

It Was 'Criminal!'

Sheriff's Men Pick Lock To Free Man From Cuffs

When James Leasure of 2450 Coy road, Mason, walked into the Ingham county sheriff's department last week with handcuffs on, sheriff's deputies were baffled. It wasn't that Leasure was wanted for anything, but rather it was what Leasure wanted that had the deputies stumped for a time.

What Leasure wanted was out -- from the handcuffs.

He had found an old pair of handcuffs around his house and had put them on to show them to a friend, and you can guess the rest. He couldn't get them off. He pulled, twisted, yanked, and even put the cuffs in a vice and repeated his efforts, but he remained as surely bound as a freshly captured criminal.

Desperate, Leasure went to the sheriff's department for help. Sheriff's deputies came to Leasure's aid with every handcuff key in the department, but none would release him. They tried to slip the cuffs over Leasure's wrists, but to no avail. And what they did next was really criminal.

Using the very best techniques of the very worst of criminals, they picked the lock on the cuffs, released Leasure, and at last he was free.

As they did this in no time at all, picking the lock that is, and considering the agility with which the deputies picked the lock, local merchants and citizens can be thankful that the officers various and varied talents are employed on the right side of law and order.

Councilmen See Plans For Proposed Building

The Mason city council has made important decisions to make in the very near future regarding building and office space. Possibly by the next council meeting July 10, councilmen will be able to see the final architects' drawing of the proposed police-fire departments building at the corner of Oak and Jefferson streets and give their approval.

They have already reviewed the plans at a work session and sent the drawing back for minor revisions in the shower and toilet facilities for firemen.

"We hope to have the building plans ready for the Monday night meeting," Gilson Pearsall, chairman of the building and grounds committee, said. "Of course, we want to get moving on this project as soon as possible."

The new city manager William L. Bopf will begin his duties on Monday and office arrangements for him are now under consideration. Bopf will probably be situated in what is now the city assessor's office, according to Pearsall.

A vacancy still exists for a new city assessor following the resignation of C. F. Walcott. "There is a possibility the new city manager may be able to supervise a clerical employe in completing the assessor's duties," Pearsall said.

3rd Drowning Tragedy Hits Area Family

Funeral services were conducted at the Luecht funeral home in Leslie today for little Ronald Marquedant, 23-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Marquedant of Leslie, who drowned in Carp lake near the village of Trout Lake in Michigan's upper peninsula Saturday. Burial was in Oaklawn cemetery Leslie.

It was the second time in less than a year that tragedy has struck the Marquedant family. Ronald's grandfather, Lyle Marquedant, 68, and a great uncle, Oakley Marquedant, 72, both drowned last Labor Day weekend when their boat capsized in the same lake.

The little boy fell from a dock and was knocked unconscious. He drowned in about 4 inches of water.

Ronald's father was with Lyle and Oakley Marquedant when they drowned. He hung onto the overturned boat and was rescued.

Besides his parents, Ronald is survived by 2 sisters, Robin Lynn and Cynthia Kaye, both at home; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Adams and Mrs. Clara Belle Marquedant, all of Leslie, and a great-grandmother, Mrs. Hulda Adams who resides in Ohio.

The 1 p.m. funeral service was conducted by Rev. Milan Maybee, pastor of the Eden United Brethren in Christ church. Pallbearers included Gerald Vaughn, Donald Stull, Gordon Glenn and Donald Marquedant.

Diehl Heads Board

David Diehl, Dansville farmer and re-elected member of the Lansing Community College board, was elected Monday as chairman of the LCC board.

Succeeding Lee A. Trumble of Lansing, Diehl and the other members of the board of trustees were sworn in at ceremonies presided over by Circuit Court Judge Louis E. Coash in the board room of the college's administration building.

The organization meeting followed on the heels of the recent election in which 6 incumbent candidates and one new member, Mrs. Marilyn Morris Wanger of Lansing and formerly of Mason, were elected.

Other board of trustees selected as officers are Cecil E. MacDonald of East Lansing, treasurer, and Albert C. Boyd of Lansing, secretary.

Other members of the board include John H. Dart, Mason business man, David Froh of Lansing, and Lee A. Trumble of Lansing.

Voluntary Junk Clean Up Begins

Several persons in Mason have begun a voluntary clean-up program of junk cars, rubbish and other items covered under the newly adopted city junk car and junk ordinance.

The ordinance became effective June 25 and provides for the removal of junk cars, rubbish, dwellings no longer in use, and anything endangering health and well-being of community.

Mason Police Chief Tim Stolz reports that no complaints pertaining to the ordinance have been reported yet, but many persons have been cleaning up their property.

"This especially pertains to those business places which store junk cars," he said. "Each day you can see haulers taking these junk cars out of town."

Enforcement of the ordinance will be carried out through the city police department. A formal complaint must be recorded, the validity of the complaint investigated and then the violators will have 10 days to remove the thing or things prohibited by the ordinance.

James Bullen Accepted for Med School

James R. Bullen, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Bullen of 194 E. Ash street, Mason, has been accepted for the University of Michigan Medical school freshman class. There were 205 students accepted in all.

From a total of 498 applicants from the state of Michigan and 748 from out of state, some 170 residents and 35 out of state students will make up the new class.

Members of the medical school's 117th class will be registered August 24 with the classes scheduled to begin August 28.

Crime Epidemic Hits Mason for Month of June

Mason police have been flooded with the largest number of misdemeanor and felony complaints ever received in one month, according to Tim Stolz, Mason police chief.

The average number of complaints is 75 a month, said Stolz, and this June Mason police received a total of 131 complaints. They received a total of 78 complaints in the same period last year during June.

In addition police issued a total of 82 tickets for moving violations, 30 more than the monthly average. "Adult arrests are on the increase also," Stolz said. "We usually average 7 adult arrests a month while last month we arrested 13. This month we are again flooded with complaints and arrests. Already we have requested warrants for 10 arrests," he said.

"The additional time my men have to spend on complaints and arrests is time they lose from patrolling traffic," Stolz said.

"Mason is no longer a small town. We have all the problems of a larger town and our volume of complaints and arrests indicates our growth," he added.

HONORED - Kenneth L. Preadmore, sheriff of Ingham county was elected vice president of the Michigan Sheriff's Association at their meeting last Wednesday in Sault Ste. Marie. He was also re-elected to the board of directors of the group.

Sheriff Reports On 4th

Ingham County Sheriff Kenneth L. Preadmore reports that there were 10 auto accidents investigated by his department over the 4th of July holiday in which 3 persons received minor injuries.

Unlike the overall state accident figures, Ingham county sheriff's men reported no serious injury or fatality accidents.

Holiday patrols racked up a total of 285 hours on traffic coverage and drove a total of 5,700 miles. Deputies issued 76 summonses for moving violations or for disobeying stop signs.

However, there were 4 arrests made for reckless driving, 3 for careless driving and 2 for driving while under the influence of liquor, according to Preadmore.

Unique Summer Speech Program Coordinates Fun and Learning

If, in passing Rayner park this week, you hear the sound of jungle drums reverberating in the air, don't be alarmed. What you'll be hearing is the sound of one of the most unique speech therapy programs in the country and the only one of its kind in the state.

The summer speech program is directed by Ken Woodring, a special education teacher who lives in Mason, and is being sponsored by the Mason Kiwanis club. Its day campers include approximately 70 to 75 children chosen from all over the Ingham county area by teachers for their speech difficulties.

"The unique thing about our program," said Woodring, "is that we're convinced speech correction programs can be fun. We are tired of the purely clinical approach to speech correction, which unfortunately encourages the child to associate his speech difficulty with the clinic and tedious work. We believe it is possible to work with children's speech difficulties and have fun with them at the same time," Woodring said.

The children are divided into 2 groups, the first being the 6-7 year olds and the second is made up of the older group, ages 8-13. The younger children are working on an Indian theme this year, and their counselors have cleverly integrated therapeutic devices into this theme.

For example, the children will beat out rhythms on their tom toms and then one of their directors will ask them to imitate the same rhythm verbally. Or the children will be told of the dangers and adventures of the great Indian tribes that once lived in the far off regions of the dark Gichiguma valley, at which time the counselor will stop and encourage the children to break the word, "Gich-i-guma" into parts and to pronounce it.

"One mother stopped me on the street the other day," said Woodring, "and asked when we were going to begin teaching the children speech correction. 'My boy has been coming home and saying that all they do is have fun,' the mother continued. 'This is about the best compliment our program could receive," Woodring said.

The older group plays soft ball, volleyball, and swims.

"In several cases the children were getting dressed after a very limited group of experiences which further handicaps their verbal expression," Woodring said.

"Just the other day we took several of the children to swim. They were told to shower first and then we were going to take them in the pool. Walking through the locker room, I came upon 2 boys who were getting dressed after their showers. I asked them why they were getting dressed and they said that they'd already been in. The boys had thought that the shower was the pool. Neither of them had ever been in a pool before!"

In addition, George Zarka is working with students at the camp who are physically handicapped as well. "We have found that in many cases a lack of body coordination goes hand in hand with speech problems. In some cases it is necessary to work with the larger body muscles before you can work with the smaller ones involved in speaking."

The Kiwanis club of Mason is sponsoring this unique camp. It is providing most of the program's money, its equipment and is providing transportation for the children to and from the fair grounds.

HOW MUCH WILL NEXT YEAR'S CARS COST?

By DICK LYON

About 100 to 150 dollars more than this year's models according to manufacturer's estimates.

The increase is due to cover the cost of anti-smog devices, safety features and anticipated factory wage increases later this year.

The price savings on this year's new cars may well make them the best buy for many years to come in our constantly inflating economy.

The value of our dollar has slipped since 1941 to the point where it is now worth 45 cents in terms of purchasing power 25 years ago. The government's own forecasters predict that the dollar will continue to lose a minimum of 1.5 per cent of its purchasing power, on the average, every year.

This means that in another 10 years it will be worth 39 cents in terms of 1949 and still headed down.

It is obvious that cars cannot escape continuing price increases on this basis alone even without the added force of safety and other features.

Safety features are all to the good, but it is well to remember that the most effective single safety feature of all - the safety belt - continues to be ignored by the vast majority of drivers.

Unless human nature undergoes a transformation overnight, driver fault will continue to account for 90 per cent of traffic accidents. The driver alone can change that statistic. He is the greatest single safety factor of all.

Needed: A Ceiling on Ceilings

Congressional rejection of the administration's request for a permanent $29 billion increase in the debt ceiling dramatized a deep concern growing in the minds of the general public and their elected representatives. Worry centers on the effect which rising federal spending and debt are likely to have in undermining the integrity of the dollar and with it, the economic stability and solvency of the United States.

Administration critics, including key Democrats, have expressed the view that the official budget deficit estimates, generally running in the neighborhood of $11 billion for the year beginning July 1, 1967, are simply not truthful. Some authorities see the possibility of deficits under certain conditions running as high as $29 billion. Part of the opposition to the administration's request for a $365 billion permanent debt ceiling came from liberals expressing disapproval of increased spending on the Vietnamese war. But, most of the negative votes were based on the belief that federal finances are in critical shape and that there was urgent need to force reappraisal of the budget.

Representative Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said, "I believe this is a turning point away from irresponsible fiscal policies toward responsible ones of cutbacks in non-essential and nonmilitary spending."

It is in the area of deciding what is nonessential that argument arises. The Council of State Chambers of Commerce has estimated that the new budget calls for over $7 billion in additional spending for nondefense purposes. Despite mounting evidence of the need for reappraisal of government spending policies, it is virtually impossible to get any kind of general agreement on what items should be trimmed. Should it be the space program, foreign economic and military aid, the poverty program or proposed anticrime measures? Broad support for all of these things and many more makes significant cuts in any of them a difficult matter at best.

Representative Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, the chairman of the House Ways and Means committee, is one of those expressing the fear that the federal deficit could mount to $29.2 billion—a red ink fiscal disaster topping any since World War II. Mr. Mills cites a number of factors which could bring this about. Treasury tax receipts could fall $2.7 billion below estimates if business profits are pinched by a combination of factors including resistance to higher prices and inflated costs of production. The officially projected $11 billion deficit was based on the assumption that the requested 6 per cent income tax increase would become effective July 1, 1967, and would produce $5.5 billion in revenue. But the July 1 date is not now in the cards, and if the tax increase does not pass, the deficit could climb to $19.2 billion. There is also the distinct possibility expressed by many top authorities that a higher tax rate might not produce higher revenue. If it were applied in a time of decreasing profits and incomes, it would only reinforce this downward trend and perhaps reduce the tax take. In addition to this, the admittedly essential spending on the war in Vietnam could rise $5 billion or more, increasing the deficit level to some $24 billion. Finally, the assumption has been made that the Government will be able to sell $5 billion worth of "participation certificates" which are really shares in government loan programs whose sale would reduce the apparent size of budget spending. If this should prove impossible, Chairman Mills observes that the total budget deficit for fiscal 1968 could run to $29.2 billion.

Admittedly, it is very unlikely that all of this will go wrong at once. But, the possibility of enough going wrong to bring on an unprecedented flood of red ink in the federal ledger books is what now worries congress in its consideration of debt ceiling adjustment and tax and spending policies. A serious miscalculation could result in unacceptable and perhaps ruinous inflation, carrying the threat of arbitrary wage and price controls with a breakdown in the free market production and distribution system. Meaningful cuts in spending will take some fiscal soul searching in the executive, administrative and legislative branches of government. The congress has apparently resolved to conduct such a search.

Inflation Hurts Just a Little

The smart economists and the money spending bureaucrats would have you believe there's just a little inflation accompanying their spending spree...that it doesn't really hurt because incomes have more than kept pace with the depreciated dollar.

You have heard that the 1940 $5,000-a-year man must today earn $14,000 to stay even; the $10,000 man in 1940 must now earn $31,000.

KEEP THE same "little inflation" we have been averaging, the tax rates, and by 1975 that $5,000-a-year man must earn $33,000 and the $10,000 man $84,000 simply to maintain a 1940 living standard.

For the American consumer, a 2.5 percent annual cost-of-living increase means just this:

CASH SAVINGS are worth $12.5 billion less each year. Annual real income shrinks by $10 million each year.

Retirement income is worth $450 million less each year, the cost of food and beverage increases $2 billion, outlay for medical care goes up $412,000.

FUTURE SOCIAL security payments are worth over a billion dollars less each year, private pension funds shrink by $825 million, the face value of life insurance is worth $12.5 billion less each year.

If this is a "little inflation," heaven help us if it ever gets "out of control."

It's Still Possible

To hear some of our people talk around here, you wouldn't believe it—but this is still the land of opportunity.

The old saw about the willingness to work hard, to put in long hours, use initiative, and determination, and above all desire to get ahead seems strangely out of place in today's atmosphere of riots, draft-card burnings, refusals to serve in the armed forces, hippies, beards, and the like... but according to the Internal Revenue Service, the old saw is about as true today as it was in grandfather's time.

You've probably heard it said a hundred times recently—that the era of making money was over—that you can't become a millionaire nowadays because of the tax structure.

T'aint so. The income tax people says that 596 Americans showed adjusted gross incomes of $1 million or more on their 1965 income tax returns. And evidently it wasn't a case of the richer getting richer.

Of the 596 total, 114 were brand-spanking new millionaires, since we only had 482 such people in 1964. So-o-o-o, tote that bale, lift that barge... it can still be done.

The Nonsense in Farm Subsidies

As we mentioned the other day, beneficiaries of the government's cotton subsidy program include Sen. James O. Eastland (D., Miss.), a member of the Senate agriculture committee who voted for the 1965 food and agriculture act which authorized the subsidies. The 5,000-acre Eastland plantation at Daddsville, Miss., last year received $129,997 from the federal treasury for not growing cotton. This was disclosed when Sen. John J. Williams (R., Del.) placed in the Congressional Record a list of farmers who received more than $50,000 for not growing cotton last year.

Such payments to Eastland and others are, of course, perfectly legal under government farm programs. Whether it is ethical for a member of Congress to receive federal funds under a program he helped to enact is a question that the members of Congress and the taxpayers might do well to mull over. Subsidies to pay farmers for not growing cotton, corn, wheat, and other crops cost taxpayers 3.3 billion dollars last year.

Sen. Eastland could have refused to accept the subsidy, but, as he pointed out, the law requires cotton growers to cut acreage and for all practical purposes it isn't very profitable to do this unless growers are compensated for it. The law does allow farmers to grow cotton without subsidies if they agree to sell it for export at low world prices, but this involves a lot of red tape and it is not a financially attractive proposition for most cotton producers. The fact is the Johnson administration purposely designed the law to force cotton growers to cut acreage and accept subsidies as its solution to the problem of excess production.

Sen. Eastland says he fought the proposal to pay farmers for taking land out of production when the matter was before the Senate agriculture committee and also voted against the amendment which introduced direct subsidies for cotton. Nevertheless, he voted for the act which finally authorized the subsidies.

Sen. Williams said he favors limiting subsidies to farmers to $10,000 for any one payment. Recently the House rejected an amendment to the agriculture bill offered by Rep. Paul Findley (R., Ill.) to limit subsidies to $25,000 per farm. The chief argument by opponents of all such proposals is that limitations on subsidies would dissuade the larger farmers from cutting acreage and encourage them to produce bigger surpluses.

The argument reflects what has been known all along—namely, that it is the larger, well-heeled farmers who need them least, if at all, who are the main beneficiaries of the subsidy programs. The small farmers can't qualify for anything but small payments simply because their acreage and volume of production, on which the payments are based, are too small. The irony of it is that it is costing taxpayers billions of dollars to subsidize farm owners like Sen. Eastland who don't need it, while the little fellow whom the programs are supposed to help actually gets little benefit.

Barbs and Praise

By DICK BROWN

Just another holiday—That's the average American's reaction to Independence Day. It's a day for picnicking, for boating, for big league baseball, for swimming or for family reunions.

Today it is looked upon as old hat to display any patriotic emotions. There are elements in American society who ridicule any reverence shown for country, its flag and its national heritage. People who do take pride in our national heritage are scoffed at for being flag wavers and squares.

So, while watching the waves roll in this Fourth of July in the northeast corner of Higgins Lake, I am being square enough to recognize that we who live in 1967 United States have much for which to be thankful. We have many patriotic squares in our past to thank.

Undoubtedly, somewhere on this Fourth of July there are demonstrations going on. Somewhere there are speeches being given in which the anarchists of today's America are pointing to the Madisons, Jeffersons, Adams and other signers of the Declaration of Independence as blood brothers in the current individual independence kick. It just isn't so. The men who conceived the Declaration of Independence, had a better plan than the rioters and draft card burners of 1967. They were positive in their approach. They subscribed to rule by law.

So much of the turmoil fouling the human race today is destructive.

America can't afford to ignore the foundations on which 200 years of progress were built but on July 4, 1967, it sure appears that we have strayed a long way from the paths of those who stuck their necks out and signed the Declaration of Independence.

From time to time the educators and the psychologists come forth with information gems concerning child rearing which strike at the very heart of freedom -- for Mom and Dad.

Along comes Dr. John Hurley of Michigan State who equates a swat on junior's seat with a loss of IQ in junior's mind.

The good doctor claims that his tests show that children who come from punitive households have lower IQs than those children who come from what he terms "homes with an encouraging attitude."

I am sure that the doctor would have had a hard time selling that theory to a parent I remember of a generation ago.

Maybe the reason we have so many problems on the campus today is because we have been more interested in developing brain power than we have in developing a human being with good moral background and sound judgment.

A good right hand has been known to be used around the Brown house to get attention. That may mean that we have a bunch of dullards but we did set something of a record Saturday. Seven of us dullards ranging from 10 to 45 constructed 90 feet of new dock in 4 hours of sawing and hammering. Sunday, if there were those who needed a swat, they escaped. The swatters were too tired and lame to lift a hand. Household anarchy could prevail for the next day or so.

The Melting Pot

By HAYDEN PALMER

We read a lot these days of the spread of narcotic uses by students.

What is the cause of this dangerous practice among young people?

I have asked the question of many people. They gave varied answers.

Then a friend gave me a copy of a statement dealing with students and drugs as prepared by Robert Peel, author and editorial consultant to the Christian Science church.

Drug taking, Peel points out, needs to be looked at in a broader focus—in terms of the basic issues it involves.

"What is man basically?" he asks. Is he really just a physicochemical organism? Is he a chance configuration of atoms and molecules and genes? Is he just an accidental product of a biological process? And is successful living simply a sort of adjustment to a material environment -- a physical and chemical adjustment?

"This is the assumption on which most drug-taking rests.

"But drugs deal with surface effects, with symptoms -- not with causes. They don't do anything about basic troubles, which are left to fester beneath the surface. And they cannot bring the sort of peace and satisfaction that comes as we really confront our problems and intelligently solve them.

"What about LSD? Some people who have taken LSD say it gave them their deepest religious experience. They are raising important questions that we all need to ask ourselves.

"Can religion be reduced to chemistry? "There's a craving for unity in people.

"But is man's unity with the rest of the universe the unity of billions of dancing atoms?

"That's the sort of experience which people have spoken of who have taken LSD -- a sort of pantheistic absorption in the material universe.

"Is this what the New Testament means when it speaks of God, and says, 'In Him we live, and move, and have our being?'"

One of the central points of Christianity is the immortality of individual identity -- the fact that man is not just a material organism which crumbles into dust and merges with the universe. He derives his existence from the Mind that is God and he has a deathless reality in that Mind.

What about things like intelligence and love, or patience and courage and generosity, honesty -- are all these things merely a matter of chemistry? Or are they qualities of mind and spirit, which must come from a different source?

"Atoms can't create intelligence or love out of themselves. And if we conceive of God as the divine Mind, the divine Spirit, then we see that these qualities must ultimately derive from Him.

"I have seen this come to people as a concrete experience with far greater force than an LSD trip. The consciousness of man's individual relationship with God, his individual sonship, has come with such power that it has raised them up from material circumstances that had seemed almost crushing.

"The effect is to free us from slavery, to material conditions -- not to make us dependent on materiality in the form of a drug.

"The LSD experience, however mystical, is not comparable in any way with the deep, powerful experience of Christianity, of finding one's real unity with God in a meaningful way that affects all the details of life."

Let's Use It Wisely

The inevitable has happened. The people of Michigan have been afforded the privilege of paying a new tax—a state income tax.

The hue and cry for fiscal reform which has been tossed around for the past few years has paid off with the income tax.

But Michigan people should not be sucked in. The income tax passed under the gun Friday is not fiscal reform. It is more income, much of it needed to satisfy demands for services, much of it already eyed by bureaucrats for pet programs, much of it due to be wasted.

The question many people are wondering about is "How long will the additional income last in this era of the big spenders?"

How long will it be before Michigan is again spending more than it takes in.

Now that the cash crisis is over, at least temporarily, let's get serious in the legislature about the best fiscal reform policy of all. Let's get serious about living within the income. Let's replace the drive for fiscal reform with a drive whose banner proclaims fiscal integrity.

Taxpayers should keep a box score on those elected officials who move in the direction of spending more than is available to spend. Those spend-thrifts who blow the windfall of the income tax should be marked for defeat at the ballot box.

Remorse begets reform. That's why Louis Budenz, former editor of the Daily Worker in New York, is coming to Mason to speak at "I Am An American" Day Saturday.

Several have asked, "Why get Budenz? Why not get some World War II vet who has proved his patriotism? Why not get someone to make the speech whose patriotism has never been questioned?"

Testimony, whether given in religious meetings or in the public prints, always attracts more attention when the "before and after" technique is used. "I used to weigh 210 before I started on your 10-day diet," she declared. "Now I am down to 145 and the boys all whistle at me."

"How terribly bloated I was before I took the 2 bottles of Slippsypop; now I can even eat a bottled dinner without stomach distress." "Everyone called me skinny until I took your course in body building. Now the girls call me Tarzan." One of the pleasures which go with the abandonment of bad habits is the extolling of new virtues. "You ought to quit smoking, like I did," I tell all who'll listen. "Your sense of smell is so much keener. Your food tastes better. You'd feel better all over." That's what I say, and my words sound convincing, to me, at least. I think I know more about the evils of smoking than Joy Davis does. Joy has never used tobacco in any form. So he doesn't really know whether tobacco is good or bad for anyone. But I am positive.

Budenz saw the light. He repented. He is trying to make atonement. That's why he is anxious to testify on behalf of Americanism.

Charles (Chuck) Davis of Aurelius and Onondaga is an inspired speaker. He's a straight thinker and a straight talker. He packs more into 15 minutes than most public speakers do into an hour and a half. He spoke at a meeting of the Presbyterian Men's Council on Wednesday night of last week and even had the Presbyterians fired up.

The Countryside

By Bill Lutz

A blue ribbon "Panel on the World Food Supply" recommends that the United States assume world leadership in a war on human hunger. The panel suggests that this effort be undertaken with other developed countries and with international organizations. The report of the panel, just off the press, is given as a "Report of the President Science Advisory Committee."

The panel on the World Food Supply consists of 17 of the most knowledgeable men who could be mustered in this country for such a study. The chairman was Dr. Ivan L. Bennett, deputy director of the office of science and technology. Members included Milton S. Eisenhower, president of John Hopkins University; and Roger Revelle, director for the Center of Population Studies, Harvard University. Their report should be required reading for every citizen at all interested in hunger, termed by Mahatma Gandhi "the eternal involuntary fast" of an increasing number of people. The report can be purchased for 60 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington D.C., 20402. Perhaps your congressman will send you a copy. Rep. Marvin L. Esch sent me one on request.

The panel points out that despite billions of dollars spent for foreign aid, donations of millions of tons of food and herculean efforts by voluntary groups, there are more hungry people today than ever before. The panel concludes that the world food problem is so big, so severe, and of such long duration that a massive long range effort of an unprecedented nature is required to master it. It is their conviction that the world food problem must be solved within the next 20 years to avoid chaos.

When 17 of our finest minds and most responsible citizens come to a unanimous belief or conviction they deserve a hearing. They are unanimous in urging a new long term national policy. They state that the concern of this nation for the hungry is threefold:

1. Humanitarian -- "We should help the less fortunate simply because they need help and we are able to help them."

2. Security -- "Populations in the developing countries double in 18 to 27 years; 55 to 88 years are required for populations to double in the developed countries. We cannot afford to be too little or too late with our development assistance."

3. A better tomorrow for us, too -- "As nations develop, they become better markets for our products and everyone prospers. This report is exciting reading. I believe that the panel has made history. I believe that hunger can be overcome if enough of us decide that it must be overcome. Several years ago President Kennedy said that that generation could do it."

Quick to Fix and Great to Eat--That's Fryers

By EILEEN BELL
Marketing Information Writer

Quick to fix and great to eat--that's fryers. The meaty birds prove one of the busy family food fixers' best friends. Many stores feature "Chicken specials" at low prices, as supplies of fryers stay up. Most of them come from southern states.

Pick a chicken by reading the label! A round federal inspection stamp says the poultry is clean and wholesome. The USDA shield-shaped grade mark indicated the chicken is graded for quality. The USDA Grade A tags worn by the best birds, tender and plump. Lower-grade birds are less meaty and less attractive in appearance, although they have passed inspection and are wholesome.

Poultry is meat--menu wise and nutrition wise. It's a high quality protein food, low in fat and contains minerals and B vitamins.

Hurry fryers home from store refrigerated case, loosen the wrapper, or rewrap loosely in waxed paper or foil. Store immediately in the refrigerator and use within one or two days. Wash fryers in cold water just before cooking. Slow cooking at low temperature means less shrinkage and juicier, more tender and attractive meat. This proves true whether it's broiled, fried, roasted, baked, skillet simmered or casserole. Always cook chicken well done. It should be fork tender.

FRUITS

We'll see fewer red raspberries for sweet, fresh eating this summer. Reduced acreage, labor to pick, and disease are three of the problems this year in red raspberries.

Fewer blackberries, too, is the prediction from Michigan berry growers.

Largest loss of fruit from weather damage may be grapes. The grape "guesstimate" is for a harvest about one-half the grapes harvested in Michigan last year.

Apples and peaches look good, fruit men report.

CHEESE

Regular cheese, American, Cheddar, whatever you call it, the popular "everyday" cheese has been made in America since 1851. It takes 9 pounds of milk to make one pound of cheese. This makes cheese a concentrated food. The exact nutritive value depends on the fat content and moisture present, among other factors.

Cheese raises questions. All cheeses, except cottage cheese, taste best when served at about room temperature. Allow cheese to warm to room temperature by removing from the refrigerator about a half hour before the meal. After the meal, the unused serving portions should be tightly wrapped and returned to the refrigerator. This keeps the fresh quality and prevents drying.

Cheese sometimes gets mold on it, due to inadequate wrapping or storage under moist conditions. If mold appears on the surface, the cheese is still good to eat; merely scrape off the mold. Or it can be washed off with vinegar water.

PRICES

Why are some food prices what they are? Items which must be moved long distances and those which require much work receive, necessarily, higher price tags. For example, last fall carrots were $3.85 per carton, wholesale in the east. Of this $3.85, $75 went to grower of the carrots; $2 for picking (labor) packing and icing; and $1.10 for transportation from California to the east.

These changes in marketing costs and in farm production costs directly influence the price we pay for food.

Food prices go up, basically, for 2 reasons. First, higher costs per item to obtain--includes labor, land buildings, taxes and transportation. The other reason for pricing is added services, as washing of items, packaging, parking lots, air conditioning, expensive freezer cases, shopping carts, and all the conveniences we want with our food buying.

While food prices, as a whole, have increased, some products have not gone up as much as have others. Many products are actually lower in price than last year or even 5 and 10 years ago. Poultry is an example, as well as coffee, eggs, bacon and orange juice.

RECOVERED BIKES- This room is filled with bikes recovered by sheriff's deputies. They will be sold eventually at public auction if unclaimed.

Sheriff Warns Kids:

Don't Leave Your Bikes Unguarded in Public Areas

Sheriff Kenneth L. Preadmore, of Ingham county has urged parents of children with bicycles to warn them not to leave bikes unguarded in public areas.

From 15 to 20 bikes are reported missing in Ingham county every week and losses are estimated at $350 weekly.

Preadmore further urged parents to provide locks for their children's bikes and to encourage children to use them - especially when they park in public places.

Parents should keep a complete description, including serial numbers of bicycles not registered with the police department so that they can present this information to police in case of theft.

At night when children put their bikes away, put them in a garage if one is available, and, if one is not, put them behind the house and out of sight from the street.

If a bike is stolen, or missing be sure to report the incident to local police and check with them periodically to see if the bike has been recovered. Hundreds of bikes recovered annually go unclaimed by their rightful owners.

When the sheriff's department recovers an abandoned bike, it immediately checks to see if the bike has been reported stolen. If the bike goes unclaimed for a long period of time, it is sold at public auction which is held annually. Police repeat their check of recovered bikes before they auction the bikes to the public.

Preadmore reminds parents that now is the time of greatest danger for children on bikes. Parents, with children, especially with those between the ages of 7 and 13, should review bike safety rules with them.

When riding on a road or highway, bike riders should obey the same rules pertaining to traffic as automobile drivers do. They should obey all traffic signals especially stop signs and red lights and should always check behind them before turning or crossing on a street.

Preadmore further urges automobile drivers to be on the lookout for children on bikes and to expect them to do the unexpected.

The Dansville Little League ball team won its first game of the season against Perry, Frank Rector pitched most of the game.

The Holt team will play Dansville some time before July 15th.

A double header is planned with Stockbridge the afternoon of July 15. Any teams interested in scheduling games may contact Pat Risner or Rolland Wing.

PRECISION FLIGHT--The United States Air Force precision flight demonstration team, the Thunderbirds, perform one of the many maneuvers they will demonstrate at the 50th anniversary celebration of Selfridge Air Force base, at Detroit Mich., July 8. The Thunderbirds are one of many attractions in store for Michigan residents attending the 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

New Law Sets Date For County School Boards to Organize

A new law makes it mandatory that organization of school boards must be completed on the 2nd Monday in July by all 4th class schools, Alton Stroud, superintendent of the Ingham Intermediate school district, announced this week.

All but 4 schools in Ingham county are 4th class schools. Lansing is a 2nd class school and Waverly, East Lansing and Okemos are 3rd class schools. Some 4th class school boards had planned organization meetings this week. They now must postpone them until next Monday night, Stroud said.

One school board -- Dansville -- had its organization meeting this week, electing Fred Graf as president, Grant Putman, secretary, Orla Sheathelm, treasurer, and Jack Garner, James Frost, Rex Townsend and George Young, trustees.

Leslie Farmer Appointed to FHA Committee

LESLIE -- Arthur G. Fogg of Route #1, Leslie, has been named to the Farmers Home Administration county committee, according to Harold D. Gates, the agency's county supervisor here. The appointment is for 3 years.

The Farmers Home Administration county committee is composed of 3 members: Charles F. Grieb of Webberville, Lewis Shaw of Mason and the new member, Arthur G. Fogg. Fogg replaces Frank A. Trapp of Stockbridge, who served a 3 year term. The purpose of the county committee is to review loan applications from Ingham county farmers.

During the 1966-67 fiscal year 46 loan applications were approved and loans made in the amount of $491,070. The loans were made for the purchase of livestock, machinery, seed, feed, fertilizer and other farm expenses, also, for farm improvements, economic opportunity and to purchase and build houses.

During the same period of time, the Ingham county office collected $277,022. The Ingham county office located at Mason is now serving over 100 FHA borrowers.

Auto Crashes Are Reported

Ingham county sheriff's department reported a 3 car accident which occurred at 5:45 a.m. Wednesday morning at the corner of Cedar street and Aurelius road in Holt.

Cleofas Gomez of 2700 Aurelius road in Holt, driver of the first car, received cuts and abrasions to his arm. Margaret Gomez received lacerations on her head, Eva Gomez complained of back injuries and Joe Gomez was unharmed. The 3 were passengers in the car driven by Cleofas Gomez.

Terry L. Howell of 2066 Hamilton road, Holt, driver of the second car, was unharmed. Mary Cromwell of 1951 Cromwell, Holt, and a passenger in the Howell car, received bruises on her knees.

Kenneth J. McKinley of Route 1, Plains road, Eaton Rapids, driver of the 3rd car, received cuts on his head and a possible broken collar bone. All were taken to Lansing General hospital, treated and released.

At 7:39 a.m. Tuesday a car driven by Dale W. Galbraith of 214 Fogg road, Leslie, struck a reflector pole located off the exit from US-127 to Cedar street on M-36. Galbraith stated that he had fallen asleep.

The United States Air Force Thunderbirds, a precision aerial demonstration team, will etch the Detroit area skies with trails of white smoke as they perform before an anticipated crowd of more than 100,000 persons celebrating the golden anniversary of Selfridge Air Force base, July 7-8.

Their performance at 1:30 p.m. July 8, will be a part of the 2-day celebration featuring an open house for the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. that same day. Also highlighted will be a static display of old and new aircraft and missiles, along with a military parade.

Flying North American F-100 Super Sabres with wing tips overlapping 3 feet and separated vertically by a scant 5 feet, the Thunderbirds knife through the sky for nearly 30 minutes, their trailing smoke painting graceful loops, corkscrews and curves.

Yet despite the awesomeness of their precision maneuvers, the Thunderbirds are not a group of stunt pilots, but a team of highly skilled professional men of the Air Force helping to illustrate to the people of the United States and of our allies around the globe the Air Force mission of "Aerospace Power for Peace."

Car Hits Stump Misses Bird

Roger F. Everest of 2100 E. Grand River drive, Lansing, suffered lacerations to the head while driving on Harper road near Holt last Friday. Everest swerved his car in order to avoid a pheasant in the road, went off the road and hit a stump. He was taken to the Ingham Medical hospital by deputies of the Ingham County Sheriff's department, where he was treated and released.

In the succeeding 13 years has taken the Thunderbirds to 45 countries where their aerial artistry has been witnessed by more than 60 million spectators.

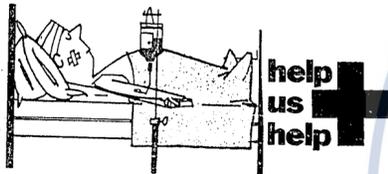

Traveling as much as 175,000 air miles a year and presenting a hundred or more demonstrations, the 6 demonstration pilots are backed by a hand-picked crew of officers and enlisted men, each an expert in his field and each a volunteer who has been selected from as many as a hundred other applicants for his position.

The 4 pilots who make up the Thunderbirds' diamond formation epitomize the beauty and grace of precision flight, while the team's 2 solo pilots show the maximum performance characteristics of the harmonious blend of man and machine.

Sometimes apart, sometimes joining together in 5 and 6-ship maneuvers, appearing before the spectators with a new maneuver every 30 seconds, they offer vivid testimony to the fact that the United States Air Force's tactical fighter arm is a strong one indeed, as was proved in Korea and as is daily being demonstrated in Southeast Asia.

This is fresh strawberry season. Since strawberries are highly perishable, buy in quantities that can be used within one or two days. At home pour the berries gently onto shallow trays. If they have reached the desired stage of ripeness, store them in the refrigerator. Otherwise hold them at room temperature until they are red all over, and then refrigerate. Just before using the berries, wash them quickly in cold water and snap off the caps. Berries allowed to stand in water will lose color and flavor.

On an average, one quart of fresh berries yields four or five 1/2-cup servings. That same quart will put about 1-1/2 pints of berries in the freezer. One further figure to note is that a cup of fresh strawberries adds only 55 calories to the diet while supplying the entire daily need of Vitamin C.

Cantaloupe, running toward medium and small size, come from Texas, Arizona, and California. Color, odor and netting indicate ripeness.

Watermelons - nice, red, juicy, and ripe - are coming from central states, as Florida is about through harvesting for the season.

Blueberries aren't coming up to last year's big harvest. Of this year's crop, about 10 million pounds of the Michigan dark, sweet gems will be sold fresh and about 13 million pounds will be processed - frozen and canned.

We'll see fewer red raspberries for sweet, fresh eating this summer. Reduced acreage, labor to pick, and disease are three of the problems this year in red raspberries.

Fewer blackberries, too, is the prediction from Michigan berry growers.

Largest loss of fruit from weather damage may be grapes. The grape "guesstimate" is for a harvest about one-half the grapes harvested in Michigan last year. Apples and peaches look good, fruit men report.

Cottage cheese may be called the solid form of milk because it is the curd, or coagulated protein of fresh pasteurized skimmed milk, cooked in its own whey, drained and washed, reports Eileen Bell, Extension Consumer Marketing agent.

Store cottage cheese as you do fresh milk - cold and covered. Creamy white and refreshing cottage cheese is at its flavor peak when used soon after purchase. Store it only for a short time, making sure the container is tightly covered. (Better not to freeze cottage cheese, as it tends to separate when defrosted.)

With the picnic and cold lunch season at hand, do you wonder how to avoid that unattractive greenish-black rim that sometimes discolors the yolks of hard cooked eggs?

FARROWING HOUSE--The Oakley's farrowing house was converted from a well-insulated poultry house. A gas-fired furnace and heat lamps make it possible for the Oakleys to farrow pigs in the dead of winter with no losses. Here John Oakley keeps some of the sows cooled down by means of a cold water shower.

PRIME PORK--Gerald Oakley of M-36, Stockbridge proudly shows off some ham and bacon with little or no fat, which was produced on his farm.

Oakleys' Pigs Produce Meat, But Little Fat

The ham and bacon produced on the Gerald Oakley farm near Stockbridge is a meat packer's delight and a housewife's dream.

Why? Well through the participation in an artificial insemination pilot program with swine, Oakley and his son, John, were able to develop a hog with maximum meat and little or no fat.

It isn't often a housewife can go to the supermarket and find bacon with 90 percent meat as opposed to 10 percent fat. Because this is the rule rather than the exception with the pork produced by Oakley, he is able to get a prime price for all his meat.

The Oakleys have an 80-acre farm and do not raise any of their pig herd feed. The average number of pigs per litter this year is 10 1/2.

As small farmers, the Oakleys have made it a rule to use all of their available equipment and buildings at a minimum of cost to keep overhead costs down.

For instance the farrowing houses they now use and keep filled every 12 weeks were converted from chicken houses. Sows in the field waiting to farrow are housed in the old-style A-line buildings.

"We don't spend a lot of money on new fangled facilities--we use what we've got.

The A-line pig houses were made from lumber of a barn torn down due to I-96 highway construction," Oakley said.

For 3 years the Oakleys were able to utilize the artificial insemination services offered by Michigan State University and the Cooperative Extension services. Through this program they developed a herd using the Yorkshire, Hampshire and Poland China breeds.

John, who is in partnership with his father, is a senior at Dansville High school and plans to attend the short courses offered at MSU. He is presently working with the university in a barley test plot experiment, a FFA wheat project and a very large garden.

The Oakleys are sold on the artificial insemination means of producing pigs for several reasons;

It provides a way for the small farmer who cannot afford to buy an outstanding and proven boar to get quality service and improve his herd at a minimum of cost.

With the service it is possible to breed a large number of sows at the same time under normal conditions. This means the farmer does not have to maintain 3 or 4 boars to service all his sows.

By breeding at one time, the farmer is only required to stay up 2 or 3 nights helping with the new arrivals, rather than staying up many nights with only one or two pigs at a time.

By having the sows farrow at the same time, this produces a large group of pigs which are uniform in size and can be easily marketed by the pen-full.

Farm Views And News

By JIM MULVANY

Probably nothing is more discouraging to a farmer than spending large investments on buildings that are soon outdated. New developments in dairy, beef and swine housing during the past 3 years has made nearly every building constructed since 1960 obsolete.

It doesn't make good sense any more to look over what the neighbor built and copy it. One, instead, should tour about the state looking at the still newer ideas at work.

One aspect of farm buildings being neglected in Ingham county is insulation. All farmers need to take a look at what a minor investment in insulation materials can do for animal health.

Buildings, such as, milking parlors, calf barns and farrowing houses should not be constructed without insulation. This does not mention the poultry houses, but poultry people learned the value of insulation quite some time ago.

Once buildings are well insulated, supplemental heat for small animals becomes surprisingly reasonable. Heat not only keeps man and animal comfortable, but is a necessity to accomplish good ventilation. Calf barns are our most neglected buildings on dairy farms. There are real opportunities for dairymen to make fast returning investments in well insulated calf barns.

The Ormston Farm near St. Johns in Clinton county has adopted the use of electric heat to their relatively new calf barn. The barn has 3 inches of fiberglass in the sidewalls and ceilings and 2 inch polystyrene placed against the footings.

Last winter the building was held at a temperature of 65 degrees by use of two 3,000 watt electric heaters. Meters were placed on the building to record the total kilowatt consumption. During the period April 1966 through May 1967 some 9,072 kilowatts of power supplied the heat, plus lights, water heater and ventilation. Total cost for this amount of power was $151. The average amount per calf on the Ormston Farm was $2.75.

This calf barn will be available for dairymen to observe on the State Farm Management tour August 1 in Clinton county.

Michigan's 1968 Wheat Allotment Is Announced

Michigan's share of the recently announced 1968 wheat allotment is 1,241,575 acres according to Frank J. Light, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service.

Nationally the allotment for the 1968 crop of wheat was set at 59.3 million acres and is down 13 percent from last year. "This acreage will produce the supply of wheat needed to meet domestic and export needs during the marketing year which begins July 1, 1968," Light said.

He added that this acreage would provide a crop of approximately 1.5 billion bushels or slightly less than this year's record crop. Light further added that a 1968 crop of this size will balance with estimated domestic use of 735 million bushels and an export target of at least 750 million bushels.

"The 1968-crop acreage," Light said, "is geared to our expanding dollar export markets as well as to domestic wheat needs at prices attractive to producers. At the same time, sufficient production cushion is built in to enable us, in concert with other nations, to continue meeting our obligations to help those countries which as yet are unable to provide sufficient food for their people."

'Mac' McDowell Attends Confab

Wilmot McDowell of E. South street, Mason, recently attended the 52nd annual convention of Kiwanis International at the Sam Houston Memorial coliseum in Houston, Texas.

A total of 16,000 persons, Kiwanians and their families, were on hand for the meeting, representing some 275,000 Kiwanians in 5,400 clubs from the United States, Canada, Mexico, Central America, the Caribbean, Western Europe and the Far East.

Michigan's Seal Marks Quality Farm Products

Looking for fresh, top quality farm goods?

Try the packages carrying the Michigan Seal of Quality emblem.

Through cooperation with the Michigan Department of Agriculture, producers of certain agricultural products have set up extra high standards that assure buyers of getting the very best the season has to offer.

Crops coming to market with the Michigan Seal of Quality emblem this summer include celery, eggs, sweet cherries, mushrooms, greenhouse tomatoes and leaf lettuce. In each case, producers of the crop have voluntarily worked out a standard of excellence that is enforced under law by the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Marketing under the Michigan Seal of Quality is still in its infancy. It was first authorized by the Michigan legislature in 1961. Michigan farmers hope that the seal may become a nationwide symbol of excellence of Michigan-grown foods, and urge buyers to seek the seal at food markets.

Bike Chassis Found Minus Parts, Motor

ONONDAGA - The chassis of a motor scooter stolen 3 months ago from Charles Higelmira of 5653 Bellevue road, Onondaga, was reported found by Higelmira in an abandoned house on Rossman road, Onondaga.

Higelmira told Ingham county sheriff's deputies that the scooter, which had been stolen from his father's garage at 4787 Baldwin street, Onondaga, was stripped of its motor and most of its parts. The incident is still under investigation.

4-Hers Stage Model Meeting Competition

Three 4-H Clubs participated in the model business meeting contest, each with a team of 10 members. These young people gave a club meeting demonstration, and every member had a part in the program to show correct use of parliamentary procedure. This included the order of business, offering and presenting motions, reports of committees and 4-H project groups, use of parliamentary rules, and taking thorough action on the assigned topic for discussion.

These 34-H Club represented over 40 community 4-H clubs in the county where members plan and conduct their own meetings and local club activities during the year. The North Williamston 4-H club was selected to represent Ingham county at State 4-H Club show in August. Michigan Income Slips

By Elmer E. White

This is not an art class but a group of students in the summer reading program, shown as they paint a mural, depicting what they saw as they toured the Waterloo Farm Museum last week.

Summer Students Tour Museum

By Ruth Camp

The rebuilt windmill at the Waterloo Farm museum was the primary subject of pictures painted by students in 2 classes of the summer reading program following a visit to the restored farm home.

The classes taught by Mrs. Edgar Sweet and Mrs. Emory Lehman toured the building and grounds of the museum last Tuesday morning. Before leaving for the museum, the students were shown pictures of pioneer life, and they were told how people lived in the early days.

At the Museum, Mrs. Sidney Beckwith, Mrs. Ronald Mayer and Miss Margaret Beckwith served as guides, explaining each little detail of the museum to the touring students.

After everyone had seen the interior of the old farm house Mrs. Beckwith gave a demonstration of the art of spinning yarn from wool.

Among the items which aroused the most interest of the students were the old-fashioned flat irons, the bear rug, candles and candle making, butter churns, and the rug loom.

Before leaving the museum the youngsters were given the opportunity to purchase stick candy and homemade soap.

During class the next day a period of time was set aside so the youngsters could paint a picture of whatever they liked best about the museum. They also wrote stories of their visit. The students seemed to enjoy the painting session almost as well as the visit to the museum itself. Six pictures of the windmill were included in the mural painted by students in Mrs. Sweet's class.

More local field trips are being planned for the classes in the elementary school as well as one for students in both schools.

Music sessions, scheduled once a week during the program, are also being planned and will be conducted by Mrs. Paul Ramsdell.

Income in Michigan rose at a less-than-average rate in 1966 according to the Office of Economic Expansion. Personal incomes in the state averaged a 7.7% increase over 1965 as compared to a national average of 8.2%.

A lag in manufacturing, led by a cutback in automobile manufacturing, was felt to be the major deterrent in holding personal income to slower gains.

In total personal income per capita, however, Michigan ranks 14th among the 50 states with an average of $3,219 per person annually. Highest in the nation is the District of Columbia with per capita income of $3,969; lowest is Mississippi with annual income of $1,751 per capita.

Incomes of state and local government employees showed the greatest increase in Michigan, rising 13% over 1965. People employed in transportation, communication and public utilities enjoyed the next greatest rise, 12%; earnings of federal civilian employees increased 9%, the same rate for construction workers. Lowest rise was federal military, whose pay increased 4%.

PRISONER JOBS

A rehabilitation program for a select group of inmates at Michigan prisons may prove to be the transitional step needed to bridge prison and private life.

Under this program, selected inmates work daytime jobs in the "outside world" and spend nights at the prison. Gus Harrison, director of the Department of Corrections, pointed out that inmates eligible for the "Work Pass Program" must meet three requisites: less than one year remaining before parole; good security risk; no history of mental disorder, assaultiveness or sexually deviated conduct.

Inmates are placed in jobs located within the communities where they will be later paroled. Care is taken not to assign them to jobs which could be filled from the local labor force.

Success of the program merits it being continued and probably expanded, urges Harrison. A total of 156 men participated in the first full year of testing. Only 11 were removed because of unsatisfactory work performance or violation of program rules.

Employers expressed general satisfaction with the inmates.

New Hours Announced

The Social Security office of Lansing has in effect new office hours. Times will be 8:30 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Monday through Friday and every Monday evening from 4:45 to 8 p.m. The office is located in room 201 of the Federal building.

mate-workers. Performance ratings on 48 inmates showed "good" to "outstanding" from 75% of the employers. Two-thirds of the employers polled stated they would recommend inmates who had worked for them.

Individual earnings averaged $85 per week. Of the total earned, 30 percent is sent to families and 50 percent is placed in a savings account for the inmate upon parole. The remainder goes for work-related expenses such as clothing and transportation. The state assesses $5 per week to help meet program administration costs.

Most inmates credit the program with helping to support dependents and establishing a savings program. In several instances, the plan made possible the removal of dependents from public assistance rolls.

Expansion of the program would involve cooperation of county sheriffs. Inmates could be placed in jobs farther from the correctional institutions if they spent non-working hours in county jails rather than in prison. Harrison reports that many sheriffs have shown an interest in the program and such an extension is likely.

SURE THING

An almost sure bet can be made that, in a group of 20 people, at least one has an expired driver's license; as many as 5 to 6 would not be beyond probability.

The secretary of state's office has done preliminary studies on the problem and estimates as many as one-third of Michigan's drivers miss renewing their licenses before expiration.

Under Michigan law, drivers' licenses expire on birthdates every 3 years. No notification of expiration is issued.

Recently a group of legislators met with secretary of state staff to discuss ways of eliminating the problem. During the discussion, one lawmaker reportedly discovered his driver's license had expired.

Penalties for failing to renew on time vary with the court and circumstances involved. Usually the remiss driver is stopped for another, more serious, violation. If a ticket is issued, the court may assess fines for the moving violation but not for license expiration. The time lapse between expiration and apprehension is usually considered another factor. Driving on an expired license is contrary to Michigan statute and does carry a penalty if the court wishes to exercise its authority.

Want to bet your license has expired? Take a look.

MSU Dean Explains China's Revolution

China's Cultural revolution can be understood as a struggle between pragmatism and dogmatism, Michigan State University's Dr. Paul A. Varg told a national conference of 300 high school and college history teachers here.

The pragmatists, championed by Chinese president Liu Shao-chi, want to strengthen China by improving standards of living for peasants and laborers, explained the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters.

But Mao and his minister of national defense, Lin Biao, want to perpetuate a puritanical and revolutionary spirit, he said. Mao fears material concessions to peasants and labor unions would sap the fervor of the revolution.

Dean Varg told the 14th annual advanced placement history conference that the struggle between pragmatism and dogmatism extends into foreign policy. Pragmatists, he said, favor getting aid from the Soviet Union for a strong drive against the U.S. in Vietnam. Mao favors guerrilla warfare.

Understanding Your Health

Adult Screening Test Is Available to All

By Albert E. Heustis, M.D.

We are all familiar with the idea of conserving our natural resources, especially as it applies to our wildlife and forests, and to our lakes and streams and rivers. But there is another natural resource not often thought of or mentioned in connection with this conservation idea -- and that is the natural resource of your own health. Your health department's program of adult health screening tests is designed to help you to monitor and conserve that part of nature closest to you -- your greatest natural resource.

You may already have seen one of our special trailers on the road or in the community. These trailers are equipped to administer simple but vital health tests to all interested adults, without charge. The whole process takes only about 30 minutes, and is by appointment for your convenience. The results are forwarded to your family physician for evaluation.

Of course these tests do not prove the presence or absence of disease, but merely select or "screen out" those persons who may have some signs of an illness. Your physician must then make the final judgment after further examination.

Here is what happens in the trailer: you will receive a chest x-ray to check on possible signs of heart disease, tuberculosis, lung cancer, and other chest disease.

You have a blood sample tested for sugar, hemoglobin, cholesterol, uric acid, and creatinine, and you will be given a blood pressure check to uncover possible heart trouble or blood vessel difficulty.

You are tested with an electrocardiogram machine which traces a record of the electrical impulses from your heart on a moving sheet of paper. This record is analyzed by specialists.

Your vision and hearing will also be tested, and your height and weight will be checked against certain standards to reveal any serious overweight or underweight condition.

Sound interesting to you? Well it is. It's an excellent chance for you and other adult members of your family to check on your good health (or to detect a disease condition in its very early phase when it can be successfully treated and controlled).

A phone call to your local health department is all it takes to find out when the adult health screening tests program will be operating in your area of Michigan.

Looking Back at the Past

One Year Ago--1966

The Mason board of education met Tuesday with its new superintendent of schools, Robert Watts, and its new assistant superintendent, Jerry Spink. It was the first meeting of the administrators with the board. The board re-elected its officers: Robert Leonard, president; Lyle Thorburn, secretary; and Marvin Lott, treasurer.

Mason police department has created a new position on its staff--that of sergeant. Allen Winters, a patrolman with the department for the past 16 months, was named this week to be the first to wear the stripes on his sleeves.

10 Years Ago--1957

John Waldo, originally from Colorado but now an English teacher at Leslie, will become school coordinator in Mason next fall. He succeeds Miss Phyllis Byrum who will teach in the Eaton Rapids schools next year.

Three Mason youths will leave Sunday for Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, to attend the 4th national Boy Scout jamboree. They are Robert Watson, Douglas Strickland and Dale Kennedy.

20 Years Ago--1947

Among the 230 high school students enrolled in a special 3-week summer course at Michigan State college, are many from Ingham county. "Trust In The Lord"

Proverbs 3:5, 6 "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him and he will direct thy paths."

Two of the fundamental elements of a complete commitment to the Lord and acknowledgement of God in all our ways. The Proverbs say: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart." Trust is synonymous with faith, or confidence. We exercise faith everyday. When we make a deposit in the bank we trust them to take care of it, invest it and also to return it upon our demand. When we hire a baby sitter we trust her with our most prized possessions. We trust her to care for them, watch over them and to turn them back over to us when we return. God wants you to trust Him in the same way with your life -- body and soul -- now and in the hereafter He will return your investment with immortality.

Notice also the object of the trust or faith in Proverbs, it is "In the Lord". All people, I believe, have faith of some kind or other. Even an atheist believes in his own ideas. Yes Christians and non-Christians have faith the difference is the object of the faith. The faith of many people today is a misguided faith in self, materialism, education or some other unworthy object. The psychology of the day is to tell people to "have faith". But I ask, "Faith in What"? A popular song of a few years ago said "Have faith, hope and charity, that's the way to live successfully. How do I know? The Bible tells me so."

The Bible teaches no such thing. The Bible teaches faith in Jesus Christ and his death on the cross to save worthless sinners. Without this object of our faith then faith is vain. Hope and love come as a result of faith in Christ. They are fruits of the Holy Spirit in the life of a Christian.

Faith in the Lord must also be "with all thine heart! God does not tolerate half heartedness. No marriage will ever be successful if the parties are only half way committed to each other. If they continue to keep old girl friends and boy friends their union is a farce. So it is with becoming a Christian old loves, old ambitions must be laid aside and God must become the object of our affection and worship. Our lives must revolve around Him and we must forsake all others.

God must be acknowledged in all our ways. Not just in religious matters. You cannot put Christianity on and take it off like your Sunday suit. Christ must be the center of every avenue of your life. He must be acknowledged in your home life, your work life, school life, he must be acknowledged in your habits, hobbies and pleasures.

When these conditions are met then we read, "He shall direct thy paths." He does not direct the path of the indifferent, the self seeking, or pleasure happy but of those who trust him with all their heart. Where is your trust, or faith? Is it in the eternal Christ who alone saves from sin and gives hope for the future? Or are you still trusting some unworthy object?

Under 21 July 4th - Not Just A Day off Work

By Douglas Dilday

As of yesterday, our nation became 191 years old. That, when you think of it, is quite an achievement, because yesterday stood for 191 years of freedom and a way of life.

There are those, of course, who thought of yesterday as only another 4th of July, a day off from work. But American freedom goes deeper than just one day of remembering our forefathers. Our freedom is a daily privilege, because every day we do something, that on an individual basis, people of other countries are not allowed to do. We can go where we want, when we want, with whom we want, but it's all taken for granted. Few people stop to think of all the sacrifice and ordeals that people went through to make our way of life possible.

The ordeals for our freedom could be described as a long, well traveled road. It starts out from Concord and Lexington, goes to Texas and the Alamo, moved up to our Civil War, then through 2 world wars, a Korean conflict and the road continues with Vietnam. Our freedom was and is, bought and paid for with the blood of many different people.

But why is it that our day and age must degrade and ridicule our country and those that fight to preserve our way of life? With these demonstrations and such, aren't people grateful for all that we have? As a teenager myself, I say that yesterday only added another "feather" to the "hat of liberty". It meant that our country has stood for all these years, through all sorts of situations, and myself, I hope it keeps on standing.

People of other countries look to the United States as the true symbol of freedom and democracy. It is up to our generation to keep that thought from dying. It is up to us to preserve the American ideals, and by "us", I mean everyone over and . . . under 21.

Our Object

Let our object be our country, our whole country, and nothing but our country. And, by the blessing of God, may that country itself become a vast and splendid monument, not of oppression and terror, but of wisdom, of peace, and of liberty, upon which the world may gaze with admiration forever.

Republicans to Gather Again 'Under the Oaks' At Jackson on Saturday

Republican members of the Michigan senate and house of representatives will gather in Jackson next Saturday, to mark the rededication of that community as the birthplace 113 years ago of the Republican Party.

The celebration at the Jackson county fairgrounds will include a special presentation by the legislators to former Senator Haskell L. Nichols, 11-term member of the senate and 4-term member of the house.

Speakers during the day-long event include:

U.S. Congressman Fred Schwengel of Iowa, considered a foremost Lincoln scholar, who will make a major address Saturday afternoon prior to the barbecue.

U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, co-author of the Landrum-Griffin act, who will speak in the early afternoon at the fairgrounds.

U.S. Congressman Guy VanderJagt of Michigan, who will speak at the rededication ceremony at the 1854 meeting place "Under the Oaks" at Franklin and Second streets in Jackson.

Congressman Charles Chamberlain will have parts in the program and the Michigan executive office will be represented by Lieutenant Governor William Milliken.

Mrs. Donald Root, president of the Jackson County Republican Women's federation, is the general chairman.

Proceeds from the celebration will be used to establish a trust fund for the purpose of locating the National Republican Party's archives in Jackson. First phase of the effort will be to sponsor a display building at the Ella Sharp museum.

About 100 Michigan Young Republican club officers and members will attend. David Kendall, Jr., state president, said the organization is holding a convention in Jackson

Future Fly Control May Be Possible

Recent research, which has led to excellent fly control on Mackinac Island, shows promise of controlling flies on the island -- and the rest of the state -- for many years to come.

Michigan State university entomologists Roger A. Hoopengartner, Gordon E. Guyer and David H. Krause found methods for raising several colonies of flies from relatively small numbers collected on the island. They then tested the colonies for susceptibility to several insecticides.

By using these research procedures, they were able to raise 3 times as many generations as would occur naturally each year. And, by testing various insecticides on successive generations, were able to foresee at what point the flies would start becoming resistant to the chemicals and could then start looking for new and effective chemicals even before the need arose.

at the Hayes Motor hotel and will participate in all of the events.

A motorecade to the Franklin and Second streets memorial will start the Saturday festivities at 1 p.m. Congressman VanderJagt will speak at the site of the 1854 meeting in what was once a grove of oak trees. The original convention gathered there because the size of the crowd forced them out of the downtown meeting hall.

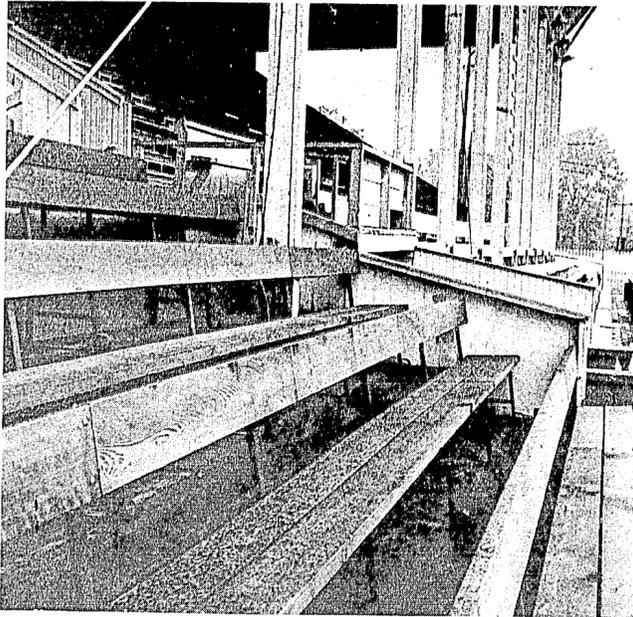

Returning to the fairgrounds, the public will view historical exhibits, listen to band music (rock-and-roll for the teens), and then will reassemble for a barbecue and speeches and presentations.

Acomodations for out-of-town guests are being arranged by Mrs. K.F. Anderson, 1621 Herkimer Drive. Ticket sales are being handled by Miss Jean Alderdyce at the C.O.P. headquarters at 407 South Jackson street. Harvey Slemmons, director of the Ella Sharp Museum, is arranging for exhibits.

Dr. Robert Cotton, Co-chairman of arrangements, said finance chairmen of the various Republican organization in the state are being contacted.

Ted Dwyer, new county Republican chairman, will host invited county chairmen in the state and Mrs. Marvin Schram, Parma, will receive presidents of Republican Women's clubs of the state.

Out-of-state presidents of Republican Women's federations will be greeted by Mrs. Ruth Hobbs, Ann Arbor, president of the Michigan Federation of Republican Women.

RESERVED FOR THE FAIR--These are the new seats in the reserve section of the grandstand. The new seats and the new masonry floor under them are part of the many improvements made on the fairgrounds in preparation for the 1967 season.

County Fair Grandstand Improvements Underway

Hammers are banging and new planking is being carried in as the grounds and buildings are being readied to accommodate the thousands who will start visiting them Monday, July 31, when the Ingham county fair opens its doors for another season.

In fact more than $10,000 has been spent to replace worn seats in the reserved seat section, to cover practically all the buildings and rooftops with new paint, and for other improvements to the grounds.

A floor of Masonite has been laid to cover most of the grandstand section which will facilitate the clean up crew's work. Before, with no floor, paper and other litter fell underneath the seats and between the grandstand planks, causing a fire hazard, and it was difficult to clean up.

In addition, a new lean-to has been erected at the horse barns, and a new exercisepen for the horses of the 4-H horse clubs has been built.

All told, these improvements should make for a pretty good fair this year.

Among the projects especially suitable for city and suburban 4-H's are automotive, safety, health, home economics, dog care and training, community beautification and photography.

A PRACTICE RUN-- The race horses stabled at the Ingham County Fairgrounds are off and running in preparation for the 3 days of harness racing that will again be offered at this year's fair.

Poor Management Explains Decline Of Dairy Farmers

Management is a big reason why so many dairymen are going out of business, according to Professor C.R. (Ray) Hoglund, Michigan State university agricultural economist.

He said a recent study showed that many southern Michigan dairymen earned $8,000 to $12,000 for management, labor and interest on an unencumbered investment in 1966. They made these earnings even though they received an average milk price of $4.87 per hundredweight (about 42 cents a gallon).

"The dairyman who is a poor manager would have low returns even if he received $7 per hundredweight for his milk," says Hoglund.

He claims the keys to management success involve development of the skill to handle money, investments, labor and bargaining.

"The dairyman should recognize the worker as an integral part of the dairy operation and should treat him accordingly," comments Hoglund. "He should also recognize the worker's need for security and prestige."

In bargaining, Hoglund points out that the farmer's political power is diminishing and that dairymen will have to learn to work together to bargain with large buying organizations. These organizations, he says, should be regional or national in scope in order to control enough supply to make any impact.

"Honey, come here and sit down," said Dorothy. "I want to talk to you."

She said it in that tone of voice that wives reserve for special occasions. Like when hubby goes out and buys an unauthorized fly rod, thereby damaging the family budget. You guys all know what we mean.

Only thing, we hadn't bought a new rod or much of anything lately. We suspected, though, that we were about to get the worst of a bad bargain, so with foreboding we sat down.

"I've been reading your outdoor columns," she said, "and I'm pretty interested in what you say about hunting and fishing being just for recreation."

We brightened considerably at that, for it's a well-known fact that the wives of outdoor writers seldom get around to reading what they write. A lot of other people might read it, but not a wife.

Obviously, this was merely the build-up for the fall. She continued: "If hunting and fishing are for recreation and it really isn't important whether you bring home any game or fish, then why is it necessary to have all of that expensive equipment to hunt and fish with?"

As we pondered for an answer, she continued: "Just look at the stuff you need to go duck hunting. You have to have a boat, motor, decoys, special shells, special shotgun, portable blind, a dog to fetch your ducks (if you ever shoot any), special clothes, hip boots and decoys."

"You said decoys twice," we protested weakly.

"Well, for as many decoys as you have, I should mention them twice," she said. "And look at the way you load down the car just to go fishing. Why you need a dozen rods and reels, I'll never know, and that's only the start. You have landing nets, hundreds of sure-fire baits that you've never even had in the water, waders, leaders, bobbers, sinkers, line dressing, fly oil, a creel and a boat and motor."

"You said boat and motor when you inventoried my hunting gear," we interrupted. "For as much as they cost I should say it 4 times," she said. "I could mention a lot of other stuff you've got but I think you get the idea."

"Now to get back to my original question -- if hunting and fishing are just for recreation, why do you men need so doggone much equipment. Can't you hunt with just a gun and fish with just a pole?" She leaned back with a gleam in her eye like a prosecuting attorney resting his case.

"Well, that's easy to explain," we finally said. "It's just a little difficult to put into words."

Hmmmm. We've just been wondering . . . any of you fellows happen to know the right words?

Few Cars Pass Police Tests

Of the 29,499 vehicles inspected thus far in the state police vehicle inspection program, only 6,000 have passed. "Most of the 23,499 vehicles which flunked the test did so because of deficiencies in their lighting systems," said Corporal Ted Niewiada of the selective enforcement section of the state police. In addition, many drivers were driving with expired operators licenses, many didn't have their vehicle registration with them, and many had no proof of insurance.

Niewiada lists the following as the most frequent deficiencies found in inspected vehicles.

Defective headlight alignment, inoperative license plate lights, inoperative windshield washer, inoperative emergency brakes, defective front lights or light, inoperative turn signals, noisy or smoky exhaust system, wiper blades with bad rubber or too little tension.

"These alarming figures point to a serious safety problem," said Lieutenant Bryce Grey of Safety and traffic of the state police, as his crew began an inspection in Delhi township this week. "Such vehicles with defective lights, brakes, and other essential equipment are no doubt responsible for many of the deaths and injuries which occur on Michigan's highways annually," Grey said.

Teen-Age Girls Do Just That

by Charlotte Camp

This is a story of several of today's modern, young people and their sincere desire to help others. They are 7 Stockbridge area teenage girls, all 4-H members, who are involved in "Project Passport". Project Passport has many phases and these 7 girls wanted to do something different, something that would be really helpful, so they joined the Red Cross youth program.

The girls are; Judy Craft, 14; Diane Hazell, 15; Eleanor Craft, 16; Carolyn Cowan, 16; Dawn Rhines, 13; Terrie Greenanmyer, 17; and Connie Howard, 13.

Every Saturday morning the girls are taken to Jackson by their 4-H leader, Mrs. Gerald Salow. She drops off the 4 older girls at Mercy hospital while the younger ones go to the St. Joseph Home for Boys.

At the hospital the girls do whatever tasks that are assigned to them by hospital personnel. Last Saturday they ran errands for the pharmacy, played with children in the pediatrics ward, and read letters to elderly patients.

The girls have also attended a class in bed feeding of patients and they work under the supervision of registered nurses.

At the boys home, the 3 younger girls in the group spend their Saturday mornings entertaining and helping boys ranging in age from 2 to 14.

They play with the younger ones, help others make beds and, have even tried their hand at tutoring some who have learning problems.

The girls also help in the kitchen if needed and, one Saturday, spent the entire morning folding clothes.

Why does this group of girls, who could no doubt find something more entertaining to do on a Saturday morning, choose to spend their time helping the elderly and the very young? One of the girls answered simply, "We wanted to do something worth our while."

Some of the girls say they like the work so well they are considering entering the nursing profession after high school.

The girls are members of the Jackson County Junior Red Cross chapter and have been issued the familiar red striped uniforms, which make them appear quite professional.

While many of the stories concerning today's teenagers are not pleasant, it must be remembered that only a small percentage are responsible and that many of them are making a healthy contribution to this modern society.

With that thought in mind we are indeed proud to salute the 7 Stockbridge 4-H girls and their leader and the work they are doing.

Summer Recreation Schedule

The schedule for boys and girls activities in the Stockbridge summer recreation program is as follows:

Pee-Wee baseball for boys 8 and 9 years old, Mondays at 1:30 and Wednesdays at 4:00. Midget baseball for boys 10-12, Mondays at 1:00 and Wednesdays at 6:00. Boys in the Midget league will also meet on Fridays with 10 year olds meeting at 12 noon, 11 year olds at 1:15, and 12 year olds at 2:30.

Girls who are 7 and older will meet Mondays and Wednesdays at 1:30. They will meet Mondays at the tennis courts and on Wednesdays in the basement of the Presbyterian church.

Boys in the same age group, 7 and older, who wish to take part in a general recreation program will meet every Tuesday and Thursday at 9:30 a.m. at the athletic field.

Both boys and girls, 7 years of age and older, may take part in the swimming trips to Portage lake. The bus will leave the athletic field at 12:15 every Tuesday and Thursday. Youngsters are reminded that every one must have a partner and that there is a charge of 15¢ per person.

Larry White, director of the program, reports that approximately 45 boys have signed up for the Midget Baseball league (10-12). White said that these boys will play games among themselves on Mondays and Wednesdays while Friday will be devoted to special

C.D. Worden Is New MEA President

Clifford D. Worden

Clifford D. Worden, East Lansing High school teacher, began his term as president of the 73,000-member Education association, July 1.

Worden has served the past year as MEA president-elect. A Michigan educator for 19 years, Worden, 44, began his teaching career in 1948 at Lee High school in suburban Grand Rapids. Two years later he accepted a position in East Lansing. He holds a bachelor's degree from Central State college, Stevens Point, Wisconsin, and a master's from the University of Michigan.

"Quality education through professional unity" is the theme for the MEA this year, selected by the new president.

Worden states that one of his concerns is the public image of teachers. "Unless we can show the public that we are concerned with instruction, we can fall into the rut of the welfare items," he says. "We can be forced more into straight employment roles. We must utilize the negotiations law as a vehicle to improve our role as professional educators by improving the instructional program of our schools."

Worden, a past president of the local MEA affiliate in East Lansing, will succeed Martha Zemke, Bay City High school counselor, as MEA state president.

A New $20,000 Fire Truck For Stockbridge Township

The long wait is over. Stockbridge Township's new fire truck arrived last Friday, several weeks behind schedule. Now that it is here however, Stockbridge and surrounding townships will have the benefit of the latest in fire fighting equipment.

The new truck, purchased at a total cost of $20,000, is the latest thing in efficient fire fighting equipment according to fire chief Howard Ashmore. Among its features are a 35 foot, 3 section aluminum ladder, 14 foot roof ladder, a 10 foot attic ladder, and a water tank with a capacity of 750 gallons. The 4 stage, heavy duty pump is mounted midship on the tilt cab chassis.

The truck chassis, purchased from Cobb & Schreer, was outfitted by the American Fire Apparatus Company in Battle Creek. With the addition of the new equipment, the fire department can now arrive at a fire with a total of 3,000 gallons of water. The present tank truck has a capacity of 1500 gallons and the 2 pumps 750 gallons each. The new truck will replace a 21 year old model that was purchased in 1946.

Supervisor Ted Fay said the purchase of the new truck will not mean an increase in taxes. He said that funds to pay for the truck will come from the township fire fund, which receives money from 5 other townships for fire protection. He added that it is hoped the truck will be paid for in 5 years.

Stockbridge Township's newest piece of fire fighting equipment arrived last Friday and several firemen, along with township board member John Nichol were on hand to look the new truck over. Left to right; Pat Long, Herb Dickinson, Dick Ashmore, Nichol, Bob Mackinder, and Cecil Cobb.

Electrical Know-How Big Help to 4-H'ers

Thermoelectricity, nuclear electric power and electronics head the list of new things being explored by 4-H'ers enrolled in the 1967 national 4-H Electric program. However, practical know-how on everyday use of electrical energy in the home and on the farm continues to attract 175,000 youths throughout the U.S. as the 4-H Electric program goes into its 32nd year.

Westinghouse Electric corporation sponsors the program conducted by the cooperative extension service. The National 4-H Service committee, Chicago, and local power suppliers also cooperate. Volunteer local leaders and county extension agents work directly with the youngsters in carrying out their electric projects and activities.

Annual incentive awards are offered by Westinghouse to boys and girls who make good progress and achieve certain objectives in the 4-H program. Six national $500 scholarships, 50 state winner trips to the National 4-H Club Congress held in Chicago in November, and four honor medals per county are awarded.

NEW LAW--Governor Romney signs a new state law banning the sale of certain dangerous fire extinguishers while Doctor and Mrs. Norman Henderson, of East Lansing, watch. The Hendersons were active in helping Representative Charles J. Davis, of Onondaga, draft the bill.

New Law Prohibits Hazardous Types of Fire Extinguishers

A new state law to protect innocent residents from fire extinguishers that can kill people as well as fires is the result of teamwork by East Lansing residents and servants. Rep. Charles J. Davis of Onondaga a graduate of MSU and the representative for East Lansing to the House of Representatives, introduced the bill, House Bill 2482.

The idea for the bill is credited to Doctor and Mrs. Norman D. Henderson of East Lansing and the proposal had the active support of the Michigan State Medical society, at 120 West Saginaw in East Lansing. Mrs. Henderson bought a dangerous fire extinguisher and her troubles led eventually to the law signed by Governor Romney -- also of East Lansing.

As passed by the legislature, House Bill 2482 adds private dwellings and vehicles to those places off limits for the sale and use of fire extinguishers whose chemicals reach a certain deadly level of toxicity. "Some of these extinguishers give off gas as deadly as that used in World War I," according to Doctor Henderson.

"People often don't know how potentially dangerous those small aerosol fire extinguishers can be," Doctor Henderson continued.

"Householders should check to see if they have safe fire extinguishers. The only way they can be sure is to have them checked at the fire station," concluded Doctor Henderson.

Claim Payments Up In May

Average payment from the motor vehicle accident claims fund during May, spurred by large personal injury settlements, soared to over $700 according to Secretary of State James M. Hare.

The total paid out of the fund through May topped the $700,000 mark as the fund paid its 1,500th claim.

"We're now seeing a significant rise in payments because of the adjudication of the more costly personal injury claims," Hare said. "I believe that the average payment will continue to rise," he said.

Repayments by uninsured motorists totaled nearly $88,000 through May, an increase of more than $17,000 during the month. In the meantime, Hare reports, nearly $163,000 was paid out during May to victims of accidents with uninsured drivers.

Students Will Discover Function of Bee Colony

The hummin' of the bees in the sugar plum trees is a part of what camp Woldumar is all about.

For at Woldumar, boys and girls over 9 and their parents will be sticking their noses (hands and fingers too) into just about every one else's beeswax to learn all about the activities of the bumble bee.

The camp will be run by 4-H clubs and by Nature Way Association and will pay its own expenses through the sale of honey and of candles made of beeswax. At the camp, boys, girls and interested parents will learn the fascinating habits of bees, how to handle bees without getting stung, to process the pack honey, to build beehives, and to use the equipment essential to the bee keeper.

The camp will have its own apiary (beehive) which will contain over 40 colonies of bees. And at more than 60,000 bees per colony, that's a lot of bee-keeping! The students will use the camp's new honey processing equipment to extract the honey from the combs and prepare it for sale.

Terry Ellard, an instrument maker for Michigan State university's bio-chemistry department, runs the bee project in his spare time.

He has been interested in the activities of the bee for more than 8 years, and his enthusiasm for them is contagious. Bees are remarkable among insects for the almost human organization of their hive. There are 3 types of bees and each has specific duties which it performs for the community. The queen bee produces new bees to re-populate the colony or to start a new one.

"She is not really a 'queen' bee," said Ellard "for she is more commanded than commander. She doesn't direct the action or control the hive. Her only real function is to produce the eggs which the drone bees fertilize. In Europe they call her the 'mother' bee which is really a more accurate name," he said.

As queen, or mother bee, she lays as many as 2,000 eggs a day at the height of her capacity.

The drone bees are appro-riately named for their only function is to fertilize the queen's eggs. But their life isn't as soft as it sounds for they die immediately after mating with the queen. Those that do not mate with the queen are thrown out of the hive when winter comes. Injured bees or older bees who can't keep up with the rest of the hive are also thrown out to die. "There's no old age pensions or medicare in the bee hive," Ellard remarked.

The worker bees work -- and they really work! They gather nectar for the honey, make the honeycombs, secrete the wax which seals the combs, ventilate the hive, warm the hive, clean the hive, feed the larva the queen produces and even maintain the proper humidity level in the hive. Some guard the hive, some aid the queen, and others may fly as far as 8 miles to gather nectar.

"In order to produce 1 pound of honey the bees have to fly the equivalent of 2 times the circumference of the earth!" Ellard said.

The bees make honey by adding enzymes to the nectar in special honey stomachs they have. The enzymes break down the sugars contained in the nectar. The honey is then thickened by reducing its water content from 80 to 18 percent.

Most Michigan bee keepers have been getting an average of 50 pounds annually per colony. That figure excludes about 60 pounds of honey the bees produce which the keepers must leave for the bees to enable them to get through the winter months when they don't make honey. Woldumar averages 75-100 pounds of honey per colony, and in one case Ellard took 300 pounds of honey from a colony, still leaving the bees the necessary 60 pounds of honey for the winter.

Ellard and his youthful bee keepers are able to beat the averages on honey production by "manipulating" the conditions inside the hive in order to keep production at an optimum rate at all times. For example if the queen bee is ailing, they may introduce a new queen bee. Or they may change the internal structure of the colony to aid the bees in honey production.

In the winter the bees hibernate and require less care. They group together and form what is called a winter cluster in which the outside bees insulate the cluster and the inside bees generate heat. The outside of the cluster may be 43 degrees while the inside may be as high as 90 degrees. The bees, in the wintertime, live off the honey left for them except in cases of emergency, in especially bad weather, when the bee keepers must add additional sugar to the hive. Students will meet for the first time on Saturday at 7 p.m. under the leadership of Ellard. This first meeting will feature a movie, a hive demonstration, and a display of a glass-walled hive.

SMOKING THE BEES - Terry Ellard here smokes the bees in their hive. When the bees smell smoke, they busy themselves in preparing to evacuate the hive, and ignore the bee keeper as he opens the hive.

All interested boys and girls are invited to join the bee keeping camp and can contact the Ingham County Cooperative Extension service 127 E. Maple, Mason, phone OR 7-9411, Extension 25, or Woldumar, 5539 Lansing road, Lansing, phone 372-4991.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The rose comes very close to man's standard of perfection. Its delicate beauty seems to mock every effort of the artist or camera to capture it. But is the rose really God's masterpiece? Hardly! For its beauty is passive. It brightens life only for those who seek it out and gaze upon it. And in but a few days it withers and is ugly. God's masterpiece is MAN. For with all his waywardness and selfishness, Man is capable of reflecting the love of God. When he lets God touch his life he is able to bring happiness and faith to others. He doesn't have to wait until he is noticed. He can actively bring spiritual blessings to his fellow men. As the gardener cultivates the rose, the Church cultivates the lives of men. Always it strives to help us become all that God wants us to be.

Orrin Grettenbergers of Okemos Develop Modern Horse Breeding Farm Near Leslie

By CLARA C. STRANGE
News Special Writer

LESLIE - Those driving out Catholic Church road near Meridian road, in Bunkerhill township, are amazed and delighted at the transformation of 160 acres into a bit of Old Kentucky in a modern horse breeding farm.

It has a red and white trimmed stable, correctly banked track, wooden fenced paddocks with 8, 10, and 12 foot lanes between them, pastures, crops, and one suspects though erroneously, the work of landscape architects when looking down the gently rolling terrain dotted with clumps of evergreens and graceful elms with several manmade lakes that will help in the irrigation of the place.

This is the horse-breeding farm of harness racing stock of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin K. Grettenberger of Okemos. It was a year ago this June that the Grettenbergers bought the acreage at 3202 Williams road. Grettenberger said they chose this spot for many reasons among them being it was less likely to become residential in the foreseeable future thus protecting his extensive investment.

The farm is affectionately called "the Bitzer Place" by those who have lived in the area for a long time. They feel the transformation has been amazing.

Finished is the expertly designed and attractive 140 by 40 foot stable with a living ell of 60 by 40 feet centered and jutting out from the stable area. It is painted a vivid red with white trimming and delightfully finished by two weathervanes atop the stables area each perched on miniature cupolas and consisting, in addition to the directional arms, of wrought iron horse and sulky.

In the living ell, on one side is an attractively appointed, deeply carpeted, apartment complete with fireplace and all amenities for gracious living for Mr. and Mrs. Grettenberger when they wish to stay at the farm.

Across the hall is the functional and comfortable apartment for the men who live on the premises, except for Mr. and Mrs. Edward Casagrande (He is in charge of training) who have their own trailer, and Al Chaffin in charge of building and maintenance who comes in each day from Okemos.

The groom's quarters are attractive and have a fully equipped kitchen where the men prepare their own food. It would be dear to the heart of any housewife with its gleaming range entirely of stainless steel as are the double sinks.

The cabinets holding china, utensils and supplies are of wood and there is, of course a good sized refrigerator. A long counter serves as both a divider between the kitchen and the lounging area as well as a table. Next to the kitchen are the bunk rooms and baths for the men.

Walls of the long hallway between the 2 sets of quarters and leading to the immaculate stable is appropriately lined with pictures of victorious horses and drivers from various races around the entire country as far away as Arizona and California.

Here, in the stable, on either side of a 12-foot wide black topped alley are twenty-four 12 foot by 12 foot stalls each with polyethylene covered walls and handsome doors surrounding well-beaten-down clay floors.

Each stall has its own drinking fountain that horses operate themselves. The water issuing from them has been slightly warmed electrically since it is felt highly-gear horses should not drink ice cold water. Even the doors and all other moving parts are mounted on ball-bearing run appliances since race horses are sensitive to harsh or abrupt noises.

Manager of the Stable is "Doc" Bralman. As mentioned before, the head trainer for the Michigan Farm is Edward Casagrande, Dr. David J. Ellis of Michigan State and Dr. E. E. Visgar of Okemos are the veterinarians.

There is a groom for every 2 horses and in addition, Louis Dorsett has been called back from retirement at Mt. Hope, Wisconsin to care for a valuable horse for what Dorsett calls "a minor matter".

He was delighted to help where this mare is concerned. When talking to him he was sitting beneath her massaging and applying liniment with temporary bandages. Later he went to a younger horse and asked for a kiss and immediately the horse placed a very wet but undeniable buss directly on his lips!

A wash room within the stables is for horses where they can be washed in cold weather. There is a medicine room with its bay called, by sign, "The Maternity Ward". Neat racks of well-folded blankets for each horse are close by the stalls. When a horse, or colt, has been exercised and becomes sweaty, a blanket goes on immediately. A groom watches to see that it is removed just as soon as the horse dries off.

Outside, there is a well-banked track that looks very functional and as if it had always been there. This is, of course, not so. Huge bulldozers were required to fill in some of the deeper ravines of 10 to 15 feet. Then slighter undulations were also cared for before the 400 tons of crushed limestone were mixed with top soil and made into a smooth surface.

Each day the horses are "jogged" around it going clockwise for exercise. At least twice a week the trainer takes them counter-clockwise to develop speed and other points in preparation for actual racing.

Grettenberger says this is a business deal purely and simply. He enjoys the breeding and raising mostly, but you must also race to get a record that makes a horse valuable. He says racing is just "part of the deal". He says it definitely pays its way.

Some will remember that Grettenberger was State of Michigan Director of Narcotics and Drugs for 15 years. He has, in addition, 2 drug stores. One is in Okemos and one in Indian River.

Enjoying horses has been part of his life, Grettenberger says and he has always had several horses. He says that his daughter, now Mrs. Darwin Shaver, has always, and still does, ride a great deal. His son, John, is district sales manager for Olds in the Los Angeles sector and is interested more in the racing end.

"Horse-breeding is a very special kind of business that takes, as does all business, great care of every detail," the owner went on to say. He said there were 3 parts to the plan before racing comes into the picture.

The first is:

Breeding—The greatest of care must be exercised to mate a mare with the best possible stallion that has the blood lines that will cross correctly with hers to make for stamina, stability, and speed.

He said no artificial insemination is used where the finest race horses are concerned and none by their farms.

All mares are taken to his farm in Kentucky for dropping their foals and are left there until time to breed after which they are brought back to Michigan. It takes 11 months for the colt to mature to the point of birth.

The second division is care: The Grettenberger Farms have one groom to every 2 horses. They mix their own feed on the farm having equipment for both crimping and mixing in a rodent-proof building which is adjacent to the stable and will also house their blacksmith shop.

There will be some fields of hay crops put in. Each paddock has an underneath the ground sprinkler system which will keep them green, the water coming from the man-made lakes and springs on the farm.

The barns across the road from the stable and living quarters will be renovated to house extra hay. There is at least a bale of hay per day given to each horse in addition to the special feed.

Horses are curried and brushed daily. All stalls are kept scrupulously clean. Special care is shown about seeing that sweaty horses are immediately blanketed and the blanket removed just as soon as the horse has dried off.

All paddocks are board fenced and will soon be painted with black creosote to keep the horses from eating or tearing apart the posts and slats. The paddocks are 8, 10, and 12 feet apart to keep horses from reaching across and nipping each other.

Some of these horses are "2 minute" ones and those even shaving this figure which in racing parlance means big winners.

The third division is training:

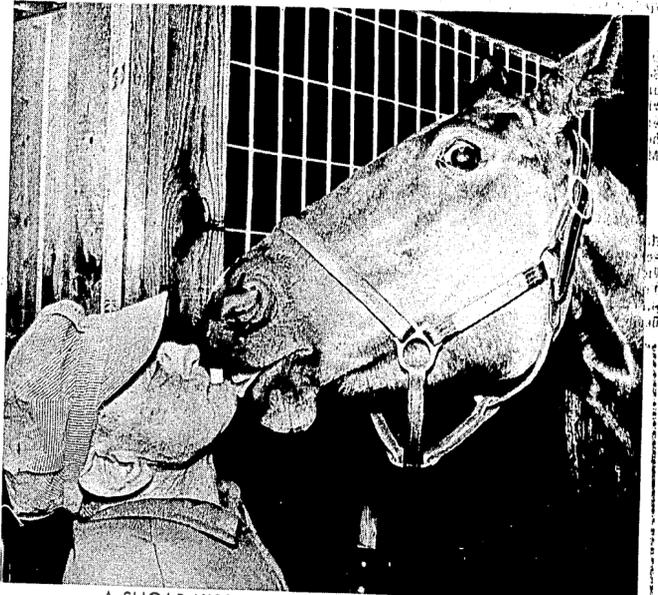

Here professional secrecy takes over for the most part. The need for the professionally rated track is shown in this category.

Grettenberger says he hires trainers by the year. He has Robert Darling as head trainer in Kentucky and Casagrande as head trainer in Michigan.

There is no price tag placed on any horse at the present time but one of the men divulged $75,000 had been refused for one mare and a very young horse that had been bought for $2,500 was not resold a few weeks later when a bona fide offer for $17,500 was made to the owner.

Then there is the matter of transporting these valuable racers from one spot to another. The Grettenberger Farms have their own horse vans each capable of carrying 10 horses with 2 grooms for each horse.

So there is a lot that goes on behind the scenes before you see a harness sulky winner either at a public race track or at county or state fairs. It is the day-by-day care and know-how that doesn't meet the eye of the racegoer that makes the difference. When you see the horses hitched to a shell and scurrying around the track for your pleasure do remember that there is perhaps no other business where stricter care

A SUGAR KISS--Louis Dorsett finds it is an easy task to get a kiss from one of the Grettenberger horses--provided he has that necessary lump of sugar perched in the right place.

KENTUCKY IN MICHIGAN--The Grettenberger farm brings to mind the large rolling countryside of Kentucky, which is used extensively for all the different phases of horse farming for a profit.

PLUSH QUARTERS--Living quarters for the Mr. and Mrs. Orrin K. Grettenberger of Okemos are attached to the very modern facility for breeding and training racing horses. The Grettenberger farm is on a 160-acre site near Leslie.

DAILY WORK OUT--Each horse at the farm is exercised each day. Here Evan "Doc" Braman, stable manager, works with the horse Lula Rudlege.

I JUST CAN'T DECIDE what to do now that I'm rich from the quick results I got with my classified ad.

I told Mom to call the NEWS, I didn't need all that baby stuff anymore. Sure enough! With one week of advertising I sold all of the baby things I had out-grown.

Mom's are OK but sometimes they just have to be told where to find the bargains, Imagine just 75¢ for 15 words.

Now I'll tell you! Just pick up the phone and dial 694-0425 or 677-9011 to sell those no longer needed but still good items. The friendly ad-taker who answers will be happy to help you word your ads or answer your questions.

I'd bet my pins on the results you can get with a classified ad.

Its so easy Just 75¢ *Charge it if you like!

For A WANT AD Almost Sure to Get RESULTS

Beginning with next week's issue of The News, the minimum charge for want ads will be increased to $1 for 15 words and 5¢ per additional word. We just couldn't arbitrarily make this price adjustment without sharing a thought or 2 with you about the reasons. In the past year, circulation of News want ads has more than doubled. They presently go into 14,832 homes every week. In fact the News want ad section goes into more homes and contains more want ads than any other weekly publication in either Ingham or Eaton counties. All this, of course, means only one thing to you--the customer: RESULTS. There is probably a publication somewhere in the world that publishes want ads for 10¢ each. Yet, it's the circulation that counts--and where the circulation goes counts, too. News want ads cost $1--but compared with the number of homes IN THIS AREA that will receive your message, the cost is small indeed. Try a News want ad and see for yourself!

If you want results, you want the News.
