

Jury Finds Jamaican Guilty

Claude Logan, 31, stands convicted of assault with intent to rape a Michigan State university coed. The verdict came at 11 o'clock Wednesday forenoon.

Judge Louis E. Coash remanded Logan, also a Michigan State student, to jail to await sentence. The law provides a sentence of up to 10 years in prison and a fine of not to exceed $5,000.

Logan, whose home is in Jamaica, British West Indies, had been free on bond since shortly after his arrest February 7.

The jury began its deliberations at 3:45 Tuesday afternoon. With time out for supper, jurors remained closeted until 9:45 Tuesday night. They were then permitted to go to their homes under admonishment not to discuss the case with anyone.

Jurors returned to their room at 9:30 Wednesday morning to resume deliberations. At 10:57, after several court officials had despaired of an agreement, came the rap on the door indicating a verdict.

Appearing weary from their long arguments, the jurors solemnly filed into the box to answer roll call. Glen Leatherman, who had been chosen foreman, announced the verdict, "guilty as charged."

The jury was polled, all 12 announcing individually that they had found Logan guilty.

Somebody bashed in the head of Mrs. Carolyn Brown, 21, Michigan State university student, early on the morning of February 7. The attack occurred, Mrs. Brown said, outside the MSU laundromat.

University police officials declared Logan was the man. They arrested Logan after they found him in bed at his apartment on the campus. They said that even though he protested he had not been out of his apartment since 10 o'clock the previous night, the bottoms of his shoes were wet.

Police presented a bloodstained machete they said they found in Logan's car. They also presented as evidence a section of the drain tubing from the victim's automobile. The tubing bears the mark of Logan's machete blade, police testified, and light blue paint similar to that on Mrs. Brown's car was on the blade of the machete. Police also found a toy pistol in Logan's car.

Logan did not take the stand. His defense was that somebody else must have attacked Mrs. Brown and that the attacker must have then tossed the machete, if the machete had been used, into the trunk of Logan's car.

What gunned the works for the prosecution was the testimony of Arnold K. Shaffer, another Michigan State student. He testified he saw a woman who might have been Mrs. Brown and a man who might or might not have been Logan rendezvous at the MSU laundromat, that there was no struggle and that the pair drove away in a car.

University police officers testified they had taken statements from Shaffer but upon investigation had discarded them. They insisted Shaffer must have seen and heard 2 other people an hour or so before Logan attacked Mrs. Brown.

Mrs. Brown testified that she was attacked outside the laundromat. Police photographs and testimony of officers indicated that the attack did occur there. Police said they found pools of blood and Mrs. Brown's broken glasses on the ground beside her parked car in front of the laundromat.

The attacker laid open Mrs. Brown's scalp down to the bone. Her skull was fractured. She lost parts of several teeth. She was cut and bruised. She made positive identification of Logan who was taken before her at the hospital. She identified him in court.

The trial, which opened at Mason Monday morning, drew the biggest audience in 20 years. Attorneys wrangled heatedly over testimony and evidence. Each side moved for mistrials during the course of the trial. Judge Coash denied the motions.

Much of the argument was over reports on lie detector tests. Michigan law does not recognize validity of lie detector tests as evidence. Defense attorneys sought to introduce a lie detector test run on Shaffer. The prosecution agreed to have Shaffer's tests reported only if tests run on Logan were admitted. No tests were admitted and finally lawyers were instructed to make no further mention of them.

Prosecutor Jack Warren handled the case for the people. Samuel Schwartz of Detroit, aided Monday by A. Donald Kadushin of Detroit, defended Logan.

Among the spectators was a representative of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) but the racial issue received absolutely no play. There was no charge of bias made against the police because of Logan's color. Nor was any reference to racial prejudice made at any time during the course of the trial.

Schwartz originally came into the case as counsel, he said, asked to do so by the Detroit unit of the British West Indies Social League. When another attorney withdrew, Schwartz took over the defense.

Both Warren and Schwartz expedited the trial. There were 30 witnesses. Some were not even questioned when they were presented for cross-examination, because their testimony was held nonessential, repetitive or merely corroborative.

Only 40 minutes were required to choose the jury. Two of those first called were dismissed for cause, one because he said his mind was already made up and 2 others on peremptory challenges by the defense.

As finally constituted, the jury was composed of 6 men and 6 women. They were Mrs. Beverly Pruin, Alatedon; Harry Wilson, Onondaga; Mrs. Gertrude Hills, Wheatfield; Mrs. Marjorie Osborne, White Oak; Russell Rowe, Aurelius; Henry Siegrist, Delhi; Wesley Plackney, Locke; Mrs. Janice Cornish, Stockbridge; and Ray McNeal, Mrs. Mattie Supplee, Glen E. Leatherman and Mrs. Dorothy Alagna, all of Lansing.

After arguments over abandonment of an insanity defense, Warren outlined what he intended to prove. Mrs. Brown, the first witness, substantiated Warren's statement.

Mrs. Brown, 5-7, 165 lb, wife of Ralph Brown, was calm in testifying about her ordeal. She was dressed in a greenish gray suit, with a lavender hat and lavender gloves. She has a light complexion and light brown hair, her hair still short because of her head wounds.

She told how she had first gone from her apartment at 902-B, Birch, to the laundromat at 9 o'clock to put her wash into the machine. She then returned to her apartment, corrected pupils' papers (she was doing practice teaching) and watched TV, she said.

Allocation Board Eyes Tax Split

Members of the county tax allocation board were in session in Mason Wednesday, arriving at preliminary allocation figures. They were expected to reach a decision on the 15-mill split for county, township and school taxes late Wednesday afternoon. Cities in the county are not affected by the board's action.

Members of the board are Carl G. Card and Albert Elssesser of East Lansing, Charles McLean and Vernon D. Ebersole of Lansing, and Alton J. Stroud and Lawrence Parker of Mason.

Prisoner Falls As Rope Snaps

Ardith L. Stemen is an unhappy man. He is in Mason General hospital with a damaged vertebra when he should be on his way home after 4 months in the Ingham county jail.

Stemen fell 15 feet while working on a jail painting detail Monday. The paint crew was painting window sills at the jail.

The Jackson man was due for discharge from jail Thursday. Stemen plunged to the ground when the rope supporting the boatman's chair he was painting broke. He landed on his feet but snapped a vertebra, according to Sheriff Willard P. Barnes.

Stemen was sentenced to 4 months in jail for carrying a switch blade knife.

Committee Begins Ordinance Study

Councilman Gilson Pearsall's special study committee gave the controversial uniform traffic ordinance a good look Monday night.

Mayor Paul Richards appointed the committee to study the state police-recommended ordinance. The council passed it a month ago by a 4-3 vote. The committee will recommend changes, deletions and additions.

At Monday night's meeting the group formed 2 sub-committees to study different parts of the ordinance.

The whole committee will meet Monday, June 9, to review progress and make recommendations to the council for action.

Serving on the committee under Councilman Pearsall are Councilmen Harry Smith and Nels Ferry, Mayor Richards, Police Chief Harry Chandler, City Attorney Lloyd Morris, Wilnot McDowell, Donald Edgington and Bob Tear.

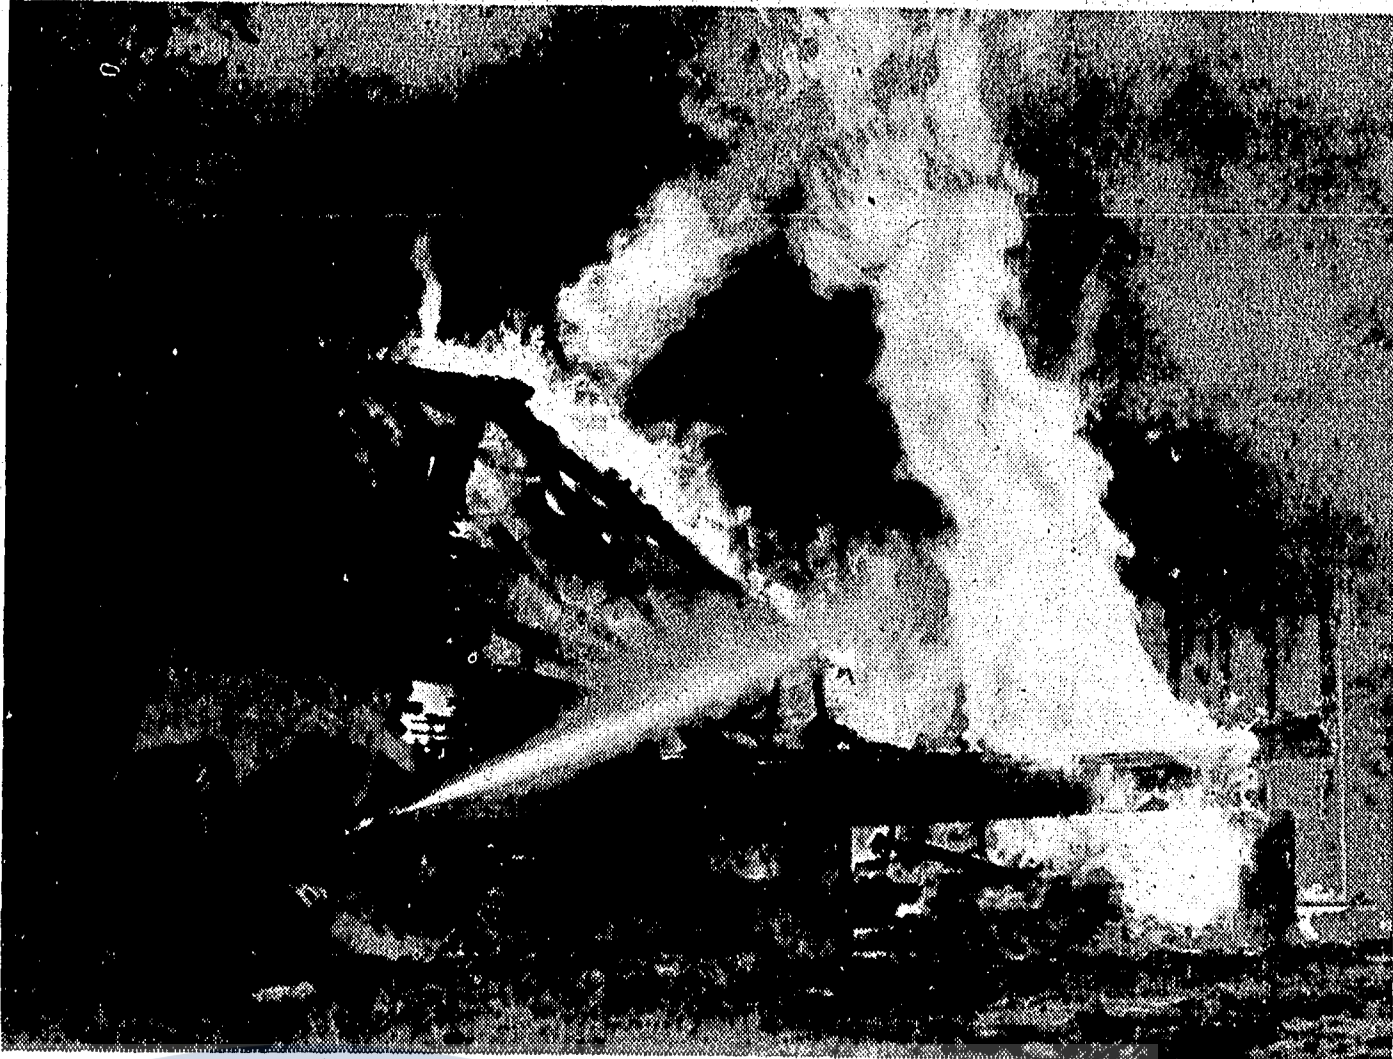

Long Week End Ahead

Some Mason business places will be closed Saturday to permit employees a long Memorial Day week end. Among those who will be closed are Mason automobile dealers, Joy O. Davis Insurance agency, Thorburn Lumber & Coal Co. and Mickelson-Baker Lumber Co. Most all Mason business places will be closed on Memorial Day. Both Mason banks will be open regular hours Saturday.

Salesman Wins Trip

Harry Burgess, Leslie, a salesman for Bill Richards Buick, didn't let the recession bother him. He won an all-expenses-paid trip to Miami by topping salesmen of 20 Buick agencies in the district in a sales contest.

The Ingham County News

FIREMEN HAD A LOT of work in front of them when this picture was snapped. Flames were eating into the Camp Kiwanis lodge with big bites when firemen arrived. Sheriff's officers, state fire marshal detectives and firemen checked through the smoking ruins for possible arson evidence. Smoke and flames shot into the air and brought out a large crowd from all over the area. (Archy's Photos).

Ingham Seeks Welfare Lift

Ingham county intends to ask the state for the same welfare treatment given Detroit and Kent counties.

If the same treatment is accorded to Ingham, taxpayers here will be saved an estimated $250,000 next year.

Ingham and the state are now on a 70-30 basis on direct relief. The county pays 70% and the state 30%. For direct relief next year Ingham has budgeted $600,000. If employment conditions do not materially improve that $600,000 will cover relief costs only until July or August, county officials have asserted. The yearly cost, upon present caseloads, could exceed a million.

But in Detroit and in Kent county (Grand Rapids) the state social welfare commission has now agreed to assume all direct relief costs beyond what a levy of 1.5 mills will yield.

Ingham officials are going to meet with state welfare officers to clarify Ingham's position. Ingham wants to know if it can set up the same arrangement as Detroit and Kent county and if the 1.5-mill expenditure necessary for state participation is based on the county's assessed valuation or on the state equalized valuation.

If it is based on the county valuation figure, Ingham will reach the mark where the state will pick up the remaining relief tab in July or August. The current case load indicates that the $550,000 appropriated for 1958 will run out in July. If the state does not help out, Ingham will have to find another $300,000 to finish 1958.

Spread against Ingham's state equalized valuation of $391,503, the 1.5 mills for relief would yield $587,254.

If spread against the county assessed valuation of $390,721,000, the 1.5 mills would yield $586,081.

Should the assessed valuation figure be used Ingham will pay its 1.5-mill share by September.

Willard J. Maxey, state welfare director, does not now list Ingham among the 16 distressed counties needing additional state aid beyond the 30%. Kent and Muskegon, as well as Wayne county, are among them. The state welfare commission has granted Detroit a 25% reduction in its welfare contributions beginning July 1. The reduction, according to Maxey, is based on a showing that Detroit is in such financial difficulties that it cannot bear its full 70% of direct relief costs.

Until 2 years ago the state and counties operated on a 50-50 direct relief basis. The legislature then decided to reduce the state's share to 30% in order to secure more federal aid toward costs of hospitalization.

Some Mason business places will be closed Saturday to permit employees a long Memorial Day week end. Among those who will be closed are Mason automobile dealers, Joy O. Davis Insurance agency, Thorburn Lumber & Coal Co. and Mickelson-Baker Lumber Co. Most all Mason business places will be closed on Memorial Day. Both Mason banks will be open regular hours Saturday.

At about the same time Dansville Deputy Fred Wilson spotted the smoke from Dansville and raced to investigate. He was on hand to snap the chain across the road leading to the lodge so trucks could reach the top of the hill.

FLAMES WERE HOT and had a good start when Mason and Dansville firemen arrived at Camp Kiwanis Monday afternoon. Fast work by the crews held down damage to Scott Lodge, the main building at the Boy Scout camp. Firemen had more than the flames to worry about. Several gross of Roman candles and other fireworks were in the wing burned. They didn't go off, though.

Officers Investigate Cause

Flames of undetermined origin destroyed the east wing of Scott Lodge at Camp Kiwanis Monday afternoon.

Only yeoman work by members of the Mason and Dansville fire departments and the John Beah unit from Lansing saved the rest of the building at the camp located 4 miles east of Mason on M-36.

Captain Versie Babcock of the Ingham sheriff's office, Fire Chief Hugh Sibly of Mason and Detective Sergeant Russell Kitzinger of the state fire marshal's office are sifting the ruins to determine cause of the blaze.

According to Babcock, the intense heat and presence of 2 gasoline cans in the ruins point to possible arson. All clues are being checked.

Along with the building, the fire burned over 4 acres of the top of the Kiwanis hill. Flames were headed off as they reached the heavily timbered areas.

Sunday night 700 boys broke camp after spending the week end at a Boy Scout camporee. The buildings were all secured and the grounds checked.

Monday morning Robert Bennett, Chief Okemos Council official, Lansing, drove to the camp for a second check. He told officers he went through all the buildings and checked all the campfire areas.

According to Chief Sibly the blaze had a good start before it was detected.

Vernon J. Brown and Lawrence Tripp noticed the flames when they stepped to the back of the barn at the Brown farm a half mile away from the camp. Brown telephoned the alarm.

Drouth Hurts Ingham Crops

No longer are farmers regarding the weather as just an unusually long dry spell. They are beginning to fear a drouth.

Dry weather has hurt crops and they are going to hurt a lot worse unless a good rain comes within a week. Already pastures are short and prospects are for about half a hay crop.

Corn is spotty. Corn planted on muck suffered frost damage twice during the past week. Corn planted on high ground has not suffered from frost and has not suffered much from drouth if it was planted deep enough for roots to reach moisture. In fields of shallow planting the corn is not doing much. Farmers who planted corn early have better stands than those who planted late.

Wheat is also beginning to show effects of continued drouth, although there would be quick recovery if normal rainfall returns. Total rainfall for the month is .67. A year ago for May there were 5.13 inches of rain.

Suburbs Vote On 2 Issues

Lansing city and township voters will decide 2 annexation issues Tuesday, and Delhi will decide on raising the bonding limit.

The Lansing vote is on annexation of Pleasant Grove and Horsebrook school district areas to the city of Lansing. If approved, the areas will join the city as a component part.

It will mean absorption of the 2 school districts as well as becoming a part of Lansing politically.

Delhi voters will have one proposal to decide. Delhi voters will be asked to approve or reject a proposal authorizing the issuing of special assessment bonds in excess of 3% but not to exceed 12% of the assessed valuation of Delhi township. The actual bond obligation will be assumed by the property owners in the special assessment district at Holt. It is necessary for the full faith and credit of the whole township, though, in order to float the bond issue.

Delhi officials are trying to provide sewer and water lines in the Holt area.

Besides the township elections printers are busy on school election ballots for Ingham districts. School elections are on June 9. Besides candidates there are plenty of financial problems for voters to decide.

At Stockbridge voters must decide on raising the limitation on the total amount of taxes which may be assessed in the district 5 mills. The extra millage would be assessed for 2 years for a sinking fund for buildings and sites.

The second proposition will give the voters a chance to decide whether to actually start the sinking fund.

At Holt the school directors are asking for approval of raising the tax limitation and assessing a special 5-mill levy for school operating expenses for a 3-year period. Another Holt ballot asks for a one-mill levy for a building and site fund and a third proposition will ask for authorization to sell the Gunn school property.

Oil Heater Gives Trouble

Monday morning's chilly weather brought Mason firemen running when an overheated oil burner started acting up. A. L. Jenks, 602 N. Okemos street, tried to get too much heat, too fast and warmed up a beam instead of himself. There was no damage.

Veterans Make Parade Plans For Memorial Celebration

Parade Marshal Frank Schmidt has the call out for Memorial Day marchers.

Mason's traditional Memorial Day parade will form Friday morning in front of the Jefferson Street school at 9:30.

Headed by a combination color guard of American Legion and VFW members and the school band, paraders will start counting cadence at 10 a. m.

Parade route will follow Oak to Barnes, and north on Barnes to Ash, Ash to the court house war memorial where Rev. Clarence Rodd will give the Memorial Day address.

British Aide Watches Trial

Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth is concerned with U. S. justice, concerned enough to send an observer to the trial of Claude Logan at Mason.

Representing the British government, more specifically the British West Indies, at Mason this week is William Walker, attached to the British embassy in Washington. He is the liaison officer assigned to watching over the interests of the 1,500 British West Indian students enrolled in U. S. colleges and universities.

Logan is a Jamaican enrolled in the agriculture course at Michigan State.

Logan was granted a leave from government work in Jamaica to study agriculture here. Like most other British West Indian students he is paying his own way, without either B.W.I. or U. S. aid. His wife is a U. S. citizen. She is employed in a guidance capacity by the Lansing school system. She resigned from the Ingham county probate court staff to take the school position. She was engaged in social work for the probate court.

Before his assignment to the division of British West Indies students a few months ago, the British official looked out for the interests of British African students enrolled in U. S. colleges and universities. He has made frequent visits to Michigan State to confer with students from what is now Ghana, he said.

"I have been intensely interested and impressed with the U. S. judicial system in this trial," Walker said.

He explained that U. S. and United Kingdom judicial systems have a common foundation. In both the accused is presumed innocent until the presumption is overcome beyond a reasonable doubt.

Detroit Finance Firm Buys Mason Bond Issue

Mason councilmen didn't have to deliberate very long before accepting a bid on the $185,000 revenue bond issue Tuesday night.

Only 2 finance houses submitted bids and one was over a cent lower than the other.

Watling, Lerchen & Co., Detroit, earned the right to lend Mason the cash needed for water and sewer expansion by submitting the low bid of 3.70181% on the revenue bonds.

Shannon & Co. of Detroit bid an average interest rate of 4.9051%.

Julius Hanslovsky, the city's financial consultant, urged councilmen to accept the Watling, Lerchen & Co. offer.

"The low bid is under the interest rates other government units have been paying for revenue bond issues in the last 30 days," Hanslovsky said.

The state municipal finance commission finally approved the Mason bond issue at its Tuesday meeting. Mason submitted the issue for commission approval 8 months ago.

Sealed bids for the purchase of the bonds will be opened Monday, June 16, at a regular council meeting.

The special assessment issue is the final step in financing construction of the new disposal plant, interceptor sewer, lateral sewers, well, storage tank, pump house and new water lines. Total cost of the project will run close to $600,000.

The city expects to pay for the improvements with the $390,000 general obligation bond issue, $185,000 revenue bond issue and the special assessment bond issue plus a federal aid grant of $89,700.

Mason residents will also start paying their water and sewer bills at a higher rate beginning July 1.

Jury Finds Student Guilty

testified, until after the late movie. The late movie was completed at 12:45. Shortly afterward Mrs. Brown said, she drove to the laundromat to complete her washing and drying.

Because of crowded conditions at the laundromat during the day, she and others often use the facilities at night, Mrs. Brown said.

It was about 1:30 (Friday morning), Mrs. Brown testified when she resumed her washing. She said the man, later identified by her as Logan, was at the far end of the laundry. After drying the garments taken from the washer, she said, she took one load to her car. As she neared the entrance to the building returning from her car she slipped, but did not fall, she testified. At that time the man she identified as Logan first spoke to her, Mrs. Brown said.

A few minutes later when she started to the car with a second load, said Mrs. Brown from the stand, the man attempted to block her path to the door. She declared the man brandished a glistening object, threatening to shoot her if she did not submit to his proposal. Upon her refusal, she said, the man put what she believed to be a revolver in his pocket and grabbed at the laundry basket. Mrs. Brown said she pushed the man aside and went to her car.

At the car, she said, the man continued his threats. She dropped the laundry basket and leaped for the car, she declared. As she entered, she testified, she was struck heavy blows about the head. She described the weapon as an object about 18 inches long. When she turned to ward off blows she was hammered about the face and hands, she declared.

Unable to prevent the man from entering the car, Mrs. Brown said, she slid to the right hand portion of the seat and opened the door. She fell to the ground, she testified. She said she had sounded the horn on her car and had screamed for help. Her attacker fled while Mrs. Brown played possum, she explained. A few minutes later she groped for her glasses, which had been broken, and for her keys, which she never did find crawled upright and made her way on foot to her apartment. From there her husband notified police and had his wife taken to the Olin Memorial hospital, operated by MSU.

Schwartz attacked Mrs. Brown's testimony, insinuating that she might have kept a rendezvous with another man.

Dr. Robert Carroll Combs testified that he saw Mrs. Brown at 4:15 at the hospital. He described her wounds as a deep gash in the scalp 5 1/2 inches long, a fracture of the skull over the same length, chipped teeth, her lip cut entirely through, and cuts and bruises on arms, cheek and ankles.

Carl D. Renkowski, Michigan State university policeman, told of his finding a man skulking between parked cars 125 feet from the Logan apartment at 3:10. He and officer Darwin G. Hendrickson both said they took up the chase but were unable to catch the man they had seen. About 20 minutes later, the officers testified, they rapped at the Logan apartment. They were admitted, they said, and found Logan in bed. But the bottom of his shoes in another room were wet even though Logan insisted he had not left his apartment since 10 o'clock the night before, officers said.

After Logan was taken to the police station, Robert VanDyke of the university police found the machete and a toy pistol in Logan's car, he testified. The machete was in the trunk, the toy pistol in a seat, VanDyke said.

Theodore R. Elzerman of the state crime detection laboratory testified that he found a fresh stain of human blood and a fleck of light blue automobile paint when examining the machete.

Mrs. Lawrence Millener, 904 D. Walnut Lane, testified that she saw lights in the Logan kitchen and bathroom before the arrival of police officers.

Several other Michigan State university, East Lansing and state police officers and hospital attendants took the witness stand. They were questioned only briefly or not at all.

In his statement to the jury Schwartz insisted that the man the officers saw running could have been someone other than Logan.

Then came Shaffer. He said he had given the account, which the university police had rejected, to Stuart J. Dunning, Jr., originally retained by Logan (Dunning later withdrew) on April 28.

He awoke upon hearing shouts or screams and the barking of his dog, Shaffer testified. Upon direct examination he said he didn't know what time he awoke. Upon cross-examination he admitted his statement to university police set the time at 1:30.

Shaffer said he first looked out the rear door and saw nothing and then peered through Venetian blinds at the front window to see a woman and a man talking. They climbed into the car and drove away, Shaffer said. He declared he saw no attack, no struggle, in front of the laundromat. He was not sure of Mrs. Brown's identification but said he was quite sure the man was not Logan.

For 3 hours Monday afternoon and for a long spell Tuesday morning Warren grilled Shaffer, in between time bearing his end of heated arguments with Schwartz. The prosecutor sought to impeach the witness by pointing to discrepancies between the account Shaffer had given university police and the account given the defense. Later the prosecutor said he believed Shaffer was sincere in his account of what he saw but that what he saw had no connection with the attack upon Mrs. Brown; that the situation reported by Shaffer involved 2 other people, not Mrs. Brown or Logan.

Lt. Earle Roberts of the university police department was recalled to the stand Tuesday morning. He described Shaffer's visits to the police station and how the police viewed Shaffer's account as not being related to the attack on Mrs. Brown.

While Shaffer's report at first commanded full attention of the police, other evidence convinced officers that Shaffer had not witnessed the crime they were attempting to solve, Lt. Roberts declared. Arthur Brandstatter, director of university police, backed up the statements of his lieutenant.

In his summation to the jury Warren pointed to the fact that no defense had been offered to the charge that Logan was the man who attacked Mrs. Brown. He characterized Mrs. Brown's testimony as straightforward and her identification of Logan as positive.

"Never has there been a clearer case presented to a jury in Ingham county," the prosecutor declared.

Warren assailed the defense attorney for attacks upon the university police and for the reflections which Schwartz had cast upon Mrs. Brown's reputation.

"Logan has had his day in court," the prosecutor said. "No one has denied that the machete used in the attack did not belong to Logan. Only by wildest conjecture can there be any doubt as to Logan's guilt."

University police with "casting doubt upon the testimony of the only disinterested witness" (Shaffer), declaring the police did not keep an open mind.

4-H'ers Learn to Curry the Iron Steed

Instead of currying horses and mules, American farm youth today learn to curry tractors to do the big farm job. They find that both have much in common. The iron steed as well as the old grey mare needs food (fuel) for energy, clean air for full power, and daily care for peak efficiency.

The 4-H boy pictured above is typical of the 650,000 club members who have benefited from special training received in the annual 4-H Tractor program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service, and arranged by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work, Chicago.

Along with "learning by doing" in machinery operation and maintenance, the young farmers are quick to realize that "care prevents repair." They receive expert instruction and guidance in carrying out the objectives of the tractor program, and in doing so direct their best efforts toward winning one or more awards offered by the Standard Oil Foundation Inc.

Younger club members can try for county medals, while the more experienced compete for the state award, an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next fall. The top award for 12 national champions will be a $400 college scholarship, according to the Extension Service.

Seniors Set for Final Week In All Ingham High Schools

Graduation plans are keeping Ingham high school seniors and school staffs busy. Dansville and Holt will have commencement exercises Wednesday night, June 4. Mason will graduate its 98-member class Thursday night, June 5, in ceremonies at Athletic field.

At Dansville there will be no commencement speaker. The seniors will take over the program. At Holt Dr. John Hannah, president of Michigan State university, will deliver the commencement address.

Mason secured the services of E. L. V. Shelley, former psychologist at Boys Vocational school and a psychologist on the staff of state corrections commission in charge of juvenile prisoners. Ruth Judson will give the salutatory and the valedictory will be given by Susan Wilson.

Rev. Paul Arnold will give the invocation and benediction. Principal Forrest Rinehart and Superintendent James Vander Ven will take part in the program.

Lyle Thorburn, president of the Mason school board will present the diplomas. Music will be furnished by the high school band. The Mason baccalaureate service is scheduled for Sunday at the high school.

Rev. Raymond Norton, pastor of Mason Methodist church, will give the baccalaureate address. His topic is "Symmetry."

Rev. Clarence Rodd will give the invocation and benediction. The high school choir will furnish the music with Mrs. Dorn Diehl accompanying.

Seniors will have their annual breakfast Thursday morning of commencement day. Mothers of the class will serve the breakfast at the Cedar Street school.

Government Costs More

Ingham's 83 counties generally follow the trend of more money for the same or more government.

In the annual financial report of Michigan's counties for 1956, Auditor General Frank S. Szymanski, charted the trends and all of them are up.

The report groups Ingham with Macomb and Saginaw on a population basis. On a state equalized valuation base there is a wide spread between Saginaw at $343,329,600, Ingham at $443,906,600 and Macomb at $703,811,100. There is also a wide spread in the fees collected and the taxes levied.

Ingham is more liberal than the 2 other counties in health, welfare and medical assistance. For those items Ingham spent $2,229,881, against $1,718,216 in Macomb and $1,584,451 in Saginaw. On total county expenses Macomb led with $6,865,556, Ingham was second at $5,954,582 and Saginaw was low with $4,308,792.

Ingham is among the few counties in the state without bonded debt.

There is a big difference in the amount of state aid in various forms that Michigan's 83 counties receive. Ingham receives 33.58% of its revenue from the state. Wayne, the state's most populous county, gets only 23.06%. Jackson gets 39.98%, Eaton 45.99%, and Livingston 50.03%. Kalkaska receives 78.15% of its revenue from the state and other counties which get almost as much are Roscommon, Crawford, Benzie, Montmorency, Oscoda, Missaukee, Otsego and Luce.

In per capita costs of county government in 1956 Ingham was in the middle of the bracket at $25.60. Macomb spent $26.97 and Saginaw $23.21.

Mayor Picks Study Groups For 2 Community Projects

Upon the request of Councilman Paul Cheney, Mayor Paul Richards appointed 2 committees to study possibilities of a city-operated community building and a city airport.

Councilmen Gilson Pearsall and Nels Ferriby.

Councilman Harry Smith heads the airport study group. Other members are Councilmen Abe Cohn and Al Forché.

Mayor Richards and City Attorney Lloyd Morris are ex-officio members of both committees. In making the committee appointments Mayor Richards recommended that if the committees wished advisory members could be added to the committees representing various Mason groups.

Councilman Cheney brought up the community center and airport questions at last week's council meeting. He advocated serious study to provide Mason with these facilities.

"Both are needed for Mason's growth," Cheney told the council.

Judge Tells of Memorial Days

Memorial Day was first a southern observance after the Civil War. Judge Roy W. Adams told Mason Kiwanians Tuesday night. Judge Adams traced Memorial Day observances from the Civil War through the present day.

He said southern women first started decorating graves of those who had died in the war. Later the northern Grand Army of the Republic organization did the same for graves in the north. The day was first observed as a sacred ceremony and was void of the glitter of later observances. After World War I, the judge said Memorial Day observances took on a festival atmosphere with baseball games, parades and contests. Today, he said, many people still accent the holiday aspects of the day more than the patriotic.

Band Concert Attracts Full House

Mason's concert and cadet bands and the massed song flute classes of 150 drew a full house in the school auditorium last Thursday night.

The performance was another triumph for George Murthum, director, and for his system of developing musical talent.

John Mutchler, trumpeter, and Judy Leonard, pianist, made their final Mason high school solo appearances. Both did well, as usual. Both are seniors. Ode for Trumpet was the trumpet piece and Mountain Concerto by Schaum was the piano number.

Two other members which drew sustained applause from the audience were Le Carillon from "L'Arlesienne Suite No. 1" by Bizet and the finale, Seventy-Six Trombones, by Willson.

The cadet band's performance proved that the chairs to be valued by 12 seniors will be cap-band played Thunder and Blazes March, Moonglow Theme, Grandfather's Clock, Come Back to Sorrento, Blue Tail Fly and Old Comrades.

Song flute players filled the auditorium in front of the stage. They were together for the first time, rehearsals having been conducted in groups of 50. But no one would have guessed that separate rehearsals had been arranged—the playing was that rhythmic.

Would You Take The Chance?

Back in ancient Greece, people who were going on trips would often leave their valuable belongings in a temple—unguarded. They believed thieves would be afraid to steal anything out of a sacred place.

That system may have worked in those days, I don't know. But I'd hate to try it, even if I had a Greek temple handy. (For one thing, it would be an awful lot of trouble to move everything out of the house each time the family wanted to go away for the weekend!)

Nowadays, sound insurance protection for property—your house, your car, your jewelry, and so on—takes a lot of the risk out of living. But so far as I know the only way you can be sure to get the right insurance for your property at the right price is by asking an independent insurance agent.

As an independent agent, I have no reason to favor one insurance company over another. My aim is to get each of my clients exactly the insurance policy that gives the protection he needs—without costing him any more than necessary. Why not let me study your insurance needs? I won't charge you a cent—and I may be able to save you money.

Cabbage slaw is a favorite salad accompaniment for a meal. Next time try to vary cabbage salad by combining cabbage, carrot, green pepper with a sour cream dressing. Or, if you like fruit flavor, try combining banana and pineapple with shredded cabbage.

Color and Texture Are Decorating Principles

Mary Shipley of MSU's textiles, clothing and related arts department always likes to talk about her favorite subject... color. It is a subject very interesting to her, but, as she says, it is a difficult one to talk about without scolding.

For example, if she is speaking to a group without the help of visual aids and she says the word "rose," the number of colors which would be arrived at mentally would be as numerous as the number of individuals listening. She adds, each of us carries a different mental impression of the word "rose." That is the reason why she gathers together visual aids for her talks.

She has painted some new background boards against which she demonstrates color using groupings of fabrics designed by one of the nation's leading color designers and stylists. These form the basis for the groupings. She uses rugs to finish out the color schemes.

Miss Shipley also points out why many people make so many mistakes with their color schemes. She explains that invariably when a woman begins to plan to re-do her home, the first thing she thinks is "what color shall I make it?" This is the first mistake.

Color, says Miss Shipley, is only a part of the total picture and cannot be decided upon without thought given to the other 2 basic attributes of design... shape and texture. A color scheme's success or failure may rest upon what space it is to go into, what shapes it will be covering and how it is integrated with the textures to be used. Miss Shipley adds that we can't just say "what color will I use" and call it the Alpha and Omega of redoing a room or house.

Icing Makes Festive Cake

These are the months and days when many parties for children are planned. If it is not for a birthday, then it is a holiday such as Memorial Day or the Fourth of July. Often it is the cake that conveys the idea of a festive occasion... a party.

Here is a suggestion for a quick icing suggested by Mary Morr of Michigan State university's foods and nutrition department. She suggests a jelly frosting. Also, she says it is an icing which has been used for years, but one which many persons today may not know. Miss Morr suggests it for icing a cake for a children's party because it is a pink icing.

There are only three ingredients in jelly frosting: one-half cup of tart jelly (currant, crabapple, or grape) one egg white, and a few grains of salt. To put these ingredients together in the right way, first put the one-half cup of tart jelly, salt and one egg white into a small bowl (or top of double boiler) over hot water. Then, beat until the jelly is free from lumps. Remove from the hot water and continue beating until the mixture is stiff enough to stand in peaks.

Just before serving spread it on the cake and garnish with a sprinkling of shredded coconut. One final note from Miss Morr: this frosting does not become firm.

Mrs. Stanley Hazel attended a mother-daughter banquet last Thursday evening at Laingsburg Baptist church as guest of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bill Hazel.

RUE DE PARIS, at least the Mason version, will be alive Saturday evening, June 7, regardless of what the day-by-day political conditions of France may be. Sponsored by the Browne-Cavender American Legion post, the cabaret dance is a hospital benefit. The Clarence Schmidt orchestra will provide the music. And cozy tables and Paris scenes will provide the atmosphere. Helping Roy Dodge, Legion member and sign painter, [with the French lace on his chin] are the Legion dance committee, Frank Schmidt, Kenneth Sheffer and Clyde Smith. (Ingham County News photo).

Girl Graduates Will Love a Bottle of Perfume

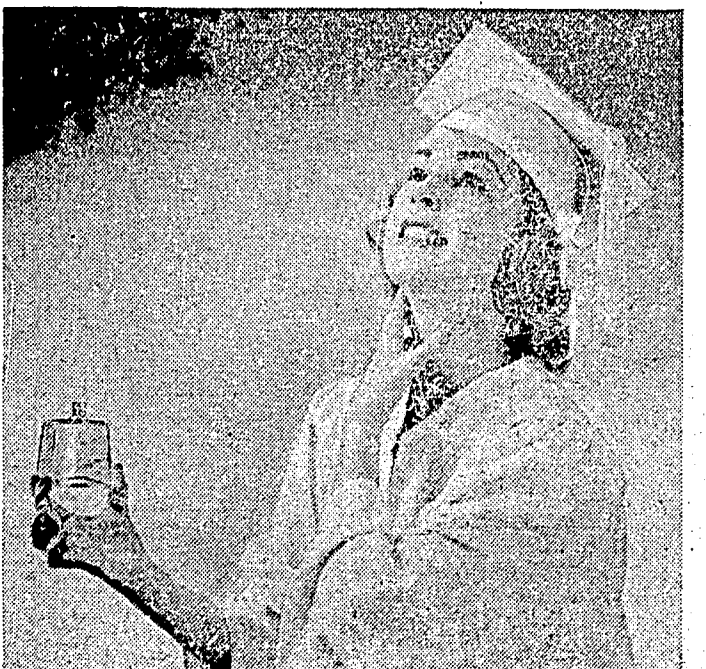

BY EDNA MILES

Picking a present for a girl graduate is mostly a matter of knowing her tastes. Is she bookish, athletic, gregarious or shy? Is she very feminine, still slightly tomboyish or starting to be a slinky siren?

Departing from this point, you've plenty of choice since most youngsters need, or think they need, practically everything and are almost always short on the cash with which to buy it.

Most of them esteem perfume as a symbol of luxury. So give the girl graduates on your list a scent blue as the horizon and just as enchanting. Give her the matching spray scent, too, so that she can use it lightly on warm summer days.

You might tell her that any perfume gives more for the money if it's sprayed rather than dabbed. And further, it creates a misty cloud of fragrance that lingers gracefully.

This is the kind of graduation gift any girl welcomes: perfume. Her gift scent carries a famous French name.

The fathers will take on Doug Dancer, Bob Forche, Randy Powers and Dick Raymond.

Mason Shakes Up Leaders With Win Over Shamrocks

Mason has had its ups and downs during the baseball season but in the final contest Monday night the Bulldogs took the high road. Mason threw the Capital Circuit title picture completely out of focus by snapping a 4-game losing streak with a 7-6 win over Resurrection.

The victory throws the race into a 3-way tie. Everett, St. Mary and Holt now share the title.

If Resurrection had won the Shamrocks would have been in front.

It took a mighty comeback effort for Mason to pull the rug from under Resurrection.

In the second inning the Rocks used Jim Pecora's triple, Jessie Lozano's single, 5 Mason errors, a stolen base and 3 walks to score 6 runs. That was it for the Lansing parochial team. Mike Leu and Jim Hallenbeck combined to hold the Rocks to 2 hits and no runs for the rest of the game.

Mason couldn't start anything off the pitches of Gary Fewless until the fifth inning when Mike Holbrook led off with a triple. Holbrook was thrown out at the plate but Gary Clark reached first on the play. Clark advanced to second and Larry Wheeler made it to first on an infield error and both scored when Bob Betcher singled.

Betcher came home on Keith Stone's grounder.

In the sixth inning Mason continued the rally. Fred Hein opened with a single and moved to second on an error. Holbrook reached first on a fielder's choice and both came home when Wheeler singled. Betcher followed with a single and both men crossed the plate when Stone tripled.

Mason collected 6 hits off Fewless with Betcher hitting 2 singles in 3 trips to the plate. Up until the fifth inning uprising Fewless retired Mason batters in order.

Resurrection hit safely 5 times off Leu and Hallenbeck. Mason committed 8 errors.

Mason Reserves End Season With 7 Straight Victories

Mason's reserve baseball team finished the season with a perfect record of 7 games in the win column in 7 trips on the field.

Monday night Mason closed the season by downing Resurrection 4-3. It took an extra inning to pull the game out of the fire.

Bill Bray went all the way for Mason and pitched a 3-hitter. After a rough first inning in which he gave up 3 runs on a triple, single, 2 errors, a walk and 2 stolen bases he settled down and handcuffed the Rocks the rest of the way.

Mason scored one run in the first inning when Marvin Pulver opened with a double and scored on an infield error.

In the sixth inning the Bulldogs added another run when Pete Lumianski opened with a single and advanced to second on an overthrow. He scored on Bill Gavin's slow infield roller.

In the seventh Mason tied the score with a walk, Bray's single and a long fly ball.

In the extra inning Lumianski threw the first Resurrection man out, Bray retired the second on strikes and the third man up fled to Lumianski.

Mason's half went a little better. Dave Doolittle opened with a single and Gavin poked out a triple to send Doolittle across the plate with the winning run.

Besides pitching a good game Pulver did all right at the plate with 2 singles in 3 trips. Pulver had 2 doubles in 4 trips to join Gavin in the power circle.

second when Jim Hallenbeck took over.

Jerry Willis collected one hit in one appearance and Mike Holbrook hit a single in 2 trips. Keith Stone doubled for Mason's only extra-base smash.

Reserves Defeat Highlanders 15-6

Mason's red hot reserve baseball team continued to do what the varsity can't seem to accomplish—win ball games.

Friday Mason toppled Howell 15-6 for its seventh straight victory of the season.

Dave Doolittle went all the way for Mason on the mound and gave up only 2 hits. Both of the satellites were singles.

Mason batters fared a little better with 13 hits. Coupled with the hits were 6 errors and 10 walks. Coach Don Little's crew was a little dizzy from circling the bases.

Terry Plakke was the hitting star of the day with 3 singles in 3 trips to the plate. Doolittle collected 2 for 2, including a double.

Mason scored in every inning except the second. In the first inning Mason picked up one run without a hit. In the third inning the Bulldogs added 2 more on 3 hits. After that it was easy.

Howell didn't send a runner across the plate until the sixth inning when walks and errors let the barrier down.

It wasn't until the last inning that Doolittle allowed any hits. The Mason pitcher was just 3 outs away from a no-hitter when the first 2 men up dribbled singles.

Mr. Fred Hosington was hostess for the party and Mrs. Holliday's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burt Barhite of Jackson, along with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Schrier and family of Lansing and Patricia Anthony of Holt were guests.

Chesaning townspeople are planning for showboat time. The dates for the 1958 attraction are July 14 to July 19.

The show committee will take a look at the amateur acts for the showboat at Peet Center June 11, 12 and 13. The competition is open to amateurs all over the state. Last year 102 acts from 36 towns tried out. Five amateur acts are used each night of showboat.

Couple United in Mason Church

St. James Catholic church was the setting of the 11 o'clock nuptial mass Saturday, May 24, for the wedding of Patricia Anne Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Eugene Holmes of Covert road, and Douglas Neil Lynch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Lynch of Bellevue road, Onondaga.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a princess-style Italian silk gown with a portrait neckline edged in Brussels lace embroidered with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. The fitted bodice ended in front and back points nestled in unpressed pleats with a back bustle and flat bow. The full hoop skirt ended in a sweep train.

Her finger-tip veil of silk illusion fell from a tiara of lace embroidered with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. Her long mitts were of Italian silk. She wore a single strand of pearls. Her flowers were pink and white sweet-heart roses in an oval arrangement entwined with a pink crystal rosary, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. John David Dobbie of Kalamazoo was her sister's matron of honor. She wore an aqua silk street-length sheath dress with a portrait neckline and a full nylon net overskirt gathered on a wide grosgrain ribbon and tied in front with a flat bow. She wore long mitts of matching silk. Her hat was a white velvet halo with a short veil. She carried an oval bouquet of pink carnations nestled in iridescent net and tied with pink satin lovers knots.

Her 3 bridesmaids, wearing identical aqua gowns, hats and mitts and carrying bouquets identical to those of the matron of honor were her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jerry Eugene Holmes of Jackson, Mrs. Terry McFarland of Jackson, a high school classmate, and Mrs. William S. James of Rives Junction, a sister of the bridegroom.

Barbara Jill Dobbie was her aunt's junior bridesmaid and she wore an aqua dress styled with a full gathered underskirt.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids each wore a single strand of pearls with matching earrings, gifts of the bride.

Flower girl, Jody Lynn Holmes, another niece of the bride, was dressed like the junior bridesmaid. She carried a fan-shaped basket of pink carnations.

Warren Conrad of Onondaga served as best man. Seating the guests were brothers-in-law of the bridegroom, Richard Froehrip of Leslie, William B. James of Rives Junction and Kendall Wheeler, Jr., of Jackson.

Palms decorated the church. Altar bouquets were of white mums. White satin bows marked the pews for the bridal party and members of the families.

Chester Bovee sang "On This Day," "Just for Today" and "Oh Lord I Am Not Worthy." Mrs. Clayton Jewell accompanied the soloist and played traditional wedding music.

The buffet table in the bride's home after the ceremony was centered with an arrangement of spring flowers where members of both families and out-of-town friends gathered for lunch after the wedding.

Two hundred and fifty attended the reception from 3 p. m. until 5 at the Roseland Inn, Jackson. A 4-tiered wedding cake with each tier pillared and ruffled in lace, and encircled with a garland of roses, centered the table. A taffeta table with an over valance of nylon tulle covered the table. Tall white candles in crystal holders flanked the cake.

For going away, the bride changed to a navy blue shantung dress with which she wore white accessories and the pull-out corsage from her wedding bouquet. The newlyweds will be at home at 210 South Main street, Leslie, after June 10.

The bride has been employed at the Oldsmobile office since her graduation from Leslie high school in 1956. The bridegroom, also a graduate of Leslie high school, class of 1956, graduated from Greene's barber college in Detroit.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Detroit, Newcastle, Pennsylvania, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids, Lansing, Rives Junction, Onondaga and Mason.

Prerequisite parties for the bride were given by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jerry Holmes of Jackson, and Mrs. Lillian James.

Mason Pianists Present Classical Music History

In a piano recital at Mason Baptist church Sunday afternoon, Nancy Bray and Judith Leonard presented a history of classical music. They started with Greig and ranged down the years with Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Brahms, Debussy, Gershwin, Zerkwer and Schaum.

The Mason young women, both high school seniors, are piano pupils of Mrs. Emma Grant Zimmer of the Wilde Conservatory of music.

In presenting them with their certificates Sunday Mrs. Zimmer told of her great pleasure in working with them and of their success in attaining such perfection in auditions played Saturday. Both girls received superior ratings for fourth year high school piano pupils in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians auditions. Rose Raymond of New York judged the auditions on a national standard.

Mrs. Zimmer on the organ accompanied Nancy Bray in Grieg's Concerto in A Minor, first movement.

Mrs. Peck Recommends Kittens for Amusement

Here's hoping that you have a batch of kittens to watch, either your own or someone's close by. The way that they tumble about and frolic is fascinating. You would have to laugh, in spite of yourself.

Did I hear someone say that they didn't have time to watch kittens? (I have in my time.) Then take time. You will find that the world will keep right on turning with, or without you.

The children spend a lot of time at the barn lately. They have their chores but surely it doesn't take that long to feed calves. I know that they are playing with the kittens. First it took them 2 days to hunt for them. Pete knew but he liked to see them hunt.

Finally they found them under 2 long hales in sort of a tunnel. Since then the cluff that gets carried in on clothes, hair and shoes would make a small haystack each evening.

Naming kittens is always a big project, for everything around here must have a name. Sammy is very logically-minded. His naming means something. . . to him. The girls are careful though to see which direction he is looking. . . or what objects are in line with him. . . before they ask him to name anything any more.

Once they asked him to name a little yellow kitten. He was watching Pete clean the barn at the time. Sammy said, "Nore Spreader!" They were horrified but the more they insisted that it couldn't be that the more he insisted that it could. Pete agreed that it was a pretty good name at that. (He prefers tiger cats and was pretty disgusted when Sally came dragging a yellow kitten home from Louie Cook's several years ago.)

Well, Nore Spreader it was and is and I bet always will be. It's even become a family something or other for when these kittens arrived it was announced that there were no little nore spreaders among them. . . meaning yellow ones.

Sammy named the mother cat Grace 2 years ago because he said, "She is Gray-acc because she's gray, mamma." He named one of the present kittens Gravy for the same reason. One is Gray-er and one Mittens. The last one is Marietta because they think that is such a pretty name.

This naming, everything presents a problem. It is very hard to eat anything with a name. Sammy was quite small when he posed with tiny fork in the air and asked, "Is this Marcella? Do I have to eat Marcella? Can't eat Marcella. Don't like to eat Marcella. I want an egg."

We are heading for that again. Bambi is a shining Black Angus that Pete is readying for the freezer this fall. He doesn't have any noticeable qualms about eating pets. He even said that he could eat every bantle with a good heart. The children thought that would make him some kind of a cannibal then.

I don't. Who do you think comes into the house to tell that there is a little hen, sitting on eggs? Who moves the nest so he won't run over it with the tractor? Who? Who? It's a wise old bird who knows that children do not remain children forever. Though he says that it does seem as though he's spent half his life getting banties out of his hair.

The girls have a good joke on their dad. They had a hard time picking out the roosters to keep ever and finally settled on 2. Pete insisted all winter that they had saved 3. He says repeatedly that he's heard that top-knotted one crow all the time.

Well, he. . . or. . . she. . . or it is sitting on 13 eggs. Pete hasn't given up yet. He says that banties, being what they are (whatever that is), are unpredictable and there is just no accounting for them and their actions.

I say that there is no accounting for fathers. I can bet a million dollars with no fear of having to pay off that Pete will be coming in any day now with a capful of bantle chicks!

Miss Barbara Stroud will spend the Memorial Day week end home from Western Michigan university with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Stroud. Dick Bradley of Western Michigan will be a house guest at the Strouds over the week end.

Dinner at Mason Manor Honors Nellie Glenn, 93

Mrs. Nellie Glenn, 517 Orrin street, Stockbridge, celebrated her 93rd birthday anniversary at a dinner at Mason Manor Wednesday.

Born in Dexter township, the daughter of Zacharias and Marcella Fay Taylor, Mrs. Glenn has lived within the area all her life. She cannot remember her mother who was tragically killed when she was a baby. It was during a threshing time, she thinks. The spans of horses acting in treadmills supplied the power. Her mother had gone to the scene of the work to call the men to dinner. It was hard to make the men hear and she had to get too near the actual operation. Some part of the mechanism caught her hooped skirt and drew her into the pathway of the horses, Mrs. Glenn said.

Mrs. Glenn remembers her wedding day and that she wore a myrtle green silk for the occasion. It was in early April, 1886. Minnie Glenn, later Minnie Dutton, sister of the bridegroom, Emory Glenn, was her bridesmaid. Her husband died in 1934. Six children were born to them, one of whom did not live.

Her oldest son, Sgt. Jay Taylor Glenn, was killed at Chateau-Thierry, in France. He belonged to a Jackson company in the war and was killed the same day as Captain Richard F. Smith of Jackson.

Lyle, a younger son living in Wayne, died in 1955 and his widow still lives there. Blanchie, Mrs. Clifford Lantis, resides in Stockbridge. Ralph is on the farm about 5 miles toward Plainfield and Casper is retired in Stockbridge. Mrs. Glenn has 9 grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren and one great-great-granddaughter, Melissa Jane Barton of Tecumseh.

A staunch Presbyterian, she attends church quite regularly. She always goes to the Boy Scout, chicken barbecue at the fire barn. She is a life member of the Stockbridge OES, and is also a member of the Gold Star Mothers.

"I don't read very well now but I can see the sunshine and that's wonderful," Mrs. Glenn said. "I miss the political news. I've always been interested in politics. My views aren't exactly those of all my neighbors but I always admired Franklin Roosevelt and his wife and I like our young governor."

MRS. NORTON INSTALLED
Mrs. Raymond Norton spent Wednesday and Thursday of last week at Muskegon attending the annual meeting of the Conference, Woman's Society of Christian Service. Mrs. Norton was elected and installed for her second term, as secretary of children's works in the Conference.

Tri-Hi-Y Club Has Election

Members of the Tri-Hi-Y club had a picnic at William H. Rayner park last Wednesday evening. The group elected officers for the coming year at a meeting last Tuesday.

They were announced as: President, Sally Robinson; vice-president, Margaret Brown; secretary, Tobey Pearsall; treasurer, Nancy Loudenslager; chaplain, Mary Ann Frederick; and historian, Helen Scofield.

Retiring officers are: Barbara Norton, president; Polly Diamond, vice-president; Sally Robinson, secretary; Judy Leonard, treasurer; and Marilyn Burgess, historian.

Raymond Noble spent Sunday with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Vander-Veen, Jr., and family. Mr. Noble is on leave from the army. He has been stationed in England and is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Noble, of Lansing.

Mrs. William Conklin and son, Harold, left Sunday from Willow Run airport to join her husband at Hamilton air force base, California. Mrs. Conklin is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rathburn.

"KNOWN BUT TO GOD"

Thousands flock every year from all corners of our nation to stand in hushed reverence before the tomb of the soldier "known but to God."

To all others, he is labeled "Unknown." And in this fact alone, there is tremendous significance. No man knows who this boy really was—but God knows!

God knows you, too, as he knows every man, every woman, every child in the world. That means that no matter who you are, no matter what you do, you can never be really "unknown."

You might ask yourself, "Do I know Him?" If the answer is negative, remember that your first step in finding Him is the step that takes you through the door of His house on earth.

Start going to church!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship, strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Legislature Must Return To Make Final Decisions

By ELMER E. WHITE
Michigan Press Association

Michigan's 1958 legislature will return June 12-13 still in confusion over the kind of record it will write in an election year.

Still hanging fire are the state police budget and a change in unemployment compensation benefits.

Strangely, the fights on both points are among Republicans with the Democrats waiting on the sidelines for campaign issues.

Major issues of the budget are all settled: the state will cut services and lay off employees in a time of desperate need for economy.

There remains the most delicate area of all, the state police. The senate says the state must slash the budget equally among agencies or face financial disaster.

House members, headed by Rep. Harry J. Phillips (R-Port Huron) are insisting on the restoration of the slashed funds as administrative sources say it will mean 100 less troopers.

After weeks of dispute, the house and senate are $116,000 apart on the state police budget. Phillips said the house would stick with the higher figure, the senate insists on the cut.

The senate position represents a compromise while the house figure is its original demand. Even if the house wins, the state police will get less than last year.

The issue must be settled in the June 12-13 session. The fiscal year ends June 30 and the state police will have no funds with which to operate if no action is taken.

Unemployment compensation is the second issue of the session June 12-13.

Republicans have been holding off on anything definite, waiting for congress to act. They hope to make the best use of monies which may be available in federal plans not yet determined.

There is controversy about the federal plan: whether to send the lump-sum money to the states for distribution or whether to use it as a supplement bearing the federal tag.

Republicans in Michigan have sponsored a maximum 9-week extension of benefits at 75% of the rate of present benefits.

Now a behind-the-scenes move is expected to produce a new Republican bill at the 2-day session in June. It will propose extending 100 per cent benefits for 13 weeks.

"We're still hopeful that congress will act before the legislature re-convenes," said Senator Frank D. Beadle (R-St. Clair).

If congress delays action, the legislature will be forced into action without knowing what adjustments will be necessary if a flood of federal money becomes available.

Highway maps will not be printed by the state after June 30.

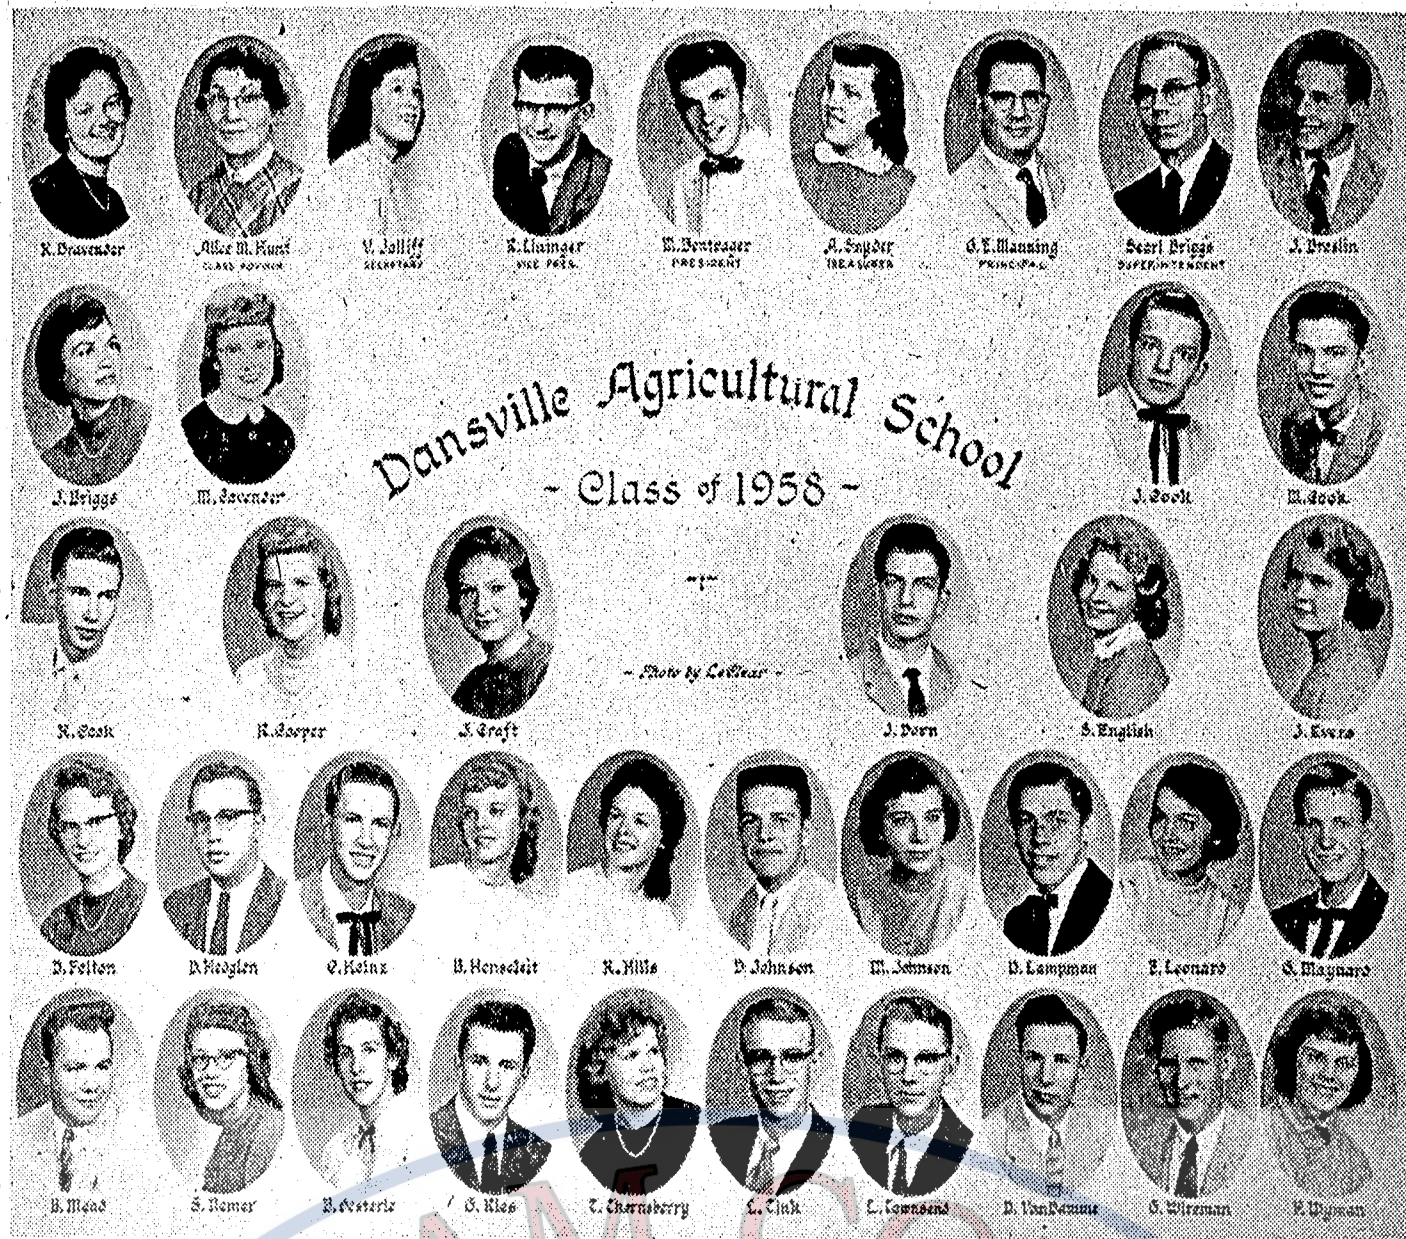

The development occurred after Republicans rammed through amendments barring the expenditure of highway money for a new radio system some claimed would cost several million dollars and a $135,000 state airplane for the department.

Senator George C. Stech (D-Mt. Clemens) then proposed that highway maps be included in the bill. Everybody agreed.

The house kept the amendment and the final issue of official state maps will be made June 30.

There has been an indication gasoline companies are willing to bid for the official map.

If it goes through, the motorist will still get the more accurate state map — but from gasoline stations.

THIRTY-TWO DANSVILLE SENIORS will close out their high school careers Wednesday night, June 4.

Commencement exercises are scheduled for 8 p. m. at the high school gymnasium.

Dick Lammman is valedictorian. Diane Felton is salutatorian. Both will speak at commencement.

The class history will be given by Dick Hedglen and Gary Maynard. Jill Briggs and Judy Craft will give the class prophecy. Sally Nemer and Ruth Ann Cooper will read the giftatory. Rosemary Bravender and Marvin Bontrager will present the last will and testament of the senior class.

David Diehl, president of the school board, will present the diplomas.

Baccalaureate services are planned for Sunday, June 1, at the school. Rev. Frank Cowick, pastor of the Millville and Northwest Stockbridge churches, will give the baccalaureate address. Rev. Floyd Bontrager will give the invocation. The school choir will provide the music.

Senior class officers are Marvin Bontrager, president; Roger Linger, vice-president; Vivian Joliff, secretary; and Alice Snyder, treasurer.

Mrs. Alice M. Hunt is senior class advisor.

Library Has 6 New Books on Canada

With the dedication of the Mackinac bridge next month, we can await an even greater step in the opening of a new frontier. That will be the completion of the St. Lawrence Waterway. Development of the Great Lakes states and Canada may be expected to boom, and so will demand for information about this area.

For background on Canada, the Ingham county library has acquired 6 books about the basic economies of that country.

We hear a great deal about the metals being produced in Canada. What they amount to in the total product of the country is shown in G. B. Langford's Out of the Earth, the Mineral Industry of Canada.

Other aspects are considered in D. A. MacGibbon's The Canadian Grain Trade, 1931-1951, and 2 books by Harold Innes, The Cod Fisheries and The Fur Trade in Canada. Two books of vital information to would-be residents are Perry's Taxation in Canada, and Firestone's Residential Real Estate in Canada.

Russia's success in outer space continues to focus attention on our schools. One of the most recent appraisals of our present-day educational system is Irving Adler's What We Want of Our Schools. The author enumerates the things Americans expect of their schools, tells where they have fallen short of that goal, and proposes solutions as to how these goals can be reached.

Another recently published book which offers practical help in evaluating today's schools is Paul Woodring's A Fourth of a Nation which also concisely outlines some of the current problems in American education.

Both criticism and defense of the teaching methods in our schools are presented in such books as How Good Is Your School, by Wilbur Yauch; Schools Without Scholars by John Kents; Let's Talk Sense About Our Schools by Albert Lynd; and Our Children Are Cheated, by Benjamin Fine.

And for those interested in a step-by-step plan of action, How to Get Better Schools, by David Dreiman, outlines a tested program that has resulted in better schools in major cities.

More wagons are being hitched to stars than ever before, judging from the interest in astronomy at the Ingham county library. Numerous books are available for the latest variety of patron, the wide-eyed star-gazer.

A recently published book, Clyde Clason's Exploring the Distant Stars, discusses the sun and the planets, the moon, the stars, comets, meteors, constellations and the instruments used by astronomers.

Other astronomy titles are: Astronomy Handbook by Leon Hausman; The Amateur Astronomer by Patrick Moore; Pictorial Astronomy by Dinsmore Atler; and The Heavens Are Telling by Urana Clarke.

Books on stars and constellations are plentiful. Some of them are: The Stars Are Yours by James Pickering; The Stars by Herbert Zim; and The Stars by Clock and Pist by Henry Neely. The history of astronomy from the days of Babylon to the present is covered in Rudolf Thiel's And There Was Light.

For persons interested in building a telescope and other instruments, the library has How to Make and Use a Telescope by Hugh Wilkins.

First Aid at Court

When Samuel Schwartz, Detroit defense attorney for Claude Logan, gashed his finger while handling evidence in court Monday afternoon, blood spurted. There wasn't a doctor in the house. But Mrs. Aethen Witt, on the jury panel, reached into her purse and pulled out a band-aid. The bandage was passed to the lawyer and he applied it to stop the flow of blood.

JURORS ARE EXCUSED. Members of the jury panel not chosen for the trial of Claude Logan were excused Monday morning, not to return to court until next Monday morning.

The group which arrived Monday includes: Brice Howard, producer; Robert W. Davis, an NBC lighting director; and William E. Kelly, technical director.

Their visit was made possible by a grant being administered by the Educational Television and Radio Center, Ann Arbor.

Purpose of the visit is to give personnel of the university's educational TV station a chance to learn the latest technical and production improvements being used on NBC network programs.

The new techniques will be reflected in the programming of WKAR-TV, station officials pointed out.

TELEPHONE lines

ANOTHER SATELLITE rocketed into orbit! Exciting news to read about, isn't it? And did you know that the Bell Telephone System plays a big part in these historical events? The transmitters inside the miniature "moons" use transistors, an invention of the Bell Telephone Laboratories. And a satellite radio that is supposed to transmit indefinitely — years and years — gets its power from solar batteries, which Bell Telephone scientists invented to turn the sun's energy to electricity. These Bell System skills that contribute so much to the Space Age are the same ones that help make your telephone service the best in the world.

PLANNING A TRIP FOR MEMORIAL DAY WEEK END? If so, you'll want to make the most of every free minute and leave all your worries behind. So plan the details in advance, by telephone. Make Long Distance calls to fix up reservations and settle the other details of travel. They're worth far more than their modest cost. And, if you happen to be delayed along the way, telephone ahead to say you'll be late in arriving.

MAYBE YOU'VE SEEN this unusual motor vehicle carrying the telephone company emblem. Unusual, because it has three wheels and is only a third the length of a family car. Because it is economical to run, can "turn on a dime," park almost anywhere, and get a repairman to his destination quickly, Michigan Bell is trying them out in larger cities... another example of how the company tries to keep down the cost of telephone service.

Will Share Station MSU Wins Channel Site

TV's battle for Onondaga entered another stage Thursday when the federal communications commission tentatively awarded Channel 10 to Michigan State University and Television Corporation of Michigan.

Final confirmation will be made by the FCC in 6 to 8 weeks.

Michigan State and Television Corporation of Michigan will share the TV channel with the transmitter located in Onondaga.

Three rival applicants battled the winners right down to the wire for the rights to Channel 10. Other applicants were Triad Television Corporation, Booth Radio, Television Stations, Inc., and Jackson Broadcasting and Television Corp.

In Washington hearings the 3 unsuccessful applicants questioned the sharing of a television channel. It is the first time a TV channel will be used by an educational institution and a commercial telecaster.

Under the proposed plan MSU will have 38 hours a week for non-commercial telecasting. The Television Corporation of Michigan will use the channel for 66 hours a week for commercial programs. Each operation will have separate studios and offices.

MSU is in the television business now with UHF station

WKAR-TV. In awarding channel 10 to the university and its partner the FCC ordered MSU to drop its UHF Channel 60 operations.

According to university authorities, the UHF station was going to be dropped even if MSU was unsuccessful in obtaining Channel 10.

The Onondaga TV site is quite a prize. TV transmitters must be located at least 200 miles from another transmitter of the same channel.

Because there are stations using Channel 10 in Milwaukee, London, Ontario, and Columbus, Ohio, the only spot for another station near Jackson is at Onondaga or Parma.

If the FCC gives final approval, the transmitter will be built at Onondaga. Studios will be built at East Lansing and at Jackson.

Under the time sharing agreement, MSU would operate an educational station from 9:30 a. m. to 2 p. m. and from 6 to 7:30 in the evening Monday through Friday. On Saturdays the university would telecast from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. and on Sundays from noon to 4 p. m.

John C. Pomeroy, East Lansing, is president of Television Corporation of Michigan. He is also president and general manager of radio station WJLS.

Two Different Schools

Comparisons are always odious. Nowhere are they more odious than in education. Comparisons between the Russian system and the American system are fruitless. Russians take their youngest and brightest boys and girls and shape them to serve the state. Most of the subjects that will not serve the state are eliminated. In the American system education is designed to serve society by permitting everyone to find a place for himself and providing specialization only for those few who elect it.

Comparisons between the American system now and that of 40 and 50, even 30, years ago are also fruitless. That's because they are 2 different things.

In the files of the Ingham County News of 1908 is the report of the results of state 8th grade examinations at Mason. One hundred fifty eighth-graders from rural districts came to Mason to write their examinations. Fifty-five passed. The report set forth that the number who passed was above normal.

That report meant that only one-third of the eighth-graders would be permitted to enter high school the next fall. It meant that for two-thirds their formal schooling was over and they had better start farming or seek employment in industry.

Now 100% of those who go to school 8 or 9 years, whether or not they do passing work, are admitted to high school. There they find that many subjects once required have become elective. There they find that standards are low enough so that just about everybody passes. Statistics might actually show that only about one-third make the most of their educational opportunities. They might even show that the two-thirds who were denied high school entrance under the rigid state laws of up to 30 years ago now deny themselves high school education by not studying.

Comparisons are odious. Nowhere are they more odious than in comparing high school operations of a generation ago with the systems of today. One system was designed to limit high school education to those prepared for it. The other is designed to keep boys and girls in school and more or less amused for 4 years. We are talking about 2 different schools.

Unemployment Statistics

Here in the automobile manufacturing area the economy is bent worse than in other areas. Yet we should not permit the unemployment picture to get out of focus. Here's the way the Wall Street Journal views the situation:

"Every once in a while the politically-oriented recession walling gets so loud the economic picture is thrown slightly out of focus. Let's look at one aspect of it, unemployment, which is the subject many politicians and unionists belabor daily.

"As of mid-April there were 51,200,000 people unemployed out of a possible total work force of 68,027,000. That figures out to slightly more than 7%.

"Now to the man who's unemployed it doesn't matter what the figures are—he's having a tough time. But an impassionate analysis of those figures can be made only when they are considered in the light of the nation's employment record.

"From 1890 to 1920 the average number of unemployed was 10%, although it exceeded 15% during the worst years. Unemployment reached its peak in this country in March, 1933, when it stood at 30%. And throughout the 30s (even though the New Dealers were spending promiscuously) those out of work averaged 20% of the labor force.

"Unemployment dipped as low as 3% and 4% only during the biggest boom years of the late 40s and early 50s, when America's industrial machinery was expanding prodigiously.

"Therefore, when we attempt to appraise the present state of the economy in terms of unemployment we should remember that 7% out of work, while personally distressing, is mathematically excessive only when compared with the best years any economy ever had."

More Than a Holiday

Like so many other holidays, Memorial Day seems to have lost its meaning to many Americans. The holiday has evolved into merely a long week end with the opportunity to squeeze in a 4-day vacation.

Honoring of America's war dead—the only reason for the existence of the holiday at all—is often clouded by commercialism and by the callous thoughts of many of us who seize upon the day solely as a holiday. No matter how much fun is planned, time should be reserved to pay tribute to those who have died in the defense of their country.

Memorial Day should mean more to Americans this year than ever before. For probably at no time in history have America's war dead come closer to having died in vain. Principles which were worth fighting for even unto death a generation ago or even a year ago, can and are sometimes shattered around diplomatic council tables. Hot tempers around the world are a physical threat to the one last rampart of freedom.

Memorial Day can be a reaffirmation of faith in America. It is the ideal time to take son or daughter in hand and re-tell the patriotism of those who have died so that we may live. It is a time to rekindle the sparks of freedom. It is a time to thank God that we live in this oasis of the dignity of man.

In Mason as in communities across the country, Americans will be paying a Memorial Day tribute to America's war dead. It is the logical time to rededicate ourselves to patriotism. Let's fly the American flag Friday. Let's join the parade. Let's show ourselves and our neighbors that America's war dead have not died in vain.

Good Neighbors

Delhi township residents have an opportunity next Tuesday to be good neighbors. It won't be their only opportunity or their final opportunity. But it is one. It is the day of decision on going along with the sewer and water program for the sections which desire it.

Although only the Holt area must immediately provide a sewer and water system, the time is near when the entire township will have to have such facilities. Only the sections which get the facilities will pay for them. Owners of property in other areas are lending only their credit. They will have no assessments to pay.

This going from a city to a suburban development to escape city responsibilities and city costs is an anomaly. When just a few make the move, private wells and septic tanks are adequate. When the move reaches the propor-

Concerts and recitals are almost as good as church for meditating. Music lulls and soothes the savage beast, or is it breast, and the first thing you know you are thinking unusual, queer or whimsical things.

At the school band concert last Thursday night my thoughts naturally strayed to former concerts. Part of George Murthum's talent lies in his choice of music. It is the kind that's fun to play and easy to listen to. The Blue Tail Fly and Seventy-Six Trombones make for more pleasant meditating than the Poet and the Pheasant and such other pieces commonly on concert programs 20 years ago.

Yes, George does a great job. Any boy or girl with a speck of talent can develop it under him and have a good time doing it.

Another great teacher who has come to Mason is Mrs. Emma Grant Zimmer of the Wilde Conservatory. She presented 2 of her pupils Sunday afternoon in a piano recital. They are also George Murthum's stars—Judy Leonard and Nancy Bray.

To get back to the meditating: When the band played The Blue Tail Fly I suddenly began to wonder why it is that flies can walk upside down on the ceiling but can't fly upside down. At least I never saw a fly or any other insect flying upside down.

Planes, even the planes that spread the lethal sprays, can fly bottomsides up, in such manner being more efficient than insects. Will continued aerial spraying by upsid-down planes teach mosquitoes, flies and other insects to fly in that manner? Will the insects which build up an immunity to poison spray undergo mutations so they can fly higher and faster than even jet planes? Will the next stage in insect control have to be carried on by rocketry?

A Mason man said his new grandson is a whale. Asked to be more specific, the grandfather gave the boy's weight at 12 lb, 6 oz. Whale babies often weigh 4 tons. An 80-foot blue whale mother will throw back any baby that doesn't weigh 3 tons. So I mustn't call Elaine's next baby a whale, I meditated.

While listening to Come Back to Sorrento I meditated on the speed of animals—fastest humans at 20 mph, rabbits at 20 and 25, elephants at 25, fastest horses at 30 mph, lions and gazelles at 50 and cheetahs at 70.

Concerto (and why do they call it consihreto) in A Minor brought on meditation about electric typewriters and the slim waistslines of Florence, June, Pat and Norma here at the office. The order for the electric typewriters has been cancelled. In the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association 3 scientists report that a 5 ft., 3 in. 120 lb secretary switching to an electric typewriter could build up an excess of calories to equal a pound of weight every 10 weeks. And always the weight is in the middle.

That's why Nancy and Judy depress their own piano keys and don't use electric keyboards.

While listening to Beethoven's Sonata Opus 14, No. 2, played by Judy, I wondered if he or she realized that the human ear can hear vibration frequencies ranging from 30 up to 15,000 per second. Who was it figured out the difference between music and noise? Music results from vibrations which occur at a constant rate for a significant period of time. Noise is due to random vibrations in which the ear can find no order or significance.

Rated in decibels, the faintest audible sound, a pin dropping, registers just over 0. Rustling leaves registers 8, a whisper between 10 and 20, average home without conversation and with the radio and TV off, 20 to 30, and an automobile, 40 to 50 unless it's old enough to be paid for. Friendly conversation ranges between 50 and 60, highway traffic from 70 to 80, a riveting gun from 90 to 100 and thunder, 110.

"Why did you devote so much space to Mason's spelling championships last week instead of concentrating on mistakes in your own paper," asked a man, when he should have been meditating. I don't know that there were more than the usual number of errors last week, although some of them were glaring. When the famous First Folio volume of Shakespeare's plays came out in 1623, the writer had been dead 7 years. It was a good thing because he would have probably dropped dead with a stroke had he read the book. It contained 20,000 typographical errors.

After my meditations on the spelling championships I offer the suggestion that after once around with words practiced in class, the contest swing over to challenge words. Many of the contestants last week went down by boredom and exhaustion after standing for an hour to spell easy words.

A word generally misspelled in copy reaching the Ingham County News is marshal, for an officer. Most people tack on another l.

Bach's Prelude and Fugue in E Flat brought on meditation about commencement speakers and the hope that some speaker nearby would urge boys and girls to pick out real tough jobs for themselves. Then they won't have so much competition.

According to a survey by Dr. Walter Freeman of Michigan State, it requires 5 years for new residents to feel themselves part of their community. Church Youths Plan Activities Future plans were made at the regular meeting of Dansville Methodist Youth Fellowship conducted Sunday evening at Dansville Methodist church. LeRoy Townsend and Jeanne Daman were in charge of the recreation.

The business meeting was presided over by Marlene Swan. Summer plans were discussed and arrangements were made for a tour of lakes on June 22, swimming parties on June 29 and August 24, and an ice cream social for some time in July.

For the second time in a decade, a Michigan State university administrator has headed a national committee to study and report on the scope and responsibility of the cooperative extension service.

Dr. Paul A. Miller, director of the Michigan extension service, served as chairman of the committee which this week reported on its study. In 1948, Michigan State university president, John A. Hannah, was chairman of a committee of land-grant officials and representatives named by the U. S. department of agriculture which studies the policies and programs of the extension service.

The extension service is the informal educational arm of both the department of agriculture and the respective state land-grant colleges and universities. It takes to farm people the results of research and practical experience to help people to help themselves. In viewing the current study, Dr. Miller emphasized that the major function of the extension service is its responsibility to farm families.

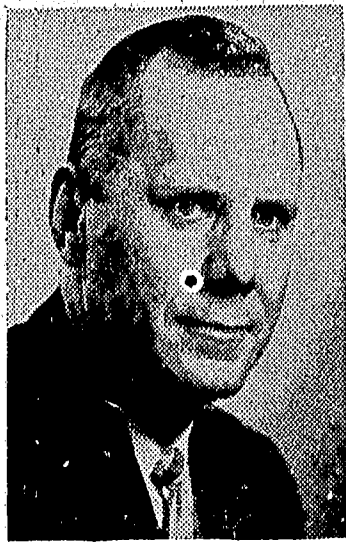

"This was stated in the Smith-Lever Act of 1914, but one consistent characteristic of extension work has been the necessity to shift programs and methods to meet changing conditions and needs," the Michigan director continued.

"Farms are larger and fewer, off-farm influences have become more numerous and more forceful, population has grown and its makeup has changed, and interest areas of farm people have broadened," Dr. Miller said. "Extension has and must have a dynamic program—one constantly being modernized to keep pace with these changing conditions facing the people it serves."

Although extension's first responsibility is to farm families, Dr. Miller reiterated, others cannot be ignored.

"Many people are interested in the results of research from our public research laboratories," Dr. Miller said. "Knowledge and applications of the findings by all can and should be of direct benefit."

Areas which are proving to be of wide interest include home gardening, lawns, flow-declared. "His resources are not unlimited so there is a need for focusing on certain areas."

"The hard core of an adequate extension program includes educational work in efficiency of production, marketing, distribution and utilization of farm products; conservation, use and development of natural resources; management of the farm and the home; home living; youth work; and public affairs," Dr. Miller outlined.

"These areas must be given priority on extension's resources, but not to the total exclusion of educational assistance to all," Dr. Miller concluded. "The exact allocation of these resources must be determined within each state and within each county."

Oat Silage Is Poor Feed

Oat silage doesn't make a very good feed for growing dairy heifers according to feeding trial results at Michigan State university.

Charles Lessler, dairy scientist, reported this finding after comparing heifers fed alfalfa hay, corn silage and oat silage on a short 46-day trial.

Heifers on oat silage not only gained less weight during the 46 days, but they consumed less silage than did heifers on corn silage. Heifers getting corn silage gained an average of 1.13 lb per day while heifers on oat silage gained .53 lb a day.

Animals on hay consumed the most dry matter in their roughage per day. It totaled 12.1 lb for heifers on hay. Dry matter consumption dropped to 9.6 lb and 9.2 lb for heifers on corn and oat silage, respectively.

Soil Bank Plan Can Be Altered

It still may not be too late for conservation or sportsmen's clubs to induce farmers to install wildlife practices under provisions of the conservation reserve this year, the National Wildlife Federation has learned from the U. S. department of agriculture.

If a farmer has not already carried out a practice on land designated for the conservation reserve, he can go back to his county ASC committee and request it be changed to any approved practice. As long as he has not complied with contract provisions for one practice, he can switch to another if the change is approved by the local county committee. Soil bank payments, of course, can be paid only upon one practice.

This ruling, for example, might enable sportsmen's groups to induce farmers to install shrubs of particular wildlife value on patches of land previously designated to have been placed in grass cover.

The so-called "chicken hawk" is the farmer's friend, not his enemy, says an article in the June Reader's Digest. A University of Michigan professor estimates every hawk saves farmers $110 a year in rodent damage. Few, if any, hawks prey on barnyard flocks.

The Digest article, "The Truth About Hawks," by Peter Farb, reports that a nature enthusiast, Dr. Paul Fluck of Lambertville, N. J. demonstrated this by penning a wounded red-tailed hawk with some chickens.

Farmers shook their heads, but for 3 months the hawk lived almost affectionately with the chickens and not a chick was lost. Game, however, were the rats and mice which formerly fattened on the chickens' feed.

The department of agriculture analyzed the stomachs of 2,690 hawks and owls. It found that few hawks eat chickens or speedy game birds. Still, most people classify all 32 species merely as "big" chicken hawks or "little" chicken hawks and many farmers shoot them on sight. Many thousands are killed senselessly every year. Around the Hawk Mountain sanctuary in Kempton, Pennsylvania, there are more than 100 shooting stands and it is estimated that during migration 1500 hawks are slaughtered there every day.

Farb reports hawk protection is gaining. Eight states have model laws protecting them: California, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Maine, Michigan and Rhode Island. Pennsylvania recently tightened its hunting laws. The conservation departments of 24 states are distributing National Audubon society leaflets which identify the various types of hawk and describe their food habits.

Hawks, Farb writes, kill only when they are hungry, never for sport. Although they will chase or tease other birds for the fun of it, the victim finally escapes unhurt if the hawk is not hungry. They can be trained to the affectionate obedience of a dog and their near human qualities of love, anger and playfulness have made them the favorite of ornithologists.

The article is condensed from Audubon Magazine.

The mystery is gone from the News

By JIM BROWN

There won't be any mystery about Ingham county farms after this week. A series which has featured Ingham farms expires with this issue after a run of 2 years in the News. The series has made an interesting feature and has meant a conservative 1,000 extra phone calls received in the office. We may run the feature again some day, but we'll wait until folks have an opportunity to paint their barns and houses, build new additions or change the fence rows. If we re-ran the series right now, there wouldn't be much of a mystery about the farms.

Memorial Day thought: The sacrifice they collectively made was individually repaid to them; for they received again each one for himself a praise which grows not old, and the noblest of all sepulchres—I speak not of that in which their remains are laid, but of that in which their glory survives, and is proclaimed always and on every occasion both in word and deed. For the whole earth is the sepulchre of famous men; not only are they commemorated by columns and inscriptions in their own country, but in foreign lands there dwells also an unwritten memorial to them, graven not on stone, but in the hearts of men.—Thucydides, 421 B. C., at the funeral of Pericles.

City workmen painted a snake at the intersection of Barnes and South streets. To stay on the right side of the new centerline, auto speed can be no greater than 15 miles an hour. Few cars seem to go much slower than 50 on Barnes street, but the new centerline does tend to reduce the speed at the corner. What the intersection really needs is a cloverleaf.

Drive safely this week end—and every week end. Memorial Day has a habit of increasing sorrowful memories for survivors. Don't reduce yourself to a memory on Memorial Day.

Irrigation of Home Garden Calls for Thorough Soaking

When irrigating a home garden, it's best to do it well or not at all, advises Fred Widmoyer, extension horticulture specialist at Michigan State university.

A shallow watering will cause the roots of the plants to grow near the surface and be subject to drought damage. A long soaking that goes down into the ground several inches promotes deep growth of roots, making the plants more resistant to drought.

The sprinkler or hose should be allowed to operate in one place until the soil has been soaked to a depth of at least 6 inches.

Apply the water only as fast as it can be absorbed by the soil. Water soaks into sandy soils much faster than clayed soils, so it can be applied at a much faster rate for a shorter time.

On finer-textured soils, apply water slowly and for a longer period of time. It is also a good idea to cultivate or hoe the surface of finely-textured soils after they have dried sufficiently after irrigation. These soils often tend to bake or crack.

Water can be applied to a garden with an automatic sprinkler or by removing the hose nozzle and letting the water run onto a flat board or stone, thus preventing washing. Shallow furrows running along the plant rows can distribute the water where it is most needed and can be arranged to cover large areas at one setting.

Water loss by evaporation can be reduced and the soil kept cool by applying a mulch. About one and a half inches of straw or hay will do the job. This mulch may delay the maturing of some vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, cucumbers, watermelons and cantaloupes but the delay will probably not be more than a week.

New Regulations Govern Workers

A set of new federal regulations for the interstate transportation of migrant farm workers is now in effect, reported Dale Butz, extension farm economist at Michigan State university. Anyone driving or owning a motor vehicle used to transport migratory workers should get a copy of the regulations. They may do so by writing the Bureau of Employment Security, Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C.

Under new regulations, drivers must be at least 21 years old; have had a doctor's examination within the past 3 years, have had at least a year's experience as a driver in all seasons of the year, have a permit to operate the type of vehicle being driven and read and speak English so that he can understand traffic signs and spoken directions and inquiries.

The new regulations apply if workers are transported more than 75 miles and across a state line; if 3 or more workers not members of the family, are hauled and if workers are hauled in a vehicle other than a passenger automobile or station wagon; and the driver does not have a certificate as a "common carrier" of passengers.

Sheep Field Day Will Be June 19

The 10th annual Michigan sheep field day is scheduled for Thursday, June 19, at the county fairgrounds in Hillsdale, said Croyden Blank, extension sheep specialist at Michigan State university. Program will include discussions and demonstrations on type, cross-breeding and management practices, parasite control, equipment and wool and lamb markets for Michigan sheep raisers.

The noon meal will feature barbecued lamb sandwiches with the lamb being prepared on an outdoor barbecue. Sheep field day is sponsored by the Michigan Sheep Breeders' association, Hillsdale county sheep raisers, the Hillsdale county cooperative extension office and the animal husbandry department at Michigan State university.

Ag Scientists Test Plant Tranquilizer

By CARL COLLIN

A chemical tranquilizer for plants increases their yield by reducing effects of shock due to heat spells, sudden cold and prolonged rain. In field tests on limas, Northwest cherries and cotton, yields were boosted from 10 to 99%. The chemical also was used successfully on greenhouse tomatoes.

Some specialists wonder why the stuff wouldn't be effective in transplanting solutions. Along with the high analysis of photosynthesis and potash to cut down shock and boost root development, the tranquilizer might reduce the shock of transplanting seedlings and small plants.

With this additional help the transplants might snap back faster and less time would be lost due to the setback in the plant's growth.

Farmers in 9 corn belt states bought 41% more stocker and feeder calves in April than they did a year ago. During the first 4 months of this year the increase in this same area was 34% over the same period in 1957. With the great increase in future supplies of beef, there'll probably be a lot of farmers who will wish they hadn't forked over such high prices for replacement stock.

Last week Dr. Byron Shaw, head of USDA's research service, commented on some recent achievements in agricultural science and production. In 1936, when World War II broke out in Europe, American farmers produced a 2,500,000,000 corn crop on 88,000,000 acres. Last year they produced 37% more corn on 17% less land. Since 1939, the national wheat crop has risen from 740,000,000 bushels but harvested acres have gone down from 52,500,000 to 43,000,000 acres. Compared with 1939, farmers last year reduced cotton acreage 45%, and still produced 95% as much cotton.

The story is the same with live-stock. In 1936 dairymen had nearly 3,000,000 fewer cows than in 1940. But each cow produced two thirds of a ton more milk. For every 2 eggs a hen laid in 1940, her descendant is now lay-

Bulk Storage Eliminates Bags

Ingham county farmers are quick to adopt labor-saving devices.

One of the latest is the bulk feed storage which does away with handling of feed bags at the elevator and at the farm.

John Chilson, Leslie poultryman, and Lyle Oesterle, Anketon, have installed up-to-date feed handling equipment.

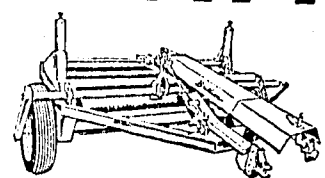

Under the old system the farmer bagged his grain at the farm, hauled it to the elevator, unloaded and then re-loaded the bagged ground feed for the return trip. Back at the farm the feed had to be handled at least once more and often more times than that.

The bulk storage bins for farmers make it possible for grain to be stored at the elevator or farm. All the farmer does is order the elevator to grind and mix so much of his feed and deliver it to the farm storage bin.

Chilson's bin holds 5.8 tons. Before the summer is over he expects to install a pipe to carry the grain directly to the feed troughs in the laying house from the bin.

Oesterle's installation is used for beef cattle.

ing 3. Nearly 100,000,000 cattle and horses grazed the same acreage that supported only 83,000,000 in 1940. A pig crop of 90,000,000 in 1956 compares with only 80,000,000 on the same farm plant in 1940.

Our farmers are producing 40% more today from about the same acreage they had in 1939.

Figures on manpower to do the job are significant. In World War I our farm commodities were produced by 13,500,000 workers. In World War II it took 10,500,000 workers. Today there are only 7,500,000 farm workers.

Seventy percent of the crop varieties grown here today were unknown 20 years ago.

A recent study published by Iowa State college says that as a major portion of the population achieves income levels permitting them to eat as they please, further additions to income result in little or no additional purchases of food.

It's been estimated that a doubling of income would result in only 15-25% increase in demand for food. Most of the increased outlay would be for additional services associated with food rather than raw materials sold by farmers.

Average lbs of synthetic detergents were used per person in 1957 and only 8 lb of soap. Soap consumption 10 years ago stood at 24 lb and synthetics at only 3. Output of detergents in 1957 totaled 3,500,000,000 lb, a 14% rise in one year. Soap production slipped to 1,400,000,000 lb, down 3% from lowest output on record. The trend toward the use of detergents has reduced an important source for animal fats, a point of special significance to livestock producers.

More attention is being directed toward development of new crops which would have a commercial value to U. S. farmers. Some of the promising crops at present include:

Bamboo. Fifty million acres might be profitably planted to bamboo for use by industry. This plant is high in cellulose needed to manufacture quality paper. It's about 4 times as productive as Southern pine, is valuable as a structural material for furniture and specialty products. Currently all bamboo used here is imported but it can grow well in the southeastern states, replacing cotton, dry land rice and peanuts.

Castor beans are now grown on 75 thousand acres. This could be expanded to at least 1,000,000 acres; 90% of our U. S. needs are imported. The oil has unique and valuable properties in paints, varnishes, fungicides, cosmetic and lubricants.

Safflower for oil and protein, sesame for food and industry, jojoba for oil and wax, candellilla for vegetable wax, canaigre as a source for tannin and kanafé for its fibre in the manufacture of burlap, twine, yarn and pulp and paper manufacture are some of the other crops that have potential for greater output in the U. S.

Miscellany. Farmers cash income was up 8% the first 4 months of 1958. Livestock receipts up 12%, crops up 2%. Average annual hog production in U. S. in the past year has been 89,000,000 head produced by 2,500,000 farms. Proponents of vertical integration say 60,000 farmers raising 100 sows, with each sow farrowing 2 8-pig litters yearly, would supply 96,000,000 hogs. The administration sent congress its recommendations to set up a price-propping plan for 5 minerals. Plan includes provision of payments similar to the Brannan plan for agriculture. Farmers are getting lax about vaccination of hogs against hog cholera, federal officials warn.

Crushing or Crimping Hay Cuts Field Drying Time

With haying time just around the corner for Ingham farmers, the progressive ones are turning to the practice of crushing or crimping fresh cut hay.

Conditioning hay cuts field drying time by 40% for hay that is to be baled.

Where conditioning is coupled with hay that is to be chopped and barn dried, about 60% is cut off the field curing time.

Bob White, agricultural engineer, proved these figures in MSU tests.

White explained that hay conditioning involves a machine which takes hay and passes it through a pair of rollers to either crush or crimp stems so moisture can get out faster. These flattened stems will dry almost as fast as the leaves.

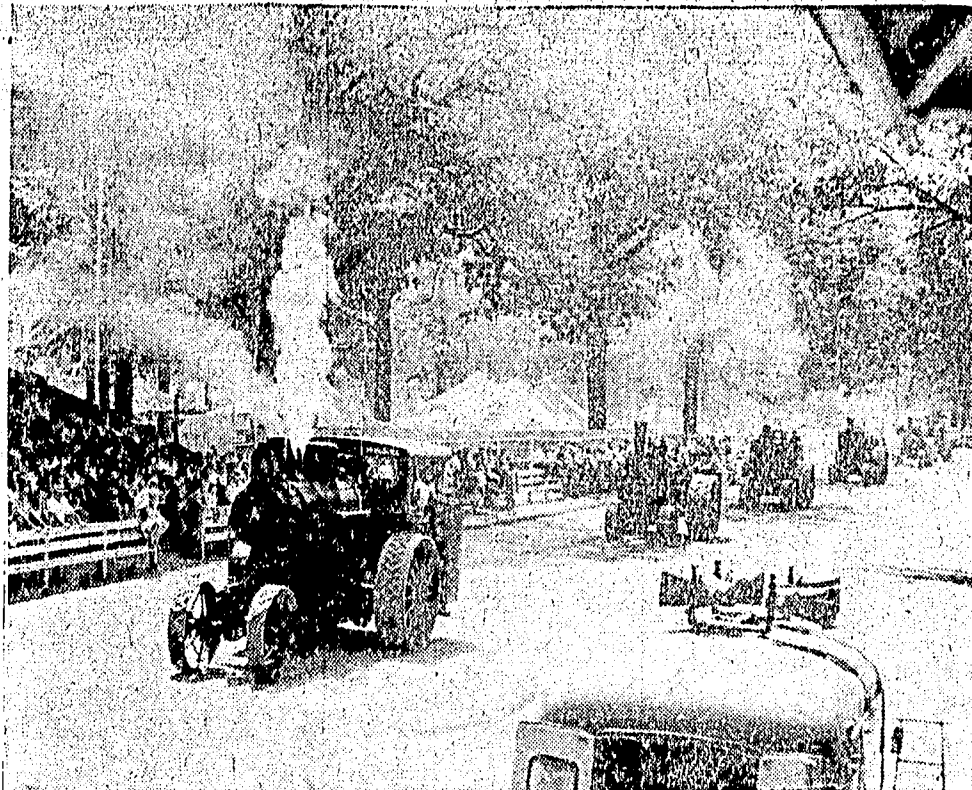

Under normal weather conditions, White points out, a farmer using a hay conditioner can mow hay one day and expect to bale it the following day.

Some hay conditioners may be used in conjunction with mowers which condition hay one round after it is mowed. Others are used as a separate unit requiring another trip over the field.

Whichever type of equipment is used, the important thing is to condition the hay soon after it is mowed. White stressed. Any time hay is left in the swath long enough to take an initial wilt and become raggy, stems lose crispness and the effectiveness of conditioning is greatly reduced. Once stems get soft, they won't crack and snap as they go through the rollers, he explained.

With a chopping program, White recommended a barn drier. Hay can be taken out of the field as a relatively high moisture content, and blown into the barn. The mechanical handling of hay STEAM ENGINES, outmoded by gasoline, diesel, rocket and jet engines, still have their fans. Those fans will gather at Allegan county fairgrounds east of Hastings June 6, 7 and 8 to view the exhibits of the steam engines out of the past and watch the mighty engines pass in review.

Included in the exhibit will be over 20 steam traction engines, 4 steamboats, steam fire engines, a calliope, oil pull tractors, steam popcorn machine and many others. Besides the exhibits there will be a barn dance Friday night, steam boat races on the Kalamazoo river, junior midget races, fireworks and a model airplane meet.

Ingham Farmer Approves Silo Storage of Soft Corn

Ingham farmers, plagued with a large amount of soft corn, are turning to different methods of storage for the high moisture grain.

At the Orta Sheathelm farm a silo is used for storage of 6,500 bushels of corn. The grain had a moisture content of 23% to 30% when it was placed in the silo.

The corn kept well and Sheathelm is now feeding it to his pig crop.

During the winter the Ingham township farmer filled his feeders every 2 days. As the weather turned warmer he fed more often until now he feeds twice a day.

The corn is fed separate from the concentrates with each put in different feeders.

Under the Sheathelm feeding system using soft corn his pigs are showing good gains. The first batch of pigs he marketed at 5 months weighing around 210 lb.

is done while leaves are still tough and resist shattering.

Barn drying under normal conditions cuts about 40% off the field curing time, the specialist said.

Chopping and barn drying need about the same curing time as hay conditioning and baling.

For large operations both methods pay off. Tests indicate that use of a hay conditioner plus chopping the hay at a high moisture level and using a barn drier is the most efficient method.

This operation is expensive but is justified on large farms where a lot of hay is put up. This method cuts 60% off the field drying time.

Under favorable conditions the method allows farmers to mow and condition hay in morning and chop and blow it into the barn in the afternoon.

Water Problems Stem from Use

Michigan—the "Water Wonderland"—isn't without water problems.

Prof. Karl Lagler of the University of Michigan department of fisheries said recently: "Just because every Michigan license plate advertises the state as 'Water Wonderland' doesn't mean it has no water problems."

Michigan's problems aren't caused by a shortage of water but rather with distribution of the abundant resource.

"About 16,500 cups of coffee could be brewed for every resident of the state with the amount of water Michigan uses daily. With the multiplied demands o-

TRAFFIC SAFETY REMINDER

Rural pedestrians account for only one fatal accident in nine, but nearly twice as many rural people are killed and injured when walking with the traffic than when walking against it. Three per cent of the rural population is over 65 years of age, yet they account for 11% of the pedestrian fatalities.

growing industry and population, the need for water is increasing at a fantastic rate." "If the streams of the state were laid end to end, a man could sail around the world on them," Prof. Dills said. "Michigan's shoreline, the longest of any state in the union, would stretch from New York to San Francisco." How can better water distribution practices be effected? Both Lagler and Dills suggest research, control, and cooperative effort among Michigan residents to bring to all greater benefits from the vast water wealth of the "Water Wonderland." Letters to the Editor

Petrillo Receives a Letter

Will you be kind enough, President James Petrillo, to read this letter and meditate about it? We are writing you in regard to the cancellation of Doctor Madry's band playing for the dedication of the Mackinac bridge.

Mr. Petrillo, you are a musician, we trust. Can you remember as a boy how many times your mother coaxed, urged, hired and demanded that you practice? Can you remember how she would stay by you so you would get your time right? Can you remember how many times she went without a new dress or something she needed, to either pay for your lessons or your instrument? Can you remember her face as she smiled and her eyes shone when you were able to play well each new piece? Can you remember how proud she was of you when you made your first public appearance—if it was only a high school or college band?

The Bible says, "Man is made in the image and likeness of God." Therefore, we doubt even a man with a hard exterior and as gruff as you lead people to believe you are today, that there isn't locked within your heart some of the sweetness and kindness you had as a boy when you knelt at your mother's knee. Then Mr. Petrillo, think of us other mothers who have worked, prayed and hoped for our talented youths.

Please don't mislead me into believing that you are so greedy for money that these youths are forbidden to play at the dedication. Oh! You can get their "dues" from each one when they begin to earn their own livelihood. But, do be kind enough to allow these youths the privilege to give their talents to others and an understanding of the one universal language of music, to whoever and wherever they come—black, brown or white people. It's the one thing they can all understand.

What a great man you could become. Not one of power, but one with helpful understanding of the American youth. Your name and influence would live hundreds of years after you are laid away.

There were 2 men, Caesar, and Jesus who lived at the same time. Caesar, who lived by his power. Oh, yes we study ancient history, but what else does his name matter? Jesus lived to help others, and His name is greater than ever today and is worshipped by millions. Which one will you be like?

Right to Work

Whatever happened to the original race of American people? Have they lost their original goal, the pursuit of life, liberty and happiness?

Today we are in such a pitiful condition that a few of the old-timers are making a feeble effort to pass "Right to work laws."

Right to work? What person in his most deranged imaginations would have ever dreamed, even 20 years ago, that there would come a time when there was need for a law to give a man a "right to work"? Wasn't it a God-given privilege and necessity that man should live by the sweat of his brow?

The sad thing is that the men in America have sat down on their hands so long waiting for someone to hand them something on a platter that they actually have lost the "right to work" in the sense that it has always been taken for granted.

Today we are surrounded on one side by sidewalk, skyscrapers, science, sex, shameful delinquency and on the other by reformers and the demand for conformity.

Is all this change and advancement of the past few decades progress? What happened to the days of communal unity, the working together for a common cause?

We can't go back to those days but we can apply a little of the old-fashioned thinking to the present day.

Remember the old threshing days when every neighbor from miles around helped the farmer reap his grain? The women all banded together and prepared a feast that would put the Pilgrims to shame.

A death in the family was a bereavement to all. Neighbors came in droves with offerings of food. They cleaned the house, took care of the children, comforted the bereaved, sang hymns at the funeral and helped lay the deceased to rest.

In times of sickness they took turns at night sitting by the sick bed, keeping the pillow turned and placed cold clothes on a suffering brow. They read to him, comforted and encouraged him. They did his chores and kept his fires burning.

Those people didn't sit down in the middle of the road weeping and wailing. They didn't wait for the Government, the union or some organization to save them in times of trouble. They were their own organization—an organization of helpful, sympathetic people.

No, we cannot go back to the horse and buggy days. But we can use a little old-fashioned horse sense and try to help ourselves and each other instead of waiting for some Great White Father to save us from our own foolishness!

ROY DODGE, Mason

District Poll

Residents of the 6th congressional district of Michigan, which has more automobile workers than any other District in the nation, believe labor unions should file financial reports; favor secret ballots for union elections; object to the way union dues are used; and think union leaders do not represent the viewpoints of the rank and file union members. These and other conclusions of national significance, with respect to labor problems and their relationship to the recession, are revealed in the results of the return from the first 500 hourly wage employees responding to the labor questionnaire mailed on May 19, 1958, from Lansing, to the residents of Michigan's 6th congressional district.

In a letter sent with the questionnaire, I wrote constituents, "The recession, its causes and cures, is now our major problem . . . as a former factory worker at Fisher Body myself, I am vitally interested in the welfare of our working people. I know the importance of labor unions and favor their general purposes. For this reason, I particularly want the views of the hourly wage employee."

Because of the concern reflected in my volume of mail from working people, it was my purpose in sending the questionnaire to give the rank and file an

Enemies Made

How much peace is there around the globe today? Are we buying off angry nations with American dollars?

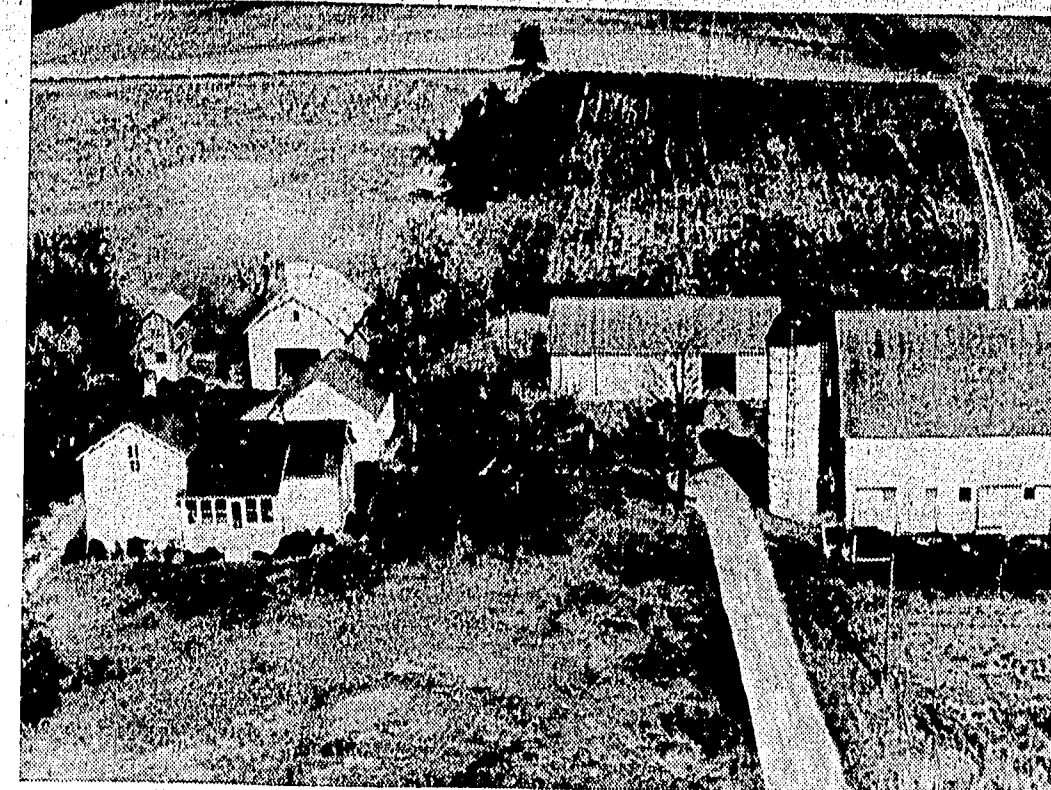

Around this globe millions of young men are under the sod. Some are white, some are yellow, some are black, some are Jews, some are Gentiles. The Creator molded their hearts just alike, though.

We in America have not heard the sounds of guns for a long time. We have no war but right here in America, the sweetest land of them all, we are on the road to cocktail bankruptcy.

Millions are being spent telling the American people they ought to buy this brand or that brand of liquor. The American people spend millions for drink and then turn around and spend millions to institutions to take care of the lost drinkers. Millions of broken homes are paying the price of liquor.

France today is drifting down a river of cocktail wine to oblivion with the Russians pestering salt in the wine. Diplomats ask for God's guidance but will He answer when they follow the plea with a cocktail?

Political parties in the United States are angry with one another. Yet regardless of which party is in power the American purse is touched for more and more money to pay for peace. But when we see $3,900,000,000 ready for shipment overseas and read about the recipients tossing stones at the giver we wonder whether it might be better to

IT'S NO SECRET who lives on the farm pictured in last week's mystery farm series. Twenty phone calls and 2 letters verified that the place belongs to George Burgess on Howell road. Too Much Steel

One hundred years ago, I must admit, that was before my time. But I am glad I don't live in those days as I can remember back to the kerosene lamps and it's a wonder that we didn't all go blind from eye strain. I too did my share of walking and today a walk of a mile seems so long. Maybe I'm getting soft but my feet feel like they are ready to drop off. To keep up with the pace of the world today we have to keep all that money at home where they don't throw stones.

We have enough problems right here at home with big tax load for schools and need for schools to teach reading, writing and arithmetic as never before.

Man can be taken in the twinkling of an eye. But I also know that if the U. S. man is taken by taxation much longer there will be a revolt.

Any fool knows it takes money to operate a government. Smart men know that there is room for economy. Government better hurry and make some adjustments such as business is forced to make.

The American government is owned by 172,000,000 American people. How about a little dividend?

HARRY DOESBURG, Stockbridge

to move faster than tired legs will carry us.

They talk about the cost of things going up—steel for example. Are the laborers to blame? All they ask is for wages so they can buy the things they need. If concrete is cheaper than steel, well why not build with concrete? Isn't it as sturdy? Or like as not, the demand would probably make the price go up too.

The unemployment compensation is only a way of insuring the laborer a means of eating and trying to keep even with the board until he goes back to work. A survey will tell you that the biggest majority would rather work than have to draw it. I think the government would rather see men pay for their necessities than have them drawing aid from the welfare. And any self-respecting man will agree with that too.

As for the farmers, a lot of them really haven't much to gripe about. They put their land in the soil bank, go to work in the shop, and then complain because they have to buy feed for their livestock. I don't say all farmers do that but there sure are a lot of them. They also draw unemployment when they are laid off. If they would work their farms instead of putting the land in the soil bank, it would leave jobs open for men who don't have farms. That would help the unemployment situation a little.

The depression can't be helped by the retail merchants cutting their prices. The cut must come from Big Business. The merchants would go out of business if they took it upon themselves to sell at cost or below and that would be more unemployment. So that line of thinking is out.

The cost of labor would come down if Big Business would cut their prices. The Labor Union included the cost of living clause in the contract because of that. The raise goes into effect only when the cost of living goes up. Prices go down, the workers take a cut.

The biggest share of the working people are spending as much as they possibly dare to now. How can they pay for what they already have bought on the installment plan if they have to take a cut in wages? If we had

If You're Like Me

You are curious about the officials who govern your county.

Recently I wanted to learn something about my county government, and found out that the "constitutional officers" are the sheriff, the county clerk, the county treasurer, the register of deeds and the prosecuting attorney. These offices I knew existed because once every 2 years I exercised my franchise and voted for someone to fill them.

Then there are judges of probate, circuit court commissioners and county road commissioners

I'm a little vague, however, about some of the other offices, like those of coroner and surveyor, or offices created by statute. Then there are offices like county agricultural agent, director of the county department of social welfare, county drain commissioner, county agent of the proto wait until we had the cold east, to pay for everything we buy we would have a worse depression than we have now.

As for the Hoover-Truman-Eisenhower regime—what happened to the president between Hoover and Truman, I believe his name was Franklin D. Roosevelt. He must have been pretty popular because he was elected for 4 terms. He did a lot to see that people didn't die of starvation. He was for the working man. So is Governor Williams. This depression or recession, call it what you may, is booming throughout the 48 states—47 of them Mr. Williams has nothing to do with, so how can he be given the blame? Let's stick with the parties that are for the majority and not the minority who already have their pockets lined with the big greenbacks.

bate court, and bodies like the social welfare board, the planning commission, and others.

The duties of these officials are varied and prescribed by law, and compensation usually is fixed by the board of supervisors. Officials are not entitled to fees in addition to their salaries unless in payment for "extraordinary services." Many of our county officials perform in this manner most of the time, but perhaps without additional remuneration. Duties—or the power vested in an official—may not be exercised by another official except by his deputy who is empowered to perform all duties of the office in the absence of the official. Generally, a county officer may not hold more than one office at a time. (This column is an informational service of the State Bar of Michigan. The Statute of Liberty was erected in 1886.)
