weather there is no water. Rains last week filled it with surface water between 18 and 24 inches deep. The cold of Sunday and Monday covered it with thin ice. The edges of the pool are steep. Julie tumbled into the pool and under the ice.

Had her sister and Priscilla not run for aid at once, had not Mrs. Sheffer been outside, had she not run immediately to the pool, waded in and snatched her daughter from beneath the ice, had not the father reached the scene at once to apply first aid learned in the navy, that little surface water pool would have claimed the life of as sweet a little girl as ever lived, and broken the circle of one of Mason's happiest families. The pool is being bulldozed in immediately.

Legion Oratorical Finals Will Be In Mason Friday

High school orators will come to Mason Friday night for the state finals in the American Legion contest. They will orate on the U. S. constitution. The finals are scheduled for the school auditorium beginning at 8 o'clock.

There will be 5 contestants, according to Frank Schmidt, Jr., commander of Browne-Cavender post at Mason and chairman of the state oratorical contest committee. The 5 were winners Monday night in zone contests.

Steve Gronner, junior at Lansing Eastern high school, won the zone contest at Mason Monday night with the narrowest of margins over Kenneth Kregel of Northville, a senior. The 5 judges split. Gronner received 3 firsts and 2 seconds for 7. Kregel had 2 firsts, 1 second and 2 thirds for

10. Right behind was Bernd Janowsky, a Utica senior. In fourth place was Linda Newman, Belding senior, and in fifth was Bette Lou Long of Royal Oak, senior at Troy high school.

Gronner received a $100 U. S. savings bond and a medal. Kregel and Janowsky also received medals.

Janowsky, who has been in the United States only 6 months, exhibited a broad understanding of the constitution and amendments. He is an exchange student from Cologne, Germany, and will be returning to Germany at the close of the school year.

Schmidt and Clyde Smith managed the contest at Mason. Donald Edgington was timekeeper. The judges were Larry Lalone, Lansing, and Carl Blanchard, Frank Young, Alton J. Stroud and Nelson Brown, Mason.

Five Candidates Discuss Issues

Five of the 8 candidates for city council posts appeared before the Mason Kiwanis club Tuesday night. They told how, if elected, they expect to handle problems confronting the city, or they discussed their qualifications for office, or motives for seeking office.

In the lineup were Councilman Eric Spenny and Elwood Millard, Dewayne Evans, Stanley Cornwell and Paul Richards. Unable to attend the meeting because of absence from the city or sickness were Nels Perryby, Councilman Richard Morris and Charles Zanger.

Mason's charter provides that there must be twice the number of candidates as there are council posts to fill. There are 4 to be elected. The charter also provides that when no candidates or not enough candidates file nominating petitions the council itself must nominate candidates to fill the ticket. Richards and Councilman Spenny and Morris filed, the other 5 were nominated by council.

Mayor Alfred Forche, Councilman L. A. Wilken, George Kellogg, city clerk, and Mrs. Doris Austin, city treasurer, were also guests of the Kiwanis club Tuesday night.

Dee Bray of the Mason Elevator Co. was received into Kiwanis membership.

Laying Pickles End to End

If pickles handled at Mason by Wilson Packing Co. were laid end to end they'd stretch out 714 miles. There would be enough pickles to supply Mason for 107 years. More information about Mason's pickle industry appears in the letter column on Part 1, Part 2. Other features are:

Chairmen of local committees have gone to work on local participation in Michigan Week. The event is scheduled for May 20 to 26.

Heading the Mason organization are Frank Schmidt, Jr., chairman; LeRoy Snelens, secretary; and Edwin Kehe, treasurer.

Snelens and Kehe were named Tuesday night. At the same meeting in the council chamber committee chairmen were chosen. They are:

Rev. Clarence Rodd of Mason Baptist church and Rev. Fr. Paul J. DeRose, St. James church for spiritual foundation day, Sunday of the week.

Eric Spenny, exchange of mayors day, Monday.

Ray Perkins, hospitality day, Tuesday.

William Carl, livelihood day, Wednesday.

James H. Vander Ven, education day, Thursday.

Mrs. Asenath Blood was named chairman of arrangements to pick a community queen to reign during the week.

Schmidt urged every organization to participate in the observance of the special week. He asked that all who want to help in mapping out the program get in touch with him or with a committee chairman.

Next Tuesday night all chairmen are to meet in the council room to set up a budget and to work on coordination of activities.

Local Officials Learn of Change In Election Law

Township, city and village officials learned about election law changes Monday night. They met at Mason to hear Robert M. Montgomery, state director of elections, and C. Ross Hilliard, county clerk.

Under changes in the law several of Ingham's big precincts must be divided. Where paper ballots are used there must not be more than 800 registered voters to a precinct. Where voting machines are used the precincts can have 1,400 registered voters. There must be one machine, however, for every 600 registered voters.

All applicants for election board jobs must file written applications, listing their party preference. No longer will there be specific duties assigned such as inspectors, clerks and gatekeepers. All will be listed as inspectors and assignments will be made by the chairman. A majority of the board must be present at all times while polls are open and while votes are being counted.

Up to 6 precincts may use the same building for casting votes. Township changes include the setting of a specific day, the third Monday in February, for conducting of caucuses. Another change is the provision of 4-year staggered terms for trustees.

In cities election boards will be made up of city clerk, city attorney and city assessor. Supervisor, clerk and treasurer will make up township election boards. In villages the president, clerk and treasurer will serve as the election board.

All except 2 townships and a city sent election officials to the instruction meeting Monday night, the county clerk said.

Miller Will Move To Highway Spot

Wayne Miller, Mason Rototiller dealer since 1946, will move into a new sales building a half-mile north of the city limits on US-127 the last of April.

Workmen have started construction of a 30x60 block building southeast of the Francis Platt building. The front will be faced with stone and wide overhanging roof lines will permit the display of merchandise outside the building, Miller explained.

Miller said that in addition to Rototillers and John Bean equipment, he will also sell sporting goods including boats and motors, lawn furniture, camping supplies, garden supplies and other seasonal merchandise.

Miller has operated the business from his home on College road.

Mason Students Tie for Top Honors

Two Mason boys broke into the ranks of top scholars at Mason in this year's graduating class. In recent years girls have taken most of the honors.

Helen Swaim and Thomas Clark tied for valedictorian at 3.92 points out of a possible 4.0. Robert Carroll was next at 3.89. From there through the first 10, girls hold the edge. In the first 10 are 7 girls, 3 boys.

Helen Swaim is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Swaim, 2014 Willoughby road. She attended Alameda Center school from beginners class through the eighth grade. In addition to maintaining highest scholastic standings she has been a member of PFA, Latin club, debate team and Pep club and has served on the staffs of Hi-Life and Anchora. Outside of school she is a member of a 4-H club, Order of the Rainbow for Girls and of Youth Fellowship of Presbyterian church.

She plans to enter Michigan State next fall to major in art or mathematics.

Scholastic honors are nothing new in the Swaim family. Her sister Joyce (Mrs. Perry Foss) was co-salutatorian at Mason in 1952.

Thomas Clark is the younger son of Dr. and Mrs. William E. Clark. He entered Mason schools at 4½ and has been a member of the Latin club, Spanish club, Student Council and M. club. He is on the Anchora staff and had parts in the junior and senior plays. He is co-captain of the track team and last year was acclaimed the team's most valuable member.

State Game Area May Get Acreage

Before the state conservation commission Friday will go a recommendation to add 37 acres to the Dansville public hunting area. There are now 3,350 acres in Ingham and Bunker Hill townships, south of Dansville, under state ownership.

Pittman-Robertson funds from the federal government will be used to acquire the Dansville tract and 5 others. Recommended for purchase besides the 37 acres of the Avery farm, 5 1/2 of E 1/4 of SW 1/4 Sect. 29, 2N, 1E, are 120 acres in Rouge River, 80 acres in Deford, 41 acres in Middleville, 40 acres at Gratiot-Saginaw state game areas and 40 acres in Noyanquing Pointe wildlife area.

A 10-acre tract at Gregory state game area will be considered for purchase with game protection funds.

Flames Threaten Barn and Hogs

An unidentified Samaritan saved the 40x60 barn and about 60 Yorkshire hogs from burning Wednesday night at the farm of Mrs. Sam Tomlinson on Waldo road. Driving along Waldo, the man saw flames in the barn and notified Mrs. Tomlinson. She summoned Mason firemen. In the excitement Mrs. Tomlinson did not learn the name of the man who discovered the fire.

Mrs. Tomlinson discounted the possibility that the fire was caused by an electric heat lamp placed in the barn for some pigs. She said the lamp was new and was equipped with a fuse. The fire apparently caught in loose hay on the barn floor and jumped to the barn door and roof. It was brought under control with a few hundred dollars damage.

Allen Tomlinson, son of Mrs. Tomlinson, works the place. The farm is owned by Mrs. Mercie Foler.

The Dansville public hunting area begins at Kelly road on the west and is bounded on the north by Dexter Trail. Boundaries extend south to Ewers road. Most of the area is west of Williamston road.

Council Awaits Blueprints for Civic Growth

Mason councilmen expect to get a look at completed charts for the city's growth Monday night. The public will get the chance April 9.

For 2 years the city planning commission has been making a long-range study of plans to accomplish orderly development and expansion. The plans call for street extensions and new routings of traffic. Two of them will provide for taking east-west traffic away from the business section.

Zoning for commercial and industrial expansion has also been undertaken and the council will be asked to make changes in the present ordinance.

If the council approves the planning commission's report Monday night, a public hearing will be asked for Monday night, April 2.

Serving on the planning commission are Mayor Alfred Forche, Dr. D. R. Leithbridge, Howard Selbert, Glen Coon, Wilbert Cummings, Councilman L. A. Wilken, City Engineer Walter E. Zimmer, Ralph Swinehart and Dr. O. L. Pauley.

The planning commission engaged J. Martin Frissel of East Lansing as consultant. He is drawing the plans which will be presented to the council.

Wednesday night Frazelle, accompanied by Dr. Leithbridge and Selbert, consulted with the board of education about street extensions and improvements near Cedar Street school.

Board of Review Has Few Callers

Few owners showed much interest in valuations placed on their Mason property Tuesday. The board had little to do. Another meeting, the final session, has been set for Tuesday, March 27, between 9 and 12 and 1 and 4. It will be in the council chamber.

Frank Guerriero, John Hasten and Earl Whipple are members of the Mason board of review. City Assessor Dean Taylor serves as clerk of the board. The valuations are those against which 1956 city, school and county taxes will be levied.

Hee-Haw—

If you have a mule or donkey willing to work for oat money you'll be interested in a want ad this week. A Lansing store wants to engage a mule or donkey with rider for a special promotion. If you don't have either you will still profit by reading and by acting on want ads in the Ingham County News.

Where Do We Go from Here?

Eaton Teams Leave Capital Circuit

Representatives of the 3 Eaton county teams in the Capital Circuit Monday night reiterated their intentions to leave the league. Charlotte, Eaton Rapids and Grand Ledge will go into another league along with St. Johns, Greenville, Hastings and Ionia of the West Central league. Departure of the 3 Eaton schools from the Capital Circuit is set for the close of the 1956-57 school year. Next year's league schedules will be carried out.

The Eaton schools made their deal without consulting Mason, Holt, Everett or Howell. Grand Ledge and Charlotte coaxed Eaton Rapids to go along.

There were several explanations advanced by Eaton schools. One was that with Howell on the schedule Eaton schools had long distances to travel. Greenville is even farther from the Eaton schools than Howell. Another was that Everett and Holt may shortly become Class A. The probability is that Everett will advance to Class A under a Lansing plan to develop a south side high school comparable in size to Sexton and Eastern. The league existed before Everett joined. As to Holt the Class A bracket is likely 4 or 5 years away, and by that time the new league may not be in existence, or Ionia or St. Johns, Greenville or Charlotte may become Class A.

St. Johns has been in and out of the Capital Circuit. The last time the Clinton county school was in it wanted out because competition was too rugged and the distances traveled were said to be too great. But it's farther to Hastings than to Mason or Howell or Holt.

Everett joined Capital Circuit ranks about 10 years ago. Holt 3 years ago. Holt swung over from the Ingham County league as the Lansing suburban school suddenly grew into Class B and big. In Capital Circuit competition Holt has been a strong contender in every athletic activity.

Richard Demlow, principal at Mason, expressed sorrow over the decision reached by the Eaton schools. Rivalries between Mason and Eaton Rapids and Charlotte go back 50 years, with Grand Ledge almost as long, he pointed out. But nobody in command at Mason is angry, he said; just hurt that the Eaton schools didn't take Mason into their confidence.

Mason school officials are not in the mood to make any quick decisions on league affiliations, Demlow indicated. Several possibilities have been suggested, some of them backed up by informal bids. Here are a few, and some of their objections:

Room could be made for Mason in the new league with 8 teams instead of the 7. That would leave Holt, Everett and Howell out in the cold and would pit Mason against Greenville, Hastings and Ionia—all a long way off and none of them traditional rivals. Mason had enough of that in the Little Twelve and Little Ten, going to Coldwater, Hastings, Hillsdale, Battle Creek Lakeview and other faraway places to play schools without much in common. East Lansing and Mason were then close rivals. East Lansing threw in with the Twin Valley league.

Lansing St. Mary and Resurrection might be interested in joining up with Holt, Mason, Howell and Everett. Central Michigan parochial schools have their own league.

Mason and possibly Holt could be admitted to the Ingham County league. The record indicates that Leslie, Stockbridge, Okemos, Dansville, Williamston and Haslett ask no odds from either Mason or Holt in intra-league play. But no invitation is anticipated from that direction. That league is big enough now and Webberville wants to return to it.

Mason, Holt, Everett and Howell might induce Okemos or Williamston to join in a 6-team league. Probably not, Demlow indicated. Such a move would involve the same tactics used in the formation of the West Central league.

There's no hurry, Demlow said, for the remaining 4 teams to join any league. There's a full year of competition ahead, he pointed out, and during that period many things may happen. Even if the 4 schools must go it alone for a year or so no great damage will be done, he said, and Mason or any of the other 3 schools which will be left in the Capital Circuit will not likely suffer from lack of sible approaches to the Capital competition between Mason and the 3 Eaton schools has always been healthy," Demlow commented. "Relations have been friendly between competitors and between school officials. The league has been well-balanced with no school dominating any sport. We at Mason regret that such good friends must part."

Representatives of the 4 remaining schools will meet at Mason Monday night to discuss possible approaches to the Capital Circuit situation.

Blackhawks Fail In Regional Bid

Ypsilanti Roosevelt knocked Leslie out of the regional in first-round play at Ypsilanti Wednesday night. The Blackhawks blew a fourth quarter lead and lost 48-42.
With 3 minutes left in the game Leslie had a 5-point lead. Everything looked rosy for the Blackhawks. Then Roosevelt took advantage of a pair of unnecessary fouls and pulled to within one point of the Blackhawks.
Roosevelt went into a full court press and picked off 3 Leslie passes and turned them into easy baskets. That was all for Leslie.
The usually high-scoring Blackhawks had trouble finding the range. Bill Richmond was the only player to hit regularly. He scored 12 points.
Leslie earned the trip to the regionals by taking Fowlerville and Stockbridge in the Dansville district.
Other teams in the Ypsilanti regional are Wyandotte Smith, Reading, Napoleon, Dundee and Morenci.

The eighth graders were paced by Jerry Willis' 19 points. Keith Stone and Jim Christensen each had 6.
Haslett's team is coached by Denny Stolz, former Mason star and an all-around athlete at Alma college.

Postmaster Leslie Palmer pointed out that the route change was possible because the mileage will not increase the cost of service to the postoffice department.

Hornets Are Out Of Ionia Tourney

Williamston lost its opener in the Ionia regional tournament Wednesday night. The Hornets were pushed out of the running by Caledonia. Williamston lost 64-60 when Caledonia ruffled in the last quarter.
Failure to capitalize on foul shots cost Williamston the game. From the floor the Hornets had the shooting advantage.
Williamston's attack was more balanced than at any time during the season. Willie Gaffner, Dale Bachman, Barry Zindel and Dick Osterie all hit in the double figures.
The Hornets led all the way until Caledonia took over in the closing minutes of the game.
Williamston's loss leaves Holt as Ingham county's only hope in the Class C bracket. The Rams open play Thursday night with Lakeview. Lakeview and Holt are considered the strongest teams in the tournament.

New Term Court Comes to Mason To Dodge Noise

Because of distracting noise of construction on Lansing's city hall the March term jury trials have been shifted to Mason. A special act of the legislature provided for shifting Ingham court terms for a 2-year period. Under the permanent law, March and September terms of circuit court are in Lansing, January and May terms in Mason.

A try was made to conduct court in Lansing Monday but jurors had difficulty hearing witnesses above the noise of air-hammers.

The January term jury finished its work just before the March term jury started in. On Friday a jury at Mason acquitted Joseph Boggio of Lansing. He was charged with second degree murder in the death of his wife last September 12. She was shot with a revolver. Her former mate maintained that she was accidentally shot while he was wrestling the revolver from her.

Stuart Dunning, Jr., Lansing, defended Boggio. Assistant Prosecutors Joseph Lavey and Peter Treleven represented the people. Judge Marvin J. Salmon presided.

March Term Opens
In Lansing Monday before Judge Salmon a jury returned a verdict of no cause for action in the justice court appeal of John P. Webb and Michigan Mutual Liability Co. vs. John E. Harvie and Lucie Harvie.

A jury at Mason Tuesday convicted C. V. Grover of Lansing on the charge of issuing checks without having a bank account. He was remanded to the custody of the sheriff to await sentence. Edward Spence defended Grover. Treleven appeared for the prosecution.

Judge Salmon tossed a case out of court Tuesday afternoon. Harold H. Hein was charged with violation of the financial responsibility act in nonsettlement of an automobile accident case. When Francis J. Wery, Hein's attorney, showed that Hein had not had an operator's license for 22 months before the accident, the motion to quash was granted. The law requires that the driver under the financial responsibility act must have his license revoked. There was no revocation under the law because there was no license, the court ruled.

Treleven represented the prosecutor's office.

Damages Are Sought
Before Judge Salmon in Mason Wednesday the civil suit of Paul Olsen against James Stewart of Lansing was started. It continued Thursday.

Olsen, a Lansing young man who now attends Wayne university, is blind. Last April 13 while crossing Ottawa street Olsen was struck by a car driven by Stewart. Olsen, in asking damages of $10,000, claimed Stewart was negligent.

Lee Dramis of Lansing is representing Olsen. Clayton Jennings and Eugene Townsend of Lansing are defending Stewart.

After a jury had been chosen Wednesday, adjournment was taken in the case against Virgil Hiatt of Lansing. He is charged with disturbing the peace at the Red Rail bar. Because of the absence of a witness, the case was adjourned to March 28. On the jury are Homer Potter, Alvin Linn, Bert Wapser, B. L. Adams, Mrs. O. S. Clipper and Mrs. Lawton Bement. Leo Farhat of Lansing represented Hiatt. Peter Treleven of the prosecutor's staff represented the people.

Frank Dugger, Stockbridge, pleaded guilty to a drunk and disorderly charge when he appeared before Judge Adams last Friday. He was assessed $30 and sent to jail for 7 days.

Cancer Society Eyes Big Quota

The quota for Ingham county in the American Cancer Society's 1956 educational and fund-raising campaign, which will run through April, has been set at $39,000, Karl Egeler, campaign chairman said.

Last year the quota here was $35,720 and $37,058 was raised. The national quota in 1955 was $24,000,000 with some $24,400,000 being contributed. This year the national goal has been set at $26,000,000.

"The goal is higher this year," Egeler said, "because of the increasing over-all incidence of cancer in this country."

"Statistics released by the American Cancer Society reveal graphically how the cancer death rate has gone up in recent years. In 1934 the number of cancer deaths per 100,000 persons was 106; in 1940 it had risen to 120; by 1954 it was 147."

To meet this situation and to save lives, more funds are needed, Egeler asserted. Money collected will be used for 3 main purposes: To provide more research; to augment professional and public education; and to give additional service to cancer victims, he said.

Judge Adams Gives Talk At Mason PTA Meeting

Justice of the Peace Roy Adams spoke to the Mason Parents-Teachers association at the meeting Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the high school. His talk concerned treatment of child molesters. A short business meeting conducted by the president, Jim Husham, preceded Judge Adams' talk.

As a comparison of sentences imposed on men who molest children and those who commit other offenses, Judge Adams read several cases from his files. In one instance, he said, a man was sentenced to 1-14 years in prison for forgery, another got a similar sentence for stealing an automobile and another was sentenced to 5-15 years in prison on a breaking and entering charge.

Against all these comparatively stiff sentences the judge told of cases where child molesters were locked up for 60 days or fined $100 and put on 3 months probation, depending upon the circumstances. The judge read more cases from his files where the sentence of a child molester did not exceed 60 days.

During a question and answer period after Judge Adams' talk, he was asked what could be done concerning the light sentences imposed on child molesters. He suggested that a committee write to circuit judges, requesting how they handle such cases. Judge Adams quoted his opinion against such offenders from the Bible: "And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea."

Room parents or children in second grade served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Farmers!
A SQUARE MEAL of 300-500 lb. per acre of nitrogen, phosphate and potash fertilizer on legume grass seedlings can mean the difference between a good seedling and a poor one, say MSU agronomists.

POUND FOR POUND of plant food, VITA-GRO FERTILIZER costs less than dry bulk fertilizer.

Now is the opportune time for spring application. Contact us early to guarantee application at your convenience.

Military Mailing List Needs Help

For several years the Ingham County News has frequently published a list of addresses of men and women serving their country. They like to get mail from friends. Their friends appreciate the listing of the addresses. But it's difficult to keep the list corrected. Transfers are made. Discharges come. Some advance in rank. Occasionally someone is busted. Take a look at the list. If you spot an error or know of a change which should be made, or of names and addresses which should be added, please notify the Ingham County News.

Ami Terril Hits Jackpot

Monday Ami Terril, Walter Duleben, George Arent and Harold Laycock took the Sea Hawk out of Clearwater, Florida, on a deep-sea fishing expedition. Terril hooked and landed a 19 lb. 2 oz. grouper and in so doing won a jackpot of $81. Arent took second prize of $17 in the fishing contest from the Sea Hawk.

6,260 Miles of Pickles. Mason's Row Is That Long

Last week I was having coffee with a group of men who all reside in Mason and the conversation drifted around to the pickle industry here in Mason. One man, who has lived here practically all his life declared that he thought the pickle industry went out of Mason when the Wilson Packing company sold out to the H. W. Madison Co. in 1937.

Afterward I wondered just how much the people of Mason actually knew about the businesses and industries that are located here in Mason. I have found out that a great many do not know the type of work carried out by the J. A. Dart Co., Wyeth Laboratories, Inc., Dart Manufacturing Co., the H. W. Madison Co., the Ferris Co. and others.

Of course I cannot speak for the other companies but I would like to give you a few facts and figures about our company here at Mason and the pickle industry as a whole. Last year approximately 13,000,000 bushels of pickles were consumed in the United States, topping in sales tomatoes, corn, string beans, beets, and spinach. Michigan is the No. 1 pickle grower of the nation, producing 3,450,000 bushels last year.

Naturally Mason produces only a fraction of this amount but here we do produce enough pickles and pickle products to supply Mason for 107 years. At the peak of the season we employ 250 employees, which includes pickers. Approximately 15,000,000 pickles are handled here at Mason which, if laid end to end, would stretch 71 miles. If the pickle fields were all planted in one row the row would be 6,260 miles long.

If the pickles were shipped in all at once it would take a fleet of 125 semis. We use enough water in one year to supply the average family for 37 1/2 years. We use 400,000 pounds of salt. The income from this crop could purchase a fleet of 40 Olds 88's (with radio and heater).

These are figures on the "Believe It or Not" theme but I thought they would be interesting.

Perhaps this will bring in some other letters from other businesses and industries telling us what they manufacture and how they function, giving us all a little more knowledge as to what is being done here in our home town of Mason.

Voting Rights

This message is for those interested in good government. Snook is now coming out of the political roundhouse. A breed of steam is being raised. Whistles have been tested, the throttle has been polished. The Republican Special and the Democratic Limited will soon be riding the rails, each hauling box cars filled with promises and others filled with mud. About the latter part of October you and I will have to do a little ducking or we might get mud in our eyes. But keep on smiling. This is politics. I don't like the word politics but I do like the word government. For government is the people.

The greatest asset a citizen has is the right to vote, and the right to vote for whom he wishes. Our government is confronted with many problems. Are you looking at them for the benefit of all or are you blinded by political prejudices?

Just because your father, your grandfather or your great-grandfather was a Republican or Democrat is no sign you should be, or that he would be if he were living today. Check the records of men now in office or who have been in office. See what stand they have taken on bills. Scan their records for economy.

In November there will be many seeking office, from places of power in Washington all down the line. Do you think a split ticket makes for better government or worse? You can still vote as you please. Listen to the orators as they shout. Learn which one is telling the truth; which one is not. Check qualifications. If candidates have been in business, determine how successful they were. Don't vote for a candidate solely because of his popularity or power to get votes.

In my opinion a menace to government is lobbying. Lobbyists

Music and Action Share Fox Screen

Action of the past joins with action of today in 2 exciting features which will appear on the Friday and Saturday double bill at the Fox theatre.

Zane Grey's "The Vanishing American" is the first hit. Taken from one of Grey's most famous novels of the old west, the film stars Scott Brady, Audrey Totter, Forrest Tucker and Gene Lockhart.

It is the story of the last of the great Navajo Indian chiefs who led the fearless tribe in its last great revolt against the grasping whites. They stole his land but he had their women.

The exciting story of the most dangerous mission since Tokyo-Rio—the solo radar bombing of a Yalu River bridge—is brought to the screen in "Hell's Horizon," the companion feature for Friday and Saturday. Starring John Ireland, Marla English, Bill Williams and Hugh Beaumont, "Hell's Horizon" introduces Chet Baker and his trumpet and features Larry Pennell.

Ireland is seen as the ambitious captain of a lone bomber ordered to blast the "world's most dangerous target." His crew, demoralized by months of boring inactivity and facing various personal problems, no longer functions as a team and Ireland himself readily admits that he has only 3 interests, "money, women and me, not necessarily in that order."

In the air, however, he's a daring leader willing to take risks to attain a larger objective and he counts on this, and the importance of his mission, to restore his crew's camaraderie.

Williams is seen as his co-pilot, a steady influence who hopes to return to a better world and his 18-year-old son. Beaumont plays a gunner plagued by his wife's infidelity and a final letter from her announcing her determination to quit him. Miss English, a lovely young actress and the only woman in the cast, is seen as a half-breed Okinawan girl, the cause of considerable tension between Ireland and Pennell, another member of the desperate crew. Ireland offers her his kind of love; Pennell offers her marriage.

Zane Grey's great novel, "The Vanishing American," comes to the Fox screen Friday and Saturday as part of the double bill. Scott Brady, Forrest Tucker, Gene Lockhart and Audrey Totter are starred in the film.

Musical Is Next
In "The Second Greatest Sex," Technicolor-CinemaScope musical comedy which plays Sunday and Monday at the Fox theatre, Universal-International has blended together a combination of stars, 8 great new songs and a provocative story that literally sings with bright comedy, loving romance and fast-paced action.

Based on the theme of "Lysistrata," a play by Aristophanes that shocked Greece 2400 years ago, "The Second Greatest Sex" presents a colorful musical version set against rural Kansas in 1880. Rolling merrily through its tuneful tale are a bevy of top-ranking stars, including Jeanne Crain, George Nader, Kitty Kallen, Bert Lahr, Mamie Van Doren, Keith Andes, Kathleen Case and Paul Gilbert.

Outstanding scenes in "The Second Greatest Sex" are plentiful as its large cast rips through the lifting tunes. A highlight is Kitty Kallen's singing of the ballad, "How Lonely Can I Get," accompanied by one of the screen's finest dance solos performed by young Tommy Rall. This film marks the debut of Miss Kallen, a top-ranked recording star. Rall appeared previously as one of the dancing stars in "Seven Brides For Seven Brothers."

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday Barbara Stanwyck and Fred MacMurray are starred in "There's Always Tomorrow."

Cancer of Lung Is Death Cause

Cancer of the lung was the cause of death given in the passing of Hugh J. Sperling, 59, Mason. He died in Ingham Chest hospital March 6. He underwent an operation 2 years ago but the malignancy returned.

Mr. Sperling was born in Garfield, Saginaw county, November 29, 1896. His parents were Calvin Sperling and Lorrila Stout Calvin. He had worked for Mickelson-Baker Lumber Co. and on the farm of Dr. George Clinton. He was a veteran of World War I and was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

There survive a son, Hugh, Jr., and a daughter, Linda, a sister, Mrs. Nina Rappleyea of Dansville and brothers, Floyd and Edgar Sperling of St. Charles.

Funeral services were last Thursday at Jewett chapel with burial in the St. Charles cemetery. Rev. Roy Mumau conducted the services. Stanley, Lloyd and Lowell Rappleyea, Rex Beach and Jimmy and Basil Sperling were pallbearers.

Wilson Fire in 1938

Not 25 years ago, but 18 years ago did the Wilson school in Vevay burn. The building went up in flames on Sunday evening, February 27, 1938. In a reference to loss of the building last week the date of the fire was given as 25 years ago.

Jaycees Schedule Road-e-o-in Mason

Thirty young automobile drivers will compete in a teen-age Road-e-o in Mason Saturday afternoon, April 14. The program accounting safe driving is sponsored by the Mason Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Jaycees are offering written exams to all youngsters under 19 enrolled in driver training courses in Mason and Leslie schools and to all who qualify at the Dansville school. Winners of the written exam, 10 from each school, will compete in an obstacle course set up in Mason.

The course will be on Barnes street between Ash and Maple streets, according to William Carl, Jaycee president.

At least 3 prizes will be awarded, according to Carl. He said that the winner will compete in the state Road-e-o and winners of state contests will go to Washington, D. C., for the national championship.

The Road-e-o is a national Jaycee project. This year, more than 300,000 young people will compete in similar contests around the nation, Carl said.

Mason Tourists Bask in Warmth

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Demore, writing from Largo, Florida, reported that they have had some of Michigan's June and July weather the past month. They experienced cold Florida weather when they first arrived, they said. The freeze cost Florida vegetable growers an estimated $50 million but the citrus crop escaped damage. There's a big citrus crop this year, the Mason tourists reported.

Next week Mr. and Mrs. Demore plan to start for home, making their return by way of New Orleans.

Dead Pheasant

I stopped at the scene of the accident on Sunday night, March 1. Alongside the road between the body of Joseph A. Merigolo and his wrecked car was a pheasant, its body still warm. I saw no mention of the bird in your account of the fatal accident. Your paper said that officers thought the driver lost control of his car. Did it occur to you that he lost his own life because he tried to save the life of a pheasant?

M. L. Yes, it did occur to me. Then I decided that pheasants and most other birds, owls and a few species excepted, do not fly or roost at night. It is my opinion that the pheasant was roosting or squatting in the brush when the car came crashing through. It is my theory that the driver of the car was fatally injured 80 feet west of the point where the bird was hit. The bird did not cause the wreck. —EDITOR

Tools for Russia

During the last year, it is now learned, Great Britain sold and shipped about 27 million pounds of copper to Russia or her satellites. In addition, she shipped a considerable number of electric generators and motors and other bits of important machinery. Some of our other friends have also shipped various items in these lines.

It is, of course, possible to argue that some of these nations feel they must have trade with Russia, but it will turn out to be their greatest mistake. Russia is admittedly far behind us industrially. Before she can start a war on any scale she must have her production machinery toolled up for quantity production. Without help from other nations it would take her many years to get into that position. But every ounce of copper, every electric generator or motor, every tool or machine helps shorten the time when she can be ready for all out assault upon us.

These things are so self-evident it would appear no one could make a mistake about them. Yet I have taken Senator McClellan, the Democrat who succeeded Senator McCarthy as chairman of the permanent investigations subcommittee, until right now to find out something practically all the rest of us have known from the beginning. Only now is he beginning to question the wisdom of our tolerating allies engaging in his helpful business with Russia. Many of us have been pointing out for years that Russia needed to buy only one machine or tool to get the benefit of all of our industrial research. She has stolen far more than has been shipped to her because she uses the purchases as models from which to build her own imitations in quantity.

It doesn't make sense for the free world to be engaged in strengthening its sworn enemy —yet that is precisely the thing being done.

Ingham Men See New Dust Method

Albert Cook of Mason, Rollin and Jerold Topf of Eaton Rapids and George Coon of Williamston attended a farm weed-control and fertilizer meeting in Saginaw Friday.

Jerry Twomey, Winnipeg, Canada, developer of NCL leaf feeder dusts, discussed the new fertilizer and weed control idea. According to Twomey, the dust of hormones and minerals and 2, 4-D improves crop quality and kills weeds in one operation. It's best for corn when the plants are between 3 and 10 inches high, according to Cook.

New cars can be fitted with cooling units, similar in operation to household refrigerators. These have the cooling capacity of about 35 ordinary household units, usually.

It's a matter of record! You get more for your money in Olds for '56! Oldsmobile owners have known this for years, and many of them have enjoyed the pleasure of Rocket performance for less than the cost of owning one of the small "lowest-price" cars.

Let us show you the facts and figures. You'll see that it's easy to get out of the ordinary and into an Olds... that it's good sense to make the move now!

For example, look at what you get. Start with power. Oldsmobile pioneered the high-compression era with the Rocket Engine. The 1956 Rocket is mightier, peppier than ever, with a 9.25 to 1 compression ratio! Take your choice of 240 horsepower in Super 88 and Ninety-Eight or 230 horsepower for the lower-priced "88".

Want trend-setting style? Olds shows the way again with the double-duty beauty of the new "Integrille" front bumper. It's two sturdy bumpers in one—and a smart grille besides!

And you'll never know what a pleasure riding and driving can be until you've tried an Olds. This car snugles down to the road, holds a straight-as-a-string course, rounds a curve dead-level.

You'll find many of the reasons behind this marvelous roadability in the new Safety-Ride Chassis. Oldsmobile's six-point suspension features such advances as dual stabilizers, center-control steering, and a heavy, solid-unit frame. It all adds up—come try a Rocket ride yourself! We feel sure we can show you the greatest values ever in the car that holds its value high!

Isle Royale, Michigan's National Park "Discovered" by Wayne History Classes

Dr. Sidney Glazer of Wayne University's history department points out Isle Royale, one of Michigan's most scenic spots to Thelma Infant, student in the College of Education. One of the University's history classes is learning about the island's exciting past and present vacation possibilities.

Toward the realm of Shalvondalzy, Toward the region of the South-Wind, Stretched a sun-lit azure island, Worthy of her title royal.

John Abraham's tribute to Isle Royale, the world's largest island national park, has led history students at Wayne University in Detroit to study the ancient mysteries of Michigan's own national park. And members of Dr. Sidney Glazer's Michigan history class have found many exciting facts to absorb about the Isle.

First discovery was that Isle Royale has one of the largest remaining herds of great antlered moose in the United States. About 300 inhabit the island.

The moose herd reportedly migrated from northern Canada across ice-bound Lake Superior in the winter of 1912. Other animals on the Isle are coyote, lynx, mink, beaver and snowshoe rabbits.

In addition to wildlife, Isle Royale is a wonderland of rare plant life and natural resources, according to Dr. Glazer.

The island is 50 miles above Michigan's Keweenaw Peninsula in Lake Superior. Length is 45 miles by nine miles wide. Surrounding Isle Royale are four major and 200 smaller islands.

French missionary explorers, hearing about a copper-bearing island in Lake Superior from the Indians, discovered the island in the 17th century.

"This huge island had a great deal of early economic activity in copper mining and fishing and played an important part in the fortunes of the upper peninsula," Dr. Glazer said. "It is a scenic spot for about 5,000 tourists each year and could be made available to more Michigan residents for vacation trips if larger appropriations are secured."

Copper mining, once the chief activity of the island's prehistoric Indians is evidenced by some 15,000 mining pits. During the middle of the 19th century, there were three unsuccessful mining booms. Commercial mining of copper was started by the U. S. Forest Service in 1874-75.

In 1940, the island became a national park. The State of Michigan deeded the land to the national government and Isle Royale National Park, 133,234 acres, was established.

No automobiles are allowed on the island. And there are only a few summer homes which the National Park Service allows to remain there.

For botanists, late June and early July is the best time to observe rare species of pitcher plants, polygala, butterworts, fern and at least 30 kinds of wild orchids.

"Thanks to the foresight of Benjamin Franklin, who knew of the island's mineral resources, the boundary line of the United States was drawn in 1783 to include Isle Royale—Michigan's wilderness vacationland," said Dr. Glazer.

You're thankful our Supreme Court concerns itself with some apparently trifling matters of the little people.

It used to be that when I thought of the United States supreme court, I pictured 9 stately gentlemen pondering momentous issues involving prominent people and huge corporations. Then recently I read about some of the more important supreme court decisions.

The issues turned out to be grave and far-reaching, to be sure, but the people involved were just ordinary folks who looked to the United States constitution for protection—and received it. One of the great decisions leading up to the Civil War and the eventual end of slavery revolved around a humble Negro slave who sought freedom. It was a poultry dealer in New York whose court case knocked out the complex National Recovery Administration program of the early 1930's, a voluntary plan of controls which affected almost every American business.

Even such a "simple" matter as litter on the streets of a small Georgia community, Griffin by name, became an issue of national import. Griffin was a town which made you get a license to hand out leaflets. People threw away the leaflets and made the streets unsightly, said the town elders. To prove a point, one man invited arrest by breaking the local law on purpose.

His case went through the state courts, and finally to the U. S. supreme court. The question involved a fundamental constitutional guarantee: Freedom of the press. Was distribution a part of the American right to free press?

No one had been kept from printing what he pleased, merely from handing out what had been printed.

The learned judges delved into the meaning of a free press, from the first article in the bill of rights clear back to John Milton's great essay on the subject in 1644 after one of his pamphlets had been banned in England.

The supreme court decision on an obscure Georgia municipal ordinance affected the whole nation. Said the court: Liberty of circulation is essential to the liberty of publishing.

It bore out John Milton's steadfast contention that the truth need never fear a free and open contest with falsehood.

Or take the group of West Virginians whose religion dictated that they owed all allegiance to God, although they would pledge "respect" to the nation's flag.

They were upheld when they resisted a compulsory flag salute by their children in public school. Even in the heat of wartime, the supreme court, after searching the history of Christianity back to its suppression in early Rome, said that a man could not be forced to "utter what was not in his mind."

I'm mighty glad that even the highest court in the land takes a hand in the affairs of "the little people."

Good Soil Care Pays Off For New Corn Champions

GOOD seed and careful soil management including the use of fertilizer were key factors in helping win top corn growing honors for America's new Corn King and Corn Prince at the recent International Grain and Hay Show in Chicago.

Willard C. Kirk, 58, (left) the new Corn King, who operates a 355-acre farm near Jeffersonville, Ohio, has won the championship three times in the past five years.

Thomas Halterman, 16, of Rushville, Indiana, the new Corn Prince, was following a family custom in winning corn honors. His brother, Earl, 20, was named Corn Prince at the 1948 show. His father, Newton, 64, operator of a 227-acre farm in Rush county, Ind., won the title of Corn King at the same show, to repeat an honor he won in 1946. The Halterman farm raises hybrid seed corn and Hampshire hogs.

Kirk says three steps were particularly important in bringing him the 1955 championship: 1—The use of a high quality single cross hybrid seed; 2—Feeding the soil a well-balanced supply of nitrogen, phosphate and potash fertilizer, and liming as needed; 3—A rotation that gives him a two-year lay-down of legume-grass sod.

Kirk's farm produces hybrid seed corn, wheat, soybeans, oats, durum hogs and Shropshire sheep. In addition to corn, Kirk believes in fertilizing the entire rotation. In the process, he uses between 600 and 700 pounds of plant food per acre.

Tom Halterman's junior championship corn was produced on a 20-acre field he filled as a 4-H club project. The seed was a parent of Indiana hybrid No. 84. Tom is active in 4-H programs and in the Future Farmers of America. He was corn champion of Rush county in 1951 and 1952.

Over the years the elder Halterman has been steadily building up the fertility level of his soil. He follows a rotation that gives him a legume grass crop once every three years. The rotation is corn, oats and alfalfa.

Halterman believes in using plenty of fertilizer. He has soil tests made regularly and follows the recommendations of the agronomists at Purdue University.

Mason Man Plans Holt Roller Rink

Holt will have a roller skating rink before fall.

Edward B. Corr, 720 N. Phillips road, Mason, has bought a site for his rink. He has 300 feet of frontage on Cedar street, 2 blocks south of the Holt traffic light.

Corr's plans call for a building 100x156, black with a brick front. The skating surface will be 80x156. He will have off-street parking.

Corr, a building contractor, designed the building and will build it with his own equipment on land purchased from Charles Rathbun. There is 300 feet of frontage of US-127 and the lot ranges from 200 to 300 feet deep.

Corr said he's never been in the skating business or any other entertainment field. The project is the idea of his daughter, he said. Corr claims the backing of several church and youth organizations and he declared that he intends to operate the business himself rather than hire outside management.

RDC GOES ABROAD. Rail Diesel Cars, destined for operation across the sparsely settled desert plains of Australia, are loaded aboard ship in Philadelphia harbor. Other foreign users of RDC include Canada, Saudi Arabia and Cuba. Successful operation in such extremes of temperature and altitude prove the dependability of this rugged self-propelled car.

RDC'S POPULAR IN FOREIGN LANDS

The magic of modern railroad passenger travel has caught the fancy of the public world over. This is especially true in areas where roads are poor or even non-existent and scheduled air service is limited to a few principal cities or towns. In such areas "the flanged wheel on the iron rail," translated into a self-propelled Rail Diesel Car is supplying the need for fast, comfortable and reliable transportation.

Four examples come immediately to mind: Saudi Arabia, Australia, Cuba, and Canada. Railroads in each of these countries have adopted in the post-war era use of the Budd car, known as RDC—for Rail Diesel Car—to modernize travel and facilitate movement of mail and express.

Under conditions varying from the Canadian cold to the deserts of Arabia and Australia this new instrument of communication is proving its worth economically and finding wide public acceptance.

Perhaps the most picturesque unusual assignment now being performed by RDC abroad is on the Saudi Government Railroad in Arabia. This railroad was built since the war by Arabian American Oil Co. at behest of the late King Ibn Saud to connect the Persian Gulf port of Dammam with the capital city of Riyadh, a distance of 352 miles.

The American builders of the road turned naturally to America for equipment and motive power, selecting for passenger use three RDC's combination passenger and baggage units. Traversing a region of shifting desert sands marked by fierce heat in the coastal areas and deep cold on the high plateau as the route turns inland, the Saudi Railroad gives the Budd car a severe test. A single car makes three round trips a week over the 352-mile route, taking nine hours for the journey which formerly, and not long ago, took days of plodding camel caravan travel. The line eventually is expected to be extended all the way across Arabia to the Red Sea.

Meanwhile the RDC's are performing other more local services in Arabia, including six round trips a day on a ten-mile run from the port at Dammam to Dhahran, site of a major oil company installation. Another of the cars makes a daily round trip of 92 miles between Dammam and Hofuf, largest of the oasis cities in Arabia. The air-conditioned comfort of the cars and the generally high reliability of the service, in spite of hazards of drifting sand, have found wide public acceptance and added another vital touch of modernity to this ancient land. In Arabia with its wealth of oil, dieselization of the railroad was natural from the start, and selection of the diesel-propelled, all-stainless steel Budd cars for the passenger service gave this unusual carrier its chance to win acceptance by people long accustomed to only the most primitive transportation.

On the other side of the globe, the Commonwealth Railways of Australia have found the Budd RDC cars an important instrument in providing passenger service over routes perhaps as difficult as those in Arabia. The Trans-Australia Railway, running 1,108 miles from Kalgoorlie in South Australia, has in service three RDC's, both for local and long distance travel. This route is through sparsely inhabited and almost waterless desert, with one stretch of 323 miles of track without a curve.

With the introduction of RDC cars in 1951 the formidable passenger journey between Port Augusta and Kalgoorlie shrank from an ordeal of 43 hours in a steam train to a mere 19½ hours in the self-propelled diesels. To encourage use of this new mode of travel across the Australian desert, the railroad has equipped one of the RDC units with a buffet, providing airplane-type services and catering to special tour parties.

But Australia's use of the Budd cars is not limited to this spectacular trans-desert service. Shorter and more frequent services are provided on runs of 56 to 314 miles. In one recent period of service the RDC's travelled 126,000 miles, carrying more than 42,000 passengers and making a profit of $92,000. Officials of the railroad estimate that with the former steam service the road would have realized a loss of $220,000 on this traffic. Thus the Budd RDC's were an improvement of more than $250,000.

Chile, where railroad operating conditions and travel needs differ greatly from either Arabia or Australia, has found the Budd car equally useful. In the island republic to the south much more intensive use is being made of the cars by the Consolidated Railroads of Cuba which has sixteen units in service. Eleven are the all-passenger version and five are combination baggage and passenger cars.

Consolidated's two operating units, Cuba Railroad and Cuba Northern, use the cars as pool, drawing on them for use on runs varying from about 61 miles to 200 miles. They operate as either one or two-car trains and provide a frequency and speed of service in the central and northern portion of the island not possible economically with the former steam trains. Adaptation of these cars, dating from 1931, was an important step in modernization of Cuba's internal communications system. Reports from the company indicate that it has paid off in terms of 50 per cent of operating economies as well as providing the public a means of easy and comfortable transportation.

In the first year of operation in Cuba the sixteen units completed all but 219 of 1,205,146 scheduled miles, an availability of 99.98 per cent. That is vastly important to the railroad. But equally significant was passenger reaction, with groups making special excursions always asking for the RDC's.

To the north both the government-owned Canadian National Railway and the privately-owned Canadian Pacific Railway are engaged in modernizing their passenger services. And both have found the Budd Rail Diesel Cars valuable in their programs. Canadian Pacific, starting with a purchase of four units, has found acceptance and usefulness of the service warranted purchase of 12 additional cars. The runs vary from fast passenger runs between principal cities such as Toronto and Detroit to service resort areas and to more remote points in the mining and forestry regions. Canadian National's cars are in service in New Brunswick in the Maritime provinces, covering a trip of 114 miles with twenty-five scheduled and flag stops.

These varied uses of the Budd RDC cars in far-flung areas of the globe are indications of the quiet but steady revolution in railroad passenger service taking place since introduction of the equipment in 1946.

In Ingham county, Houck said, nearly 3,000 families were helped by the home service department of the chapter last year. Around the clock, staff and volunteers sent and received urgent messages, assisted families in getting government benefits, advanced funds in times of financial distress and counselled with personal problems. In addition, hundreds of servicemen from this area turned to the Red Cross field director where they were stationed for assistance in securing emergency leaves, funds and other help.

Hospitalized patients in Lansing and Mason needed an average of 200 pints of blood every week, Houck stated, in emphasizing the importance of that Red Cross program to the health and welfare of our people. Not only

Comparing costs where there is no Red Cross program and patients are charged a professional donor fee of $35 or more, Houck pointed out that the Red Cross system saved the people hospitalized in Ingham county more than $350,000—which is 3 times as much as the entire budget of Red Cross for the full year for all services.

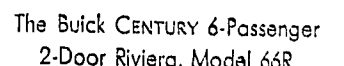

Training individuals in first aid, home nursing and water safety was another important phase of Red Cross community total of 6,166 men, women and service during the year with a children receiving certificates from the Ingham chapter. Trade — not Aid Erectors are installing a new job press at the Ingham County News. It is a Heidelberg, manufactured in Heidelberg, Germany, and shipped to the United States. Why?

We needed a press replacement. By inquiry we became convinced that the Heidelberg is living up to the claims made by an aggressive sales staff. That's why we bought.

We didn't buy the press to aid Germany, yet probably it does aid Germany. We didn't give much thought to the slogan, "Trade — not Aid," until the order was signed. Then it came to us that trade is better than handouts. The Germans lost the war. Their factories were destroyed. Some were moved to Russia, some to England. Many of their industrial leaders were imprisoned. Some of their top scientists were taken to Russia, some to the United States. Heavy reparations were assessed.

Take a look at Germany today. Within 10 years thrift and industry have built a new economy. Germany is back in chips. France and England and Italy and other countries which received so many billions in U. S. aid are still asking for handouts. They say they can't exist without it.

Really, the situation should not be surprising. There comes a time when many people need a helping hand. Yet they can usually be helped more by a job than a handout. When a person in normal health stays on welfare too long he has difficulty converting to self-support. His crutch has become a permanent fixture.

Germany is sending Heidelberg presses, cameras, generators and many other goods throughout the world because the U. S. crutch has been tossed into the rubble. Trade — not aid — has rebuilt Germany.

Local Leadership Counts

People who attended Mason churches Sunday remarked about the groups of young girls present. They were Brownies and Girl Scouts, observing Girl Scout Sunday. Most of the girls are in church regularly. On Sunday they sat in groups.

With the girls were their leaders; and there is the determining factor in any organization for boys and girls. It's the local leadership that counts in 4-H, Boy Scout, Girl Scout, Campfire, FFA, FHA or any other movement.

Unless there is strong and active local leadership there is no use to provide area, regional, state or national leadership. Only with strong and active local leadership can value be secured from outside guidance and direction. It's the local leadership that counts.

Bricks Won't Do the Job

We have placed too much faith in brick and stone. Here in Michigan we have been told that so many more millions well invested in bricks, and stone and steel will cure mental sickness. We have been told that other millions spent in building a new institution for delinquent boys will reduce delinquency. We are told that so many millions, especially if they come through Washington, will solve our educational problems.

Brick and stone and steel will do none of those things. An eminent doctor went before state legislators to urge them to provide brains instead of bricks to cure mental sickness. He declared that with proper treatment, fewer instead of more beds, would be required.

Robert L. Drake, who has had long experience in Ingham's juvenile court, pointed out last week that the state will be wasting money by rebuilding a Boys Vocational school in some other location. There's a far better way to salvage boys labeled as delinquent. What they need instead of being segregated and stigmatized behind bars is the discipline, the understanding and the attention they can get in foster homes, Drake said. Even those who need restraint can be better handled in small cottage-type establishments isolated from society until they can appreciate freedom, he stated.

Most delinquency results from neglect and dependency, the Ingham official said, and another kick may not help the boy or girl who has been kicked around since infancy.

Drake's reasoning makes sense. Before the legislators waste millions of dollars in building another Boys Vocational school they ought to talk with Drake and others engaged in handling youthful delinquents.

We Are Cleaning Our Nests

For too many years people in some areas of Ingham have been fouling their own nests.

When a few families moved to the country they could get by without sewer facilities. When a lot of families moved to the country the situation was changed.

Here in Mason for years we dumped raw sewage into the Sycamore. Some of us hollered when state agencies 30 years ago forced us to build a disposal plant. Leslie people for years knew they needed to modernize their sewer system and build a disposal plant. They finally waited for a court order. Williamston built a disposal plant. Meridian township and Holt will soon provide sewers and disposal plants.

Lansing and East Lansing and Mason are expanding sanitation facilities. Stockbridge, Webberville, Dansville and Onondaga people need to be thinking about providing facilities within the next 10 years.

We have money enough for other things. We have money enough to quit living in filth. We have money enough to clean up our streams. We have money enough to make our surroundings pleasant so we don't have to go 150 miles north to get clean water and to catch clean fish.

We are finally cleaning our own nests here in Ingham.

Courts Are Not Sacred

The law is not always what the legislature or the congress intended. It is what the court says it is. In President Roosevelt's day he made a frontal assault on the U. S. supreme court. He was foiled in his attempt to pack the court, but he remained in office long enough to enable him to make almost a complete change in the court and the tenor of the court's decisions. He did not regard the U. S. supreme court as sacred.

The supreme court is under bitter attack today for its anti-segregation decision. There are many people in the southern states who do not regard the court as sacred.

Here in Michigan a member of the court has proved that the Michigan supreme court is not sacred. Justice Eugene F. Black, nominated to the court not for his judicial temperament or ability, but out of political expediency, is playing his colleagues.

Justice Black was a Republican, or said he was, when Kim Sigler handed him the nomination for attorney general. During the Sigler administration nothing seemed to suit the attorney general. He was at odds with everyone, even himself. He changed his politics to become a Democrat. He was quickly rewarded with appointment as circuit judge to fill a vacancy on the St. Clair bench. A year ago Democrats nominated him and the people elected him to the state supreme court. His own record makes the supreme court look something less than sacred. His own statements since assuming office January 1 carry the implication that he does not credit his colleagues with sacredness.

Perhaps the appointment and election of Justice Black are in line with the admonition that the seats of justice should

Down by the SYCAMORE

Germans have always ranked high in printing, right from the start of Johann Gutenberg. German printers and German printing presses and other printing equipment have gone all over the world. At the start of World War II when we bought a Duplex newspaper press, Hans Schmidt, listed as an enemy alien, came to Mason to erect the big machine. After the war he went to Africa, the Near East and the Orient to erect Goss and Duplex presses. Oltmar Mergenthaler developed the Linotype, the first successful typesetting machine.

So right from old Heidelberg on the Rhine has come a new printing press for the Ingham County News. It prints from movable type, just like the press used by Gutenberg, only a lot faster. This new Heidelberg will deliver 50 printed sheets for every one that Gutenberg was able to print.

Our new Heidelberg is equipped with a converter — so sentences which go into the press in German and several other languages will come out in English if Bill Plinch or Pat Eding punches the right button.

"Abends wird der Faule fleissig" was the way the press was set. That came out, "In the evening the lazy man becomes diligent." When Bill punched, I almost said, pinched, the French button, down came "impossible n'est pas un mot francais." Quickly it was converted to "impossible is not a French word."

Pat punched the Latin button. On the platen first appeared, "Heidelberg nihil est celerius," which instantly converted to "Nothing is swifter than Heidelberg." Then came a warning in Italian, "Maggior fretta, minore atto." "The more haste, the less speed," and Pat slowed it down.

The only fault we have discovered in the translating device is the location of verbs. We are getting translations like this on the German-English conversion, "Throw the cow over the fence some hay;" and "Herman, Herman, tie the dog loose."

Ever since last summer we have directed only the mind and not the feet here at the Ingham County News. Boys with snowballs had kept our pretty Neon sign out of action and we finally took it down. Feet then wandered up and down Jefferson, owners of them inquiring how to reach the Ingham County News. Even so observant a man as Art Carstens of the Eaton Rapids Journal wandered into Dr. Lethbridge's office and the Dart National Co. before he was finally led to the Ingham County News. That decided us, and Roy Dodge was commissioned to make a sign.

Roy used his own inspiration, his own metal, his own paint, and his own artistry. It's a good sign. He found the inspiration—a copy of the Ingham County News masthead. Lettered in Tempo Heavy, the sign looks so natural that people have stopped to inquire why we don't display the entire front page.

Grandpa DeCamp fought part of the Civil War in Arkansas. He pronounced it Ar-Kansas, not Arkansas. He showed captive Rebs copies of the Ingham County News and even reconstructed some by reading them editorially from his home town paper. After all these years the Ingham County News is now on display in Fayetteville. At a seminar there members of the Arkansas Press association are going to see an Ingham County News exhibit—are going to see why Grandpa was in such a hurry to answer mail call.

The University of Arkansas requested the copies of the Ingham County News and they were sent. Stop in and look at them if you are in Arkansas in June.

Television eyes result not from the screen alone, but by conflict and readjustment of vision, the experts say. A TV screen is 10 times as bright as a motion picture screen. This bright light makes the pupils of the eye contract. Darkness surrounding the set makes the pupils open. This conflict and constant readjustment causes fatigue. The cure is to light the room to about half the brightness needed for reading. Get light around the TV set.

If she staggers a little she may be only confessing that she's beyond 40. Out of an estimated 4 million problem drinkers in the United States, more than a million are females, and the majority are beyond 40. Psychologists claim that when a woman drinks it is often an indication that the dreams of her youth have not materialized.

A survey taken at the University of Michigan reveals that 4 out of 5 bicycles used by students are English or English-type. Only about one out of 5 have balloon tires. Many hundreds of bikes are used by students to get to and from classes.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Shaw were amazed at the numbers of people who wanted to help them. The Vevy farmer, father of 7, is in Veterans hospital, Ann Arbor, recovering from lung surgery. Among those who helped was someone from Holt who sent $20 anonymously.

Holt Defeats Everett and St. Mary In Winning Class C District Title

Holt walked off with honors in probably the toughest Class C tournament in the state. In finals Saturday Holt defeated Everett 48-45. The Rams tripped St. Mary Friday night after drawing a bye for the first round. Everett reached the finals by dumping Okemos Wednesday night and outclassing Vocational 69-27 Friday night.

Next stop for the Rams is Ionia and the regionals. The tournament trail is not new to Holt. In the past few years the Rams have been almost the full distance several times.

Last year Holt moved to the semi-finals before finally losing to Houghton 60-51. Houghton went on to take the title. Holt reached the quarter-finals 3 years before with St. Louis. Finally blocking the way.

Rams Were Never Better

Holt never played better all-around ball than against Everett. Though the Rams have been hotter at scoring during the season the defensive play and ball-handling was the best ever.

Actual credit for the victory goes to the free throw shooting ability of the Rams. Both teams hit on 20 field goal attempts but Holt scored 8 out of 14 free throws while Everett scored 5 in 11 attempts.

The game was close all the way. After firing ceased in the first quarter the score was 11-11. Midway through the second period the Rams forged 7 points in front. Everett never had the lead after that. The half ended with Holt on top 26-20.

In the third quarter Holt outscored the Vikings 16-14. Everett rallied in the last quarter to pull to within one point of the Rams with one minute to go but Everett lost the ball on a traveling call and seconds later Bob Tuttle pulled Holt out of danger with 2 free throws.

Holt beat the Vikings at their own game. Everett, long on defense all year, could not break down the Holt zone pattern that Coach Dan Hovanessian devised. Dean Look, Everett's all-star, was so completely bottled up by the defense he could score only 2 points.

Holt's scoring was evenly distributed. Ken Boettcher and Tuttle each collected 12 points while George Albert and Ken Blalock each hit for 11. Mike Marshall, the other Holt player to see action, scored only 2 points but he controlled both backboards.

Roger Quinn took over the scoring honors for Everett with 13 points. Jim Beardsley was the only other Viking to hit double figures. He scored 10.

Saturday night's game was the rubber match for Holt and Everett. The Rams defeated the Vikings in the first meeting for the only Capital Circuit loss on the Everett record. A week ago Everett, evened the series by taking the final game of the regular season.

Boxoffice Business Booms

Dansville's first district cage tournament was a success in more ways than one. Not only did the Aggies take the Class D title and earn a chance to compete in the regionals at Albion but the 3-night tournament was a box-office success. At the finals Saturday night over 1,500 spectators jammed into the new gymnasium, according to G. E. Manning, tournament director.

Williamston Takes Class C Honors

Williamston defeated Haslett 42-40 to take a Class C district title in the Laingsburg tournament Saturday night.

Haslett reached the finals by dumping Laingsburg while Williamston beat Bath to earn its berth in the finals.

Willie Gaffner was the Hornet hero in the drive to the title. He dumped in a field goal in the final second to pull the game out of the fire for Williamston. It wasn't just his game-winning basket that earned him the tag either.

Going into the final quarter Williamston trailed by 6 points. Gaffner started to hit, scoring 8 points in the last quarter.

Both teams played slow cautious games. When the first period ended the score was 10-10. Haslett took a 20-18 lead at halftime and in the third quarter came up with 12 points while Williamston was posting 8.

Gaffner topped Williamston's scoring attack with 16 points. Dick Osterle was next with 12. Larry Fulton and Doug Beethum shared the Haslett scoring honors with 12 points each. Junior Sherman was next with 10.

Next stop for Williamston is the regional meet at Ionia.

Leslie Beats Fowlerville Then Wallops Stockbridge

Dansville captured the Class D title and Leslie fought his way to the Class C crown in Dansville's first district cage tournament.

Dansville moved to Albion for its regional bid. Leslie will play in the Ypsilanti tournament.

For a while it looked as if Leslie was not going to be around the Dansville tourney for the finals. In the opener Friday night the Blackhawks had to rely on luck and 2 overtime periods before finally dumping Fowlerville 63-62.

In the finals Leslie had an easier time of it, beating Stockbridge 76-57. Stockbridge reached the finals by beating Pinckney 49-48.

The Leslie-Williamston game was finally decided when Ken Wheeler sank his second free throw with time running out on overtime number 2.

Leslie started the game with a rush, running the score to 13-7 in the first quarter.

Bulldogs Blow District Game

Mason's district cage tournament was a one-night stand. The Bulldogs blew a 12-point lead in the last quarter to let Howell move ahead to a 47-44 victory.

It was the third time this year Howell has beaten Mason. In all the games it was the same story. The Highlanders would finish strong and nose past the Bulldogs at the finish.

It appeared that Mason had saved its best basketball for the tournaments when the game started. In the first quarter Mason pulled out to a 17-10 lead. Mason continued to dominate Howell in the second period, ending up with a 27-17 lead at halftime.

Howell started to close the gap in the third quarter but Mason rallied briefly to again build up a 12-point lead. In the last period

Trojans Emerge District Champs

East Lansing took the Class B championship in the Eastern District tourney finals Saturday night by trouncing Howell 66-51.

Howell earned the right to be in the finals by edging Mason Thursday night while East Lansing upset Resurrection Wednesday night to gain a final berth.

Both teams saved their worst ball for the finals. Time after time they threw the ball away. The Highlanders grabbed a 16-14 lead in the first quarter but in the second period East Lansing took over and finished the half with a 30-25 margin. The Highlanders made one rally in the third period to pull within one point of the Trojans but then fell behind again and stayed there.

Art Brandstatter and Scotty Herrick shared East Lansing scoring honors with 16 points each. Jim Sorhor was next with 15.

Bill Earl hit 18 points to lead Howell. The Highlanders were handicapped by the scoring inability of Dick McMacken and John McCloskey, the Howell hot-shots. McMacken managed 8 points while McCloskey was good for only 4 points.

With the district title safely tucked away, East Lansing will set its sights on Albion and the regional title.

Dansville Coasts To District Title

Dansville's powerhouse was too much for both Pottersville and Dimondale in the Aggies' own district tournament.

The Aggies received stiffest competition in the semi-final game with Pottersville. Dansville won that one 75-55. Coach Searl Briggs handed out tournament experience to everyone on the squad. Nine men figured in the scoring. Dick Brooks scored 20 points, Keith Douglas, 13; Larry Soule, 12; Don McCabe, 9; Don Brown, 7; Jerry Wing, 7; Glen Wireman, 4; Paul Carl, 2; and Carl Minnis, 1.

Bill Hartel and Andy Lupiens each scored 18 for Pottersville.

In the finals Saturday night Dansville overpowered Dimondale 71-32. This time 13 Aggies had a hand in the scoring with McCabe pacing the attack with 14 points and Soule hitting for 10. Paul Shively topped the Dimondale attack with 16 points.

County League Earns 3 Titles

Ingham County league teams earned their share of glory in the district cage tournaments. Out of the 7-team league came 3 district champions. Williamston took the Class C title at Laingsburg, Leslie earned the Class C title at Dansville and Dansville took the Class D crown in the Aggie tourney.

Teams which fell by the wayside were Haslett, Okemos, Fowlerville and Stockbridge. Haslett was eliminated by Williamston. Fowlerville and Stockbridge were bumped by Leslie.

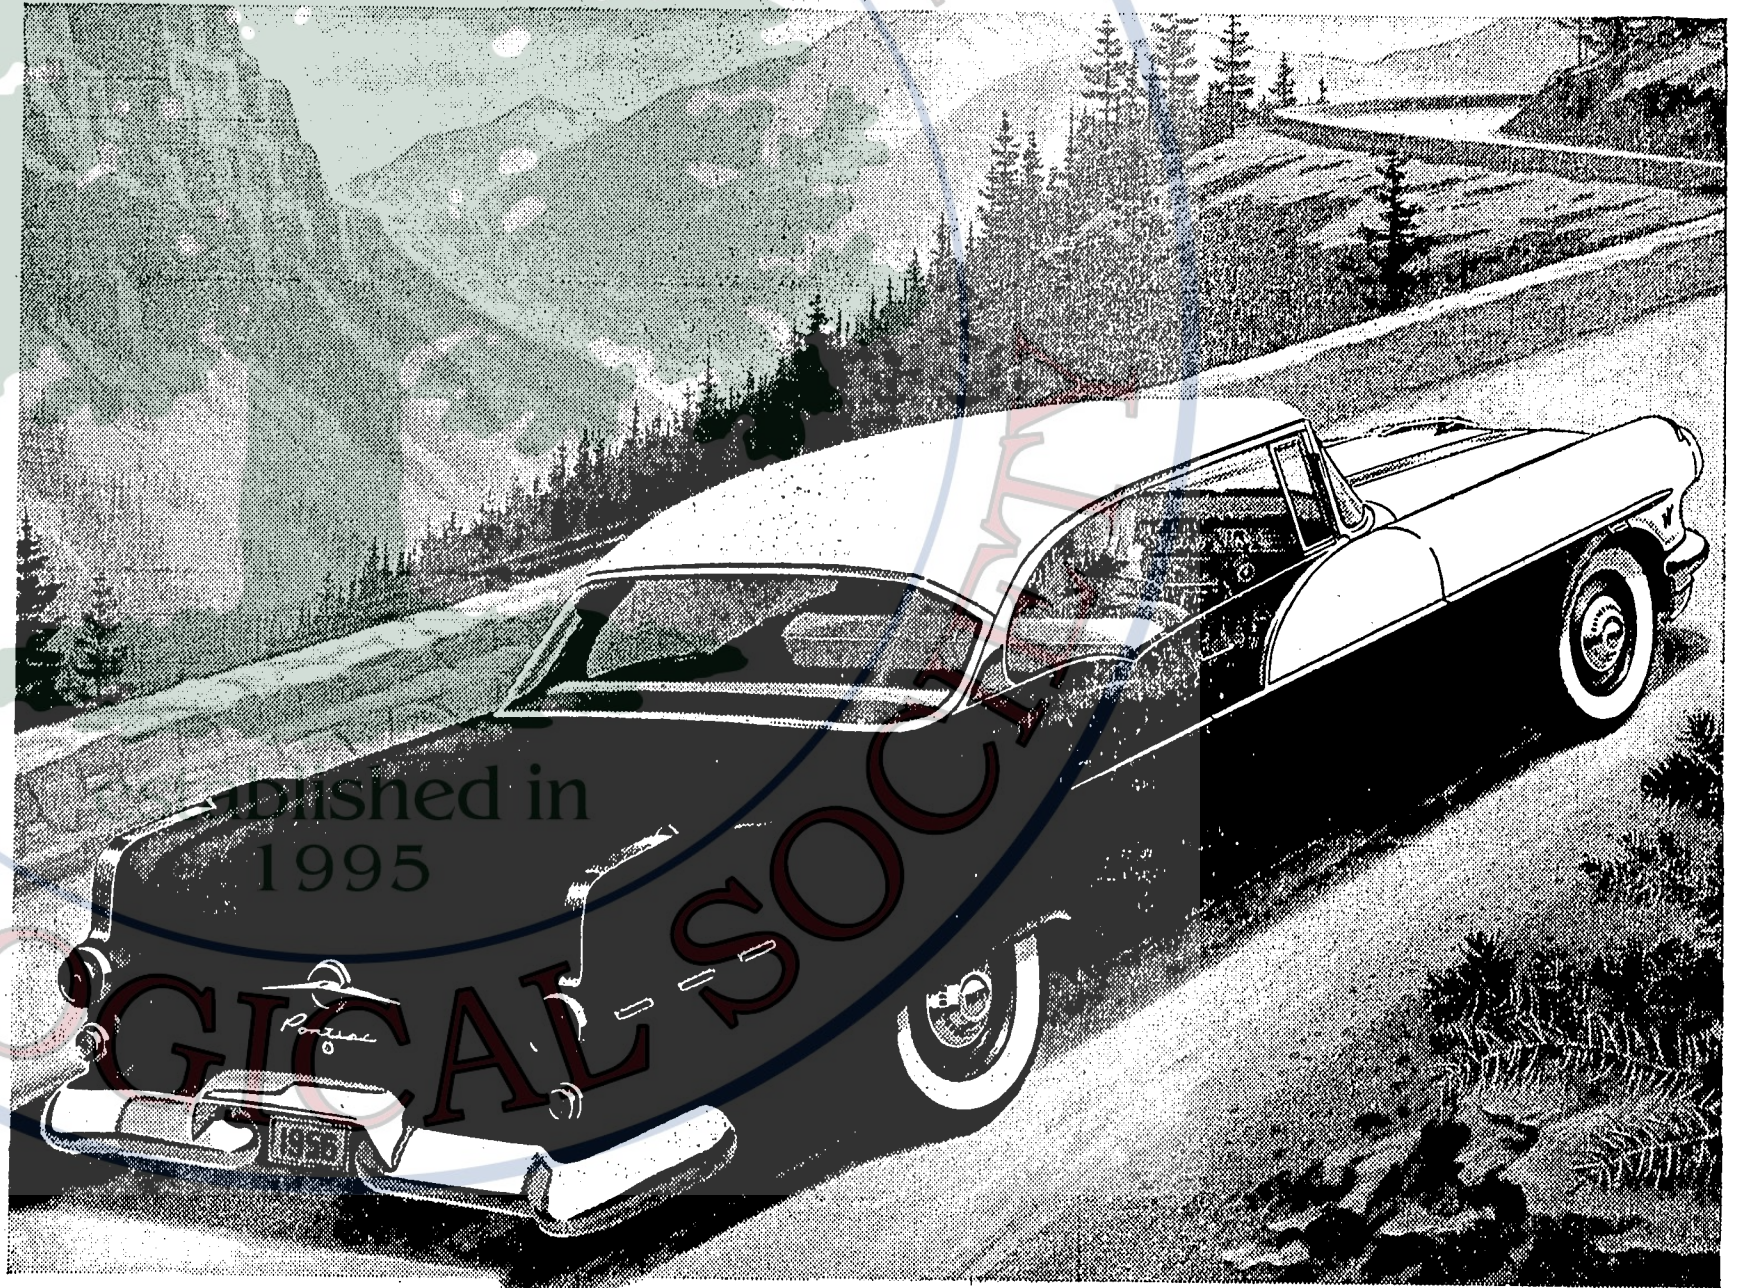

Dansville will start its fight for regional honors at Albion. Leslie will shoot for additional glory at Ypsilanti while Williamston will move to Ionia.

Williamston will find old friends when it reaches Ionia. Also listed for action in Class C is Holt of the Capital Circuit.

The Rams are the only Capital Circuit team to make the grade to the regionals.

Seventh Grade Gets Pay

Mayor Alfred Forche and Mrs. Forche paid off Mason's undefeated seventh grade cage team with a turkey dinner Friday night. Coach Maurice Strait's crew won the Capital Circuit title.

At Home... Among Strangers !

You're going to get a wonderful thrill when you take the wheel of your first Cadillac and head out into the country—a long, long way from home.

We're not just talking about the car's wonderful performance and its extraordinary riding and handling ease—satisfying and inspiring though these are bound to be.

No, we're talking about something more.

We're talking about the friendliness you're going to encounter—how you'll be driving among people who seem to know something about you, and who are ready to trust and respect you just as if they had known you for a long, long time.

This is true, of course, because Cadillac quality and goodness have made it the overwhelming preference of people of judgment and discrimination—and the whole world has come to know this and to appreciate what it means.

Yes, your best foot is forward when it rests on the throttle of a 1956 Cadillac.

This great personal benefit is strictly a plus value when you take the title of the "car of cars." It comes in addition to the long-known Cadillac virtues of beauty, luxury, performance, safety and long life.

Why not consider a Cadillac for your own next car?

It is a logical choice—not only for quality and goodness and prestige—but for economy of ownership and operation as well. The lowest-priced models cost less than many other cars—and a single tank of gasoline will see you through a full day's driving.

We suggest that you come in soon and see for yourself. We'll be happy to give you a personal demonstration at the wheel... and to explain why this is such a wonderful time to make the move.

Why not make it today?

IF THIS EVER HAPPENED TO YOU...
you'll find the solution under the picture!

Open the windows!
Open the door!

The smell's terrific
—that's what for
My nose won't stand it
My eyes rebel
Aint there some kind of paint without this smell?

(Note: Where have you been, mister? Jelled Magic, the new one-coat alkyd paint that's jelled and homogenized doesn't have that old-time painty odor. You can even paint with doors and windows closed without discomfort. And because you don't have to stir it... and because it goes on so easy and doesn't drip or splatter like ordinary paint... and because it dries so fast, you can do a paint job now in no time at all. Ask for a demonstration).

Daryl Minnis Gives Talk at Kiwanis Meet

Daryl V. Minnis, director of the Board of Social Welfare, was guest speaker at the Williamston Kiwanis club meeting Monday evening. After the usual dinner at 6:30 p. m., Minnis was introduced and spoke on the county welfare assistance program. He explained that due to so many people going into social security, in another 10 years most public welfare would be eliminated.

He also explained the county's Rehabilitation Center at Okemos, terming the 3-year project a going program and invaluable for evaluating and assisting patients. He also stated that a Williamston physician, Dr. E. E. Reynolds, who was medical director at the time before entering the air corps, originated the idea, which were to rehabilitate the aged and infirm. This has been carried on by other doctors and interested people during the past three years, so that now the county hospital and Rehabilitation Center is among the first of its kind in the country with county supervisors, the university and the public working together as a single unit. Last year 101 patients were returned to their homes after rehabilitation at the hospital.

The president, Fred Cole, announced that Arnold Prime and Lyle Hare will be delegates to the International Kiwanis convention in San Francisco in June. Robert Lewis and Harold Youngs were named as alternates. H. E. Allen and C. R. Bullis were recently elected to the board for a term of 3 years.

New Subdivision Is Underway

Rudy Lange, local building contractor, has begun the first of a subdivision in Williamston. Foundation was laid last week on the first of 27 homes which he will build on the section formerly known as the Patterson and Giesler fruit farm. Lange purchased the orchard on Bismark street and will call it the Orchard park subdivision. The property was annexed to the city recently. It previously was outside the city limits.

The subdivision has been platted and approved by various offices. The construction of the first house is under way. It will be a 3-bedroom California Contemporary home, designed by Scholz, Inc., of Toledo, Ohio. The building will be L-shaped 28 by 60 feet and will feature a garage and workshop. The exterior will be brick and frame and the bathroom will be of ceramic tile.

About 90% of the homes in the subdivision will have fireplaces and each will feature a concrete terrace or patio with apple trees for shade. All the homes will have 3 or 4 bedrooms, some L-shaped and some rectangular. Lange estimates the cost of the homes would be $18,000 and up. He expects to have the subdivision completed in 2 to 5 years. The subdivision will have city sewer and water facilities and the streets will be paved. Under the agreement with the city, Lange will pay for 80 per cent of the cost of the sewer, water and street construction. The city will pay 20 per cent.

Fire Chief Wilbur Smith earlier had advised the council that the 3 townships were willing to share the cost of the proposed unit.

The city's share would be over $700. In addition, the city would house and be responsible for the car. 4. On long drives, stop now and then to rest and relax.
5. Never pass on a hill.
6. Courtesy and patience are two very necessary ingredients of safe driving.
7. Don't follow too closely the car ahead of you.
8. Accident statistics continue to rate speed as the number one cause of automobile accidents—keep it down.

Officer Truman Whitney took the license number of a car leaving the driveway of the store late on the night of February 29. Weis said that if released he would appear voluntarily before Justice Rouse at 9 a. m. the next morning. THERE'S A MOUNTAIN of STRENGTH

Mount Lassen in northern California towers majestically heavenward, its immense size a tremendous sight to man. It has long been considered an inactive volcano, yet it maintains an active warmth in its depths that is shared with lakes and springs at its base.

Somehow it reminds you of the towering strength of Christianity. Christianity, like Mount Lassen, is visible to all in its vicinity. It is a mountain of strength, with endless opportunities for exploring its mysteries.

Christianity imparts warmth to all who approach it. From its depths there spring rivers of living water to quench the thirst of your soul. And though each person touching this mountain should take away with him all he could carry to scatter through the world, yet its bulk will not diminish.

Gaze upon that Christianity that is like a huge mountain. Be warmed, refreshed, and strengthened through fellowship and worship each Sunday at Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For the sake of his own soul. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Political Views Differ on Pres. Eisenhower's Answer

By ELMER WHITE
Michigan Press Association

Decision of President Eisenhower to run for president has its significance in each state as well as the nation as a whole.

In Michigan, as elsewhere, Republicans are jubilant; Democrats are grim.

Now that politicians know he will run, they are busy trying to make the best possible plans. The GOP is worrying about who should be the candidate for governor. Democrats are less worried about the governor's office; more concerned about picking up more seats in the house and senate.

Overconfidence can be a factor in both parties. While Republicans are being careful not to infer that "Ike can't lose," their opponents are also pretending that they do not feel sure about the chances of Gov. Williams.

A spokesman for the Democratic party said, "It won't be a pushover for us next fall. Ike has long coat tails, and there's no telling who'll be on them."

Republicans point to their strategy of not putting all their political eggs in the Eisenhower basket as indication of their thinking. A GOP leader said, "We started our campaign long ago. We are going to the grass roots level to sell the sound Republican principles and policies. We are training our workers in every community in the state. We've got a great package to sell, and we want to get it sold to the right man in the right way."

Automatic opening of the deer season on the nearest Saturday to November 15 was defeated in this legislative session.

It was less a struggle between sportsmen and conservationists than a battle between the Upper and Lower Peninsulas, the businesses and schools.

"I wouldn't live so long as to be able to explain back home why I voted for an automatic Saturday opening," said Senator

March 15, 1956

The Ingham County News

Part 4

Charles T. Prescott (R-Prescott). Prescott said his bill to adjust the small game seasons had been victimized by backers of the Saturday opening bill and "even his own mother wouldn't recognize it now."

Upper Peninsula legislators said the Saturday opening would give hunters 3 week ends in the woods and ease the plight of businessmen whose employees are absent during at least some of the week days during the season.

"With a Saturday opening every year, they still would want to leave on Wednesday to get established in camp," Prescott said.

Democrats in the house are planning an all-out fight against a mental health training program adopted by the senate because it dips into the powers of the administration.

It is patterned after the "Kansas Plan," developed by the Menninger Foundation, which was visited by lawmakers last year.

The idea is to train psychiatrists and go into a system of mental care emphasizing treatment—quickly and efficiently—rather than long-term stays in a mental hospital.

Under the Michigan version, a separate committee will be set up under the University of Michigan board of regents. It will conduct the training program.

In addition, 3 medical school faculty members from Wayne university and the U-M will be added to the Michigan mental health commission, increasing the membership to 8.

Republicans say that this program of concentrated training, research and quick treatment will eventually lessen the need for building hospitals.

"It is a program of buying brains, instead of bricks," said Senator Craiglight R. Coleman (R-Battle Creek).

Democrats say that the state department of mental health can do just as effective a job with a little more money and personnel. They argue that the separate agency idea splits off an important function of the department.

Republicans claim the department still has its own program and that the separate agency will merely coordinate it with others, such as those in the medical schools.

Democrats already are polishing speeches for a battle against the bill in the house.

Senate-passed legislation preventing any organization from forcing political contributions from its members is ready for another house battle.

TRICOLORED—West Berlin is being treated to this page-boy hair style which is tinted in three shades, ranging from a light crown to dark roll along neck and cheek line. Modified pompadour above the brow softens severity of the styling.

Senator Lewis G. Christman (R-Ann Arbor) came up with the bill which he says will apply both to big business and unions.

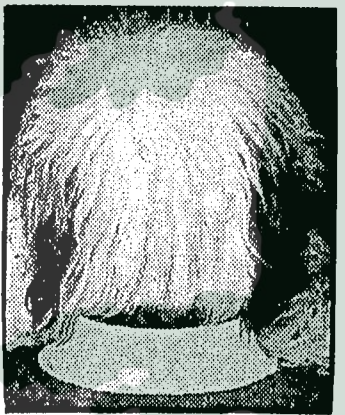

After the 1954 elections, Republicans pointed out that many union members voted Republican. They charge that some union members object to having their dues spent for Democratic candidates. Republicans want a law to halt the practice.

Democrats countered that big corporations, already barred from contributions, pressured individuals sales agents, dealers and retailers to contribute money which wound up in Republican coffers.

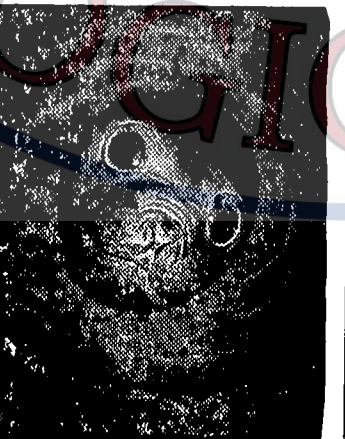

"So this is an answer to both sides," said Christman.

Democrats have been fighting the bill, calling it a new version of a "right-to-work" bill, but lost their battle when Republicans rounded up the 18 votes needed to pass it through the senate.

The Good Old Days

Michigan's constitution survived another onslaught in the house of representatives on Wednesday, March 7. House Bill 251, opposed by the county board of supervisors, and aimed at the income from penal fines, was referred to a committee of no return. This bill did not mention the fact that a constitutional amendment would be necessary to divert that income. For the last 118 years, income from penal fines has been going to school district and county libraries, because of a provision in our constitution.

A sufficient number of legislators were aware of the constitutional involvement, however, and some felt that the act deprived some agencies of income without provision for replacement. Penal fines comprise a good share of the income of the Ingham county library. Other library income is from the county appropriation, Michigan State Aid to Libraries and the city of Mason.

Loss of penal fine monies would mean that library service to 85 Ingham county schools, or to 12 community branches in the county, would have to be curtailed or eliminated.

The varieties of interests displayed in our house of representatives brings to mind the subjects of our new biographies. They are concerned with bandits, mathematicians, politicians, poets, statesmen and humorists.

The bandit is Salvatore Giuliano, the Sicilian outlaw. He was killed in 1950 at the age of 27 and was a legend before that. BAND-IT by Gavin Maxwell points out that Sicily's Robin Hood lies in an honored tomb. He was brave, handsome and could shoot like Wild Bill Hickok. To some he was a kill-crazy brigand, but to others he is still a national hero.

With the main event scheduled for this fall, various factions are making themselves felt in book form. WHAT I THINK is Adlai Stevenson's springboard from a personal platform. The book is a collection of articles and speeches delivered since the 1952 campaign.

A PhD at 19 was the fate of Norbert Wiener. In I AM A MATHEMATICIAN he reveals that his development was limited to academic achievement, while his social adjustment suffered. Despite this handicap, Wiener's contributions to mathematics have been considerable. His studies have resulted in advances in radar, high-speed electric computation, the automatic factory, and the science of cybernetics, or the study of control.

Henry W. Longfellow is still one of the most popular of American poets. His connection with Michigan is well known, as his adaptation of HAWAIIA was taken from Schoolcraft's "Clip-peva legends. LONGFELLOW, a Full Length Portrait, by Edward Wagenknecht, presents a typical treatment of the poet's life. Longfellow is shown as a traveler, writer, family man, scholar, friend and teacher, in the light of newly discovered material.

Thirty years ago this country was undergoing some of the same we're getting now, according to SANTITY IS WHERE YOU FIND IT by Will Rogers. Editor Donald Day has gathered together some of Will's comments, finding that they are still pertinent and pertinent. Outstanding examples are: Will's trip to Russia in 1926, and his views on New Deal and Foreign relations.

Also timed to the election year moments, YEARS OF TRIAL AND HOPE, 1946-1952, tells what happened as he saw it. Being president is like riding a tiger, he says. The harnessing of atomic energy, price controls, the Fair-Heartly Act, and the president's efforts for universal military training are some of the domestic issues covered. The background and effectiveness of the Marshal Plan is examined, with the climax of the book being his differences with General MacArthur.

A childhood spent in jungle camps leaves a mark. In the case of Norah Burke, she became a novelist. In JUNGLE CHILD she describes her life in India as a daughter of a forest officer. The Burke family traveled to their jungle camp homes on elephants, with their baggage following on camels. A very observant child, she now recalls the antics of the monkeys in the trees as clearly as those of the adults during the rainy season. Even though her mother would occasionally take an evening off to go tiger hunting, Norah Burke and her 2 brothers seem to have had a happy home life.

Man for man, the Civil War still holds the records of our bloodiest conflict. Karl Schenck Miers in THE WEB OF VICTORY; Grant at Vicksburg, considers the first great campaign of modern warfare. He brings out the human side of the men who commanded in the field and at Washington. He describes the fighting in the flooded bayous and at Calhoun's Hill, as well as the unbelievable conditions at Vicksburg at the end of the siege.

Long range planning, detailed execution, and bitter fighting are shown in OKINAWA, VICTORY IN THE PACIFIC, issued by the Historical Branch of the U. S. marine corps. The operation is described and illustrated from the first stages through to the end of organized resistance.

New fiction titles for the week include: Joy Packard's VALLEY OF THE VINES, Joyce Cary's HOUSE OF CHILDREN, Dexter Allen's COIL OF THE SERPENT, William Duhan's KUMARI, Hans Kirs's THE REVOLT OF GUNNER ASCI, Jane Salter's THE HUNTERS, Mignon G. Eberhart's POSTMARK MURDER, and a variety of science fiction stories.

Mr. Robert H. Kennedy (right), President of the Detroit Electrotyping Co., and Chairman of the Detroit Employing Electrotypers and Stereotypers Association and Mr. Valmer Bartrem, President of the Detroit Electrotypers Union No. 54, make the same statement with equal satisfaction:

"We have written Blue Cross-Blue Shield into our collective bargaining agreement"

Mr. KENNEDY: "When our collective bargaining agreement came up for renegotiation a year ago, the major demand the union made was that Blue Cross - Blue Shield benefits be written into the agreement on an industry-wide basis."

Mr. BARTREM: "That is right. Our union preferred Blue Cross-Blue Shield protection."

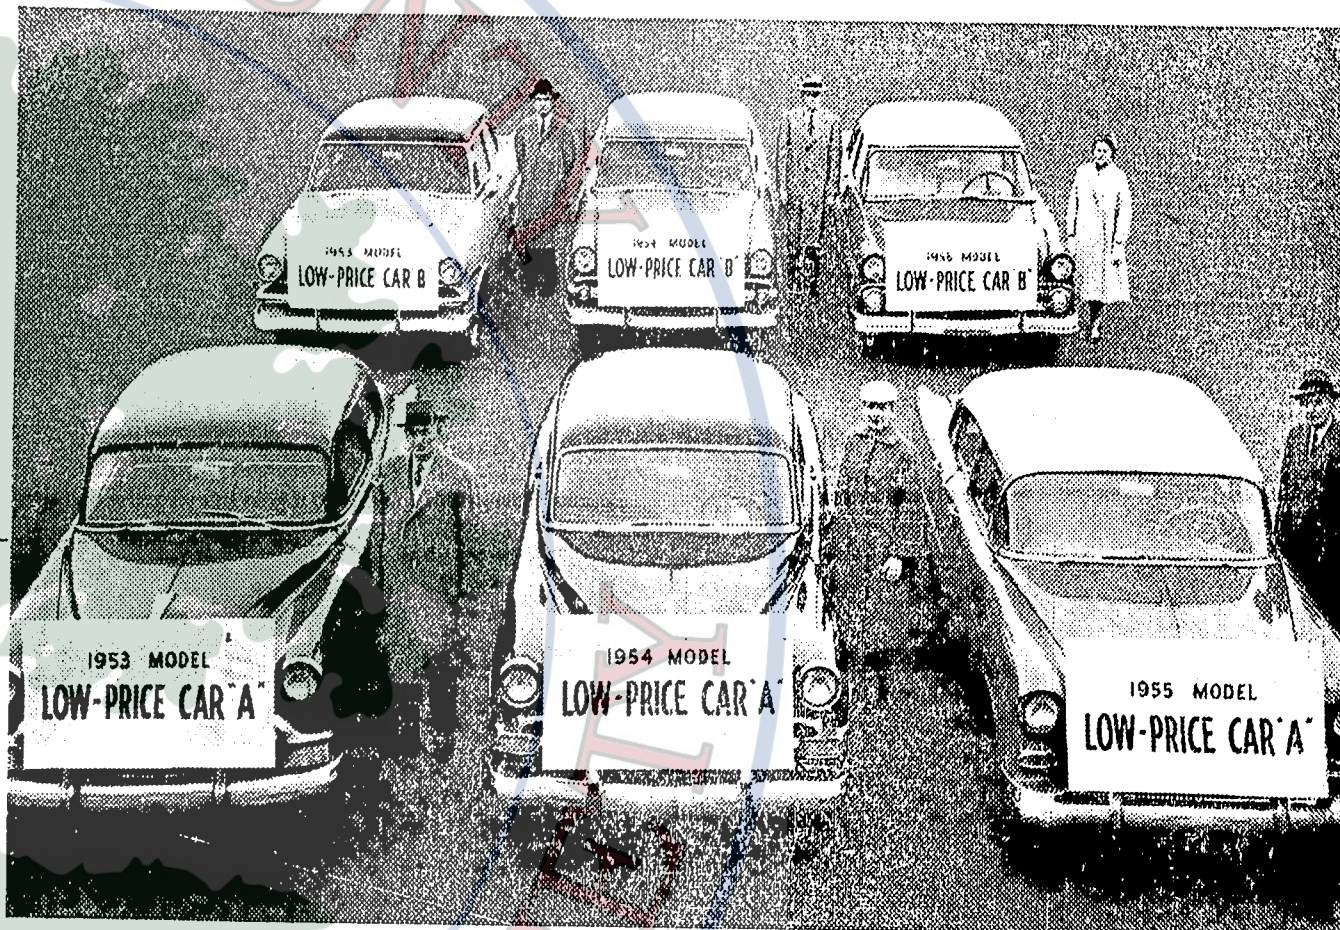

Mr. KENNEDY: "Before that, the Employing Association spent quite a bit of money investigating the different kinds of hospital-surgical-medical insurance programs. We decided that there was nothing like Blue Cross - Blue Shield."

Mr. BARTREM: "I have it and like it. I've heard no complaints about Blue Cross - Blue Shield."

Mr. KENNEDY: "I have it, too. I wouldn't be without it."

Michigan Senators Split Over Rigid Parity Bill

Senators Patrick V. McNamara and Charles E. Potter of Michigan disagreed on a rigid 90% parity for farm crops. Senator McNamara voted for and Senator Potter against the Ellender bill, which failed of passage.

In the debate over the bill Senator Potter said, "We simply cannot go in 2 directions at one time. This legislation offers no solution for the agricultural dilemma in which we find ourselves. On the one hand it provides for a soil bank plan designed to remove land from agricultural production in a manner that would lead to the gradual reduction of the present agricultural surpluses in government storage, but at the same time its enactment would restore rigid 90% high supports on basic commodities. That policy is responsible for our present critical surpluses."

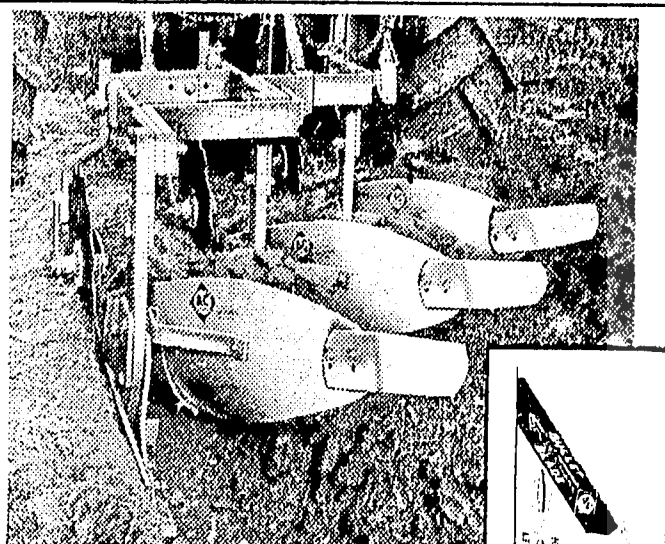

"We all agree that farm income has not kept pace with our general national prosperity, and certainly most are agreed that the problem is caused primarily by the tremendous surpluses of farm commodities now being held in government warehouses. We oppose a return to 90% high rigid supports because it is the factor which created these surpluses and if we return to these supports, it will continue to aggravate the situation. Not only will the markets for basic commodities be plunged deeper and deeper but when cheap grain flows over into the livestock and dairy markets those, too, are forced downward.

"Our farmers don't want government money in the way of help. They want a normal free market which is not suppressed by the shadows of these overwhelming surpluses held in government warehouses. Our entire national economy is in danger. We know that our American economy cannot prosper in the fields of business and industry and at the same time be wasting away in agriculture. This farm problem is one which concerns all of us. We must give the farmers the kind of a market in which there is a normal relationship between supply and demand."

"President Eisenhower's 9-point farm program points the way for that kind of a market but we cannot have a return to 90% rigid supports. We just cannot go in 2 directions at the same time."

We encountered no bobby soxers as we slipped out of our spangled costumes, wiped the grease paint from our faces and went out the door of the television studio. There were no press agents. No red roses. No autograph hounds. No brass bands. Nothing except the feeling that we had just pulled off something pretty big.

We had been on television.

It wasn't the hand-waving sort that you see on Dave Garaway's Today show or Steve Allen's Tonight clambake or during the TV fights and wrestling matches.

We, that is 8 of us, were part of a WKAR-TV television sidit last Tuesday which helped tell the story of the 37th birthday anniversary of the American Legion. Frank Schmidt, Jr., commander of the Mason post, was on the program. So was Nelson Brown and myself. We helped prove, so someone said, that the theatre can flourish in barbarism.

It used to be easy—almost fun—to sit back in my Morris chair at home and throw verbal uppercuts at lousy TV performances.

After my session under the heat lamps, I'll now be a little more patient, a little more understanding, a little quieter.

To see the smooth delivery of a TV production, it's hard to imagine the jumble of cameras, dangling wires, sound-recording booms and lighting fixtures that makes it all possible.

Probably the set-up used in the Legion's birthday celebration was made about as simple as possible. It wasn't a high-wire act by any stretch of the imagination. Most of the time we were seated around a table or on a davenport. At no time did we ride horseback, do a love scene or meet up with Sergeant Friday.

Technicians had 2 cameras in play. They were aimed at us from 2 angles. Cameramen were responsible for aiming and focusing. A third man, a stage director, stood between them with earphones connected to a man in a glassed-in control room. In there, a technician monitored the program.

It was his responsibility to turn on the camera he thought would do the best job of telling the story. In my case, I needed a haircut, so the technician didn't use the profile camera. In other cases where a mole on the chin is indicated, a camera from the far side can be used.

The sound man had, I thought, the best job of all. He was elevated on a small circular stage out of range of the cameras. He controlled a long boom with a microphone at the end. The gear ratio of the boom was stepped up to the point where just his pulse beat would move the mike. Another gadget tilted the mike toward whoever was doing the talking. It could also be used to turn away from a performer who was talking, but who had nothing to say.

As television audiences see them, backdrops look sturdy. Stone looks like stone and wood like wood. We were portrayed as being interviewed in a mahogany-paneled office. Actually, the walls were only canvas.

The books were only blocks of wood with colorful jackets on them. Yes, even the birthday cake used for the celebration was made of cardboard. But the characters were real, the observance was real and the production was real in intent.

That TV show was an eye-opener. I am now ready for the Revlon isolation booth.

All of Holland's main seaports are inland—Rotterdam is 20 miles up the Rhine, Amsterdam 18 miles up canal.

Weak Chlorine Kills Bacteria

The best way to clean dairy cow udders before milking is a thorough rinse with plain water, which is not to be reused, followed by wiping with a cloth soaked in a weak chlorine solution.

That's the word from Michigan State university dairymen. They cited a Texas study which showed much less bacteria in milk when that method was used in contrast to 4 others. The other methods included washing with plain water alone, washing with water and wiping with a quaternary ammonium compound, and wiping with a chlorine solution or quaternary ammonium solution without a prior wash.

Good Grass Makes Good Silage Feed

Quality of grass silage apparently is of the greatest concern to the dairyman according to results experienced at the roughage clinic conducted during Farmers Week at Michigan State university. Grass silage samples more than doubled all other roughages brought in for analysis. A dairy extension specialist at Michigan State university attributed this to the wide range of variation in quality of the silage experienced by the farmer from year to year. An analysis of the samples grading low indicated that too much moisture (bad odor) was the main factor responsible for the poor silage. This was especially true of direct cut, high moisture legume crops such as ladino and alfalfa forage. Dairymen experiencing this difficulty in putting up good quality silage may insure a better feed by adding some type of preservative.

The best additives in terms of both preservation and feed values are molasses, used at the rate of 50-100 lb. a ton; dried molasses, at the rate of 75-100 lb. per ton or ground cereal grains at the rate of 150-200 lb. a ton of chopped green material to be ensiled. Preservatives do no good when the forage is too dry, according to MSU specialists.

Good grass silage can be made without a preservative if the grass is wilted to about 65% moisture and cut on not longer than one-half inch settings. In all cases the silo should be filled rapidly and packed thoroughly. The top 6 to 8 feet should be filled with high-moisture chopped grass to which a grain or chemical preservative should be added. After the silo has been filled, allowed to settle and refilled, it should be thoroughly tramped once a day for about 4 days. Covering the top with building paper, or plastic with waste green material on top provides added protection.

Grass silage made from alfalfa timothy-red clover seeding can be 25% more valuable than the hay would have been from the same forage, because of freedom from weather hazards.

More milk can be produced per acre of forage when preserved as silage than when cut for hay. When cut at an early stage more protein can be harvested per acre in legume silage than in corn on most farms. The nutrient will cost less in the form of grass silage than in any other forage except pasture.

One of the most important factors involved in feeding early-cut grass silage is perhaps the lowering of the need of purchased protein in the ration. Traditionally, protein is the expensive factor of the dairy ration, as is the case at present.

The results of workers in New Jersey indicated that cows on the high silage ration produced more milk and seemed to be more efficient in their use of their feed. The undefined milk stimulating factor in grass and grass silage appears to add value to grass silage for dairy cattle.

Under our Michigan weather conditions the possibility of having a good quality feed is better with grass silage than with the usual methods of storing the first cutting.

Dairymen should plan a liberal feeding program of grass silage with some hay, for one ton a month for each cow of milking age and proportionately less for younger animals.

Michigan Vegetable Production Could Jump 6 Times

By M. H. AVERY
County Agricultural Agent

Michigan's vegetable processing industry could expand 4 to 6 times in the next 10 to 15 years. Its expansion is possible if consumer income remains high and processors and growers work together.

That's the belief of R. L. Jolus, horticulture specialist at Michigan State University, according to M. H. Avery, county agricultural agent. This expansion would be both possible and successful economically.

Carolus says that Michigan has a most suitable temperature for quality production in a mid-west. Rain fall is sometimes lacking but can be overcome by proper soil management.

Established processing industry at large markets nearby are her points in favor of expansion.

Carolus further suggests these crops for profitable expansion in production for processing for the Ingham area: sweet corn, cucumbers, peas, tomatoes, lima beans, beets and carrots, plus other varieties of snap beans are possibilities.

There are a number of other crops of vegetables for other parts of Michigan. Rhubarb production is a good crop for the entire state and could be boosted for processing use, Carolus believes.

Shallowness of soil limits the effectiveness of asparagus, lima beans and rhubarb. Asparagus is susceptible to spring frost while lima beans prefer warm temperatures during the growing season.

Spinach has climatic limitations both in spring and at harvest time. It is susceptible to early frost and like beets and carrots, it does not like heat and drought during the germination period.

This is the time of year when vegetable gardeners pour through seed catalogs or stop at the beautiful colored packets at the stores where seeds are on display to select seeds for the coming season.

The extension office has a folder, "Recommended Vegetable Varieties for Michigan." It's extension folder F-179, just revised, which has varieties recommended for Michigan of the major vegetables which can be grown successfully here.

A few suggestions from this recommended list to keep in mind: Buy only from reputable seed firms. Try new varieties. Many new, high-yielding and disease resisting strains are released each year. Give them a fair trial alongside of those you have been growing in the past.

If your seed company has not been satisfactory, try another one. There are a number of good companies. Keep left-over seed in a cool, dry place. You may seal small quantities in moisture-proof cans. It is well to germinate the seeds kept over to see if they are reliable for the present year. This may be done by placing 10 seeds on a newspaper thoroughly soaked in water, rolling the seeds inside the newspaper, and placing it in a quart or two-quart jar in the house where it is warm for 3 to 5 days and then checking to see how many germinate. If 8 of the 10 seeds germinate, your seeds will test 80% germination.

In addition to the varieties listed in the extension folder F-179, here are a few new ones just off the press which you might want to try. You may have to look around some to find these on the market this year.

A new variety of pumpkin called Jack-O-Lantern has good carving quality for those who want to decorate for Halloween. If these pumpkins can be sold on a roadside market in the fall or on the city market, they'll bring good returns. Also new on the list are Topmost and Seminole, round-podded, green snap beans. There is also a stringless version of the green-seeded French variety which is called Chevert Stringless.

Both commercial and amateur gardeners were happy with the Harvest Queen muskmelon last year. Harvest Queen is a good yielder, has high quality, and is a good shipper.

Four new sweet corn varieties are listed. Golden 22 and Golden 60 are both high quality and will-resistant. Golden 22 matures about the same time as Carmelcross while Golden 60 is a mid-season hybrid. For growers who want a high yielding variety that matures slightly later than Golden 22, we suggest the Tempo variety.

There is another folder which may be of help in the early garden program. It is Extension Folder F-141, "Growing Vegetable Plants." It is put out by the staff members of the department of horticulture and takes up seed supply, seed treatment, plant food, a table on spacing, time to plant and other factors in regard to growing seeds.

State Poultry Sells Slow in Detroit Market

Michigan's poultry industry is valued in excess of $90 million a year, but the poultry people of the state are behind some other states in supplying the needs of Detroit, according to Director G. S. McIntyre of the state department of agriculture.

About 1,750,000 cases of shell eggs were used in Detroit in 1955. Ohio furnished 30%, followed by Michigan with 27%.

In frozen egg supplies at Detroit, Michigan was 10th. Receipts totaled more than 5,250,000 lb. States supplying Detroit in order were Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Tennessee, South Dakota, Minnesota, Ohio, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Indiana leads Michigan in live poultry truck delivery to Detroit. Michigan is second followed by Ohio and Canada.

DAIRY TOUR DRAWS A CROWD

Farmers Visit Neighbors

By M. H. AVERY
County Agricultural Agent

Pipeline milkers, bulk tanks, loose housing, a fine registered herd and the replanning of an old dairy barn were high points for an all-day tour by about 125 dairymen on the county dairy tour Tuesday. A number of Eaton and Jackson county farmers also participated. The route of the tour was along the western and southern sides of Ingham county.

Four dairy farms were visited. The first stop was at the farm of Chellis Hall west of Mason where a well-managed loose housing unit for 60 head featuring good use of existing buildings was viewed.

Outside feeding of hay and silage is practiced. Hall has constantly changed and improved his arrangement and is now considering changing the silos. Michigan State University agricultural engineer Burt Cargill pointed out the advantages of constructing a 24-ft. diameter silo for a herd of this size with emphasis on the lowered storage cost per ton.

"Our present silos of 10, 11 or 14-foot diameter are not economical units for increased size herds we now have," Cargill declared.

From there the tour went to Wayne Wilcox's place on Waverly road. This stop was made to show how a basement-type barn might be used in a revised loose housing setup. Cargill drew up a tentative plan containing the basic elements of a suitable milk house, milking room, holding areas with inside and outside entrances to the milking room, loafing area, feed area and paved barnlot. Clark's present barn needs a height of 9 or 10 feet to be used as a loafing area.

The Robbins church women served lunch at noon. Afterward during a question and answer period, Frank Gendron, extension dairymen of Michigan State, pointed out that the level of grain feeding may tell how well the dairyman does profitwise. Gendron pointed out that feed is about half the cost of producing milk and cows.

He cited records showing how one farmer was getting $102 more per cow over feed cost than another farmer getting the same amount of butterfat. The profitable farmer was using less grain with good forage and corn silage.

The first afternoon stop was at the William Trefry farm near Kinnelville. Trefry is in the midst of a herd expansion program having just bought an additional herd of cattle. He has recently installed a pipeline milker in the no-stoop milking parlor and is planning additional hay and silage storage. Problems of ventilation in loafing barns were discussed by Cargill.

Last stop on the tour was at Dr. George Clinton's farm north of Leslie. This herd has been developed and expanded into one of the fine large registered herds of the area. He expects to be milking 70 cows by the end of the summer and about 90 eventually. Tour members saw his stanchion barn with pipeline milkers and bulk tank, a calf and bull barn and a recently-built pole-type hay storage and loafing shed. A bunker-type silo is used. Records show that his breeding program has resulted in a steadily increasing production now approaching 500 lb. butterfat on a 50-cow herd.

The tour was sponsored by the Dairy Advisory Council and the extension service. Ken Brown, assistant county agent, was tour leader.

Porto-Rico weather bureau reports an annual high temperature of 94, annual low of 62, and one cloudy day every 2½ years!

Landscape Plan Works

Well-planned landscape planning will give more enjoyment, more comfort, more beauty, greater efficiency in the use of space, greater economy in construction and planting, easier maintenance and increased property values, according to M. H. Avery, county agricultural agent.

After plans have been made an important part is the selection of the proper plants, he said. There are several different types of plants which can be used in variations to get the desired results. Plants must be selected carefully. Every species has its own characteristics—choose them according to soil preferences, exposure requirements, moisture requirements, rate of growth, mature height, form, type of foliage, season of bloom and color of bloom, Avery advises.

No doubt the shape of the shrubs and trees will be the most important. They may be upright, round or spreading, they may be tall and slim or rather low and broad and spreading type.

Hog Prices and Politics Become Closely Entwined

By CARL COLLIN

Reports from livestock markets show sales of hogs have been running more than 50% larger than a year ago. But sales a year ago were unusually light. Hog prices were good a year ago. Farmers weren't sending a "normal" number of bred sows to market because they intended to hold them back until after they farrowed.

Livestock marketing officials figure it's more significant that 6% of the hog sales in January and February were sows. A year ago the percentage was only 1%. A difference of 2% doesn't appear to amount to much, but this year the total number of all hogs sent to market in January and February was much greater than a year ago, so that 2% difference could mean a significant number of bred sows were marketed in the first 2 months of this year.

A special survey of sow farrowings in the midwestern corn-hog belt this spring is due for release. This should tell the story of the size of this year's spring crop. The number of pigs farrowed this spring has both an economic and political significance of the first magnitude, especially in this election year. Corn-hog farmers have taken the most severe beating, price-wise, of all farm groups. Unless this situation changes within the next few months, the usually dependable farmer vote may not be solidly and safely in the GOP camp. A big pig crop this spring will hold down prices. Farmers might decide some change in the political line-up would be to their economic advantage.

Secretary Benson has predicted that hog prices will grow stronger in late summer and top comparable 1955 prices by fall. He attributed the favorable prospects to approaching balance between supply and demand. If his department livestock marketing specialists are not right in their interpretation of reports from the major market centers, the secretary could find himself out on a limb!

Currently beef is graded prime, choice, good, commercial, utility, cutter and canner. Effective June 1, the "commercial" grade will be divided into 2 new grades: Standard and commercial. "Standard" will be applied to beef from younger animals of the grade. "Commercial" will be retained for beef from mature animals falling in the present commercial grade. One result of the new grade set-up will be to encourage more younger beef to be federally graded. In some sections of the country now, a lot of young beef isn't graded federally because of consumer prejudice to the name "commercial."

The government unloaded more surplus dairy products in February than it bought to support dairy prices. CCC purchased over 79 million pounds of dairy products during February and ap-

Steady Market For Eggs Best

A steady, year-around market for eggs may be more profitable than selling whenever the price is highest.

Successful merchandizing of eggs is a gentleman's agreement between producer and egg buyer, pointed out J. M. (Mac) Moore, ranged to get rid of over 1,207 million pounds. Slightly over 13% million pounds of butter were bought by CCC in February, and disposal amounted to 39.8 million pounds.

Regardless of the senate decision on new farm legislation, the house is expected to stand pat on right supporters. Some observers figure senate conferees will have to accept them in a compromise bill. The president will then veto and congress will not over-ride. The soil bank idea will be put through in a separate bill. Flexibles will be the price-supporting plan. The stage will be set for a knock-down, drag-out campaign fight.

Packers are geared to handle large hog supplies. Heavy runs, representing the fall pig crop, should be finding their way to market soon. Farmers should watch daily market supplies. When hog supplies drop there will be heavy packer bidding to keep their plants operating. Prices could rise sharply on short market runs, as they did in late January. Hog prices could experience considerable fluctuation, more than normal, in reaction to market supplies.

What kind and how much of a payment would have to be received per acre to relieve some of your wheat or corn land to the soil bank? You may be asked your opinion. USDA agency which handles the program is interested in getting opinions from farmers in an attempt to get some idea where to set rates for soil bank payments. If you have some thoughts on this, your county ASC office would be glad to get them.

Housewives bought 6.8% more coffee in 1955 than in the previous year. Household consumption of instant coffee in 1955 jumped 16.8% over 1954 and gained 70% over 1953. Ground coffee use increased too, with consumption last year up 5.2% over 1954 but trailed 1953 by 6.7%. Last year's increase was due to reduced prices housewives had to pay at their grocery stores.

Miscellaneous... Farm income in 1955 was off nearly $1 billion from 1951. The total was just over $19 billion... More emphasis on farm exports can be expected. U. S. will price some commodities so they'll be competitive on world markets. Other cotton producing countries are kicking on USDA announcement of competitive pricing of cotton, but program to regain world markets is now established policy, apparently, in spite of opposition by state department... More reports of severe damage to olive groves in southern France and Italy; Spain has bought soybean oil from us because of prospects of lowered olive oil output in the Mediterranean area.

Forest Cut Improvement Shows Profit

Michigan State university's upper peninsula experiment station took handsome returns from cutting mature and over-mature timber out of a second-growth northern hardwood forest.

Net returns to labor and management from 414 acres amounted to slightly more than $27 per acre.

That's what a land-owner could have taken from the forest if he had done all the work himself, reported Roy E. Skog and L. R. Barber, M. S. U. forestry researchers.

"Unless a farmer has some spare time, he could not tackle the job alone," said Skog and Barber. In the experiment, labor costs amounted to $8,500, which was more than all other costs combined.

Forest improvement is even more important financially than current income, said the foresters. The area still has a fine stand of trees that should give good returns if harvested regularly, they added.

Timber cut from the 60-year-old stand included aspen, white spruce and balsam fir. Except for the large aspens, all of it was cut into pulpwood.

Skog and Barber said that the been already treated by the product, located in Alger county, could have been purchased in 1913 for $3 per acre.

A cyclone may cover a strip 900 miles across, and affect the atmosphere for 2,000 miles.
