THE YOUNGER THE SHOVELER the more fun he seemed to have. Jeeps, trucks, tractors and people turned out to clear the snow so that life could return to normal.

ONE REASON THERE WAS NO SCHOOL for a couple of days last week was that most of the entrances to the schools were jammed with snow as this one at the high school seems to be. School buses would have been unable to make their routes through the clogged side roads which remained that way until early in the week.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON many Mason businesses gave up and hung out the "No Use" signs so that employees and employers could get home before really being snowed in.

1965 WILL GO DOWN in history as the year of the big snow. Last Thursday and Friday Mason people got that old-fashioned winter feeling along with the aches and pains of moving the white stuff around. Here the business district sidewalks are being cleared with the Armstrong method.

Mason 5-year-old Will Get Surgery, But Needs Blood

In a Mason home today a little girl nearing 5 years of age is awaiting anxiously for the arrival of April--almost as anxiously as other little girls her age waited for the arrival of Santa Claus at Christmas time.

But this little girl waits for the greatest gift that can be bestowed--good health and to be able to romp and play like other children. She is Linda Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Kerr.

This Mason child has a heart condition. She was a "blue baby". There is a blockage of a valve leading to her lungs and there is a hole between the lower ventricles.

In April surgeons will perform an operation which will involve repair of the valve to the lungs and the closing of the holes. Then after a few weeks of convalescence it is expected the child's heart will be normal.

The reason for the delay before the surgery is attempted was at the advice of surgeons who told the parents they should wait until the child is 5 years old. That age is regarded as the best time to perform the operation before the child gets into competitive play.

An operation such as this calls for considerable blood to be administered to the patient. Perhaps those who read this story will see their way clear to visit the bloodmobile when it visits Mason Friday and give blood that this little girl and others afflicted like her may know the joys of childhood as other children do.

The bloodmobile will be at Mason Presbyterian church from noon until 6 p.m.

How, When, Where ... And Why To Give

Friday is the day for Mason area people to meet the bloodmobile and give their blood. The bloodmobile, which sets up equipment in Mason 4 times a year, will be at Mason Presbyterian church from noon until 6 p.m. The bloodmobile is a project of the American Red Cross and sponsored locally by the Mason Kiwanis club in conjunction with all other service organizations in the community. A lunch will be provided donors throughout the afternoon.

It was pointed out by Mason Kiwanians that blood collected through the Red Cross blood bank project is made available to all residents of the area without charge, and that recently, the Mason area has consumed more pints of blood than it has donated to the bank. The use of blood in hospitals is used to combat shock in accidents, speed recovery, prepare patients for surgery, save infants born with heart or blood defects, carry burn victims through a long convalescence, help mothers in complications of childbirth, to make life normal for bleeders, prevent measles and hepatitis, and aid in clotting in hemorrhage.

Death Ends Career Of Clarence Diehl

Death has broken the triumvirate that for 24 years has ruled Diehlfelds, the 1100 acre farm at the edge of Dansville that Clarence Diehl and his 2 sons, David and Dorn, built into an agricultural giant.

Clarence Diehl died Tuesday morning, after a 4-week sickness, at the age of 79 and in his death Ingham county lost one of its most prominent and progressive farmers.

On Friday afternoon at 2:00 funeral services will be conducted at the Dansville Methodist church and burial will take place in Dansville's Fairview cemetery.

In addition to his agricultural pursuits, Diehl found time to serve his village, he was a member of the Dansville Methodist church and for many years served on the Dansville school board.

Diehlfelds has been regarded as an agricultural show place and a model of modern day farming. On its broad acres the Diehls engaged in raising dairy cattle, beef feeding and general crop raising.

Diehl was among the first farmers in the Dansville area to raise sugar beets. He was president of the Lansing Sugar Beet growers and Michigan Manufacturers Beet Sugar association of the United States.

He also became known as the biggest grower of beans in Michigan and enjoyed the title of state bean king.

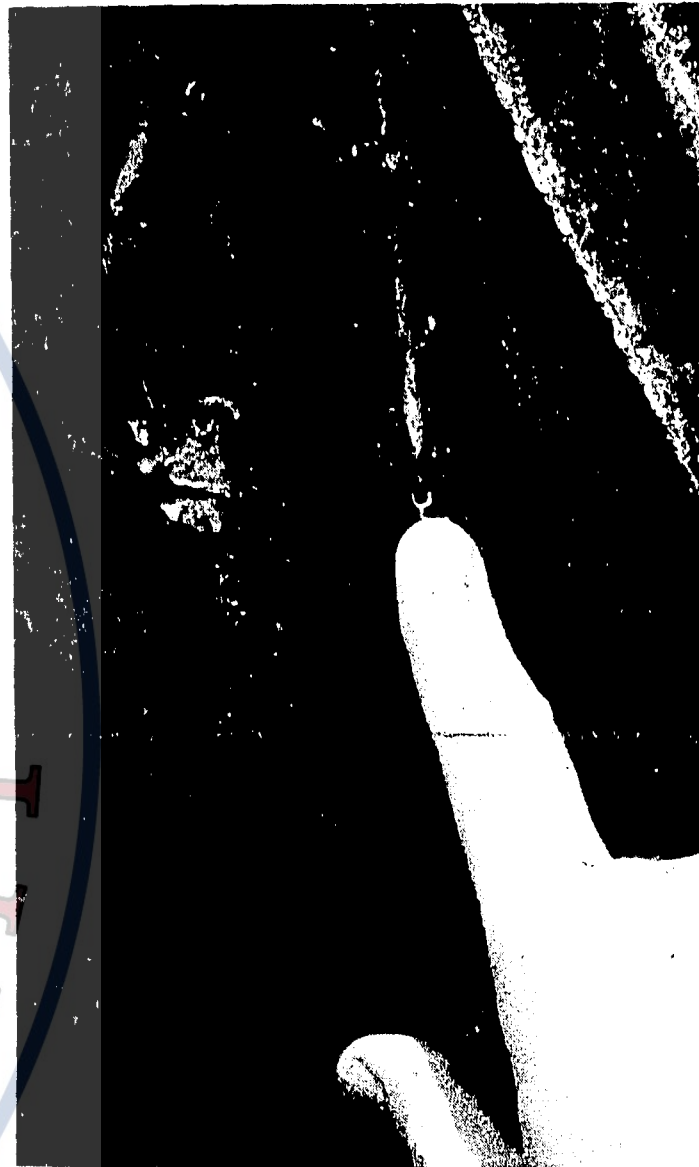

In the early 1920's Diehl was a road contractor and built many of the first gravel roads in Ingham county.

He is survived by his wife, Hazel M., his 2 sons, David and Dorn; 2 daughters, Mrs. Phyllis Stid of Mason and Mrs. Evelyn Tompkins of Hart; 2 sisters, Mrs. Emma Deeg of Williamston and Mrs. Lydia Switzer of Russellville, Arkansas; 12 grandchildren and 3 great-grandchildren.

Until the day of the funeral the body of Mr. Diehl will be at the Ball-Dunn chapel in Dansville. Bearers will be grandsons John D. Diehl, Peter Stid, Richard Tompkins, David M. Diehl, Joseph D. Stid and Charles Tompkins.

TWO PERSONS were injured in this accident at Okemos road and I-96 about 10:30 a.m. Sunday. James L. Satterlee and Julius Satterlee, both 48, of Big Rapids were injured when their car went off the road and tipped over. The accident was caused, sheriff's officers said, when the battery cable on the car shorted against the frame and burned the brake fluid, causing the brakes to go out. Both victims of the accident were taken to Sparrow hospital in Lansing for treatment. The upper picture shows the overturned car with one of the victims being removed to a Ball-Dunn ambulance. The lower photo shows a finger pointing to what caused the mishap.

Dart Bank Will Limit Free Parking to Days

Free parking on the Dart National bank parking lot at Ash and Park will be restricted to day-time parking. The announcement was made this week by Rollin Dart, president of Dart National bank, who said that the nighttime parking ban will afford the community additional parking space during the day-time.

In making the announcement, Dart said, "This notice is directed particularly to those, our friends, who have found the Dart National parking lot, adjacent to our drive-in bank, useful in parking their privately owned cars."

"During the 4 years which have gone by since we were able to start making the lot available to employees and customers of Mason business establishments, problems have developed, for which no one has been to blame."

"A problem has developed as to privately owned cars which are left on the lot overnight. The area cannot be properly patrolled, nor can the city be of help to us with its sweeper and snow-removal equipment."

"Next, it has developed that some privately owned cars are left on the lot throughout the days, as well as being left overnight. When this happens, it defeats our primary effort of wanting to make parking space available to local and out-of-town people so that they can trade easily in Mason. Helping to make parking space available to folks so they can shop in Mason has a double-barrelled effect, as we all realize. It not only helps make a living for Mason business people, but it enables Mason residents to expand, thereby in a very real way relieving Mason residents of their long-run property and school tax burden."

"Further, it has increasingly developed that the lot has become a place where folks have left cars which were no longer in running condition.

"With all of these things in mind, we have had to make a decision which we have been long putting off. The lot can no longer be used for over-night parking except as it is necessary for the bank or bank personnel in the ordinary course of business."

"It is our sincere hope that the folks whom this necessary step will cause inconvenience to, will try to understand."

No Action Planned By City

There will be no official city hall-fire station financing proposal for Mason voters to decide at the April 5 election.

Councilmen made that decision Monday night while meeting with Frank & Stein, Lansing architectural firm which was originally hired to design a new city hall and a fire station almost 2 years ago, and the firm which made preliminary studies and plans for renovating the former Al Rice garage for a city hall-fire station.

Dick Frank discussed the city hall situation with the council. During the discussion in which Frank was brought up to date on the results of the advisory straw vote of a couple of weeks ago in which voters showed a preference for a new structure on a new site, the architect offered the services of his firm in helping to pick and evaluate sites.

Councilmen are going to come up with a list of possible sites and turn the sites over to Frank & Stein for evaluation.

Mason Board Pushes Delhi College Site

The Mason board of education Monday night approved a resolution calling for further study of sites expansion of the Ingham County Community college, taking into consideration future population growth, present or proposed freeway access expandability and the original purchase price of a downtown site as compared to land offered at no cost.

In other action the board approved hiring an additional elementary school principal next year. With 4 elementary schools in operation it is proposed to give Walter McIntosh, elementary coordinator, the principalship of 2 of these schools and the new principal to be employed the other 2.

The board renewed the contracts of M. Chandler Nauts, superintendent of schools Robert Pruden, principal of Mason senior high school and Donald Edgington, principal of Mason junior high school, and approved the hiring of a business manager to assist the superintendent of schools.

Superintendent Nauts told the board that the district started this year with a deficit of $11,171.06. "I am hoping", he said, "that we can pick that up by the end of the present school year and start the 1965-66 year without a deficit."

The board also: Approved bills in the amount of $9,376 from the general fund, $35,527.76 from the 1964 elementary building and site fund, and $7,301.37 from the swimming pool building and site fund.

Received bids on a new 36-passenger school bus and referred the bids to Superintendent Nauts for study and recommendation.

Discussed a petition presented by members of the Aurelius township board to change the name of the James H. VanderVen elementary school to the North Aurelius elementary school. The matter was tabled until the next meeting.

Accepted an offer by Donald E. Waters of $2,000 for the Gretin school at Bunker and Aurelius roads.

Pool Contract Gets an Okay

The Mason board of education this week gave final approval to construction contracts for the new swimming pool at senior high school. The pool is expected to cost $227,545, which is higher than the $200,000 approved by voters.

The school district is making up the difference with $15,000 taken from the Iva Bond fund of $25,000 bequeathed to the district, a gift of $15,000 from the city, $5,400 from a building and site sinking fund and $2,000 earned from investing the Bond money in treasury notes.

Mason Mayor Draws Algonac

Pairings for Mayor exchange day, a feature of Michigan week in May were completed last Wednesday when Gov. George Romney drew the names out of a barrel at a ceremony in the Lansing city hall.

Mason's mayor will go to Algonac for Mayor's day and the Algonac chief executive will be the guest of Mason.

Other drawings for Ingham county villages and cities were: Dansville and Mendon, Leslie and Bronson, Stockbridge and Hart, Webberville and Ewart and Williamston and Camden.

The Big Storm - 1965

The worst winter snow storm in 30 years broke over Mason last Wednesday night and before it had ended, 10 inches of snow had drifted roads, caused schools to close and put business almost at a standstill.

The storm blew itself out Thursday night and the big task of clearing out secondary roads, blocked with high drifts began.

The storm followed a cold wave that sent temperatures dropping near and below the zero mark.

Last Wednesday afternoon the big storm began with a series of snow squalls and flurries. As the night progressed the storm, driven by high winds piled up snow in huge drifts on roads, streets and highways.

Virtually every school in Ingham, Eaton and Clinton counties was closed, Thursday. Workers were late to work or were unable to make it at all that morning. Mason and Holt schools were closed Thursday and Friday.

Hall Memorial library was closed. Only one member of the staff was able to get to work. While main highways such as US-127 were passable, country roads were piled high with drifts. One Mason visitor from Olivet said he finally arrived hereafter coming by way of Lansing. His usual route was blocked with snow.

Stalled cars dotted roads leading into Mason and big trucks, too, had difficulty. Highways US-127 and I-94 in the Jackson area were reported closed for a time last Thursday, but the highway into Lansing from Mason was passable, but driving was not easy.

Mason's new Ingham county jail, regarded as one that is virtually impossible for a prisoner to escape, became a jail that was just about as difficult to get into for a time during last Thursday's storm.

The 2 roads leading into the building from N. Cedar street were blocked with drifts. Two snowplows went to work to clear the drifts but one broke down.

Sheriff's deputies had their troubles, too. They visited various schools in the county to rescue youngsters who had been brought there by their parents who did not know the schools were closed for the day. When the parents did find that out they were unable to get back to the schools to get the youngsters and called on the sheriff's department for aid.

Officers said secondary roads throughout the county were virtually impassable.

Many events scheduled for Thursday night in villages and towns were cancelled because of the storm or postponed to a later date.

A meeting of the budget committee of the Ingham Intermediate board of education, scheduled for last Thursday night in Mason was postponed because of the storm.

THE BALL GOT THE ATTENTION of Holt's Mike Bostrum and Mason's Paul Allaire and Jim Powers in Tuesday night's tournament game. Holt players were more attentive as the game progressed and the Rams went on to pass their first district tournament test. John Walsh is the Holt player watching the action.

Holt Eliminates Mason Easily

Holt made Mason's 1965 Class B district tourney action short and to the point Tuesday night. The Rams polished off the host Bulldogs 80-59.

With Mason shoved aside Holt, the tourney favorite by virtue of its rating as the No. 5 team in the state, will make its next tourney start Thursday night when it meets Charlotte at Mason.

The Orioles are rated as the team with the most upset potential in the Mason district.

It didn't take long for Holt to outdistance Mason. After a slow first 2 minutes the Rams started pouring in the points and taking advantage of wild Mason passing. By the end of the first quarter Holt was on the long end of a 21-10 count. From there on out it was more of the same, although Mason closed the gap to 9 points briefly in the second quarter. By the time the period ended the Bulldogs were down 45-24.

Mason played on even terms with the Capital Circuit champs in the third quarter but couldn't gain any ground. In the fourth quarter Holt coasted along and still held its 20 plus margin.

It was John Walsh's night to get the scoring glory. The Holt front liner dumped in 12 field goals and a free throw for 25 points. His work on the boards was exceptional.

It wasn't a one-man scoring show, however. Terry Faught came up with 16 points and Marv Burt dumped in 15.

For Mason sophomore Paul Allaire was top shooter in his second varsity game. The Mason rebounder dropped in 16 points and would have had more with a little luck at the foul line.

Les Jones was the only other Mason player in double figures. He came through with 14.

From the floor Mason was outshot 29-26. At the foul line the Bulldogs put down 7 out of 19 while Holt was bagging 22 out of 29.

Aggie Rally Nips Leslie

Leslie's Blackhawks led the Dansville Aggies for 29 minutes last Friday night only to fall apart in the last 3 minutes as the Aggies pulled out a 73-63 victory in final regular season action for both teams.

Leslie coach, Richard Frohriep, started five seniors in this final contest. They jumped out in front 6-0 before the Aggies could register a field goal on the scoreboard. At the end of the first period, the Hawks held a 21-15 lead.

With Dave Lubahn contributing 17 points in the first half, the Blackhawks had stretched their margin to 41-27 by halftime.

The Leslie quintet began to have difficulties in the third quarter. They lost the ball on numerous occasions without getting a shot. Jerry Ernst led the Aggies comeback in the third period with 8 points as the Aggies closed the Leslie lead to 53-48.

Things went from bad to worse for the Hawks in the final stanza, but with three minutes left in the contest, they still held a 59-58 lead. Dansville's five was not to be denied.

They played their most alert basketball of the night in the final three minutes to outscore the Leslie squad 15-4 to pull out the victory. The win put the Aggies in fourth place in the Ingham County league with a 5-5 record. Leslie fell to fifth place at 4-6.

The victory for the Aggies gave the two teams a split in the season's two games. Leslie won an earlier contest on the Dansville court.

If the Blackhawks can get by Springport in tonight's district tournament play at Leslie, they will face the Dansville Aggies in the semi-finals Friday night. Dansville drew a first round bye in the tournament.

Aggie scorers were led by Jerry Ernst with 22 points, 16 in the final half. Other Dansville scorers were Larry Heins with 17, Colin Curtis 15, Jim Mullin 10, and Ben Weaver 8. Dave Lubahn led the Leslie scorers with 21 points.

Hornets Finish Second

After leading the Ingham County league most of the season, Williamston ended up in second place behind Stockbridge. It took a 71-35 win over Pinckney in the season finale to take second.

The Hornets had a breeze in their last time out. After pulling to a 13-6 edge in the first quarter and increasing the bulge to 26-16 in the second period, the Hornets opened up. They came up with 28 big points in a third-quarter spree and kept up the hot pace in the last period.

Everyone got into the scoring act for Williamston with Jim Oesterle leading the way with 15. Steve Dunkel ended with 14 and Milo Gaffner collected 12.

Randolph and Cone were tops for Pinckney with 10 points each.

Collins Leads JVs To Win

The Stockbridge High School JV team ran their unbeaten streak to sixteen games by defeating the Fowlerville JVs by a margin of seventeen points, 82-65.

In the first period both teams matched bucket for bucket until late in the period the Little Panthers made two baskets to pull away to a slight lead of four points 20-16.

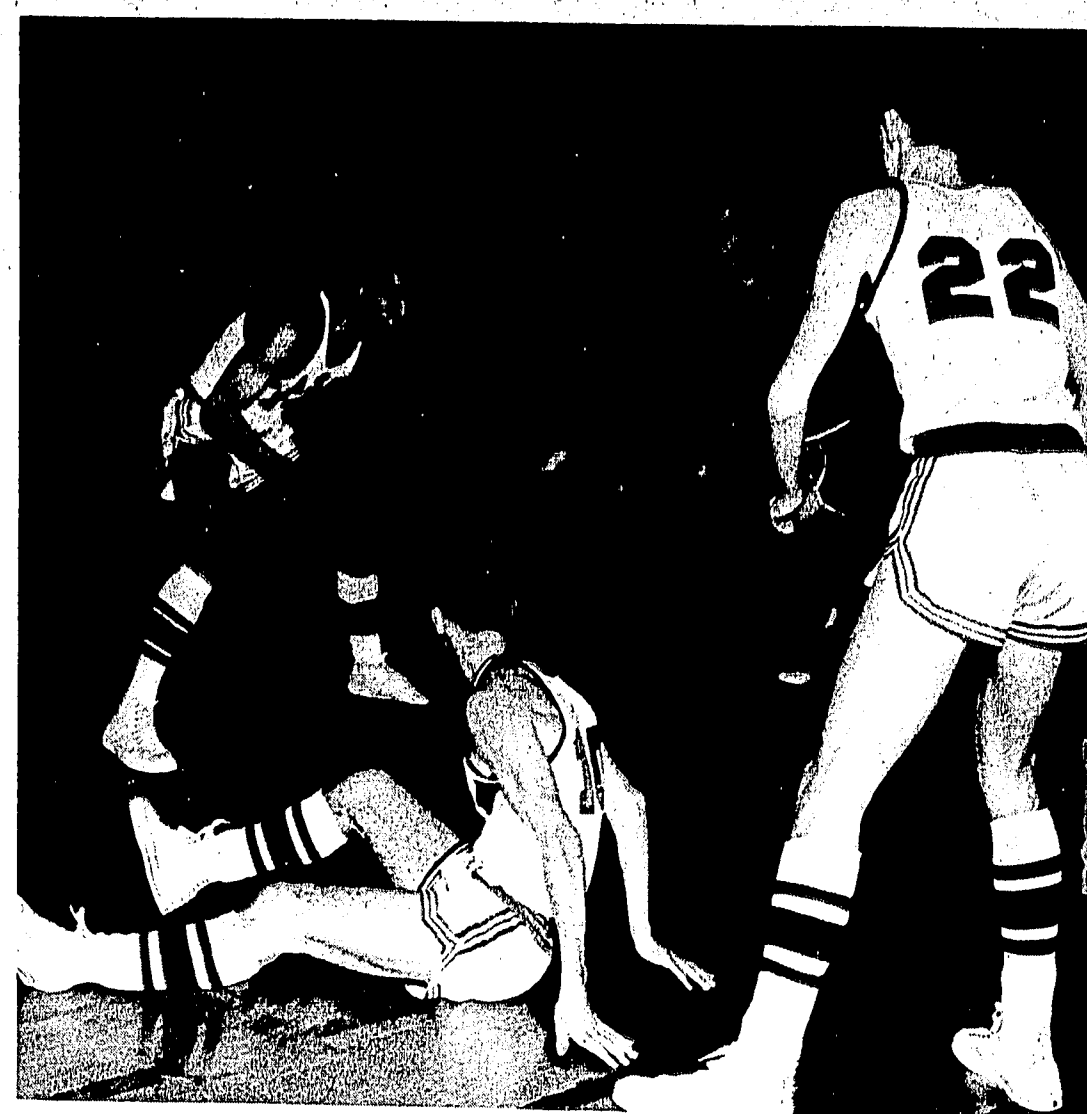

In the second period of action the Little Panthers looked sharp as they handled the ball very well, and hit well from the floor as they outscored Fowlerville 25-17. Stockbridge held a 12 point lead 45-33 at the end of the first half.

In the third period the Little Panthers opened up their offense and rolled to a 17 point lead 62-50 as they again outscored Fowlerville 22-17. In the last few minutes of this period coach Sargent started to use a few of his second string players.

In the fourth period the Little Panthers built their lead to 20 points. The second and third string players played most of the final period and did a real nice job. Fowlerville managed to cut the 20 point lead to 17 points by the end of the fourth period.

Ron Collins led the scoring for Stockbridge JVs with 17 points. Bob Zick and Dave Mills helped out as they scored 13 points each.

The Little Panthers sixteen victories and no losses, is the best record any Stockbridge JV team has had in many, many years.

"WHAT HAPPENS NEXT." Mason's Paul Allaire has the ball but he lost one of his receivers when Leo Bateman ended up on the floor. Bill Strait is the other Mason player.

Howell Sinks Mason To End Bad Season

Howell blocked Mason's chances of escaping from the Capital Circuit basement Friday night by taking an 87-74 decision in the season closer.

Mason is not alone in the basement. The lowly spot is shared with O'Rafferty. Both teams came up with only 3 wins in Capital Circuit play.

Coach Bob Finch did some shuffling for the final game. He boosted a freshman and a sophomore to varsity status after good reserve team performances all season. They delivered the goods as varsity starters.

Freshman Jim Powers came up with 12 points. Sophomore Paul Allaire also dropped in 12 points and did real well on the backboards. A bad first quarter for Mason proved to be the difference in the game's outcome. The Highlanders, with Tom Hicks hitting from out on the floor, moved to a 29-16 edge in the first quarter. In the second period Mason came back in the opening minutes but lost ground just before the half to leave the floor on the short end of a 48-33 score.

In the third quarter Mason pared 4 points off the margin but again fell behind in the final period's shooting.

Leslie Jones led the Mason attack with 14 points. Gary Barker and Jim Bodrie contributed 10 each.

Stockbridge Is Favored In Class C Tournament

Leslie's Blackhawks will meet the Springport Spartans in the opening game of the Leslie district tournament tonight (Wednesday) in what must be one of the weakest tournaments in the state this year.

Only one team in the tournament has a winning record, Stockbridge with its 14-4 season's record must be considered the favorite. Dansville, which has run hot and cold all season, could pull an upset by continuing its present hot streak. The Aggies were 7-9 for the season and ended with a 73-63 victory on the Leslie floor.

The Cereal Center conference is represented by 2 teams. Neither appears to have the man power to win the championship. Springport, 4-12, finished in sixth place in the conference and Olivet, 3-13, finished in seventh place.

Leslie, which is hosting the tournament and therefore could not draw a bye, completes the field. The Blackhawks are the only team in the tournament which holds a victory over Stockbridge. The Hawks were 7-11 on the regular season.

Duane Clark, Stockbridge coach, has 6 good performers to call on in the tournament. Jon Mills, Brad Weddon, Mike Barbour, Rick Owen, Tim Howlett, and Phil Collins all made sizeable contributions during the Panthers drive to the Ingham County league championship.

Owen leads the club in scoring with 306 points for the season. Jon Mills scored over 200 points for the Panthers.

Coach Searl Briggs' Dansville Aggies are led by Colin Curtis and Jerry Ernst, both guards. They combine for 37 points in the Aggies' final game of the regular season.

Springport, coached by Jim Davis, is led by Bill Hoag, center; Norm VanderMolen, forward; and Harold Webb, guard. Hoag and VanderMolen hit 53 points in the final game against Olivet Saturday night. Olivet has only one standout performer in Tom Nelson, center. The Eagles are coached by Russell Richards.

Leslie, which gets a dark horse rating in the tournament as a result of playing on their home floor, is led by Phil Brown, forward; Chuck Lay, forward; and Lon Cooper, who switches from forward to center. The Hawks are coached by Richard Frohriep. Brown, Lay and Cooper have all scored over 200 points during the regular season.

Stockbridge and Dansville last won district tournaments in 1962. Leslie's last district victory was in 1960.

Game time tonight and Saturday night is 8 p.m. The semi-finals will begin at 7 p.m. Friday. Olivet and Stockbridge will play the opening game Friday followed by Dansville and the Springport-Leslie winner.

Mason JVs Lose Last

Mason's reserve basketball squad closed the season on an unhappy note by dropping a 68-61 decision to Howell.

The Bulldogs went without the services of 2 outstanding pointmakers, Paul Allaire and Jim Powers, who were moved up to bolster the varsity.

A second half slump did the damage for Mason. After the first quarter the Bulldogs were in front 24-18. By halftime Mason still held an edge at 35-34.

In the third quarter Howell took the lead at 49-47 and then Mason collapsed in the last quarter.

For Mason Brian Doolittle and Ron Webster were high with 16 points each. Steve Pollok added 10.

Tom Austin was high for Howell with 31 and Clark Russell was next with 12.

Leslie JVs Win Finale

Leslie's junior varsity eked out a 57-55 victory over the Dansville JVs last Friday night for their fifteenth win of the season. The home-court contest ended the junior Hawks' season with a 15-2 overall record.

Dansville's junior Aggies led for much of the contest before the Hawks came on in the final period to pull out the hard-earned victory. Chris Snow capped the win with three pressure free throws in the last minute of play.

Added to last season's fine record, Coach Richard Moon's junior varsity cagers have now won 28 games in the past two years compared to five losses.

Snow led all scorers in the game with 23 points. Other Leslie scorers were Gary Long and Paul Ritter with 10 each, Mickey Cortis 8, and Jerry Hendershot 6. Dansville scorers were Wagner 16, Prince 13, Wright 11, Hackworth 8, and Switzenberg 5.

Leslie missed a perfect season by five points. Their only two losses were to the Stockbridge junior varsity, one by two points and the other by three.

Panthers Clinch ICL Championship

The Stockbridge High School Panthers 14-4 rallied to defeat Fowlerville 8-9, 70-56 here Friday night, February 26, to win the Ingham County League basketball title.

In the first period the Fowlerville Gladiators dominated everything and roared out in front of Stockbridge by 8 points, 21-13. In this period Fowlerville hit ten of thirteen shots from the floor.

After dominating the first period Fowlerville looked as if they were going to do the same in the second period as they built up a fifteen point lead 33-18 midway through the second period. Stockbridge, after taking a time out, came out really fired up, and the Panthers controlled everything and by the end of the first half, had cut the lead to three points, 36-33.

In the third period of action the Panthers really looked sharp.

In this period Rick Owen scored eleven of his total 24 points for the game. Stockbridge controlled the third period as they outscored Fowlerville nineteen to eight to take an eight point lead, 52-44 into the fourth period.

In the fourth period the Panthers controlled this period too as they again outscored Fowlerville eighteen to twelve. In the last few minutes of this period coach Clark emptied his bench. The second and third string players did a good job. Stockbridge went on to win the Ingham County League basketball championship by fourteen point margin 70-56.

John Mills and Rick Owen led the scoring for Stockbridge with 20 and 24 points respectively.

Okemos Can't Keep Holt From Taking CC Crown

One of the most exciting finishes in Capital Circuit basketball history climaxed a championship season for Holt's Rams Friday night. Erasing a 12 point half time lead, Coach Dan Hovanessian's Rams staged a dramatic come back and defeated Okemos 62-61 to nail down their first Capital Circuit crown since 1960.

The victory was Holt's 16th of the season against one defeat and 14th without a loss in the circuit. Okemos finished its season 15-3 overall and 12-2 in the league with both loop defeats coming at the hands of the Rams. Holt won an earlier game 72-53.

A standing room only crowd of 1,500 buzzed as it filled out of the Okemos high school gym after Holt's stunning rally. Okemos held the upper hand for 3 quarters and appeared headed for an upset, holding a lead of 5 points starting the final quarter 46-41. Then guard Mike Bostrom and center John Walsh engineered Holt's attack in the closing minutes.

Bostrom scored 14 points in the last half and Walsh sank five pressure free throws in the fourth quarter as Holt outscored the Chieftains, 39-26.

"I've never seen anything like it before," said Hovanessian, who found a quiet corner for a few minutes in the locker room.

"Okemos played a great game but our kids never quit, even when they were down 12 points at the half," Hovanessian added "But that's why we're a good team, we never quit and that victory was a reward for hustle in that last half."

Okemos Coach Bob Baker, praised the Rams for their come back "They did quite a job those last 2 quarters," Baker said, "and we made too many mistakes."

Okemos over came a 4-1 lead on some hot shooting by guard Rick Noblet and held a 19-15 first quarter advantage. Bob Graham and Jeff Smith accounted for 10 points in the second quarter as the Chiefs built up a 35-23 margin by intermission. The Chiefs took advantage of numerous Holt errors and cashed them on baskets.

It was 27-19, with three minutes before half time when Smith sank 2 jump shots after coming into the game as a reserve.

Bostrom sank 5 baskets to start Holt's drive in the third quarter and the Rams used a full court press to good use, cutting a 9 point lead of 37-38 to a single basket 38-36 with 2:34 left.

Okemos jumped back into a four point lead on a jump shot by Mike Baker and Noblet's lay up 44-40.

With Bostrom setting the pace and Walsh rebounding, Holt crept to within a point, 50-49, at the four minute mark. Still, Okemos never relinquished its lead, making the spread at three points 53-50.

Finally Walsh took a pass from Marv Burt, sank a lay up and in the process was fouled. His basket counted and put Holt in front 54-53 with 2:56 remaining.

Okemos regained the lead and the lead changed hands three times until two free throws by Burt put Holt in front, 58-57 at the 1:56 mark.

The Rams opened up a three point lead, 60-57 on a jump shot by Terry Faught and led by five with 1:03 to play when Burt again cashed in on a pair of free throws 62-57.

In 21 seconds, Okemos scored four points, a lay up by Breckenfield and Smith's basket with 30 seconds left. Twice after that Holt missed 2 bonus free throw chances. Doug Rittenger had the ball for Okemos with four seconds left and the Chiefs had one last shot but time ran out.

Raiders Get Last Game

O'Rafferty dug down into its stock of sophomores and came up with the right combination to take Eaton Rapids 57-48 in the season finale.

The win enabled O'Rafferty to take some of the bonus out of finishing in the basement. The win coupled with Mason's loss at least gives the Raiders some company in the cellar.

Bill Murphy and Mark Fisher were the sophomores who showed that the future could be bright at O'Rafferty. Murphy paced the attack with 19 points and dominated the backboards. Fisher contributed 11 points.

For Eaton Rapids Paul Basing and Chet Winegar were high with 10 points each.

Eaton Rapids started the game holding the upper hand. After pulling to a 15-10 lead in the first period the Greyhounds lost their steam and gave up their lead in the second. From there on out they trailed the Raiders.

Haslett Has Good Finish

Haslett pulled off a 54-52 win over Gabriels Friday night to wind up the season. The win enabled the Lakers to gain a share of third place. Gabriels ended up with the other share.

Haslett had to win the game the hard way. The Lakers spotted the Rocks a 16-12 first quarter lead and found themselves on the short end of a 30-22 count at the half.

Then Bill Youatt gave the Haslett fans something to cheer about. He started firing and Steve Johnson joined in. By the end of the third period Haslett had eaten up the deficit and was sitting one point in front. The last period was a wild one with little scoring but plenty of action. Youatt came up with the winning points with 22 seconds remaining.

Youatt was high with 19. Johnson finished with 16.

Jeff Larkin was the top shooter for the Rocks with 20 points. John Boerman came through with 12 and Bill Fillion scored 11.

Holt Tourney Stock Takes Upward Turn

It was a surprise that Holt's basketball team went so far in the state Class B tournament last year simply because the Rams were not supposed to even win in district competition. But when Coach Dan Hovanessian guided his Rams to the regional finals in Battle Creek before losing to Grand Rapids South Christian speculation was that this year could be even more prosperous.

Holt was a young team at tourney time last year and such players as juniors Mike Bostrom, Marv Burt and John Walsh gained valuable experience. This season pre-tourney predictions favor the Rams even further along the trail. In a State Journal writers poll 6 out of 7 predicted victory for Holt in the district tournament. The one exception favored Charlotte. Holt plays in the B district at Mason. Burt, Faught and Bostrom have scored in double figures all season as has Walsh who is the top rebounder. It was the excellent play by Walsh last season which enabled the Rams to reach the regional finals. Holt rolled thru its Capital Circuit schedule in a breeze capturing the championship for the first time since 1960.

Rams Show South Lyon Their Class Is Victim

Holt tuned up for its Capital Circuit showdown battle Friday night by waiting past non-league foe Waverly at Holt Tuesday night, February 22, 8:40 to 41 as four players scored in double figures.

Coach Dan Hovanessian's No. 5 ranked Rams, who clinched the Circuit championship Friday by defeating Okemos, started slow and held only a 14-9 first quarter lead.

John Walsh pushed in 11 points and Terry Faught and Mike Bostrom added 6 each to power the Rams to a 29-7 advantage in the second quarter to hand Waverly its 16th loss in 18 games.

Stockbridge overcame an eleven point deficit to defeat a tall South Lyon team here Tuesday night, February 23 by the score of 68-64 to win their thirteenth game in seventeen starts.

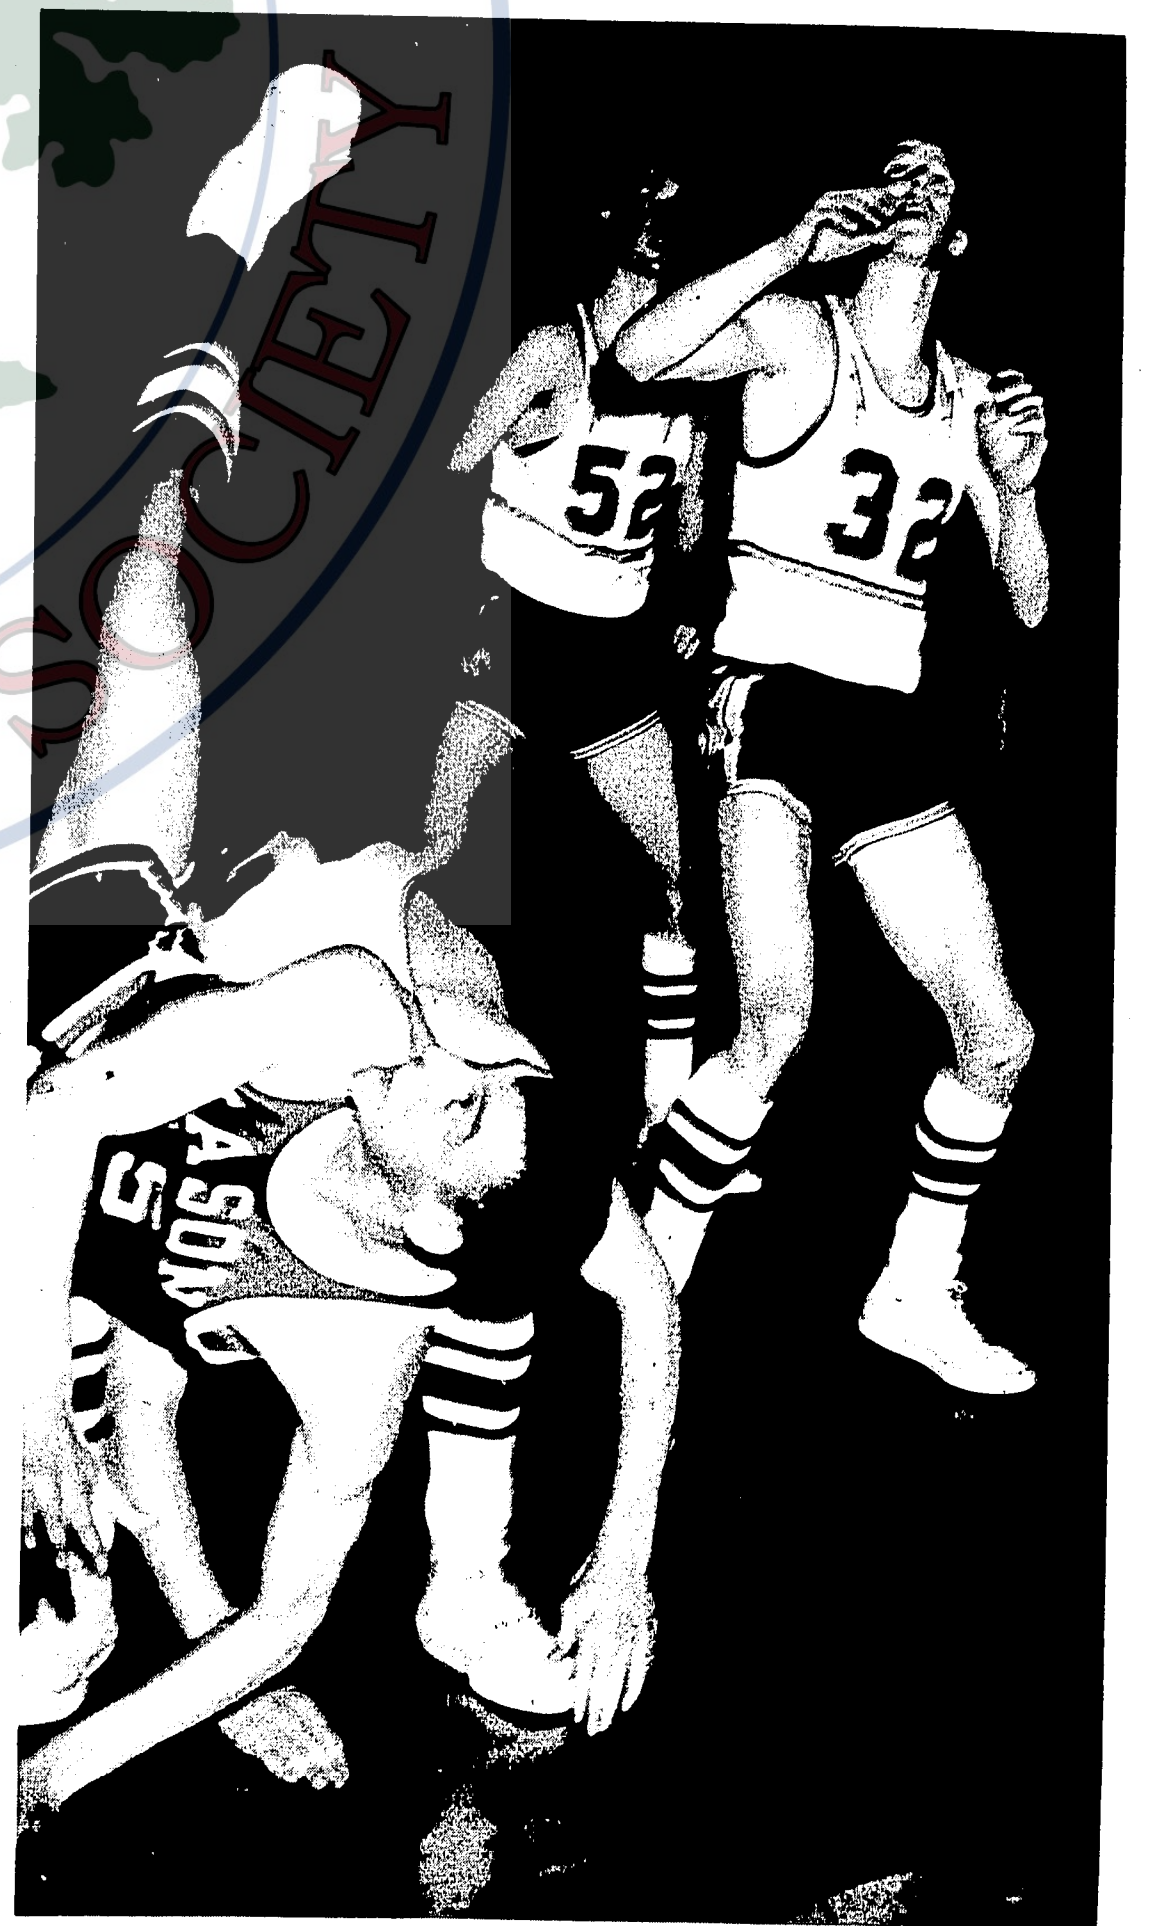

In the first period South Lyon ran up an eleven point lead 21-10 as they were hitting well from the floor. Stockbridge was very cold from the floor and turned the ball over quite a few times in the first period.

In the second period of action, Stockbridge began to hit from the floor and played good defense. The Panthers outscored South Lyon twenty-two to fourteen to cut the margin to three points, 35-32 by the end of the first half. John Mills and Rick Owen led the Stockbridge scoring attack in the first half with eleven and thirteen points respectively.

In the third period both teams traded basket for basket until late in the period when the Panthers hit for a basket and a foul shot to take a three point lead, 51-48 at the end of the third period.

In the fourth period of action the ball changed hands several times during the rest of the game. Both teams were hitting well from the floor as Stockbridge hit for seventeen points and South Lyon hit for sixteen. With a minute left in the ball game Stockbridge held a three point margin 63-60 from which they went on to add five points to their score to win the game by four points 68-64. This win was the Panthers thirteenth victory of the year.

Rick Owen and John Mills tied for scoring honors for Stockbridge with 21 points each.

POSITION IS EVERYTHING in life and Paul Allaire should have been on top of the world. The Mason sophomore ended up on top of Holt's Marv Burt, though, and Burt got a chance at the foul line while Allaire was rubbing his bruises.

Additional Acreage Is Offered for College

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Holloway of Detroit, who have offered to donate 60 acres of land in Delhi township for a site of the Ingham County Community college, this week offered to give an additional 15 acres adjoining the 60 acre tract, and offered to sell an additional 25 acres at $3,000 an acre to the college if and when it is needed.

The Holloways told Supervisor Joe Kiersey of Delhi township they are making this offer with this provision: That the college purchase no property in downtown Lansing, except the present site of the college on W. Shawassaw street.

Holloway told Kiersey he would demand a promise from the college board of trustees that 18 months after the property is deeded to the college, the college officials must have some type of plans ready for the proposed construction of college buildings on the site.

The Community college board asked the Holt Citizens' committee last week to confer with Holloway and see if he would give the college an additional 50 acres to add to the 60 acres already offered. They spoke of a 5 year convertor clause in the deed. Holloway's new offer is a counter proposal to the college request.

The Citizens' committee met with the college board of trustees to present its case in favor of the Delhi site.

The presentation was made by Kenneth Hope, a trustee of the Delhi Charter township board. He displayed maps of the area

Novel Class Teaches Baby-Sitting Technique

Thirty Mason junior high school students have been going to school after school for the past 5 weeks to learn to be better baby sitters. They have been taking a brief course offered by Mason Jr. Child Study club at the school.

The members of the club contribute their time and special skills to the project. Mrs. Peter Stid has been the moderator throughout. She has summarized each session and pointed out the highlights to the group.

At the first meeting Mrs. Stid explained that the clinic was set up to help the class members become better baby sitters. "Attending all of the meetings does not mean that the Jr. Child Study club is saying that you are a full-fledged baby sitter," she explained. "We do hope that you will have a better idea of what qualities and skills go to make a good baby sitter."

To help the group have a better idea of the differences in children the films, "Terrible Twos and Trusting Threes" and "The Frustrating Fours and Fascinating Fives" were shown. This served as a reminder of what a child is like and how he develops.

Mrs. Warren Emrick took over the session on "Caring for the Young Child". She told the children why mothers wanted certain routines carried out and showed them how they, as baby sitters, could help. For the benefit of those who had no younger brothers or sisters, she brought along several large dolls so that the inexperienced ones could practice changing diapers.

As a nurse and the mother of 3 lively boys, Mrs. Emrick explained the types of emergencies that the sitters were likely to meet and some of the simple, accepted remedies which could be used. She pointed out some of the major emergencies and explained that this was when they get adult help.

For the third session of the clinic Mrs. Richard Magel, mother and teacher at the Mason Co-operative Nursery, talked about "Helping the Child to Play Happily". She showed some slides of the nursery children in action and pointed out some of the habits of different age groups in their play. For instance the 2 to 3-year-olds play next to each other not with each other.

A treasure box which the baby sitter could take along to keep the child happy was of great interest. She pointed out that the novelty of someone else's toys often outweighed the familiar. Mrs. Magel asked the group to play some of the finger games with her. The lion hunt was a great success and it was plain it would be part of the baby sitter's kit from then on.

Marcella Smith, baby sitter, and 2 mothers, Mrs. Richard Green and Mrs. Richard Cheney, formed the panel for the session which covered "The responsibility of the parents to the sitter and the sitter to the parents".

Talk covered the need to clearly understand what each expected from the other. This would help avoid mistakes and misunderstandings. The group was interested in when and when not to sleep while working at night. They agreed that before 11 p.m. it shouldn't be done and that an alarm clock to wake the sitter after that time was advisable, so the children could be checked. During the final session of the clinic, Mrs. Stid drew all of the major points together and summarized the topics which had been covered at the other sessions. Each of the 30 members of the clinic was given a certificate of attendance by the club president, Mrs. Howard Becker. These showed the number of times that the child had been present and in no way endorsed them as baby sitters.

Mrs. Lennah Backus of the Lansing Y.W.C.A. Youth committee helped set up the program for the baby sitting clinic. She suggested sources of information and topics which would be most helpful to a baby sitter.

Members of the committee were Mrs. Howard Becker, Mrs. Richard Green, Mrs. J.D. Harten, and Mrs. N.A. Smith, chairman.

Belles and Beards Start Their Groups

Ever since the day Adam and Eve fastened together a few fig leaves and staged a fashion show in the Garden of Eden, men and women have . . . for the most part, enjoyed dressing up and having somewhere to go.

The Mason Area Centennial is excuse enough for Mason residents to dress up and the Centennial Committee is running its collective brains overtime in thinking up the "somewhere to go."

This is part of the responsibility of the Participation committee under the joint guidance of Mrs. Richard Bebee, women's division, and Harlan Smith for the men.

The Brothers of the Brush, with Jim Pelton in charge, will sport facial foliage of varied degrees of density, be it fuzz or fur, as long as it can be recognized as such from eight paces. Also, as a requirement of membership are ties and badges. Jack Davis is in charge of Centennial men's wear.

The Celebration Belles, under the direction of Mrs. Walter Augustine and Mrs. Raymond Mohlman, will not sport facial foliage, unless they so desire. Instead they are expected to add to the festive atmosphere by wearing colorful, old fashioned dresses, either originals or replicas, but only the pins and bonnets are required as proof of membership. Mrs. Howard Scripster is in charge of women's centennial apparel.

Those in charge of the "somewhere to go" part of the celebration are Bob Jones, men's division, and Mrs. Jim Brown for the women. Among events planned are style shows, teas, a soft ball game and tug of war. There will also be evening promenades when men, women and children in centennial dress will stroll through the stores and along the streets of the business section of town.

There will also be motorcade trips for the Celebration Belles and Brothers of the Brush in which they will, as an escorted procession, make trips to outlying towns in the Mason trading area in order to boost Mason as well as the centennial.

Other events are still in the planning stages. One of these is a trip by chartered bus to Detroit to be seen and to see a ball game.

Those in charge of the crime and punishment part of the fun are Nate Smith and Billie Shinevar. The crime detection will be carried out by special police, known as Keystone Kops. These defenders of the force will serve subpoenas for various violations in order to deliver the violators to the Kangaroo Kourt for punishment.

No record will be kept of violations or violators so those who do not choose to take an active part in the fun will in no way be required to do so. They will be neither persecuted nor prosecuted without their consent.

Those who do care to participate in the festivities and are served with subpoenas will be allowed, even encouraged, to fight the charges as in any other Kourt. Defense attorneys will be tolerated in Kourt, but at their own risk.

This is our community and our celebration. No matter what plans the participation committee make, they cannot succeed unless those who are able to do so are willing to participate.

In spite of the weather, over 50 enthusiastic men turned out for the organizational meeting of the Brothers of the Brush on Wednesday evening, February 24. Out of those present, 25 men took baskets of "Brothers of the Brush" buttons home with them for the purpose of establishing charters in the organization.

DEAR DORIS

advice from
Doris Clark

Don't Compare Your Mates

DEAR DORIS — My wife was a beautiful and lovely creature. She died last year after 20 years of perfect marriage.

We knew her illness was incurable and we had many talks about things I would not have had the courage to bring up; her funeral arrangements, for instance. She made me promise that I would remarry, both for my own sake and for the children.

I can hardly reconcile myself to my loss. My job keeps me busy daytimes, but the nights are 40 hours long. How does one look for a new partner — or even begin to want to? At present I can see nothing but darkness in the future.

Bald And Shy

DEAR SHY — Your eloquent letter painted a picture of rare marital bliss, a level of happiness which many would give their eye teeth for.

Please don't rush things. Go through your dark days with what cheer you can muster. Your teenagers are of an age to pull together with you cheerfully in keeping things going at home. Be sure you are preparing them for the idea of another mother.

When you are back on a more even keel, a little light will break. Never expect to compare a second mate with your first.

Merely hope that a second mature companionship can hold its own strong and enduring values, which indeed it can.

DEAR DORIS — Is it improper for the guest to leave a tip for the waitress when you've been invited out to dinner?

For example: a friend took my husband and me to dinner last night. Upon leaving, my husband also left a tip on the table. Right or wrong?

Embarrassed

DEAR EMBARRASSED — Wrong. This would look like a criticism of your host's generosity in the tip he gave.

DEAR DORIS — I love my boy friend very much. We are both 18 and he is the only boy I ever went out with.

But now this other boy keeps asking me out. I know if I go, Tom will want to break up. I don't want to lose Tom, but I'd like to go out with the other boy just the same.

It seems like whenever we talk about it we end up having a fight.

Unhappy

DEAR UNHAPPY — Once there was a dog with a bone who looked at his reflection in a pond. He saw another bone there and went after that. And lost both.

If you think Tom should be okaying your dates with anyone you take a fancy to, think again.

Be brave enough to break off with him if you have honest doubts.

To In Trouble — With your precarious health, it is twice as important for you to come out of hiding and seek medical help. Don't let precious months go by while you skimp on food and live in fear. A lack of good prenatal care doubles your chances of prematurity and adds to the risk of your own health and the baby's life.

To Worried Friend — When Mom and Dad fight, the little pitchers get upset inside, even if they say nothing. Bribes and other attempts to win a child's loyalty will only further confuse him, as he belongs to both parents and needs to love them both. Even if they can't agree with each other. Your friends could profit by skilled counseling, and your best move is to help them find it.

Pipes-Butts Vows Said

A southern honeymoon followed the wedding Saturday afternoon of Miss Patricia Ann Butts and James William Pipes. The couple exchanged vows in St. Theresa church in Lansing.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Butts, 1038 Parter street; the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Pipes of Laingsburg.

The new Mrs. Pipes chose a gown of dulcet satin styled with a portrait neckline, long sleeves, fitted bodice and full skirt which swept into a chapel train. She carried a Hogarth arrangement of white roses, yellow tipped carnations and cymbidium orchids.

Miss Connie Mae Hull served as maid of honor in a bell-shaped dress of pale yellow organza over taffeta. Identically gowned were Miss Janice Sue Laipply, bridesmaid and Miss Deborah Jean Butts, sister of the bride, junior bridesmaid.

Robert J. Pipes served his brother as best man and ushers were Michael J. Evans and Lonnie L. Snow.

A church reception followed the ceremony. The new Mr. and Mrs. Pipes will make their home in Holt upon their return from their honeymoon.

UCW To Host Annual Day Of Prayer

McNeil of Pasadena, California, who is a past president of the United Church Women of Michigan. She is a former resident of Jackson and the granddaughter of slaves. She is presently a member of the general board of National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States of America. Her theme for the World Day of Prayer is What Doth the Lord Require?

Company Earnings Increase

Phone Firm Plans Building

Stockholders of the Rural Telephone company, gathered for their annual meeting in the Stockbridge Township hall Saturday and were told that it would be the last time the meeting would take place in the hall.

Company president L. B. Lindemer announced plans for the construction of a new office building in the near future. Lindemer also announced that earnings amounted to $2.31 per share of stock as compared with $1.62 last year.

Construction on the new building will begin this spring according to Lindemer, and will be located on the same site as the present office building. The present building, which was converted from a former residence, will be removed or torn down, he said. The new building which will be 52 x 85 feet, will cost between $65,000 and $70,000, and will incorporate the present equipment building, already located on the site. Lindemer said the new building, of modern design, will be an asset to the community. "This year," said Lindemer, "the report to the shareholders is the best ever". He said that the major increase was in added telephone service, with some 3,100 phones now being in use. Primary reason for this was the addition of the Grand Valley Telephone Co., which served Onondaga and Tompkins Center.

Lindemer said that even though the company had not done much in the way of promotion, there was an increase in local service revenue of more than $15,000. He said the board is extremely proud of the present personnel staff. He said the company employees have the right attitude, not only in money matters but in the service they provide their customers.

He said that Gordon Keeper is the best example of that. Keeper retired on December 31 after having served for 28 years as manager of the company. Keeper is still serving the company as a consultant.

Wayne Collier, assistant manager since 1952, was moved up to the position of manager when Keeper retired. Lindemer said the transfer of authority was smooth and without complications, a fact that reflects the competence and attitude of both men.

Lindemer said, "Collier has proven to be an excellent manager and, 'jokingly added', while the going relationship leaves something to be desired, the working relationship couldn't be better."

What about future plans for the company whose assets exceed one million dollars? Lindemer said the company hopes to have rural lines with no more than 4 parties on a line and 1 and 2 parties in the village. He also said that Bell Telephone in Jackson plans to go nationwide with direct dial service in 1968 and when they do, the Rural Telephone company will be ready. Also, plans are proceeding to provide toll free service to Jackson for Rives Junction subscribers. Lindemer said that Michigan Bell has agreed to join Rural Telephone in seeking the okay of the Public Service Commission. He said it is anticipated that the application for the service will be filed shortly and that the service will be available after Bell adds the necessary facilities, sometime in 1966.

Lindemer also said the company is engaged in a plant inventory program which will provide a complete analysis of the entire operation. He said that in the program, every pole will be numbered, maps will be prepared that will be complete in the smallest detail, of roads and lines.

The company's board of directors is composed of Lawrence B. Lindemer, president; Norman S. Topping, vice-president; Sidney A. Beckwith, M.D., secretary; Charles H. Webb, treasurer; and directors are John T. Dancer, Harold Harr, H. Randolph and E.R. Murry.

SELF GOVERNMENT FOR WASHINGTON? Washington, D.C. has not had "home rule" since 1874, when the U.S. Congress took it over in a type of receivership. It has been governed largely by the district committee of the House of Representatives. The present movement to give it self-government has been spearheaded by President Johnson. Home rule will make Washington America's first Negro city. Only city in the U.S. with a Negro majority, it would likely mean a Negro-dominated city government. It will also mean that after 90 years, Washington — citadel of democracy — will itself become democratic.

Fire Leaves Family Of Seven Homeless

A rural Stockbridge family and their five children lost all their personal belongings and were left homeless by a fire which did extensive damage to their residence early Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fletcher and their children, Rickie, 9; Pamela, 7; Craig, 5; Nicky, 4 and Jeff, 2, were staying with relatives today, following the fire which, according to Stockbridge fire chief Howard Ashmore apparently started from defective wiring.

The Stockbridge fire department sent all their equipment and spent three hours fighting the fire at 5611, M-52, approximately two miles south of the village.

Firemen estimated damage to the house and contents at approximately $2500. It was reported there was no insurance. The only things saved were a washer, dryer, TV and a couch. Fletcher, who suffered a disability during the Korean conflict, has been unable to work steadily since his release from military service.

The Stockbridge Kings Daughters came to the family's aid with some clothing for the children and a few dishes, however, Mrs. Vere Yocum of that organization said they didn't have too much material on hand at the present time.

Williamston Couple At Farm Leader Meet

Alvin Launstein of Williamston, president of Ingham County Farm Bureau and Mrs. Launstein, who is chairman of the Farm Bureau women's committee, attended a farm leaders workshop at Camp Kett.

Speaking to the group of farm leaders was Allan Kline, former president of the American Farm Bureau federation.

"Had the Pilgrims been exposed to our present system of welfare aid, it is highly questionable that they would have ever sailed for the New World", Kline said. He asked the 200 persons present from all parts of Michigan, if the trends toward all-inclusive welfare aid would not have stifled all initiative to immigrate

What started out to be an overnight visit turned out to be several days visit when Miss Spring Lindstrom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lindstrom came to visit Pamela McAllister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry McAllister on Wednesday evening. Then the bad weather set in and much to the girls' delight they spent several days together until roads were shoveled out.

Miss Judy Jarrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Jarrell was honored Tuesday when her mother brought cupcakes to school for Judy and her classmates to share.

The Rod and Gun club hosted a register shoot at its grounds near Munith, Sunday, February 28.

to America, and to "claim the West as the pioneer settlers did." He pointed out that the parents and grandparents of many Michigan residents came to this country to make a fresh start and suggested that "politically administered programs of debilitating aid" are now destroying such initiative for self-advancement. A former member of the Export-Import Bank board, Kline touched on national fiscal policy, stating that this policy of "tax-and-spend"--had "about caught up with us."

He said that a built-in "bias toward inflation" has about caught up with productivity and that as a result we have been shoved into the subterfuge of printing U. S. Bonds for sale to banks, in turn placing more money into circulation.

"Instead of coming out boldly and just printing more money which everyone would understand and resent," this round-about means is used to do the same thing quietly," Kline declared.

Turning to the reapportionment issue, the farm leader called on the county officers to join with other organizations to amend the constitution of the United States to prevent further damage to the federal system of government. He said the supreme court decisions in apportionment have removed from citizens their "right to decide" and that states must again be given the right to apportion one House of their legislatures on whatever basis other population they wish.

IMPORTANT PEOPLE

To Michigan Servicemen in Vietnam. This is sort of an open letter which I hope will find its way into your hands. Dickey Chapelle, a woman reporter who has been working in your part of the world until early this year, addressed the Michigan Press association about what's going on there. One of her main points was to the effect that we at home don't understand enough about Vietnam to really appreciate the importance of the fighting; and that Americans there are very discouraged with this lack of understanding.

A lot of people here do care what's going on in Vietnam. The number grows every day. Maybe some of the fine points are hazy to us, but more and more people are concerned about the basic issue. And more and more people are appreciating what you are doing. There is a clearer understanding all the time of the problems you face, the handicaps you must overcome and, most importantly, of the significance of your activities.

While I can't speak for anyone but myself, I'm anxious to pass on to you and all our servicemen my personal gratitude for what you are doing for our country and to tell you that I am sure there are thousands of others in Michigan who feel the same way. This letter is sent in appreciation of your efforts; with thankfulness you are doing so well; and with the best of hopes that you will soon return safely in the pride that you made an important contribution to our country's existence.

Elmer E. White, Secretary Michigan Press Association (Hold in bold or italics following paragraph) Relatives or friends of servicemen are requested to send this letter to Vietnam. Or better still, their personal message expressing their appreciation.

the driver the greater the risk and higher the rates.

Since currently the 16-year-old motorist comes under special provisions where driving rule violations are concerned, some say he should lose either this special privilege or the right to drive.

A teenage driver's tendency to have a carload of friends with him, thus magnifying the impact of any misfortune, brings many safety officials in to support the 17-year limitation.

Opponents of the change come largely from the "you can't blame them all for the actions of a few" school of thought.

Since parents of teenagers will be those who hear the complaints if such a change is enacted, they might be wise to form an opinion on the matter and convey it to the lawmakers.

UNDERGROUND MAIL

State Building Director, Adrian N. Languis, reports a conveyor belt freeway system, complete with electronically controlled intersections on the principle of highway interchanges, will be installed under the proposed complex of new state office buildings in Lansing.

The system will be used to replace the present messenger mail service between state agencies.

Mail going from the Supreme Court Building to the Capitol, for example, would be placed in electronically marked baskets on the conveyor and travel along the freeway underground, next to a series of pedestrian tunnels, until it reached its destination.

Languis said the system was expected to save the state thousands of dollars a year in personnel costs, in addition to providing faster service than is now possible. No price, however, has been placed on this item yet. It's patterned after the system in use at the Library of Congress.

On The Bookshelf...

By R.E. SCOTT

The original American has always been treated variously in literature and recently there has been a good amount of writing about Indians. Perhaps this is due to a subconscious correlation in our minds of the red man's plight in our early history and that of the black man today. At least Martin Luther King would have us believe that such a correlation exists (see Why We Can't Wait by Dr. King). Whatever the case, the book world is prospering by this attention to the diversity of our racial heritage.

Since Will Henry won the Western Writers of America citation in 1960 with "From Where the Sun Now Stands," the "Injun" theme has been claimed by serious literature. Here the battle of the Big Hole was treated with a thoroughness unusual to Westerns which gave dignity to the Nez Perce Nation and the literary genre.

Chief Joseph and his boys were mild compared to the Sioux Nation and Frederick Manfred's "Scarlet Plume" succeeds expertly in making this point. If he gets across anything in this horribly real (at times) romantic odyssey, it is this: no matter how much is written, we will never come to understand the reasons the Indian behaved as he did - brutality offset by a savage humor.

In contrast to the ways of the Sioux are those of the Cheyenne Nation, at least as portrayed in Thomas Berger's serio-comic epic, "Little Big Man." He is aware that much of the truth behind Indian myths will never be known; the story is told by the sole 111 year old survivor of Little Big Horn. The old boy's Twainish chatter is a gust of fresh air let into the stale fiction of Custeriana.

The structures which your own imagination can build after reading these books often end in a search of the library's non-fiction. It is then that you discover that truth is stranger than fiction! So . . . . . 973.82 Graham, Colonel W.A. "The Custer Myth." Pennsylvania: Stackpole, 1953. 970.1 Hallowell, A. Irving. "Culture and Experience." University of Pennsylvania Press, 1955.

Senator Potter Reports

Last week, a resolution passed both the Senate and the House urging the State Tax Commission to reconsider its new depreciation schedules. The Commission's action had caused great concern among local assessors. This is one case where the equity of the matter is not at issue. Most of the assessors I have met agree that adjustments in the personal property tax schedule are needed. Where the bind occurs is the matter of raising money to keep the governmental units operating. In other words, this issue points up what was written in this column last week: That taxes have a domino effect. When one portion of the tax source is disturbed, it has a far-reaching effect on the rest of the structure. Agreement that a revision of the depreciation schedules is needed should be accompanied by a plan whereby the revenue lost can be accounted for in some other manner. Incidentally, the action shows even more clearly one of the real problems in the State of Michigan. Business taxes are too high. The State Tax Commission's directive relates to the accelerated depreciation of business personal property. Most businessmen will tell you that in order to keep pace with a keenly competitive business climate, they must constantly re-invest in equipment. This extends to the farmer as well. For some years, business and agriculture have been caught in a fierce profit squeeze. We must recognize that something will have to be done on the governmental level to assure that the competitive system continues. The heart of the matter lies in the word "profit," which has become almost a dirty word of late. Those who advocate abolishment of profit should consider where our economic strength has come.

Further steps were taken last week to have a bi-partisan approach to the problem of fiscal reform. The Republican Senate caucus agreed that the time to get started on this problem is now, and authorized Caucus Chairman Senator Emil Lockwood to appoint a committee to work with the majority party if they so desire. I am happy to announce that Senator Lockwood saw fit to name me as one of the members of this committee.

Let us not deceive ourselves on this fiscal reform question. It is far from cut and dried. There is no sense in being stampeded by those who advocate "fiscal reform" without actually knowing what it means. In my mind, fiscal reform means a revision of the tax structure from top to bottom, together with a complete analysis of state spending. We should never lose sight of the spending side of state government. In some areas, we should ask the serious question of whether the proposals are really necessary for the welfare of the state and its people. Until we are ready to face this problem, it would seem that our efforts to provide adequately for essentials such as education, mental health, traffic safety and the like will run into the ancient problem of just not having the money in the treasury.

Last week, the Senate passed a bill that appears to be weakening the law, but which should have just the opposite effect. Senate Bill 35 amends the law dealing with narcotics pushers. The law called for mandatory sentence of 20 years for anyone convicted of being a pusher. The amendment reads "life or any term of years." This permits a judge to use discretion in the matter, and should increase the number of convictions for this crime. Judges have been reluctant, and rightly so, to hand out 20 year sentences to first offenders who have some extenuating circumstances in their cases.

By the time you read this, Senate Bill 20 will have provoked a bitter fight on the floor of the Senate. This is the Sunday liquor sales bill. The measure was heavily amended in committee, but even so, it was unacceptable in my view. No amount of amending can, in my judgment correct a bill that is wrong in its approach.

The subject of a liquor license for the Capital City Airport has come up again. Having met with interested parties of both sides, I have concluded that this is a problem that affects my district, and the people of this district are entitled to have me take a stand on the issue. Accordingly, I have agreed to introduce a bill which would permit the transfer of a liquor license to the Capital City Airport. Note the word "transfer". The bill would not permit the issuance of an extra license over the quota. I fully recognize the controversy that exists relative to this measure, but there is sufficient support for the bill from people of the 24th district to merit its consideration by the Senate.

The hearings on the Boundary Bell will be held March 4, 7:30 p.m. in the Supreme Court Chambers. This measure sets up a boundary commission to handle annexations, as was mentioned last week.

Perhaps the most spirited action in the senate last week came over the proposal to change the senate rules. Specifically, it was rule 62, which the majority party proposed to amend by banning cameras and tape recorders from the chamber 30 minutes before, during, and 30 minutes after the session.

As a former radio and television reporter, covering that same senate chamber, I could not help but feel that the rule was restrictive and oppressive. True, the senate majority leader, floor leader, or chairman of the business committee could grant permission for the use of cameras and tape recorders, but the fact that all of these men, honorable though they are, belong to the majority party, places some question of censorship in my mind.

I spoke against the rule, contending that the public's right to know must be protected at all times. If the rule was allowed to stand, who could say but that the next effort might be directed toward newspapers?

After newsmen had had an opportunity to meet with the senate business committee, the majority party decided to modify the rule. The ban against cameras and tape recorders was eliminated, and the number of representatives on the press committee expanded to include a radio and television representative.

This is not the end of the matter. I agree that reasonable rules dealing with the operation of newsmen in the senate chambers are needed. Working with Senator Bowman, the business committee chairman, and other interested senators and members of the news media, I sincerely hope we can solve this problem.

Once again, the tax reform controversy has flared. Senator Basil Brown, (D-Detroit), has suggested that the majority party might support a tax revision program similar to one offered by Governor Romney some time ago. Yet, Senator Brown says that this program which includes a flat rate income tax, would be supported by the majority only if there was an agreement to change the state constitutional prohibition of a graduated income tax. Again, I would like to solicit your thoughts on the whole matter of taxes. My address is Box 240, State Capitol, Lansing.

I am pleased to announce that this week I will submit to the Legislative Service Bureau a package of bills designed to improve certain legal procedures.

The bills represent many of the thoughts of the Michigan Prosecutor's association, and a great deal of the research and preparation was done by Ingham county prosecutor Donald L. Reising. In my opinion, they are important and technically excellent bills, and the people of Ingham county are indeed fortunate to have a man of Mr. Reising's legal ability as their prosecutor.

In an effort to solve a problem that has caused concern to Sheriff Preadmore, I have asked for a bill which would eliminate the 90 day residence requirement for deputy sheriffs. If successful, this bill will help all sheriffs in their quest for qualified personnel.

Still another major matter is being discussed in the senate. This is county home rule. I have not taken a firm position on the question, and will not until I have had an opportunity to consult with members of the board of supervisors and Ingham county officials. There is one suggested provision which I find personally repugnant, and that is the proposal to eliminate most, if not all, elected county officials. If I am correct in my assessment, I believe that the people of Ingham county want to continue the election of county officials, and want them politically responsible for their actions while in office.

Once again, I appreciate hearing from you. The address is Box 240, State Senate, Capitol Building, Lansing.

Drastic Changes Seen In Farm Organizations

A visiting sociologist who has studied Michigan farm organizations foresees drastic changes during the next decade.

Unless his predictions come true, he warns, the economic interests of agriculture will be ignored by both the federal and state governments.

The sociologist is James H. Copp of Pennsylvania State University who studied farm organizations while serving as a visiting professor at Michigan State University last summer.

Disunity among major farm organizations and agriculture's minority position in today's society are the reasons changes are needed, according to Copp. His study indicated that farm organizations, such as the Farm Bureau and Grange, are stronger in Michigan than at the federal level.

Disunity among farm organizations has led officials at the federal level, Copp asserts, to adopt a "don't rock the boat" attitude.

Copp predicts a centralization and consolidation of many of the general and commodity-type organizations. He adds, "Agriculture's changing power position requires a united front."

Legislative reapportionment will cause a loss of some political muscle by agriculture, but farmers will continue to exercise power disproportionate to their numbers, Copp says.

To gain maximum leverage, he continues, farm organizations will enter into cooperative alliances with such groups as organized labor where interests coincide.

He suggests farm organizations will become more business-like and will have bigger budgets. In the face of migration of young men to cities, he says, development of new leadership will be a problem.

Christopher Sower, MSU professor of rural sociology, warns that both private and governmental agriculture organizations must change with the times or die.

He says the federal anti-poverty program was set up outside the sphere of traditional governmental welfare organizations because existing groups failed to respond to modern needs.

Agricultural organizations have a period of grace, he contends, in which to modernize their outlook. If they don't, he adds, their leadership will be superceded.

Suggestions that the nation "needs only one million farmers" are being put forward in response to massive criticism of current federal policies, Sower maintains.

Farm organizations, if they are to retain their leadership roles, must adapt their policies to this new goal or come forth with a better goal, he asserts.

Advisory Group To Assist Control Program

G.S. McIntyre, director of agriculture, has appointed a special pesticide advisory committee to aid the department of agriculture in pest control programs.

The 17-man committee is made of industry leaders and officials of state agencies concerned with control of insect and plant pests.

McIntyre said the committee's purpose is to counsel and advise the state department of agriculture and the U.S. department of agriculture plant pest control division on the pesticide programs these two agencies conduct in the state.

"Pesticide residues have not been a serious problem in Michigan," McIntyre said, "and we want to keep it that way. An effective control program, however, requires the cooperative effort of all concerned."

"It is our hope that the pesticide advisory committee will help create better understanding of present control programs," he added, "and insure that the public and other interests are safeguarded through a coordinated effort."

Appointed to the committee are: Dr. Ralph A. MacMullan, director of the Michigan department of conservation; Dr. Albert E. Heustis, commission of the Michigan health department; Loring F. Oenning, executive secretary of the water resources commission; Dr. Gordon E. Guyer, Michigan state university entomology department chairman; and Richard W. Bell, assistant director of the cooperative extension service at Michigan State University.

Natural resources are represented by Abbott Fox, president of the American Forest Products association; Stewart Myers, president of the Michigan United Conservation clubs; and Dr. Raleigh Barlowe, president of the Natural Resources council.

Representing agriculture on the committee are Elton Smith, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau; Chester A. Johnson, president of the Michigan Farmers union; Mrs. Maurine Seramlin, chairman of the Michigan Farm Bureau women's committee; and Walter Wightman of the Michigan State Horticultural society.

Others on the committee are George Lynn of Dow Chemical company, representing the chemical industry; Dr. Louis R. Newlin, DVM, representing the veterinary profession; Dr. George Sherman for the medical profession; Robert Mueller, president of the Michigan Pesticide Applicators association; and Gordon Depew, secretary of the Michigan Agricultural Pesticide association.

Romney Reports

The problems of aging in 1965 are not those of 10 years ago or even five years ago. Our Michigan citizens who are 65 years of age and older have become an increasing proportion of our society bringing with these sheer number new and challenging problems. We have experienced a population explosion at the top of our age scale as well as at the bottom. Where only 15 years ago there were 462,000 Michigan citizens 65 years and older, representing 7.2% of our total population, today there are over 700,000 representing about 8.5%. If brought together, these Senior Citizens would totally populate Oakland county, our second largest county.

At the same time these citizens are passing that special year that marks the entrance to their "Golden Years" with the promise of longer lives than ever before as a result of modern scientific, economic and social advances. Where at the turn of the century life expectancy at birth was 47 years, today it is over 70 years and increasing steadily.

While these elderly men and women are not an isolated, separate part of our society, they have special problems requiring full attention of our public and private resources. We have made demonstrable progress in the 1960's in tackling their pressing health needs, living standards and productivity. Michigan ranks among the leading states in these endeavors.

We have not stood still. There have been significant improvements in the Medical Assistance to the Aged state program in the past two years. MAA coverage has been extended to 15 percent more senior citizens, broader care for MAA patients and a freer choice of hospitals have been made possible, nursing homes have been included under MAA and other major improvements have been made.

Because of these legislative and administrative improvements, many more Michigan older people are eligible and are receiving better medical and hospital care benefits than two years ago.

Of the 32 states having a Kerr-Mills program, Michigan ranks among the top three in benefits paid under this program.

Other major improvements for senior citizens have also been secured:

- higher payments under Old Age Assistance to 5,000 persons, while reducing local governmental costs;
- broader use of lower-cost nursing homes and county hospitals;
- expanded foster home care programs and rehabilitation of senior citizens transferred out of state institutions;
- more local councils on aging and referral centers;
- vigilance in state inspection of nursing homes;
- an expanded older worker placement program to attack hard-core unemployment of older workers.

Adding it all up, I believe Michigan has made significant progress in the past two years in solving some of the acute problems of our senior citizens. But this is an era of rapid change, when needs are growing at an incredible pace. The fields of health care, housing, taxation, welfare, education, research and community level action all present opportunities for continued improvement.

I have made recommendations to the legislature based upon an extensive study made during 1964 by 10 task forces appointed to work with the Michigan Commission on Aging to take a 10-year look at our situation.

TAX RELIEF
I am convinced tax relief on the homes owned and occupied by our senior citizens is desirable.

Varying proposals have been made, including one for property tax deferral which I submitted as part of a statewide program of tax reform in 1963.

I have recently appointed a blue-ribbon committee headed by Alfred Pelham of Detroit to examine this question of tax relief and report its recommendations to me in time for action. In this regular legislative session, if these recommendations cannot be developed in time, I will submit a program at a special session for this purpose.

LIEN PROVISIONS
Most older people want to leave their children the fruits of their life's work. Often, savings or fixed incomes just aren't enough to cover the necessities during their final years. Old Age Assistance and MAA are available to maintain health and a minimum standard of living. But by accepting these helps, pride and dignity suffer. I believe we should eliminate this practice. I recommend that the lien provisions of the MAA and OAA Acts be repealed.

Next week I would like to discuss such important problems as health care, housing, employment and the like with you.

Asparagus Industry Growing

Michigan's asparagus industry was the fastest growing in the United States last year, according to Michigan State university horticulturists.

State growers packed 24 percent more cases in 1964 than in 1963. Illinois had the second highest percentage increase with 12 percent.

Most major asparagus producing states--New Jersey, California, etc.--packed less asparagus in 1964 as compared to the year before.

The MSU horticulturists assume that the main increase in production of asparagus in Michigan resulted from the relatively few frosts last year as compared to 1963.

MOSCOW BOLSTERED. Russia has praised French President Charles de Gaulle's call for a return to a full gold standard, and endorsed his plan to put an end to the supremacy of the U. S. dollar in international trade.

As I See It

By Hayden Palmer

March came in like a lamb last Monday—a little snowy perhaps—but the fierceness was gone. The day dawned cloudy and a little foggy but the weather was warm and made one think of spring, and spring is not so far away. According to the calendar it is due on March 20.

But March in these parts is a most unpredictable month. It may snow one day and leave a deep deposit of the white stuff, and inside of a week the temperature may soar to bring about picnic weather.

One thing about March, you can figure that winter can't last too much longer.

March has but one holiday—St. Patrick's day—on March 17. There is not too much observance of the day except that some folks deck themselves out in green in tribute to Ireland's patron saint.

March also will be the first month of the Lenten season, which begins today with Ash Wednesday, and continues until Easter Sunday which this year falls on April 18.

March touches your pocketbook, too. New 1965 license plates must be purchased by March 1 and dog taxes are due on the same day. And about this time of year, too, the internal revenue man casts an eye in your direction.

A Lansing business establishment which decided to remain open on George Washington's birthday, February 22, wound up its ad announcing the decision by stating "George would have wanted it this way".

Fame or notoriety can come to a person in many ways. Take the case of Malcolm X, for instance. Mason and Holt residents remember him as a boy going to school under his real name, Malcolm Little.

He was just an ordinary boy, but a bright youngster who had average grades and was liked by his fellow students, so well liked in Mason in fact that he was elected president of his 8th grade class.

Malcolm Little could have gone on and become a quiet, God-fearing citizen, perhaps not attracting too much public attention but with the respect of his friends and neighbors.

But Malcolm Little took another path—a more exciting one. It won him newspaper headlines and he became known nationally after he joined the Black Muslim sect. There he displayed the same ability he did while a schoolboy in Mason and Pleasant Grove schools.

He went rapidly to the top in the Muslim movement. Then he broke with the organization and started his own group. On Sunday afternoon, February 21, he went to a ballroom in New York's Harlem district to make an address. As he was speaking assassins gunned him down.

Malcolm Little's life span was short—only 39 years. He lived dangerously and he died violently. Was the fame or the notoriety he gained worth the price?

It has been said that it takes all kinds of people to make a world. Most everyone realizes that the world we have made is in pretty much of a mess these days but most thinking people believe it will straighten out in due time. But not a family in Indiana. They claim to have received Divine words that the world is about to come to an end. They bought an abandoned coal mine, stocked it with food and moved in to await Doomsday, which, they say, is going to be sometime around March 16.

Friday is World Day of Prayer when persons of all religious beliefs will attend church services which will combine scripture readings, hymns and prayer.

For 79 years this day of prayer has been observed to unite the people of 6 continents and more than 125 nations.

It is appropriate for this occasion to be observed during the Lenten season and at a time when the world is beset by many problems.

Would that through this day of prayer could come the wisdom to lead the world out of the morass of misunderstandings and onto the firm road to peace.

That is the kind of world that will have to give way to President Johnson's Great Society. H. J. EWJE Leslie

Letters

A Long Road Back

President Johnson's proposal to build what he terms the Great Society should receive the enthusiastic support of the American people, provided it can be financed to the same extent as the cold war project.

Nothing short of $50 billion a year for 5 years will transform a decaying civilization to one of life and beauty. Let's take a quick glance at the immorality and intellectual debasement that is beginning to be accepted as the regular norm of life. We live in a society where family life is rapidly disintegrating. Where one out of 4 marriages ends in divorce. Where more murders take place between husbands and wives than in any other category. Where children are considered best left to shift for themselves or be farmed out. Where adultery, fornication, homosexuality and wife-trading vie with television as popular entertainment.

We live in a society where respect for all constituted law and authority is gone! Where police, not allowed to enforce the law, serve as targets for public abuse and the savage attacks of teenage hoodlums. Where racial violence and strife is assuming ever larger proportions. Where crime of every description—rape, murder, assault, theft and dope addiction, to name but a few—are running so rampant it is futile to try to quote statistics because they are outdated by the time they come off the press, where cities are asphalt jungles infested with human "rat-packs," making it unsafe for either men or women in many areas, even in broad daylight, where teaching is a dangerous profession and police are stationed in the halls of schools because students carry switch-blade knives, where the syndicate runs the city so completely that even the federal government is helpless to intervene, where courtrooms are overcrowded with lawyers and criminals searching not for justice but for some loophole in the law, where to be a cold-blooded killer is to be "temporarily insane" or "socially maladjusted," where to be "civilized" is to enjoy watching a helpless old man get stabbed to death by a thug on a busy street corner, and then calmly go home to watch several hours more of killing on TV, where to give birth to illegitimate children is an acceptable means of earning a living, with a graduated income plan for each child thus born.

Members of the Dansville Methodist church have been invited to the Millville Methodist church at 2 p.m. for the World Day of Prayer.

The film "In His Steps" sponsored by the Dansville Methodist Free Methodist and Baptist churches shown at the Dansville Free Methodist church Sunday evening, February 28, was fairly well attended. The meeting was in charge of Rev. Robert Sawyer of the Free Methodist church assisted by Rev. Gilbert Stroud of the Methodist church.

The Mason-Dansville Keynotes club met at the home of Jim Mueller on Sunday afternoon, February 28, with 38 members in attendance. The Madrigal singers of Mason presented a selection of folk music.

What Ingham County Churches Are Doing

What's Your Story?

... what? You haven't written one? Then you'll be surprised to know that you write a line every day. God laid clean white pages before you and challenged you to give an accounting of your days on earth... one by one. What you write may embarrass you or it may make for happiness. One fact is sure. It becomes a permanent record. Every day comes from God. He offers us new opportunities with the dawn of each new day... opportunities to write with integrity and trust and genuine goodness. What will you write today? Were you a blessing to another? Did you attend church this week? Have you helped the poor? What are you writing? What's Your Story???

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and molding religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you" form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCH-GOER and a daily BIBLE READER.

A Good Bi-partisan Idea

State Senator Edward J. Robinson, D-Dearborn, is proposing a constitutional amendment that would put state-supported colleges and universities under strict control of the state board of education. If adopted, it would erase the autonomous status of such institutions.

There is evidently bi-partisan support for such an amendment, because Governor George Romney earlier last week suggested that he, too, will seek to bind higher education under the authority of the state board of education.

On the surface it might appear that the distribution of control of the state universities and colleges among several autonomous boards would assure the people of Michigan that they would receive the most possible from their educational dollars. But such a theory has not worked out. The present situation is one that finds legislators and administrative officers obligated to fund proposed state educational budgets, but without the authority to see that the money is spent wisely. Governors past and present and the legislatures have continually been thwarted in finding out even the most basic information about how state educational institutions spend the money allotted to them, ironically, by the grace of the governor and the legislature.

High-handed use of public money is not unknown right here in Ingham county on the campus of Michigan State university. University administrators are authorized to spend seemingly any amount of money without even the approval of their own board of trustees, let alone the approval of the state board of education. A case in point is a printing contract amounting to nearly three-quarters of a million dollars awarded in 1964 without MSU bothering to seek bids from several other companies equally qualified to do the work. Such peculiar spending of public funds costs the taxpayers money - money that could well be used to improve and expand educational opportunities. Were the state board of education to oversee the control of the state universities and colleges as proposed by Senator Robinson and Governor Romney, empire builders would find their feathers trimmed. Having to answer to the legislature and to the people of Michigan, they undoubtedly would operate the state schools of Michigan in the best interests of the people.

Many state schools with Michigan State university in the forefront have developed a mania for creating vast self-contained empires. Institution-controlled police forces, stores, road systems, bus lines, restaurants, entertainment outlets, newspapers and radio-television stations are obvious examples of activities that suggest a supreme interest in empire building when perhaps the real interest ought to be in the realm of education.

It is inconceivable that the constitution requires the governor and the legislature to grant funds for the operation of state educational institutions, but denies them the right to know how the money is spent or to do anything about it even if they did know.

Wiping out the autonomy of such sacred cows in state education would be sheer genius.

Life's No 'Grasser'

Over at Michigan State university spring madness has hit the student body in spite of the blizzard of last week.

Disguised in the cloak of individual rights and other high sounding and well-turned phrases, student dissidents are beating the drums for a less restrictive campus environment.

From the rumblings coming from the north of us it is easy to see that a handful of half-baked semi-intellectuals can stir up a big mess, none of it in the interest of education -- for Michigan State, for the students, for the many parents who are depriving themselves of many material things so that Johnny and Mary can get that education which is so important, and for the Michigan taxpayers who are going to the wall in the interests of higher education.

Raving and ranting over late hours, the right to keep beer in the refrigerator, the right to wear beatnik clothes, has nothing to do with the job of obtaining an education.

Education requires discipline. That's something a campus atmosphere can help provide. Turning campus life into a come-as-you-are beer bust isn't going to generate any more brain power.

Let's get rid of this theory that conformity to regulations and authority is something to despise. Let's get on with the idea of using the campuses for education and not for a grand and glorious 4-year "grasser."

Goals for 1965

The Ingham County News supports these objectives:

1. A popular vote to secure the people's choice as to what type of city hall - fire station is needed.
2. Expansion of new and completion of existing city parks with emphasis on playgrounds and picnic areas.
3. Continued planting of trees with provisions requiring subdividers to plant at least one tree on each lot before acceptance by the city.
4. A community center with regular hours and projects for senior citizens.
5. An industrial park to be operated by a non-profit community corporation with the avowed purpose of attracting desirable industries.
6. A Mason museum.

Reform Often Means Increase

Tuscola County Advertiser

The tax reform discussions currently going on in the State Capitol have been particularly interesting to us. While one certainly would hope some sort of fiscal and tax reform of merit will result, we simply can't help but be pessimistic.

We are leery of the word "tax reform." We are leery because in the past, too often "tax reform" in theory has ended up as "tax increase" in actual practice.

The primary consideration in any tax reform program should be the quest for equity in taxation. We believe such equity means a tax program which will ask the taxpayer to return in taxes to the state in the same measure that the social and economic status of that state has allowed him to prosper. We have never been able to swallow the property tax in its present form--and we are not alone in our swallowing difficulties on this score. We believe the property tax presently is unrealistic and unfair.

The man with the tumble-down shack, who spends little effort in improving his property and actually sometimes is a detriment and problem to the community, is taxed little. Yet, the man who is diligent and frugal, who by his efforts contributes to the improvement not only of his own property but his entire community, must pay the "penalty" for his efforts in heavy property taxation.

The present property tax encourages sloth and discourages progress and improvement. We believe the current tax reform program should give property taxes a good going over. The income tax certainly on the surface appears a fair and equitable type of tax to impose. It taxes a man in relation to his measure of prosperity. But we do not believe that an income tax would be fair unless it is accompanied with some improvements in equalizing property taxation.

And while we discuss state taxation, we might do well to take a good look at an even greater tax giant riding on our backs--the federal taxation. For the salaried employee, federal taxes have become a forgotten item because of payroll deduction. But it is a tax burden that we had better start remembering and raising a bit of Cain about--especially in light of some of the fiscal shenanigans we have been reading about in Washington.

Down by the Sycamore

By Nelson D. Brown

Edited by Margaret Brown

September 21, 1914

Dogs not only have their day, they now have a full week. This is National Dog Week, and librarians throughout the country are cooperating with a special display of dog books and magazines -- probably for those dogs who have been taught to read. The special objectives this year, according to the publicity release I received, include: 1. Every dog trained in obedience, guard, or other useful work; 2. Proper feeding of dogs under wartime conditions; and 3. No stray dogs -- every dog on public property must be on a leash or under control of a responsible person.

No. 3 is where I differ with the dog experts. I have harbored many dogs but never again will I have a dog in town where he must be chained or on a leash. In my estimation, that is cruelty. A dog should be foot loose and fancy free. Given his choice, most any dog would prefer being shot to being a prisoner for life. I am opposed to zoos and menageries for the same reason. It depresses me to see animals which should be cavorting in the woods or mountains or on the plains pacing their cells behind bars or in zoo enclosures.

October 19, 1944

Slum clearance programs can be heartbreaking occurrences. Down by the Sycamore the Ross Thorburns have lived for 15 years. Every morning the light in the Thorburn kitchen has informed me of the time to arise. Rolling over on my left side and looking out the bedroom window, I have seen the light and in due time have dutifully arisen and taken up my burden again. But on Tuesday when I rolled over and glanced out the window, I saw no light and then it came to me that the Thorburns had departed and that the Thorburn light was shining and would thereafter shine in the rarefied atmosphere of Oak and Barnes in the Rayner-Bond mansion.

Thorburn is a canny Scot, though, and has retained his house on Lansing street. If he is snubbed by his new neighbors or if he can't make enough out of the coal business to keep his oil burner going, he intends to return to the great unwashed along the Sycamore.

My wife and Mrs. Thorburn have traded even for the 15 years. Sugar, butter, lard, eggs, baking powder and bread have been borrowed and lent by the two for the entire period and I don't believe that either woman feels now or has ever felt that she had the bad end of the bargain. I am positive that we always received back more than we lent and if Thorburns haven't felt the same way, they have never made any public complaint.

February 1, 1945

Well, the President's Ball went off in great style Tuesday night. The crowd was not as large as in some former years but it was a good party with good music. The only sour note was the Dewey button worn by Nels Ferriby. He voted for Dewey and he insisted he was paying double tribute, to Dewey by wearing the button, and to the president by attending that ball.

BACK IN 1915, Mason had "summer recreation". This clay tennis court was located along the Sycamore creek banks west of Jefferson in an area used as a city park. This picture is from the Mrs. Minnie Thorburn collection.

barbs, praise and consequence

New England has a professor of sociology from one of the outstanding colleges who for more than 30 years has also been a garbage collector.

During all this time he has put on his work clothes 2 mornings a week and made his rounds to collect the refuse of others before slipping into his tweeds and old school tie and stepping into his college classroom.

He took on this job because no one else would do it and because it was diversion from classroom duties. He was able to make friends and communicate with people he otherwise would not meet.

When asked if such a menial job resulted in loss of respect, he answered with a loud "no."

Those who have known him for years held him in high esteem, however, newcomers sometimes registered a different reaction.

He always makes a practice of greeting everyone with a cheery "good morning."

He reported that quite often newcomers, unaware of his background and position in education, would elevate their noses slightly from snobbery as well as from garbage odor. They just couldn't lower themselves to speak of the affairs of the world with a garbage collector.

Once the word got around about his lofty moonlighting job in the classroom, people generally went out of their way to converse.

Being a sociologist, he was interested in why an educated garbage collector with a longline of degrees should rate more respect than an uneducated one. He felt there is some truth to the saying, "Clothes make the man."

We are all unfortunate if we can not see past the thin veneer of personal appearance. We are unfortunate if we pick our friends on the basis of employment level. We are unfortunate if we are unable to recognize culture and worth unless it is boldly labeled as such.

Fortunate is he who can associate with those above and below his levels of intellect, social stratum and financial position and still not lose his own identity. Fortunate is he who doesn't have to live in the finest house or drive the longest car in order to demand respect.

Notice the new look on the News editorial page last week - and this week? This column, the one above and the editorials are being set into type on new type-setting equipment. It involves 3 pieces of equipment to produce the larger typeface. And it goes something like this: Either our Mrs. Ethel Bowen or Miss Mary Jane Schofield type on a Friden Recorder machine which produces a computed punched tape. The tape is then fed into a Friden Reproducer which "justifies" the lines of the columns so that the margins are even - and then produces another perforated computed tape in a third "slave" machine which is then fed back into the first machine. It's a complicated, but interesting way to produce type. Stop in at the News any time and we'll give you a demonstration.

We're always happy to take tours through the News building. If you have a group that wants to see the various stages of printing production, just give us a call and we'll arrange a time for the group to visit the plant. This week the News entertained a group from Mason high school and a group of printers led by printer and former mayor of Grand Rapids, George Welch. Best of all though, we like to entertain hometown people, so plan a visit soon.

***

One step won't take you very far, You've got to keep on walking. One word won't tell 'em who are you, You've got to keep on talking. An inch won't make you very tall, You've got to keep on growing. One little ad won't do it all, You've got to keep them going. A constant drop of water Wears away the hardest stone, By constant gnawing, Touser Masticates the toughest bone. The constant, cooing lover, Carries off the blushing maid. And the constant advertiser, Is the one who gets the trade!

Correction: We knew better, but last week's old-time picture located the old second ward school as being at the corner of Center and McRoberts streets. It was actually at the corner of Sycamore and McRoberts.

Pros and Cons

Modern Math Is Challenged, Area Administrators Reply

Alexander Calandra, a professor of physics at Washington university in St. Louis and executive director of the American Council for Curricular Evaluation, took a swing at the new math programs being taught in schools today in an address before a group of education writers at Atlantic City last week. In associated Press dispatch he was quoted as saying, "The expression modern math is often little more than a status symbol used by mathematicians to maintain prestige and publishers to sell books."

Also at Atlantic City last week were a group of Ingham county educators. At least 3 of them, interviewed, took exceptions to Calandra's statements.

Said M. Chandler Nauts, superintendent of the Mason school district:

"Modern math is merely an attempt to teach the underlying concepts of the computational skills that always have been taught in American education."

"The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and many college professors around the country not in education but in the mathematics discipline, have helped develop these concepts which should be taught through the elementary and junior high schools."

"Their concern is not which textbook is sold or which new materials have to be purchased, but that the teacher understands and puts across the underlying concepts. This can be done by using any traditional textbook with materials which an individual teacher can devise himself."

Dy. Maurice Pernert, superintendent of the Holt-Dimondale school system, commented as follows:

"Modern math and new science have a great deal of money behind it in its development. Outstanding people at the national level have worked on it as a course of study."

"Several groups in science also have studied it. . . . Modern math changes no fundamental concepts but it is a different approach to learning the subject. Instead of being strictly computational, it stresses the learner's understanding of what he is doing. It is not so much the fact that 3 times 7 equals 21 but why it does."

"The elementary math program in Holt is a changed program but it is a combination of the new approach and the old."

"In secondary schools the amount of modern math a student takes depends on how far he wants to go with it."

"In science at the elementary level we have a better program than ever before because it is more extensive for the reason that there is more science to be learned and teachers are better prepared to teach it. Children, too, know more about science from reading and watching it on television."

"At the secondary level, biology, chemistry and physics all needed updating and the courses of study developed by these national committees have been a definite improvement."

"Again the stress is on WHY something is here in a greater sense than ever before."

Miss Lillian Goodwin, curriculum consultant of the Ingham intermediate board of education, said:

"The traditional math curriculum was just not answering the nation's need for scientists, teachers or business men."

"The core of the new program is the belief that modern students must understand more fully why number manipulations they perform are valid. It is not to get the right answer but to know why it is right."

"Children seem to like the new math more than their parents who never learned it differently. Actually traditional math had its own gimmickry."

Calandra said that many innovations in the science programs have been amateurish but "their promotion has been on a scale and with a finesse that makes Madison avenue look like a neighborhood stand selling 3-cent lemonade," according to the news dispatch.

He said in many ways the new math movement is difficult to check, "because of the very large and tightly knit web of vested interests preying on the mathematical unsophistication of the press, the public and the foundations themselves."

He said the public is being sold a bill of goods in many of the new science and math programs being produced for schools.

"Like the new mathematics program," he said, "the science programs have not been subject to such candid criticism since qualified critics are understandably reluctant to criticize the efforts of the very foundations from which they are receiving or hope to receive support themselves."

Rail Crossings Present Safety Problem in Leslie

LESLIE - A plea for some sort of warning signs or signals at the New York Central railroad crossing at E. Bellevue street was made to the Leslie village council Monday night by John Williamson, manager of the Leslie Co-op elevator at Bellevue street and the tracks.

The crossing has been the scene of 3 accidents over the past 6 months.

Williamson asked for the installation of flasher lights at the crossing, but it was pointed out to him that flasher installations would cost $12,000 each and there are 4 unprotected crossings of railroad tracks in the village, which would make the cost prohibitive.

Railroad warning signs also were considered but it was pointed out that all accidents in the past have involved local residents who know the railroad is there.

It was agreed to install stop signs on both sides of the crossings on Bellevue street, Kirby street, Maple street, E. Ray street and Kirby road. Approaches to the tracks at these streets also were given high priority for sanding.

George Vandercreek, Jr., president of the sophomore class at Leslie high school asked permission of the council to install school direction signs on village property at Kimball and Main streets. The council agreed, provided that the work is done under the supervision of the village maintenance superintendent.

The council also: Agreed to participate in Mayor Exchange day, an event of Michigan Week in May. Drawing for mayor exchanges is set for today.

Selected the People's Bank of Leslie as the depository of village funds for the 1965-66 fiscal year.

Adopted a budget of $85,000, not including water and sewer departments for the fiscal year. This sum includes $30,000 for construction of streets, sidewalks, curbs and gutters.

Appointed Ruth Burnett, village clerk, as street administrator.

Prohibited parking on either side of Kimball street from Main street to a dead end at the high school parking lot.

Discussed reversing traffic on a one-way alley at the rear of business places on the west side of Main street and referred the matter to the alley committee. The committee reported that all merchants along the east side of Main street, except one, have agreed to sign easements permitting the construction of an alley on that side of the street.

Voted to place $10,000 in time certificates, hoping it can be used toward the purchase of a new fire truck as the present truck is a 1938 Dodge with the original tires on it.

ON WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 17, the students of Saint James Catholic school presented "American History in Song". Children from grades 1-6 participated in the program which included ballads and folk songs from early American history. A riverboat dance and a square dance by the 6th grade, a Virginia reel by the 4th and a folk dance by the 1st and 2nd grade added to the festivities. The spirit of the Mason Centennial has certainly "caught on" at Saint James.

Williamston's Mardi Gras Mad, Merry and Marvelous

WILLIAMSTON - The mad, merry, marvelous Mardi Gras came to Williamston last Saturday night with around 200 gaily clad masqueraders attending. St. Mary's hall was the setting for the festival.

A huge dragon suspended above the center of the floor set the tone for the decorations, with balloons, confetti, crazy hats, flowers liberally arranged everywhere, and colored lights carrying it out.

Beatniks, bums and clowns were sprinkled among the costumed guests. Some enterprising individuals had made their own attire from gunny sacks. A French maid, a couple of English school mams, two astronauts, English queens, pioneers and Indians completed the ensembles chosen by the guests. Winning prizes for the best costumes were Lee Perkins with his elegant Louie XV attire and Angie LeMont with her chic gunny sack original. ## Merger Plan is Blocked WILLIAMSTON - Plans to place an annexation proposal on the spring election ballot were halted this past week when only six of the necessary ten property owners would sign the annexation petition.

Petitions were in regard to an area approximately 150 acres north of Williamston. There are 23 eligible voters in the affected area who could sign the petitions.

Property owners in the area have not been pleased with the lack of information on when the necessary changes in sewer and water connections would have to be made.

Mr. and Mrs. John McGoff, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Banwell and Mr. and Mrs. John Mahaney were the residents who signed in the area. Signatures were easily obtained on the petitions circulated in the city.

Robert Mitendorf, chairman of the advisory board, said the proposal has not been dropped and that an attempt will be made to schedule a special election.

Tri-County Planners Eye Water Study Financing

Alternative plans for financing a six-year $120,000 study of vital ground water resources in Clinton, Ingham and Eaton counties are currently being studied by staff members at the Tri-County regional planning commission.

The study was ordered by commission members at their February session in light of a suggestion by the Lansing Board of Water and Light that other water-supply agencies in the 3-county area participate in financing the project, since all would stand to benefit by the results.

Originally, plans for the survey called for the commission to pay $30,000, the Board of Water and Light $30,000 and the U.S. Geological Survey, the agency that will make the study, $60,000.

Executive Director Robert N. Young said a report on alternative financing plans is expected to be ready at a March 11 special session of the commission. Federal geologist K. D. VanLier, in a preliminary survey of the region, noted that nearly all of the industrial, municipal, and household water supplies presently are obtained from wells drawing on the ground water supply.

In the light of this factor, Young said that ground water resources will be of vital interest to the residents of the area as population growth causes demand for water to increase.

VanLier's report also indicated that as the need for water increases, there may be a need for construction of reservoirs on area streams to help replenish the ground water table.

Another item discussed at the February commission session was plans for a systematic survey of 5 percent of the households in the 3-county region, to be used as a basis for predicting the area's long and short-term needs.

Young said that the survey, which will begin in April, will provide a means of projecting the region's needs along the lines of transportation and public services. It will also provide data on economic factors and employment that will be valuable in assessing future growth in the region.

Commission members authorized Chairman Alan R. Dean to sign a contract with the National Analysis Company of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, which will direct the survey. It was pointed out that information collected during the survey will be confidential and not available to the public or governmental agencies. It will be placed on electronic computer tape, and the original cards bearing the data will be destroyed.

Also approved at the February session was a request for operating funds for the fiscal year 1966-67, which will be sent to the 3 county boards of Supervisors for approval. The commission noted that the $80,000 request is $5,000 more than they previously expected would be needed to carry out operations during this period, and said that a tremendous increase in requests for assistance from governmental units all over the region necessitated the additional funds. Young said that such requests have almost tripled during the past year.

Individual county shares for the commission would be: Ingham, $50,750; Clinton, $13,227; and Eaton, $16,023.

Blood, the Magic Fluid
Is in Short Supply

Contributions to the Red Cross blood bank by Mason area people are running behind the demand at Mason General Hospital.
In an effort to gain more volunteers for the next bloodmobile stop at Mason some facts on the need for blood and the Red Cross program are being communicated by the staff at Mason General. Here is the first of the series.
Webster defines blood as that fluid, usually red, circulating in the heart, arteries and veins of people and many animals.
Hospitals, doctors and nurses define blood as that magic fluid that has just never seems to be enough of or certain type is not available when it is most needed.

The normal human adult average weight has approximately 12 to 13 pints of blood in his body.
There are four main groups of blood—A, B, AB, and O.
The RH factor is an inherited substance in the red blood cells. It is present in approximately 85% of the population in the country.
Those who possess the factor are said to be "RH positive."
The 15% who do not possess it are type "RH negative."

When a person requires a whole blood transfusion he must have blood that matches his group, otherwise, the cells will clump and are said to be "incompatible."
Samples of the donor's blood and the patient's blood are first cross matched to make sure that they agree. If the cells from the donor's sample do not clump when added to the blood serum of the patient's sample, and vice versa, the bloods are compatible and a successful transfusion is possible.

Whole blood must be stored in refrigerators at a temperature level of from 4 to 6 degrees centigrade and under these conditions it may be kept for about 21 days.
If the blood has not been used in the 21 day limit it is returned to the Center and it is then turned into the derivatives to do the job that whole blood alone cannot accomplish -- such as gamma globulin to prevent measles, serum albumen to combat shock, fibrinogen to stop hemorrhage,

red cells to treat anemia, frozen plasma to treat hemo-philias and many more.
Whole blood helps to prepare patients for major surgery and to help speed their recovery.
Infants unfortunate to be born with a heart or blood defect depend upon this magic fluid called blood for their very lives.
Severely burned patients need this magic fluid to help carry them through their long convalescence.

The complications of childbirth also puts a large demand on that magic red fluid called blood.
Open heart surgery is now putting a very great demand on whole blood.
Blood used for open heart surgery must be obtained from the donor within 24 to 48 hours before surgery.

The age of the patient will determine the number of pints of whole blood needed for open heart surgery.
The blood is used in a heart-lung machine which pumps the donated blood through the patient's body while the delicate surgery is performed on his heart.

In addition to all these jobs, blood, by the action of its white cells, antibodies, and certain complex chemical substances, serves as a constant bodyguard against infections and other diseases.

Now in the light of modern knowledge, as blood is used by physicians to alleviate human sufferings, it is hoped that this magic fluid will be considered an instrument for saving human life.

Methodist Seminar
Visits Washington, D.C.

The Michigan Methodist Social Concerns Seminar to Washington during this last week completely erased the popular conception of "the Wonderful Wizards of Washington" sleeping at their desks.
The 14 departments sent speakers who were wide awake, concerned and well informed. The group felt that their opinions and needs were important; that it is an obligation to write their representative, Barber, from the defense department, considers it the duty of every citizen to devote 2 hours a week to being a citizen.

Norway, Sweden and Denmark are setting up a memorial to Dag Hammarskjold. Plans are for a peace keeping seminar for the training of U.N. members.
Contributions and more publicity are current needs.
Three views the world has accepted, without verbal laws are:
1-Thou shalt not commit nuclear war; 2-There shall be no conventional aggression; and 3-Thou shalt not move men and arms across international borders without permission.

Dr. Paul Morrison, formerly from Lansing Central, entertained the group. Since retiring, he is working harder than ever in the Foundry church, he faces tremendous inner city problems with towering apartment buildings and a nearby crowded racial area.

A visit to the Russian Embassy was exciting. They offered stacks of literature, which we were free to carry home. Potter's coffee house was visited late at night.
People were standing in line for the many varieties of coffee, cocoa, ice cream, and whipped cream mixtures offered on the menu.

Tours of the beautiful Washington building, the Smithsonian Institute and visits to the Senate,
House and Pentagon were highlights.

Those attending from Mason were Mr. and Mrs. George Fogle and Mrs. Ray Perkins.

Letters From Readers

Cookie Explanation

Because of the misunderstanding of the purpose for the Girl Scout cookie sale in the past years, we would like to remind the public of the importance of the sale.

First of all, if the parents will read the explanation in the folder the girls bring home more people will be informed. Even though each troop receives only 24 boxes, the Greater Lansing Council receives 18 3/4 boxes. This money is used for the improvement and maintenance of our camps, provide camperships for girls who otherwise would not be able to attend camp, and to keep fees at a minimum.

This is the only source of revenue for this purpose. Last year the Council netted $33,000.

The annual sale starts February 26. At this time the girls take orders and the cookies will be delivered between April 1 and 10.

Give Blood

There is not an adult living who sometime in their life has wondered why he was selected to be on this earth. I am giving you a perfect answer to your question by the giving to someone something you do not need but could mean life to another. . . It is a pint of your blood. I know many reasons and excuses why you do not think you can be available on Friday but now I want you to think if some member of your family needed blood to live if you would listen to the same excuses. Letters were sent to each Mason organization and now the outcome will be shown on Friday when the blood bank arrives. It will be in Mason, March 5 at the Presbyterian church from noon-6 p.m. Anyone between the ages of 18-60 may give. If you are 18-21 and not married you must have a parent's written consent slip. If for some reason you cannot give you are asked to contact someone who can. About a month ago I read an article in this paper about blood needed for open heart surgery and because this struck my family personally from year ago, I finally decided to offer a pint of my blood but found much to my regret I had waited too long because I have been ill for 3 years and they will not take my blood now. I do not feel lucky but sadly regretful that I had to wait so long before I could find the answer.

I talked to a mother in Mason whose daughter is undergoing such an operation as described in the article at Ann Arbor in April. They are waiting till April so their daughter will have her 5th birthday at home. The mother said they did not want sympathy but blood so such an operation could be performed and prayers for a successful operation.

I am begging and pleading with you through this article to give your share as part of this community to the blood bank of Ingham county. Please prove this is a community with a heart by showing your color and blood type Friday in Mason. I thank you ever so much.

Thar's Gold In Them Thar James Bond Film Replicas

Again starring Sean Connery as the indestructible Agent 007, the new Ian Fleming adventure uses America's celebrated

depository of gold reserves as the scene of the most ambitious robbery ever staged . . . in fact or fiction! Built at a cost of more than $100,000 this imposing movie version of the world's richest treasure house (reportedly 35 to 45 billion dollars worth of bullion is stored there) was created by art director Ken Adam, who also designed the pseudo-scientific subterranean laboratory of the villainous "Dr. No," first of the James Bond stories.

After months of negotiation with U. S. government officials in Washington, Adam was granted permission to visit and photograph the real Fort Knox near Louisville, Kentucky. He has reproduced the exterior of this impenetrable (but not in the movie!) storeroom with amazing accuracy . . . but the interior vaults are strictly the product of his imagination. Except for Treasury Department officials and security guards, no one has seen the gold vaults of Fort Knox. Even the president hasn't been inside.

Since no one will be able to contest the authenticity of his set, Adam has given the interior of Fort Knox the larger-than-life look essential to the story of the Technicolor film.

In dealing with known facts, however, Adam has been scrupulously honest. The individual gold bars with which he has decorated a visually exciting labyrinth of storage vaults are all the exact size and color of the 500 oz. gold bars used in international exchange. All are correctly stamped with the serial number and verified weight index by which each gold bar is registered before it is stored.

"We even had an accurate sample of the true weight of a gold bar," he says. "So the actors could gauge how heavy the props they were carrying were supposed to be."

Adam's gold bars were aluminum covered with a baked-on gold enamel. But stacked in the 45 billion dollar array they certainly look like the real thing in the Technicolor production directed by Guy Hamilton. Gert Frobe and Shirley Eaton co-star, and beautiful Honor Blackman is the new James Bond Girl.

Convenience

George Sanders, co-starring with Peter Sellers and Elke Sommer in "A Shot in the Dark," maintains a home in Zurich, Switzerland. Central to all Europe, Sanders finds that he can get quickly to any film making center in only about an hour's time by plane—and he home for weekends with his wife.

Blake Edwards directed the Mirisch Company's production which was filmed in Color by DeLuxe and Panavision.

Romantic

Laraine Stephens, making her film debut, is romantically teamed with star Clint Walker in "None But the Brave." Miss Stephens is the only American girl in an international cast which also stars Frank Sinatra, Sammy Jackson, Tony Bill, Brad Dexter, Tommy Sands and two top Japanese screen personalities, Tatsuya Mihashi and Takeshi Kato. "None But the Brave" was produced and directed by Frank Sinatra.

Kim Stanley Featured As Englishwoman In "Seance"

American star Kim Stanley is cast as a typical Englishwoman in the Artix release, "Seance on a Wet Afternoon." Reversing the Hollywood custom of importing foreign players and casting them as Americans, it is believed this is the first time a major starring role as a Briton in a British film has been entrusted to an American actress.

Written and directed by Bryan Forbes (of "The L-Shaped Room") and produced by Attenborough, "Seance on a Wet Afternoon" was the British entry at the Vancouver Film Festival, where it was enthusiastically received after garnering rave critical acclaim in London. Far from meeting with criticism in England, the casting of Miss Stanley as the British psychic medium in the story was hailed with superlative notices. One British critic averred that "her performance merits a dozen or more Oscars."

Again starring Sean Connery as the indestructible Agent 007, the new Ian Fleming adventure uses America's celebrated depository of gold reserves as the scene of the most ambitious robbery ever staged . . . in fact or fiction! Built at a cost of more than $100,000 this imposing movie version of the world's richest treasure house (reportedly 35 to 45 billion dollars worth of bullion is stored there) was created by art director Ken Adam, who also designed the pseudo-scientific subterranean laboratory of the villainous "Dr. No," first of the James Bond stories.

After months of negotiation with U. S. government officials in Washington, Adam was granted permission to visit and photograph the real Fort Knox near Louisville, Kentucky. He has reproduced the exterior of this impenetrable (but not in the movie!) storeroom with amazing accuracy . . . but the interior vaults are strictly the product of his imagination. Except for Treasury Department officials and security guards, no one has seen the gold vaults of Fort Knox. Even the president hasn't been inside.

Since no one will be able to contest the authenticity of his set, Adam has given the interior of

Letter From Sweden

To the Director of Nurses and the Staff of Mason General Hospital,

Maybe you'll be surprised to hear from me a person who might not even know, well, I promised to send you greetings from my country to my friends at the hospital in Mason, when I returned home last summer. Though it has passed a lot of time since I gave that promise, I am finally letting you hear from me. I was the Swedish exchange student at Mason senior high school last year. I was a senior girl scout during my year in Mason. Then I did also work for a scout badge as a candy stripper. I used to work on Monday afternoons and evenings—the same time as Margaret Clinton worked.

My American mother, Mrs. Glen Dunn, used to be at the reception desk as a Gray Lady at the same time. Do any of you remember me now? Well, I hope you do, because I do very often recall how much I enjoyed working with you!

Here at my Swedish home I don't have any work-paid or unpaid-outside school, except that I babysit as often as I can. At first when I was back from the U.S., I found school quite tough as I had forgotten most of my Swedish subjects. Now I have caught up with the other students and I am doing all right. Last month I passed my final school English exam—one year earlier than I actually needed to, but I felt I had learned the English I needed to and that I would hardly gain much more knowledge in this language at school. I decided to sit through the examination on which I was fortunate to get an A.

Right now I am having a week's vacation. I wanted to work but I couldn't get a job for such a short time, so instead I am now busy having fun.

The weather in the southern part of Sweden (where I live) is real warm and sunny—it almost looks like spring!

Yours, EVA

P.S. Dear Director of Nurses; I would be so happy and most grateful if you (or some of the nurses, who knew me real well) would write out some sort of certificate and send it to me, stating that I worked at your hospital about 3-4 hours a week (87 hours all together) and stating what sort of tasks to be performed; and if I did the things I was supposed to do satisfactorily, and if I was of any help. We don't have Candy Strippers in Sweden so you would have to explain what it means, just a simple note. A certificate like this would enable me to get a job at the hospital in our town and that is something I would very much want. I did very much like my work and the pleasant environment at the hospital in Mason, and I'd love a similar job. I would like to work on Sundays and on Easter, and perhaps also for the summer vacation.

If you can, and if you want to, and if you have any opportunity to, I would be so thankful and glad if you could send me this kind of a certificate.

With Kind Regards
EVA LIND.

Staff Sick List

The Fire Drill chairman met with the Disaster committee on February 9. The committee is in the progress of compiling a new disaster and fire drill manual.

The committee for the Employees Gift fund met February 10, in the hospital dining room.

New rules were set up for the year 1965.

Bessie Higgs is chairman and secretary. Committee members consist of Nancy Makley, Martha Maddix, Kate Larkins, Micky McKinney, Vivian Landis and Donna Stampfley.

An Institute on the control of infections in hospitals was held in the Rackham Bldg., at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, on March 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Doris Mickelsen and Katie Huber attended the institute on March 1st and 2nd and Dr. Cairns and Bob Reher attended on March 3rd.

Thank You

MANY, MANY THANKS,

To the "Entire hospital staff and Dr. Smith" for the excellent care our son, Randy, received during his recent illness. It was greatly appreciated.

Thanks again,
MR. & MRS. LEO HAYNES

Thank you for the lovely gift and for the wishes, too. I'm just as pleased as I can be. It sure was nice of you.

Thank you for the lovely nightgown and for the lovely duster and slippers.

BRENDA SWAN

I wish to thank all the employees of the kitchen for the lovely cards and the beautiful handkerchief I received when I was hurt.

Also I want to thank the other girls who sent me cards. My daughter, Donna Miller, and I appreciated the good care given Jacqueline Miller while she was in the hospital.

Thanks again,

Dear Peek-In,
I would like to express my appreciation to those of the hospital personnel who have patiently answered my questions, supplied the requested information speedily and completely, and therefor made my job much easier.

As Dr. Miller's "Official Keeper of the Records," Shirley Parker and I would like to say a special "Thank You" to the people who make out the examining room and emergency room reports and include the patient's name as well as the name of the patient. You have no idea how frustrating it is to keep adequate records in the proper place on "Becky Jones, age 3" with no other clue to her identity.

Thank you one and all! Such cheerful cooperation can't help but be beneficial to both you and us.

Sincerely Yours,
EUNICE RECHER

Dear Friends,
Thank you for the lovely card. Being a patient here has been a pleasant experience, thanks to all of you.

Sincerely,
DR. CAIRNS

Personnel,
I would like to thank every one for all they did to help me out while I was there. I'll never forget it or anyone.

A Patient,
DALE RINDFLEISCH

I want to thank you sincerely and tell you this, too: You're as nice as the many nice things that you do!

MRS. JACKIE CAIN

Dear All:
I want to thank you for the beautiful nightgown and especially the wonderful card I received at Mason General Hospital. It is certainly different being on the other end, but I think it is a good experience.

Thanks again
KRIS FRY

Farewell Party Presented

Brenda Swan was honored at a farewell party February 5 in the hospital dining room. Hostesses were employees from the housekeeping, laundry and C.S.R. departments.

Refreshments of cookies and coffee were served.

The employees of the hospital presented Brenda with a lovely housecoat, nightgown and slippers.

Brenda is enrolled in the Capitol Academy of Beauty school in Lansing and she is planning on finishing her course.

We all join in wishing her the best of luck in her new venture.

Flower Fund News

FLOWER FUND
We have finally organized our employee flower fund committee. If you have been missed since the first of the year, please forgive. We have tried to choose someone from each area of the hospital to be responsible for buying gifts or cards which ever might be in order. So please read the notice on the bulletin board near the time clock and see who has been chosen for your particular department. Then inform her of any illness or occasion. This way we hope no one will be missed and we'll have a happy 1965.

BESSIE HIGGS
Chairman
Flower Fund

Gifts were presented to the following employees from the flower fund during the months of January and February, Barbara Simpson, Dr. Clinton, Virginia Nemer, Emma Grimm, Shirley Brooks. Those who received cards were Kathryn Larkins, Mae Hill, Bob Newman, Ruth Robbins.

With the completion of installing the new wood doors to the patient rooms work has started to remodel the lobby. Space for office personnel will be made where the Gray Lady counter formerly was and the Gray Ladies will be relocated.

The flu bug finally caught up with the employees of the hospital. A large number have been off work a few days with the flu.

Doris Mickelsen and Gerlie Hills were presented a birthday cake on their birthday February 3, by Mabyn McKinney.

Several Practical Nurse students from the Community college in Lansing visited at the hospital recently. The girls toured the hospital and observed in the Physical Therapy department.

Briefs

What do you like about your job?
Many Mason area residents may be asked this question in the next few weeks by ninth grade Civics students of Mrs. Howard Schlichter and Mrs. Louis Stid. These students are in the midst of a vocations unit. The purpose of the study is to aid the student in making wise choices in his high school program.

The unit is made up of three parts. The first part consists of the pupil learning about himself. This is done in many ways. Hobbies are discussed and outside interests explored, with their possible relationships to jobs noted. Kuder tests and personality tests are given. The results are made into a bar graph or profile showing traits such as: working with ideas, working with people; avoiding conflict, computational skill, etc. Although the

The 2nd part consists of learning about the job. A week is spent in the school library doing research with special vocational materials, including special briefs from commercial sources as well as pamphlets from the Michigan Employment Security Commission and professional societies. Students note the training required and qualifications; the outlook for this job in the next ten years as predicted by the U.S. Government and the number employed in this job in Michigan, etc. They also read a book about someone in this work and interview a local person.

The third part consists of outlining a tentative schedule for the three years of high school. This schedule is carefully planned to prepare the student for the occupation he desires. Mr. Vaughn Snook and Mrs. Virginia Elliott, high school counselors, come to the Junior High to explain the courses of study to the pupils. Mrs. Schlichter and Mrs. Stid then interview each student again and go over their course of study with them.

Some of the most popular vocational choices this year in Mrs. Stid's classes are engineering, teaching and farming. First choice in Mrs. Schlichter's classes are teaching and coaching, nursing; an equal number chose engineering as choose to be mechanics.

There are 58 teachers in the Leslie school system. The board said it would determine salary negotiations for the 9 other teachers at the next meeting of the board.

The board also ordered an increase of $500 in the salaries of 3 no-degree teachers in the school system. This will bring their pay to within $500 of those holding degrees.

All teachers will receive a $400 a year pay increase with the exception of 3 whose salaries are still being negotiated.

The board also voted to put teachers on an indexed salary system when money is available. If the state money received is more than $30,000 officials said negotiations will be reopened and the additional money go into teacher salaries.

The board approved $5.45 to be paid teachers for extra-curricular activities such as coaching and drama instruction.

The meeting was marked by a 2-hour executive session of the board and the reopening of a controversy over the hiring of Robert VanDyke, a physical education instructor who was reprimanded by the board about a year ago for disciplining a student.

A delegation of parents and students favoring the rehiring of VanDyke attended the meeting seeking an answer from the board as to what action, if any, is planned in Van Dyke's case.

Members of the delegation were told that they could circulate petitions to determine public sentiment on whether or not Van Dyke should be rehired.

Francis Platt's Oliver Farm Fair will feature results of Oliver Corporation's "Growing Old" field demonstrations, a series of all-day field events held on farms near principal agricultural centers throughout the country by top officials of The White Motor company to demonstrate Oliver's new and improved equipment for 1965.

Lyon is Appointed Kaiser Jeep Dealer

The Used Car Mart has been franchised by Kaiser Jeep Sales Corporation to handle the famed "Jeep" family of vehicles and approved special equipment.

Signing of the franchise was announced today by Richard L. Lyon, owner of the new dealership, who said the firm will market the full line of "Jeep" vehicles and equipment in this area. The dealership also will offer complete parts and service facilities for the famed "go-anywhere" vehicles.

The dealership is located at 166 W. Maple street, Mason, Michigan.

The "Jeep" line of vehicles is designed to serve a wide range of purposes from six-passenger family service to the roughest kind of off-the-road hauling with gross vehicle weights up to 8,600 pounds.

Newest in the expanding line of "Jeep" vehicles are the all-new Wagoneer Station Wagons and Gladiator Truck series.

Both models offer advanced styling, driver comfort and improved roadability while retaining traditional "Jeep" ruggedness and versatility.

The four- and two-wheel drive Gladiator Trucks are available in two series, the J-200 with a 120-inch wheelbase and the J-300 with a 128-inch wheelbase. GVWs start at 4,000 pounds and range upward to 8,600 pounds for vehicles with dual rear wheels and platform stake bodies. Pickup boxes of seven and eight-foot lengths are offered.

"Jeep" Wagoneer Station Wagons, which feature passenger car ride, comfort and convenience, are available in either four or two-wheel drive and in two or four-door models. They have six-passenger seating capacity plus large cargo area on a wheelbase of 110 inches. Overall length is 183.6 inches.

Gladiator Trucks and Wagoneer Station Wagons are powered by the Tornado-OHC engine, first American heavy-duty automotive engine with advanced overhead camshaft design, which provides high efficiency performance and ease of service and maintenance.

The new Wagoneer and Gladiator models offer two "firsts" in the automotive industry, automatic transmission and independent front wheel suspension in combination with four-wheel drive. Independent front suspension is standard on two-wheel drive station wagons.

A new silent transfer case is operated by shifting a single, two-position floor-mounted lever which permits the shift from two or four-wheel drive to be made easily whether the vehicle is parked or in motion. Instrument panel lights indicate the position of the control lever.

Alternator equipment with an all-transistorized voltage regulator is standard in all models. Optional features include power steering, power brakes, rear power-lock differential, padded dash, safety belts and tinted windshield glass.

The new vehicles operate on regular fuel and a major chassis lubrication is required only at 30,000-mile intervals. Change of crankcase oil and oil filter is recommended at 6,000-mile intervals.

Other units in the famed "Jeep" line include three "Jeep" Universal models, the CJ-3B, CJ-5 and CJ-6.

Mason School Pupils Plan Job Survey

Junior High has no counseling rooms, Mrs. Stid and Mrs. Schlichter confer with each pupil individually and attempt to relate these traits to several occupational preferences. The students are also urged to take these profiles home and discuss them with their parents.

The 2nd part consists of learning about the job. A week is spent in the school library doing research with special vocational materials, including special briefs from commercial sources as well as pamphlets from the Michigan Employment Security Commission and professional societies. Students note the training required and qualifications; the outlook for this job in the next ten years as predicted by the U.S. Government and the number employed in this job in Michigan, etc. They also read a book about someone in this work and interview a local person.

Platt Plans Open House

Farm families from the surrounding area will be the guests of Francis Platt, Oliver farm equipment dealer at Mason, at an Oliver Farm Fair on Wednesday, March 10. The open house will feature a full line of the new Oliver farm machines for 1965, including the new models 1650 and 1850 wheel tractors with certified horsepower; and other implements for all farming operations.

Open to the general public, movies will be shown throughout the day, and drawings will be held for valuable door prizes, including a complete camera outfit, a TV table-top set, lap robe in a cushion-case, portable "no-coal" grill, early American picnic rack, and other home and outdoor items.

Gentlemen:
The City Council of the City of Mason wishes to inform you of its thinking on a site for the Community College.

We believe that the 60 acre site that has been offered in Delhi Township would be a desirable location.

This site would be readily accessible to any resident of the county. Most students attending the college will be using an automobile for transportation, regardless of the location. This location would be able to provide parking for the cars and would not have the traffic congestion of a more urban area.

Black Bardolier West Winds, grand champion Angus bull at the Michigan State Fair in 1961 again proved his value by stringing the first prize Get of Sire and the grand champion and highest selling at $2,000 at the recent Michigan State Futurity show and sale which was staged Friday and Saturday, February 26 and 27. The Get of Sire is comprised of 3 animals of mixed sexes all sired by the same bull.

Black Bardolier West Winds was the last son of the noted Black Bardolier of White Gates III who won his class at the International and sold for $25,000 as an aged bull. He is jointly owned by Michigan State University, West Winds Farm of Bath and Black Velvet Farms of Onondaga, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rae, where he now makes his home.

Wage-Hour Law Affects Farmers

FARMERS BEWARE! The Michigan Wage and Hour Act of 1964 has big shiny teeth in it for the farmer. Any employer of farm labor had best spend a lot of time becoming familiar with its provisions and their interpretations.

Among other things the act requires the employer to pay certain wage standards if he hires more than four people for periods in excess of thirteen weeks during a twelve-month period. He also will be required to carry workmen's compensation insurance on the employees.

So far, there has been no provision for setting up piecework standards in Michigan; however, some other states have set such standards, thus simplifying book-keeping required of the farmer. Housing standards for transients will be rather stringent and the farmer should expect them to be strictly enforced.

Present indications are that there will be no Mexican or other foreign transients available for farm labor this year. The U.S. Department of Labor has made it very plain that only emergency cases will be considered for certification for either Mexican or West Indies labor. Their field people have said that the farmer must prove his need before they will be considered as having exhausted all local sources of labor. In the meantime, what does the farmer do with crop rotting in the field? One small pickle processor was candidly told that he might have to go out of business for lack of labor.

At least one group which went into one of the "poverty pockets" of the South reports that they and the Labor Department were unable to recruit one busload of workers although they needed and wanted over five hundred. Not even a free winter trip to California and good wages could convince them to go. We wonder--do these poverty pockets really have very many "employables" in them?

From Everywhere They Come

I've had a preview of what I'm going to feel like when my daughter is married. I've just been through two piano recitals. Not by Glenn Gould, or Van Cliburn, or Artur Schnabel. No. By Hugh Smiley.

Marrying off your daughter must be just like it. A heady brew of emotion and exhaustion, bills and bouquets, that leaves you feeling like a caterpillar that has been run over, but not quite killed, by a tractor.

In short, you wind up absolutely flat, but rather proud that you're not dead.

The first recital was at the Conservatory, in the city. We picked the date six weeks before. And, boy, can we pick 'em. It was 18 below zero. And the humidity and wind gave it a discomfort index of 47 below.

The Old Girl was sick. Physically, mentally, spiritually. I was sick sympathetically. We figured 35 relatives, tried and true, and five friends to whom I owed money, would turn up.

Bless the human race, and all dear friends. We had 150 bodies in the place, straggling in, on such a night, from all over the country. Some made a round trip of 500 miles to hear the kid play.

It was a curious combination of characters in the audience. Basic were the relatives who live in the city, and their friends. They made up the two score we had expected.

But then they started to trickle in: old college friends; old fighter pilots; old weekly editors; my son's former public school principal; the chap who has the mortgage on my house; the fellow who handles my column; the orthodontist who straightens my daughter's teeth; a girl I hadn't seen since we went skinny-dipping at a beach party 20 years ago. And they all, bless them, brought their wives, and, or husbands, children and friends.

Last but not least came my sisters. One drove for six hours, in 20-below weather, with her daughter, to make it. The other came the same distance by train, with two kids. Neither knew the other was coming. Neither had seen the great artist since he was picking-up-and-kissing size.

It was heart-warming, to say the least. And I was a very proud father and husband, when it was over. A proud father because my son showed a poise and polish I wish I'd had at that age, and a competence I've never had at any age. A proud husband, because my wife had crawled out of what she claimed was her death-bed, to get there, and looked better than anybody, despite the facts that she's lived with me for 18 years, and coached the kid for ten.

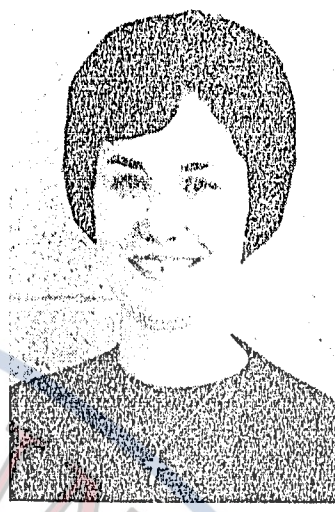

Next day at noon, we hiked for home, 90 miles, and went through the whole thing again that night. A recital in the home town. It was not 20 below, for a change. It was 30 below. But 500 people left their television sets, and shivered through the knifing night to hear my young virtuoso, as he doesn't like to be called.

What impressed me most about the whole weekend was the kindness of people. My sister-in-law wanted to hold a reception for the whole mob, in the city. Our neighbor insisted on making the sandwiches for the bash at home. Even my wife got carried away and told me, during one lapse, that I was a good husband and father, which shook me up a bit.

The only thing that's bothering me is the kid's attitude. One of my misguided friends sent him a bottle of champagne. A dear lady sent him ten bucks. And perhaps worst of all, he got a clutch of fan mail.

After the weekend, we had a heavy fall of snow. I told him to get out and shovel the driveway. I handed him a shovel. He handed it right back and asked, "How many fan letters did you get this week, Pops?" I shivered.
