Chutist Loses Cord, Plunges to Death

Richard C. Welsh, 29, a fun-loving parachutist whose friends describe as one who "was always clowning," but who was considered an expert in rigging a parachute, plummeted 3,000 feet to his death near Holt Sunday afternoon when his parachute failed to open.

Welsh fell into a stubble field along Grovenburg road, 4/10 of a mile south of Holt road in Delhi township at 3:55 p.m.

Welsh, who lived at 3213 Stabler street in Lansing, stepped out of a Cessna 172 plane with a co-jumper, Robert McDonald, of Vermontville.

Before the jump Welsh put the D ring of his rip cord in his mouth and stepped out into space. As he dropped away from the plane he let out a yell of "Yeow" and the D ring flew out of his mouth and over his shoulder out of reach.

David Monroe, 27, of 2212 Teel avenue, Lansing, the pilot of the plane and also a professional jumper, told state police that Welsh shoved off from the plane backward and let out his usual yell.

"He appeared to go too far backward and lost control," Monroe said. "He kept struggling for the D ring but couldn't reach it."

Monroe said he banked the plane and saw that Welsh was in a flat spin. He said he kept struggling for the cord but it was behind him and he fell into tall grass beside a gravel pit.

Another passenger aboard the plane, Frank Hudge of Lansing, witnessed the fatal plunge as did Joseph N. Corbus of Lansing, who reportedly was target shooting in the vicinity.

The 4 persons in the plane, which was owned by the Firebirds Flying club, took off from Capital City airport in Lansing about 3:30 p.m. They circled over Holt and came to a point west of the town where Welsh and McDonald made their jump.

McDonald landed safely in a field near Krantz and Grovenburg roads. McDonald did not know of Welsh's fate until he was informed after making his landing.

Coroner Jack Holmes of Lansing, who was called to the scene, said every bone in Welsh's body was broken. Holmes said the parachutist landed on his head.

Welsh was observing his 29th birthday Sunday. Friends said he regarded the practice jump planned Sunday as a "fun jump." He was an experienced jumper and was said to be the only Federal Aviation association licensed master rigger in this area, qualified to pack reserve chutes.

The body was taken to the Gorsline-Runciman funeral home where services were Wednesday.

Bulldozers make way for a rail spur to serve the new Wickes plant at Mason

Cash and Carry Building Supply Will be Open Beginning June 1

A new $500,000 Wickes building supply center is being erected on 27 acres of land a half mile south of Mason by The Wickes Corporation. Construction started Tuesday.

The Mason center will be the 49th in the firm's rapidly growing network of coast-to-coast outlets. It is the 11th in Michigan. Chester Gayheart, an Ohio construction firm, has the contract for the Mason installation. Jack Rynd, superintendent of construction and maintenance for the Wickes firm, said Tuesday that the work is scheduled to be completed by June 1. He said the Gayheart firm has just completed a similar construction job in Grand Rapids and completed it in 90 days.

Graders were leveling the ground for about 2,000 feet of railroad spur which joins the Michigan Central railroad to the rear of the property and extends westward towards US-127. A 60x100-foot sales department will be constructed towards the front of the property and behind it and parallel with the railroad spur will be a 100x240-foot warehouse. There'll also be a 32x432-foot lumber shed.

According to Daniel Fitzgerald, executive vice-president of the 110-year-old firm, the prime factors in selecting the location at 781 Hull road are its accessibility to US-127 and the present healthy economy and future growth potential of the area.

Smith Bolton, a Wickes vice-president, who has directed the growth of the building supply centers, said the center will contain 40,000 square feet of modern display and storage facilities offering over 3,000 different lumber, plumbing, heating and electrical items. The center will be serviced by the New York Central railroad.

Lumber has played an important part in Wickes' 110-year old history. The corporation began as a small machine shop in 1854, manufacturing machinery for Michigan's lumber mills. In 1858 the Wickes Brothers developed and marketed their famous gang saw which revolutionized white pine production and is still in use today.

In 1950, with one small yard, Wickes returned to lumber but this time in the retail field. Growth of Wickes Building Supply centers, which are under the direction of Smith Bolton, vice-president of merchandising, has been termed "phenomenal."

In actual inventory, controlled by IBM equipment in the Saginaw home office, the Wickes Centers carry everything, except for masonry, to build a complete home. Lumber volume alone, in 1963, was enough to build a modern city of 20,000 dwellings, Bolton said. Through Wickes' vast purchasing power, it is able to offer quality lines at low prices.

"Of the corporation's record 166 million dollar sales in 1963," R. V. Wolohan, divisional manager, declared, "over 65 percent was accounted for by building supply centers. In our first quarter this year, net income showed a gain of 47 percent, a growth record which keeps the Wickes corporation among the nation's 50 fastest growing concerns."

Beside the lumber, plumbing heating and electrical division, The Wickes Corporation has 9 others in widely diversified fields.

Among these are The Wickes Boiler company, Wickes Machine Tool, Kux Machine, the United States Graphite company, Michigan Bean company, Saginaw Grain company and the Wickes Marine Terminal company. The other 2 divisions, Wickes International NV, a sales organization, and Compania Minera de San Jose, S. A. de C. V. operating its Mexican graphite mines, are foreign units.

Seven more Wickes centers are in the planning stage, and the total number is expected to double within the next 5 years.

Mason Will Be Center For 4-H Saturday

Winter 4-H projects will come to a completion on March 7 when 4-H members participate in the annual spring 4-H show at the Mason senior high school. They will bring their articles or garments they have made in their 4-H project work. One thousand 4-H club members have completed projects: clothing, knitting, foods, child care, personal improvement, passport, electrical, soil conservation, and small crafts, including plastics, leather, metal, art, hobbies and ceramics.

The spring show program will be from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., and 4-H members have been scheduled to come for an evaluation session of their project work at various times during the day.

Members in clothing and knitting will wear their garments during the evaluation session and rehearsal for the revue in the afternoon.

The public is invited to see the 4-H fashions in an Easter parade, modeled by the 4-H members in young miss clothing and knitting, on Saturday, March 7, and junior and senior miss clothing and knitting on March 14 at 1 p.m. at the senior high school at Mason.

Members enrolled in photography, woodworking, conservation, expert soil conservation, automotive, tractor, safety and junior leadership will not participate in the spring 4-H show, but will have their project work evaluated at the county fair in August.

But Bond Issue Loses By 2 Votes

Voters OK Operating Millage

Mason school electors by a 42-vote margin approved the levying of 6 mills for operating purposes. A proposal to bond the school district for $600,000 for classroom construction failed by the narrow margin of 2 votes, as voters went to the poll Tuesday in greater numbers than ever before.

The millage vote was: Yes, 883; No, 841.

The bond vote was: Yes, 814; No, 816.

A total of 1,729 people went to the polls with 5 ballots voided. It was the largest voter turnout ever in the Mason school district thanks to get-out-the-vote drives by both proponents and opponents.

School board President Glenn Oesterle attributed the rejection of the bond proposal and the closeness of the millage vote to the timing of the circulation of a sheet put out by opponents of the proposals.

"If there had been time to challenge the half-truths and half-facts circulated by opponents Saturday and Monday, both proposals would have carried," he said.

Mason school board, not in unanimous agreement itself over the merits of the 2 proposals, will meet Wednesday night to begin tackling the alternatives made necessary by the failure of the bond proposal.

Of immediate concern is what to do about the classroom shortage which exists now and which will be even more severe next fall.

The bond proposal would have provided additional classrooms at Alameda elementary school, a new school at Aurelius and Columbia, and an addition at the high school.

"The basic problem is the crowded condition at the junior high school. Additional elementary classrooms would have allowed the removal of the sixth graders from the Jefferson Street school which would have relieved the situation," Oesterle pointed out. "I personally would rather see half-day sessions for the junior high school rather than jam nearly 1,000 students into a facility designed many years ago for 400," he added.

Mason, which has operated over the years on a pay-as-you-go basis for school building with the exception of the high school, now is faced with no building and site fund to do its building with the building and site millage expired December 31.

School officials see no other way other than to return to the voters with an alternate proposal to relieve the classroom shortage. Such an election would have to wait until at least 45 days after Tuesday's vote.

These are some of the problems and questions school officials will have to solve starting with their meeting Wednesday night.

School officials expressed thanks to the voters for approving the operating millage. Without that millage officials pointed out that the school would probably have ended up the year hopelessly in the red.

Fair Starts Space Signup

Applications are now being received by Joy O. Davis, Ingham county fair secretary, for commercial space at the 1964 Ingham county fair.

Dates of the 1964 fair are August 3 through Sunday, August 9. This is the first year in which the fair has remained open on Sunday.

Visitors to the fair will find some changes. The north half of the area under the grandstand is to be screened in and will house commercial flower exhibits and open class foods and flowers.

A new rest room has been built near the south end of the grandstand.

Davis said it is hoped to have the Sky Wheel, a double ferris wheel at the fair this year. This huge ride has never before been seen at the Ingham county fair and usually is displayed at only the large expositions around the country.

Reviewers to Meet

Mason's board of review will be in session Tuesday, March 10, beginning at 9 to hear objections and recommendations to individual property assessments, both real estate and personal property. The board also has a meeting scheduled for Tuesday, March 24.

Trade Mart Opens Store In Mason

A business that started as the result of an advertising gimmick opened a new retail location in Mason this week. Known as The Trade Mart, the establishment occupies the building at 428 South Jefferson avenue formerly home of The Ingham County News.

Seth Whitmore, East Lansing public relations man who operates The Trade Mart, also has another Trade Mart location at 2108 Hamilton road, Okemos. He said the business grew out of a Christmas gift exchange idea he promoted in connection with a retail clothing and gift store.

"We advertised that gifts from everywhere would be exchanged for new merchandise," Whitmore said. "This brought such a flood of surplus articles and garments that would not fit, that we continued the plan."

"People everywhere receive duplicate gifts and items they cannot use. We decided to provide an outlet for them to dispose of surplus gifts. At first most of the articles were appliances. We received a call from a woman who asked if we would sell or exchange antiques. We had no idea of antique prices, but accepted the antiques to sell and had them fairly appraised."

At present about 20 percent of the Trade Mart business is in antiques, according to Whitmore. The business sells a large number of books, both old and new. In addition to selling most articles for people on consignment, the business assists in liquidating estates.

Mrs. Margaret Hurd Whitmore will manage the Mason store, which will be open daily from noon to 6 p.m. Fridays until 9, and on Saturdays from 10 to 6. This week the store is open on Thursday night until 9 due to the opening.

Mason board of education met in special session Monday night at the office of James VanderVen, superintendent of schools, and approved the appointment of 4 members to the board of canvassers.

Mrs. Laurence Parker, (R) and Mrs. Robert Hayhoe (D) were appointed to serve terms ending December 31, 1965, and Richard B. Ferris (D) and N. Richard Magel (R) were named to serve terms expiring December 31, 1967.

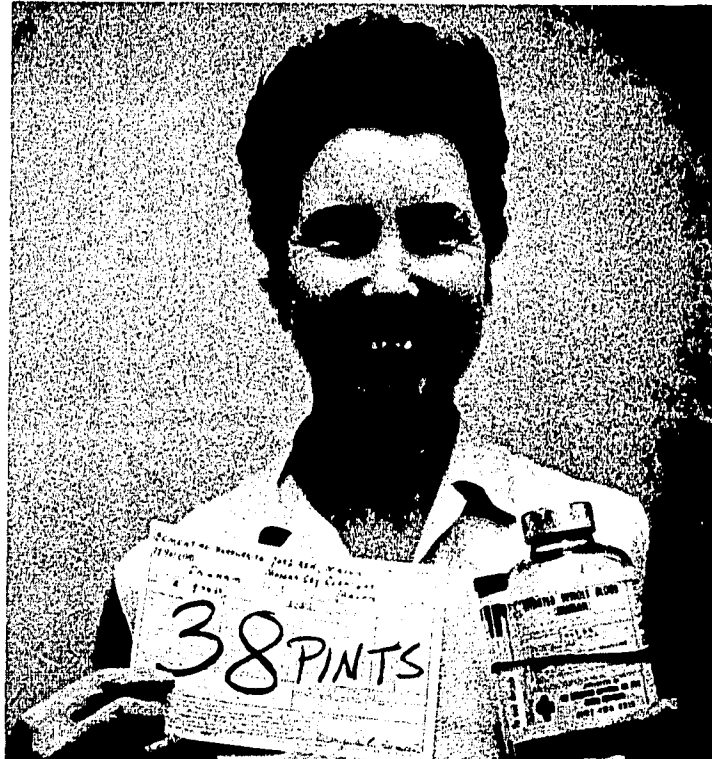

"Our team is red hot!"

That's the message Mason high school pupils, perennial adult sophomores and more sedate fans of all ages and sizes will use to send Mason's basketball team off to the tournament wars Thursday afternoon.

After the rally, complete with cheerleaders and band, the fans will snake dance to the Jefferson Street school to board spectator buses.

The rally is sponsored by the student Pep club.

Garden Club Has Meeting

Mrs. William Porter was hostess Tuesday to 19 members of Mason-Dansville Garden club for a salad buffet. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Frank Evans and Mrs. Bernard Plakke. Pouring was Mrs. Ray Perkins. The table was draped with green and centered with an arrangement of lavender and white flowers on a pedestal cake plate. Nestled among the arrangement was a lavender taper.

President, Mrs. Robert Seyfarth conducted the business meeting during which time she asked for reports from 2 who attended the Inter-City Council of Garden Clubs. Mrs. Walter Appleton reported on billboards and Mrs. Chellis Hall gave a report on shrubs.

Later the women worked on favors for the Inter-City Council meet which the Mason-Dansville Garden club will host March 17 at 9:30 a.m. at Mason Presbyterian church. The local group, as hostesses, will furnish the luncheon with individuals taking their own sandwiches.

For the program of the day, Mrs. Abe Cohn showed slides of flowering trees and shrubs taken around Ingham county.

Herb Bread

Your home-baked Herb Bread will be fragrant with basil, thyme, oregano and nutmeg seasonings, and have that wonderful yeasty goodness of fresh bread. Fresh from the oven and cut in thick slices, it is delicious generously spread with softened butter or margarine. Homemade bread offers a memorable eating experience for your entire family, as well as secretly contributes important nutrients to their diet. All the baked products you prepare with enriched flour are rich in the essential B-vitamins thiamine, niacin and riboflavin and the mineral iron.

HERB BREAD

2 packages yeast, compressed or dry	2 teaspoons salt
1/4 cup water (lukewarm for compressed yeast, warm for dry)	5 cups sifted enriched flour (about)
1 cup milk	2 eggs
1/4 cup shortening or oil	1/2 teaspoon each basil, oregano, thyme and nutmeg
2 tablespoons sugar	Melted butter or margarine

Soften yeast in water. Scald milk. Measure shortening or oil, sugar and salt into large bowl. Add hot milk, stirring until shortening melts and sugar dissolves. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in about 1 1/2 cups flour and beat well. Beat in softened yeast and eggs. Crumble basil, oregano and thyme in palm of hand. Add to batter with nutmeg. Stir in enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board or pastry cloth and knead until smooth and satiny. Shape into ball and place in lightly greased bowl, turning to grease surface of ball. Cover and let rise in warm place (80-85°F.) until doubled, about 1 1/2 hours. Punch down. Divide dough into 2 equal portions and shape into loaves. Cover and let rest 10 minutes. Shape into 2 loaves. Place in greased 1 1/2 x 8 1/2-inch loaf pans. Lightly grease surface of loaves. Let rise in warm place until doubled, about 1 hour. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 30 to 35 minutes or until deep golden brown. Remove from pans and brush surfaces with butter or margarine. Makes two 1-pound loaves.

*If you don't sift and in absence of other directions, spoon flour directly from container into 1 cup dry measure, level off, then remove two level tablespoonsful according to USDA recommendations. NOTE: If self-rising flour is used, omit salt.

Rocks Clinch Title By Taking Haslett

There were no miracles for Haslett Friday night. The Lakers bowed to Gabriels 57-61 in a near miracle but the Rocks were able to use the win to sew up the Capital Circuit title.

Haslett almost had the upset in the bag, leading all the way up until the last 4 minutes when Steve Kutas and Skip Drouin finally found the range to account for 7 points each in a last desperate flurry.

It was a slow game all the way with both teams making numerous ball-control mistakes. Haslett moved in front 14-10 at the end of the first quarter and then fell behind 28-20 at the half. The Lakers stumbled at the start of the third period to fall 12 points behind but then rallied to again regain the lead with half the last quarter remaining.

That was the end of the line for Haslett. The Rocks came on with a strong finish to clinch the game and the Capital Circuit title.

Drouin topped the Rock scorers with 18 points. Kutas and Larry Kish each added 14 to the Gabriels total.

For Haslett Pat Main was the only scorer in double figures with 12.

Junior High Wins Pair

Mason junior high cagers closed out the season on a happy note with the seventh graders beating Charlotte 50-30 and the eighth graders topping the Orioles 37-32.

For the seventh graders Marvin Oesterle was high with 11 points. Craig Webster came through with 10 and Ron Perrine scored 9.

Jim Powers was high for the eighth graders with 15 points. The eighth graders had a comfortable lead with a minute to go but Charlotte came on strong to almost close the gap.

Hornets Eye Tourney Title

The Williamston Basketball team better known as the Hornets, had a successful year. It was the first in many years. Team record for the year is 13-3.

With the drive to win and the spirit of their followers, and they have had many, the Hornets will meet Portland Wednesday at 7 p.m. at Sexton high school gym, in their first round of Class C district play.

The winner of this game will go on to play Boy's Training School Friday night.

Leslie Eliminated

Leslie didn't stick around long in the state tournament picture. The Blackhawks lost out to Homer 81-63 Tuesday night in action at Jackson Parkside.

Holt Takes Second Spot

Holt worked its way to second place in the Capital Circuit standings Friday night by dumping Okemos 68-58. The Rams finished in second place behind Gabriels while Okemos slipped to a tie with Mason for third.

It was Dave Rhines' night to shine for Holt. The Ram starter was the key play maker for Coach Dan Hovanessian's crew and also topped the shooters with 15 points.

Bill Breckenfeld was high for Okemos with 21 points and Paul Chancel came through with 12 but the Holt scoring balance was too much for the Chiefs to overcome.

Holt finished the season with a 12-4 season mark, the best in several years. Okemos ended up the season 10-6 after starting out as world beaters.

Raiders End With Victory

O'Rafferty almost didn't make it back on the winning trail. In the final game the Raiders snapped a losing streak to take Eaton Rapids 68-63.

The Raiders used the win to climb into a fifth place tie with Haslett in the final Capital Circuit standings with Eaton Rapids staying just a notch ahead of Howell and the basement in seventh place.

It was a close game all the way with the Raiders going in front in the first quarter 14-12 and stretching the lead 33-27 in the second period. In the third quarter Eaton Rapids opened strong and pulled to within one point of O'Rafferty but the Raiders again moved in front by a few buckets and stayed there.

Gary Glazier topped the O'Rafferty shooters with 22 points. Dave Fletcher added 19.

For Eaton Rapids Hank Krey came off the bench to toss in 18. Bill Howe contributed 16.

Panthers Draw Bye

Stockbridge will battle for Class B honors in the Class B tourney at Michigan Center. The Panthers will take on the winner of the Wednesday night Chelsea-Hudson contest. They will swing into action Thursday night. Other teams in the district are Hillsdale and Michigan Center.

BASKETBALL WITHOUT THE BALL can be a frustrating thing as this shot of Mason and Howell players indicates. Gary Jackson and Stu Thorburn are dark-suited Mason players in the foreground reaching for the wandering ball. Mason's Mike Combs is in the background.

Mason Closes Cage Season By Nipping Howell 71-67

Mason wound up the regular portion of the cage season Friday night with a 71-67 win over Howell to end up with a 10-6 season record with enough wins in the Capital Circuit to finish in a tie with Okemos for third place.

It wasn't easy disposing of Howell. The Highlanders, always dangerous on their home court at the Howell armory, started out with a bang. In the first quarter the Highlanders powered their way to a 25-20 lead. Mason managed to trim a point off the margin in the second quarter.

It was different in the third period, though. Mason came out of the locker room and into a full court press which did the trick. Unable to move the ball up the court, the Highlanders managed only 7 points in the third period and Mason moved to a 54-49 lead.

Howell solved the full court press in the last quarter and played Mason on even terms but could not regain the lead.

Don Wright had another good night. The Bulldog shooter dropped in 28 points on 11 field goals and 6 free throws. Scoring help came from Stu Thorburn with 18 and Mike Combs with 15.

For Howell Ron Arnold was high with 19 points. Tom Hicks bagged 15 and Ron Zemper added 14.

It was the last regular season performance for the senior-dominated Mason squad. There are sure to be many new faces in the Mason lineup when the next season rolls around.

Gone will be Wright, Combs, Thorburn, Gary Jackson, Roger Hill and Archie Mills.

With the regular season out of the way Coach Bob Finch is readying his charges for the Class B district tourney at East Jackson high school. Mason drew a bye but will face the winner of the East Jackson-Jackson St. John game on Thursday night at 8:45.

The East Jackson outfit and the Gaels are the 2 top teams in the tourney. They met Tuesday night.

ICL Champs Win Closer

Fowlerville survived an upset Friday night to clinch the Ingham County league title. The Gladiators downed a stubborn Stockbridge team 65-59.

It wasn't easy. Fowlerville took a 19-15 lead in the first quarter but the Panthers came back to knot the count at 2-32 at the half. Fowlerville ended the third period in front by 2 but still Stockbridge did not fold. It took some last-minute heroics by Gordon Hetrick to stave off the Panthers.

Herick finished the night with 28 points on 11 field goals and 6 free throws. Ron Sober was next for Fowlerville with 14.

Myers was high for Stockbridge with 19 points.

Highlanders Lose

Howell's initial fling in Class A ranks of the state basketball tournament came to a short and bitter end Tuesday night. The Highlanders, the smallest Class A school in the state, lost to host squad, Grand Blanc, 73-67.

In Mason License Sales Boom

About 1,000 more license plate tabs were issued in the Mason license plate office this year than last, Joy Davis, manager, said this week.

He said that last Friday and Saturday, the last 2 days before the deadline of March 1, about 2,000 tabs were sold in Mason and Williamston.

All last week the office was rushed with purchasers of the 1964 tabs, and business is still heavy as persons who did not buy before the deadline are now going to the office to pick up their tabs.

Davis said that with the coming of warm weather there probably will be a rush to buy motorcycle plates and later on there will be another rush of persons desiring plates for boat trailers.

There was a lineup at the Mason office all day Saturday. The office opened at 8:30 a.m. and remained open until 6:30 p.m. to accommodate last minute buyers.

Christian Women United 90 Years Ago for Temperance

Back on November 18, 1874, Frances Willard founded the Women's Christian Temperance Union. The organization was formed to unite Christian women for these purposes:

To protect the home; to abolish the liquor traffic; for the triumph of God's golden rule in custom and law; the promotion of a program to build public sentiment for the standard of total abstinence.

Officers of the local group include the president, Mrs. Clare King, of Dansville; Mrs. Erwin Elbert, vice-president; Mrs. Clayton Cain, secretary and Mrs. Kenneth Shattuck, treasurer.

Although spanning a period of years since its founding, the club's present-day purposes are much the same as they fundamentally began.

Baptists Plan New Church

DANSVILLE — The Dansville Baptist church has purchased from Gary Briggs the building and grounds near the cemetery on E. Mason street and plans to convert the structure into a church.

The building, described as about 60 or 70 feet square, was originally built for a dairy building. It is constructed of tile blocks and is one story high. It once housed a small factory and later was used as a dwelling. It has been vacant for some time.

Mrs. Glenn Cook, a member of the church board, said the purchase of the building was completed last Saturday when final papers were signed. The work of remodeling the structure will start immediately and it is hoped to have it ready for occupancy sometime during the summer.

Much of the work will be volunteer labor, Mrs. Cook said, and the church has had offers of help from as far away as Williamston. In addition, Dansville members will assist in doing much of the work.

For the past few years the Baptist church has been housed in an abandoned fire hall which is rented from the village. This building, however, became too small and the decision was made to purchase a larger place where the Sunday school classes can be better accommodated.

One of the changes to be effected in the building will be a steeple which Mrs. Cook explained, will give the building more of the appearance of a church. Later on, she said, it is hoped to construct a new front and entrance-way. Ground around the building will be landscaped.

The Dansville Baptist membership is now 22, Mrs. Cook said. The pastor is Rev. Larry Jones of Lansing. He, Mrs. Cook, James Call and John Clark comprise the church board.

Junior Play Is March 24

DANSVILLE — The junior class of the Dansville high school will present its annual play March 24 at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium. The play, "The Curious Savage," will be directed by Mrs. Louise Manning. The cast includes Sharon Lynn Hurford, Linda Stiles, Chuck Linn, Jo Ann Cribble, Tom Murdoch, Russell Rae, Deltra Rouse, Signe Nelson, Christine Galbreath and Kenneth Woods.

Library Board Checks On County Branches

Members of the board of the Ingham County library system, made a trip to 10 branch libraries scattered throughout the county Monday. It was the first time the board members have made such a visitation. They reviewed the facilities at each branch and talked with the librarians.

The group left the Hall Memorial library at 9:30 a.m. in a library bus and went first to Okemos, then to Haslett, Williamston, Webberville and Stockbridge, where they remained for lunch.

In the afternoon the group visited branches at Leslie, Onondaga, Aurelius, Holt and Maple Grove.

The following board members made the trip: Mrs. Rosemary Dunkelberg of Okemos, board president; Mrs. Creighton Heck of Holt; Mrs. Raymond McLean of Mason.

Alton J. Stroud of Mason and Renwick Garypie, director of the Ingham county library system.

Leslie Florists At Convention

LESLIE — Mr. and Mrs. Orin Snider of the Leslie Flower Shop were in Detroit Sunday and Monday February 23 and 24 attending the Michigan Florist Association convention. Mrs. Charlene Scheiber attended the convention on Sunday. The convention was at the Statler-Hilton Hotel. The highlight of the event was a wedding put on by the Florist Telegraph delivery, in the ballroom of the hotel on Monday night with a wedding reception following. Outstanding floral design was a diamond shaped arrangement composed of 49 candles.

Mental Health Committee Organizes Ingham Study

The first meeting of the mental health services preliminary study committee was Friday, February 28, in the Lansing offices of the county health department under the chairmanship of Robert R. Robinson of East Lansing.

The full committee was broken down into the following sub-committees:

1. To investigate and study all phases of the mental health needs of Ingham county under the chairmanship of Dr. Arthur W. Newitt.
2. To examine existing mental health services provided in or by the county of Ingham as well as those provided elsewhere but made available to Ingham county residents. Chairman George Voorhis.
3. To explore the advantages and disadvantages of the establishment of a mental health services program pursuant to Legislative Act 54 of the 1963 session. Chairman Eric Kauma.

The aim of the mental health services preliminary study committee is to ascertain and find the manner and specific ways in which the mental health needs of Ingham county can best be met and served.

The next meeting of the committee is scheduled for April 6, at which time the 3 sub-committees will present reports which will have been compiled from the assigned research.

The new church, under construction since last fall and built at a cost of $222,677, is one of the finest of its kind in this area.

The church has a Boston ridge roof and rose colored brick has been used in its construction, but the big feature is that the building is predominantly glass—Apex glass.

It has a sanctuary with a seating capacity of 428, Sunday school rooms and other modern installations. There are 2 entrances, one on Holt road and one on Aurelius road.

The church, which for years has occupied a building on N. Cedar street, has a membership of 569. Rev. Paul Martin is the pastor.

Subjects pertaining to the law brought in definitions of pranks and when they become infringement of the law, petty thefts, misdemeanors, shoplifting, public nuisances such as horse play on the bus. He also discussed laws pertaining to guns and their safety.

The assembly program was sponsored by the student council.

HOLT-Arch W. Rogers III, 21, of Eaton Rapids was freed on $1,500 bond on a charge of felonious assault, following an examination before Justice Raymond Totte in Delhi justice court last week. Judge Totte bound him over to circuit court for arraignment March 21.

Rogers is accused of firing a shot which shattered a window in a car driven by Mrs. Arlene Platte, 43, of Holt the night of February 11 as she was driving along a lonely road near Holt on her way home to Eaton Rapids. She was not injured.

Rogers escaped but the next day gave himself up to Ann Arbor police on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. Arraigned before Judge Totte, bond then was set at $7,500. At his examination last week the charge was reduced to felonious assault and the bond was lowered to $1,500, which he posted and was released to await circuit court arraignment.

HOLT - Young people of today are confused, adults do not set the right example for them and with more knowledge and information available we are not properly advising it.

These are some of the reasons that lead to juvenile delinquency. Mrs. Warren Cox, a child welfare worker of the Ingham county probate court, told a group of future homemakers at a dinner last week in the home economics room of Holt high school.

Mrs. Cox, herself the mother of 4 children, 3 of whom are teen-agers, works in the juvenile division of the probate court. At the present time, she said, have no respect for authority. They rebel first to their parents, then to their teachers and finally to the authorities."

Parents sometimes set bad examples for their children, the speaker said. The young person begins to feel that adults are undependable, and make promises they do not keep.

"The result is the juvenile does not trust people. They often feel their parents are inconsistent," Mrs. Cox said.

"A happy family life, is possible for everyone. What is important to one family is not necessarily important to another, so each family has to set its own goal in life.

Ingham county probate court has 1,100 children under its jurisdiction. She said her division works with an average of 500 young people each year, many of whom have broken the law.

She explained the difference between normal and abnormal girls and listed the symptoms that lead to delinquency.

"Most often," she said, "there is a total lack of communication between parents and the young person; there is no positive warm outgoing of feelings for each other in the family, there is little family activity and little family closeness.

Reasons for this situation, she pointed out, often are family problems, parents are not taking time with the young person, constant change and transition,

"Every member of the family should be given a chance to talk and to listen. Each family members should be kind, courteous and cooperative and all should have respect for one another. Each family members should have an opportunity to express himself and be able to fulfill himself as a person.

"Home, is where the persons we love the most we often appreciate the least."

The dinner program and decorations were planned by FHA members. Mistress of ceremonies was Cindy Bloch who introduced Pat Mizner, chapter president and Mrs. Charles Wilson, teacher-sponsor of the group. Each girl then introduced her parents and other family members present.

HOLT — The Holt fire department went on 2 fire runs Saturday. A grass fire at 4931 Willoughby road was the first call. Another grass fire at 2140 Gunn road, which burned off 5 acres, was the second call.

Exchange Pupil Feted With Her Host Family

WILLIAMSTON — One of the enjoyable evenings of the year by the associates of the American Field Service was a dinner on Tuesday, February 25, sponsored by the Red Cedar Extension club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Stover, Zimmer road, honoring an AFS Exchange student and her host family.

The student was Miss Pia Alvarez Baus. Her Williamston host family is Harley and Margaret Beach and their teenage daughter, Wanda.

"Pia," as she is known by her friends, is a small, dark haired girl with laughing eyes from the hills of Ecuador.

Pia Alvarez Baus

Chanchau, her home town, is in the center of a small agricultural community. Pia says the chief products there are corn, wheat and potatoes.

The dinner was served in the recreation room of the Stover home, a pleasant setting for an "international" affair. The tables were laid for 42, the club members, their families and the guests.

Special surprise guests were Mrs. Dale Figg and daughter, Caron, of Perry and one of the adopted daughters of the Figg family, Miss Neelam Bochar of New Delhi, India. They attended with a club member, Mrs. L. S. Alchin.

Dr. and Mrs. Dale Figg also have another adopted daughter in their home, Miss Primrose Wheelock from Ireland, who is sponsored by the Council of Churches.

Miss Wheelock had a previous engagement and was unable to attend the dinner.

The dinner featured American food and was attractive in its arrangement. Novel favors were maps of the Americas at each place setting, replicas in detail of the 2 continents with fine pen outlines on white with a blue background mounted on a third card which was red and showed a narrow red border. Michigan and Ecuador were designated on the maps.

It was a gay party and along with the map was another er favor, a miniature horn that really worked.

After dinner Mrs. Figg, Miss Kochlar and Pia gave interesting accounts of host and foreign student associations. Mrs. Figg spoke of the pleasures, responsibilities and the challenge of being an adopted parent to 2 girls in her home at the same time.

It was her first try at a double feature. Last year the Figg family were hosts to an exchange student from Finland.

Miss Kochlar talked of her homeland and her people. She is sponsored by her own family. At the present time her father and her brother are attending a Texas university. She plans to finish her college education in this country.

Pia told of her people and life in Ecuador. Most of the work in the home and on the farms is done by servants. The Indians do the work well and for moderate wages, she said.

Both girls emphasize the importance of education and feel the United States has much to offer for those who seek higher education. Pia closed with a question and answer period.

In giving an opinion of this country she said, "It's very nice for tourists but not to live in. Everybody hurry-hurry all the time."

Pia was given a charm for her bracelet bearing the emblem of Extension Service - Home - Family - Community. Miss Kochlar will also receive an identical gift.

Plate Sale Is Heavy

WILLIAMSTON — Sign-Brunson, Inc., Ford dealers of Williamston, have been busy with the sale of license plates to the area residents.

The sale of plates is not handled by the dealers, just a location and convenience for the buyers of plates. The Ford dealers have been doing this for the past 4 years. The plates were on sale only on Friday evenings from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. during February.

As the month grew shorter the line grew longer. At the beginning some 75 plates were purchased but the last 2 Fridays found from 300 to 400 purchasers standing in line for last minute plates. But all in all, this still is a far lesser line than found at Frandor in Lansing.

Some 159,000 copies will be distributed in Lansing, Dansville, Dimondale, Holt, Mason and Potterville.

Schaefer urges all telephone users to pay particular attention to the emergency numbers section on page 1 of the new book. Here, the telephone company has provided space for writing in local fire and police department numbers, and the number of the family doctor.

"In emergencies it is most helpful to have these numbers readily available to all members of the family," Schaefer said.

"In addition," he explained, "Michigan Bell's operators are trained to handle all kinds of emergency calls whenever 'Operator' is dialed."

"Our operators enjoy a long-standing tradition of coming to the aid of persons who have dialed 'O' in emergencies," he added.

The number changes, which follow the use of the new number for time service that was placed in operation on January 12, will be listed in the new 1964 telephone directory which will be distributed starting this week.

The changes are in preparation for the direct dialing of customers of long distance calls which is scheduled to begin on August 2. Schaefer said the changes are being made to conform with service code numbers in other exchanges throughout the state.

Stockbridge

Stockbridge Man, 90 Avid Follower of News

STOCKBRIDGE — Grandpa Hawley had his day Sunday.

February 28, 1874. He was born in a log house which stood about 50 rods from where he now resides.

In his earlier life Hawley was a hunter and fisherman but now spends much of his time outdoors working around the farm. What he enjoys most is driving a tractor during the summer months. When he was a boy he plowed with oxen.

"I believe I prefer the tractor," he says.

His health is good and he attributes that to his grand daughter-in-law's cooking.

He believes things are not going so well for Uncle Sam in the field of foreign aid. "They're kind of using us," he says.

He is an avid reader and he listens and watches news reports and daily newspapers to keep abreast of things happening in the world.

"When I was younger we weren't able to learn as much about the world as we are today," he said. "But even in those days we always read the newspaper and kept up in what was going on."

Hawley's birth date was

Flames Take Stockbridge Landmark

The Mitter barn, an old landmark at 704 S. Clinton street in Stockbridge, was completely destroyed by fire of undetermined origin Tuesday afternoon. No estimate has yet been made of the monetary loss.

The barn was approximately 125 years old and it had been used for years as a play place for Stockbridge children, some of whom now are business men in the village.

For more than 100 years a familiar cry among youngsters in the village was "Let's go to Mitter's."

The barn was suddenly engulfed in flames which soon reduced it to smoldering ashes.

A passerby noticed the fire and turned in the alarm, but when firemen arrived the flames had gained such headway it was impossible to save the building.

A tractor and truck stored in a shed near the barn were saved, but about 100 bales of hay owned by Morgan Wireman, who had been working the land on the Mitter farm were destroyed.

Mrs. Georgia Mitter, a teacher in the Stockbridge schools, who now resides in the house on the farm, said the barn was at least 125 years old. It was moved to its present location to make room for the railroad when it came to Stockbridge in 1882.

For many years the late J. A. Mitter operated the farm. It is said to be the only centennial farm in Stockbridge township.

Indians had no Horses Before White Man Came

STOCKBRIDGE — Ellis R. Martin, historian and educator, speaking in Stockbridge last week, said someone should take the responsibility of restoring and maintaining certain types of buildings so that future generations will be able to see how their predecessors lived.

The topic of his talk before a large gathering of the Waterloo Area Historical society, was concerned primarily with early day transportation.

He said that before the white man came to this country, the Indians did not have horses as many people believe.

They traveled a lot by canoe and they were pretty good at "picking them up and laying them down."

After the white man brought horses into the country stagecoaches began operation to carry people to various places. Onadilla, in the Waterloo area was on a stagecoach route and was a regular stop, as there was a tavern there.

In the Great Lakes area, according to Martin, sailboats and steamboats played an important role in early transportation.

In 1857 the railroad began pushing its way out from Detroit.

Trains and coaches were used for long trips, but Martin said that people still did a lot of walking in those early times and a 3 or 4 mile jaunt to church on Sunday was commonplace.

Letter from Africa Tells Of Primitive Warfare

STOCKBRIDGE — An army of today equipped only with bows and arrows as their chief weapons is hard to realize, but that kind of warfare is prevalent in Africa these days.

Elton Ridge, an aide in the American embassy in the African Congo tells of such warfare in a letter to friends in Stockbridge, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Owen.

He writes of the death of the chief-of-staff of the Congolese army who was slain with a poisoned arrow.

"Imagine in this day and age of atomic warfare being killed in combat with a bow and arrow," he says.

He tells of an incident recently in which a group of a few natives, the youngest about 9 years old, put war paint on their faces, dressed in torn clothing and wore chicken feathers in their hair and started out with bows and arrows, home made grenades, clubs and stones to attack a small village. Four were killed and 45 wounded in the encounter.

Band Does Well At Festival

STOCKBRIDGE — The Stockbridge high school band, directed by Keith Saxton, participated in the Band and Orchestra Festival Saturday at Michigan Center high school and received an overall rating of division II.

While the band had hoped to receive a I this year, they need not be ashamed of receiving a II. Such a rating shows that the band gave an excellent performance and shows much in the way of accomplishment and promise.

The bands at the Michigan Center section of the festival had as judges some excellent specialists in the field of music including Dr. William D. Revelli, director of bands at the University of Michigan.

2600 Cubes of Vaccine Given at Clinic

The victory Over Polio Clinic at the Smith elementary school in Stockbridge last Sunday was termed an overwhelming success by its director.

Sponsored by the Jackson County Medical society in 22 locations throughout Jackson county and a portion of Ingham county, the Stockbridge clinic passed out more than 2,600 sugar cubes containing the oral vaccine.

An official said it was necessary to send to headquarters for more vaccine as the day progressed as the supply was rapidly being exhausted by the unexpected turnout of people desiring to receive the vital protection.

A spokesman said that people from as far away as Howell and Lansing came to the clinic.

While not expecting such a large turnout, officials were prepared, however, to handle the crowd and everything went smoothly during the entire day, making it possible for many people to pass through the clinic in less than 2 minutes.

Health Foods Keep Him Young, Leslie Man at 82 Asserts

By Charlotte Camp
LESLIE — If you are a little sick, eat apples.

If you are really sick, see a doctor.

Edwin H. Sluyter of Leslie is a health advocate, eating only those foods that are as close to nature as possible, and to prove it, he drives 20 miles to get goat's milk with which to make his yogurt.

He said that many years ago when his health began going bad, he decided to begin eating health foods, bread made from whole grain, fruits and vegetables.

According to Sluyter, the plan was successful as he is in excellent health today at the age of 82 and has been to a doctor only once in the last 16 years.

What is a typical health diet? Well, Sluyter begins the day by having a generous serving of yogurt followed by 8 or 9 apples. Lunch consists of a salad and a drink he calls lemonade. The lemonade, which appears to be more on the order of soup, consists of a mixture of distilled water, honey, parsley, alfalfa leaves, celery stalks, cabbage, lettuce, seasonings and of course, lemons.

Dinner is a job for a cook except for his carrot juice, of which he consumes about a quart. The main course is a variety of cooked vegetables such as potatoes and onions.

Asked about meat, Sluyter said:

"In my opinion, meat is not necessary for good health and I don't buy any, but it certainly would be better than sweets. None of that unhealthy sweet stuff for me, nor hamburgers with French fries, or pickled pork hocks with sauer kraut.

Sluyter, born in 1882, was raised in Detroit and after college became a draftsman and later a mechanical engineer.

With the onset of bad health, he took a course at a drugless health institute and became so interested in it, he later organized what he said was the first physical culture club in Detroit.

Also deciding that working indoors was not a health boon, he went into the building business, erecting almost 100 homes in the Detroit area.

As the depression came, the building business took a nose dive and Sluyter had to find another means of earning a livelihood.

Since he already owned a building he had not been able to sell, he and his wife opened a whole grain bakery. He designed his own hammermill for grinding the grain and he said they made and sold everything that could be made with flour.

"Did you ever see an angel food cake made with whole wheat flour?" he asked.

They didn't use one grain of sugar in their baking, only honey for sweetening, which he still uses and purchases in wholesale lots.

After 17 years in the bakery, Sluyter said he had had enough of the city life and as long as he was still young (he was 65) decided to have a go at farming. So he bought 169 acres near Leslie where he raised wheat, soybeans and apple trees. They once again started to grind their own grain and sold flour to health stores in Jackson, Ann Arbor and Detroit, even doing their own delivering for 12 years.

"My wife died a year ago," he said, "but I just go on farming, although I don't bake bread any more."

He does, however, make southern cornbread and pancakes, using cracked wheat and corn meal.

The youthful appearance and agility of Sluyter would appear to bear out his beliefs. When located on his farm he was busy swinging a scythe, cleaning out a briar patch, and the day before had completed the task of pruning his apple trees.

In his home he has one of those old-fashioned pump organs which he has converted to electric operation. When asked to play a tune he said, "I don't know how, but when I get older I will learn to play it."

Leslie Teen-Agers Hope for a Center

LESLIE — Leslie teenagers are working toward a teen center for their activities and the Leslie Community Grange has given them permission to use the Grange hall for 2 alternate Saturday nights.

The group headed by Larry Mentink and Linda Welch is planning to conduct dancing parties at the Grange hall every 2 weeks and have set up house rules which the teenagers must observe.

Mentink, a disc jockey, will be manager of the parties and Miss Welch will be the hostess. Arrangements have been made for a deputy sheriff to be on duty at the hall during the dances. Music will be recorded. Refreshments will be served in the basement of the building.

The house rules for the parties include the following:

1. No smoking or drinking is permitted.
2. Any person who is found to have been drinking before coming to the hall will be denied admission.
3. No one is permitted to tamper with equipment in the hall.

Tentative Budget Adopted

LESLIE — The Leslie village council Monday night adopted a tentative budget for the 1964-65 year of $96,253.22. The council had called a public hearing on the budget but no one appeared and the budget was adopted tentatively.

The figure includes operation of the water and sewer department.

The council accepted a bid of $195 from Glenn Freymouth of Munith to place hot tar and gravel where necessary on the fire barn and garage, and voted to install a second light of 2,500 lumen intensity on the village parking lot on S. Main street. The parking lot has one 2,500 lumen light and the installation of a second will provide twice the light for the 67 parking spaces in the lot.

A letter of appreciation will be sent by the council to the Jackson County Medical society for including Leslie in a polio mass oral inoculation program, which was carried out in the village Sunday. Sugar cubes were distributed to 2,751 persons seeking inoculation. Many came from outside the village to receive the inoculation. Leslie village has a population of 1,807.

In other action the council instructed the village engineer to ask for bids on the Maple street sewer.

Placed insurance for 6 months on the backhoe and grader and street sweeper and will call for bids on insurance for all moving equipment in June.

Accepted a bid of Ambler & Wagner Tree service to remove 4 trees, one on S. Main street, one in Tuttle park and 2 on Church street. Three of the trees are elms, killed by the Dutch elm disease, and one is a maple. Two large limbs on E. Bellevue street also will be removed. Cost for the work will be $355.

Leslie Student Planning MSU Block, Bridle Show

A Leslie student at Michigan State University is hard at work planning the 16th annual Block and Bridle Horse Show to be presented April 3 and 4.

Irene Chmielewski, 3880 W. Service road, is serving as co-chairman of the exhibitions for the show. The show is unique in that it is planned and produced entirely by students.

More than 50 students are expected to import horses to the campus livestock pavilion in quest of the silver platters, bowls, and buckles that will be carried away by the winners of the student classes.

There will be 3 performances of the show with the program varying slightly for each. The Friday and Saturday performances begin at 7:30 p.m. The Saturday matinee begins at 1 p.m.

The program will feature the Victor Adding Machines 6-pony hitch, Chuck Grant and "Shining Gold," Olympic dressage winners; and an Oklahoma cowboy who Roman rides two brahma bulls. They will perform at all 3 shows.

The Michigan barrel racers will ride Saturday night. Old-fashioned horse pulling is scheduled for the Friday evening performance with 5 heavy-weight teams competing.

Tickets for the show may be purchased either at the door or by writing Horse Show Tickets, 205 Anthony hall, MSU, East Lansing, enclosing check or money order.

The Felt Plains WSCS will meet with Mrs. Don Dillingham Thursday evening, March 5.

Following the services at the Leslie church next Sunday, there will be a fellowship dinner in the fireside room.

Adult Classes Reduced to 2

LESLIE — Leslie's adult education courses have been reduced to 2 classes because of an apparent lack of interest.

Douglas King, high school principal, said this week a class in typing and one in shop work, each with 10 pupils are being conducted each week for 12 weeks. They will continue until May.

Harold Teachout is instructing the class in typing which meets on Tuesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., and Richard Byrum is in charge of the shop class which meets from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Mondays.

Two streets, State and Covert, were involved. Leslie township has changed the name of Kirby road to Adams road to avoid a conflict with Kirby street in the village.

Sometime ago the village changed the name of State road to Russell street. At one time there was a State road and a State street in the village and a State road in the township.

THIS IS HOW THE NEW INGHAM County jail out N. Cedar street will look when it is completed, sometime next November. The construction is on schedule, thanks to an open winter which eliminated delays because of weather conditions. The building when completed will be one of the finest of its kind in Michigan as far as security is concerned.

Finest in Michigan

New Home for County Shut-ins on Schedule

Come next November Ingham county will have one of the finest jail structures in Michigan as far as security is concerned.

After looking over the progress already made on the $1,700,000 facility, the term jail seems obsolete. This is a correctional institution.

It covers 10 acres of land just off N. Cedar street at the northern limits of the city. Its vastness is not appreciated unless one makes a tour of the facility which now is nearing the end of the first step in construction. All exterior and cement work is expected to be completed by April 1, when crews of steel workers will begin the task of placing steel for cell blocks and other security installations.

Construction is running on schedule, thanks to an open winter which caused no delays because of weather conditions. Work started last July.

Two huge boilers were installed last week.

"The initial manning of the jail will be our biggest move," Sheriff Kenneth L. Preadmore said. "After that we can increase the jail area without adding anymore manpower."

"The facility is designed for a minimum cost of operation. The cost of our food preparation will decrease because of the storage and refrigeration we will have. This will permit purchases in much larger quantities which can be stored for future use, by purchasing in large quantities we can save money and thus reduce the overall cost of food."

The structure will have a capacity for 240 prisoners plus holding tank space for 140. A holding tank is a large room with concrete or steel walls equipped with toilet facilities and a concrete bench around 3 sides. Prisoners awaiting processing after being booked will be placed in these tanks until they are ready to enter cells.

The structure will have an underground floor, a first floor and a second floor. Cell blocks will be located on all 3 floors.

The first floor is divided into areas. One area includes a receiving room where prisoners get their first glimpse of the interior of the building. The tanks are located in this area. So is the identification bureau and the infirmary.

The administration offices, also on the first floor are reached through a central lobby where the driver license, rest rooms and the records section.

In this area also will be the office of the sheriff and sheriff's staff and the information desk which will be manned by a sergeant. Next to the desk will be a radio control room from which operation of the front doors of the building will be done electronically after closing time at 6 p.m.

Also on this floor will be the detective bureau with 4 offices, the juvenile bureau, squad room, a conference room for use of attorneys and other visitors, a section for turnkeys and a lineup room.

Beneath all this in the underground area will be the chapel, a pistol range, laundry, kitchen and large storage areas.

The garage for department vehicles and the boiler room will be separate from the main building, as will also the sheriff's residence.

There will be a separate area for women prisoners with a matron in charge. This is designed to house 36 female inmates. It also has a tank for women in custody.

This entire facility is to be a self sustaining project. With its vast spaces for storage of food and for keeping files of records and other equipment, the building operation cost can be kept at a low level.

Even the garage will be equipped to service all department cars with the exception of large overhaul jobs.

Already plans for the move to the new building are moving forward. Sheriff Preadmore is busy coordinating the mass of detail which must be brought together into one smooth-running operation.

The present county jail building could be lost in this new facility. It is so huge. The old jail building probably will be used for county offices, some officials say.

For years the old jail has been inadequate, but the new structure will provide facilities that will be in keeping with the vast job of policing a county of 225,000 population.

Nazarene Preachers To Meet

Nazarene church pastors and their wives from Central Michigan will take part in the annual mid-year Michigan district preachers' conference to be held at the New Holland hotel, East Tawas, Monday through Wednesday, March 16-18.

He is known as a pastor to pastors and has written books and many articles in the pastoral field. He formerly was a college president and also served as pastor of major Nazarene churches in Cleveland and Kansas City.

Nearly all of the 102 churches in the district will be represented. These churches have about 7,000 members and a Sunday school enrollment of 16,000.

The program will be in charge of the district superintendent, Dr. Fred J. Hawk, Grand Rapids.

Personal Approach

They say that highways are happy ways when they lead the way back (home). With our fine highways and a great highway patrol system how regrettable it is to learn every week so many motorists never reach (home).

Will more police stop this killing on our highways? Would a courtesy day help if adopted by every police unit in our state known as Stop a Motorist today. Let every officer make a brief friendly contact pleading with the motorist for cooperation in working together to save a life on our highways.

Let us never forget the salesman who calls on the phone, never does business like the one who calls in person. It is that personal touch that counts and if there was ever a day that Michigan needed real cooperation between law enforcement and us, the people, it is today.

Highways can be happy ways if people will only abide by the laws of this state. There is no place like Home Sweet Home after a long week end trip. Are you going on a week end trip this week, and will you make it home?

Urges Mackie Praise

I see that you have a place in your paper for barbs and praises, so here are one or 2 of each.

First, I will say that I have always leaned more toward the Democratic side of the political world and that fact probably puts one strike against me at the start, according to your views.

I can and have split my vote more than once to vote for the man rather than the party. I voted for Vern Brown for governor and Eisenhower for president on account of his experience which I thought was necessary during the Suez crisis.

Now, the point is, can you as a Republican give credit where credit is due, even though the man is a Democrat?

The man, John Mackie when first elected to the office of highway commissioner, was subject to ridicule, court injunctions and other things as there were those who attempted to keep him from taking office.

I see by a small story on an inside page which you so graciously gave him that he is held in high esteem and was awarded the honor of road builder of the year at the annual meeting of the American Road Builders association. I don't believe that they who bestowed this honor on him were all Democrats.

Mr. Editor, can you give credit when it is due no matter what the political picture is?

Let's see if you have the nerve to print this. I don't pretend to be a great writer but just believe in stating the facts the way they are.

GERALD WALTERSDORF

EDITOR'S NOTE — Here is your letter Mr. Waltersdorf, not as result of your dare but because we have an open letter policy at the Ingham County News. As for the honors due Mr. Mackie, they are undoubtedly justified. He has gained his share of praise, for what it was worth, in the Ingham County News area community and as a state official, will be missed when he completes his move to the Laneer. But when, in our opinion, he is wrong, we'll say so, just as he has on occasion told us we were wrong.

Roaring Twenties Revue Was a Roaring Success

Mason Kiwanians presented their annual stage show to nearly-full houses both Friday and Saturday nights at Mason high school auditorium. Actors and actresses had just as much fun presenting the Roaring Twenties Revue as the audience seemed to have watching it. Proceeds from the spectacular will be used for club youth activities.

DIXIELAND MUSIC provided by these bobcats helped move the Kiwanis show along. They are Larry Burgess, John Loper, Jim Huber, Chuck Oesterle and Tom Wasson with Warren Emrick, musical director, at the piano.

Michigan Should Have an MSU Medical School

It's difficult to understand why Michigan's 2 medical universities, the University of Michigan and Wayne State university, should be so upset about the medical aspirations of Michigan State university.

There are many reasons in favor of establishing a full medical course on the East Lansing campus of MSU, not the least of which is the fact that Michigan needs more doctors. If the reverse was true — if there were too many doctors — then, of course, there would be no need for additional state facilities in which to prepare young men and women for the medical professions.

Doctors graduated at Wayne or U of M have the reputation of being tops in their fields. There is no question about the quality of our medical school graduates. Yet, Michigan needs more doctors now and certainly many more in the future.

Michigan State university, while now only seeking to establish a pre-medical department, would probably eventually evolve into a full medical program. It's logical that it should.

A full medical course at Michigan State university would provide additional opportunity for young people to serve their fellow men in one of life's finest ways. Many qualified young people today must pass up medical school because of lack of facilities.

Michigan State university has already proved its ability to use public funds in a way which trains young people for basic service to the general public. There is reason to believe that should MSU offer a full medical program, that its graduates would match or surpass those of any other university in service to others. More doctors are needed. The demand can't be met in the limited facilities provided by the state now. A medical school at MSU makes sense. The legislature ought to travel in that ultimate direction without regard to the pleading of the U of M and Wayne who really ought to be welcoming additional facilities at MSU instead of fighting the idea.

GUEST EDITORIAL

(Reprinted from the Gratiot County Herald)

Considerable agitation has been in evidence recently on the value of teaching Communism in the public schools throughout the United States. Not that anyone is so brazenly advocating Communism as a way of life for this country, but rather that it be taught for the opposite reason. It is felt that if our young people would learn to know what Communism really is then they would have a greater appreciation for our own republican form of government.

Not much time would have to be spent in the classroom, according to a visitor at the Herald office this week. "Communism could be taught in one easy lesson," he pointed out. "Here is all we would have to do to get on their level," he explained:

- Abandon three-fifths of our steel capacity.
- Abandon two-thirds of our petroleum capacity.
- Scrap 2 out of every 3 of our hydroelectric plants.
- Forget over 90 percent of our natural gas.
- Eliminate 95 percent of our electric motor output.
- Rip up 14 of every 15 miles of our paved highways.
- Destroy 2 of every 3 miles of our railroads.
- Sink 8 out of every 9 of our ocean-going ships.
- Junk 19 of every 20 of our automobiles and trucks.
- Slash all paychecks by three-fourths.
- Transfer 60 million Americans back to farms.
- Destroy 40 million television sets.
- Rip out 9 of every 10 telephones.
- Tear down 7 out of every 10 houses that now stand.

Thoughts For The Week

Read Matthew 26:36-45

Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble, and he delivered them out of their distresses. (Psalm 107:6.)

PRAYER is a sustaining power in daily life. It is a necessity for giving us courage at all times. The Lord Jesus Christ prayed in the Garden of Gethsemane for strength and courage to be obedient to His Father's will, even unto death.

Before doing an operation on a Hindu girl of twelve years who attends our high school, I said, "Look, Lakshmi, I will now pray to Jesus Christ. Fold your hands and close your eyes." She did so and repeated every word of my prayer.

I asked her why she repeated my prayer. She said, "I wanted to pray to Jesus Christ but did not know how to pray. Now I learn. I have courage and strength to undergo this operation."

Let us pray for courage to face any temptation. Let us pray for forgiveness of sins. Let us pray in the morning to face the day's task and at bedtime for protection during the night. God is close to us to hear our prayer at all times.

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, who dost accept our prayers, grant us strength to do Thy will. In the name of Christ, who gave His life that all persons might have redemption. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Prayer is a direct and an open line to carry messages between God and us.

barbs, praise and consequence

Efficiency in government is a good thing to shoot for but not at the expense of losing control of local government. Probably the most efficient government would be an absolute dictatorship.

For all practical purposes most of the proposals put forth so far in regard to home rule for counties concerns taking control away from the voter.

Personally, I want to have the privilege of electing my county officials. I don't want my American privilege of going to the polls to elect county officers taken away from me. We have entirely too much government by edict already.

As Woodrow Wilson once said, "The history of liberty is the history of limitations on government."

It seems to be the vogue now to make government free as the bird without having the mandatory duty of answering to the people.

There's only one way for the individual who wants to resist this trend toward giving up his liberty at the grass roots level. That way is to exercise his rights at the polls, to swamp his legislators with demands that he preserve our American way of government even if it is a complicated way of doing things. Change for the sake of change alone is not necessarily progress.

We ought to keep our government headed in the direction our forefathers intended it to head — which brings to mind a story.

A river steamer stopped because of a fog. An anxious passenger asked the captain, "What's wrong?"

"Can't see up the river." "But you can see the stars overhead perfectly plain," the passenger replied.

"Interesting but irrelevant," said the captain. "Unless our boiler bursts, we're not headed that way."

now got 2 knees that look like I was shoved off a freight train to prove it) quickly outshone any acting ability.

Back before Christmas we ran a series of pictures for youngsters to color and later selected some winners. Most of the winners came in and picked up their checks which ranged from $5 to $1, but 3 youngsters haven't showed up yet. Connie Soule has a $5 check waiting for her and Roger Horton and Billy Schmidt each have $1 checks waiting for them. If these artists don't stop in this week we might just turn the money over to the Harry Botek fund.

The Russians differ from us in their preferences both for politics and for female figures. For instance, a forthcoming book by Eddie Gilmore of the Associated Press claims that the Russian man wants his wife so constructed that when, on leaving for work in the morning, he slaps her on the bottom, it will still be quivering when he comes home late that night for supper. If this ever gets to be an international contest here in Ingham county we've got some women who might end up being czars of Russia. There's a Mason gal who chooses to stride the streets in the business section attired in slacks whose curvaceous dimpled treasury defies any corrective girdle. Americans might come out better in a sandplum jelly posterior contest with the Russians than they did at the Olympics in run-of-the-mill skating contests.

Compassion is due Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton from the Mason Kiwanians after their theatrics Friday and Saturday nights. The late hours on the stage, the off-beat practices, hiding behind pancake make-up and the blinding stage lights help achieve the unreal world of stardom.

The Taylor-Burton escapades are to be expected if the backstage fun experienced by Kiwanians was any example. Not that anyone on the Kiwanis billing became involved in any international expose! But the elements of "waywardness" were there and because theatrical agents have been slow in signing the Kiwanis show up for the road, the would-be actors and actresses are in no danger at all.

The Kiwanis show seemed to be a success. It made more money than ever at the boxoffice and that's the way most stage shows are rated. Kiwanians turn every cent of profit over to the benefit of community youth.

The mark of a great actor is in delivering a performance in such a real manner that it is believable. My pratfall during the spectacular chorus line act was sort of a combination of superb acting and realism. Those who saw my spread eagle at center stage believed they were seeing a great actress at her best. The fact is, the fall was somewhat contemplated, but my enthusiasm got the better of my equilibrium and realism (I've

Romney Reports

While the basic purpose of education must continue to be to impart knowledge, our place in history imposes new demands on education.

First, we must have education for freedom. Every young American must understand man's struggle for freedom — here in our own nation and elsewhere.

He must understand the sacrifices needed to win freedom and preserve it, the forces at work to destroy it, and the hard fact that every generation must prove itself worthy of freedom and be willing to sustain it.

We can no longer afford to relegate the course that used to be called "citizenship" to an inferior role in our schools, or leave it to teachers incapable of teaching more specialized courses in mathematics or languages.

Education for freedom must be the first — not the secondary or last — responsibility of our schools and colleges.

We must also have education for survival and victory. The menace to freedom and to free men posed by international communism has confronted our nation with its greatest struggle for survival. Education must be a major force in demonstrating that freedom in the world will not just survive but will win.

The truth is on our side. This we must prove over and over again to our youth. We must prove it by comparing freedom with communism, not by isolating them for its false and synthetic theories.

It is the role of education to teach the truth — "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

Finally we must have education for peace. Another general war could mean the destruction of most of mankind. But there are fates worse than death, and one is slavery. Although war is almost the ultimate calamity, we cannot place peace before freedom.

Synthetics Hurt Hide Industry

The increasing use of synthetic materials in shoe manufacturing hurts the hide and leather industry, and indirectly puts pressure on cattle prices. Normally, more than 80 percent of all finished leather goes into shoes. Last year, cattle slaughter increased 4 percent over 1962 but the demand for shoe leather did not increase. As a result, prices for cattle hides dropped to the lowest level in 25 years. Poor hides became practically worthless. Prices for shoes, of course, did not decline.

As I See It

By Hayden Palmer

Mr. and Mrs. James Vander Ven had an experience while attending the convention of the National Association of School Administrators in Atlantic City, New Jersey, recently. Vander Ven is superintendent of Mason public schools.

On their arrival they drove up to a hotel and asked an attendant to park their car. The attendant said to give him the keys and they would be returned when the car was needed again.

When it came time to start back to Michigan, they asked an attendant to get the car. He drove it out to the hotel entrance and Vander Ven then asked him to open the trunk.

"I can't," said the attendant. "This key unlocks only the transmission."

Vander Ven looked at the keys in the attendant's hand. "Those aren't my car keys," he said. And they weren't. The attendant said they were the ones given him when he went to get the car. He says the right keys would probably show up and they would be forwarded to the Vander Vens.

Luckily Mrs. Vander Ven had another set of keys and the Vander Vens drove home using her keys. In the missing key case was Vander Ven's driver's license and the car registration card plus some personal papers.

Since arriving back in Mason he has been busy getting a new driver's license and new registration card. He still is awaiting word from the hotel about the missing keys.

If you are a friend of Leon R. Donaldson of Okemos he would like to hear from you. Donaldson has joined the army and is stationed at Camp Knox, Kentucky, where he is taking his basic training. He has a long address. Here it is: Private Leon R. Donaldson, US 5571842, Company D, 9th Battalion, 3rd TNG USATC, Armor, Fort Knox, Kentucky 40121. Donaldson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Donaldson, 1070 Jolly road, Okemos.

Speaking at a recent banquet in Stockbridge, George Cavender, assistant director of bands at the University of Michigan, gave an example of the latest in automation.

It seems that a fellow professor at the university had an opportunity to spend a week in the east, but since time was short was at a loss as to what to do with his class.

At the suggestion of a friend, he taped his lectures for the week and obtained the services of a teaching fellow to attend the classes and play the recording to the students.

In the middle of the week, he had to make a quick plane trip back to Ann Arbor to pick up some necessary papers, and while there decided to sneak in and see how his class was doing.

Opening the classroom door a little, he could hear his voice coming from the tape recorder, but otherwise not a sound could be heard. Desiring to see the expressions on the faces of such an attentive audience, the professor opened the door so he could see inside. What he saw was not 35 interested students, but 35 tape recorders in operation, recording the lecture from his machine.

Did you know that of the more than 2,200 school teachers in Ingham county, 93 are in the $9,000 annual pay bracket? Of these, 27 women and 56 men are teaching in high schools and 7 women and 3 men in elementary schools.

Learning dates and associating them with events can sometimes be confusing.

This is especially true if the persons involved are 5 year olds. Then it can even produce the proverbial "gems from the mouths of babes."

At a recent party in the kindergarten class of the Smith elementary school in Stockbridge the teacher, Mrs. Helen Mitteer, decided to demonstrate for the mothers in attendance some of the things her pupils had been learning.

Since she had explained to them the several important dates in February, she decided to question her pupils about them.

"What happens on February 2," she asked. Up went a hand and the answer came: "It's Groundhog day."

Then Mrs. Mitteer asked: "And what does the groundhog do?" The answer gave her a start. One of the 5-year-olds rose from his seat and said:

"He comes out of the hole and frees the slaves."

Canada Will Sell All It Can to Reds

Canadian officials are out to sell all the wheat they can to Communist countries. The chairman of the Canadian wheat board has been touring the Soviet Union hopeful of lining up more wheat sales for his country.

Canadian farmers have been given the green light on wheat production this year and there are indications they will raise all the wheat they can. There are strong indications that Canadian farmers will try to top last year's record crop of 723 million bushels.

Record exports of around 550 million bushels, including the 240 million bushels to Russia, probably will dispose of the surplus from last year's big crop and even use up some of the 488 million bushels remaining from previous crops. The Canadian government has signed long-term contracts with several Communist Bloc countries which should boost Canada's annual exports to around 500 million bushels for the next couple of years, anyway.

Reports indicate that Canada's shipments of wheat to Russia are going along on schedule. A relatively mild winter, so far, has helped in handling of grain to eastern ports. It's possible shipping on the Great Lakes may open earlier than usual, unless there's enough severe weather yet to hold ice back in the lakes. A weather break would allow Canada to start shipments from the wheat areas in April.

Dairy Cow Output at Peak

Average output per dairy cow in the U. S. last year was 7,545 pounds of milk, a new record high. The annual rate has been increasing each year since 1944.

California, with an annual average of 10,410 pounds of milk per cow, led all states, followed by Arizona, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

Achievements of Four Area Farmers Honored

Four area farmers were honored at a banquet Thursday evening for their outstanding achievements during the year. The awards banquet was given by the Jaycees of Lansing at the Woman's Club House. General chairman of the event was Robert Zeeb of Bath.

Honored as the top state farmer was John Paul Jones of Clayton. Second place winner was Stanley Fay of Stockbridge. Runners-up to Fay were Russell Rowe, Marvin Lott and Ramon Waltz, all of Mason.

Fay and his wife, Marilyn, have 3 children. He is 28. The Fay operation is dairy farming and he is presently milking 62 cows and works 360 acres. He began his farming career through 4-H work and started in partnership with his father. His contributions to the community include his work at the Baptist church in Stockbridge where he is on the board of trustees, he belongs to the Stockbridge Jaycees, PTA, Ingham County Agricultural Advisory Board, Ingham County DHIA board of directors, Ingham County Farm Bureau of which he is vice-president of the county board of directors.

Last year Mr. and Mrs. Fay were given the outstanding dairy couple of the year award through the MMPA of which he is a member.

In 1939 Fay worked on the centennial committee for Stockbridge, has been a judge for the FFA parliamentary procedure team. Last year he was the youngest member on the Michigan Farm Bureau resolutions committee and early in February of this year he was on the program at MSU during Farmers Week at which time he spoke on Getting Started in Farming.

Russell Rowe is 30 and he and his wife, Shirley, have 3 children. He operates a 250 acre swine production. Last year they farrowed 100 litters. Rowe started farming in partnership with his father.

At present Rowe is a director for the Ingham County Soil Conservation District, has been in Farm Bureau for 12 years, is on the township zoning board and attends Pennway Church of God in Lansing where he is vice-president of the board of trustees and teaches Sunday school.

Marvin Lott, 34, and wife, Vivien, have 4 children and operate a 321 acre dairy farm, milking 73 cows at present. Lott started farming in partnership with his father. In 1960 Mr. and Mrs. Lott were awarded the outstanding dairy couple of the year award through MMPA.

In 1963 Lott received an award for achievement in agriculture through the MSU short course alumni. He has been in 4-H for 8 years and now teaches a tractor club. For 14 years he has been a member of the Farm Bureau and has served as president, vice-president, treasurer, discussion leader and minuteman for the local group. He is a past member of the school board, belongs to the DHIA for the past 15 years, the MMPA for 10 years and has served as secretary-treasurer of MABC.

Ramon Waltz is 25 and he and his wife, Mary Ann, have 2 children. Waltz operates a 200 acre swine production and last year he farrowed 85 litters of pigs. Waltz also began farming in partnership with his father and brother, but in 1960 branched out on his own. He is a member of the Ingham County Soil Conservation District, Ingham County Farm Bureau, Ingham County Young Farmers and Mason Methodist church.

Blue and Gold Banquet Staged at Dansville

DANSVILLE — Dansville Cub Scout Pack 270 had its annual blue and gold banquet Tuesday, February 25, at the Dansville school. The Cub Scouts are sponsored by the Dansville PTA, and president, David Haarer, accepted the new charter for the sponsoring organization.

Six cubs were presented with an arrow of light pin for completing the requirements of Webelos den and were graduated into the Boy Scout troop. Garrett Wheaton, cubmaster, presented the 6 boys, Randall Ruest, Wesley Stid, George Heller, Jerry Morris, Larry Wing and Mark Wolfgang with graduation certificates, and they were accepted as Boy Scout candidates by Scoutmaster Elbridge Wolfgang into Troop 70.

O. B. Cornett, pack committee chairman, presented the boys with the arrow of light pins.

Almost 100 boys and their families attended the affair. An instrumental combo, under the direction of Jim Mitoska of Dansville entertained the group. A Space Derby also was on the program. Rubber powered wood rockets made by the scouts and operated on a thin wire strung across the gym, were raced against time to determine the winners. Tony Horn's rocket had the best time of 1.1 seconds for 1st.

honors and Wesley Stid and Larry Wing came in 2nd and 3rd, respectively.

The annual Pinewood Derby had been conducted last month, but the awards were made at the banquet. The grand champion honors went to Charles Monroe and other winners were Tommy Taylor, Den 1; Gary Witte, Den 2; Jerry Morris, Den 3, and Steven Stid, Den 5. A loving cup with his name engraved on it was presented to the grand champion, Charles Monroe.

2 Attend Inter-Race Conference

DANSVILLE — Two Dansville girls attended the inter-racial conference in Detroit February 21 and 22. Marian McPhee and Mary Fairbanks, both freshmen at Dansville high school, were representatives of the Dansville Methodist youth fellowship group at the 7th annual conference. Theme of the conference was Brotherhood in Action.

About 200 teenagers, including 75 Negroes, participated in the experiment to show that Brotherhood in Action can translate racial prejudice and hostility into understanding and acceptance. Each of the teenagers was to stay at a Negro home during the conference to gain better insight into the everyday life of a Negro family.

Unfortunately, the Dansville girls arrived at the conference late because of poor bus connections and were unable to obtain a Negro family sponsor. However, the home where they were guests also had a Negro girl guest, Miss McPhee and Miss Fairbanks attended meetings at the East Grand Boulevard Methodist and the St. Mark Methodist churches.

A play on race relations was presented by a group of Wayne State university students. Rev. Edward King, a Negro minister, spoke of his experiences on the March to Washington last year and in demonstrations in the south.

Cattlemen Irked by Beef Pact

The agreements made between the United States, Australia and New Zealand governments to limit shipments of beef to this country didn't get a very enthusiastic reception from U. S. cattlemen. The general agreements would limit shipments to the U. S. from these 2 nations to about the 1962-63 average, which in those 2 years came to around 1.25 billion pounds. A resolution of the recent National Livestock Feeders association asked for an agreement cutting imports to the 1960 level. For Australia and New Zealand this would be around 453 million pounds, about a third of the amount in the announced agreements.

Secretary of Agriculture Freeman said in announcing the quotas that without them beef and veal imports this year were expected to increase by 8 to 10 percent. Instead, they will decline about 6 percent in 1964 and increase by less than 4 percent per year in 1965 and 1966. This will benefit our livestock producers materially, according to the secretary. Immediately after the announcement of the agreements, cattle prices at midwest markets weakened significantly.

Turkey Season ?

Lansing -- Wild turkeys have reached the point in southern Michigan's Allegan state forest area where some 200 of these birds could be taken by hunters each year without hurting their population, according to the Conservation Department.

The annual loss is now about 30-percent, a margin that has held steady from one year to the next.

Department game men see no chance of cutting this loss under present conditions. They feel the best answer is to convert the annual loss into a legal hunter take.

The possibility of hunting turkeys is still in the talking stage. The Department has made no formal plans for recommending legislative consideration of such a season.

Michigan Beef Farms Are Growing Larger

Michigan beef cattlemen have increased their feeding operations by over 50 percent in the past 10 years, according to a Michigan State university agricultural economist.

C. R. (Ray) Hoglund reports that the number of cattle on feed is about 150,000. The trend is toward larger, highly-mechanized operations, but many small setups continue to exist.

"In Lenawee county, for example, 40 percent of the beef operators feed on less than 100 head of cattle per farm," Hoglund points out. "But only one-sixth of that county's cattle are fed in these smaller units."

"It's the farmers with 200 or more head on feed that account for about two-thirds of the total cattle numbers in the county."

The MSU agricultural economist says the increase in size of operations has been accompanied by a change to the feeding of more corn in the form of high moisture grain and a greater dependence on the corn silage crop.

"A Michigan State university cattle feeding study showed that high moisture corn was fed by slightly more than one-third of the farmers feeding 100 to 200 head of cattle and by more than one-half of the cattlemen with 200 or more cattle on feed. All of the cattlemen with 75 or more head of cattle fed corn silage, with a few feeding haylage."

Hoglund, who surveyed 66 cattle feeders during the last 4 years, said that Michigan farms range in size from those feeding less than 100 head to those feeding more than 500 head per year. He noted that the degree of mechanization depends upon the size of their beef feeding operation, the labor available, and relative cost of equipment and labor.

Some farmers also consider the ease of doing the job and flexibility of equipment before adding to the mechanization of their operation.

Farm Recreation Group is Formed

The pros and cons of converting farms to recreation sites will be discussed at the organizational meeting of a new state-wide farm recreation association March 20 at 1:30 p.m. in Michigan State University's Kellogg Center.

The need for the association was stimulated by interest shown during recent MSU Farmers Week sessions. Owners and operators of present and potential recreation enterprises will be supported in their new organization by the Cooperative Extension service.

Acting as temporary chairman is Louis Twardzik, MSU recreation specialist.

Dairy Study Scholarship Is Offered

Young men intending to find a career in the rapidly growing dairy manufacturing field may qualify for a $2,000 scholarship for study at Michigan State University or other colleges with an accredited program.

The annual scholarship, allowing $500 for each of 4 years, is sponsored by the Chicago Dairy Technology Society. Students enrolling at MSU next fall in dairy manufacturing are eligible for the scholarship, according to Dr. Larry Harmon, MSU food scientist.

One MSU student is currently using the scholarship to further his education and 2 other MSU students would probably have been sure winners if they had known about the award, added the scientist.

Michigan students will be competing with youths from 4 other states for the annual award.

Further details on the scholarship are available by writing to Dr. Harmon at 221 Anthony Hall, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan. The deadline for applicants is April 15.

Livestock, Poultry Value down

Total inventory value of all livestock and poultry on Michigan farms January 1 was $302.5 million, 6 percent less than a year earlier. As the year started there were 2 percent fewer dairy cows, 2.5 percent more beef cattle, 11 percent fewer hogs, 3 percent more chickens and 10 percent fewer turkeys. . . . Stocks of potatoes in Michigan farm, local dealer and processor storages on February 1 were estimated at 2.75 million cwt. This was 40 percent of the total 1963 fall crop and 8 percent less than a year earlier. . . . The U. S. supreme court recently ruled 9 to 0 that it is a criminal violation for a public warehouse to store food under unsanitary conditions which permit it to become contaminated. . . . Commercial hatcheries in Michigan produced over 1.5 million chicks during January, up 32 percent from the year before and 24 percent above the average for the last 5 years. Egg-type hatch was up 50 percent and the largest since 1955. . . . Crops in India are threatened by lack of moisture. India is one of the largest U. S. wheat markets. . . . Lakes Michigan and Huron have dropped to their lowest levels in more than 100 years, according to the weather bureau.

Agriculture In Action

BRANTFORD, ONTARIO --- Here, East of the Border, in the city where Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone, string pulling is big business.

A group of Michigan farm leaders are learning just how big, by Farm Bureau Services, Inc., of Lansing. Farmers are big users of industrial "string."

Michigan farmers invest more than two million dollars each year in the kind of string that is spun at the Brantford Cordage Company located here. They use it in coils of rope, in loops of clothesline-type cord, and in "balls" which hay balers seem to gulp in endless streams at around $10 each; and late reports are that twine prices will increase.

Last year farmers of our state bought 55,000 "bales" of this twine, four balls to the bale. Each time they bought twine or rope, they were dealing in international trade, for no such fiber producing plants are commercially grown in the United States.

There is some slight production of twine behind the Iron Curtain, but to Western knowledge, there is no actual farm production use of twine to bale hay or bind sheaves (bundles) of grain. Both require a type of mechanized agriculture in which Russia has notably failed.

But why twine production in Brantford, Ontario? Why is twine a big deal these thousands of miles north of where the tropical sisal plants (twine and cords) and the banana-like abaca tree (manilla for ropes) grow? It began almost 75 years ago when Ontario farmers formed the "Ontario Bindry Company" following the invention of the first successful mechanical knitter, to "assure a twine supply at reasonable prices."

The failing farmer's cooperative has since been sold to private investors who carry on most of the original traditions. Twine prices, however, have been forced to climb because reliable sources of raw fiber are virtually non-existent.

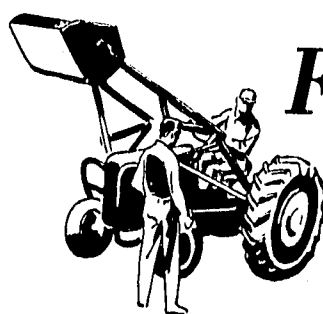

Although the "cold" countries of the world produce the finished cord products, the "hot" countries grow the raw material. Unfortunately many of these are politically hot too, unstable and rife with internal dissension. Ghana and Tanganyika are good examples.

Michigan farmers are becoming increasingly aware that world affairs and international trade reach directly into their lives and their pocketbooks.

Michigan Livestock Value Placed at $302 Million

The inventory value of all livestock and poultry on Michigan farms at the start of the year was $302½ million, which was 6 percent less than a year ago but a sizeable amount of livestock.

G. S. McIntyre, agricultural director, points out that livestock and livestock products make up 54 percent of the cash income of Michigan farmers' farm cash receipts amounted to about $785 million for the last year for which complete figures are available.

A recent report by the Agricultural Statistics Reporting Service, a cooperative effort of the Michigan and U. S. departments of agriculture, shows the number of cattle in the state is 1,732,000, the same as a year ago. Of that number 687,000 are milk cows. This is 2 percent less than a year ago, although milk production is slightly greater than in the previous year.

With the past year the number of beef cows increased 2½ percent. The hog population was 705,000, an 11 percent reduction in a year. Sheep were numbered at 342,000.

Michigan's chicken population is a sizeable one and is 3 percent greater than a year ago. There are about 6.9 million chickens in the state. Turkeys were fewer at the first of the year, with 103,000 on hand. A year ago there were about 10 percent more.

Livestock and poultry populations vary from year to year and even from season to season. But as the year began there were fewer hogs, turkeys, sheep and lambs, the same number of cattle, and slightly more chickens than there were the previous year at the same time, McIntyre said.

Fewer and Larger Farms in State

Michigan farms are becoming fewer and larger, a trend that has been in progress in the state for the past 31 years and follows the national pattern.

The agricultural statistics reporting service of the Michigan department of agriculture reports Michigan currently has 105,000 farms, but in 1933 there were about 200,000. Expressed as a percentage the 1964 number is down 48 percent from the 1933 level.

The size of farms in the state, however, has reached an all-time high of 136 acres. In 1933 the average size was only 92 acres. Despite this the total land in farms in Michigan is decreasing. This year total land in farms is 14,300,000 acres as compared to 13,300,000 in 1933.

Because of mechanization, better land use, improved varieties and breeds, and better farming methods generally, production in many crops has increased in the state, G. S. McIntyre, agricultural director, explained. Bigger yields on fewer acres seems to be the rule today.

USDA Buys 427 Cars of Apples

The USDA purchased 427 cars of fresh apples last week as a surplus removal activity. Practically all of the apples were bought, and will be distributed, in states west of the Mississippi river. One lot, consisting of 840 cartons of McIntoshes, was purchased here in Michigan and will be distributed to schools and other eligible institutions in our state. Shipments are to be made between February 24 and March 31.

Cuts Your Toughest Crop With 10% Less Tractor Pull

Up to 20% More Silage

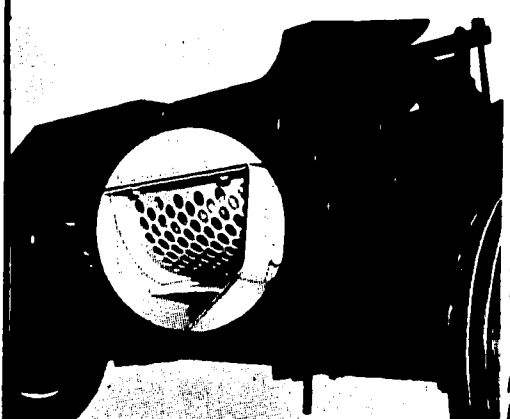

Why? Because cutting and blowing are separate operations. There's no compromise with a combination cutter-blower as in flywheel units.

Six razor-sharp, spiral, overlapping knives shear without chopping or shredding... concentrate cutting close to shaft. You use less horsepower per ton of forage harvested.

You can adjust the independent two-speed blower to the right speed for each crop... requires less tractor power even in rough going.

No wonder the Fox is labeled "the closest thing to a custom-made piece of machinery in the field today".

Finer, cleaner cutting of corn for silage as well as hay crops. Makes for more forage in smaller storage space.

Snow Removal Problems

The mild winter with less snowfall has heaped its blessing on the State Highway Department maintenance crews but March is anticipated with caution because of a relatively new major winter problem.

There are 469 interchanges on the state's 1,165 mile freeway system... an average of one every 2.5 miles... and each one adds at least two more miles of ramps to be cleared of snow.

The interchange at the junction of I-96 and US 23 freeways near Brighton for instance has almost 12 miles of ramps.

It takes four passes to clear a mile of freeway compared to two passes required to clean off the old two-lane highways.

VOTING CHANCES

Amendment of Michigan's new Constitution appears now as a strong possibility of this spring and summer.

Gov. George Romney, one of the authors of the document which took effect in January, at first was opposed to any move to change it this year. Now, however, he admits there may be some areas where change might be desirable.

Sections of the Constitution under serious study for the possibility of amendment deal with the voting age, county officers' terms, legislative terms, and legislative apportionment.

The 18-year-old would gain the right to vote and legislative redistricting would be put off for another two years under present proposals gaining most attention. Serious study of the former is prompted largely by a group of youths in Central Michigan who would gain franchise if the Constitution were changed to lower the voting age.

Concentration on the redistricting problem has taken on many faces, prompted by failure of the eight member Constitutionally-created Apportionment Commission. The bipartisan commission held out hope to the last that it could reach agreement on a plan to divide the state into equitable House and Senate districts within guidelines in the new Constitution. House and Senate districts within guidelines in the new Constitution.

This lacking, the Commission's various plans went to the State Supreme Court. As the wheels of government and the law move exceedingly slowly, these wheels do not deter the June 16 legislative filing date from approaching rapidly.

No indication is available from the Court when its decision could be handed down.

This uncertainty and the possibility of citizen challenge to any plan set by the Supreme Court leaves legislators wondering where their districts will be and whom they might face in primary balloting.

A proposal under consideration, with support of some members in both parties, would change the Constitution to require that the redistricting plan be ready by Jan. 1, 1965. It would then become effective in the 1966 election, rather than this year as intended by the writers of the Constitution.

might be one area where he would agree to or encourage adjustment of the state's new basic law.

"STARS" SEEING
Aerial photos have been in use for highway planning for many years, but the space age may change the method of obtaining these tools.

State Highway Department planners now predict that in a very few years satellites will be used for land surveying just as they are now used in experiments for navigation.

Like navigation problems, land surveying is complicated by the fact that the measurements are made on the curved surface of the earth. Thus, straight lines aren't straight very long. Stretches of road over several miles require designing corrections to account for the curvature of the earth.

Satellite surveying would help simplify the designer's problems, department engineers say.

Aerial photography or photogrammetry as it is known as used for land surveying, has come a long way over the years. It was first done, even before the airplane, by using kites.

Historians note that aerial photography became a highly refined process during World War II. Department officials say the next several years and the use of satellites will bring the process even closer to the status of a science.

FLAG FORM
Michigan's flag is familiar to only a few people in the state, but it need not be so.

The state banner, like the Stars and Stripes, is designed for regular use by anyone and everyone. Rules for its proper display are very simple, either alone or with the American flag.

History of the flag is short. It goes back 127 years to the day when Stevens T. Mason, Michigan's first governor, presented his own design to the state militia, Brady's Guards, in Detroit on George Washington's birthday.

Mason designed the flag as a blue field with a portrait of himself on one side, the state coat-of-arms, a soldier and a lady on the other.

This design was changed in 1865 to one with the state coat-of-arms on one side and U.S. emblem on the other. The field of blue has been maintained to the current day.

Job Clinic Is Planned

A job preparation clinic for teenagers, sponsored by the YWCA will be conducted on 2 Thursdays, March 5 and 12 from 7 to 9 p.m., at the YWCA building 217 Townsend street in Lansing. Boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 20 are invited to attend.

On March 5, the topic will be How to Get a Job and the program will include information concerning work permits, social security, job application letters and forms, and the job interview. What to expect, what questions to ask, and personal appearance. After explaining the technical requirements and necessary credentials for employment, a tour of "My Gal Friday" offices will be conducted for those who are interested in visiting an employment agency.

On March 12, the topic Where to Find a Job will be discussed by a panel of professional adults in various fields of employment. The panel will bring to the class their knowledge of part-time and summer jobs available for teenagers and the qualifications necessary for the various types of work.

The course is offered as a service to teenagers in the community, to aid them in their search for a temporary work, and in preparation for the responsibilities of employment. Youth will gain new confidence in their ability to fulfill employment requirements and broader knowledge of the types and location of job opportunities available.

Registration for the clinic will be March 5, at 7 p.m. No YWCA membership is required and the fee is nominal.

It's Weights, Measures Week

A proclamation designating March 1 to 7 as Weights and Measures Week, signed by Governor Romney, stresses the importance of the work done on State, county and city levels on measuring devices in Michigan.

Last year 129,442 weighing and measuring devices in the state were checked and 11 percent were found to be incorrect. Inaccuracy of a measuring device results in an economic loss for either the buyer or the seller.

Much of the work of testing measuring devices is done by skilled men of the Michigan Department of Agriculture's foods and standards division which has a section devoted exclusively to this vital work. Other testing of measuring devices is done by sealers in some of the counties and some of the cities.

Say Salesman

Representing himself as a member of the Michigan department of agriculture, a glib-tongued salesman of an eastern nursery firm has been soliciting orders in some cities in the state.

Here's how the gag works. The salesman calls at a home and tells the resident he is a representative of the Michigan Department of Agriculture and wishes to discuss community beautification in which the Department is concerned.

He flashes before the resident a nursery agent's permit which has the department name at the top. These are required by all agents selling nursery stock in the state. The department issued 232 of them last year.

In the course of the conversation on community beautification, the salesman works into his pitch. He suggests that the resident beautify his own property with nursery stock sold by an eastern firm. The order pad comes out after a little further discussion. "The Michigan department of agriculture has no product to market, and therefore does not have salesmen out selling anything."

Stockbridge Ewe Makes Medical History

Farmer Brown's ewe is just an ordinary sheep with no papers, no pedigree, no family history, but none the less she made history in the animal world this month.

The ewe, owned by Hugh J. Brown, 2601 M-52 north of Stockbridge, produced a pair of lambs on February 1. There's nothing unusual about that, but 15 days later, the ewe delivered another lamb. Dr. A. J. Spencer, Stockbridge veterinarian, has determined that the third lamb is not a triplet but instead the result of a double conception.

Brown said he was concerned that the ewe didn't have the milk to feed her twins. To give her the extra strength he thought she needed to care for the twins, he put her on a feed calculated to build her up. The crash feeding program had more effect on the yet-unborn third lamb than on the ewe. The lamb weighed more than 11 pounds, considerably heavier than the average new-born lamb and unbelievably more considering the peculiar circumstances of birth.

Because of the milk scarcity Brown did not turn her out with the other sheep after the twins were born, but kept her in a pen by herself. Then on February 15, as Brown was feeding his flock he stopped to look at the ewe in the pen. He thought she looked sick.

Quickly finishing the rest of his chores, Brown hurried back to the pen and, lo and behold, the ewe was having another lamb.

A phone call brought Dr. Spencer to the farm.

At first it was thought the third lamb was dead. However, according to Brown, Dr. Spencer went to work, using all his skill and after quite a struggle, delivered the 11-pound live lamb.

Dr. Spencer has been practicing for more than 22 years and he said he has never witnessed such a thing and has never talked to anyone who has.

School Group Approves New Budget

Representatives of Ingham county school boards, meeting in the offices of the Ingham Intermediate board of education last Wednesday night approved a proposed budget of $58,145 for the 1964-65 school year.

The budget now goes to the Ingham county clerk who in turn delivers it to the tax allocation board which will allocate tax rates to the intermediate school districts.

Of the $58,145 in the budget $44,295 is earmarked for salaries and salary related matters, $2,500 for travel, $2,300 for supplies, $1,600 for equipment, $3,450 for postage and telephone, $1,500 for rental, $2,000 for utilities and maintenance and $500 for miscellaneous items.

The Ingham Intermediate board of education, formerly known as Ingham county board of education, offers many services performed in the interest of facilitating to a degree the important task assigned to local school districts within the intermediate service area.

The intermediate unit of school administration is an agency operating at a regional level, giving coordination and supplementary services to local school districts and serving as a link between these and the state.

In Michigan responsibility for education, by constitutional provision, resides in the state. To execute this responsibility the legislature creates school districts and delegates to them specific responsibilities. Undelimited responsibilities are retained by the state or assigned to an intermediate office of education, like-wise established by law. The latter in discharging its assigned functions is performing what may be termed liaison services. A partial listing of these would include verifying pupil enrollment, checking teacher certification, approving school lunch claims and remitting checks, reviewing lunch programs, checking bus routes, processing accounting records, computing delinquent taxes, checking reports routed from district to state and state to district, conducting audits, transferring property from district to district, computing valuations and tax rates.

Broad, general objectives of the 15 Ingham districts are the same. Since this is true, each may well be of help to the others in achieving these objectives. The intermediate office plays a part in facilitating a working relationship between these districts which enable them to realize the benefits of cooperative effort.

A listing of activities contributing the "cohesion" out of which cooperation grows would be incomplete but would include stimulation by and participation in professional meetings of Ingham superintendents and other leaders, periodic circulation of newsletters, arranging for cooperative purchasing of school lunch commodities, compiling and making available significant comparative data.

The intermediate office also conducts such activities as sponsoring workshops for school bus drivers, school lunch personnel, boards of education, curriculum improvement committees and teacher institutes.

The law also fixes responsibility in the intermediate board for certain aspects of special education. One of these is to certify, collect and disburse the 3/4 mill special education levy.

Another is to stimulate and direct program development in a manner designed to insure that all children needing these services get them.

A third is to provide direct service to school districts with enrollments insufficient to warrant provision of the service in

Stockbridge Youth Wins Milk Contest

Glen Graf, R 1, Stockbridge, has been selected as a state winner in the 4-H efficient milk production contest. He earned this award as a 4-H member in the White Oak club. The award is a gold watch and plaque, given by the National Dairy Products Corporation.

Graf is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Graf, and he is 18 years old. Currently, he is attending a general agriculture course at Michigan State University. He has completed 8 years of 4-H club work. In addition to his work in dairy and dairy production, he has taken Woodworking and Junior leadership in his local 4-H club.

He has participated in 4-H demonstrations and judging activities. In addition to the numerous activities, he has conducted as a 4-H member, Graf has learned about some of the more intangible benefits of being a 4-H member. In the story he submitted in applying for this award, he stated, "4-H work taught me to better understand the people who are constantly about me in everyday life."

The award will be presented formally at the annual meeting of the Michigan Dairy Herd Improvement association in East Lansing, March 25.

Ingham 4-Hers At Camp Kett

A delegation from Ingham County attended a State 4-H Dairy Training Conference held at Camp Kett last Saturday. The purpose of the conference was to explain plans for the revised 4-H Dairy Project in Michigan.

A new leaders' idea book was presented to those attending the conference. The book is intended to provide short teaching lessons on a variety of topics related to the Dairy Project. In addition, the new Dairy Science booklets for members in the 12 to 14 age group, were discussed.

Attending the conference from Ingham County were: Mary Huber, Mason; Ray Wilson, Holt; Lloyd Curtis, Stockbridge; and Jim Mulvaney and Gary Severs, from the County Extension Office.

their own right, such as diagnostics, speech corrections and teachers of the homebound.

Currently in the Ingham intermediate district classroom programs are serving more than 1,000 handicapped children and non-classroom programs an additional 5,000.

Eighty-five classroom teachers are involved, in addition to 75 non-teaching personnel.

Twenty-nine of the latter are employed by and under the general supervision of the intermediate board.

FISHING LINES

It happened back in 1931. Sam Kelson kicked off his shoes on the beach at Bimini. Bimini is a little island near where Columbus landed and about 50 miles east of Miami's pastel palaces. Sam came to Bimini to rest, not fish. Fishing was something done from a boat in a lake and after bass. Sam had hoped to find fresh water on Bimini to try his luck. Despairing of this, he took his two-piece bamboo from its cloth case, attached a nickel silver-plated brass reel, tied on an embossed spinner trailing a feathered treble hook, and flung the lure out into the heaving brine.

Expecting nothing, Sam never even saw it happen. It must have shown on the surface as a large swirl. Anyway, Sam's line suddenly went taut, like when you hook into solid rock. This disturbed Sam — it being the first cast — and he gave a real solid tug. Well, if Sam still is not sure what fish it was, he leaped clear of the surf, cast one dry look at Sam, and took off carrying with it 150 feet of the best braided casting line then sold.

At first, Sam looked around for someone to tell, and seeing none, pushed his way slowly through the water to the beach. He sat down not realizing he was among the first to appreciate the world's hottest fishing spot.

Bimini is but one of the 700-odd islands of the Bahamas — the sportsman's own 70,000-square-mile fish pond. There you can hook into 925 different varieties along the reefs and some 260 more in the open waters. Of 49 species listed by the International Game Fish Association, the Bahamas has produced 50 record holders in the various tackle sizes. Among them are barracuda, bonefish, bonito, blue marlin, and bluefin tuna.

A year-round pastime, fishing for one or two varieties is always good. Light tackle favorites like amberjack, grouper, snapper, and yellowtail are plentiful in the reefs embracing every Bahamas cay. The bays, passes, inlets, creeks, and beaches also offer consistent action to anglers.

About tackle for the Bahamas, deep sea gear is provided aboard charter boats. Bring at least one or two lighter outfits. A seven-foot, medium-action spinning rod like the Garcia Conolon 2032 is ideal. This two-piece tubular fiberglass rod works well with the new Mitchell 100 fast-retrieving spinning reel. Six- and eight-pound test Pinyl monofilament lines balance perfectly with this combination.

For somewhat heavier, deeper water angling, take a bait-casting outfit. The Ambassador 3000 reel, with its uncanny automatic transmission and capacity of 300 yards of 20-pound monofilament line, will handle even big sailfish and tarpon.

To these outfits, add a handful of yellow-colored streamers, small spoons, and plugs.

The islands are 150 minutes from New York by air. From Miami there are regular ferries and air taxis. Accommodations are plentiful and reasonable. Life ashore is elegant and dignified; on the water it's tackle-training and record-busting.

Sees Cut In House Farm Seats

The recent supreme court decision indicating that congressional districts must be equal in population in so far as that is practicable, could well reduce the farm and rural representation in the house of representatives.

Today in the house there are about 300 members without a major farm producing interest in their districts compared with only about 135 members who can be classified as farm and rural. Only 30 years ago the situation was just the reverse. Farm leaders figure that if the court's decision is carried out completely, farm and rural representation could be reduced to around 100. This change probably would have a significant effect on what kind of farm legislation is passed in the years ahead.

GEORGE MURTHUM has been teaching 17 years and expects to teach many more. He enjoys working with youngsters taking pride during the transition from ear-splitting tunes to mellow notes of accomplished musicians. The Mason instrumental music director instructs about 250 young musicians. Many present and past musicians under the baton of George Murthum have achieved outstanding successes. Murthum has 3 children. He directs the Baptist choir.

The laundry room might well be called "mom's hangout," as this is where she spends much of her time, almost as much as in the kitchen. The illustration shows a compact arrangement—washer, dryer and accompanying shelf space—which would please most homemakers. A seldom-used pantry or off-the-kitchen closet could provide just the right amount of space needed to put the laundry near the kitchen—a step-saving idea mom would appreciate. Folding doors add a decorative touch and permit the laundry to be "closed" during non-working hours.

Business Outlook

The tax cut will become a reality within the next few weeks, therefore, I wish to write a series of columns in the field of new tax rules which may help readers to have a precise concept of the rules and regulations and their contents. The total tax cut will be 11.5 billion dollars. If the law passes in the early part of March 1964, which will be retroactive to January 1, 1964, the rate will be reduced from a minimum of 20% to 16%, and the maximum will be from 91% to 77%. For the next calendar year (1965) the minimum will then be 14% and the maximum will be 70%. The withholding tax will be immediately reduced from 18% to 14% eight days after the bill becomes law. The corporation tax will be reduced from 52% to 48%.

According to generally acceptable economic theory, this reduction of taxes will stimulate private industry to have enough working capital for replacement of new machinery, etc. in order to compete with other countries. At the same time, it will give the wage earners more spending money to stimulate the consumer market on durable goods, as well as consumer items.

This new law will affect the following items: It will affect the itemized deductions which will eliminate the deductions of local taxes on liquor, cigarettes, hotel rooms, theater tickets, state and local driver's license, auto tax

Alice E. Baldwin vs. Sharon K. Baldwin, February 20.

Jan Laurel Thompson vs. William Nelson Thompson, February 21.

Glenna Kay Carr vs. Conrad W. Carr, February 21.

Barbara June Ackley vs. James Elba Ackley, February 21.

Christine G. Wallace vs. Earl Gene Wallace, February 21.

JoAnn Lynam vs. George Lynam, February 21.

Carol Smith vs. D. B. Martin Smith, February 21.

fees; however, the new law will permit the state local tax deductions on gasoline, sales tax, property tax, and income tax. This will give the federal government an increase of $300 million annually.

At the present time the standard deductions of average taxpayers can deduct $1,000, or 10% of his earnings on joint returns. This only gives the individuals with joint income more than $10,000 before they are able to have $1,000 standard deduction. The new law added an alternative method under which taxpayer can claim a $300 deduction for himself, in addition to an additional $100 for his wife and other dependents up to $1,000. This will remove $1,500,000 low income persons from the tax rolls.

Next week I will discuss the field of capital gain, as well as the elderly taxpayer's special benefits.

"I Shall Keep This Lent"

"LENT" means springtime. It is an old Latin word which means a forty day fasting period next before Easter. It begins with Ash Wednesday and continues till Easter; exclusive of Sundays. It is a time for the conditioning of our soil . . . a time for our Souls to become penitent. It simply means that it is spading up time, the season for planting seeds and for setting blooming trees.

In the realm of the spirit it is a call to get ready for the season of beauty and goodness.

Who amongst us is satisfied with what he is or what he has been? Then let us qualify for the Lenten Season. Let us clear away the rubbish of last year's crop, cut under the old stalks. May we learn from our Lord to give ourselves to good conditioning during Lent. The miracle of Lent is genuine repentance which leads to Newness of Life. A Saintry Keeper of Lent said it well when he spoke the words, "I shall keep this Lent, and hope to refresh my Soul." Amen
