

"DURAZNOS," insisted one young man; "peaches," declared the other. But they both mean the same thing. The difference is between Spanish and English. Guillermo Esquerre Reyes (right) of Bogota, Colombia, calls the fruit duraznos. Wilfred Wardowski of Blossom Orchards, Leslie, says peaches. They had their exchange of words while picking Hale Havens in the Leslie orchard Tuesday.

The visitor from Colombia is an International Farm Youth Exchange delegate. He will be at the Wardowski home for another 2 weeks before leaving for Washington. Last week he was at the state 4-H show at Michigan State, going there from a farm home in Monroe. He was first in Connecticut on a fruit, dairy and poultry farm. He also attended the IFYE convention in Iowa. In Colombia Guillermo's father raises flowers and chickens on his farm near Bogota. (Ingham County News photo.)

Court Calendar For Fall Term Sets New Mark

Biggest in history is the Ingham calendar for the September term of circuit court. The session, with Judge Marvin J. Salmon presiding, will be opened in Lansing next Monday.

Case numbers for the September term run up to 820. There are 180 pages in the book which County Clerk C. Ross Hilliard mailed out to attorneys Tuesday. There are 119 criminal cases listed with 41 spaces reserved for others which may be added before the term opens or afterward. Many of those cases, however, are not expected to be tried. Several of the respondents are in mental institutions because psychiatrists found them mentally incapable of aiding in their own defense. Usually many others enter guilty pleas.

Twenty-three of the cases on the criminal calendar are appeals from Lansing's municipal court in traffic violation cases. Another 8 are appeals from other convictions in Lansing's municipal court. There are also 15 other justice court appeals on the criminal calendar, arising from East Lansing and township courts and for action under the financial responsibility law.

There are 83 jury civil cases and 126 non-jury civil cases.

Listed on the calendar are 49 non-contested and 201 contested chancery cases. Twenty-four of the non-contested and 125 of the contested cases are divorce actions. There are another 21 cases brought to collect money for support of children of divorced parents and 6 cases seeking separate maintenance.

Up for dismissal for lack of progress during the past year are 168 cases.

Names of 60 prospective jurors were drawn for duty at the September term. They were ordered to report in Lansing Monday.

Cucumber Grows Big

Billy Laws had a hard time figuring out whether he had grown a small watermelon or a large cucumber when he harvested his vegetable crop Thursday. He presented the Ingham County News with a perfect cucumber, weighing just one ounce under 2 pounds. He and his father have a garden plot next to St. James church on Lansing street.

BUILDING ONE ROAD RUINS ANOTHER

Big Trucks Damage Bridge

Trucks being used to build one road forced closing of another until bridge repairs were made.

Big trucks loaded with sand and gravel for construction of US-127 and jobs in Lansing broke through the deck of Kipp road bridge. Friday, repairs were made by S. J. Groves & Sons Co., contractors on US-127 and the stretch of road between the Ferris pit and US-127 is back in use.

Angell Construction Co. of Lansing, which also was hauling over the Kipp road route, used Barnes street instead Tuesday. At the council meeting Tuesday night, councilmen expressed fear that hauling on Barnes would damage the blacktop. They suggested that city police check the loads being hauled.

Walter E. Zimmer, city engineer, told councilmen the bridge was in poor repair before the highway contractors began hauling over it. The abutments were cracked and the corrugated structure had disintegrated. Zimmer

Telephone Traps Man Sought on Check Charges

Tracing of a telephone call has led to the arrest of Phillip M. Rice, 35, at Columbia, South Carolina. The former bookkeeper for S. J. Groves & Sons Co., Inc., at its Mason office, is charged with forgery and uttering and passing.

Rice disappeared from Mason July 10 with 40 forged Groves checks circulating. He had been on the job at Mason only a few days when he obtained company checks and went into the forgery and check-passing business on a big scale. Captain Versie Babcock of the sheriff's department said, Captain Babcock said that between $3,000 and $4,000 is involved.

Some of the forged checks were passed in Flint.

Rice bought a used car in Mason July 10. The next day he traded the car at South Bend and missed being caught by just 2 minutes. He left the South Bend automobile agency 2 minutes before word was flashed that he was wanted in Mason. After that he was sought in Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa and Nebraska.

On Wednesday Rice telephoned the Groves office in Ann Arbor to discuss making restitution. He did not give his address. Captain Babcock had the call traced. It came from Columbia through St. Louis, Mo. In an effort to find trace of Rice, the sheriff's department had compiled a list of all known relatives and former army companions. An army friend lived in Columbia. Captain Babcock telephoned Columbia officers to visit the friend's house there. They did and found Rice.

Rice waived extradition Wednesday. Sheriff Willard P. Barnes of Ingham is sending an officer to South Carolina to bring Rice back to face the charges against him.

The matter of liability for the bridge damage and the permitted weight of loads hauled on Barnes street were referred to City Attorney Howard A. McCowan.

Zimmer told the council that S. J. Groves & Sons Co. borrowed beams from the county road commission to make temporary repairs on the damaged bridge. The engineer said the repairs have made the bridge safe for present use.

Pupils Swarm into Mason Classrooms

Niece Gets Extra Money Left by Hall

A hundred thousand dollars, instead of the $20,000 bequeathed her in the will of Albert J. Hall, will go to Mrs. Lillian Reed of Hollywood, California. Mrs. Reed is a niece of the Mason banker who died October 11, 1954, at the age of 92.

The extra $100,000 will go to Mrs. Reed by agreement with Mrs. Hall, the widow.

Mrs. Reed asked to have the will construed so she would get a half share of the residue of her uncle's estate after specific bequests had been made to kin and to charitable and religious organizations. Judge John McClellan of the Ingham probate court held that Mrs. Reed was entitled only to $20,000 under the will made in March of 1951. In an appeal carried to circuit court, Judge Louis E. Coash upheld Judge McClellan. Attorneys for Mrs. Reed then launched appeal action in the state supreme court. The agreement between Mrs. Hall and her husband's niece will head off the supreme court appeal.

Clause Causes Dispute

It was the residual clause in the will which caused the dispute.

After disposing of specific bequests, among which was one for Mrs. Reed, the will read: "All the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, both real and personal, I will devise and bequeath to my wife, Minnie Ingalls Hall, and my daughter, Winifred L. Dormer, share and share alike. Should either my wife or my said daughter predecease me, then and in that event the whole of said residue shall pass to the survivor, if any, of them, to be distributed between them equally."

Mrs. Dormer died a year before her father, Mrs. Reed and Mrs. Dormer had lived together. During the last 15 years of her life Mrs. Dormer was "invalid." When Mrs. Dormer died she left a will bequeathing her property to her cousin, Mrs. Reed, but there was no property until the settlement with Mrs. Hall was reached.

Mrs. Reed, through her attorneys, Sam Street Hughes and Clay Campbell of Lansing and Charles L. Nichols of Beverly Hills, California, filed a petition seeking an interpretation of the clause favorable to the niece. Mrs. Hall, through her attorney, Raymond H. McLean of Mason, contended that the word "survivor" meant the survivor between the daughter and the widow and that as such survivor Mrs. Hall was entitled to all the residue.

Appeal Was Taken

In an appeal to the supreme court Mrs. Reed's lawyers claimed that even though Judge Coash called language of the disputed clause ambiguous he did not permit introduction of oral testimony. The lawyers contended that the ruling denied Mrs. Reed to trial by jury about the true intention of Mr. Hall.

After depositions were taken in Mason last week Mrs. Hall entered upon an agreement and made an assignment whereby she will receive the entire residuary estate under the will but assigns 35% of it to Mrs. Reed. That's an estimated $100,000.

Mrs. Hall and her attorney did not concede the validity of the arguments advanced by Mrs. Reed's attorneys. The agreement was entered into, said the attorney for Mrs. Hall, to avoid complicated, protracted and costly litigation.

The agreement affected only the bequests of Mrs. Reed and Mrs. Hall. All specific bequests had previously been paid. They included $50,000 to the Mason Baptist church, $3,000 to the Presbyterian church, $1,000 each to the Methodist and Nazarene churches, $5,000 to the Baptist Children's Home at Royal Oak, $10,000 to Starr Commonwealth, $5,000 to Hillsdale college for a student loan fund, $3,000 to Eastern Theological seminary in Philadelphia, $5,000 to the Baptist Old Peoples Home at Maywood, Illinois, and $5,000 to the Northern Baptist Convention to aid ministers and missionaries.

Other bequests went to children of nieces and nephews.

Fair Share Plans Meeting

Members of the Fair Share Bargaining association will meet at the Bunker Hill town hall Monday night, September 10, beginning at 8, according to Frank Trapp. The FSBA is a dairy farmer organization formed last spring.

Test Is Set On New Fire Truck

Mason's new John Bean fire truck will be put through its final tests Friday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. The tests will be made and the demonstration made at Rayner park.

Everyone who wants to go is invited to witness the tests and watch the demonstration, Leland Austin, Mason fire chief, said.

Council Plans To Extend Oak Yet This Fall

Extension of Oak street west from Lansing street to Cedar will be completed this fall, if the council abides by its decision made Tuesday night.

City Attorney Howard A. McCowan reported that the right-of-way for the street extension from McRoberts to Cedar may be secured before the week is out. The street between McRoberts and Lansing street, although not improved, has remained in use through the years. There is one house on it.

There will be a deep cut for much of the distance between Lansing and McRoberts street, Wayne Curtis informed the council. He is superintendent of streets.

The council rejected bids taken August 20 for curb and gutter in Kathryn street. Councilman Richard Morris of the street committee said the low bidder lacked both experience and equipment and the second-low bidder stipulated he would not be able to do the job this fall. By next spring the ground will be completely settled, Morris said, and risk of the curb and gutter settling will be overcome.

Contract for construction of an 8-inch sewer in Ann street was awarded to Jewett Construction company Tuesday night. The firm submitted a bid of $2,987 August 20. The only other bid was $6,462.

No objections were made by property owners who attended a hearing on benefits to be received from a storm sewer in a subdivided area east of Lawton street and bounded by Ash on the south and Columbia on the north. The council did not determine the amount which will be assessed against the city at large. Determination will not be made, councilmen agreed, until a computation is made of the surface area of streets to be drained.

Councilmen agreed to build sidewalk in front of the property of Mrs. Jennie Kennedy on East Elm.

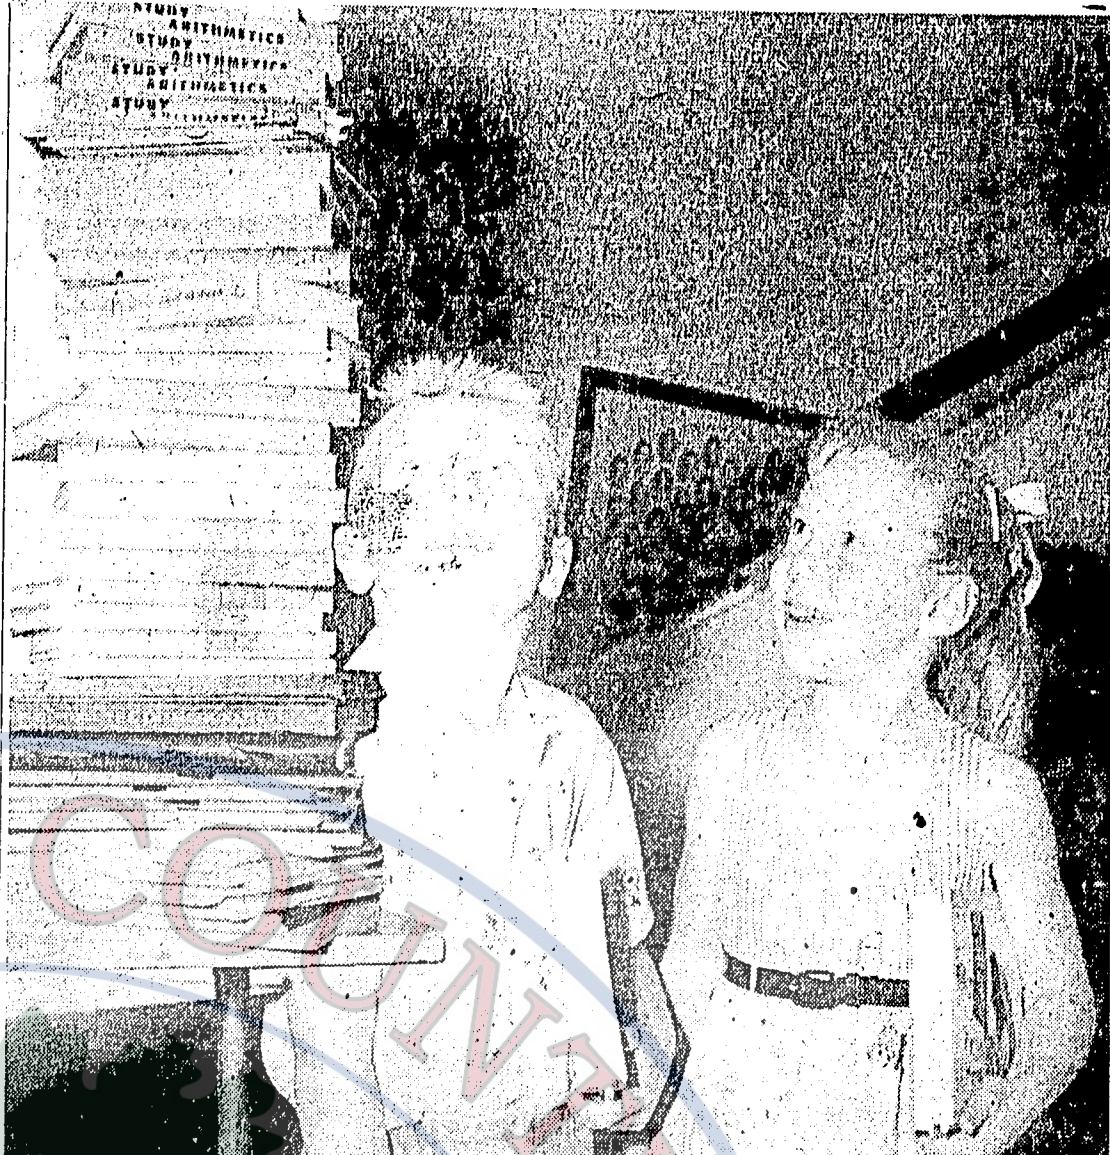

Mason's building code was discussed. Councilman Nels Ferry said the code may be too inclusive. He expressed himself as unable to see the logic in charging fees for building permits where only roofs are repaired and where no inspection is called for. Councilmen agreed to have a committee meeting to study possible amendments to the code.

Mayor Alfred Forche expressed surprise that criticism of the code is now being made when none was placed before the council at public hearings on adoption of the code.

All councilmen said they favored retention of the code.

Mason Band Learned Much During Interlochen Stay

Mason's school band profited from its week's stay at National Music camp at Interlochen. The band returned home Labor Day, the 3 buses and the station wagon, arriving home shortly after 4 o'clock.

Director George Murthum said he is grateful to the organizations and individuals who made the trip possible, and to the Interlochen camp for offering its facilities to the Mason school. In its week of daily drills, rehearsals and concerts, Murthum said, the band progressed to a stage not usually reached until midway in a school year.

The weather at Interlochen was ideal for late August. In fact, it was the best week of the summer for swimming. And there was time for swimming and for other recreation. The schedule called for marching drills, section rehearsals and full-band rehearsals each day with concerts in the evening.

Each band played individual concert numbers Saturday night. On Sunday afternoon each director led massed bands in a concert piece with Dr. Joseph E. Maddy directing the finale.

At worship services Sunday morning a quartet from the Mason school sang spirituals. In the quartet were Patricia Adams, Sue Mills, Karen Knudstrup and Anna Holmes.

Sunday afternoon the Mason band went to Sleeping Bear sand dune and to the Lake Michigan beach at Glen Arbor for a swim and a beach party.

There were 5 other school bands at the camp. Belding, Ypsilanti, Ferndale, St. Johns and Summerfield of Petersburg. Mason and Ferndale bands were assigned to adjoining sections of the camp.

In addition to the exercise of marching in formations, Mason musicians had a mile to walk between their housing and the hotel where meals were served, and the bowls where rehearsals and concerts were conducted. Outside of a few blisters, the marching and the walking resulted in no harm.

Two boys went to Traverse City hospital and a girl sprained a toe, but not by marching.

David Sturman and Jerry Van Douser were victims of a deep breathing and squeezing stunt introduced among some of the boys. They were taken to the hospital suffering from chest pains and inability to breathe normally. Doctors at the hospital expressed amazement over the cases, declaring that both boys might have suffered permanent damage. The Sturman boy was still in the hospital when the band took off for home. He was taken to University hospital, Ann Arbor, Thursday.

Linda Clinton sprained a toe when she fell from an upper bunk.

There were no casualties among the counselors. They were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leonard, Mrs. Nelson Brown and Miss Keitha Mills. Miss Mills, a registered nurse, was also on the infirmary staff.

Lawrence Oesterle and Milton Beebe drove to Interlochen in the school station wagon Monday morning, getting a pre-dawn start, and drove 2 of the buses back to Mason. Holmes drove the third bus and Mills the station wagon.

Papers Arrive For Signing Up Wheat Reserve

Ingham farmers can sign acreage reserve agreements on wheat at the county ASC office in Mason. The blank forms arrived Tuesday. The office at 155 West Maple will be open between the hours of 9 to 12 and 12:30 to 4 from Monday through Friday for the signing of agreements.

Allotted to Ingham for payments under the acreage reserve program on wheat is $175,000.

As explained by William Crampton, Jr., any farmer who has a record of wheat acreage since 1945 is eligible for wheat acreage reserve payments.

If a farmer had 20 acres in wheat he could put it all in the reserve and receive $122 per bushel times the average yield per acre on his farm. On the 20 acres, if he had a 30-bushel to the acre average, he would get $36.60 per acre, or a total of $732 without planting his wheat.

Land placed in the acreage reserve can not be pastured nor can any crop be taken off it in 1957, Crampton said.

Forms for signing up for corn acreage reserve payments are not now available, Crampton said. The sign-up time on corn may be delayed until winter or next spring, he said.

Tax Commission Denies Appeals

Property valuations as equalized by the board of Ingham supervisors May 1 will remain unchanged.

At a meeting Tuesday the state tax commission denied appeals of Supervisors Bernard Ward of Meridian township and Earl W. Leeman of Williamstown township.

Ingham's 1956 assessed valuation is $333,543,027. It was equalized under the state's sets of figures at $443,006,552. The tax millage is spread upon the equalized figure. On that basis the millage rate exceeds the 15 mills on county equalized.

The Ingham board approved county equalized figures by a vote of 29 to 7. Both Ward and Leeman voted with the minority.

HOW TO GET TO CHARLOTTE

Travelers May See Signs

Road directions will be posted in Mason if the request of the Mason Lions club is heeded by the city council.

In Mason the question strangers most frequently ask is, "How do I get to Charlotte?" Next in frequency is how to get to Howell. Third is how to reach East Lansing.

Once there were direction signs showing the way to Charlotte and Howell, councilmen said.

New Building Will Relieve Overcrowding

Even though the enrollment appears to be headed toward a new high in the Mason school system, there was room for all Wednesday. As the swarm of pupils arrived, some rooms grew overcrowded. Overcrowding in the high school building will not be relieved materially until the agriculture-farm shop building is completed in late November.

When the new building is completed, more classroom space will be available in the high school building.

Superintendent James H. Vander Ven and Miss Phyllis Byrum were studying possible shifts and transfers Thursday to better accommodate pupils in elementary and area schools.

Wheel Turns Again

Roy Adams has put his water-wheel back to work. He placed it in operation in the Sycamore just south of the Ash street bridge, on Labor Day.

They were put up by the road commission, and taken down by the commission, it was reported.

The request of Bob Ingham, Lions club president, for the signs to be placed was read to the council Tuesday night and was referred to the street committee. Ingham pointed out that travelers are inconvenienced by the lack of directions and that businessmen must take time to answer questions as to the routes.

State Lifts Ban On Liquor Sales At Special Vote

During special elections taverns do not have to close. Under a new ruling by the state liquor control commission the closing ban covers only regular primary and general elections and annual, municipal and school elections.

The ruling from the state commission changed the picture at Mason Saturday. Early last week tavern operators at Mason were notified they would have to close their establishments Saturday for the special school election on millage. On Thursday when notice of the change came from the state commission, tavern operators were advised they could do business as usual Saturday.

Mason also has a city ordinance which bans the sale of liquor on certain days. It prohibits sales on Sundays, on days of primary, general and municipal election, Christmas, New Year's, Thanksgiving and Decoration Day. No mention of school election is contained in the city ordinance.

In a letter to the city council, the liquor control commission cited liquor law changes made by the legislature. The letter set forth that while special elections were once included in the ban, the legislature in an amendment eliminated the clause covering such elections.

New Ag Program Lures Mason Boys

Sixty Mason boys signed up for vocational agricultural training this year under the school's expanded program. Leon Alger, new instructor at Mason this year, heads up the new class which will be moved into the new vocational building on Oak street when it's completed this winter.

Alger said that plans are being made to form a Mason Future Farmers of America chapter this fall. He said the intensified agriculture studies at Mason will prepare boys for farming and will offer instruction in farm mechanics. Under the program, boys will maintain farming activities outside of school hours.

Alger taught vocational agriculture at Ida before coming to Mason.

Robert Smith of Mason also went before Judge Luck on drinking charges. Dockett and Smith pleaded not guilty before Judge Adams on charges of malicious destruction of property. They were released on bond on that charge.

Couple Speaks Nuptial Vows In Mason

United in marriage at a nuptial high mass in St. James Catholic church, Mason, Saturday, September 1, at 10 a. m., were Dorris Alma Brennan, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Brennan of Lansing, and William Dennis Marquand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Marquand of Leslie, Rev. Fr. Paul DeRose officiated in the double-ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Richard Plotnick. She wore a gown of candlelight satin fashioned with a jeweled bateau neckline and long sleeves of lace. Her bodice was fitted and the full skirt with an over flounce of lace fell in a chapel train. Her finger-tip veil fell from a tiara. She carried red roses.

Miss Collette Frechan was the bride's only attendant. She wore a floor-length dress of emerald green velvet and tulle with a matching picture hat. Her flowers were white roses.

Gerald Vaughn of Jackson served as best man. Seating the guests were Lyle David Marquand, brother of the bridegroom, and Gordon Glynn of Mason.

Mrs. Brennan chose a dark blue print for her daughter's wedding. With it she wore a picture hat and black accessories. Her corsage was of red roses. The mother of the bridegroom wore a fall tweed suit with black suede accessories. She, too, wore red roses.

After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the Marquand home on Leach road. Attending were the wedding party and close relatives.

A reception for 150 guests was given at the Grange hall in Leslie.

Bagwell Wins Nomination For Auditor General Post

Republicans at their state convention in Grand Rapids Saturday nominated Prof. Paul D. Bagwell of Michigan State University for auditor general. He was a candidate for secretary of state but made the switch in the interests of party harmony, his friends said.

Bagwell is chairman of the Michigan organization of Citizens-for-Eisenhower committee. He is head of the university's communications skills department. Born on a North Carolina farm, Bagwell has served as president of both the Michigan and the national Junior Chamber of Commerce. He is Michigan chairman of March of Dimes and campaign director of the United Community Chest of Ingham county. Physically handicapped himself, he has served on President Eisenhower's commission on employment of the handicapped. He and his wife Edith have 2 children, Paul, Jr., 17, and Judith, 14.

Winning nomination with Bagwell at the Republican convention were John B. Martin, Jr.,

Grand Rapids, for secretary of state; Frank C. Budzinski of Dearborn, state treasurer; and Richard C. Van Dusen, Birmingham, attorney general.

Leslie Council Orders Plans For Storm Sewer

Ray Smit, with the Detroit engineering firm of Ayers, Lewis, Norris & May, will prepare plans for a storm sewer system for Leslie. The council asked Smit to do the work following his appearance at the council meeting Wednesday night.

Residents of Franklin and Washington streets also appeared before the board testifying to the need of adequate storm sewers. Smit will furnish the council with his idea of how big the drainage area should be, what property owners would receive direct benefit and how much the proposed project would cost. M. L. Pixley, president of the council, said that petitions would be circulated in behalf of the project. If enough taxpayers indicate that they want the storm sewer improvements, the project will be undertaken, he said.

The Wednesday night session was the first for H. E. Cooper, newly-appointed member of the council. He will serve on the city properties and curb and sidewalk committees.

Group Schedules Special Dinner

Plans for the anniversary dinner of the Stockbridge Legionettes were completed at the meeting last Tuesday. There will be dinner at the Charcoal House at Frandor, Lansing, September 11 and later a movie.

The first project for the new season is the noon dinner for managers of the D and C stores at the Legion hall September 25. Other proposed projects were discussed but did not reach the stage of decision.

Grange Elects Four Delegates

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Thomas were elected as delegates to the Ingham county Grange convention which convened at the court house in Mason Thursday. They were chosen at the recent meeting of the Leslie Community Grange.

The Grange hall will be used by the Boy Scouts for their court of honor on September 13. It was voted not to charge them for its use.

Plans were made to paint the exterior of the Grange hall. Regular fall meetings begin September 6. Each member is to take his own table service, sandwiches and a dish to pass.

Women Collect Old Newspapers

Mrs. Ray Everett and Mrs. Dorothy Walters, both of Mason, didn't surpass the Ingham County News collection record set by Mrs. James Deuel last year. But they came close.

Mrs. Deuel claims the championship by saving 156 issues of the News. Mrs. Walters was second with 97 and Mrs. Everett was third with 88.

All 3 women said they save them for reference work.

"Sometimes they come in handy when I've forgotten something and after a little searching, it's usually right there in the News," Mrs. Deuel declared.

She Found a Snowball

Mrs. John Potter found a snowball in September. The snowball is a flower from a bush, of course, but such a bloom at this time of year is almost as rare as an ice cold snowball. The white blossom is from a bush that produced heavily last spring.

THIS LITTLE CAR WENT TO MARKET

Once upon a time there was a little car. It was in superior shape. Its owner gave it the finest imaginable care. Only high-test gasoline, lots of oil changes, plenty of polish.

Then one day, he sadly told the car he would have to sell it. First, the car cried. Then, it wiped a tear . . . and tried bravely to smile. "All right," sobbed the car, "Sell me. But you MUST sell me to Roy Christensen, Mason's Friendly Ford Dealer." The man did just that. And believe it or not, the little car wasn't here more than 24 hours before another kind man chose it for his own.

Who is eligible for ACREAGE RESERVE ... all farms with allotments for

All farms with acreage allotments for cotton, wheat, peanuts, rice and tobacco, or base acreages for corn, are eligible to take part in the Acreage Reserve of the Soil Bank. Farmers who participate will reduce their 1957 acreage of one or more of those crops below the allotment or base. All farmers who wish to participate in 1957 should work out their plans with the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announces. Payments will be made to compensate farmers for loss of net income resulting from crop acreage reduction. These payments will be based on normal crop yield for the reserved land, as determined by the County ASC Committee. Farmers may leave this land idle, or apply soil or water conservation practices on it. This land cannot be cropped or put to any other use during 1957 calendar year, and may not be grazed unless the Secretary of Agriculture determines an emergency exists. Farmers also may participate in the Soil Bank's Conservation Reserve for which all farm land regularly used to produce crops is eligible.

Letters to Editor

Anniversary of a Crime

It was just a year ago on the morning of September 6 that the tragic news of the murders of Howard Herrick and his wife, Myra, was flashed. Newspapers carried the story. It went out on radio and over TV.

Mr. and Mrs. Herrick, lifelong residents of the county were found beaten to death in the barn on their farm in Stockbridge township. Their attacker used a ballpeen hammer. The suspect was an escaped convict from Jackson prison. It was one of the most dramatic crime stories ever recorded in the county.

Even though the crime happened a year ago, interest in it is still very much alive. I believe more people are concerned in this story than they have been over any local crime story previously. They are still waiting and hoping for justice.

I am just another citizen like yourself. My contributions, my work, my efforts have been to help all law-enforcing agencies. All I ever hoped for as a dividend is to see the perpetrator of this crime inside looking out for evermore. I'd like more than that but the laws of this state are not written that way.

There is a lot to this big story, and I am not afraid of the truth. I turn the pages back to September 2, 1955. On that morning the suspected killer drove a prison truck out through the prison gates. He made a brief stop at Munith, then came to Stockbridge, about 4 miles from the Herrick farm. There he abandoned the truck and took to the fields of tall corn.

The hunt was soon on, mixed with doughnuts and coffee, a few merry-go-rounds along the roads and all too soon the search was abandoned. Officers said they believed the prisoner had made his getaway.

I would like to stress a statement made by a law enforcement officer that there was a patrol left on the alert as late as Saturday afternoon. This would have left 36 more hours for the hunt, for the convict was loose all day Friday, December 2, loose all that night and loose all day Saturday.

Now if the Herricks were gone long before the sun went down on Saturday, September 3, where were the hunters who bungled the hunt? Or was it pure neglect? Have the hunts been different since the Herrick murder? Ask the men who hunted for the Herrick killer? Would this have been a closed case had Mr. Baker at the Millville store been notified that a prisoner was on the loose? Would things have been different had Mr. Baker been handed a flyer showing a picture of the escaped convict and giving his description?

We need men in authority to act in such situations. It can happen again.

After the Herrick murder a blanket of fear was spread over the community. It remains.

Two weeks ago 3 convicts escaped from prison at 8:30 one night. One was a trusty who had been sent up for armed robbery. Another was sentenced for breaking and entering in the night-time, the third was serving time for assault.

I took a little time out to watch the reaction. As I sat in my parked car I saw a mother run out to scoop up her children and take them to the house. She thought she had seen the 3 men in a field close by. Soon state troopers were on the scene.

Another mother said she stayed awake all night with a shotgun close at hand, to use if someone came knocking at her door.

A grandmother was frightened as she sat the long night through caring for 5 little grandchildren.

The big question is what can the people do. Where shall they turn for help? To whom can they appeal for a restoration of peace in their community? Where is

Labor Relations Advice Is Given

Members and guests of Mason Kiwanis club heard an expert on labor relations Tuesday night.

Harold Koensberg of Detroit, senior partner in a firm which counsels management in labor relations, was the speaker. He told of the development of labor personnel problems along with big business and big government. He discussed complications arising from the maze of government regulations and restrictions and court decisions. He advised employers to learn the viewpoints of employees. The chief concern of management and of supervisory employees, Koensberg said, should be harmony all through a factory or store.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Reeser and is in the fourth grade at Steele Street school.

of the dry ice off. Officers should go into a huddle. Go over the crime step by step. Maybe someone would uncover a new clue. That might soon result in a message that the killer has been found.

I shall continue in my little way to seek out the man responsible for the killings. Will you?

Rites Held for Aurelius Farmer

Funeral services were conducted for Lawrence J. Briggs, 64, at the Jewett chapel Sunday afternoon. Rev. Roy Mumau of the Mason Church of the Nazarene officiated. Burial was in Woodlawn cemetery, Leslie. Neighbors Stanley Hazel, Harley Droscha, Holden Stiles, Carl Warner, Floyd Miller and Fred Jennings were pallbearers.

Mr. Briggs took his own life with a rifle. His body was found late Thursday night when his wife and stepson and wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Arend, returned to the farm home at 1601 S. College road from a 2-day trip to the Straits of Mackinac. Mr. Briggs had urged them to go. He was in apparent good health and no reason could be advanced by the family for his decision to end his life. The body was found in the house. Coroner Harry E. Leadley decided that no inquest was needed.

Mr. Briggs was born January 10, 1892, the son of Charles Briggs and Lettie Brower Briggs. For most of his life he had lived near Aurelius.

Surviving are the widow, Mabel, the stepson, John Arend of Aurelius, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Ola Hurrell, Clearwater, Florida.

Civil Defense Chief Asks Special Week Observance

Civil defense director Ralph G. Stroppe is urging people to cooperate in the observance of national civil defense week, September 9 through September 15.

"President Eisenhower has urged that every community and every person in the land develop a preparedness to meet disaster, either enemy-caused or natural," said Stroppe. "Civil defense week has been planned to help develop this preparedness, by educating the public to the importance of a strong civil defense organization and stimulating interest in civil defense activity and training. Our community, like every other community in the nation, has a definite need for a strong civil defense organization, ready to meet any emergency."

The civil defense director stressed the fact that civil defense is something beyond the mere preparing for an enemy attack, which everyone hopes will never come. He pointed out that civil defense organizations play an important role in natural disasters and that the existence of a well-trained civil defense organization can make a community ready to cope with any emergency.

Stroppe said that civil defense is only an extension of self-protection on the individual level.

"Civil defense is a personal thing," said Stroppe. "The first step in civil defense is to convince individuals of the need for training in self-protection and family protection. Family protection is extended to neighborhood and community protection through civil defense and finally is projected into national preparedness to meet any conceivable emergency."

Cadillac

To the Man Who is Hesitating...

There are many motorists in this community who have given serious consideration to the purchase of a new Cadillac car this year—and yet, for one reason or another, have not made the move.

If you are among them, we hope that you will pause to read the little message that follows.

Ordinarily, when a man hesitates to make the move to Cadillac, he does so because he is not familiar with the many practical aspects of Cadillac ownership.

Insofar as original cost is concerned, a Cadillac is eminently practical. Several models, in fact, are actually priced competitively with the so-called "medium-priced" makes.

Operating and maintenance costs are also remarkably low. We have heard it said by new owners that Cadillac is the most economical automobile they have ever owned.

And as for resale value—well, Cadillac traditionally retains a greater share of its original worth through the years than any other motor car built in the land.

In short, the great Cadillac car represents one of the soundest automotive investments on the highway today.

The moral of our message is this: It is still not too late to set things right in a 1956 Cadillac of your own!

We have a selection of new Cadillacs on hand—and we can promise you both prompt delivery and a generous trade-in allowance.

Why not come in today?

JANET

Janet: This week, Jim, I was going to tell our friends about our Colorizer Paint, but now that the Everlast Aluminum table pieces came in, I can't wait to announce it. Jim: No time like the present. How about a window of it? Janet: Well, if we don't get out a display pretty soon, it will be all gone. I've sold quite a few pieces right out of the shipping box. Jim: I wouldn't call that selling. I'd say folks were walking off with it!

Janet: And for a very good reason. It was the most unusual line I saw at the Chicago Market. The price was the amazing part of it. Usually almost any fancy casserole has to sell for at least $5.00 and to be able to find such a lovely one for $3.25 is really something. Jim: If you've finished patting yourself on the back, where do you want me to put this gorgeous, priceless, inexpensive find of yours?

Janet: I wasn't the only one impressed with it. It was the talk of the gift show and you're beginning to sound like a man!

Jim: I should hope so! Janet and Jim together: Don't be last, be first with Everlast Aluminum, folks.

THE PARABLE

herefore speak I to them in parables: because they seeing see not; and hearing they hear not; neither do they understand

(St. Matthew 13:13)

THE PARABLE is the basis of all religious education. From infancy through adult life we learn spiritual truths only as they are interpreted for us in terms of every-day experience.

OUR CHURCHES follow the example of the Greatest Teacher. Simple precepts or more complex doctrines are brought to us in vivid illustration. Lessons, sermons, hymns—even church architecture and ritual—are full of human narrative, word pictures or traditional symbolism to help us grasp and apply God's truth

SPIRITUAL MATURITY must come to us through the effective teaching and practical guidance our churches provide. Our souls cannot grow simply by seeing a church on the corner, or hearing folks talk about religion. Working and learning every Sunday, we will understand Christian truth in living terms and use our understanding to serve God and man.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Mitchell Dances At Kansas City

Ric Mitchell of Mason, closed his first season as a member of the corps de ballet at Kansas City's Starlight Theatre last week with his appearance in the musical hit, "The King and I," starring Jeanette MacDonald of motion picture, stage, radio and television fame.

Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Mitchell, 2072 Rolfe road, is a graduate of Mason high school and has studied dancing for 8 years.

The 22-year-old dancer has appeared in all of the 10 musicals produced this season at the open air theatre in Kansas City's Swope park.

Mitchell is well known in the Lansing area, having appeared in many dance recitals and community entertainments for a number of years. He has played night clubs and theaters around the country with a dance team and appeared at the Cohasset, Mass., music circus as a member of the chorus and a featured dancer.

Bus Lines Ask Tax Relief In Order to Keep Going

By ELMER WHITE
Michigan Press Association

Caught between rising costs and a public that relies more and more on private transportation, local bus companies are turning to the state for relief measures. Something must be done, they say, if operations are to continue. Specifically requested are tax exemptions. Some companies claim they have exhausted all other means of economizing and are still operating at a loss.

A special state legislative committee, headed by Rep. James Goulette (R-Iron Mountain) recently conducted hearings on bus lines serving Michigan communities. Testimony indicated that numerous local companies did lose money during 1955.

To remain in business most local lines are now running with curtailed service and other drastic economies. "It looks like it will take a special tax exemption next year to save some of these companies," Goulette says.

The vicious circle began after World War II. A car-hungry public turned to automobile transportation and bus line revenue fell off sharply from war year levels. To maintain a profitable operation, companies cut schedules to remove routes that were losing money. Result: fewer passengers.

Continued cuts in service were necessary—revenue kept shrinking. Many lines are now operating on so limited a basis they are nearing the point of economizing themselves out of existence.

Behind the apparent problem lies the big population movement to "suburbia." Metropolitan areas which once provided tight, compact units for bus line operation, spilled over and sprawled in multiple directions during the post-war building boom.

Instead of a concentrated population serviced by a few main arterial routes, bus lines were faced with ever-spreading residential areas. There is no way to economically cope with the situation.

"Share-the-ride" car pools, born of necessity during the war, continued to be popular with workers and businessmen. Transportation companies couldn't provide a plan that would again bring fares jingling into the cash box.

On the cost side of the picture, equipment and equipment costs rose sharply. Taxes increased. Payroll, property, gasoline and weight taxes all added more to the cost load.

What is the answer? Municipal ownership advocates find few supporters. City governments do not favor compounding their present problems by undertaking to operate an unprofitable transportation company.

Taxpayers don't like to subsidize unprofitable operations for which, in many instances, they receive no service in return.

Labor prefers to negotiate with private companies rather than any part of government.

Yet, everyone admits that public transportation is in the public interest and should be continued as long as a need exists.

Most experts agree that tax relief is a stop-gap measure—not a solution. Bus companies feel they have already explored all other possible means which might affect a solution, all without success. The public, it seems, doesn't want to ride in buses enough to make their local operation profitable.

One prominent city manager whose city is affected by curtailed public transportation believes that present costly equipment should be traded for smaller, lighter vehicles capable of carrying approximately a dozen passengers.

This would be a partial return to the "jitney" type of transportation once offered in many cities. Under such a system, equipment, maintenance and tax costs would be greatly reduced, he concludes. Meanwhile, local bus lines continue to stew in their own dilemma.

Largest surplus in history—$25,500,000—is expected to remain in state coffers when final figures for the 1955-56 fiscal year are totaled up, says State Controller James W. Miller.

Several weeks will be needed to determine the amount to the exact penny. Miller admits that present estimates can vary half a million dollars either way from the exact total when it is learned.

State business was carried on in a big scale. Expenditures amounted to $509,900,000 during the fiscal year ending June 30. However, income for the same period was $535,400,000—leaving the state with a tidy financial balance.

Park Laxity Is Unfair Charge

With the drawing to a close of the state park season, the Detroit Free Press calls the state department of conservation lax for not providing adequate park facilities. The Automobile Club of Michigan is quoted as the authority for launching the laxity charge.

The parks division of the state conservation department is not lax. The laxity is in the legislature, and local units of government and all of us.

The legislature has not concerned itself with providing funds for the purchase of park land. Hunting areas are being constantly expanded by the use of Pittman-Robertson funds. Under that program, for instance, the Dansville public hunting area has been expanded to its present 3,500 acres.

Unfortunately there is no such program covering state parks for camping and other forms of recreation. Unfortunately, some local units of government want beach front property on the tax rolls, developed for cottages and cabins. Unfortunately, some real estate speculators have acquired vast areas of beach property.

Michigan's state parks attract millions of people every year. At some of the parks there is overcrowding. That overcrowding is not because of laxity of the park department. It is because of the popularity of the parks and the laxity of the legislature in providing adequate funds.

And don't let us blame it all upon the legislature. Here in this county with many more residents coming in year after year we have done pitifully little about park development. We have been talking about spending $12 million for a Grand river dam and flood control project. For a fraction of that sum the county could acquire for public use many miles of river banks on the Red Cedar and Grand. Then flood waters would injure no one. Here in Mason we have neglected our own little park. We ought to fix that one up, provide adequate toilet facilities there, and we ought to develop a roadside park for travelers along US-127 and M-36, a place where they can stop and eat their lunch, a place for them to rest before resuming their journeys.

Until the legislature provides more funds for state parks, there are some things the parks division of the conservation department can and should do. The present camping fee of 50c per night is unrealistic. People in state parks have money for boats, tents, trailers and other things. They are willing to pay more for the privilege of camping. They are willing to pay something toward the acquisition of more land to relieve overcrowding. They are willing to pay more for adequate park facilities.

The parks division of the state conservation department has not been lax. It has been attempting to do a big job with little money. To keep the state park system abreast and ahead of expanding use, operational fees must be raised and the legislature must provide additional funds for land purchases.

Counties, cities, villages and townships need not wait for state funds to become available and state government to develop parks. Local parks — even local parks for general state use — should be acquired and operated. The country is filling up and added public breathing space is a necessity. The best use to which thousands of acres of Michigan land could be put is for public enjoyment of lakes and rivers and woods.

Speaking of laxity, where has the Automobile Club of Michigan been all these years while the parks division of the conservation department has been struggling to provide park facilities?

Michigan needs more parks, this county and every county needs more parks. So do most cities and villages. So do townships. If there is any laxity to be charged, let's all of us take our share, and not attempt to load it onto the one department that has shown the most awareness of park needs.

Let's Look at Sports Ourselves

Mason's system of emphasizing junior high and elementary grade sports has been mentioned occasionally by George Alderton, sports editor of the State Journal. He is spearheading a drive to have Lansing junior high schools play football and engage in other sports schedules.

While Lansing is thus looking at Mason sports, and always through George's rose-colored glasses, maybe we ought to have a look ourselves.

There is some evidence that junior and tiny tot organized sports are being emphasized too much at Mason. There are varsity teams, reserve teams, junior varsity teams and seventh and eighth grade teams. That's fine, if the boys are given ample time and encouragement for other activities — even their lessons.

Yet sometimes it seems as though the pressure for athletic participation is a little too strong. When sixth and seventh and eighth grade boys surrender profitable newspaper routes so they can devote full time to after-school practice night after night, that's too much pressure. When boys deny themselves the opportunity of developing musical talent with the band because they can't find time away from organized sports, then maybe there's too much emphasis on play.

There ought to be time enough for both sports and music, for both play and work in school, for both play and work outside of school.

This theory that is being expounded in Lansing that Mason's school athletic program is ideal needs more study before being accepted here in Mason. There are many Mason parents who fear that sports are being emphasized at the expense of more important youth training.

Making Highways Safer

If all automobile drivers were competent and careful, an accident would be just that, something unforeseen, like a gap opening in the pavement, the failure of a bridge, or an avalanche down a hillside.

Unfortunately for the safety of the traveling public, the roads are far less hazardous than the drivers. Most roads are safe. Many drivers are not.

Last week a Mason driver was grounded after an examination before licensing examiners. Some people have complained that the man can not continue his present employment without the right to drive. They wonder what he'll do. They should have been wondering what other people would do with such a careless driver on the road.

Few people would accept the theory that a man with a bad record and a history of carelessness should be permitted to operate a diesel locomotive which has to keep to a track. Yet too many people have accepted the theory that every person has a right to drive an automobile. He has a privilege of driving if he is a safe driver. He has no right on the road if he is an incompetent or a careless driver.

The surest way to make highways safe is to restrict their use to reasonably safe drivers.

Down by the SYCAMORE

Rightly or wrongly, people judge parents by the actions of their sons and daughters. Generally, that's fair. There are exceptions, when youngsters away from home act better than they do at home, and when others act worse than they do at home.

That was the consensus of the men and women who served as cabin counselors for the Mason band at Interlochen. There were 92 Mason boys and girls on the band trip. Had the band been slimmer to 85 and the proper selection made of the 7 left behind, the outing would have been more enjoyable for the counselors and both more enjoyable and profitable for the 85.

Last week was the best week of the summer from the standpoint of weather. It was the best week of the summer for the boys and girls who made the most of their opportunities at Interlochen. And the band is already planning to return next year. The boys and girls want to go back and Dr. Joseph E. Maddy and the rest of the camp staff invited them to come back.

My wife was a counselor. She had a pleasant week. She had 13 girls, mostly ninth graders. That number 13 brought no bad luck. She found every one of the 13 courteous, agreeable and responsible. Several of them, she told me confidentially, seemed unduly timid about walking unescorted through the woods to the cabin after the nightly concerts, but she was able to recall that she exhibited the same tendency once herself.

I took a couple of grandchildren, Vernon and Nancy, along with me to have a final fling at summer. We hung around on the edge of the band. We pitched a tent on Green lake, after discovering that both the regular Interlochen state park sites were crowded. We found an ideal spot, beneath giant Norway pines. Alas, by another year the conservation department may provide water and plumbing and make the place popular and crowded.

We followed the band to Sleeping Bear sand dune at Glen Arbor. It may be the biggest dune in the world, as someone there said. Whether it is or not, it makes an ordinary dune look like an ant hill. The dune goes straight up and hundreds of people Sunday were crawling up and somersaulting down. Above the first slope, (so steep it can hardly be called a slope) is a plateau a mile or so square and beyond that the dune rises again.

Those who climb to the top are rewarded with a glorious green and blue picture, green of the forest-clad hills and the blues of the sky and Glen lake and Lake Michigan. For sheer beauty it beats the Grand Canyon, Carlsbad Caverns and Yellowstone.

From Sleeping Bear dune we went to D. H. Day state park for a swim and a beach party. As the sun dipped down into Lake Michigan we turned back toward Interlochen and a guided moonlight tour of Benzie, Leelanau and Grand Traverse counties.

Vernon, Nancy and I breakfasted with the band Monday morning and then set out for home. We took side trips to the state park at Cadillac and to various lakes and dams before reaching the Barryton rendezvous with the band.

It was a long trip over what has become known as the most hazardous week end of the year. We saw no accident — not even a dented fender.

We started our journey in the rain. Saturday. Near Ionia the windshield wiper stopped before the rain did. When we reached Sheridan a garage mechanic said it needed an entire new assembly which he didn't have in stock. But he said he might be able to batter the end of the wiper shaft and make it operate for a half mile or even until next spring. So he did. The wiper worked the half mile and then some. Then the rain ceased and the sun came out. We didn't have to turn the wiper on again. There was a light shower Sunday morning while the 3 of us were snug in our tent.

Although we had intended following M-66 to US-115, thence over to US-131, US-113, US-37 and US-31, we couldn't resist ambling over to Amble to see a town with such a queer name. It's a clean little place with a milk plant. We then ambled on to US-131 and followed it through Big Rapids, Reed City and Cadillac where we picked up the projected route. On our way home we used the 113-131-115-66-16-127 combination. From Ionia north on either route the scenery is far better than on US-27 and traffic is not as thick.

Disconnected impressions of the trip include:

With another 10 days of good weather there'll be a lot of corn even unto the far north of Wexford county and into Grand Traverse. There's some good farm land near Kingsley in Grand Traverse, and more in Benzie than I thought. North of Ionia the scent of apples in the air makes mouths water. Apples are a bumper crop this year, not only in the Ionia-Belding section but even in Benzie county. Trees are breaking under their burdens of fruit north of Ionia.

Beans looked so good in Menominee and Montcalm that we ordered bean soup at a Barryton restaurant. It was good. Every Michigan restaurant should serve bean soup every day, if the cook knows how to make it. Sheridan has a neat look both going and coming. There's a fine new hospital there.

It's a big year for potatoes. Farmers and hucksters sell them by the bushel all through the potato belt.

Many new orchards of cherries, apples and peaches have been set out in Grand Traverse, Leelanau and Benzie counties. Many acres around Manton which used to produce potatoes are now in grass. Farmers raised potatoes too long for the good of the soil. Many farmers now have city jobs in Cadillac. The speedboat nuisance is greater at Mitchell state park, Cadillac, than any other place we visited.

Cadillac has the prettiest setting of any city anywhere near its size in Michigan. Those lakes and hills are beautiful and the lakes are right in town. People know that Cadillac is not made in Cadillac but many must wonder if that's where Cadillac and Chevies too go when they die. From Cadillac to Manton automobile skeletons of all makes await burial.

There's oil and/or gas at Six Lakes and Morley. Ferris Institute struck oil in getting the state to take over. More building has been done since control passed to the state than was done in the 50 years before. Paris fish hatchery is a tourist attraction of the first magnitude. There are few stump fences left in the north. Reed City has a humming new factory, Miller Glass products, but what kind of glassworks it is we couldn't tell from the sign.

Dr. Maddy was right in his opposition to locating the jet base near Interlochen. A jet base nearby would have doomed the National Music camp at that location. Inasmuch as the music camp was there first, the jets can and should roost somewhere else.

I may next pitch my tent at D. H. Day state park. There's no place anywhere on earth that's prettier than that part of Michigan.

Book Talk

The recent national political conventions have brought increased interest in the Ingham county library in all aspects of the political scene. Books are available at the library on the history of the Democratic and Republican parties, the backgrounds of presidential candidates, the record of various administrations, how a president is elected, and other related subjects.

A number of recent books will be of particular interest to Democrats. The opinions of candidate Stevenson are expressed in Noel Bush's ADLAI E. STEVENSON OF ILLINOIS and John B. Martin's ADLAI STEVENSON. His speeches and writings are collected in WHAT I THINK.

Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, in A DEMOCRAT LOOKS AT HIS PARTY, considers the pros and cons of both parties and then explains why he chose to join the Democratic fold. THE FABULOUS DEMOCRATS by David Cohn is a history of the party since its origin under Jefferson. A recent biography is Margaret Truman's SOUVENIR.

Republicans will be interested in appraisals of Eisenhower's record as a man and as a president in Robert J. Donovan's EISENHOWER: THE INSIDE STORY. A portrait of the president at work and at play is Meriman Smith's MEET MR. EISENHOWER. A recent biography of the vice-president is Ralph de Toledano's NIXON.

The newest book in this field is Arthur Larson's A REPUBLICAN LOOKS AT HIS PARTY, in which he hails "the new Republicanism." Also of interest is the GRAND OLD PARTY, a pictorial history of the Republicans during their first 100 years. Of historical interest to Michigan and Ingham county Republicans is THE LIFE OF ZACHARIAH CHANDLER, published in 1880. This book outlines his political life and details how he developed what is now known as "Chandler's Marsh," north and east of Lansing.

Other books which stand out during an election year include THE AMERICAN PRESIDENT, PICTORIAL HISTORY OF AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION REFORMS, THE PRESIDENCY, and CONGRESS: ITS CONTEMPORARY ROLE.

How would you like to live in the White House, with the beams splitting under your sitting room? That's what happened to Margaret Truman. Perhaps she doesn't mention it in her biography SOUVENIR, but it does come to light in a photograph in THE WHITE HOUSE, a report of the commission on the renovation of the executive mansion. From the other pictures therein it is seen that the whole interior was removed and replaced. And speaking of souvenirs, did you buy a piece of the old White House. One of the important duties of the commission was the setting of pieces of brick and wood not required for re-use in the building. They report a profit of $10,000 on the sale.

The before and after pictures make the report worthwhile. During demolition of the old interior, they discovered such things as ornamental plaster cornices highlighted in gold, and an old well dug during Jefferson's time.

Perhaps you don't care to tear the insides out of your house, but there may be HOME IMPROVEMENTS YOU CAN DO. The book by that title shows how to dress up your windows, beautify your chimney, make room dividers, accordion doors, etc. If that's not enough, start from scratch with the latest BUILDING MANUAL.

With a house full of shelves and room dividers, you'll need something to fill them up. With Ira C. Madden's CREATIVE HANDICRAFTS, the kids can help you out. They'll make Indianhead tie racks, hot pad holders, flour and sugar scoops, door stops, book ends, squirrel sewing kits, clothespin baskets, in short, everything you need.

How union members feel about labor political programs is examined in WHEN LABOR VOTES, a study of Detroit auto workers, by Arthur Kornhauser and others. This study was made possible by a grant Wayne university by the UAW-CIO. Samples of union members were interviewed both before and after the presidential election of 1952. Of the group interviewed, 83% did vote, the authors claim. They found that the better educated, above average income, and young auto workers displayed a high political interest.

A professor of sociology at Columbia university, C. Wright Mills is a well known critic of American civilization. In his latest book, THE POWER ELITE, Mills examines the way of life of men and women in positions of power and fortune in this country. The celebrities and the big rich, admirals and generals, politicians and corporation executives are put under this scrutiny. He sees them as a center of power that is tightly knit and basically irresponsible. His thesis is a provocative one, especially to those who disagree. Mills is the author of WHITE COLLAR and also teaches at the William A. White Institute of Psychiatry in New York City.

Librarian Closes Reading Series

Williamston branch of the Ingham county library, under the leadership of librarian, Mrs. Cleo Beatty, has concluded another summer of achievement in good reading for the children in the community.

Each year reading certificates are awarded to the youth of the city and community for reading during the summer. Edna Verstrate rates as the most avid reader this year, in the children's summer reading club. She read 100 books.

A total of 125 children participated in this club this summer. Seventy-one will receive their reading certificates from the Ingham county library, and 23 will receive library club pens. The latter is awarded to any child reading 4 to 10 books.

Others who read a large number of books were Beverly Perkins, 70; Ruth Peters, 61; Roxanne Cheney, 58; Sandra Christensen, 56; Carol Kennedy, 55; Bobby Glenn, 52; Sue Glenn, 50; Dinna Dunckel, 44; Karen Zindell, 42; and Mary Lapp, Richard Von-Riechbaum and Georgia Ross each read 41 books.

Mrs. Beatty also announced that beginning Wednesday, September 12, the library will be open again from 11:30 to 12:30 in addition to the regular hours. The extra hours will be in effect during the school term.

A school and library Atlas of the World is a new addition to the reference collection at the local library.

Russell Porter of Lansing spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Edd Porter. Mrs. Porter who has been sick for some weeks is now able to be up and around again.

If You're Like Me

You may have received a traffic ticket or two but you have never been arrested and charged with a crime. After all, most citizens of our state are law-abiding folks who respect the law and try to live within it.

Our law enforcement agencies have a high batting average on convictions. With modern fingerprinting and investigating methods, the police have accurate records and keep close watch on our criminal elements in society. By law it is their duty to make written records of all arrests for crimes and certain misdemeanors.

But what about the individual who is charged with a crime, booked at the station, fingerprinted, investigated and then

Mr. and Mrs. James McClintock, who have resided for the past few years on Fulton street, have purchased a small farm near Charlotte and are moving to their new home this week.

Pleasant. Miss Wilton plans to work again next summer at the hospital during her vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Cy Griffes and daughter and son spent the week end in the Upper Peninsula visiting Mrs. Griffes' parents.

released without charge? Do the records of an innocent person remain in the police criminal files; I checked at our local sheriff's office the other day and found out that in Michigan those who are found not guilty after trial or released without charge may get their records back if they ask for them. If the request is made within 60 days after release, the arrest card, fingerprints and description must be returned to the accused by the police department who has them on file.

If an individual wants the records after the 60 day period has expired he must file a petition with the court in the county where the arrest took place. The judge may or may not return them depending on the facts surrounding the request.

If you want to keep your slate clean ask for your records right away.

Too Many Farmers Is Basic Trouble

By CARL COLLIN

The farm problem does not stem from excess stocks accumulated as a result of high price supports, neither is it an aftermath of the war. It cannot be explained by a failure of the economy as a whole to perform satisfactorily. The basic difficulty is that too many farmers are engaged in agriculture. That's the opinion of one of the country's leading economists, Dr. Theodore Schultz, chairman of the economics department of the University of Chicago. Back in the early days of "Triple-A," "Fed" Schultz was a top farm economist at Iowa State college. His thinking was influential in early farm legislation.

In a recent speech before several hundred farm economists, Schultz said the present situation will be helped, but not corrected, by getting rid of excess stocks of commodities, by lowering price supports, and by acreage allotments and controls. He called the soil bank plan simply a variant of acreage allotments and controls. Schultz told the economists that a great deal could be accomplished if only a small fraction of the vast federal funds now being expended on acreage controls, the soil bank and other farm measures, were used to give some financial help to those farm people who can thereby be induced to leave farming.

If you're interested in the weather, you'll want to read the article in a recent Life magazine on "Our New Weather." Scientists believe all the hurricanes and tornadoes, the higher temperatures and unseasonal storms are part of a long term change in world climate.

This has been a comparatively cool summer in Michigan, but that's probably not actually significant. It's the average temperature changes over a period of time that counts. A 2-degree change in temperature doesn't sound like much but if the annual mean temperature changed that much it would be equivalent to nearly 100 miles of altitude. Because the world's annual mean temperature is increasing slowly, Philadelphia now has the climate which Baltimore had about 1885. A 14-degree drop in the average annual temperature, which doesn't sound at all cataclysmic, would actually return the North American continent to the Ice Age.

Secretary Benson's speech at the state field day and plowing contest at Constantine last week marked the beginning of his tour through the farm areas of the country from now to November. Although he said the farm problem should be kept out of politics, he directed a slashing attack on high price supports and the Democratic farm plank.

I was more interested in Secretary Benson, the man himself, than I was in his speech, because I had a copy of his talk before me when he spoke. I felt he did a good job of delivering his talk. But only twice during the 55-minute address was there any applause. Discussing this seeming lack of enthusiasm afterward, several reporters expressed the opinion that perhaps his talk was so loaded with material that it was more thought-provoking than emotional. I'd certainly agree with that. But after meeting him and talking with him in a small group, and then alone, I felt that his personality just didn't project itself out to crowds of people. When he was with a small group after the speech, and later when I had a few minutes with him alone, I was conscious of a man who was very warm, sincere, honest.

But from the lack of enthusiasm shown by the several thousand people who listened before the speaker's platform, this warmth apparently doesn't show up. The question that trickled through my mind afterward was just how would his efforts in speaking before large farm groups during the next couple of months add up for selling the administration's farm policies.

also got the feeling that this barnstorming around the country was not one of the aspects of the Secretary's job that Mr. Benson liked.

Well, now we have powdered butter! A Chicago manufacturer has come up with a new product that somehow combines butter and non-fat dry milk under a new process. The new product is expected to provide new outlets for the U. S. dairy industry. The first shipment of 100,000 lb of the new product, called Beacreme, has been shipped to Sweden. In all some 400,000 lb will be sent to Sweden, Finland and Switzerland in a government-sponsored experiment aimed at developing foreign markets for surplus U. S. dairy products.

Clinical tests on a number of people suffering from undulant fever gives the first published report that this disease can be successfully treated by the use of one of the newer antibiotics. No supportive theory is needed. Undulant human fever is human brucellosis and is a debilitating disease. It's most common among farm families, because of close work with infected cattle or by drinking unpasteurized milk from infected cows.

It's Time To Kill Off Farm Rats

This is the time of year to get the rat population to as low a number as possible. M. H. Avery, county agricultural agent, has some ideas which will help. First is to get all grain bins as rat-proof as possible. In the early fall the rats begin to congregate around buildings and near seed for winter quarters, he claims. While corn is at low point in storage on the farm it would be the time to poison, the agent pointed out. If food is available, rats will not take readily to poison baits of any kind.

Second, the newest and most effective baits are those made from anti-coagulant poisons. The rodents have to eat this bait every day for several days to be killed. The most commonly available anti-coagulants are warfar-

County Fairs Will Stage National Pulling Events

For the sixth consecutive year the national lightweight and heavyweight horse pulling contests will be staged at Michigan county fairs.

Tuesday, September 11, beginning at 1:00 p. m. the Saginaw county fair will have the national lightweight contest; a week later Tuesday, September 18, beginning at 9:00 a. m. St. Joseph county fair will have the heavyweight contest.

These nationals will draw top teams from Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Pennsylvania and New York. Interested followers of these contests will come from even a wider area, including Canada. Present entries in the lightweight contest at the Saginaw county fair include the 1956 state champions owned by Hugh Davis, Bronson, Michigan; the 1955 national champions owned by Earl Ruby, Eaton, Ohio, in addition to an unusually strong field of teams from Michigan and 7 other states.

The heavyweight contest at the St. Joseph county fair will bring out an exceptional field of heavy teams. Included in the advance entries are the 1956 state champions owned by John Hutzenga, Grandville; the 1955 national champions owned by Fowler Brothers, Reading; the Ohio champions owned by R. F. Oakleaf; the Kentucky champions entered by Alvin Cummins, Brookville, Kentucky; the Indiana champions entered by Russell Hensley, Daleville, Indiana. Other heavy entries include a 4,500-lb pair entered by William Bales, Moorehead, Indiana; a 4,400-lb pair entered by D. S. Hessel, Fremont, Ohio; a 4,000-lb pair entered by Albert Newman, Ohlong, Illinois; the Barclay and Relland pairs from Wisconsin; and an unusually strong field of heavyweight entries from Michigan.

These nationals will be the top contests held in the United States during the 1956 season. They will bring together all the top teams in single contests and a national champion for 1956 will be crowned in each weight division.

Miller Holstein Tops IBM Test

In pival and fumarin—sold under many different brand names.

Warfarin and pival can be purchased in the water-soluble powder or that can be used as a liquid bait. When water is not readily available to the rodents, this makes a good method of getting them to consume the poison, Avery said. In all cases this material should be put out of the reach, as far as possible, of house pets since the material is poisonous to them as well as to the rodents. If the material can be placed in containers which are again placed in or near runways with only small openings for animals to get to, then the rodents will reach the material and not cats and dogs. Material should be kept fresh as far as possible so that it will be palatable.

It is claimed that each rat consumes or spoils at least $5 worth of feed per year. Therefore, time and money spent for removing these animals is time and money well invested.

Dairymen won more than an increase in the price of Class I milk when they agreed to withhold milk from the Detroit market Saturday. Besides the $5.35 price, they won the admiration of consumers and fellow-farmers for the dignified and grown-up way they handled themselves.

The end was gained without bitter neighborhood conflict, without infringing on the rights of others and without destruction of property. It's interesting to note that creameries agreed to the $5.35 price quicker than they did the $5.00 price of last spring. It might be the way dairymen conducted their strike. It ought to be a good lesson.

A bachelor's life is a lonely one—quieter perhaps and with less confusion—but lonely just the same. Saturday my wife and 2 youngsters headed west by airplane over Lake Michigan to another land—Chicago. They may return next week. I'll be frank. Those first few hours alone after the plane took off quieted my nerves. No kids in the back seat were crawling over their daddy's shoulders with hot breath and sticky fingers.

There were no arguments with you-know-who about running out of gas, driving too fast or who ought to be elected president or why the upstairs hall should be painted blue instead of pink. No, it was all quiet as I headed out of Capital City airport with the world before me—just me.

But now the silence has grown louder than the din of little children playing and the companionship of a wife has become more important than the defiant freedom of propping my feet on the white chair slip cover.

Bachelor living is not for me. I can't stand the echo of my own voice. Give me the confusion of a wife and 2 kids any day.

I've found a neighborhood dog that can give a ground mole a good chase. He's caught one and is now after the other 99. It's a good system if I can coax the cur into filling up the holes he digs.

'Interior' Livestock May Work

Most livestock on good commercial farms in the middle west will be reared in confinement in another 10-15 years, believes a Michigan State university agricultural economist.

John Doneth points out that the trend towards specialization and larger enterprises will encourage the move toward confinement rearing.

Better control of environmental conditions such as temperature and humidity will be possible, he contends. At the same time, costs of equipment and buildings per unit of livestock produced will be lower.

This confinement trend will be true especially for fattening hogs, dairy and feeder cattle, he says. Poultry has already well started in that direction.

Doneth cites a Michigan farmer who has gone to confinement rearing entirely. The farmer and his son are milking 50 dairy cows, feeding 100 steers, fattening out 75 hogs each year and farming 450 acres of cropland. Except for small lots, this farmer has no fences on the farm.

Farmers would be wise to remove their dairy cows from pasture an hour or two before milking time to prevent off flavors in milk, say M. S. U. specialists.

Organic Farmers Schedule State Meeting at Center

Dr. William Coda Martin, M. D., of New York City, vice-president of the American Academy of Nutrition, will address the fourth annual session of the Federated Organic Clubs of Michigan Sunday afternoon, September 16 in the Civic Center, Lansing. His subject will be "When Is Food a Food and When a Poison?" He will be preceded in the morning by Dr. Raymond L. Girardot, Detroit dentist and also a member of the academy, who will talk on "Stumbling Blocks to Good Nutrition."

In between these talks the farmers and gardeners will be addressed by Joseph A. Cocannour, of Wilburton, Oklahoma, technical adviser to the governor of Oklahoma and his water study commission. Also a soils consultant, Cocannour will talk on "The Soil and You."

These are part of a 2-day program that will attract some 500 organic farmers and gardeners from Michigan and neighboring states. The roundup will get off to a start Saturday noon, September 15, at the Lansing Civic Center, with 2 garden and farm tours. The farm tour will feature a tillage demonstration at the Robert Elfert farm near Mason. Professor Donald P. Watson of Michigan State University will address the group Saturday evening on the subject of Horticulture As a Therapy. The public is invited to any and all of these sessions which are under the auspices of 11 affiliated organic farm and garden clubs of Michigan, according to Elfert, president of the Tri-County Farming and Garden club.

Supply and Demand Cycle Looks Good for Farmers

The hog production cycle has turned downward after expanding during 1954 and 1955. The 1956 spring pig crop was down 8% from a year earlier. Michigan on farmers' intentions for the fall crop, it should be down 7% throughout the country and down 13% in Michigan. A further reduction in hogs is expected in next spring's farrowings.

There is a strong demand for meat on the part of consumers. Consumers' spendable income has risen 2% to 3% in the past year. The number of people employed continues to increase and unemployment is at the minimum level.

Although most forecasters expect the present high level of business activity to continue well into 1957, there has been a slow-up in the auto industry and slow-down in residential construction with the tightening of credit and depressed conditions in agriculture. One bright picture is the fact that the average person is continuing to eat large quantities of meat with 163 lb consumed per person in 1956. This is up 20 lb over the number of pounds consumed in 1950. However, most of this increase has been in beef and veal.

Hog prices will take a seasonal decline, but will remain well above last year's low. Prices have been very stable since May — around $16 to $17 for tops. It is expected, if all things stay favorable, that hog prices should climb to $20 by next summer.

The outlook is that the hog production cycle will probably continue downward until 1957 with farmers continuing to decrease the number of hogs raised. If consumer purchasing

Dairy Show Planned

America's dairyland will reveal its best products and its finest herds at the fourth International dairy show in Chicago October 6 to 13. Owners of purebred dairy animals from coast to coast will enter the best of 6 dairy breeds. More than 2,000 head are expected to be shown in the amphitheater at the Chicago stockyards. The breeds are Brown Swiss, Ayrshire, Holsteins, Guernseys, Jerseys and Milking Shorthorns.

Brazilians Plan Lenawee Stay

Eighteen farm organization leaders from Brazil are expected to arrive in Lenawee county on Sunday, September 16, for a 5-day look at what makes American farmers and farm organizations tick.

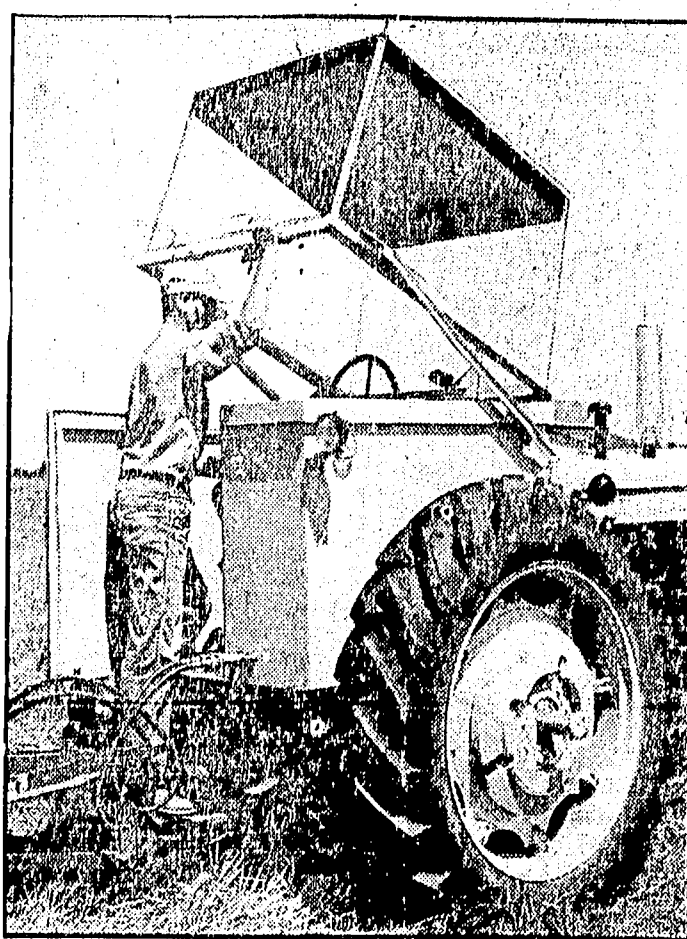

Rome Grange in Lenawee county has been particularly receptive to similar groups in the past. So the International co-operation administration of the U. S. department of agriculture asked the Michigan State Grange and Rome Grange to sponsor with ICA this phase of the foreign group's tour of the United States.

The Brazilian visitors will become acquainted with American farm living while staying in the homes of Rome Grange members. The visitors will visit electric, livestock, grain, fertilizer, dairy, oil and farm supply co-operatives. The 18 will speak at the Rome Grange meeting on Wednesday evening, September 19. They will also observe the Lenawee county fair the afternoons of September 20 and 21.

ASAE's Golden Year At MSU

The American Society of Agricultural Engineers has chosen Michigan State University for their 50th annual meeting, June 23 through 26, 1957.

Dr. A. W. Farrell, head of the M. S. U. agricultural engineering department, said about 1,500 are expected to attend the golden anniversary meeting. The organization's 1949 session also was held at Michigan State.

FARMER'S DREAM COME TRUE—Demonstrating the ultimate in farm luxury, a Doylestown, Pa., farmer lifts the glass and steel cover on an all-weather tractor. The cabin provides air-conditioning for the summer and heat for the winter. The tractor also has a push-button radio.

Soil Bank Offers Farm Opportunity

The conservation reserve program—the long-term phase of the soil bank act passed by congress last May—offers opportunities for some Michigan farmers, said Arthur Mauch, Michigan State university agricultural economist.

Through the program, land now considered as cropland may be rented for from 3 to 15 years to the government in return for annual payments. Additional cost-sharing payments will be available if the farmer establishes the land to grass, trees or water storage facilities.

Mauch pointed out, however, that nothing can be harvested from the land during the period of contract and it cannot be grazed.

Payments are considerably lower than under the acreage reserve program, which takes better acreage with a wheat or corn growing history out of production. Under the conservation reserve program the average rental payment in Michigan is $11 per acre annually for cropland taken out of small grains and row crops. Woodlands cannot come into the program.

The long-range conservation reserve program may have special application to northern Michigan and Upper Peninsula areas. Mauch believes, he suggests all farmers study the opportunities. Complete information as to how it affects individual farms is available from county agricultural stabilization and conservation committee offices.

The deadline for farmers to sign contracts for 1956 payments is October 15. Michigan's goal is to get between 100,000 and 150,000 acres into the program this year.

Beef Cattle Tour Set

Beef cattle pasture research is to be shown to visitors attending the state cattle feeders' day at Michigan State university, Monday, September 13.

Starting time is 10:30 a. m. at the university's beef cattle barns located at Bennett and Cavanaugh roads, according to M. H. Avery, county agricultural agent. The afternoon program will be in the auditorium of Anthony hall, the new animal industries building. As the program features, R. J. Webb, superintendent of the Dixon Springs experiment station, University of Illinois, will review 20 years of research there with pasture and fattening programs.

Also slated in the afternoon are reports on the use of hormones in cattle feeding and the effects of feeding different levels of protein.

Visitors will also have a chance to look over the new animal industries building and meats laboratory. The Michigan Cattle Feeders' association will have a business meeting to make for a strong membership campaign for the coming year, according to Brannan.

Ingham county will stage a cattle feeders outlook meeting Monday evening, September 17, at the court house.

Corn Field Days Set For October

Three corn field days are slated for this fall in Michigan. Leyton V. Nelson, extension farm crops specialist at Michigan State university, said farmers will have an opportunity to see demonstrations of new production practices and of new machinery for harvesting and drying.

The events are slated at the

WEEP NOT; she is not dead, but sleepeth. (Luke 8:52.)
Charmain was eleven years old. She was in a hospital. The doctors had performed an operation, but there was nothing that they could do to save her life. Everything humanly possible had been done. Now we could only commit her into the loving hands of Jesus, the Friend of children.

Every day I visited Charmain. Early one morning I was at her bedside when she awoke. She began at once to say the Lord's Prayer. She sang her favorite Sunday school hymn, "Jesus Wants Me for a Sunbeam." To be in her presence was an inspiration to deeper faith and love.

As we remember Charmain, we think of the gracious words of our Saviour: "The maid is not dead, but sleepeth." Jesus Christ called her to Himself. He has a place and a purpose for her in His heavenly kingdom.

We have the sure and certain hope of the Christian as expressed by the Apostle Paul: "Now hath Christ been raised from the dead, the first fruits of them that are asleep."

PRAYER
O Saviour Christ, Thou art the resurrection and the life. Who-soever believeth in Thee shall live, though he die. Grant us grace so to live in this world that in the world to come we may have life everlasting. In Thy holy name we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Christ in our lives is our hope of glory.
