ONE DAY AT A TIME.

When worry and care and toll are ours,
And the day's weary tasks we climb,
Let's think of the restful evening hours—
We live but one day at a time!

So let us toll on for those we love,
To fret and despair is a crime;
'Twill lessen our load to look above—
We live but one day at a time!

And at last, when life's gray shadows fall,
Ere we pass to the realms sublime,
We shall hear the Master's welcome call,
"Thou hast lived well— one day at a time!"

—John Urlic.

A FAIR PATIENT.

The summer of 1891 was the first gay season Gleichen had ever known. The picturesque little town, nestled in one of the most beautiful regions of the Catskills, had been overlooked heretofore by all but a small contingent of summer boarders, but last season the old Griggs House, which overhangs the village on the mountain side, having been thoroughly remodeled, was rechristened the Hotel Sejour, and Gleichen was extensively advertised as one of the most charming and healthful resorts about New York.

Among the earliest arrivals at the Hotel Sejour was Mrs. Ainsleigh, a lovely young widow, who wore the most elegant toilet Gleichen had ever seen. But mere beauty at the Hotel Sejour during July, and time hung heavy on Mrs. Ainsleigh's hands. She was suffering from a slight nervous attack one afternoon when she sent for a physician—young Dr. Mowbray, who had been graduated three years before from the New York polytechnic.

Then an idea occurred to him. He rose and taking the money counted out $100, which he put in his vest pocket, then took the two hands of his invalid and kissed them passionately and slipped the remaining bills in the opening of her glove, pressing her fingers over them.

"Dearest," he intimated, "we must part; my heart is well nigh broken at the thought, but we will love each other while we may, and that we may never forget the happy hours we have passed together I wish that we may each possess a memento which shall always remind them. Let us divide this money and each purchase a keepsake—a jewel, which will remain to us forever a mute testimonial of our valued happiness."

He had spoken with great feeling and was himself deeply affected, but Helen rose calmly, deliberately drew out the bank notes from her glove and returned them to her paramour.

And it was not until she had gone, with out giving him a last gentle kiss, that he realized she was furiously carrying away only half the money.—Frances M. Livingston in New Orleans Times-Democrat.

ETYMOLOGY MADE INTERESTING. The Origin and Curious Evolution of Some English Surnames.

A magazine article by Sir Herbert Maxwell presents in a very readable form the derivation of a number of common names. It will be news, for example, to many of our readers that Shooka was once known as Seveniques. Some persons are not aware that Eliza is but to be accounted an unmeaning form of Isabel, which was formed from Isabella in a false supposition that Isabella was masculine. Eliza, it is stated, is not a shortened form of Elizabeth, but is the equivalent of Alice. Marion, we know, is in line with Marie, Mary and Maria.

Patronymics have been much multiplied through pet names. The Saxons formed pet names by adding to the original name—often abbreviated—kin and cock, and the Normans introduced et and on and on. From William we have the pet names Will, Wilcock, Wilkin, Willett, Wiley, Wilmet, Wilken, Bill and Guill (Latin). From these we get, in order, Williams, MacWilliams, Williamson, Wills, Wilson, Wilcox, Wilkins, Wilkinson, Willet, Wilton, Wilnot, Wilring, Wilson, Gilkin, Gilkinson, Gilson and Gillett. Robert—through Robin, Dobb, Bob, Rob and Hobkin—gives us Roberts, Robertson, Robins, Robinson, Robison, Probyn, Dohls, Dolson, Hobbs, Hobson, Robbs, Robson, Hopkins and Hopkinson.

Philip gives us Phipps, Philipot and Philipot. Richard has been distorted by affection into the pet names Rich, Richie, Dick, Diccon, Hitchcock and Hitch.

"Whom? Why you, my dearest, of course!"

"Mar—marry me? Oh, Robert!"

"Why—why—what do you mean?"

"What would you do with me?"

Mowbray was too stupefied to answer.

She regarded him with a compassionate smile. "Poor Robert—Is it possible you can have been so serious? Don't look like that or I shall think our beautiful summer is going to be all spoiled."

"Look at that!"

It was a dressmaker's bill, and at the bottom four figures danced before Mowbray's eyes. He could not see what they were.

"Think of you marrying a woman with such tastes at the outset of your career, Robert!" she said regretfully. "There are more of these, but this woman is becoming troublesome. I shall have to refer her bill to Mr. Ainsleigh, and then I suppose there will be trouble; there generally is in such cases, but—"

"Whom? Why you, my dearest, of course!"

"Mar—marry me? Oh, Robert?" she asked innocently.

"You are not a widow, then?"

"Oh, dear, yes," she replied, laughing softly. "Mr. Ainsleigh is my late husband's brother, and acts as a sort of guardian to me. He is very rich, and he thinks he wants to marry me."

"And you—are going—so marry him?" asked Mowbray faintly.

"I cannot tell—I do not know. Oh, Robert! why did you speak of this hateful subject of marriage? I don't want to think of it. I was so happy just to know that you loved me. I find it so pleasant to be loved. Why must men begin to talk of marriage right away?"

Mowbray was sick at heart and miserable. He went away wondering that his happiness had been wrested by a heartless woman. He resolved never to see her again. Two days later she had another nervous attack and sent for him.

"Mr. Ainsleigh is coming next week," she said, "and we shall probably leave for Bar Harbor soon afterward. Let me make the most of our time, Robert; I may never meet again, and we are too fond of each other to quarrel."

Poor Mowbray was to far gone to protest; he was very unhappy, but he came to see her every day.

Then Mr. Ainsleigh arrived. He was a tall, silent man, of about fifty. He met Robert plenarily enough, and to the surprise of the young physician there was not the least change in the relations between himself and Mrs. Ainsleigh. They walked and rode together as before, and Mowbray was almost happy again. He felt as though he might win Helen yet, when one morning Mr. Ainsleigh followed him from the room and sent a cold chill to his heart by saying:

"Dear, Mrs. Ainsleigh and I leave for Bar Harbor the day after tomorrow. Will you do me the favor to send your bill to the hotel in the morning?"

To refuse was impossible. What would Mr. Ainsleigh think of such an unkind

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM.

Say! Weren't you boys over draft on a girl
And continually meeting and sighted?
Mad as a wasp if she studied on your elbow,
If she frowned on yourself, almost crying?

Say! And a lump ever come in your throat,
When to say something sweet you were trying?

When the words wouldn't come and your face
Turned red,
And you wished yourself far away flying?

Say! But your knees knock together like
A child.

As you carried her home from school?

Say! Did you drop 'em and skip off alone,
And leave her? I was that kind of fool.

—Lyton Wharncliffe Dilley in New York Sun.

THE MISSING MAN.

The inspection of the life saving station was finished, and I was complimenting the captain upon the efficiency of his crew when it suddenly occurred to me that one of them, whom I had especially remarked at my last visit, was missing.

"What has become of the man you used to call Harry?" I inquired. "He was the strongest and handsomest fellow I ever saw—quick as a cat and light on his feet as a feather. Has he left?"

The captain looked at me aghast. "What! Haven't you heard about it?" he faltered. "No? Well, it's quite a story. If you've plenty of time I'll tell you about it."

I had plenty of time and wanted to hear the story, so we sat down near the door, and the captain began:

"I suppose you recollect that long, fierce southeast gale we had last winter, don't you? Well, it blew from the southeast for two days, with heavy squalls of snow. It was bitter cold. Everything was covered with ice and snow, and the worst sea had begun to beat against the beach. On the morning of the third day the tide began to break away and the wind died down to a light gale. Almost all of the schooners in the roads got under way and started for Harsch harbor. Some of the smaller ones had to put back, the sea being so heavy, but the larger ones kept on, and I suppose they made a good run of it, as the wind was fair.

"That night it started in to blow as if it was possessed to blow the earth off its foundation. At 10 o'clock it began snowing. The flakes were about as big as a fifty cent piece, making it impossible to recognize anything over five feet away. The snow fell until about 12, I think. After that it slowly began to clear up and the wind came in gusts of diminished strength. At daylight it was blowing a moderate southerly breeze and the sky was clear. We searched the shore and sea for signs of a wreck, but could not find any.

"As I thought, I became very much worked up, and looked around for some one on whom to vent my rage. I saw Harry sitting in a crevice of the cliff, calmly puffing away at his pipe. This somehow aggravated me. I walked over to him, and asked him if he was going to sit there like a blooming idiot and not do anything to help save himself and the rest of us.

"He stood up and his face turned pale, for I said a great deal more than I have told you about, but let that pass. He looked me all over. I thought he was going to strike me. Then, walking toward the boat, he said, as he passed me, 'I'll get you out of this scrape, but—' He was going to say something more, but evidently changed his mind. On reaching the boat he made a bowline on the end of the line, and throwing it over his head and right arm started for the

The Democrats will hold a caucus at the Town Hall, Saturday, Sept. 10th, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of electing delegates to the County and Representative conventions.

One can hardly realize how much territory one can travel over and combine business and pleasure in so few days at our present fast ways of travelling. For instance, J. R. Dalt left here last Tuesday morning for Detroit, spent the day
there, in the evening took the train to Buffalo, did his business there the next day and from there went to Bradford,
Pa., visited friends and was back here
Friday morning at 6 o'clock, a. m.

ing her mother, Mrs. C. M. Atwood, returned to her home in Chicago, last Saturday.

Mr. T. M. Winters has traded his corner lot and other lands for the sprightly stepper of Owen Building's. Dog likes good houses.

Mrs. Loren Miller is dangerously sick.
Mina Wadie is also very ill. Park Ferguson is on the sick list, but at present is on the gain.

School meeting last night did not close without an accident, one person fell down stairs, and two somewhat hurt.
Cause too much firewater.

The W. E. M. will meet at the M. E. church, Wednesday afternoon of this week at three o'clock, to open their winter books, after which there will be a

Mrs. Eliza Terrell, of Hudson, who has been visiting her brother, Mr. Isaac Roosa, for the past few weeks, returned home today.

Miss Wethia Walker closed a very successful term of school at Locke Center Saturday. The afternoon was spent in speaking and singing in which the children did finely, after the exercises were over the pupils presented their teacher with a toilet box, after which all present partook of a bountiful supper
and ice cream and all went away feeling that the afternoon had been well spent.

“OUT OF SIGHT!”

No reference to Cleveland, Harrison or Sullivan, but to our Fall Stock of Clothing, which we have just received. We are right after your trade, its a prize, and if big values, low prices and square treatment will get it, its ours.

We have built a reputation for low prices, and this fall we shall lower our record from one to two dollars a suit, and if you will look our stock over, you will be convinced that each price tag is an honest statement of the exact value of the goods, and that you can not better them anywhere.

We have studied the wants of the trade and are convinced that we have what you need and that our Clothing will please you in price, style and quality all we ask you to do is to look and convince yourself of the facts and then, whatever your decision is we shall be satisfied.

We have all the various styles—Single and Double Breasted Sacks, Chesterfields, Cutaways, Broadway Frocks, and Prince Alberts in the most approved Fall patterns and can furnish you a good neat suit anywhere along this line.

STATE NEWS.

The C. & W. M. road is exchanging all old style of car couplers for a new automatic invention.

A young man has just been sent from Ionia county to the insane asylum.
His insanity is charged directly to the cigarette habit.

D. C. Carr of Fowlerville, has been appointed mid-dcamp to the commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Brakehouse Charles Stubbs, of the D.
L. & N., had three ribs broken last week at Portland, by falling from a box car, the accident being due to the parting of the train.

Jackson county supervisors have brought a suit by which it will be decided whether children having property can throw their aged parents onto the county a public charge.

Lake Odessa is all torn up by a quarrel between the law and order league and the schools. Added eggs and justice courts are figuring conspicuously in the trouble.

The steamer Western Reserve, bound for Cleveland, broke in two off An-Sable banks near Deep Park Tuesday night. Twenty-six persons were drowned. Harry Stewart, of Algonac, was saved.

During the past five years the Calumet & Hecla mine has produced 34,540 tons of refined copper. At present the total assets of this huge concern is $1, 183,800.71 and the liabilities $1,157,866.

Mitchell Hogmin, an Arlington farmer, purchased 15 acres of swamp
land a few years ago for as many dollars.
This year he sold about $5,000 worth of peppermint oil from fifty-five acres of this same swamp land.

Fred Green, aged 25, was arrested at Greenville last Wednesday afternoon
on a charge of stealing a $65 gold watch.
He admitted his guilt and said that on being suspected he had thrown the watch in Black lake.

The Nineteenth Michigan Infantry
will hold a reunion in Kalamazoo on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. Capt. Frank D. Baldwin, U. S.
A., newly hedged colonel also in the Michigan state troops, presides over the body this year.

Woodville is a Jackson suburb, which seems to be on the verge of dropping into the middle cavity of the earth. It is completely undermined by coal mines and during the last few days, great cave-ins have appeared. A 60-foot line failed to reach the bottom of the largest one.

James L. Babcock, the Ann Arbor bachelor to whom was bequeathed a fortune on condition upon his marrying within five years, is to be married this month to Miss Ella Hanley Butler, formerly of St. John's, now of Waukegan, Ill.
Babcock received bushels of preposals a week, but the bride seems to have waited for James to do the asking.

Harry Vandoeuvre, George Rix, Orin
Sabin and Ernest McBride, of Mason, pleaded guilty to two charges before Justice Parkhurst, recently of stealing watermelons. Five dollars and costs settled the claims of outraged Justice.
George Cross, one of the parties losing the mous, is reported to have accepted $5 from the boys in payment of the claims and then allowed the case to proceed and the boys to be fined. Mr.
Cross is threatened with prosecution.

Lane's Family Medicine.
Moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

M. Young, of Eaton Rapids township, started last week with his two steam threshing machine rigs in three box cars for Minnesota, where he will operate them during the fall season.
He took a gang of 14 young men along
to work for him.

Some one sent the editor of the Lake Odessa Wave a letter saying that if he published certain things he would be "done up." He did it and referred him to them in another part of this issue.
He is now waiting to take his punishment for doing his newspaper duty by writers in giving the news.

Miss Ida Sherman, of Charlotte, former teacher at the Hub, last year a teacher in the Grand Rapids training school, was consecrated last Sunday to the Baptist ministry. She preached her first sermon in the evening. She will study several years probably in the University of Chicago, and then enter the missionary field.

Last Tuesday morning three prisoners attempted to escape from the prison at Jackson, and two of them were shot by the guards. Their wounds are dangerous. Guard J. J. Freeman, formerly of Antrim, was the first three and shot one of the convicts. All three desperate men, two of them having escaped a trifle over a year ago.

It is said a new style of swindler is doing business in the state this fall.
He's buying farms for the Standard Oil Company. Such a big concern does business on a large scale of course, and a lot of talk talking gets the farmer to impart his title without a consideration.
Then he is inducted in a comfortable
room or threatened with the expense
and trouble of a lawsuit.

A shepherd, after running
his herd through the sorting process,
found he had three dozen of back number perfume, so he gave a kid a dime to go and sell them to some other merchandiser. The other merchant turned took the eggs to the owner and tumbled them so that eggs and owner comprised a head omelet. He gave him a rapid transit egg shampoo.

Wholesale dealers and jobbers say that the bean crop will be as heavy, if not heavier, than last season. The average is reported to be about one-third larger. Beans are a paying crop, and the good price of late has given bold farmers to cultivate it more extensively.
The pea bean has the preference over the medium variety. In fact dealers all over the country ask for pea beans. Pea beans bring from five to ten cents a bushel more than the common or what is usually called the medium beans. Jobbers now quote bushel picked beans at $1.50 per bushel. Some of the early varieties of beans have already been pulled and have turned out very fine. The main crop, however, is not sufficiently ripe to be pulled. The beans seem to be fully developed and will positively cure. Peas, or no pay required.
It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price average in consideration the yield will probably be twenty per cent, larger.

Bucklin's Aronica Salve.

The best salve in the world for Cuts,
Blisters, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheumatic Fever, Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all skin eruptions.

Living a sufferer from chronic cataract,
and having derived great benefit from the use of Ely's Cream Balm, I can highly recommend it. Its sales are far in excess of all other cataract remedies.—B.
Franklin, Druggist, Sigourney, Iowa.

I suffered from acute inflammation in my nose and head - for a week at a time
I could not see. I used Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days I was cured.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Electric Bitters and one box Bucklin's Aronica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, had five large Fever sores on his leg.
One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklin's Aronica Salve cured him entirely.

WILLIAMSTON, INGHAM COUNTY MICH., SEPTEMBER 7, 1892.

NOTICE OF LETTING.

Notice is hereby given that we, Oscar C. Post and John M. Bradley, County Drain Commissioners of the counties of Ingham and Livingston, respectively, of the state of Michigan, will on the 12th day of September, A. D. 1892, at the residence of Edward Beerley on Section 6 in the township of Handy in said county of Livingston at 9 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, proceed to receive bids for the construction of a certain drain known and designated as the West Cedar Drain, located and established in the township of Handy in Livingston county, and the township of Leroy in Ingham county, and described as follows to wit:

An open main drain to be known and located as the West Cedar River Drain and situate in the township of Leroy in Ingham county and the township of Handy in Livingston county, and beginning at stake No. 0 (zero), situate in the center of the Cedar river state swamp land improvement at a point 4 chains 87 links west and 10 chains 52 links south of the town corner of townships 3 and 4 north and range 2 and 3 east, being the townships of Leroy and Locke in Ingham county and Conway and Handy in Livingston county, the center line of the said West Cedar river running thence up the stream the bearings and distances hereinafter set forth, to-wit:

FIRE EXPERIENCES.

MATE CLAXTON TALKS ABOUT HER
MANY NARROW ESCAPES.

She Says That She Is In Reality a Coward Whenever She Hears the Cry of "Fire! Fire!"—Her Escapes Have Been Due to Extreme Coolness.

For over fifteen years Kato Claxton has been pursued by a peculiar form of ill luck. In spite of the little woman's pluck, which has made her a heroine of several fires and a dozen or so of panics, she rather shrinks from the subject, and it is with difficulty that she can be persuaded to tell of some of the escapes.

Her experience at Harris' theatre, when the cry of fire caused a panic, is only one of the several through which she has passed since 1875, the year of the celebrated Brooklyn fire. She had just been dragged from the stage by La Frochard, the bag in "The Two Orphans," when a reporter sought her out. The excitement of the false alarm had left her nerves a little shattered, she explained. When reference was made to her apparent coolness she said that her manner showed nothing of what she really felt.

to me? I had begun to think that my evil genius had forgotten my existence, it seemed so long since the last panic. I was in an exceptionally good humor, and was sitting on the steps of the platform when the stampede began. As is always my first impulse, I rushed to see the flames. I did not doubt that the building was ablaze. At one glance, however, I saw there was no danger, except that which comes with every panic.

"You know," she said, "that I dread a panic worse than I do a fire. My experience has been that more people are crushed to death in their efforts to get out than are ever burned alive. The escapes I have made, which some seem to think almost miraculous, were the result of coolness and presence of mind. When the cry of fire is given I never allow my impulse to run with the crowd to govern me. I imperil my life somewhat in order to seek out the danger and choose the best method of escaping from it. Often, it seemed to me afterward, had I followed the mad rush for the main exits I would never have escaped.

"My reputation as a fire fiend began the second year I acted in 'The Two Orphans.' I was playing in Brooklyn. I had thrown myself on the straw bed to sleep. I had closed my eyes, and for this reason did not discover the fire at first. When I was awakened and ordered to get up I saw the fire creeping along the top of the theater. Every one remembers the fatal ending. Four hundred persons were burned or trampled to death, among whom were three of the company. The next year, 1878, I was caught in the St. Louis fire. Ever since then I have been considered a fore-runner of fires.

"I can only account for the numerous false alarms and panics from the fact that there are always some superstitious person in the audience who, believing me to be followed by an evil genius, shouts fire at the slightest provocation. More panics have been caused by fights in the streets and alleys than in any other way. Just a short time ago there was a panic in La Crosse, Wis., caused in the identical way as the one here. Another panic, which came near being a disaster, was caused by a street fight in front of the Owens opera house, in Charleston, S. C. When one starts it is impossible to check it. I have tried screeching to the audience, but it only makes it worse. My presence often seems to check a stampede. At the close "Of all the theater panics I have been in only three were caused from fire. Several times the flies have been ablaze without any one in the audience knowing it. I have become morbid on the subject of fire, and no matter how late at night it is, if an alarm is sounded I always dress and go. When the Fifth Avenue theater, in New York, burned I was present and watched it to the end. If I had been soon it would probably have been said that my presence caused it. I do not deserve the reputation of being bravo in fires, for I am a great coward, so great a one that it often enables me to seem self sustained. After
