Mason's Memorial Day Talks Stress Freedom

The freedom America cherishes and how its people again and again have been called to defend it successfully was stressed in Memorial Day addresses in Mason Monday. Judge Sam Street Hughes of the Ingham circuit court, himself a naval veteran of World War II, pointed out that each generation has been called upon to defend America from the Revolution through the years to today when American boys are fighting for freedom against communism in Viet Nam.

Judge Hughes devoted much of his remarks to a history of these wars: The Revolution when America won its freedom by England, the War of 1812 when America again was called to the colors to fight for freedom of the seas against England; the Civil War in which brother was pitted against brother in a bloody four years' struggle before the states were reunited again under one flag; the Spanish American war when we fought for the freedom of Cuba, a war which saw brother fighting with brother and wounds of the civil war healed; World War I which set the world aflame in which we fought to make the world safe for democracy;

then World War II when America and England fought for freedom against a fanatical Adolf Hitler and his Nazi legions; then Korea, a war against Communist aggression and now Viet Nam.

"We can do little for these men who have fallen in battle in the years past, but we can pay them the homage due them and in so doing show that they have not died in vain," he said.

Mayor Gilson Pearsall also touched on America's freedom and also had a message for the young people of today. "We are here today," he said, "to pay tribute to those men and women who have made the supreme sacrifice in order to preserve our form of government which has permitted us to become the greatest nation on earth, a nation that respects the dignity and the freedom of the individual.

In a special word to boys and girls and teenagers, the mayor said he admired them for taking part in the program, but pointed out that "you must understand in your own mind

'Mason's Dump Violates Law,' Robbins Says

Mason's open dump is in direct violation of a recently approved State solid waste disposal law, according to Russell Robbins, city council dump committee chairman.

Robbins attended a special meeting in Detroit last week and reported some of the things he learned there to the Mason city council at a special meeting Tuesday night.

"In Mason we are dropping our garbage into an old gravel pit with refuse settling on top of the water table, which feeds the city's water wells," Robbins said. "It is a wonder to me that the health department hasn't clamped down on Mason's dumping operations."

Mason will have to do something about this problem in the very near future and the alternative will probably be a sanitary land fill facility, he said.

"This would require quite a bit of land and ultimately a bonding issue," the councilman said.

Steps leading to the operation of a sanitary land fill are acquiring land, digging trenches some 30 feet wide and 4 feet deep. All sorts of refuse is dumped in the trenches and at the end of each day a thin layer of soil is pushed over the deposits. This is repeated each day with heavy dumping vehicles driving over the refuse compacting it.

Once the trench is full a heavy layer of soil is placed on top of the filled trench.

Robbins indicated that this method would take care of all types of refuse including tin cans, paper, garbage, and would be cheaper for the taxpayer than having refuse hauled commercially.

Mayor Gilson Pearsall named Councilmen Vaughn Snook and Loren Shattuck to help Robbins proceed with a study of a possible sanitary land fill area for Mason and to go ahead with plans and recommendations.

The committee decided to make a trip to Macomb county in July to observe that area's operation of a sanitary land fill.

Bloodmobile Is Looking For Donors

Everyone in Mason and the surrounding area is asked to mark Thursday, June 2, on their calendars as the day to donate life-giving blood.

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will be stopping in the city Thursday from noon to 6 p.m. at the First Presbyterian church.

Some 1,050 pints of blood of all types are needed immediately by area hospitals for emergencies. There was a constant drain on this area's blood supply over the week with Michigan's record toll of traffic holiday traffic injuries and deaths.

Ingham county also has a blood commitment it must meet every month, for American soldiers preparing to leave for Viet Nam and service men already in the country.

This region alone is asked to supply 750 pints of blood each month to be used for serum albumin, which is given for treatment of shock to soldiers in Viet Nam.

Anyone between the ages of 18 and 60 may donate blood on Thursday. Registered nurses and doctors are on hand at all times while persons are giving blood. Refreshments will be served to donors by the Mason General hospital Gray Ladies.

City Choral Groups Join For Concert

Members of the Mason junior high school choral groups and the Mason senior high school Girls' Glee club will unite in a concert at the senior high school auditorium Thursday at 8 p.m. Approximately 180 students will take part in the program. There will be no admission charge.

The program will be a musical profile of life in America, emphasizing the impact music has on each person throughout his life.

Warren Emrick, director of vocal music in the Mason schools, will direct the junior high mixed choral groups and Mrs. Karlene Astoloz will direct the girls' glee club.

Mason Farmer Injures Feet in Feed Auger

Chellis Hall, 61, of 3388 West Columbia road Mason, was critically injured Monday morning when both his feet were injured by a feed auger. Hall had been pushing feed into the machine when he apparently slipped and fell catching his left foot in the auger.

The farmer was working alone at the time of the accident. He managed to get his left foot free of the auger and shut the machine off, but in the process sprained and bruised his right foot.

It was some 30 minutes before Hall was discovered by his son Phillip, who ran to a neighbor's home for help. The injured man was then rushed to Mason General hospital by ambulance where his left foot was operated on and placed in a cast.

Members of the family indicated that Hall showed some improvement Wednesday, but had suffered a slight stroke on Tuesday which partially paralyzed his right side.

New Dump Hours

Dump hours will follow the summer schedule at the Mason city dump. The new schedule calls for the dump gates to swing open at 10 every morning and close at 8 p.m. on all days except Monday. There will be no dumping on Mondays.

Scout Fair Expected To Attract Thousands

Between 3,000 and 4,000 Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts of Chief Okemos council will be in Mason Saturday for the Blue Ribbon Scout fair at the Ingham county fairgrounds. Parents and other visitors for the show are expected to number into the thousands if past attendance at other scout fairs is any criterion.

At the 1964 fair in Lansing 12,000 to 15,000 scouts and parents attended.

The show will open at 1 p.m. and continue until 8 p.m.

The scouts will present continuous live scouting displays and demonstrations during the hours of the show.

Cub scouts will have their displays in the Commercial building, just north of the grandstand. Boy scout displays will be along the midway.

The groups will set up their displays Friday night and Saturday morning to be ready for the opening ceremonies at 1 p.m. in front of the grandstand. These ceremonies will include a cannon salute, flag raising and a welcome address by George Guerre, former Michigan State football great, who is chairman of this fair.

Members of Troop 62 of Mason will provide the official color guard for the opening ceremony.

The Mason Kiwanis club will handle the hot dog concession on the grounds.

Sheriff Kenneth L. Preadmore is handling arrangements for parking and his mounted sheriff's posse will be on hand during the show. Some 54,000 tickets to the fair are now in the hands of 121 scout packs and troops to be sold to persons desiring to attend. William Thacker, scout executive of the Okemos council which embraces Ingham, Clinton and Eaton counties, will be present for the day's activities.

Special Education Reviewed Thieves and Vandals Hit Mason Schools

The progress of special education in the Ingham Intermediate school district, was reviewed Tuesday night when about 20 interested citizens from all parts of the county gathered at the intermediate offices here to learn of the work being done to aid mentally and physically handicapped children.

Dr. David Haarer, director of special education in the Intermediate district read a report which covered the growth in numbers of type and classroom teachers, pupil enrollment, growth of trainable classrooms (Type B), growth of itinerant personnel and growth of pupils served by this personnel.

Itinerant personnel are special education teachers who work out of the Intermediate offices here and in Lansing, but spend their working hours with pupils in schools throughout the district.

In the 6 year period from 1959 through the 1965-66 school year pupil enrollment in Type A classrooms increased from 490 to 1,109. Type B or trainable classrooms in the same period were extended from 2 to 10 and pupil enrollment in this type classroom grew from 27 to 120.

Itinerant personnel in the Intermediate district outside Lansing increased from 17 to 31 and in Lansing from 23 to 46 for a total of 40 to 77. The growth in the number of pupils served by itinerant personnel in the 6 year period grew from 1,534 in 1959 to 2,345 in 1965-66 in the area outside Lansing. In Lansing the growth was from 2,106 to 2,860 or a total growth for the entire Ingham district from 3,640 to 5,225.

Thieves made off with several costly items from within the Alameda elementary school last Friday night. The break in was discovered by the school custodian Harold Ginter on Saturday morning.

Entry was gained by breaking classroom windows. Taken from the building was a 16 millimeter projector, fire extinguisher, 2 record players, play ground equipment, world globes, raided several classrooms and ruined the locks on the school's upright coolers located in the kitchen.

Vandals also entered another Mason district school this past week. They invaded the school kitchen where eggs were obtained and thrown about the hallways.

This type of vandalism and almost every other type have Mason police on the alert. Police chief Tim Stolz said Wednesday that during May there were 6 cases of vandalism reported.

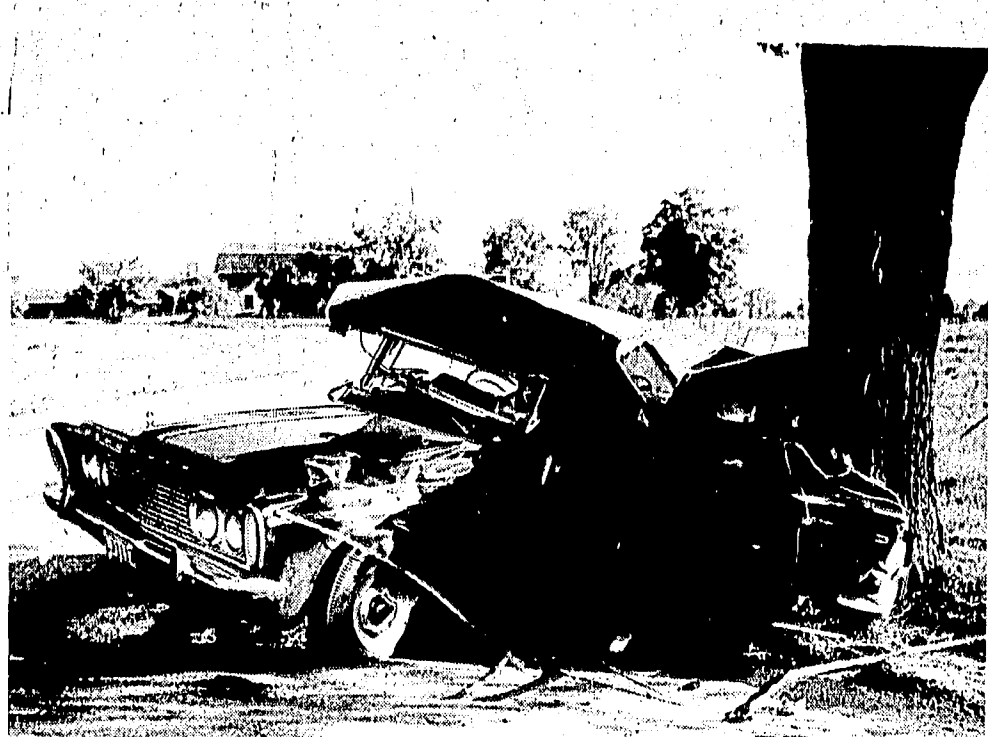

They included throwing stones through windows, destruction of rock gardens and smashed bird baths. Bicycle thefts during the month of May were also high.

Stolz reports that 7 bikes were stolen from garages and bike racks at schools.

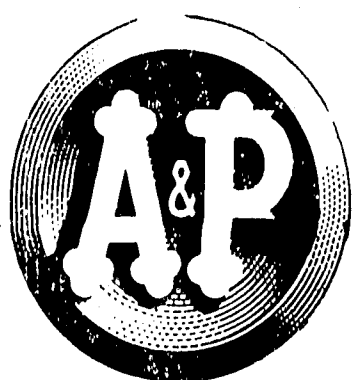

The chief also pointed out that many bicycles are being ridden here without being licensed. Licenses must be obtained for each bicycle at police headquarters.

Stolz has prepared letters to be sent to parents warning that their children's bicycles are not licensed and for them to apply for a license immediately. If this letter is ignored, he said, the bicycles will be impounded.

Stolz also complained that many young cyclists leave their bikes lying on the sidewalks in front of stores, endangering foot traffic. He said also bikes in the future will be impounded.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT—Forty persons were killed on Michigan highways during the long Memorial Day week end. This car was in a highway accident. It was not a fatal but could have been. The car was one of two involved in a collision at Howell and Stockbridge roads early on Memorial Day. Two men, John Shelby Hicks, 72, of Williamston and Richard Arthur Lang, 23, of Stockbridge are in Mason General hospital with serious injuries after their cars crashed at the intersection.

the purpose and history of this day."

He voiced a plea for patriotism and respect for our flag and for what it stands.

Police estimated about 1,500 persons filled the area around the courthouse to watch the parade and hear the program.

The parade began at 10 a.m., starting from a point on E. Oak street in front of the Junior high school. It moved east to Barnes, then north to Ash street and west to the Veterans Memorial plaque on the southwest corner of the courthouse square.

Frank L. Young, commander of the Brown-Cavender post of the American Legion opened the program after which Rev. Murl Eastman, pastor of the Mason Baptist church pronounced the invocation. Boy Scouts then recited the Pledge of Allegiance and the band played the national anthem.

Following Mayor Pearsall's remarks, Linda Hamlin placed a wreath on the plaque.

At the close of Judge Hughes' remarks the band played "God Bless America" and a firing squad company of members of the 8th Michigan Light artillery, a civil war buff organization, fired a salute. The squad was under command of Roy D. Donald.

The parade was a colorful affair with numerous flags, and uniforms of the marchers of the various organizations taking part.

It was led by a police detail which was followed by massed colors, the firing squad in blue-gray uniforms trimmed in red, the Mason high school band with high stepping majorettes attired in uniforms of red jackets and white skirts, the band in grey and black uniforms and wearing uniform caps topped by a white plume.

Behind the band came Explorer Scouts who marched behind a float, khaki clad boy scouts, cub scouts, green clad girl scouts and brownies.

Then there were 2 Mason fire trucks loaded with youngsters, followed by children on gaily decorated bicycles and a group of horse riders.

From the courthouse plaque the parade moved to the bridge on State street over Sycamore creek, where a salute to the naval dead was fired and Mrs. Kenneth Sheffer, tossed a wreath on the waters in memory of American seamen who died for their country.

From the creek, the parade then moved on to Maple Grove cemetery, where around the Veterans Memorial monument another ceremony took place. William Schwarzwelder, chaplain of the Brown-Cavender post of the American Legion, pronounced the invocation, the band played "America", and representatives of the American Legion, the Legion Auxiliary, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Disabled Veterans, Veterans of World War I and World War II auxiliary each placed a wreath at the foot of the monument.

The band then played "America the Beautiful", Lorraine Bateman, solo cornetist of the high school band, sounded taps and another Memorial Day passed into history.

WOMEN'S TALK--International Farm Youth Exchange student Iny Verboon of Brakel, Holland (right) and Mrs. Charles Brown of Hull road, Mason, have lots in common. Mrs. Brown is a homemaker and Iny is a home economics teacher in her country. Here they are discussing various American foods that are popular.

Holland Home Economist Is Visiting Mason Area

A young home economics teacher from Brakel, Holland arrived in Mason last week as an International Farm Youth Exchange student (IFYE). While here Clazine C. Verboon, who prefers to be called Iny, hopes to learn more about the American school systems and the American way of life.

Helping Iny to become acquainted with Mason and the people living here is the Charles Brown family of S. Hull road, Mason. Iny will be living with them for the next 2 weeks.

Her itinerary began in East Lansing on May 25. From Mason she will go to the 4-H club week at Michigan State university and then on to Muskegon and Tuscola counties. Iny will return home on July 25.

The 24-year-old teacher is a tall, attractive young woman who enjoys camping, swimming, reading, sports of all kinds, even volleyball.

What first impressions does Iny have of America?

One of the first things she commented on was the number and size of American cars. "I was very surprised at the very big cars here; in my country we have fewer and quite small autos, while here a small car is a novelty," Iny remarked.

"In Holland the only parking problems we have is with trying to find a place to put bicycles. One of the main forms of transportation in Holland is the street car."

Another thing Iny has found different is the way food is prepared and served. Holland salad dressings are limited to oil and vinegar, while one of the first things served to the IFYE student in Michigan was a salad with a sweet creamy dressing.

Such things as meat loafs, casseroles and food combinations are practically unheard of in the Netherlands. When a meal is served each vegetable, meat and salad has its own special place on the plate. Things are just not mixed together, she said.

4-H'ers in Michigan begin their club work at age 9 and continue on until age 18 or 19. In Holland club work is for the older youngsters. Their club work begins at age 18 or 19 and continues on until the members are about 28.

Iny's 3 weeks in Mason are sure to be full of activities. One such event will be to visit school and the Mason home economics classes where she will see how the subject is taught here.

A daughter of the Browns, Gloria, is now preparing for a trip to the Netherlands this summer. She will also be an IFYE student.

Throughout the day friends and business associates dropped into the office to congratulate Betty. A refreshment table complete with coffee, cake and snacks was set up for the visitors.

Some 25 years ago Mrs. Christian, then Betty Bateman, applied for a job as secretary to the late D.C. Dart and began work for the Dart Insurance company and the Dart National bank.

College Week for Women Is Scheduled at M.S.U.

July brings Independence Day, picnics, swimming, vacations and College Week for Women at Michigan State university.

College Week, a special adult educational program specially designed for Michigan's women, attracts 1,000 homemakers each summer for four days of study, lectures, special assemblies and speakers. This year it will be held July 26-29.

The 1966 program will emphasize woman's role in government. Featured speaker will be Mrs. Martha Griffiths, Michigan's congresswoman. At another evening assembly a panel discussion by legislators, lobbyists and news reporters will be presented.

Some classes offered at College Week are aimed at helping women understand their government. "An Overview of State and Local Government in Michigan" and "You Can Beat City Hall" are two examples.

Others closely related deal with the history of Michigan, citizenship and international developments.

The overall program of classes is designed to present information for Michigan women concerning home and family life, leadership training, personal development and enrichment, community improvement and international understanding.

The week's program also includes special tours of the university campus. As in the past, homemakers attending the entire program may stay on campus in one of the dormitories if they don't care to commute. Thursday has been designated visitors day for those who can attend only one day.

Two Michigan waterways, the Detroit River and the shipping canal at Sault Ste. Marie, rank first and second respectively, as the world's busiest waterways.

A little garnish can make a big difference, say dietitians at The University of Michigan Medical Center.

A sprig of parsley and a dab of mayonnaise are as necessary to food as smart accessories are to clothes.

The importance of garnishes has been passed down through the centuries. Ancient Greeks dressed up many of their dishes with parsley. Paprika has been in use since early travelers discovered this herb in India. Sweet bay flavored medieval soups and wines while its leaves were used as a garnish because of the sweet smell.

Garnishes may add color, design, flavor, or a bit of dash to a plate, say the U-M food specialists. Toastpoints, cranberries, or egg slices spruce up even the plainest foods and may stimulate digestion.

Eye appeal is a big factor in food appearance. Garnishes should be colorful and create an interesting picture, but they should also be edible.

Garnishes help to create a variety of textures in food. Fresh spinach topped with bacon bits has a texture appeal.

DaVinci Was Ahead of His Time

The inventive genius and foresight of Leonardo da Vinci, who conceived of the flying machine and other developments that did not take practical form until modern times will be depicted in an exhibition opening Monday, June 6 in the Downstairs Galleries at the Lansing Public Library, 401 S. Capitol avenue.

The exhibition of the 15th-century artist - scientist's work, on loan from the Department of Arts and Sciences of International Business Machines corporation, includes 21 models built from Leonardo's scientific and technical drawings. It will remain through Saturday, July 2.

The Galleries will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday; also from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, June 12.

Models in the show include both practical and theoretical devices. Among them are a paddle-wheel ship, an idea that was not successfully developed until the advent of steam power in the 19th century; a theoretical gear system that produced three speeds of rotation, as in the modern automobile transmission; and a device for determining the tensile strength of wire, information as essential to the engineer five centuries ago as it is today.

Leonardo was fascinated with the possibility of human flight, and devised many schemes for flying machines, including ornithopters--whose principle support and propulsion comes from flapping wings. A model of an ornithopter in the show follows an early design calling for a lattice-like wooden framework, two movable wings, a series of ropes and pulleys and a windlass. This was to be operated by the flyer, lying prone in the framework.

Although Leonardo considered war "a bestial madness," he was one of the leading military engineers of his times, and made innumerable sketches for fortifications and weapons. Models in the show include an armored tank, in which he foresaw a type of vehicle not extensively used until World War I, and a scaling ladder that resembles modern fire-fighting apparatus, but which Leonardo designed for storming the walls of an enemy fortress.

As a scientist and engineer, Leonardo was always concerned with accuracy and measurement, and the show includes models of his designs for a hygrometer for measuring humidity, an anemometer for measuring wind velocity, and an inclinometer for determining the degree of a slope.

The first set of models of Leonardo's work constructed in contemporary times was built in 1938 for an exhibition in Milan, Italy. It traveled briefly, and during World War II was completely destroyed by bombs in Tokyo. Another group of models, built in the United States after the war, was acquired by IBM in 1951 and incorporated into the company's touring exhibition program.

Recently the exhibition has been completely redesigned. The models, painted red, yellow, blue and green, are displayed with panels of explanatory material and sketches reproduced from Leonardo's notebooks. Other panels bear Leonardo's sketches in such fields as mathematics, optics, astronomy, botany and city planning.

Four of these exhibitions are now touring the country, on loan to museums, colleges, libraries and other educational and civic institutions. They are part of a touring exhibition program that includes both art and science shows.

everyone's name on their routes, so it is not too difficult to spot a wrong address.

When one carrier finds a wrong address he tosses the piece of mail into a slot. Others do the same. When all the mail has been sorted, the mail is taken out of that slot and announced. Then the carrier on whose route the letter or parcel belongs takes it and adds it to his delivery.

The same procedure is followed when mail marked merely "RFD" appears in the sorting.

"One big problem we have is from persons who move in to a rural area from a large city," Stubbett said. "They feel it is unnecessary for their friends to include the street or road address when sending them letters. So we get mail addressed merely to Mason, Michigan. This requires some research but we usually find the correct address. When we cannot, it is sent back to the sender." Stubbett said the zip is being used more and more as people begin to learn of its value in the quick dispatch of mail.

There are some instances where routes of 2 carriers join. Such a case is on a one mile strip along Onondaga road. Route 1 comes south along Onondaga serving patrons on the west side of the road. Route 3 runs north and serves patrons on the east side. Another instance is on Okemos road. Route 4 covers all of Okemos road between the Mason city limits and Jolly road with the exception of a one mile strip between Harper and Lamb roads, which is served by Route 3.

There are 2 foot and one mounted carriers serving Mason proper. The foot carriers are C.V. Post and Bill Schwartzwelder. The lunk carrier is Bob Clucci.

Mrs. Helena Norton To Be Retiring Soon

Mrs. Helena Norton, consultant for programs of the mentally handicapped in the Ingham Intermediate School District, will retire June 17 after contributing many years of service to handicapped children and youth in Michigan.

Her educational career includes experience in elementary and secondary teaching, principalship, teaching mentally handicapped children and functioning as a consultant in the areas of the mentally handicapped in Ingham county. She has addressed herself to many civic groups and interested citizens in behalf of handicapped youth.

"Mrs. Norton was born Helena A. Hyney on a farm near Lennon, Shiawassee County, Michigan. She attended elementary school at Lennon after which her parents moved to another farm near Durand where she completed high school.

She attended Michigan State Normal college at Ypsilanti, now Eastern Michigan university, from which institution she received a life certificate and later an A.B. degree, majoring in history and math. She received a master's degree in special education in the area of the mentally handicapped from the University of Michigan.

Her teaching career began in the rural schools of Shiawassee County. After receiving the life certificate she answered a call from Muskegon to serve as teacher in their continuation school program. Later she taught in the junior high school in Mt. Clemens, Dr. J.W. Sexton, then superintendent of Lansing schools, invited her to teach social studies and math at Pattengill Junior High School in Lansing.

Her teaching career was interrupted by her marriage to William C. Norton, then head of the commercial department at Pattengill Junior High. After his death in 1936 she returned to teaching, this time working in the area of the mentally handicapped. She taught children in Type A classrooms in Lansing schools for 23 years.

She was retired in 1960. However, on the day school closed in Lansing she signed a contract to serve Kent county as a consultant in the area of the mentally handicapped. Her home and interests being in Ingham county, she joined the staff of the Ingham Intermediate School District in 1961 as Type C teacher consultant, and later she was lifted to the role of consultant in the area of the mentally handicapped.

Mrs. Norton has two sons, Lester, who has taught math for ten years at Sexton High School in Lansing but who next year will go to Saranac as principal of their high school, and Francis, who taught history and was counselor in the Garden City High School but currently is admissions counselor at Wayne State University.

Our Readers Say:

Opposes Radio Tower

It is likely most persons reading the notice of the Public Hearing by the Vevay Township Zoning Board advertised in this paper realize its importance; importance to the city of Mason and Vevay Township. At this meeting the discussion pro and con will help to inform your zoning board so they may carry out the wish of the people in their township.

At this meeting I feel you in Vevay should oppose the rezoning of the following described land from farm to "C" Commercial Zone:

Beginning at a point 40 rods West and 20 rods South of the Northeast corner of Section 22, thence South 200 feet, East 200 feet, North 200 feet, West 200 feet to beginning.

If this parcel of land is rezoned the owner intends to erect a 220 foot radio broadcasting tower which would be directly in the southeast corner of the flying pattern of the only airport serving our community, Jewett Airport. Traffic at airport is steady. There have been several Sunday morning Dawn Patrol breakfasts held here with good attendance. When Mr. Jewett had an instructor in attendance many persons were taught the art of flying, especially after the war under the federal aid to the G.I. boys. Federal aid in the future would be refused on some projects where objects are as hazardous to flying.

There are many who think roadside trees should be removed for safety's sake. Why not turn out and express our opinion June 8, 1966 at 8:00 P.M. at the Vevay Town Hall to remove this tower before it becomes an air hazard.

Memorial Day Flaw

Yesterday I stood and watched the memorial service on the court house lawn. In spite of the solemnity of the occasion, I couldn't help being awed by the beauty expressed around the service. The perfection of the chestnut tree in blossom and the red maple close by, the shining honor roll so thoughtfully polished by the small Boy Scout, the fine music furnished by the high school band; even the clearness of the sound system this year.

It also came to mind the unselfishness and the thoughtfulness of those who gave their time in arranging and participating in the program to honor our war dead. I wondered if we were really grateful and deserving of our nice peaceful, comfortable little community, made possible by the sacrifice of those lives we were honoring.

Then came the clown act and I knew we were not.

A young man, with complete disregard for the safety of the onlookers and those participating in the parade, causing his horse to buck and kick through the whole downtown area, turning a memorial parade into a one-man show of a "Smart-Aleck's" ability to stick on a bucking horse. Next came a small burro with an extra large cowbell tied between his back legs and a large strap brought low around his hips. This followed by a grown, married man on a horse, strapping the small burro for his slowness in keeping up with the others, due to the strap and discomfort of the banging, clanging bell, tied on by this responsible man with his warped sense of humor. This man, by the way, rents horses to your children to ride.

Perhaps it is fitting that this display of disrespect and thoughtlessness for the feelings of others - both animal and human - appear in our midst to alert us and keep us from falling asleep in our nice, comfortable community. After all, isn't thoughtlessness and disrespect for the feelings of others the real basic cause of war?

I hope the parents, wives and sweethearts of those who sacrificed their lives will realize that the community really is grateful for what they did. Gratitude is such a very, very small thing for us to give.

Publication Available

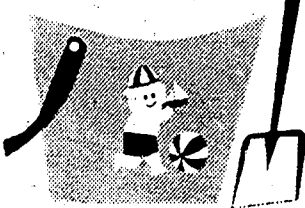

Home gardeners will find many helpful hints in the new Michigan State university bulletin "Home Vegetable Garden." Garden procedures such as planting with recommended varieties, successive plantings with use of different varieties to extend the harvest season are discussed along with the proper planting and harvesting dates.

According to R. C. Lott, Ingham county Extension Agricultural Agent, gardeners not familiar with the large number of vegetable varieties will find the charts on recommended vegetable varieties and vegetable planting dates very useful.

Of special interest to gardeners is the recommendation for control of diseases and insects harmful to garden plants. Proper use of chemical sprays and dusts make the control of these pests much easier. Precautions are also listed to prevent possible injury to persons or animals. The home gardener will find more helpful information in the MSU Bulletin 529, "Home Vegetable Garden," which can be obtained from the Ingham county extension office at Mason.

According to Survey

Dairy Herds in County
Are Steadily Declining

Numbers of dairy cows and dairymen in Ingham county are steadily decreasing according to a recent survey conducted by the area Michigan Artificial Breeders corporation technicians, Jim Mulvaney, county extension dairy agent and Jack Selter, fieldman for the MABC.

It was determined that in the county there are some 386 dairy herds that have a combined total of 12,330 cows. Of this number of herds some 121 herds are composed of less than 20 cows.

"Of the dairy farmers talked to, many of the small and medium-sized dairy farmers were seriously thinking about eliminating their herds within the next few years," Mulvaney said.

The survey shows several indicators of the extent of dairy cow decrease in Ingham county. Another source is a complete list of milk shippers compiled by the State Department of Agriculture each spring for purposes of the Brucellosis ring test.

According to this report, the number of dairymen shipping milk declined from 550 in early 1964 to 477 in 1965. Since that time dairy herd losses have been even more substantial according to the extension agent.

Ingham county reflects the decline that is evident all over the state of Michigan and the mid-west during the past few years. It is a fact that in Michigan the number of milking cows, according to the census data, has dropped from 900,000 cows in 1959 to less than 600,000 in 1964.

The MABC technicians, Charles Brown of Mason, Lloyd Pearson of Williamston, Ralph Kelly of Leslie, and Gerald Runciman of Stockbridge, sat down jointly to determine the exact number of dairy farms now in the county and how many cows are being milked.

Each technician surveyed his own townships. The results were further checked out with dairymen in various areas of the county. The results are as follows:

Township	Dairy Farms	Cows
Alaledon	29	1036
Aurelius	34	1011
Bunkerhill	15	363
Delhi	13	382
Ingham	25	507
Lansing	2	65
Leroy	47	1440
Leslie	32	1095
Locke	27	903
Meridian	3	123
Onondaga	27	899
Stockbridge	29	769
Vevay	19	826
Wheatfield	25	918
White Oak	43	1374
Williamston	16	621

Less than one-third of these dairymen use the Dairy Herd Improvement association production testing service. About 70 percent of the cows are bred by MABC.

Swine Marketing Plans
Start Before Breeding

The hog producer who thinks all he has to do is to watch or listen to the daily fluctuations of the hog market to sell his swine wisely, is badly mistaken, says R. C. Lott, Ingham county extension agricultural agent.

Hog marketing begins before the farmer breeds his sows or gilts. The decision must be reached then on the kind of hogs he hopes to market, how many he expects to sell and where the best outlet will be.

Shipped Hay
Fumigation
Is To Begin

Hay shipments outside the cereal leaf beetle quarantine area must be fumigated starting June 1 to prevent spread of the grain croppest, according to C. A. Boyer, chief of the Michigan Department of Agriculture plant industry division.

The quarantine area is all of the southern half of the lower peninsula as well as northwestern Ohio and northern Indiana.

Four fumigation stations have been established for convenience of hay dealers and haulers. They are located at Plainwell, Birch Run, Erie and Jonesville. After treatment with the chemical methyl bromide, a cereal leaf beetle certificate will be issued for the hay shipment.

The hauling restriction will be in effect on hay until January 15, 1967.

Michigan, Indiana and Ohio are involved in a war on the destructive beetles, imported to the United States from Europe. Recently the Michigan Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Department of Agriculture cooperated in aerial treatment of about 800,000 acres of beetle-infested fields in ten counties in southwestern Michigan.

Michigan's quarantined area is roughly south of a line drawn from Standish to Pentwater. According to Boyer, marsh hay and straw may be hauled without fumigation until July 1.

In other words, to be effective in marketing wisely, the hog producer must choose the breeding stock and plan a production system long before he herds his animals into the yards to complete the sale.

The wise hog man must make a guess about the kinds of meat the retailers or consumers will prefer 8 to 12 months after he breeds his gilts or sows.

The good hog raiser must figure the premium that buyers will pay for quality hogs and determine whether or not his facilities, fee, sires and gilts or sows can produce the top quality.

Selection of meaty hogs is the first step. Michigan State university extension swine specialist Ed Miller says there are "meaty type" swine in every breed. Most often there is more difference within breeds than there is between breeds.

Most swine men feel that cross-breeding produces more vigor, but few believe it improves carcass quality or meatiness.

A planned program of gilt selection in a commercial swine operation is important. Among these steps: Ear-notch gilts in litters from which you expect to select replacements. Feed gilts in finishing pen and remove them from finishing ration at about 200 pounds. Weigh gilts at the time to check growth rate.

Select gilts for soundness, meatiness, substances underline, length, feet and legs and general conformation.

Select gilts with less than 1.25 inches back fat by using a probe.

In picking a boar you can make the biggest improvement. If you can buy a boar that is littermate to pigs on test in the swine evaluation station, you will be money ahead even though it may cost you extra dollars.

A tested boar lets the producer know about the sire which accounts for about three-fourths of the quality of the pigs.

Remember length of carcass is 60 percent hereditarily. After boars and gilts or sows are selected, be sure you manage the animals through the gestation period to get the biggest, healthiest litters.

But all of the management decisions after the pigs arrive are of little value if the proper precaution was not taken in selection of a top quality boar and good gilts or sows for breeding purpose.

Blackbirds Are Pests
To Michigan Farmers

There's a farmers' society down near Fremont, Ohio, called "Bye, Bye, Blackbird" which is being watched closely by Michigan farmers. It's dedicated to halting the population explosion in blackbirds.

Blackbirds are getting in the hair of Michigan growers who strive to keep supermarket shelves filled with good things to eat. And many of these growers are true bird lovers. "You can just carry a good thing too far," one Monroe county corn grower said recently. Hordes of blackbirds, hundreds of thousands in a flock at times, descend upon Michigan fields to feast. One quick lunch for a greedy flock may wipe out a year's effort and investment for a helpless farmer.

The whole world is excited about human population control, but bird controls are being neglected, said C. A. Boyer, chief of the Michigan Department of Agriculture's plant industry division. Along with farmers, Boyer recommends research aimed at keeping birds from eating people out of house and home. The troublesome flocks are made up of grackles, starlings, cowbirds and red-winged blackbirds.

Weed Control
Bulletin Is Available

Weeds reduce crop values for the United States an estimated 4 to 5 billion dollars each year. This is greater than the losses caused by diseases and insects combined. Weeds compete with crop plants for water, nutrients and light. They also harbor insects and diseases, and generally reduce yields and crop quality.

According to R. C. Lott, Ingham county extension agricultural agent, a recently revised bulletin brings up-to-date the measures now being used for chemical weed control in horticulture in Michigan.

The safe usage and the limitations of the chemicals are discussed with the safe application and storage practices. The grower should take special care and read directions to prevent possible injury to persons, crop plants and animals.

Further information is available in the MSU Extension Bulletin 433 "Chemical Weed Control for Horticultural Crops." This publication can be obtained from the Ingham county extension office at Mason.

The Michigan Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Department of Conservation, Farm Bureau and other farmers' groups, the cooperative extension service and others are concerned. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife service has assigned a biologist, Dick Smith, to this work in Michigan and Ohio.

Problem areas in Michigan are concentrated near the Monroe and Saginaw marshes, which offer nesting cover for blackbirds. The Grand River basin and the western Michigan fruit belt are also hard hit—often by migratory flocks as well as the locals.

According to biologist Smith, landowners in Ohio have invited gunners for blackbird shoots. Generally though, these make little dent in the population.

"In Asia and Italy, blackbirds are considered a delicacy," said Smith when asked about the edibility of four- and twenty blackbirds baked into a pie. While grackles, cowbirds and red-winged blackbirds are protected under the migratory bird laws, they may legally be eaten if killed while causing crop damage, he added.

Launsteins Try
New Method

Alvin Launstein and his son Ray of S. Zimmer road, Williamston, are trying something new this year while planting their 300 acres of corn.

A system of hoses connected to the plow and a tank mounted on the tractor enable the Launsteins to apply anhydrous ammonia simultaneously during the plowing operation.

The fertilizer is kept under pressure in liquid form and is applied to the soil just before the furrow is turned over. Ingham county farmers have up until now plowed, disc and planted their corn before putting on the fertilizer between the rows.

Because the planting season is so late and because many farmers are trying the new narrower row planting, this new method of fertilizer application may become more popular.

There are disadvantages to the early fertilizing method too. Ray says to combine the plowing and fertilizing operations slows down the plowing job somewhat. He also indicated that keeping the hoses in repair is also another item which requires attention.

This all in one operation is practical because with narrower corn rows it may damage the corn crop somewhat by trying to apply the fertilizer after the corn has sprouted. Also there is a savings in wear and tear on nitrogen applicator knives.

The tank on the tractor holds enough liquid to cover 9 acres while the storage tank contains approximately 2 tons of liquid fertilizer.

Jail Terms
Handed Out
To Area Men

Two Ingham county men drew jail and prison sentences in circuit court last week.

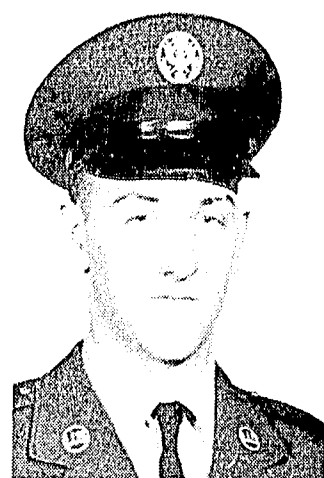

Judge Sam Street last Friday sentenced Thomas V. Hurley, 42, of Mason to 65 months to 10 years in prison. Hurley had pleaded guilty May 6 to a charge of obtaining $500 worth of fertilizer under false pretenses last March 28 from the Stockbridge Elevator company.

Judge Marvin Salmon sentenced Frank W. White, 43 of Leslie to 6 months in the Ingham county jail. White had pleaded guilty April 29 to a charge of larceny from a Leslie bar.

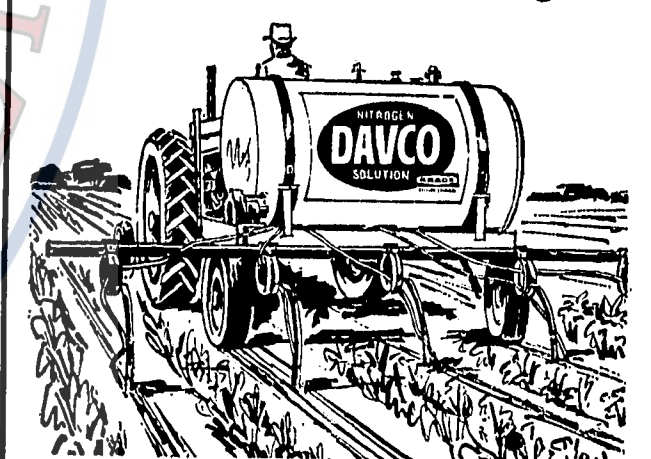

20,699 Ingham
Persons Get
Social Security

A total of 20,699 persons in Ingham county received a total of $1,692,287 in social security monthly benefits in 1965, Roger W. Seamon, Social Security District Manager in Lansing, revealed this with an increase of $228,205 and 1,103 people over the year before.

"In addition to the person who began getting benefits in 1965 because of social security," Seamon continued, "a good many older persons who, upon applying for Medicare, found they were eligible for regular social security benefits, too."

IN SERVICE—Airman 3rd Class and Mrs. Robert C. Brown of Mason will be stationed in Washington, D.C. He is a 1965 graduate of Mason high school. He enlisted March 18, 1966 and received his basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

APPROPRIATE SETTING--Dedication ceremonies for Woldumar, a section of undeveloped rural land to be used for conservation-educational uses began with a fired salute by Haslett frontiersmen. Presiding at the service was Len Stutman, representative of the Natureway Association to which Mrs. Gladys Olds Anderson (far left) gave the parcel of land.

Educational Nature Acreage Dedicated

A dream of years materialized last week when a new 160-acre outdoor conservation-educational area located along the Grand River southwest of Lansing in Eaton county was dedicated.

Acreage was deeded to the Natureway association, a private conservation group. Mrs. Gladys Olds Anderson of Lansing gave the property for conservation and educational uses of students in Ingham, Eaton and Clinton counties. It will be called Woldumar.

Representing Mason schools at Woldumar was M. Chandler Nauts, superintendent of schools; Howard Oesterle, principal of Cedar street school; and Walter McIntosh, principal of Steele street school. Alton Stroud, superintendent of Ingham County Intermediate schools, also attended.

A sixth grader from the Cedar street school, Sandra Crandall of Eden attended the service on behalf of all Mason students. She was selected because of her exemplary interest in natural science.

Opening the dedication ceremony was a gun salute by 5 frontiersmen. Speaking briefly on the attributes of the facility and what some of its uses would be were Len Stutman, television personality; Mrs. Anderson; Rev. Father William Meyer, superintendent of schools, Catholic Diocese of Lansing; Charles Harris, deputy director of the Department of conservation; Wendell Anderson, superintendent of Eaton county intermediate schools; and Robert Copland, a Haslett school principal.

About 500 persons were on hand for the dedication and the tree planting ceremony planned as a part of Michigan Week's education day.

The land is available for conservation and educational programs. Already a series of classes for teachers is scheduled to begin July 20. Some $33,000 in federal aid has also been acquired by the Nature Way association to be used for the development.

Referred to as the Outdoor classroom, students will be able to supplement the knowledge gained from books and school with excursions to the nature area.

Grain Crops Behind Growing Baby Crop

"We are losing the race between the grain and the baby crop," a noted professor of food science and geography said Friday evening at Michigan State University.

The hungry world is growing twice as fast as the well-fed part, said Dr. Georg Borgstrom as he delivered MSU's Centennial Review Lecture of 1966.

"If we cannot bridge this quickly widening and steepening hunger gap," he added, "we face a cataclysm which may not be the end of the human race, but will gravely jeopardize all we associate with humanity."

Dr. Borgstrom noted, "The imminent food crisis will dwarf and overshadow the issues and anxieties which now attract attention, such as nuclear weapons, Communism, space prestige, racial tensions, unemployment, Vietnam, China, Congo, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, and Cyprus."

He is a recognized authority on world food resources and their utilization, food freezing, and frozen food bacteriology. Prior to joining the MSU staff in 1956, Dr. Borgstrom was an academician in his native Sweden where he organized and headed consecutively two major food research institutes.

Mass starvation, Dr. Borgstrom told his audience, may engulf a major portion of the globe by the mid 1970s.

"Our greatest fallacy," Dr. Borgstrom noted, "lies in our poor concept of the magnitude of the crisis. Do we realize that China has more children than the total U.S. population?"

Dr. Borgstrom pointed out that by 1980 Latin America, even with birth control, will have 200 billion more people, and another 200 million by the turn of the century.

Despite big grain deliveries to the hungry, the Western world (North America and Western Europe) is still largely "parasitic" according to Dr. Borgstrom. Containing one-third of the world's population, these areas consume two-thirds of the world's available food, Dr. Borgstrom noted.

"A new global trade pattern is urgently needed," he said.

"We in the Western world not only have greater soil and water resources, but we are intruding on the meager subsistence basis of this other world. Hundreds of millions in the tropics are forced to shrink their food production for the raising of groundnuts, cotton, bananas, coffee, tea, cacao, etc. for export to acquire foreign currency."

The need for a crash program, Dr. Borgstrom said, is long overdue. Population control and the production of more food are equally indispensable to solving the problems, he added.

"Even with effective birth control," according to Dr. Borgstrom, "we will in this crucial century have a formidable board-and-lodging problem, with at least 3,000 million more people to cater for--twice the present number."

History, Dr. Borgstrom said, may describe the current decade as the "sobering sixties" which put an end to the rhetoric and laid a more solid foundation for man's future. Science and technology would then be mobilized for great new endeavors to the benefit of all mankind and in support of the only war mankind still can wage, that of human survival. Our future is at stake in this very century and food is the key issue."

Price Support Programs Are Told for 1966

In reply to recent inquiries, Frank Light, Chairman of the Michigan ASC State Committee, announced today that Price Support Programs would be in effect in Michigan on 1966 crops wheat, oats, barley, rye, soybeans, grain sorghums, honey, dairy products and dry edible beans.

He added that varieties of dry edible beans generally grown in Michigan that are covered by the Price Support Program are the Michigan pea bean, dark red and light red kidney beans, pinks, pintos, and small reds.

Light explained that price support operations are carried out through loans, purchases and in some cases direct payments to producers.

Price support loans to producers are nonrecourse, he added, with this type of loan producers are not obligated to make good any decline in the market price of the commodity put up for collateral. Light stated that county support rates for most grain crops will be announced within the next week or 10 days. Support rates have been already announced for 1966 crop oats, dry edible beans, and honey. He added that in the case of dairy products price support operations are carried out through contracts with processors.

He also mentioned that approximately 500,000 bushels of 1961-crop corn under reseal loans in Michigan were being called because of the export needs and other commitments of the Commodity Credit Corporation for additional stocks of corn.

Light reminded producers that when the 1961-crop loans were authorized for resale last year it was with the provision that the Department might have to call the loans prior to the July 31, 1966 maturity date.

He added that producers will have the option of repaying their loans plus interest. In which case, the producers could use the corn for what ever purpose they wish. However he noted that where producer wish to retain the 1961 corn on the farm for later feeding, they could purchase the corn under a special purchase program.

The price would be comparable to the local market price for similar quality corn but not less than the minimum price established for each location. Where producers neither wish to redeem their loans or will need the corn for their feeding operation, delivery instructions will be issued for delivery to local approved warehouses for shipment.

Details may be obtained from the local county ASC office, he added.

Stove Explodes Burns Sisters

Two sisters were injured when a gas stove exploded at the Doll House restaurant Sunday.

Mrs. Rod Lane, 901 Eugenia drive, reported that her daughters, Darlene Ruth Lane, 18, and Christine Ann Lane, 18, both suffered burns.

Darlene told sheriff's officers that the pilot light in the burner of the stove had gone out and she started to light it with a straw. The gas caused flash burns to her face, hair, arms and hands. Her sister Christine, was burned on her right hand. Both were treated at Mason General hospital and released.

Leading Causes

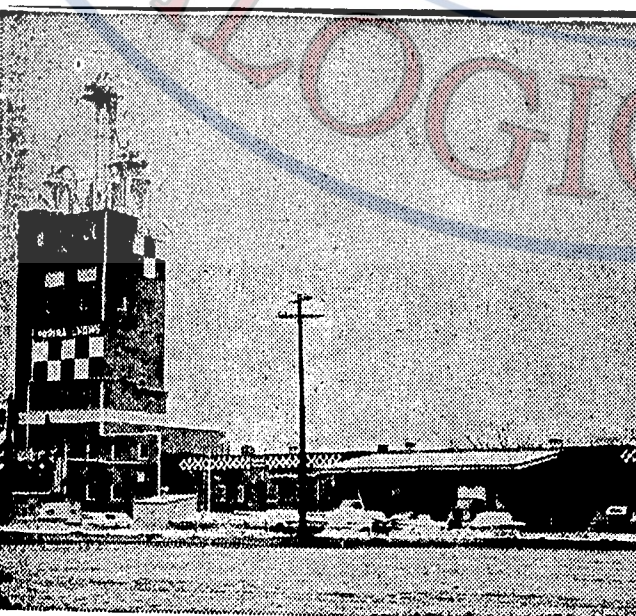

Machinery, drowning, firearms and falls are the leading causes of accidental deaths on farmland and around farm buildings.

Blow 'Em Up

Young children should never be allowed to play with deflated balloons. A child who breathes in instead of out while blowing up a balloon can easily inhale the rubber and choke to death.

Can Be Fatal

The farm tractor is involved in the majority of fatal farm machinery accidents. Operators of this versatile farm machine know the safe operating procedures.

Agriculture In Action

Last spring when the Administration was pushing "farm" programs which would have substantially increased the retail price of rice, bread, and other wheat products, Agricultural Secretary Freeman said: "...a substantial increase or decrease in the farm price of food usually will have very little effect on the retail price of that same food item."

The Secretary is right. He was right last spring and he is right now. The current effort to saddle farm prices with the responsibility for the present inflation in our national economy is nothing more than a political smoke screen designed to divert attention from the real cause of inflation.

Farmers know this; Freeman knows this—and fortunately, most of the public knows it.

Recently a number of Michigan high school seniors were asked if farmers were responsible for the high prices of food. Not one student in a number of classes blamed farmers for what has been happening to the food dollar.

W. Allen Wallis, a distinguished economist, now president of the University of Rochester, discussed these things in a recent speech. "Inflation can be generated only by government. . . . Business firms, labor unions, or consumers with excessive market power can do objectionable things that are contrary to the public interest; but one objectionable thing they cannot do is to cause inflation -- or, for that matter prevent it."

The government has been trying to stimulate the economy for several years. A number of the policies adopted for this purpose are still in effect. In addition, we are now fighting a political "war on poverty" and a sizable real war in Vietnam.

Under such circumstances it is not surprising that the United States has an inflationary problem. The only surprise is that farmers and food prices should be blamed.

The American consumer spends about 25 percent of her food dollar for red meat and less than 19 percent of her disposable income for groceries -- getting more for a smaller part of income than she could anywhere else in the world.

W. Allen Wallis, a distinguished economist, now president of the University of Rochester, discussed these things in a recent speech. "Inflation can be generated only by government. . . . Business firms, labor unions, or

Michigan Week Is Ended But It Left Its Impact

By Lula Howarth
News Special Writer

WILLIAMSTON -- Michigan Week not only gave every one an opportunity to be a booster for his state and his home town but it placed emphasis on many things of value that would ordinarily go unnoticed.

Each day of the week set forth new topics of interest -- the spiritual foundation -- churches and religious education. Churches that have given spiritual strength and moral fiber to a community for more than a century.

Government day brought attention and thought to civic strength and pride.

Heritage Day gave thought to the people and their work upon which the present was founded.

A woman who belongs to the early days of the building of this community is still enjoying the present with all of the changes.

Mrs. Fannie Voss was born in Wheatfield township and lived her early life and was married at her parents home here. She comes back frequently to the Max Furney home on Noble Road to visit her family.

Mrs. Voss will reach her 99th birthday anniversary in August. The Williamston community claims her as the oldest pioneer daughter.

The local Library Guild had a collection of early American articles of clothing and household items of those days.

Education Day brought out some gems of posters from the grades that depicted in an impressive way the value of education.

Some of the recognitions won in the Junior and high schools were outstanding.

Among them were 1st division ratings for both the Junior and Senior bands. Commendation letters on William LaRue's work on National Merit Contest. Keith Honey's selection as sports editor on Oakland College paper.

The Future Home makers had two members chosen as officers in Regional 8 of the state. Kathy Lightfoot as vice president, Jane Bancroft as reporter.

In the F.F.A. chapter Mike Dietz was named an American Farmer and Paul Powell a State Farmer.

In sports Williamston high tied for county honors in football and topped in Track county competition.

The F.F.A. Chapter sent delegates to state convention as well as the National Convention at Kansas City.

Financially the chapter had in Christmas Tree sales $500 and garden seeds $100.

Individual awards were given to: Randy Bedell, Star Green Hand; Keith Allen, Farm Electrification; Chuck Risch, Public Speaking; Bob Dietz, Dairy Farming; Gregg Hitchcock, Farm Safety; Gary Perkins, Farm Mechanics; David Grainger, Livestock Farming; Paul Fleuron, Poultry and Ornamental; Walter Krumm, Home Improvement (Horticulture); Ralph Pierce, Soil and Water Management; Dave Grainger, Farm Forestry.

The Williamston Chapter had a regional officer, Secretary Dave Grainger, and a District President Dave Grainger. The chapter also participated in Farmer's Week with an exhibit.

Joan Salisbury and Sharon Pierce distinguished themselves by being on all Honor roll at M.S.U. Gary Dwight received a freshman award at U. of M. There was David Pfeifle at Air Force Academy with special recognition and many others from Williamston winning honors for themselves and their home town.

Building in Williamston is going on in every direction. New homes and apartments -- a new business block on corner of Grand River and South Putman.

The Watson Chevrolet is taking action on its plans for building a Sales and Service office on W. Grand River highway.

Adjusto Rain company is closing in on its plant on W. Grand River at present it is employing 25 persons and by September hopes to increase this number to about 50.

Burcham Products in continuing under the same management.

The setting for this enterprise is unusually attractive and when it is finished and landscaped will be a beauty spot of the area.

Many farmers are making improvements and innovations, some of them are outstanding.

Stretching out north of the city in the beautiful level, terrain is a farm that is nationally known, Mahogany Farms with 175 more than 2000 acres. It is a part of Michigan and particularly of the Williamston area but it is of interest to any county.

Rep. Chamberlain Announces He Is Seeking Re-Election

Congressman Charles E. Chamberlain, Republican of East Lansing, has announced he would seek reelection from the Sixth Congressional District, composed of Ingham, Jackson, and Shiawassee counties and the townships of DeWitt and Bath in Clinton county. In making his announcement, the congressman said, "Vietnam overshadows everything today. To be working with this complex problem, as a member of the Armed Services committee, provides a great opportunity to serve our country."

Chamberlain, who has been twice to the war zones of Vietnam on special assignments remarked, "While our military forces have made impressive progress during the past year I am deeply disturbed over the prospects of a long drawn-out struggle which is being extended not only by the political instability within South Vietnam but also by the lack of effective efforts by the Administration to choke off the supplies flowing to the enemy from so-called friendly sources."

The Congressman has been a leading voice protesting Free World trade with North Vietnam and has for many months been demanding a full disclosure by the Administration of the nature and extent of this traffic and stronger

Chamberlain was educated in Lansing Public Schools and attended the University of Virginia where he received degrees in both commerce and law. During World War II, the Congressman served as the Commanding Officer of Coast Guard vessels in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters and is now a Captain in the U.S. Coast Guard Reserve. Prior to his election to Congress, he served as City Attorney for East Lansing, legal counsel for the Michigan Senate Judiciary Committee and as Prosecuting Attorney of Ingham county. The Chamberlains reside at 818 N. Harrison road, East Lansing, and have three children, Ellen, Christine, and Charles, Jr. Congressman Chamberlain concludes, "The fall election promises to be very meaningful for the country. I stand ready to give an account of my stewardship!"

Farm Views And News

By R.C. LOTT

No Business or occupation is more closely related to "old mother nature" than is farming. The hazards are great from frosts, drought, excessive moisture, wind, weeds, insects, diseases and many others.

Right now the fruit people are waiting to see what the 19 degrees did a couple of weeks ago. Oats finally got planted but early corn has become impossible for farmers having heavy soils.

Some are considering switching to early varieties of corn for grain, and plant their present selected varieties for silage. Others are considering a larger acreage of navy beans or soybeans. Making these adjusting decisions keeps farmers from experiencing a dull, monotonous occupation.

Whatever the crop selected, weeds are an ever present problem. When one looks over the hay fields, it is very evident that yellow rocket is on the increase. This weed makes the countryside a colorful landscape but it doesn't help improve the palatability of the hay crop.

The control is inexpensive but it had to take place last November after a heavy freeze made the alfalfa dormant. One-half pound of MPCA would cost about 75 cents per acre.

Gerald Diamond and Son Bill are making this spray a regular practice each fall even on their new seedlings but they are particular to wait until heavy fall freezes have made their alfalfa go dormant.

The corn growers may find early cultivation difficult if the rains keep up. Atrazine at a two pound rate per acre will prove to be a blessing if this is the case. It must be applied right after planting as it needs a one-half inch rain to get washed into the soil to be effective in the young germinating weeds.

If atrazine at this two pound rate is banded over the row it will cover about three acres at a material cost of around $1.50 to $2.00 per acre. Should there be fear of soil residue affecting next year's crop of oats, beans or seedlings, Lorox can be added at a one pound rate mixed with Atrazine at a one pound rate of actual materials.

It must be remembered that atrazine is an 80 percent material and lorox is a 50 percent material. Thus to get a pound of actual atrazine one must apply 1 1/4 pounds of atrazine as purchased in the bag. To apply a pound of 50 percent Lorox, one must put two pounds in the spray tank to come up with one pound of actual Lorox.

Celebrating the sprayer to know how much water is needed to cover an acre at a given tractor speed is important to know how much weed control materials to put into the spray tank. Also in that both atrazine and lorox are wettable powders, they must not be allowed to settle to the bottom of the tank as once they get into the spray line in a thick stage, nozzle plugging becomes a headache.

On soybeans, Rex Townsend of Dansville, is going to band spray a combination of amiben and one pound of lorox per acre rate. By band spraying he will make this amount of herbicide cover three acres and reduce the cost one-third.

Dr. William Meggitt, MSU weed researcher, said the combination of lorox and amiben looked better to him last year than either one used alone in stronger amounts. It requires three pounds of amiben alone to cover an acre if sprayed solid and this is a safe economical material on soybeans.

Controlling weeds is important business, it takes more fertility and moisture to grow weeds than it does to grow a crop. Thus it is impractical to grow both at the same time.

Should you not have a copy of Extension Bulletin E434 titled "Weed Control in Field Crops" we will mail one to you upon request, or you may wish to pick one up at the Extension office.

100 Days Short

The Ingham County News last week prepared a story concerning Glenn Sheren and his invention of the seat belt, now regarded as one of the greatest of automobile safety devices. In the course of the story it was explained how Sheren was seriously injured in an automobile accident and spent 110 days in the hospital. Through a typographical slip that apparently went by proof-readers and compositors, the story, when it appeared, had cut down Sheren's stay in the hospital to 10 days. He has been ribbed by his friends about his great powers of recuperation so the News is setting the figure straight - as it was originally written -- 110 days.

Understanding your HEALTH

Just the other day I was asked by an acquaintance of mine if I thought Michigan had enough water. The question came up because he had been reading a great deal about serious water shortages that had occurred in other parts of the country, and he was frankly worried about the adequacy of our state's water supply.

Well, my answer to him was that Michigan has an ample supply of water, beyond any doubt. Our Great Lakes constitute a source that is practically inexhaustible, and our inland rivers also provide water that is used by some municipalities. In addition, many states would be envious of the will water potential in many Michigan locations.

Although we are in an enviable position with respect to the availability of water -- that's not to say the whole picture is rosy. We do have our problems.

In order to see how we stand in regard to water in Michigan, I think it would be profitable to review our separate water sources. In this way we'll get a clear idea of the total picture.

With respect to ground water -- that is, water we get from wells -- there are many cases in the state where it served as an adequate supply in the early development of the areas, but is becoming insufficient as the population continues to increase. In these cases, the communities are abandoning their wells, and drawing water from local rivers or the Great Lakes. In other cases the well water capacity is sufficient to enable the city to count on it for years to come.

Surface sources continue to supply the largest volume of water for our municipalities, and most of this comes from the Great Lakes. Cities have proven that they can draw water from the Great Lakes and pipe it miles inland. For instance, Grand Rapids, an inland city, has been using Lake Michigan water for the past 25 years.

You might ask, "With all this water available, how can we have any problems?" Well, we do. Financing, or the decision to spend money, is often the main reason that many useful, needed projects are not carried through.

Where water must be piped a considerable distance, and treated, a large expense is involved, and one small municipality cannot afford this large outlay of money, although the new water supply is badly needed. In cases of this nature, the usual answer is for one or two of the larger communities to finance the project, and sell the water to the smaller cities.

Once we get over this financial hurdle, our rich water resources, under proper management, will be capable of supporting large increases in population, and a substantial industrial expansion. In most instances it's up to you, the voter, to make the decision to spend the necessary money.

I believe healthful water is worth the additional expense-- I hope you agree with me.

Faculty Honors Hannah

Dr. John A. Hannah was honored by the faculty Wednesday (May 25) for 25 years of distinguished service as president of Michigan State University.

At the regular meeting of the Academic Senate, President Hannah was lauded for his contributions in a resolution which read:

"On the occasion of his 25th year of distinguished service in the presidency of the university, the faculty of Michigan State University, by resolution of the Academic Council acting for the Academic Senate, are pleased to convey to President John Alfred Hannah the esteem of his colleagues."

The resolution continued: "No member of the university community has given to it an equal measure of fidelity, or so silently borne its cares in public and in private, or represented it abroad with dignity."

"He has adorned the office which he has transformed and enlarged. For a generation of his associates he has established the loftiest sense of the place of the delegated intellect in American society. For his contributions we here record our friendship, our debt and our simple loyalty."

The resolution was read by Dr. Howard Neville, provost and chief academic officer of the university.

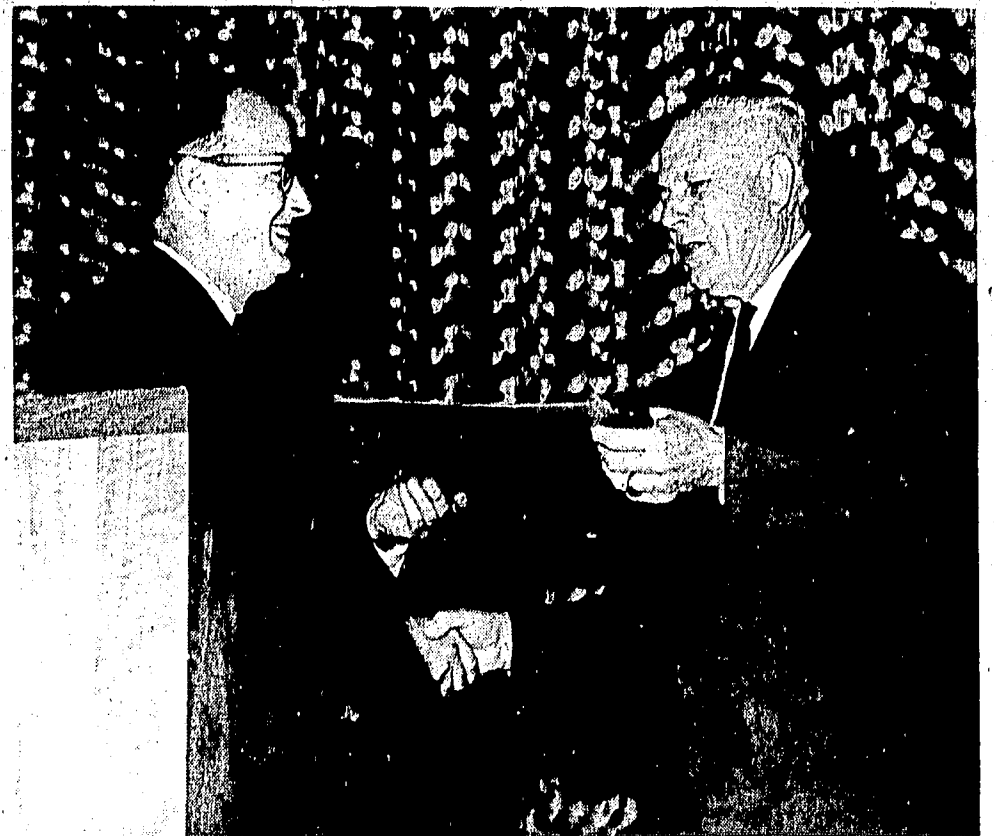

It was also announced that a portrait of President Hannah has been commissioned by the faculty and alumni and will be painted by the noted artist Robert Brackman.

During Dr. Hannah's incumbency the portrait will be in the possession of Mrs. Hannah in Cowles House, the president's residence on campus. The portrait will be moved to an appropriate public location at a later date.

The artist, Brackman, holds a number of awards and is represented in permanent collections throughout the country.

Cadets Are Awarded Commissions

Seventy-eight Army and Air Force cadets will receive second Lieutenant commissions Tuesday (May 24) at Michigan State University's ROTC commissioning ceremonies.

Army Maj. Gen. Kenneth G. Wickham, commanding general of the Combat Service Support Group, Combat Developments Command, Fort Lee, Virginia, will be the speaker for the event at 4 p.m. on Demonstration Hall field. Commissions will go to 47 Army and 31 Air Force cadets. Nineteen of the commissions will become effective upon completion of summer school or summer camp requirements.

A highlight of the event will be presentation of the President's Cups to the two outstanding cadets; Army Cadet Brig. Gen. James M. Harris and Air Force Cadet Col. Larry L. Shriver, both of Lansing.

In the event of inclement weather the ceremonies will be held in Jenison Fieldhouse.

That Vital Red Stuff

With Thursday the day the Red Cross bloodmobile is due to stop in Mason, here are some blood facts which should influence more area people in making a bank deposit—blood bank variety. Read them and then show up Thursday afternoon at the Presbyterian church prepared to give a pint.

The American Red Cross Blood Bank covers 36 counties of Michigan, serving some 78 hospitals. Among the larger hospitals are University hospital at Ann Arbor and Ford hospital at Detroit.

There is a special continuing need for all negative type blood.

Did you know that open heart surgery, which is becoming more common, takes up to 18 pints for a child and up to 30 pints for an adult?

Have you heard that when the blood becomes outdated it is thrown out? This is not so. There is a 21-day limit for whole blood and then if it is not used it is returned and made into derivatives.

Did you know that blood used in Mason General hospital is provided without charge and that the only fee is the cost of supplies and technical services involved in giving the transfusion.

Did you know that a record of your blood is kept on file and that you are given a bill-fold size card showing your blood type and date of donation.

Did you know that you may give blood safely 3 times a year. Many people give blood at least once a year.

Did you know that giving blood is painless, harmless and takes only about an hour of your time?

Did you know that the Lansing Regional Blood Center is providing blood for open heart surgery at the University of Michigan hospital in Ann Arbor at the rate of two surgery cases per week?

Did you know that the Red Cross pays the costs of collecting and processing the blood with funds voluntarily contributed through the Community Chest?

Did you know that all blood is given by voluntary donors?

Did you know that Mason General hospital used approximately 200 pints of blood in transfusions since January 1966.

It is a civic duty of all eligible citizens of this community to go to the Bloodmobile on Thursday and give a pint of blood for your neighbor, friend or relative.

Do a better job! Take another person with you.

Profit - Not a Dirty Word

What's so evil about the word "profit?"

It's getting so that labor leaders, politicians, chrome-domed economists on the campuses of the United States and the people these spokesmen influence can not speak the word without making it sound obscene.

Those who read or heard the attack by Senator Bobby Kennedy on executives of the auto industry in relation to auto safety had a good example of the twisting of the word "profit" into something sinister and dirty.

Senator Bobby, the petulant pouter, played it to the hilt. Instead of using the senate hearing on highway safety to come up with constructive criticism and possibly some ideas which might help solve the problem, the carpetbag-ging New York senator grand-standed by attacking the profit system.

Without the profit system there would be no United States as we know it. Without the profit system there would probably be no Senator Bobby talking about the evils of profits while his speech was impeded by the silver spoon he has carried in his mouth since birth.

Capitalism must exist on profits. Capitalism has made the standard of living we enjoy in the United States today. Americans ought to praise the profit system for what it has done.

Incidentally the profits of Ford, Chrysler and GM cannot be half as contaminated as the profits upon which the Kennedy dynasty was founded--that of prohibition inspired Scotch whiskey franchises.

Yester Years

One Year Ago--1965 William (Bud) Dockter of Dansville won $7,000 in cash and an all expense vacation at any Holiday Inn in the country when he rolled the top score at the annual bowling tournament at Memphis Saturday and Sunday.

Seven outstanding Mason high school athletes were selected by the Mason Junior Chamber of Commerce to be honored at a sports recognition dinner last Saturday. They are: Bill Ely, Lee Jones, Brian Johnson, Ron Reynolds, Ken Cornelisse, Jim Bodrie and Bill Strait.

-QUOTABLE QUOTES-

Those of us who are adults today, and those who are just getting into adulthood are living in a time quite unlike any that has gone before us.

When you stop and think about it, it is the rate of change that marks the greatest difference between our age and all others. Things have always been changing, but in the past, at a rate slow enough to be grasped and adjusted to. This is not true anymore.

At the First Methodist Church last Sunday night there was a film shown, produced by the Moody Bible Institute, dealing with time and eternity. We adults had a hard time grasping the concept that time and space are relative and stand still.

But this concept, a new concept, really, in the sense that it has flowered in the years since World War II and is in common usage by physicists, was no trouble at all for the younger people in the audience that night. They are accustomed to change.

Our kids think it amazing we didn't have television to watch when we were kids. They chuckle at pictures of our old time automobiles and can't imagine a car without a heater, much less a radio. They have been more places before reaching junior high than we ever did as a grown man, which is how much the world and the nation has shrunk during the past decade or so.

A large part of the breakdown in communication between the older and the younger generations must be attributed to this growing lack of a common tradition. People used to grow up and die in pretty much the same world they were born into; now the world of our maturity is not the world of our adolescence in most respects.

We are strangers to our own recent past; so how much more must we seem like strangers to our own children. For when technology changes so rapidly, values change with them. It is impossible to share the experiences of the Great Depression with children not born then. Those of us who lived through it are as different from the others as war veterans are different from civilians.

The past can be understood and learned from, only when it merges gradually into the present. The sudden and abrupt transitions of the past few decades have violated this sense of continuity. We jumped from the horse and buggy age to the automotive age to the jet plane age to the space age and some of us haven't yet caught our breath.

Time may be relative. One thing for sure, time passes faster than it used to. Just ask anybody with a few adult years on them.

Newspaper releases telling about the successes of Mason students in colleges come from college publicity bureaus—not from parents. It never occurred to me that readers might get the impression parents were rushing into print to boast about the achievements of their children. No scholastic honors have ever yet been won in our family and so I have had no first-hand experience as the parent of a scholar.

It's a funny twist of human nature that no one finds fault when a parent boasts about the athletic prowess of his boy or the popularity of his daughter. Yet let a young man or young woman get high marks in school or college and immediately when the news finally leaks out someone accuses the parents of bragging.

Why shouldn't a valedictorian or salutatorian have their exploits cheered by girls dressed in ballet costumes?

A C student might develop into an A student if on the sidelines during algebra or chemistry tests there was a little maiden leading cheers for him. If I had either of those two Alma cheerleaders twisting and turning up and down the sidelines cheering me on while manufacturing this column, no telling how many syndicates would be beating a path to this door. Those interested in cheerleaders or in basketball will have their final fling this Friday and Saturday night at the state tournament in Jenison field house, East Lansing. It's a great spectacle. People flock there from all over the state.

A word of warning, though. Don't buy reserved seats. Last year I arranged for the purchase of six reserved seats. They were out near Cavanaugh road. People with general admission tickets were down in front. That's where I hope to be Saturday night.

Barbs and Praise

After a week end tour up US-27 into the Michigan north country for the holiday, a parade which just has to rank with the longest parades in history, it was quite appropriate to open up the mail Tuesday morning and see a special report on natural resources put out by the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce.

The mushrooming business, especially in the northern part of the lower peninsula, is sowing the seeds of problems faster than they are being solved. It is clear that the Chamber of Commerce report is close to the truth when they titled their report "Cottage Slums—Our Northwoods Blight."

In an effort to get the tourist business many northern communities have turned their attention away from orderly planning, away from zoning, away from common sense, away from health and conservation standards.

Developers are damming up every stream in sight to create man-made lakes, submarginal land bordering natural lakes is being filled in some cases and channels are being dug through it in others, with the idea of providing more lots for more cottages without regard for the welfare or the lives of the lakes.

The septic tank fields are dumping effluent in increasing amounts into lakes and streams to further shorten the life span of lakes and streams.

Trash piles and public dumps are getting closer and closer to the roads as the subdivisions rush to meet the dumps.

In short, we are creating Northwoods slums which can, if left to go unchecked, ruin the scenic beauty of the Water Wonderland.

Tighter restrictions are needed and the initiative has got to come at the local level or it will be turned over to state agencies to be solved.

Mason is facing a problem, a situation which is never new, but this particular problem is apt to become a serious one with plenty of repercussions. We have a doctor problem -- or rather we are facing a doctor shortage.

This has been evident to other overworked doctors in Mason. It has been evident to Mason General Hospital administration and staff and it has been evident to those patients seeking the service of doctors. And the impact of Medicare will surely make it worse.

It is not going to get any better. In fact it is going to get worse unless some type of community effort is put forth.

The problem has many sides. The military services are grabbing off many of the younger doctors plus some of those with established practices. In addition, this is the age of specialization and specialists head for the population centers. Research in medicine and medical research in industry plus the ever growing public health field is siphoning off many more doctors who could be heading for communities such as Mason.

Many Mason people have expressed concern. They are concerned enough that they want to do something about it. One thought brought forth is to see what the community can do toward wooing doctors by promising cooperation and assistance in establishing a clinic facility.

So, when you are approached to lend your abilities in providing more doctors to go along with Mason's already overworked supply, lend an ear and then lend a hand.

We have been reading with interest the account of a Zurich, Switzerland, supermarket which has gone to the honor system—a system by which customers total their own bills as they throw goods in the shopping basket and then settle with the cashier on the way out.

Lots of luck.

Dispensing newspapers on the honor system has not worked too well for us here at the News. We've retrieved 2 newsracks from the Sycamore and one other hasn't shown up yet.

In a Readers Digest item a Dr. Harry Johnson claims that many people who are always tired, who get no relief from vitamin pills and tired blood medicines, really have no physical problem at all. He says these people are just suffering from mental boredom. They are stale.

He advises that when a person gets that tired, run-down feeling, he should take inventory of what he is doing in his daily routine. He should look at what he would really like to do but never finds time to do.

He lists loneliness as a cause of tiredness although I could challenge that. In a house of numerous kids and hangers-on dear old Dad has his moments of tiredness.

Dr. Johnson says "Give yourself something to look forward to for anticipation is one of the joys of living. The person who is looking ahead is most apt to be a happier one."

He also says that the person who is always complaining about being tired is probably not working half as hard as he thinks he is. In other words, being tired is just a state of mind.

The Melting Pot

Here we are in June--the month of commencements and graduation parties and all that goes along with the end of the school year.

It is a month when flowers bloom, when vacation plans are made and when folks get the urge to back on beaches for June 1st: the start of summer, much desired in Michigan this year after a spring of cold and rain.

Within a very brief time young graduates of schools throughout the nation will don their caps and gowns for the great day when they will march up to a platform or stage to receive their diplomas of graduation.

High school seniors, happy in the thought of completing 12 years of schooling and looking ahead to college, see nothing but bright horizons in the future.

They don't know it now, but they will realize sooner than they think that their high school days and the companionship they shared with their fellow classmates were the happiest most care-free days of their young lives.

Soon the old class with all its memories will be scattered to the 4 winds. Some will stay close to home and attend colleges and universities in Michigan, but others will seek their higher education in schools in distant states.

The old comradeship will be gone. When they meet again they will be older and while they will strive to bring back the "good old days" things will never quite be the same.

Commencement, as its name implies, is the start of life for these young graduates and as many as possibly can should attend the colleges or universities of their choice and learn the trades or professions on which they are to depend for a livelihood in the years ahead.

For today a person without a college or university education finds himself in a situation that will make it difficult for him to make a decent living.

Skilled minds and skilled hands are needed now -- more than they ever were -- to handle successfully the problems and the advancements of modern day living.

There are many fields open to these young people -- engineering, medicine, law, architecture, nursing, business, all of which are calling for more and more educated minds to meet today's problems.

We are in the midst of a population explosion which also has become a knowledge explosion. To meet this many complex problems we must have a well educated society.

All this presents great opportunity, too, for the high school senior who can plan his choice of these many opportunities and map his next four or more years of college education to fit him for the huge tasks which will await him when he is ready to take his place in world affairs.

Sentimentally, perhaps, this commencement time is a sad period for the high school senior who is leaving his old school surroundings. But it also is a time when the future never was brighter. Never before have the citadels of higher learning offered more to their students.

Never before have the opportunities for fame and fortune been greater.

The graduate today stands on the threshold of a great adventure.

He should take advantage of it.

Hayden R. Palmer

Comment

Washington--FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover maintained in a press release this week that law enforcement today is being degraded. He charged those who defile all law officers with such terms as "police brutality."

Comment--Law and order in these United States is slipping fast. Many people scream for protection to law officials yet they are the first to violate the law when such action serves their purpose. When a 16-year-old throws a rock through a school window it is vandalism. When a 16-year-old tosses a rock through a patrol car window it is a righteous expression of civil rights indignation toward police brutality. When a 21-year-old parks his car in front of a driveway he is ticketed without much of a squawk but when that same 21-year-old sits down at the entrance to city hall to protest and has to be dragged away by the police, his cry of "police brutality" makes the law officer a villain and the sit-downer a hero.

Washington--Maj. Gen. Stanley Larsen, commander of 40 per cent of the ground forces in Vietnam, released a statement that North Vietnam regiments are massing across the border in Cambodia for a massive assault. Five hours later the Pentagon denies the report.

Comment--Either the general had misinformation, which is highly unlikely, or the political and civilian arm chair strategists who dominate and intimidate the trained military of this country are once again proving that the American people can be deceived with falsehoods. In this incident as in many others someone is not telling the truth.

Milwaukee--Milwaukee was all agog over the party to honor Luci and Patrick and similar palpitations in the Democratic society set were going on in Waukegan for Luci's shower.

Comment--Once again the President's oft-repeated cry of "Let's tighten our belts to fight inflation" has kind of a hollow ring. No provisions were made by our founding fathers for royalty yet it appears that royalty is on the upswing.

Pontiac--A pilot program introducing a new 44-letter phonetic alphabet in place of the 26-letter one of our struggle with is drawing raves from Pontiac educators.

Comment--Twenty-six letters get most of us in trouble enough. Yet anything which would bring back reading and writing in the school systems of today would be welcome. New York--Harvey Act, a poverty war agency operating in Harlem spending millions in federal tax money, owes the government $290,000 in withholding taxes it failed to turn in to internal revenue.

Comment--This is just one more instance of a government program with good intentions hastily enacted and hastily put in operation which is doing nothing for the people it is supposed to help but doing plenty for those who do the administering.

Detroit--Car output last week dropped to the lowest level in weeks.

Comment--Tell that to those who were out on Michigan's highways over the weekend. The way they were being smashed up the car industry can expect good weeks ahead if all those damaged cars are going to be replaced.

Safety Stressed On Cycles

Michigan death and injury statistics on accidents involving motorcycles and motor scooters, strongly emphasize need for heightened safety concern by operators of these vehicles, Col. Frederick E. Davids, State Police director, said.

Colonel Davids pointed out that there were 46 persons killed and 2,128 others injured in 4,087 accidents involving two-wheel motorized vehicles in Michigan last year, not including those injured in cities of 25,000 population or more. The 1965 accident count was 1,943 or 91 per cent more than the total of 2,124 recorded in 1964.

With warm weather

spurring this activity, Davids stressed that the rapidly rising volume of registrations of these vehicles markedly increases the potential for involvement in accidents unless greater attention is devoted to their safe operation. Motorcycle and motor scooter registrations jumped by 25,907 or 66 per cent from 39,041 in 1964 to 64,948 in 1965. A State Police study of motor cycle and motor scooter accidents in Michigan last year showed 93 per cent of the riders were under 35 years of age, 43 per cent were 20 through 34, and 50 per cent were under 20. Most frequent violations noted were excessive speed, following too closely, improper overtaking and failure to yield right of way. Eleven riders were described as being under the influence of intoxicants. Four out of 10 accidents did not involve other vehicles. Of the six out of 10 accidents involving other vehicles,

MANY ANGLES
Put every driver in an armored tank and some will still find ways to kill themselves and others on the road, is the contention of some who criticize the Congressional discussions of auto safety.

So many factors are involved in highway safety that it is impossible to place the blame entirely on any, whether it be the roads, the cars, the weather, or the drivers themselves.

The continually rising accident rate is constantly under study in Michigan by several governmental units, among them the State Highway Department.

Unbelievable as it might sound to the safety conscious driver, 26 people were killed last year in accidents involving motorists who tried to enter freeways on the one-way exit ramps and found themselves on the wrong side of the road.

In the first three months of this year there were no accidents of this type, as compared with 12 crashes resulting in six deaths in the same period of 1965. The first wrong-way freeway fatality this year occurred in April, signalling a considerable cut in this type of crash for 1966.

Several other safety-related projects also involve the Highway Department. These include the road design itself, lighting, edge-marking, curve reflectors, and, of course, sign posting.

In all, safety expenditures by the department last year totaled $4 million and a greater cost figure is placed on 1966 work designed to keep motoring safe in Michigan.

THE POLITICAL BUG
The public office bug seems to bite more persistently than the various virus strains prevalent in Michigan. Once a man gets a public position, like a legislative seat, the desire to stay there usually lasts and lasts.

This year, for example, one survey turned up only a handful who did not plan to try again for election to the legislature. These six or seven had their sights set on other offices.

Fortunately or unfortunately, depending on the point of view, the voters are not always inclined to understand this incumbency bug.

Voters two years ago, for example, decided in the primary that 25 House members and 9 State Senators should return to private life although they still had the bug. Then in the general election many more lost their seats to challenging newcomers.

Much of the high turnover in the general election was credited to the change in legislative districting and the heavy Democratic vote in the Presidential balloting.

This year a relatively high turnover could again be seen, at least in the House, since Gov. George Romney is expected to draw a high vote. Straight ticket voting could restore several House seats to the Republicans on his strength.

In other areas, Republicans are counting on the pendulum swinging them back in this year assuming several Democrats who barely made it in 1964 are more vulnerable despite the incumbency designation.

Several Republicans ousted in the 1964 Democratic sweep will be trying to regain their seats. A few Democrats, beaten in the unusually heavy primary turnover, will also be trying to once again nurture the bug which has bitten them.

DEPRESSING WORK?
Critical manpower shortages in the mental health field are sometimes laid to the public sensitivity to mental problems.

Many people say they could not stand to work with the mentally ill because it would be depressing. Those in the field tend to discredit this idea and frequently describe it as just the opposite. Professionals are more likely to see their work as inspiring.

Take Mrs. Doris Keller, a registered nurse who is supervisor of the Ann Arbor day care centers for severely retarded children, for example. The Ann Arbor unit recently sent its first "graduate" into public school system.

Entry into special education classes of the public schools is beyond the ability of many children participating in day care programs such as that in Ann Arbor, notes Mrs. Keller.

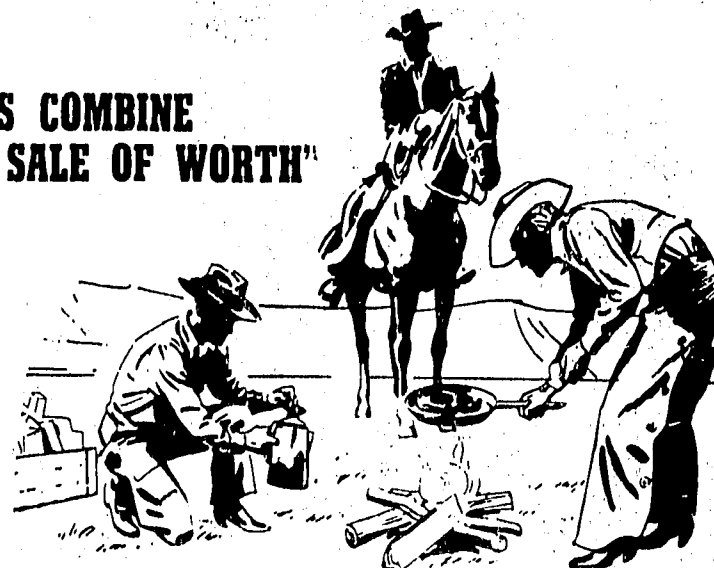

The Ann Arbor child had learned the basic concepts of self care, social adjustment and citizenship and was ready for more advanced work.

"We didn't expect most of the enrollees to be capable of moving into the public school classes, but all of them are making some progress in such areas as self-care, feeding and socialization," said Mrs. Keller.

"Even if they never progress beyond this point, the program will have been worth every cent." In this statement from one supervisor in one city's day care program, lies much of the feeling mental health workers acquire in their jobs. Depressing? Hardly.

The VERDICT!

Some things are so final. One of them is Judgment. But whether we like it or not, it is coming. The child at school knows a test is set - he must make ready for it. The man at his bench knows the work must get done, and on time. All life should help us face the coming verdict. The wise person gets the better of it by setting his own judgment at the close of every day. Life is made up of years, of months, of days. Why wait for luck or chance which might make an escape possible? YOU CAN'T BEAT THE VERDICT. God will allow you to reap only what you have sown. You write your own verdict... God announces it. Go to church every Sunday. Confess your sins to God. Write a clean page. Keep the record clear. Then the verdict will be well with your soul.
