

Dutch Elm Hits Here

Dutch Elm disease, a menace which is spreading through the eastern part of the United States, has arrived in Mason.

Michigan department of agriculture tests confirmed the fears of John Carroll that one of his trees along the Sycamore had the disease. The report from the department of agriculture listed another tree on John Carroll's land as infected.

Carroll cut down and burned both trees.

Two other Mason trees may have the disease. One is located on McRoberts street and the other on South Jefferson. If lab tests show that these are diseased they will be removed.

Mayor Paul Richards isn't waiting for the disease to get the upper hand. On receiving the report from the agriculture department he named a council committee to take steps in protecting Mason's elm trees. Councilman Paul Cheney is chairman of the committee and members are Councilmen Gilson Pearsall and Nels Feriby.

Mayor Richards pointed out that Dutch Elm disease is carried from one tree to another by a beetle. Once a tree is infected there is nothing anyone can do to save it, he said.

The only way to control the disease is by spraying to kill the beetles and by cutting and burning diseased trees.

Mayor Richards asked the special committee to read up on the disease and ascertain possible courses of action should the disease appear to be spreading to other parts of Mason.

Last week 2 diseased trees were found in East Lansing. Other Michigan communities were hit hard in the last few years. In some New York and Pennsylvania towns streets once lined with large elm trees are now bare.

Mason's trees received a clean bill of health last fall when Smith Tree Service employees reported no evidence of the disease during their trimming operations along city streets.

Most People Pay Pledges

Payment of hospital pledges at Mason are in most cases on schedule. So reported the board of directors of Mason General hospital after completing a review of a full year's experience of voluntary payments.

"Results are gratifying and reassuring," said President Howard Seibert of the hospital board. "Most pledges are being paid on schedule. This is, of course, absolutely necessary if the building is to be completed and put into operation this October. Members of the board are unanimous in expressing appreciation to those who have been so faithful in meeting their pledge obligations."

But there is delinquency, Seibert said, and steps are being taken to encourage payment.

"The money is so urgently needed at this advanced stage of construction that the board is pleading to those behind in payments to make their contributions promptly," board members said. "We are reminding everyone that the pledges made during the campaign represent a real obligation to be met. We are now considering means of personally soliciting those persons who are behind in their pledge payments."

Rev. Norton Will Preach On South American Tour

The Rev. Raymond H. Norton is one of 3 Methodist pastors of the Michigan conference chosen to carry the word to Bolivia, Peru and Chile. He will join a party of 30 ministers in Miami, Florida, September 2. The ministers will go by plane on a visitation tour of Methodist churches and missions in the 3 South American countries.

Each member of the team will spend 2 weeks in a preaching mission in a local church or school. The U. S. pastors will be accompanied by interpreters.

The 3 countries offer a fertile evangelistic field, a survey has shown. Missionaries and leading nationals there have asked that increased efforts be made to inform and awaken the church to meet the present-day challenge. The flying mission is sponsored by the General Board of Evangelism of the Methodist church, with headquarters in Nashville, Tenn.

Travel by air will be nothing new for the former Mason pastor who left Mason in June to serve the Three Rivers Methodist church. During World War II he was a chaplain in the air force and has logged thousands of miles. He traveled widely by air

NOTHING IS SACRED to the savages who violated Bunker Hill Catholic church property Monday. Charles Jenks and Carl Acker, sheriff's officers investigating the vandalism, take a look at a portrait of Jesus which was smashed and broken on the floor, and at a crucifix which once hung reverently on the church school wall. The image of Christ was torn from the crucifix. A box of crucifixes was scattered and broken underfoot. (Ingham County News photo).

At Bunker Hill

Savages Desecrate Church

Savages desecrated the SS Carolus and Cyprian Catholic church at Bunker Hill Monday. The chaotic litter of smashed portraits of Christ, broken crucifixes, school supplies, broken glass and smashed walls were reported to sheriff's officers Wednesday night.

The church is on Catholic Church road between Williamston and Haynes roads.

The culprits smashed open a church poor box to steal the money inside.

Officers have a collection of footprints and fingerprints of the vandals who wantonly devastated the church buildings.

It will take an estimated $500 to clean up the mess and restore what was damaged or stolen.

In the church, religious books including Bibles were torn and strewn between pews and in the aisles. Boxes of envelopes were tossed from the balcony. Excrement was scattered in the aisles and in the baptismal font.

The savages entered the school room by breaking windows in the basement. Once in the basement, they smashed through a wall into a general room where the stairs lead to the upstairs classrooms. Stacks of new school supplies purchased for the opening of school in September were tipped over. Boxes of crayons, paper and pencils were crushed on the floor, thrown out windows and some of the litter was found several hundred feet from the church grounds.

Father Edward Gutha was away at the time of the break-in. Friends who were staying at the rectory discovered the mess Monday night, but did not summon police. Father Gutha notified the sheriff's office as soon as he returned to the church Wednesday. Officers immediately were dispatched.

They expressed horror over the desecration of the church sanctuary and the damage done to the school room.

Deputies Carl Acker and Charles Jenks are making the investigation. They expected to have suspects in the area rounded up Thursday night for fingerprinting and statements.

The trail was 2 days cold when officers began the investigation. They said Thursday that there is a possible connection with the church vandalism and the destruction last year at the Birney school a mile west.

Summer Clearance

Mason clothing merchants join in one united promotion for a last-chance offer on clothes, shoes and piecegoods on Page C-3 of this issue of the Ingham County News. Hundreds of items have been marked down for the special clearance by Davis Men's Wear, Kent shop, Mills and the Dancer Co.

More Braceros Aid in Picking

Fifty more Mexican braceros have arrived this week to aid in picking cucumbers. They are at the H. W. Madison barracks night. They were brought to Mason from Sebawaing.

There are now 125 Mexican nationals in Ingham cucumber fields. About 25 more are needed to keep pace with the picking, Madison company officials said Tuesday.

Picking started last Friday. There was a heavy pick Friday and Saturday. Picking slowed Monday. The rain Monday afternoon and the heat made a lot of pickles fast.

Higher Postage Starts Thursday

Letters, postcards and packages mailed at the Mason postoffice after 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon must carry increased postage, postoffice workers said.

Increased rates become effective at midnight Thursday. But at Mason there is no night shift. Mail dropped after 5 o'clock won't be cancelled until Friday morning, August 1. Then the higher rates will be in effect.

Rates go from 3c to 4c on letters, from 2c to 3c on postcards, and from 6c to 7c on airmail letters.

It's Dairy Hill for refreshment! Mason—across from park.

Merged Areas Join Lansing

Since midnight Lansing is 5.5 square miles bigger and an estimated 8,000 more populous.

Horsebrook and Pleasant Grove areas, which approved annexation to Lansing June 3, became a part of Lansing Wednesday night, and, of course, slimmed Lansing township.

Two other annexations are pending, Northwestern and Frandor. They will be decided next Tuesday. Then will come, if legal difficulties are surmounted, a vote on annexation of most of the remainder of Lansing township. That election has now been proposed for November.

Consummation of the Horsebrook and Pleasant Grove annexations will increase Lansing's area to about 20 square miles.

As of midnight Lansing is providing police and fire protection and garbage collection service for what until today was part of Lansing township.

The changeover from township to Lansing separated 5 township officials from their jobs. Elmer Ritter, a veteran of 22 years on the township board, is now a city resident and therefore is off the township board. A constable and members of fire and zoning boards were others who lost their jobs by reason of the annexation.

HEADS TROY SCHOOL

Rex Smith Takes New Job

Rex B. Smith, superintendent of schools at Holt for 7 years, will begin a new $12,000 school job at Troy, Michigan, immediately. Smith has been hired as superintendent of Troy public schools in the southeast corner of Oakland county. Troy is one of the Detroit area boom towns. There are 3,200 pupils in the school and 135 faculty members.

For the next 4 weeks, Smith will divide his time between Holt and Troy. The Holt board, notified of the resignation Tuesday night, has made no decision on replacing Smith.

Smith signed a 3-year contract at Troy.

Frank Landers, board president, said Thursday the board reluctantly released Smith from his contract with Holt. He cited the many hurdles of school administration that Smith had leaped. The board will meet Wednesday night to discuss hiring of a new superintendent.

When Smith came to Holt in 1951, there were 900 pupils. Now there are 1,875. There were 2 successful bond issues totaling $360,000 for new schools in 1952 and with Smith's guidance, voters approved a $1,525,000 bond issue for a new high school and other construction in 1955.

Smith also guided 3 successful millage elections and 3 annexations.

The Holt superintendent's school experience will be useful in Troy. The Oakland city, incorporated in 1955, has a population of 17,500 and has only started to grow. The school district, containing 33 square miles, is the third largest district geographically in Michigan.

Before going to Holt, Smith was superintendent at Augusta.

Primary Is Tuesday

Election Interest Declines

In speaking of interest in next Tuesday's primary election, "declines" may not be the word. Decline means to come down, to drop. Interest has plummeted. It has reached bottom. It can not drop farther.

Democrats are making a show of interest in the contest for sixth district nomination for congressmen. Republicans are having a little stir over picking 2 candidates out of 5 for first district legislative nominations.

In the second district there is not a contest on the Republican ticket and only a few on the Democratic.

There is not much interest either in the Democratic contest for governor, lieutenant-governor or U. S. senator. Governor G. Mennen Williams has waged no campaign except through press handouts. Hart's campaign for nomination for U. S. senator has been marked in Ingham by its quietness.

Don Hayworth of East Lansing, former congressman, has some active units working in Ingham and has conducted some meetings. His opponent, George Stevens of Flint, made a swing through the county Saturday, sounding off through an amplifier mounted on an automobile and decorating roadside trees with placards.

Lansing and Lansing township have a couple of annexation propositions to settle. Voters must decide once again on Frandor annexation to Lansing and on the so-called Northwestern district, which may bring in part of Eaton county to add to Lansing.

It's a foregone conclusion that Lansing city votes will more than offset any Lansing township adverse votes on annexation. City and township votes outside the areas to be annexed are counted together. That leaves the decision almost entirely up to voters residing within the districts to be annexed.

Lansing made one unsuccessful attempt to annex Frandor. East Lansing also tried and failed, and stands poised for another try if Lansing fails this time.

There are also 2 school propositions which Lansing must decide, both arising from recent annexations.

Polls throughout the county will be open at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning and remain open until 8 at night.

Votes will be cast on machines in Lansing and East Lansing. It is the first election at which machines have been used in East Lansing except for one precinct.

Delegates to county conventions will be chosen Tuesday. They will meet to name delegates to state conventions. Delegates at state conventions nominate candidates for secretary of state, attorney general, state treasurer and auditor general.

Hospital Recruits Grey Ladies Unit

Mason General hospital is recruiting a Grey Ladies unit for duty when the new hospital is opened this fall.

American Red Cross sponsors Grey Ladies. Members of the organization volunteer their services at hospitals. They handle the information desks, the mail of patients, reading and writing letters if requested, delivering messages, reading to patients and talking with them or listening to them.

Lansing's Grey Ladies serve at Sparrow, Sparrow Annex, Sparrow children's unit, St. Lawrence, McLaughlin and Ingham Chest hospitals. The Lansing unit was organized in 1939. There are about 180 members, each volunteering 150 hours per year of hospital service. That averages 3 1/2 hours a week.

Mrs. S. G. Bergquist of East Lansing is chairman of the Grey Ladies unit of the Red Cross. She said she rejoiced to hear of the formation of a Mason unit. She is already making arrangements for training of the Mason unit. A schedule of 3 lectures and demonstrations is being arranged for training of the Mason women.

Doctors, nurses, Red Cross executives and hospital administrators will give the training.

To become a member of Grey Ladies, Mrs. Bergquist explained, women must have a keen desire to serve others and a conscience which demands that they serve regularly.

In addition to the Grey Ladies, the Mason Hospital Auxiliary will expand other services. A re-organizational meeting to that end was conducted at the home of Mrs. Robert Leonard Tuesday afternoon.

Organized in 1949, the Auxiliary has up to now confined its activities to sewing and mending. With the bigger hospital there will be need for greater service, the women agreed.

A public meeting to recruit Auxiliary members and to organize a Grey Ladies unit is scheduled for September 29.

Grey Ladies and the Hospital Auxiliary are independent of each other.

Present officers of the Hospital Auxiliary are Mrs. Donald Scodfield, president; Mrs. Maurice Rickly, vice-president; and Mrs. Robert Leonard, secretary-treasurer.

Merchants Plan Sales at Curb

Sidewalk days, a big hit a year ago in Mason, will be repeated bigger than ever next week end, August 8 and 9. Bargains so hot they have to be kept outside for fear of burning the stores down is the way Ed Ware, chairman, describes the sales promotion.

Mason merchants will move sale merchandise out on the curbs beginning Friday morning. Clerks will be dressed in old fashioned garb and leftover chemise dresses. There'll be music in the streets and a carnival atmosphere. Next week's Ingham County News will carry a full description of sidewalk merchandise.

New Bills Reflect Water Rate Hike

City Treasurer Doris Austin expects plenty of calls beginning Monday morning and most of them won't be of a social nature.

Mason's new water billing system will provide the conversational topic.

Under the new system which began July 1, the discount for paying cash was abolished. In place of the 10% discount the city council invoked a 10% penalty if the bill isn't settled within 20 days.

Besides the bookkeeping change councilmen hiked water and sewer rates. The revenue increase will go toward paying for the $185,000 revenue bond issue.

Only 400 Mason home owners in the southeast section of town will receive their water bills this week. The other 2 areas will be billed at different dates through the year.

Tax Deadline Nears

Summer taxes at Mason can be paid during August without penalty. Four per cent will be added after September 1.

Preparations Are Made For Ingham County Fair

With Ingham county fair time just around the corner, fair officers and employees are stepping up the preparation pace.

Harry Spenny, fair secretary, predicted a big year providing such ifs as bad weather and other problems stay away for the week of August 11 through 18.

"Commercial exhibit space requests are coming in earlier and faster for 1958 than in any other year since I have had anything to do with the fair," Spenny said.

This year more space for commercial exhibits was provided but there is little left. Most of the space increase was made in the brick building. The 4-H and some extension exhibits will be in the new 4-H building completed last week. These exhibits crowded the brick building in other years.

Extension office workers report over 3,000 individual 4-H club entries already with the fair still 2 weeks off. Open class entry applications are also coming in at a fast clip. Many more out-of-county livestock breeders sent entries for this year than in years past.

The grandstand entertainment is taken care of. The Monday night program will feature the Thunderbird thrill show. Only one thrill show is on tap for the week in place of the usual 2.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights and Thursday afternoon the pacers and trotters will provide the entertainment. This year's purses total $19,000 and entries and requests for stable space are received daily. Last year 165 harness horses competed at Mason. The total this year will reach above that, fair officers predicted.

Along with the Thursday afternoon races the annual fat stock sale will be another feature.

Friday afternoon the mules will pull in front of the grandstand. This is the first time for this event at Mason. The horse-pulling contests for both heavy and light classes will be Saturday afternoon.

The 4-H talent show will take over the stage for the Friday night program. Outstanding talent from Ingham earned spots on the show bill in auditions and county-wide talent shows last spring.

Saturday night's show will be professional wrestling. Fair officers signed both midgits and the big boys.

Wade Shows promised to set up a bigger and better midway, Spenny said. This year's contract calls for 6 major rides and as many kiddie rides along with the other midway concessions. Last year only 3 major rides showed up.

Alumni Group Plans Outing

Mason's golf course will bulge at the seams with Michigan State university alumni golfers Saturday. The course will be closed to the public when the Ingham County Alumni club swingers take over.

C. Earl Webb, Okemos, is chairman for the annual event. He has lined up golf prizes, refreshments for the golfers, other awards and the crowning event—a chicken barbecue starting at 6 p. m.

The outing is for members, friends and wives and husbands of members.

The Ingham county alumni group is the largest one in Michigan State.

Former Resident Dies in Lansing

Mrs. Myrtle Gillespie Howell, 79, died in Sparrow hospital, Lansing, Monday morning. She had been in poor health for 2 years. In March, 1957, she suffered a heart attack and entered the hospital. After her release from the hospital she was a semi-invalid. She had another attack June 26 and was taken to the hospital and placed under an oxygen tent. She did not improve.

Mrs. Howell and her husband, Chester E. Howell, made their home in Florida during the winter and at Jose Lake and Houghton Lake in Michigan during the remainder of the year. The husband, on a trip to his Florida home last winter, fell sick. He is in Bradenton and was unable to come to Michigan when his wife was taken critically sick in June. He was also unable to attend funeral services here.

Mrs. Howell was the daughter of John and Mary Stewart Waltz. She was born at Grass Lake April 4, 1879. When she was a young girl her mother died and she came to Mason to live with grandparents. As a young woman she learned the dressmaker's trade. She and George Gillespie, a farmer and lawyer, were married in 1906. For years the Gillespies made their home on a farm in Alameda. They lived on the Okemos road farm until their retirement to a home in Mason in 1927. Mr. Gillespie died 22 years ago.

Ten years ago she married Chester E. Howell. He was also born in Grass Lake but they had never met there.

In Lansing Mrs. Howell made her home with her daughter, and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. David W. Powell, 1121 Riley street.

Mrs. Howell was a life member of Mason chapter 150, OES, a member of the Past Chiefs club of Pythian Sisters, the West Alameda Ladies Aid and had been a member of the White Shrine. For many years she was active in Red Cross work.

A son, Harry, died in 1941. Surviving is the daughter, Mrs. Ruth Powell, 4 grandchildren and 8 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were at the Jettett chapel in Mason Wednesday afternoon. Burial was in Maple Grove, Rev. Warren Brown of Mt. Hope Methodist church, Lansing, officiated. The Eastern Star ritual was also used. Four grandsons, Gerald E. Powell and Harry E. Powell of Lansing, Major George Gillespie (USAF), West Lafayette, Indiana, and Richard P. Gillespie, Wayne, were pallbearers.

Tennis Champs Earn Crowns

In the girls doubles bracket Maureen Strait and Mary Arnold were the winners. Melody Betcher and Carol Barker were runners-up.

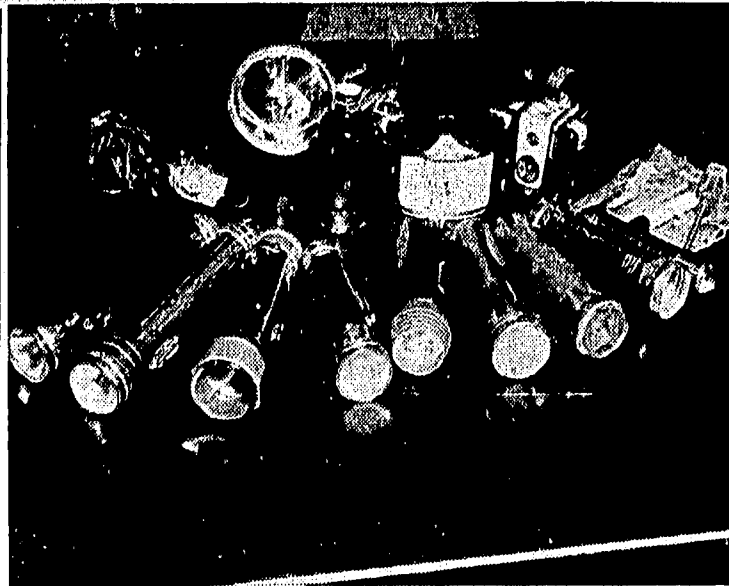

In the boys junior division Raymond Strayer topped Bill Strait for the title.

Still to be decided are the girls singles titles in both the junior and senior divisions.

Miss Nellie Brown returned home Wednesday after spending 10 days visiting relatives in Albany, Muncie, Portland and Sulphur Springs, Indiana, and Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stillman spent last week visiting their son-in-law and daughter at their new home on the North Shore drive of Houghton Lake.

Ellen Marie Rasmussen of Jackson spent Wednesday and Thursday with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Corbett Marshall.

SOMEbody threw away an armful of flashlights last Saturday, tossed them into the Sycamore at the Harper road bridge. Four boys fished the lights out of the stream and took them to the sheriff's office. The flashlights, along with a spotlight and small tools, will be returned to their rightful owners upon identification of the articles. One of the flashlights was even burning when the boys recovered it. Brian Doolittle, 9, Michael Doolittle, 12, Dennis Walton, 12, and Duane Beach, 12, were crossing the bridge on bikes and on foot when they happened to see the flashlight in the water.

Go Camping in Winter For Real Chills-Thrills

By NORMAN BUNKER
County Librarian

If bugs and bumps have discouraged your camping trips in the past, don't throw in the sponge. Try camping out in the winter for real chills and thrills. That's what Calvin Kistner says in his book, "New Way of the Wilderness." He wrote this book so "campers can select equipment without confusion." He evaluates the latest type of equipment, including aluminum canoes, processed foods, improved tents, plus advice on injuries, firearms, and canoe strokes.

It's no trouble for an experienced woodsman to wake up at 2 a. m. to poke up the campfire, according to "On Your Own in the Wilderness," by Whelen and Angier. A chapter entitled "Mosquitoes, Flies, et al.," sounds like bad spelling, yet there is no one named Al in the book.

Just our camping equipment alone is enough to make us look down on the Stone Age man. But what kind of tools can we make out of stone? Try your hand at it sometime. Hubert Mewhinney has attempted to remedy the situation in his book, "Manual for Neanderthals." Not only has he studied and collected Stone Age implements, but he has made some of them. If you think your self superior to a Stone Age man, let's see what you can do with Mewhinney's detailed directions for making arrow heads and stone axes.

Grancel Fitz has spent a good part of his life outdoors. He claims to be the first man in history to have hunted all of the 24 different classes of North American big game animals that can be legally taken. He has collected record class heads of 13 animals and tells all about it in "North American Head-hunting. Mountain lions, polar bears, grizzly, white-tail, elk and moose have fallen under his gun.

Meanwhile, back in the jungle, Kenneth Anderson has been plugging away at assorted man-eaters. In "Jungle Killers" he reveals the trade secrets of chasing down man-eating tigers and maddened elephants.

Back in the old days in Ingham county the kids used to play with hoop snakes. Now comes along some smart aleck who claims there's no such thing. James A. Oliver in his book "Snakes in Fact and Fiction" explodes a lot of myths about our crawling friends. He also states that there is no such thing as a snake charmer.

A pristine oral legend, that's what the story of Liver-Eating

Johnson has been called, R. W. Thorp and Robert Bunker tell all they heard about it in their book, "Crow Killer, the Saga of Liver-Eating Johnson."

Eating liver is not so unusual in itself. Johnson set himself apart by eating Indian livers. After Crow braves killed Johnson's wife and child, the legend has it that he made a career of killing 300 Crow braves and eating their livers. Let's see what Walt Disney can do with that one.

Avery Leaves to Learn

M. H. Avery, Ingham extension agent, starts a 3-months college course on wheels Friday. He has been granted a leave to travel throughout the mid-west and northwest to learn at first hand what's new in agriculture.

Avery and his wife and young son, Larry, 10, have their camping gear all packed. Between stays at the homes of relatives in Washington, Oregon and Colorado they will sleep and eat under their own canvas.

The trip will take Avery to extension headquarters, experimental farms and farm meetings and demonstrations in Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Utah, Colorado and Nebraska. The son, who has been attending summer classes will continue his studies under the tutelage of his mother during the journey.

The Ingham agent said that the leave was granted for either advanced study or travel and that in his opinion there will be greater profit in seeing how things are done elsewhere than in formal study.

Conservation Reserve Seeks Additional Land

With the acreage reserve program of the soil bank inoperative in 1959, an extra step is being made for adoption of the additional land, complete acreage of farms, is being sought for the conservation reserve program of the soil bank for next year. The other part of the soil bank—the acreage reserve program—will not be in effect in 1959. This is one of the reasons that the conservation reserve is being opened early this year.

While beginning of the sign-up has not been officially set, indications point to a date around September 1.

Ingham farmers now have 1,878 acres in the conservation reserve with 3,389 acres of wheat land and 7,136 acres of corn land under the reserve program.

Under the conservation reserve program, farmers contract with the department of agriculture to reduce their acreage of harvested crops for a period of up to 10 years, and devote this acreage to conservation practices. In return for this contribution to production adjustment the government makes an annual rental payment to the farmer based on the productivity of his land. The government will also share in the cost of establishing the conservation practices.

There are 3 major changes in the 1959 conservation reserve from the program in effect this year. They are:

Higher average level of rental payments with the individual rate depending upon the productivity, agricultural value, and rental rates for similar land in the locality.

Higher payment rate as an incentive for a farmer to place all eligible cropland in the reserve.

A priority system for accepting contract applications which gives preference to those farmers offering land at the lowest cost per unit of productivity.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY Voucher No. 7-749		Check No. 41991
EXEMPTION OF THIS CHECK FROM PAYMENT OF THE TAXES		9-32 720
For first half of State Property Taxes of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. payable in 1958. Department of Revenue statement of June 19, 1958.		Certified for Payment
JUL 31 1958		AUTHORIZED SIGNATURE
PAYS SIX MILLION TWO HUNDRED FORTY EIGHT THOUSAND SEVEN HUNDRED EIGHTY ONE AND 20/100 $6,248,781.20
TO THE CREDIT OF Michigan Department of Revenue 200 Tussing Bldg. Lansing 22, Mich.
TO NATIONAL BANK OF DETROIT

THIS CHECK for $6,248,781.20 from Michigan Bell Telephone Co. will be distributed to school districts throughout the state. The money goes into the primary school fund and is allocated on the basis of school district figures. This check, half of what Michigan Bell will have to pay for 1958, will be matched by another of like amount in November. The amount is the largest single tax payment to the state in history.

Michigan railroads are paying $8,041,934.47 into the fund.

Under the state's constitution, taxes of the lines, like those of all public utilities, go into the basic school fund.

Railroad taxes are disbursed to the various counties on the basis of the county's school child population (5 to 19 years), regardless of the railroad mileage in the county, and including the state's 2 counties in which no railroads operate. The lines' taxes average $1.166 per mile for each of the 6,922 miles of railroad in Michigan.

There are 1,518,549 children of school age in the state. On that basis the railroads' taxes are equal to $5.29 per school child.

Ingham county, with 41,753 school age children, this year will receive $202,187.05 of the railroads' taxes.

ALMOST ONE MILLION 4-H CLUB MEMBERS are aiming for safer living on highways and farms, in homes and communities. Their efforts are focused on the national 4-H Safety program directed by the Cooperative Extension Service and arranged by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work.

Farm boys and girls enrolled in the program — and their city cousins as well — can take their share of credit for helping to decrease traffic deaths last year. Proof that they're on the job is the record high enrollment reached in 1957 when 815,000 club members between the ages of 10 and 21 took part in some form of safety activity, according to the National Committee. And hard work does not go unrewarded. At the national level eight top ranking 4-Hers will receive $400 college scholarships and an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next December. The state winner also will attend the Congress with all-expenses paid, and it is estimated that nearly 4,000 youngsters will merit the county safety medal. All awards are provided by General Motors which has supported the 4-H Safety program since 1944.

Tri-County Commission Studies Water Problems

Water resources in Ingham, Clinton and Eaton counties were the main subject under consideration at a meeting of the tri-county planning commission last Thursday. Water problems and the role of the commission in developing adequate water supplies for future needs provided the basis for discussion.

Special guests presented various views before the commission as to the importance to the future development of this region that an adequate and high quality water supply will play. This was emphasized especially by Milton P. Adams of the Michigan resources commission. He also pointed out that rights to water would be a growing problem since water supplies in the future are likely to be more limited than now.

Theodore VanderVelde, chief of the water supply section of the Michigan state health department, said that limited water supplies are a present problem. Such limitations are hampering the growth and development of many areas, he said.

Water in agricultural development was discussed by John Johnson, Eaton county agricultural extension agent and M. H. Avery, extension agent for Ingham county. Avery said that there has been in the past a great emphasis upon getting rid of water but now the need is to conserve water. Ponds is storage basins in rural areas were suggested by him as good means for conserving water. Johnson suggested that storage of such water would provide a needed water supply in dry seasons.

The need for more attention to small watershed areas for conservation and flood control was pointed out to the commission by Kenneth McManus from the Clinton county soil conservation department.

Gerald Graham, Ingham county train commissioner, said that marginal areas surrounding lakes, rivers, tributaries and feeders might be used as possible detention basins for water conservation. Graham told commission members that many small storage basins can be developed and used. This would, at the same time, increase water frontage for recreational purposes and higher types of agricultural activity. Land values would also rise as the result of such development. He also said that more attention should be given to keeping homes and developments out of low lands which are subject to flooding.

Records of past major floods could be used to keep building and development out of lands subject to flooding, suggested Norman Billings, chief of the hydrology division of the Michigan water resources commission. He also said that investigation of groundwater supplies involving extensive geological surveys is of great importance in future water development programs.

Comments as to possible means for implementing a water program were offered by LaRue Miller, chief of environmental sanitation in the Michigan state health department, McManus, and Graham. Miller said that the 3 counties should be brought together with their zoning program since there is conflicting, impractical zoning for the area as viewed as a whole in relation to land and water resources. McManus suggested that a committee should be organized to make the residents of the area aware of the water problems. Graham said that the planning commission should carry such information back to their respective boards of supervisors.

Mason Families Escape Injury

Although the Carl Buchanan and John Hamlin families escaped injury Saturday night when the Hamlin car was struck from the rear, the car was damaged extensively. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Buchanan, Joyce and Karen and Mr. and Mrs. John Hamlin and Terry were returning from Otsego lake, where the women and children had spent the week and their husbands had joined them Friday night. They were enroute home on US-27.

Traffic had been halted because of an accident north of Ithaca. An approaching driver fell asleep, and his car went off on the right shoulder, striking the Hamlin car on the right side. The force of the impact caused the Hamlin car to careen across the road and come to rest on the opposite shoulder. The Mason families were able to complete their trip home Saturday night.

Visit to Alaska

Cities in Far North Grow Rapidly

We have accomplished our goal of traveling the Alcan highway, visiting Alaska and now are happily homeward bound knowing that we have had a wonderful vacation trip. We could not accomplish in 40 days what we had expected to when we left Mason.

We gave up a wonderful trip to Juneau because of time. At least 4 days would have been needed for this sidetrip. We did visit Fairbanks and Anchorage, the 2 largest cities of Alaska, and what a surprise to see 2 progressive cities in the North Pole region.

Fairbanks has 2 large air bases—Ellison and Ladd. The city was all decorated for the week end because of the jubilee celebrating the gold rush of 1898.

The University of Alaska has a splendid museum of Eskimo and Indian artifacts and quite an animal display. It occupies a site comprising 2250 acres.

We also went out to see the gold dredging operations. Gold lies in deep veins, so large Eastern Capital using scientific operations have taken over a few miles from Fairbanks and are using huge machines to dredge out the rocks.

We had the trailer at Harding lake, about 50 miles from Fairbanks. This was the lake where Wiley Post and Will Rogers took off for Nome when they met their tragic deaths.

We left Fairbanks and drove on the Richardson highway to Valdez, a seaport town. It is a beautiful 50-mile drive. Valdez is surrounded by mile-high mountains on 3 sides and the sea on the fourth. Several of the outstanding scenic views are Worthington Glacier and Bridal Veil falls and the beautiful cascade of the Horsetail falls, dropping 300 feet from the top sheer wall of the canyon. An Alaskan vacation would be incomplete without a visit to this picturesque community.

We visited a salmon cannery and are bringing some canned salmon back with us. We had fun watching the humpback salmon going up the rivers to spawn. We also observed on our drive some beaver dams and several fish wheels.

From Valdez we went to Anchorage and the Matanuska Valley and Palmer. This is the valley that the government opened to settlement in 1935 to establish farms and homes for some of our people from the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, Northern Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas. The area is about 60 miles by 30 miles. There are about 1,000 people in the valley and they have a very strong Co-Operative marketing organization. Their principal crops are dairying, potatoes and vegetables. Their ice cream won second prize at the International show in Chicago last year.

We visited with Al Brooks, a John Deere agent in the valley who is a former athlete of Abe's when he was coaching at East Jordan.

Colony Day, celebrated May 30-31, commemorates the anniversary of the federal government's Matanuska Valley Colonization project.

All people are amazed at the tremendous growth and progressiveness of the city of Anchorage. The big air base is Elmendorf and Fort Richardson is also located here. They claim they have about 25,000 servicemen located here. What a beautiful hospital they have at the base.

We saw the flag that was presented to the city by Texas showing 49 stars (7 rows) and the Alaska flag which is the big dipper of 7 stars and the North star, 8 stars all together.

Travelers to Anchorage were held up 36 hours on Friday because of washouts about 35 miles from Anchorage at the Knik river and bridge. The Knik also drains into Knik arm. This is a glacial stream fed by the Knik glacier. This year, the glacier which blocks the gorge, forming the outlet to Lake George thawed sufficiently to weaken the dam of ice holding back the swollen waters of the lake. Suddenly the great wall of ice breaks loose with a thunderous roar and the lake drains through the opening, sending a flood crest of silt-laden water grinding ice down the Knik river. The railroad tracks were also washed out in this area but by Sunday night everything was working again.

Blueberries are ripening and we have stopped several times to pick enough to cover cereals for breakfast.

Our recommendation to people planning on driving to Alaska is

Guard Will Get Hangar Building

The National Guard bureau of the department of defense has $170,000 for the construction of a shop hangar at Lansing.

Major General Edgar C. Erickson, chief of the National Guard bureau, informed Congressman Charles E. Chamberlain that the state of Michigan was being authorized to proceed to complete a construction contract for the project. The maintenance hangar, which is to be financed entirely with federal funds, will be used to service liaison planes and helicopters of the Michigan Guard's army aviation section.

COMMITTEE
BANKING AND CURRENCY

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.

To the People of the 6th District

"Today is the most important day of my life!"

All of us at one time or another have made this statement — often about something which is of only passing significance. When you actually stop to think about it, though, what are the most important days of our lives?

When I consider how federal, state and local laws govern every moment of our existence — our security, our working conditions, our business transactions, our taxes, even our food — truly, among our most important days are those on which we elect the individuals who play such a vital part in shaping our destinies.

On Tuesday, August 5th, you will have the privilege and responsibility of choosing the candidates for November. Although I have no opposition on the primary ballot, I want to urge you to go to the polls on this really important day. To me, voting is more than a privilege, it is an obligation!

Sincerely yours,

Charles E. Chamberlain

Safety Director Warns Drivers

When people become as stirred up about highway and farm safety as they are about polo the fatality list will drop sharply. That was the word from Roger Forch, safety director of Michigan Farm Bureau, in a talk at Mason Tuesday night. He spoke before Mason Kiwanis club.

Forch urged adoption of a better driver licensing system and wider education of drivers. He claimed that many accidents are caused by emotional disturbances resulting from domestic or business troubles.

Michigan has shown an improvement in highway safety 2 years in a row, Forch said.

There were 38,500 Americans killed in highway accidents last year, the speaker reported. There were 13,500 farm people killed in farm accidents and while driving farm equipment on highways, he said. Sixteen percent of the tractor victims were children of 10 years and under, he stated.

Singers Continue to Make Friends

Fayette Rich, Charline Clipper and Nancy Bray are members of the Michigan Chorus which is presenting concerts in Germany and Holland. The group is sponsored by the Michigan Council of Churches. The letters are portions of those written their parents.

BONN, GERMANY

I am staying with a family named Stockhust. They have sons, 18, 11 and 7. The people have a little drugstore. The store is open from 8:30 to noon, then closes until 3 and is open until 6:30 p. m. It is this way all over Germany.

Last night I went to a school dance, which was very nice. A trio wished us much pleasure this summer by singing a few songs to the tune of our popular hits in America.

I just finished lunch. I had boiled potatoes covered with cooked onions, 4 rolls and 2 glasses of pop. I haven't had any water since I left Mason. I've had only one glass of milk and that was in Grevenbroich. The Stockhust family lives 5 miles outside Bonn so I have to take a bus every day for concerts and rehearsals. Their son has a car, but he goes to school. They have school on Saturdays!

VOLKEWEG, GERMANY July 14

Germany has been having wonderful weather these last few days. I went swimming in the Rhine today for the second time. The beach is very nice, but a little crowded.

I am staying with some nice people, a girl of 20 and her mother. The father never returned from the war. This morning our group visited a large wine cellar. They had wine dating back to 1911. Oppenheim is the center of winemaking. We will go through it tomorrow.

Yesterday we sang at a Protestant cathedral. It is a beautiful church inside, but was bombed some and they are still repairing the outside. There is much history to that church. The German teacher of the girl I stay with took us on a tour in and around the church. We went to a very gruesome spot, a bonehouse. There were thousands of skulls and millions of bones. They have to dig up the dead and put them in the bonehouse because land is scarce.

We sang at the U. S. army barracks in Nierstein last night, and I met a few guys from Michigan.

MUNICH, GERMANY July 22

We have just finished lunch and I have a few minutes to write. We are staying in a youth hotel. The chorale is divided into groups and we take turns preparing dinner, doing dishes and cleaning the dining room.

Tomorrow we take an all-day trip to Austria. We have radio and TV work to do this week and next. We might do some recording so the records can be sold.

shopping yesterday. I bought a diende, a German costume. I noticed that most of the German women in this town wear them. It pays to buy watches here. I saw a beautiful Swiss-made watch with a 15 karat gold band for 33 marks, which is a little over 7 dollars.

Munich was bombed during the war and is still in bad shape. The altitude here is 2,000 feet. We are living about 40 miles from town.

The trip to Salzburg, Austria yesterday was wonderful. That town is more like America than any place I have been in before. Most of the people speak English and the town has lots of stores. It reminded me of Detroit and Lansing because it was so crowded. People were walking in the streets and it was like a big carnival. Salzburg is surrounded by mountains; I never saw so many large ones. Many of them were covered with snow and clouds. It was really a sight to see.

Yesterday we spent 5 hours shopping. I believe most of these German and Austrian towns and cities have more cafes and taverns than they do other stores. I was surprised that they use English money but accept German and American.

This weather is crazy. We wear sweaters and a coat whenever going anywhere, and it rains nearly all the time. It's like fall.

FARMER-PETE'S WIFE

Peck Youngsters Enjoy Summer Visits to Zoos

By Mrs. Ray Peck

Have you been to the zoo this summer? Our youngsters want to go at least once every year. In fact, they don't think school vacation has been properly launched without a trip to Potter park at Lansing.

Then we hear Detroit zoo at regular intervals. And, of course, they haven't given up on the Bronx zoo idea.

They still save for that and hope to get there to see Decca and the other big cats of Helen Martin's "My Zoo Family." They started that fund 3 years ago. As a substitute they collect figurines and stuffed animals, especially tigers.

Pete doesn't see how they can stand so much pet and animal talk for a steady diet. I do, sort of. Wouldn't you know that a mother who wanted to be an animal doctor (among other things) would have children who liked pets?

This summer we really promised that we'd take them to the Detroit zoo... dead or alive, for that's just about how hard it is to carry out promises sometimes. You learn to go easy on promises that you can't carry out for it means so much to children. A winter can get awfully long when they remind you of some of those intentions that never did pan out. But somehow going to the zoo seemed pretty heartless and thoughtless considering that 7 brothers and sisters and several married nieces and nephews live in that area... some whom we've never visited. Going to see animals who don't really care against going to see relatives who do care... well, now, how about it?

On Mother's Day, when we all get together every year at my mothers at Capac, we hatched an idea. On the third Sunday in July we'd all meet at the Detroit zoo for a picnic and reunion. (Someone could make a funny remark out of that and go ahead. We did and enjoyed a good laugh out of it.)

Well, it was just about the most perfect day that you could ask for. Not too cold nor too hot. And it showed up from Mt. Clemens, Dearborn, St. Clair Shores, Port Huron, Wayne, Ohio and Elsie.

Margaret and Paul got there early enough to get tables. George and Cora were stationed at the entrance to tell everyone where to go. Within half an hour everyone rolled in and what a delicious dinner we had at noon.

We rode on the train together. Then some stayed in groups and off we went to be back by 4 for lunch and watermelon. Everyone certainly had a wonderful time.

Mother and Olga couldn't come because mother couldn't have stood a faint like that. But 7 brothers and sisters had a party they won't soon forget. Ours is one of those families where he had children... she had children... and then they had children. It makes it kind of confusing to explain to outsiders. We introduced everyone around as brother and sisters and let it go at that. The little ones have to be told all over again just about every time that we get together how it was and who belongs to whom. Now the second generation is getting married and new babies are coming along to get acquainted with.

Not to have to hurry home for chores was a real treat. Gene Penner was doing them. Chickie and dairy farmers don't get away very often and when they do it's head for home at a certain time in the afternoon.

As we rolled along home in a leisurely fashion we had a lot to talk about. Then one by one the children dropped off to sleep. Pete and I had a chance to visit alone... told him that it seemed almost like our honeymoon. He grinned and said, "With 2 kids snoring in the back seat and one in your lap?"

Library Readers Continue Contest

According to the last count, as reported by Mrs. Rachael E. Fenske of the Ingham county library staff, the American league is out in front of National league readers by a wide margin. But the league play continues until August 23, she said.

"Players who have been on vacation have plenty of time to climb out of the reading cellar," Mrs. Fenske said. She explained that even though the American league clings to the lead, the National has qualified more players for the world series.

"A little more hustle and the competition can really become exciting at the end," Mrs. Fenske declared.

Supervisors Handle Dog Licensing

Action taken by the Ingham county board of supervisors relative to collection of dog taxes, listing dogs, and dog warden fees show several changes since 1929. The latest action taken by the board was the decision to switch from burial of dogs to cremation. The action, revealed July 8 by Supervisor Charles Woods of Ingham, was on recommendation of the livestock committee of the board of supervisors. The cost of the new crematory will mean higher license fees for dog owners.

The dog business in Ingham pays its own way. Claims for livestock killed by dogs are paid out of license fees. Supervisors are also paid for listing dogs when properly assessments are taken. Treasurers receive a fee for issuing license tags. The dog warden receives his pay out of dog license fees.

On May 6, 1929, the board passed a resolution to appoint a county dog warden. His primary was to collect all delinquent dog taxes in the county and turn the amount over to the county treasurer. The warden was commissioned a deputy sheriff and paid a salary of $2,000 a year.

Such action was brought on by the apparent need for some means to assure the payment of overdue dog taxes in justice to those who were prompt in their payment. The county was also receiving an increasing number of livestock claims due to dogs.

A fee of $5 was voted by the board to be paid for each stray dog captured and killed after being held for 5 days.

In 1932, the office of dog warden was declared vacant and the duties of collecting the dog tax were turned over to the sheriff.

The Ingham County Humane society took an interest in the dog regulation problem in 1936. In a communication to the board of supervisors the society requested the city of Lansing and Ingham county jointly to build and maintain a new dog pound. The operation of the pound, they suggested, could be financed from a portion of the receipts from the dog tax.

In response to this request the board delegated the livestock committee and 2 members from the city of Lansing to look into the proposal. After an investigation into the feasibility of a dog pound the committee recommended that the city of Lansing erect a dog pound and appoint a warden agreeable to the humane society. The dog pound was to be used by both Lansing and Ingham county.

with the cost of its operation and maintenance to be paid from the general funds of the county. The committee also recommended that the sheriff deputize a man to act as dog warden for the county, excluding Lansing. The board passed the resolution and also set up a schedule of fees to be paid to the county dog warden as remuneration for his services. The dog pound, called the animal shelter, was put under the supervision of the humane society.

In 1941 increasing costs of operation of the shelter motivated Mrs. Warren Hosmer of the humane society to ask the board to retain 10c on each dog license collected to be turned over to the animal shelter and also to increase license fees on female dogs. After inquiring of the prosecuting attorney as to the legality of raising license fees from the previous amounts of $1.00 for each male dog and $2.00 for each female dog the supervisors suggested license fees on female dogs be raised to $5. However, requests from the Ingham County Kennel club and the Ingham County Conservation club to postpone action on increasing fees were acknowledged and no action was taken.

A new resolution was passed in 1953 which provided for the appointment of a county dog warden. The president of the humane society was appointed warden for Lansing. The animal shelter was put under the supervision of the society and the county clerk was authorized to pay $1.00 to the humane society each month toward the cost of operating the shelter.

In the same year the dog warden was instructed to inspect each dog kennel before issuing a kennel license. For this service he was paid $3.00 for each kennel inspected.

License fees for dogs in Ingham are now $1.00 for a 3 month old or older male or unsexed dog and $2.00 for a female dog. Fees are due on or before March 1. After that the fees are doubled.

LETTERS

Money for Dogs

Money is Going to the Dogs by Mrs. A. J. Snyder should be given a vote of thanks. She is entitled to an answer to her letter. It is the duty of any public official to answer a citizen's request for information. The odds are 36 to 2 right now. There are 38 supervisors.

There is a dog on the loose in or around Mason or Lansing, Chum escaped from the Ingham county animal shelter. He was listed as a Collie. He must have been a leaping bound to make the high fence. It is rather tough to pay for a tag and then have the law pick up your dog and then, of all things, lose it. Who's got Chum? Please return Chum to the rightful owner. No questions will be asked.

When we speak of money going to the dogs and doctors going through the roof for a 5-spot I think it is high time for some of our public officials to do a little more thinking before they make the rules and regulations they are making the people swallow. I got caught between 2 outhouses by a public official.

Money, they say, is a curse, but it is nice to have. But to spend millions and billions without any concrete results is a waste. P. D. R. said, "Bury the pigs, the hog price is too bad." Harry T. said, "File the spiders high. Spray them with dye." What is the price of spiders today? The present administration is telling men to stay out of the vineyards because the country is running over with grain. The new bumper crop in Texas is being piled in the open and bins across the nation are loaded to capacity. Who should tell God to keep his men out of the vineyard?

Do what you want, Mr. Politician, with your parties, your subsidies to continue to agriculture, railroads, air lines, and what have you? Supply and demand made America. It will keep America economically strong. All the senators and the whole congress will never beat God to the punch.

If subsidies and parties have been so profitable to the American people why doesn't someone pass a bill to subsidize our auto industry, buy up the balance of the 1958 cars on the market, burn them, bury them and then we will sell the 1959 models when they come off the line, and of course, there would be no unemployment.

WHAT
FOR

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	Matthew	16	13-20
Monday	Matthew	18	15-20
Tuesday	Acts	2	41-47
Wednesday	Acts	6	1-6
Thursday	Acts	20	17-35
Friday	I Corinthians	10	23-33
Saturday	I Corinthians	9	19-23

Folks are curious. "What is it for... What does it do?" They usually want to know about everything they come across.

But ask them, "What's the Church for... What does it do?" and they're likely to stop short.

You can tell them the Church is the oldest institution in your community. It stands for God, for right-living, and for the way of Christ.

Its aim is to help develop Christian character... to share a soul-lifting gospel with each person.

It strengthens the community's ceaseless struggle against crime... it serves families and individuals in times of trouble, sorrow, or sickness. It rejoices with them in their happiness.

Once you're aware of the Church's far-reaching program, its challenge is irresistible.

Accept it... take your stand for God, for right-living, and for the way of Christ through the Church.

Schools Need New Design For Children Uninterested

Many classrooms today contain children who cannot possibly benefit from the instruction because of their emotional and social deviation, is the declaration of William C. Morse, professor of educational psychology at the University of Michigan.

"By law they are required to stay in school," he stated. "They are captive clientele but they are not about to learn."

Professor Morse stressed the need to study what is appropriate for particular types of children. It is quite possible that special attention to such needs would give the classroom a new lease on learning, he pointed out.

He said that the classroom has lost status as the right-center for learning.

"It has been run down as being merely an arena for socialization; an amorphous mass, an irreconcilable range from imbeciles to geniuses, and an operation infested with milk money collectors and the reading of notices. If we are to improve education, we will have to improve the climate for learning," he stated.

"We arrange special provisions for the dull, but we ignore the fact that classrooms can become clogged with other pupils having no readiness for learning. Some have attitudinal defects, with block investment in school tasks. They conduct the cold war campaigns against education. Many act out their problems in the classroom."

"Reluctance to segregate them is destroying the school's basic tool, classrooms for school learning. The problem thus imposed is literally wearing out many a sensitive career teacher. The majority of class members are short-changed while the teacher tries to come with the maladjusted."

"Teachers themselves become frustrated and demonstrate unhygienic behavior which is difficult for the normal youngster to accept. For every year of teaching they put in, they must have twice the time invested in pseudo-therapeutic attempts to help the wayward ones. A rethinking of this basic issue would be a boon to the maladjusted pupil, the teacher, and the group."

"But it would do more toward improving education than all the conferences on education for the space age."

Fruits Grown in Michigan Match Orange in Vitamins

Oranges may get all the glory, but Michigan-grown fruits are just as valuable in providing basic vitamin content.

So stated one of the nation's leading public health nutritionists in urging Michigan housewives and restaurants to use greater amounts of locally-grown fruits and vegetables.

The University of Michigan's Adella M. Beeuwkes, associate professor of public health nutrition and a nationally recognized specialist in the field, said, "Citrus fruits deserve considerable attention, but in general they have been overrated in the light of the many other sources of vitamin C."

Essential for health and growth, vitamin C—ascorbic acid—helps the body use the oxygen carried in the bloodstream, and forms part of the vital "mortar" which binds living cells together. It is one of the few necessary chemicals of life which is never created by the body itself.

Among the Michigan products which challenge the lofty orange as a source of vitamin C, Prof. Beeuwkes mentioned: Cantaloupe, blackberries, blueberries, apples, grapes and watermelon.

The average Michigan cantaloupe, she said, probably has a considerably greater vitamin C content than the average imported orange.

Local vegetables that provide large portions of vitamin C include tomatoes, green peppers, broccoli and kohlrabi.

"One of the very best sources, though often neglected, is the common potato," Prof. Beeuwkes said. "Two baked potatoes will give you all the vitamin C of an orange, plus additional food values which are entirely lacking in citrus fruits."

Prof. Beeuwkes described vitamin C as "the most fragile of all the food vitamins. It is found in different fruits and vegetables in varying amounts, and varies in the same fruit or vegetable at different times of the growth cycle."

"It reaches its peak when the quality for eating is best. When a vegetable is crisp, fresh and good, it has reached the very top of its nutritional value."

"The less time lost in getting fruit 'from earth to table' the more vitamin C is retained, Miss Beeuwkes said. "Modern advances in freezing and canning generally retain the nutritive value of the foods at the instant of packaging."

Quoting U. S. department of agriculture figures, Prof. Beeuwkes said one out of 4 families has a substantial amount of vitamin C in their regular diet. "This can be overcome simply and economically by eating more locally-grown fruits and vegetables," she said. "No one in Michigan need ever get scurvy, even if he never sees an orange."

RELIC OF THE WEST
The Wichita Mountains wildlife refuge in Oklahoma is a living museum of America's pioneer past, says the National Geographic Magazine. Buffalo still roam the ranges, along with antelope, deer, and longhorns. As the animals may charge without provocation, highway signs in the refuge warn visitors against leaving the road.

Teacher Gets College Degree

Mrs. Pamela M. Shoemaker of Mason will be among the 401 receiving diplomas and teaching certificates Thursday evening, July 31, by Western Michigan university, Kalamazoo. Mrs. Shoemaker will receive a bachelor of science degree. She is librarian at Mason high school.

Dr. Frances C. Rosecrance, dean of the college of education of Wayne State university, will be speaker for the occasion. Graduates in the summer class are from all over the United States, France and Greece, and range in age from 20 to 71 years.

Polio Foundation Plans Expansion

The Ingham county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is looking forward to participation in a broad new health program, Max E. Murningham, chapter chairman, said.

Returning from Detroit where volunteer leaders of the National Foundation were given an outline of the new objectives of the organization supported by the March of Dimes.

The National Foundation, while continuing its fight against polio, plans to expand its activities. Initial new goals will be arthritis and birth defects (congenital malformations). Virus research and investigations of disorders of the central nervous system will be expanded.

"Our chapter will continue to meet its obligations to polio patients in Ingham county for as long as they need assistance," Murningham said. "This is our primary responsibility. But the idea of a voluntary association dedicated to improvement of man's health, ready and able to move in whatever direction scientific discoveries lead it, not confined to a single disease, is a tremendous challenge."

Financial support for the new program will be sought through the traditional March of Dimes in January, Murningham emphasized, adding that additional responsibilities undoubtedly will mean additional need for funds in Ingham county, as elsewhere.

"Our patient aid program for children through 18 who have arthritis and certain birth defects will be developed as we learn these things and is subject, of course, to the willingness of people in Ingham county to give sufficient financial support for the program," Murningham said.

UPROAR IN MOSCOW—A crowd of some 100,000 aroused Muscovites swarm near the U.S. Embassy, shouting against a line of mounted police. The crowd, enraged by U.S. and U.K. troop landings in Lebanon and Jordan, burst through the police line and smashed hundreds of windows in the embassy building. No one inside was hurt.

Bagwell Shows Zip in Campaigning

By ELMER E. WHITE
Michigan Press Association

Republicans have an energetic candidate running for governor at a time when voters have become used to energy, sparkle and action.

He is Paul D. Bagwell, who won one national election with crazy hats and flashy vests and slogans. Bagwell learned the technique worked when he was elected national president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce a few years ago.

He proved it again in the years in which he served as state March of Dimes chairman. Bagwell has some professionals in his camp, and they are growing with the job.

Campaigners have been lacking up small signs in every cranny, "Bagwell was here," on the chance he will become as well known as Kilroy, of World War II fame.

They paid $1,700 for a 1908 Oldsmobile to carry him on his campaign, to dramatize the age of the 1908 constitution and hint that Democrats have held the office long enough.

Bagwell's speeches are full of the old college zip, but laced with tough facts dug up by dedicated researchers.

Brashness comes unnaturally to Bagwell, who lived the polite life of a college professor and, though never a snob, counted top business executives among his friends.

One report quoted an aide as saying "Bagwell had to talk himself into coming uninvited" to a legislative party at Cheboygan where he went on a handshaking tour of the hall.

Though he was eyed with misgivings by some Republicans when he tackled Williams, Bagwell has been advised to avoid mistakes of his unsuccessful predecessors.

So now, he will seek out legislators in their districts and ask their advice—which he can use, and offer his help—which most legislators can use.

Other Republican candidates have encountered wide schisms in the party, which he hopes to circumvent.

The contrast of the Bagwell effort with the highly-tuned Democratic machine is startling.

From Gov. Williams down to the newest precinct worker, the party is organized. It is the workmanship of state chairman Neil Staebler and the result of dedication to a cause.

Staebler enjoys phenomenal success in keeping the party interested and fighting during the dull off-years between campaigns.

He has organized contests, coffee hours, style shows. No one who ever worked for the Democrats has ever been forgotten—unless he strayed from party principles.

Another maneuver is the "promotion-appearance" system Williams uses.

When an important vacancy occurs, Williams names a worker in a lesser post to fill it. This creates 2 appointments where only one vacancy existed.

It has the tendency to keep young men working in state government, and for the party.

Williams chooses his appointees carefully. Few have fallen short of the intelligence, diligence and stamina demanded of important public jobs.

It is safe to assume that gone will vote for Bagwell and, maybe, they will even distribute Williams' bumper stickers and help fill a hall occasionally for one of his speeches.

One observer put it cynically: "For a Republican candidate to win now, he has to beat a popular Williams, and most of state government, in addition to getting his own people behind him."

Officials are worried about a new threat to the state's safety record: the 100 mile-an-hour speeders.

Secretary of State James M. Hare predicted his driver record files would have more than 400 cases by the end of the summer.

He has asked for a combined radio network to link state police and sheriff's cars to trap speeders who can outrun even the fastest law enforcement vehicles.

"None of our police cars can go 130 miles an hour and we're being outclassed," he said.

What Love Can Do

Forty-six years ago after Dr. Lawrence Drolett of Lansing had made a night call 4 children were summoned into a kitchen. It was before the days of hospitals and baby incubators. On the open oven door of the kitchen range was a shoebox and within the box, wrapped in gauze and cotton, was a baby born prematurely.

"There is little chance for the baby to live more than a few days," the father told the other children. "The doctor gives slight hope."

The baby lived, not because of medical science. She lived solely because her mother lavished love and affection upon the baby. She grew into childhood because of the acceptance and the understanding of the parents. She never had good health. There were many things she could not do. But what she did do she did well and did willingly.

She was not shunted into a corner because she was different. She was not humored because she lacked strength and stamina. She was set to lessons she could learn. She was assigned to tasks she could do. When public schooling proved inadequate she received private lessons.

As a result of those lessons she learned to read books which strangers assumed were beyond her grasp. She read historical books — books about national leaders and Biblical characters.

Mrs. Lucius White and girls of her Sunday school class demonstrated their Christian love and charity. They took the girl into their class. They gave her companionship. They gave her courage. They gave her hope. Their consideration was a blessing almost equal to that of the love given the girl by her parents.

Because of the love and devotion of the parents and the blessing of the church and Sunday school the girl developed a happy and generous disposition. She was thoughtful and considerate of others. She was a favorite of her young nieces and nephews, perhaps because they accepted her as one of themselves. Up until her decline which began about 3 years ago, she was not a burden. She was a willing helper in the household. She was good company for herself and for others.

She was Dorothy Brown. The baby with only a few days to live survived for 46 years, and except for the last few years she and those near her were the richer for it.

Vernon J. Brown may go down in Michigan history as a man who served the public as a county and state official. He may be remembered by others as a newspaperman and as a civic leader. His wife may be remembered as one devoted to Christian ideals. But to those who knew the family situation the greatness of the parents, the depths of their love and affection, their innate kindness and mercy, are inseparably linked to the love and understanding they gave a child who needed all of it.

Had Vernon J. Brown and his wife never done anything else worthwhile, their insistence upon giving their daughter as normal a family life as was possible would assure them high places among the most successful of men and women in any field of endeavor.

Their acceptance without a murmur of what some people might consider a burden made the life of Dorothy a testimonial to Christian love and humility.

There are other parents, several in this community, who have demonstrated the same acceptance, who have done their utmost to care for children who need exceptional care. In not all cases is home care possible. But where it is possible and adequate there can be no acceptable substitute.

This is no eulogy. The words are designed to inspire and encourage others in like circumstances to accept their responsibilities as uncomplainingly. The words here are intended to give all of us greater understanding and acceptance of children who have not been endowed with vigorous physical and mental health, to remind all of us to live the Christianity we profess.

What Choice?

Statisticians look for just 32% of the registered voters in Michigan to vote in the primary elections Tuesday. While the estimate certainly isn't impressive, it comes as no surprise. Voters aren't necessarily to be blamed for apathy.

The indifference to both primaries and general elections comes naturally to many otherwise patriotic citizens who feel they have little choice among candidates. Democrats, while trying to hang onto Democratic followers, are Republicans as much as possible. Republicans, declaring party principles, act like Democrats when they get down to cases.

There are a few subtle differences between Republicans and Democrats. Yet those differences are not strong enough to lure a major percentage of registered voters to the polls.

Many will say that they have lost interest in politics because party officeholders and candidates have not lived up to principles.

Those who label themselves independents have little interest in a primary election anyway. The primary is an internal party procedure which selects supposedly the best candidate to represent the party principles. Only at the general election should an independent cast a vote.

So in view of what candidates and officeholders stand for or don't stand for and in view of what they actually do and in view of the increasing number of self-branded independents, it's surprising that anybody votes.

Quite possibly, should a greater percentage of registered voters actually vote, things could be different. That's the one great hope.

The majority of those who do not vote are indifferent to candidates. Should enough independents get behind a candidate who is not afraid to be counted, the trend away from nothingism could well begin.

If Michigan's 2 major parties would give the voters a choice, activity at the polls would increase.

Voters must be given more than the opportunity to select between water and water before they can be criticized for apathy.

A New Roof Is Maintenance

Mason property owners have logic on their side in their appeal to the council to exempt roof replacements from the building code.

There is no more reason to impose a fee for a building permit on a new roof than there is for a paint job on the siding. Owners of property with composition roofs do not have to apply for building permits to mop on a new coat of tar or asphalt, or even to build up the roof with new layers of paper.

The building code with its schedule of fees should exempt roofs and other minor repairs. There is usually no inspection; there is generally no service performed by the inspector on roofing jobs.

If there is no service performed there is little excuse for charging a fee for a property owner to repair and maintain his roof.

The city ordinance ought to be clarified on roofs. Replacement and maintenance of roofs ought to be exempt from the construction code and the requirement that a fee be paid.

Quick work by Doyle Burgess and Bill Bergin Jr. prevented what could have been a bad Mason fire. Henry Driggs, Dansville, fell from his car while turning from Park onto Maple street. The car kept on going and sheared off a gas pump at the Burgess gas station, shooting flaming gasoline into the air. Burgess and Bergin kept the blaze in check until the fire department arrived.

Heavy rains slowed Ingham's wheat harvest Monday and Tuesday.

Recommittal services for Lt. Jean Anderson are scheduled for Sunday. The Aurelius air hero died in a plane crash in England when he stayed at the controls of his crippled bomber rather than abandon it over an English town.

Ingham county 4-H members, 650 strong, visited the Detroit zoo Tuesday. Mrs. Lowena Murphy, home demonstration agent, was in charge of the outing.

Workmen are rushing to completion the improvements and addition to the grandstand at the county park in order to have it ready for the fair.

Down by the SYCAMORE

There is a parallel between bringing up children and tending a garden.

Just about everybody grows enthusiastic over garden vegetables and garden flowers.

"Aren't they delicious?" they exclaim over the vegetables. "What beauty!" they remark about the flowers. Many fail to realize that the tasty vegetables and the beautiful flowers were produced because weeds were not permitted to gain a foothold.

It is not enough to love flowers. A good gardener must also hate weeds.

It is not enough to love the babies and the little boys and girls (even the bigger boys and girls). Good parents must keep the weeds from growing. They must constantly cultivate their family gardens. They must hoe frequently. They must hoe out, jerk out or chemically spray the weeds if they expect the garden to produce quality vegetables and flowers.

It is not enough to love children, as the parents of children permitted to grow without attention to cultivation of the soil and to killing of weeds eventually realize. Love is needed, but there must be hate too—hate for the bad habits that may creep in to choke out the flowers. That hate must be strong enough to lead parents to regularly cultivate the soil and to continuously fight the weeds. There can be no good garden without toll, whether the crop be men and women, or vegetables or flowers.

This discourse on how to raise posies stemmed from a remark in last week's column about the posy bed at Rogers and Okemos streets in Mason. A reader pointed out that posy has another meaning besides flower; that a posy is a motto.

He displayed a posy engraved on the inside of his wedding ring. When he bought the ring in England he was given his choice of 10 standard posies: 1. AET (Greek for "always"); 2. For ever and aye; 3. In thee my choice; 4. Let love increase; 5. May God above increase our love; 6. Not two but one 'Till life is gone; 7. My heart and I, Until I die; 8. When this you see, Then think of me; 9. Love is heaven and heaven is love; and 10. Wedlock, 'tis said, In heaven is made. He selected No. 3 and has never had cause to regret it. Oh, happy man!

Chuck Clipper has a queer way of meeting the dawn. He awakens by degrees. To arise at 6:00 he makes 3 settings of his alarm, first call at 4:00, second at 4:45 and third at 5:50. Then his wife speaks to him sharply at 6:00 and he climbs out of bed refreshed. "It is delicious, this lying abed after the alarm goes off," he explained. "It makes me feel good not to have to get up when the bell rings."

Offsetting the Postage Hike

The new postal rates are going to be felt. They are going to make it more costly to do business. But there are several ways in which economies can be effected.

In many cases postcards instead of letters can be used, saving on stationery as well as postage.

Sales-making stuffers can be added to bring envelope contents up to weights paid for.

Airmail postage for business is wasted if mailings go out on Fridays or before holidays, and is generally wasted for destinations within 450 miles or to destinations with infrequent or no air service.

Envelopes can well carry advertising messages, perhaps enough to offset the increased cost.

Business firms are going to have to pay more for postage. They can offset some of the increase by making changes in their correspondence systems and mailing schedules.

V. L. Palmer and Lange Schmidt made changes in Mason's business district. Palmer moved his grocery business from Maple street to Jefferson. Schmidt took over Palmer's Maple street store for an addition to his department store.

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a large barn at the Frank Baldwin farm in Onondaga Thursday. Two other disastrous farm fires during the week at the Fred Brown and D. S. Townsend farms kept Mason and Leslie firemen busy.

Alex Chisolm set a new Mason golf course record with a 66 for 18 holes. He toured both rounds in 33.

Members of Browne-Cavender American Legion post harvested 1,000 bushels of wheat Sunday. Proceeds will help pay off the Legion building debt.

A rabid dog attacked Miss Mae Lamb at the William Palen farm. She received severe lacerations on the back of her neck and head. The Mason nurse was rushed to University hospital in Ann Arbor for Pasteur treatment.

A full house of Mason milk dealers and employees attended Monday night's council meeting when the proposed Mason milk ordinance came up for discussion. No action was taken.

Jesse Kent received severe injuries when his pacer, Thomas, fell just before the start of a race at Mason's Quickstep track.

N. N. Rouse raced his mare to a new track record in the last event.

Kenneth Squiers of Wheatfield had his hand mangled when he caught it in the separator of his threshing rig Tuesday.

Seventy Mason people accompanied the K. of P. baseball team to St. Johns Thursday. Mason won 12-3.

Business stopped in Mason Monday when a Lansing business man parked his $6,000

Thomas touring car in front of the court house.

Ingham county's welfare costs for the year reached a total of $15,245, according to the report given supervisors by D. E. Watts, superintendent of the poor.

Farmers Learn How It Is Done

Good management practices impressed the 150 on Ingham's farm tour Friday.

The Hershell Head farm on Holt road and the Rex Townsend farm on East Columbia were visited. Extension specialists were on hand at both places to point out the best practices.

Implement dealers cooperated in the farm demonstrations. Members of the Ingham Agricultural Council assisted in arrangement for and conducting of the tour.

Dr. L. Turk of the MSU experiment station pointed out new things to expect in the future. "The future looks bright for farmers if they move ahead with new practices," he declared.

The Heads have a modern farm home. Mrs. Head is a 4-H leader. The 2 teen-age boys are enthusiastic 4-H members.

A wagon tour of the Head farm showed the good cropping practices through using high amounts of fertilizer to get above-average yields on main crops of alfalfa, oats and corn.

The machinery demonstration was largely on hay conditions. Local dealers used several types of hay conditioners. Robert White of the MSU agricultural engineering department, stressed timeliness in doing the conditioning to make it possible to handle hay from mow to barn in one day. Larry Tripp, of the Ingham soil conservation service, emphasized the good cropping practices with large acreage of legumes which put nitrogen into the soil.

Building features seen at the Head farm: a modern walk-through milking parlor, loose housing barn, hay shed, and new large diameter cement stave silo.

In an interview with Dick Nelson, extension agent, Head emphasized that they try to make some major improvement each year.

In 1958 they added the larger diameter silo and have moved to green-chopping summer feed for the dairy herd. This, he said, increases the quality and quantity of feed per acre and will save on fence building.

L. H. Brown, agricultural economist at MSU pointed out that good farm management consists of doing many ordinary things extraordinarily well. He listed 4 major areas to watch: 1. General organization of program with emphasis on man-hours per unit; 2. cropping program; 3. livestock program; and 4. expenses per tillable acre.

He showed comparative figures of central Michigan farms with the Head farm. The Head farm ranks high in tillable acres per man, gross income, crop value per acre, high crop yields and milk sales per cow.

The afternoon meeting at the Rex Townsend farm featured a 253-acre farm with 200 acres tillable. Townsend and his wife started farming for themselves on share basis in 1938 and 4 years later purchased the present farm. They now have a family of 4 sons and a daughter. The daughter has completed one year at MSU. The 3 older boys are just at the age to help with the farm work. They are in 4-H with dairy and corn projects. Next year the older boy will start FFA at Dansville and plans to feed a pair of steers.

The Townsends have made improvements to the farm and home. He has tilled much of the farm land, built new fence, and has a 5,000-bushel corn crib and a good line of equipment.

In 1952 the Townsends made a substantial addition to the house and Mrs. Townsend said she has

Prison Holstein Joins Top Group

A hard-working old registered Holstein cow in the Jackson prison herd has joined the select "iron grandma" circle with a lifetime production record of more than 200,000 lb of milk.

She is Bessie Osbornale Carnation 2395145 (VC)—15 years old and still going strong after topping the combined lifetime output of 8 average dairy animals.

The Michigan cow's lifetime production now totals 229,857 lb of milk and 8,090 lb of butterfat.

She is one of 88 registered Holsteins which to date have produced more than 200,000 lb of milk.

This all-time total dates back to 1920 with recent progress reflected in the fact that 28 of the 88 cows involved have milked their way into the "iron grandma" ranks during the last 18 months.

Bessie Osbornale Carnation was bred in the prison herd and has spent her entire career there. Outstanding in type as well as production, she is classified "Very Good"—the second highest designation in the official Holstein type program.

A consistently good brood cow over the years, she has 7 daughters, 2 sons, 9 granddaughters and 8 grandsons registered in the Holstein-Friesian herd book.

DANGER ON FARM
About 12,800 lives of farm residents are taken each year by accidents. More than a million farm residents are injured. Machinery and unsafe climbing devices are the most common areas of farm work injury.

CHARTS helped farmers get the picture of good management on the Hershell Head farm. Explaining the charts are Head, (at the left), Dr. Lauren H. Brown, professor of agricultural economics at Michigan State, and Dick Nelson of the county extension staff.

FARMERS gathered at the Rex Townsend farm heard experts explain how the Townsend farm practices compares with other comparable operations.

all of the modern conveniences, including a dishwasher. That is an important feature with 4 boys at home and a daughter away at school, it was pointed out.

Good management of the farm has made it possible for the Townsends to purchase and develop this farm and fine family during the past 20 years.

Townsend has developed his cropping program around the hog-beef business. He plans to raise 35 to 40 sows each year on a one-litter basis with a minimum of labor. The sows farrow in the woods. As soon as the pigs are weaned, the sows are fattened and put on the market. Gilts are then kept for the next year. Townsend has averaged 8½ pigs per litter the past few years.

He has fed 30 to 50 steers per year, depending upon what buys he can make. His crops have been largely corn—90 to 100 acres per year to feed his livestock. Good yields result from high fertilizer applications on good soil worked at the right time.

Townsend said the best feature to see on his farm was the excellent chemical feed plot on corn. Simazine at 2 lb per acre at planting time gave almost complete weed control with no cultivation. In addition, the corn was an excellent color and a bit larger than that which received 3 cultivations and extra nitrogen as a side dressing.

A straw-chopping and baling demonstration was put on which showed that the Lundell chopper, with elephant trunk attachment, leaves the straw in condition to pick up and bale satisfactorily.

Pamphlet programs showing how these 2 farms stack up in management practices with area 5 farms are available at the extension office in Mason.

Some people are no good at counting calories and they have the figures to prove it.

Sidewalk days will be in Mason Friday and Saturday, August 8 and 9. Mason merchants are just a little chesty over the annual event. A year ago sidewalk days had been tried in only a few isolated communities. After Mason merchants made a success of it, inquiries came in from many other towns. This year there have been or will be sidewalk days in St. Johns, Lapeer, Ionia and Lansing. If you like to haggle over bargains right out on the sidewalk, be in Mason next week end. Ed Ware, chairman of the event this year, claims merchandise is so hot that it has to be kept outdoors. Curb will be lined with racks and tables loaded with clothes, shoes, groceries, hardware items, camera equipment, jewelry and hundreds of other commodities. So far, sidewalk days is Mason's biggest merchandising event.

This is the time of year that first graders are anxious to get back to school and mothers are anxious to send them.

Michigan at the South Haven experiment station that mature from a week to 2 weeks earlier than Elberta. These varieties have better color and are rich in flavor.

For nearly a half century the Elberta reigned supreme in Michigan, as it still does in most peach producing states. Recent estimates indicate the earlier Redhaven variety makes up a third of the state's crop with the dark Halehaven second with 28%.

The initial homegrown peaches should appear in markets around August 6. The harvest should continue until around September 25 with receipts dropping off sharply after the peak is reached because today there are more trees bearing early varieties than there are trees bearing late.

An old-time favorite peach variety, the Elberta, no longer is the principal Michigan peach. It has given way to earlier peach varieties propagated right in

HAY PRODUCTION DROPS
Hay production in Michigan this year will be the smallest since the drought of 1934. The favorable grain price situation this year makes it more profitable to buy grain than to buy additional hay.

Seed Needs Moist Soil

The time to make summer seedlings of alfalfa is when moisture is sufficient to grow the crop. Right now most of the county has ample moisture to supply alfalfa seedlings until fall rains begin.

The only reason for waiting so long is that most years moisture is short until late August or early September.

This year with the late July rains enough moisture is present to carry the seedlings through. The earlier planting will give larger and more vigorous seedlings which will be better able to survive the winter and produce maximum cuttings next year.

On grain fields plow the stubble and straw under right away and plant immediately. On summer fallow, of course, plowing will not be necessary and planting should not be delayed. Old pastures can be plowed and reseeded now, too.

Apply 200-500 lb of fertilizer per acre using an 0-28-14 or similar analysis on heavier soils and an 0-20-20 on sander soils.

The fertilizer should be drilled in using a grain drill and the seed banded directly over the fertilizer. Banding attachments are easily made to fit most drills.

The seed should be packed either with press wheels on the drill or with a cultipacker.

The amount of seed to use per acre may vary some but is usually 6 lb per acre of Vernal alfalfa. Mixtures usually consist of 4.5 lb of bromegrass or 1-2 lb of timothy and ½ to 1 lb of ladino clover.

Nurse crops such as oats or barley are undesirable in summer seedlings since they rob the seedlings of moisture and provide little benefit to the seedling.

Successful seedlings are planned—not caught.

Nature Aids in Best Grass Kill

Farmers now have some good chemicals for their battle against quackgrass. But it looks as if nature will need to lend a helping hand.

University of Wisconsin agronomists report that rainfall after the chemicals are applied will help a good deal in controlling quack.

The chemicals used in this test are dalapon and 2, 3, 6 TBA.

Rain carries the weed killer into the soil to surround underground stems of quackgrass, they explain. That stops the buds on the stems from producing new growth.

That means quackgrass control may not be very effective if there's little or no rain between treatment and plowing. However, too much rain interferes with the weed killer's action, by leaching it out of the quack root zone.

In greenhouse experiments it was found that dalapon evidently works on the buds on the underground stems to prevent regrowth of quackgrass.

That may mean the material can be applied before the weed has produced much foliage, so long as weather conditions are right. Earlier applications would be helpful because corn can't safely be planted on treated land until after a 3 to 4 week waiting period.

LIVESTOCK PRICE SLUMP

Michigan farmers can expect prices paid for hogs and cattle to slip downward later this summer and into fall. Wheat and poultry and egg prices, on the other hand, will probably climb a little by fall, say Michigan State university farm economists.

Elberta is estimated to have only 18% in Michigan.

Such "haven" varieties as the Fairhaven and the Kalhaven also have been extensively planted as has Redskin. All have excellent flavor and are ideal for eating out of hand, in prepared desserts or for home processing.

Soil Bank Plan Favors Whole Farms

By CARL COLLIN
The sign-up period for placing farms under the soil bank for 1959 will start about September 1. The acreage reserve part of the bank will not be in effect this year. More emphasis is being placed on putting whole farms in the bank for longer terms.

An increase in the national average payment for conservation reserve land will be made. The national average will be $13.50 per acre compared with the $10.00 rate this year. An additional payment of 10% above normal rates will be made to farmers who put all their eligible land in the bank for at least 5 years. Priorities for accepting applications will be given those who offer to put all their land under the plan and to those who offer to retire their acres from production for lower-than-average rates.

County ACP committees will handle the program and will announce local details soon.

The number of farms operating this year is estimated at about 100,000 fewer than a year ago. This estimate was made recently by the congressional joint economic committee, and put the number of farms operating in the second quarter of 1958 at 4.8 million.

The change in the farm picture in the past several decades has been terrific. In 1920 there were 13.4 million people working 6.5 million farms averaging 148 acres apiece. Today there are only 7.6 million people working 4.8 million farms averaging 255 acres each. Yet farm production is 60% higher now than 38 years ago.

The 22% increase in net farm income the first half of 1958 compared with the same period last year was the result of several factors.

Delayed sale of 1957-crop cotton and corn accounted for two-fifths of the increase. An increase in non-money income (value of food consumed on the farm, housing, etc.) also contributed to the income rise. Livestock prices 14% higher than a year earlier more than offset smaller marketings. The result was that income from livestock was 12% above last year.

Crop income was up 10% from 1957. Steady prices due to price supports and some freeze damage coupled with larger marketings contributed to this boost. Some of the larger crop marketings were due to sales held over from 1957. The question is how much of the 22% increase in net farm income represents an actual recovery trend and how much was due to other factors.

Not many years ago, only pork was cured and stored for farm use. Cold storage lockers and home freezers have changed this greatly. About two-thirds of all farm families now have home freezers, a cold storage locker, or both.

The amount of frozen beef per household ranges from 65 lb in the south to 227 lb in the west;

Farm Animals Sunburn, Too

The painful results of over-exposure to bright sunlight is not an exclusive summer hazard for humans.

The American Foundation for Animal Health points out that a combination of 3 factors can produce a condition known as photosensitization in livestock. Those factors are . . . white or lightly pigmented skin, strong sunlight and a sensitizing agent. The sensitizing agent usually is some chemical in certain forage such as buckwheat or clovers.

Photo-sensitization can be prevented by providing farm animals with plenty of shade and giving susceptible livestock hay even when they are on pasture. Affected animals should be treated with healing salves to prevent infections and serious cases should be treated by a veterinarian.

for pork, 42 lb in the south and 129 lb in the north central states. Vegetables still lead all frozen food sales in chain stores. They account for a third of all sales. Juices are second, accounting for a little over one-fifth. Total sales of frozen foods are expected to jump at least 50% by 1975.

USDA is again buying frozen ready-to-cook turkeys to bolster market prices.

Purchases are being made on competitive bids for grade A and B birds ranging from 18 to 24 lb. Turkeys must be processed after contracts are awarded and must be federally inspected for wholesomeness. The government last bought turkeys to bolster prices in 1956, when it laid out $10 million to buy 27 million pounds. Turkeys purchased in the 1958 program will be used in the national school lunch program.

Living costs have gone up an average of 105% in the last 20 years. That means that on the average you must pay $2.05 today for something you could have bought for a dollar 20 years ago. Individual family items didn't go up the same, of course. For instance, the cost of gas and electricity rose a little over 11%. Coal and fuel oil jumped 129%.

During the same period a pair of baby shoes rose 171%, a new car 125%, rent 60% and food a whopping 151%. This last item is not to be confused with farm prices.

Hospital costs about head the list, rising nearly 300%. Fees of doctors increased 84%, men's haircuts 206%, gasoline 69%, and household appliances 33%.

Per capita butter purchases dropped 4% in May. Current annual rate of consumption by U. S. consumers is said to be slightly less than 8 lb a year. That's about half the average 30 years ago. Latest USDA survey doesn't bear out Secretary Benson's forecast

Research Results Will Be Revealed At MSU Horticultural Field Day

Extensive experiments with black plastic and aluminum foil mulches are 2 of the many horticultural research plots being readied for the horticultural field day slated for August 13 at Michigan State University. Starting time is 10 a. m.

All types of horticultural research will be open for inspection by visitors to the field day, said John Carow, extension horticulture specialist. Growers of fruits, vegetables and ornamental horticulture plants will find interesting research to see, Carow said.

Fruit growers can look at dwarf trees 2 to 12 years old, see peach thinning experiments, inspect a controlled atmosphere storage and hear about tree fruit fertilization and weed control tests.

Refrigerated plastic houses for the study of apple finish as affected by spray materials is expected to attract much attention.

For vegetable growers, the Michigan State horticultural staff will describe chemical weed control tests, explain plant breeding projects with hybrid carrots, onions and disease resistant melons and cucumbers. Variety trials, gibberellin (growth stimulator) test plots are other features in addition to the mulch material tests.

Ornamental horticulture research will include weed control on container grown plants, fertilizer studies and experiments dealing with photoperiods and gibberellin applications to ornamental plants.

Field day visitors may also tour the plant science greenhouses. There, they can look at large petunia trial and ask questions about the four methods of air conditioning in use there. Plastic greenhouses being used in research studies are nearby and can also be inspected.

Visitors will find signs to direct them to the horticulture farm located on the south campus off Farm Lane. Staff members of the department of horticulture will be on hand at the plots to explain the studies and answer questions. Visitors may either bring their lunch or obtain it at many nearby restaurants.

Qualifications Are Set On Chick Advertising

Poultry hatcheries throughout the country have taken steps to assure the chick buyer that the breeding claims about the chicks are accurate.

Delegates from hatchery groups in 47 states adopted rule

Slag Falls Under Liming Standards

Water-quenched blast furnace slag is not as profitable to use as common liming materials.

Soil scientists at Michigan State University have made this preliminary report on the slag after greenhouse testing. Field research is now going on to make a further check.

The tests, which compared slag to dolomitic limestone and calcium carbonate, were set up because slag could be a cost-cutting product where it gives good results. The material costs about $3.50 per ton.

One drawback to slag that showed up in the tests is its slow action. In all soils where the slag was applied the pH was still below 7.0 at the end of the test while the other materials had raised the pH to 7.0 or above.

However, slag does give a favorable response on sandy soils. There was a significant increase in total alfalfa yields on Kalkaska sand when the slag was added.

The soils researchers say that there is a possibility that slag may contain several trace elements. If so, this property could be the most valuable benefit from the use of the material. The tests now underway have been set up to find out some of the needed information.

changes to make baby chick advertising more exact at the recent national plans rules conference in Kentucky, said D. D. Moyer, extension poultry specialist at Michigan State University.

Moyer pointed out that chick buyers often have been confronted with many claims about the breeding of chicks and had no way to check on the claims. The new procedure specifically spells out what the hatchery must supply in the way of support for its claims.

When a breeder's name or strain designation is used in advertising, the hatchery must be able by records to prove that the chicks being sold are from flocks that are made up of (1) birds hatched from eggs produced under the direct supervision of the breeder of such a strain; or (2) stock multiplied by persons designated and so reported by the breeder to the official state agency where the hatchery is located.

In Michigan the agency that checks on the accuracy of advertising is the Michigan Poultry and Hatchery Federation.

Wool Producers Receive Subsidy

Shorn wool payments for the 1957 marketing year are $15.50 for every $100 received from wool sales.

Payments on sales of unshorn lambs are 33c per hundredweight of live animals sold.

Sheep raisers are advised to check with their county agricultural stabilization and conservation offices regarding these incentive payments.

Raymond Powell Serves on FHA

Raymond A. Powell, Williamston, has been appointed a member of the Ingham county Farmers Home Administration committee.

The other 2 members serving with Powell are Chellis P. Hall, Mason, and Devo F. Wilcox, Stockbridge. Powell succeeds Wayne Rundman of Williamston, whose 3-year term expired this year.

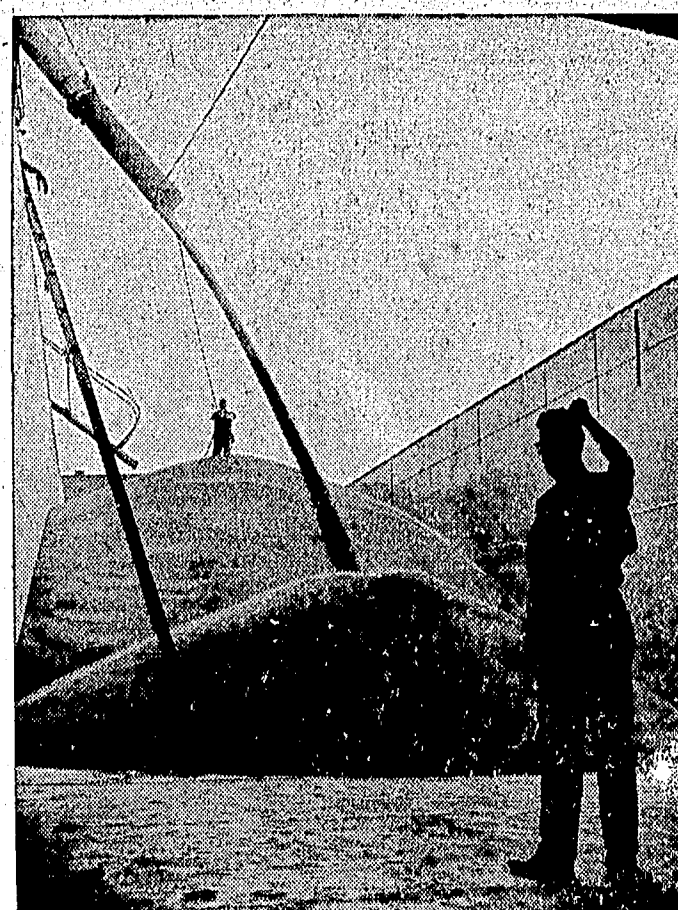

Each agricultural county in Michigan has a 3-member committee to work with the county supervisor on the farm credit service program. The committee determines the eligibility of applicants for all types of Farmers Home Administration loans, and determines the suitability and fair and reasonable values of farms to be taken as security for real estate loans. It also reviews borrowers' progress as they pay off their FHA loans by means of improved farming and turn to banks and other lenders for the credit they need.

The committee elected Hall as its chairman.

The Farmers Home Administration is an agency in the U. S. department of agriculture that supplies long-term credit to farmers to buy or improve their farms, establish suitable soil and water conservation measures and build or repair farm houses or other essential farm buildings.

NEW POTATO VARIETY

A new potato, called Tawa, will be available to Michigan growers next year. It was developed by the Michigan and Iowa agricultural experiment stations and the U. S. department of agriculture.

NEAR-RECORD U.S. WHEAT CROP—A mountain of new-crop wheat from Illinois and Missouri starts journey to Europe in this barge which is being loaded from a grain elevator near St. Louis, Mo. It will be taken down the Mississippi to waiting ocean vessels at Baton Rouge, La. This year's wheat crop will be the biggest since 1947 and the second largest on record—more than 1,311,000,000 bushels.

Certified Boars Offered At MSU Swine Day Sale

Boars certified at the swine evaluation station will be available to commercial and purebred swine raisers in Michigan this year.

The sale will be a part of swine day on August 14. The event will be on Michigan State University campus.

Boars to be sold will be rated as to feed efficiency, rate of gain and meatiness, said Ed Miller, extension specialist at Michigan State. Rating index information will be available for use in appraising records of individual pigs.

Swine on test at the station located on the Michigan agricultural experiment station farms are

Grange Leader Refutes Charge

William J. Brake, head of Michigan State Grange terms as ridiculous the charges by Michigan AFL-CIO President Gus Scholle that the Farm Bureau brainwashes or even dominates 4-H club youngsters in the state.

"Of course, many leaders and parents of 4-H club members are members of the Farm Bureau," Brake said, "but the Farm Bureau itself has no direct influence upon either the administration of or the local leadership of the 4-H club program in Michigan. Many Grange members are also leaders and parents of 4-H club members, and the Grange at times does not see eye to eye with the larger farm group on agricultural policy and legislative matters. The Grange, has no political program aimed at 4-H members."

undergoing a new kind of treatment this year. The evaluation and certification program has been changed from earlier years.

This year, 2 boars and a barrow or gilt from the same registered litter are being tested and rated. In the past, a barrow, a gilt and a boar were tested.

Under the old procedure, 2 of the pigs on test were slaughtered to get carcass quality information. Rate of gain, feed efficiency and carcass quality information were used to certify the boar and remaining litter mates.

Only boars tested will be rated this year. The remaining pigs in the litter may vary so much that they would not all be top quality animals. Also, only the barrow or gilt will be slaughtered this year, Miller said.

The Michigan Swine Improvement association and Michigan State cooperatively run the evaluation program. Officials say the changes will speed up the location and identification of superior strains of meat-type hogs within existing breeds.

A total of 60 spring pigs are on test this summer. Animals are on feed from 50 lb until they weigh 200 lb. Boars are probed for meatiness at 200 lb and the barrow or gilt will be slaughtered at 200 to 210 lb.

Interest in testing and demand for tested boars is high, Miller said. This is the first time in the history of the evaluation station applications for putting swine on test had to be turned down because of facilities being full, he said. The station can handle 60 pigs representing 20 litters.

Half of Cows in Ingham Are Bred Artificially

Approximately half of the 15,000 dairy cows in Ingham herds are now bred artificially.

Ingham is far ahead of the state average in that respect. The percentage in the state runs about one-third. Nearly 278,000 Michigan dairy cows were bred artificially last year. This is about one-third of all dairy cows in the state and is a slight increase over last year.

Nationally, more than 6,055,000 cows in an estimated 946,000 herds were bred artificially in 1957. This is the largest number of cows serviced in any one year since the beginning of artificial breeding in this country.

Michigan ranked seventh in the number of cows bred artificially last year. Wisconsin continued to lead all states with 1,095,100 cows bred artificially in 1957.

Minnesota, New York, Ohio, Iowa and California also ranked above Michigan.

Michigan Picks 3 Top FFA Groups

Farm youth groups from Cassopolis, Marshall and Deckerville have been named as the outstanding Future Farmers of America chapters in Michigan and selected as state representatives in the national FFA competition.

It marked the eighth consecutive year the Cassopolis chapter qualified for the national contest scheduled for October at Kansas City.

The Marshall chapter likewise continued to dominate in Michigan's top FFA program by repeating its triumph of the past 2 years.

A total of 26 chapters including the top trio were announced as gold award winners in the 15th annual test of group and individual performances sponsored by A & P Food Stores for more than 240 FFA units and some 11,000 teenage boys.

Additional gold award winners were: Alma, Bellevue, Britton, Caledonia, Caro, Dowagiac, Elkton, Grand Ledge, Hartland, Marlette, Midland, Niles, Onsted, Ovid, Owosso, Pigeon, Pinconning, Sandusky, Saranac, Sebewaing, Stockbridge, Vassar and Williamston.

Twenty-one additional chapters received silver awards as follows: Ashley, Beaverton, Brown City, Charlotte, Chesaning, Colon, Ed-shops were established on 5 more, Felch, Gladwin, Goodrich, Harbor Beach, Inlay City, Ithaca, Leslie, Mayville, Mt. Pleasant, Olivet, Petoskey, Reese, Rockford and Yale.

The state FFA contest committee again selected Cassopolis as one of Michigan's 3 outstanding chapters because of its comprehensive program of cooperation and individual projects.

Hub of activity for the boys was a 250-acre farm including approximately 125 head of livestock as a central core of farm demonstrations in soil, crop and livestock practices. The farm includes a full line of chapter-owned farm machinery, a 1½-ton truck and large trailer which were available to all members for use in their own farming programs. Many cooperative buying and selling activities were conducted. Cooperative purchases included 40 tons of fertilizer, 32 tons of protein supplement feed, 40 bushels alfalfa seed, 55 bushels seed corn, 30 feeding steers and 9,000 evergreen trees. The chapter also operated a mutual insurance program for protection of members from losses of livestock, and aided members through providing small loans from chapter loan fund.

The Marshall chapter again attracted the judges' attention with its outstanding results from promotion of individual student farming programs, improved livestock production and cooperative buying and selling. The chapter assisted members in securing financial help to the extent of more than $8,000 in loans for extending farm programs.

The chapter also rated high in community service, conducted a local leadership training program for 30 members, and presented 14 radio and one TV program during the year to inform people of local activities. Livestock production was improved by providing purebred breeding stock for members. In addition, a 160-acre farm was operated cooperatively as part of agriculture department facilities.

The Deckerville chapter gained recognition with a diversified program on farming, cooperation, community service, leadership, scholarship and recreation for members. Farm activities included demonstrations of improved varieties of wheat, oats, corn and beans. Farm machinery farms and improvements on 10 farms. Participation of 46 members in a special "Big Acre" program was a central activity for encouraging use of improved production practices.
